Hey Camonghne!

Likewise, so good to meet you and great to work with you. Let' definitely try to get something on the calendar for after the New Year. I'm sure we can find ONE day where we both have a free lunch hour to spare ☺

Happiest holidays and I'll talk to you soon!

Hey lady!

Thanks for all of your great work today - your team helped make today's press conference a breeze!

Would love to chat/grab coffee or drinks at some point. I know we're both super busy so all good if that's not possible until June LOL. You're at city hall and I'm on Wall Street, so it seems doable. I've attached my business card -- keep in touch!

Matt -

Here's a quote from Kelsey for the release.

Can you also make sure we get a copy of the final one? We would like to share on social media and with staff and clients. Thanks!

“Health care coverage plays a key role in reducing costs and improving outcomes for serious and life-threatening conditions, including HIV and AIDS. For that reason, GMHC has patient care navigators on staff to assist and advise our clients who are seeking enrollment. Thank you Mayor de Blasio for launching this critical initiative that seeks to increase enrollment rates and expand access to affordable health care.” - Kelsey Louie, CEO of GMHC

CONFIDENTIAL DRAFT:

Mayor de Blasio Launches GetCoveredNYC Initiative To Enroll More New Yorkers In Health Insurance Programs

Long-term initiative to enroll New Yorkers in no-and-low-cost- insurance; XYZ eligible New Yorkers not receiving health insurance today

Open enrollment period ends Jan 31st, 2017

NEW YORK-- Mayor Bill de Blasio was today joined by Health and Hospitals Interim CEO Stan Brezenoff, XYZtktk at XYZtktk to launch the GetCoveredNYC campaign focused on enrolling more New Yorkers in health insurance, and providing them with access to primary and preventive care at public Health + Hospitals facilities. An estimated XYZ New Yorkers who are otherwise eligible for health insurance are not taking advantage of existing enrollment options.

The mayor's office has partnered with Health + Hospitals, the Human Resources Administration, the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, and MetroPlus to launch this ambitious campaign. On December 10th, the city hosted five enrollment events focused on engaging potential youth applicants and assisting them in applying for coverage.

“We don't know the future of the Affordable Care Act, but we do know that Obamacare and Medicaid expansion are helping New Yorkers daily,” said Mayor de Blasio. “We must continue to enroll eligible residents in these vital programs, paying special attention to those most appealing to low-income residents— such as Medicaid and the Essential plan.”

Throughout the campaign, GetCoveredNYC outreach teams will proactively engage uninsured New Yorkers who have visited Health + Hospitals facilities. In order to reach the maximum number of New Yorkers, the campaign will include office hours at community partner or elected officials' offices, providing direct access to in-person assistance from outreach specialists. Specialists will schedule individuals for an enrollment appointment and case-manage each applicant through the entire process. The open enrollment period will end on January 31, 2017.

Depending on income and other criteria, applicants may be eligible for Medicaid at no cost. Those whose earnings exceed Medicaid limits may be eligible for the Essential Plan, which also offers a comprehensive coverage package for either $20 monthly premium or nothing, depending on income. Those earning more— between 200 and 400 percent of the federal poverty level—may be eligible for Qualified Health Plan coverage, offered by MetroPlus and others, with public subsidies on a sliding scale, reflecting income. All the plans cover inpatient and outpatient care, physician services, diagnostic services, and prescription drugs.

While NYC Health + Hospitals makes care available to all New Yorkers, regardless of ability to pay, the public health system emphasizes the importance of insurance enrollment as a tool to best engage patients in their health and health care— as opposed to waiting until health issues reach critical levels and require emergency room or inpatient care, the most expensive care for the system. Further, to address its financial challenges, NYC Health + Hospitals needs more of its patient population to gain access to insurance to help close its growing budget gap.

“Our national healthcare landscape has changed, and much as we’ve had to re-imagine ways to more effectively deliver care, we’ve also had to think creatively as to how that care will be paid for,” said Health + Hospitals Interim President and CEO Stan Brezenoff.

“Increasing healthcare enrollment is the best thing for New Yorkers in need, and the best thing for our growing healthcare network.”

[ADDITIONAL QUOTES]

On November 21st at a Cooper Union speech, Mayor de Blasio spoke on the importance of enrollment in Obamacare: “We need you to help your friends and family members sign up for health insurance under the Affordable Care Act right now.”

New Yorkers may connect with free in-person GetCoveredNYC enrollment assistance near them through calling 311 or texting CoveredNYC to 877-877.

Indigent legal services bill hits Cuomo's desk

By Matthew Hamilton on December 20, 2016 at 11:11 AM

- 0

Gov. Andrew Cuomo has until just before the end of the year to act on legislation sent to him Tuesday that would shift the cost of legal services for the poor from counties to the state in the coming years.

The indigent legal services bill is one of 13 that was sent to the governor on Tuesday. He has until Jan. 30 to act on those bills, otherwise they would automatically become law.

The indigent legal services legislation has been pushed by a number of county-level officials for much of the past year. Albany County Executive Dan McCoy's office has been among those adamant that the costs for such services are over burdensome for the counties to shoulder. It's estimated that with full funding of indigent legal services (advocates maintain they are currently underfunded), the statewide costs are somewhere near $500 million.

The bill would shift the full cost of services to the state by 2023.

Whether the governor will sign or veto the bill is unknown, though supporters have been optimistic. It's possible that the governor could coordinate with the Legislature to pass chapter amendments of some kind should he sign the bill.

Cuomo's office in recent weeks has said only that the bill is under review.

The legislation would not take effect until April 1, after the next state budget deadline, should the governor approve it.

Also sent to Cuomo on Tuesday is legislation that would require drinking water suppliers to analyze their vulnerability to a cyber attack every five years in addition to a statutorily required analyses of vulnerability to a terrorist threat. That bill is a response to an attempted hack of the computer-guided controls of a Westchester County dam by Iranian hackers.

Still not yet handed up is the NYRA privatization bill, which would transfer the control of the New York Racing Association back to private hands after being in state control for the past few years. The governor said in August his hope always was to privatize the once-beleaguered entity when it got back on solid footing. But "the state should continue to regulate it because we have a significant investment in NYRA," he said. "We subsidize by about $58 million a year. The state has to perform its role. But the best way to do it ultimately is to privatize it with continued state regulation."

NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: December 20, 2016
CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

MAYOR DE BLASIO LAUNCHES GETCOVEREDNYC INITIATIVE TO ENROLL MORE NEW YORKERS IN HEALTH INSURANCE PROGRAMS

Goal to enroll 50,000 New Yorkers through 2017; open enrollment period ends Jan 31, 2017

NEW YORK—Mayor Bill de Blasio was today joined by Health + Hospitals Interim CEO Stan Brezenoff, Department of Health Commissioner Dr. Mary T Bassett, Community Service Society President and CEO David R. Jones and Public Health Solutions President and CEO Lisa David at Health + Hospital/Gouverneur to launch the GetCoveredNYC campaign focused on enrolling more New Yorkers in health insurance and providing them with access to primary and preventive care at public Health + Hospitals facilities. The campaign's goal is to enroll 50,000 New Yorkers through 2017 who are eligible for health insurance but are not taking advantage of existing enrollment options.

The Mayor's Office has partnered with Health + Hospitals, the Human Resources Administration, the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene and MetroPlus to launch this ambitious campaign. On December 10, the City hosted five enrollment events focused on engaging potential youth applicants and assisting them in applying for coverage.

"We don't know the future of the Affordable Care Act, but we do know that Obamacare and Medicaid expansion are helping New Yorkers every day," said Mayor Bill de Blasio. "We must continue to enroll eligible residents in these vital programs, paying special attention to those most appealing to low-income residents, such as Medicaid and the Essential plan."

Throughout the campaign, GetCoveredNYC outreach teams will proactively engage uninsured New Yorkers who have visited Health + Hospitals facilities. In order to reach the maximum number of New Yorkers, the campaign will include at-home outreach as well as office hours at community partner or elected officials' offices, providing direct access to in-person assistance from outreach specialists. Specialists will schedule individuals for an enrollment appointment and case-manage each applicant through the entire process. The open enrollment period will end on January 31, 2017.

Depending on income and other criteria, applicants may be eligible for Medicaid at no cost. Those whose earnings exceed Medicaid limits may be eligible for the Essential Plan, which also offers a comprehensive coverage package for either $20 monthly premium or no cost, depending on income. Those earning more – between 200 and 400 percent of the federal poverty level – may be eligible for Qualified Health Plan coverage, offered by MetroPlus and others, with public subsidies on a sliding scale reflecting income. All the plans cover inpatient and outpatient care, physician services, diagnostic services, mental healthcare and prescription drugs.

While NYC Health + Hospitals makes care available to all New Yorkers, regardless of ability to pay, the public health system emphasizes the importance of insurance enrollment as a tool to best engage patients in their healthcare – as opposed to waiting until health issues reach critical levels and require emergency room or inpatient care, the most expensive care for the system. Further, to address its financial challenges, Health + Hospitals needs more of its patient population to gain access to insurance to help close its growing budget gap.

"Our national healthcare landscape has changed, and much as we've had to re-imagine ways to more effectively deliver care, we've also had to think creatively as to how that care will be paid for," said Health + Hospitals Interim President and CEO Stan Brezenoff.

"Increasing healthcare enrollment is the best thing for New Yorkers in need, and the best thing for our essential healthcare network."

"Health insurance makes it easier to see a primary care physician regularly and catch health problems early," said Health Commissioner Mary T. Bassett. "As we work to address health disparities among New Yorkers, the Health Department encourages everyone to apply before the January 31st deadline. Health insurance is a right, not a privilege."

“The public service professionals AFSCME represents in H+H facilities work hard every day to keep New Yorkers healthy and safe. At a time when some are eager to take health care away from 30 million Americans, we need more leaders like Mayor de Blasio who stand up for working families and fight to give them access to quality, affordable health coverage,” said AFSCME President Lee Saunders.

"This critical initiative will help even more New Yorkers access the health care they need and deserve," said Center for American Progress President and CEO Neera Tanden. "As President-elect Trump and Republicans in Congress plan to strip coverage from millions of Americans, Mayor de Blasio is showing them what true leadership looks like."

“Medical coverage can be an enormous expense for New York’s working families and it is vital we collaborate at all levels of government to expand access to insurance and healthcare,” said Congresswoman Nydia Velazquez. GetCoveredNYC is critical to helping spread the word and inform New Yorkers about the resources available to them. I look forward to working with the Mayor to ensure more New York residents are able to secure quality coverage and care.”

“New York City has done an admirable job of signing people up for health insurance through the Affordable Care Act,” said Congressman Eliot Engel. “Though more Americans are now covered than ever before, there are still many who are eligible for coverage that have yet to enroll. GetCoveredNYC is a wonderful campaign that will help raise awareness about the current open enrollment period and the health care options available to New Yorkers. I encourage all those who have yet to get covered to sign-up before the enrollment period ends on January 31st, 2017.”

Congressman Joe Crowley said, “Since the enactment of the Affordable Care Act, millions of previously uninsured Americans have finally secured health insurance, but the effort to cover every single New Yorker continues. The GetCoveredNYC campaign will work to make every enrollment option easily accessible and readily available. I thank the Mayor’s office for its commitment to making sure everyone, especially our vulnerable communities, has quality and affordable healthcare.”

“I’m glad the Mayor has made enrolling New Yorkers in health insurance plans a priority,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. “New Yorkers’ health, financial well-being and the future of our safety net and public hospitals all depend on it.”

"All New Yorkers should have the information and support they need to get the best healthcare plan they can," said State Senator Daniel Squadron. "As we continue to push for stronger healthcare policies on the state level, I encourage all eligible New Yorkers to access needed information on how to make the best healthcare decisions. Thank you to the City, HHC, HRA, DOHMH, MetroPlus and my colleagues for helping spread the word."

“It’s important that Mayor de Blasio is helping to get the word out that we have extra time for enrolling in the Affordable Care Act. For millions of working people in New York, the coverage is free or very low cost, under the ACA, New York’s Essential Plan or Medicaid,” said Assembly Member Richard N. Gottfried, Chair of the Committee on Health. “Whatever happens in Washington down the road, it’s important to get signed up now.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio’s efforts to enroll more New Yorkers in health insurance. Especially as we enter the dark days of the Trump Era, it is more important than ever that we do everything possible to make sure as many people as possible have access to primary and preventative care,” said Assembly Member Jeffrey Dinowitz.

“By enrolling more New Yorkers in affordable healthcare plans, we provide New Yorkers with increased access to primary and preventive care,” said Assembly Member David Weprin. “With the future of the Affordable Care Act up in the air, I am glad to see that Mayor Bill de Blasio has taken this step to increase insurance coverage in New York City. By identifying potential applicants and assisting with applications, Get Covered NYC will help many New Yorkers gain access to health insurance.”

“Though the future course of our federal government’s healthcare policy remains in doubt, one thing is clear: every New Yorker, especially those in our low-income and immigrant communities, needs to get covered,” said Council Member Margaret S. Chin. “By engaging in this important outreach effort, we are helping to improve the health of thousands of uninsured New Yorkers, as well as the healthcare network they rely on.”

Council Member Mathieu Eugene said, “The GetCoveredNYC outreach program is vital to the wellbeing of New Yorkers who require health insurance, but may not be aware of their eligibility. This important initiative addresses an ongoing issue within our community, and I encourage all residents who are in need of specific medical resources to take part in this program.”

“The federal health reform law works no place better than New York. But with the promise of health coverage under attack, it is imperative that those still uninsured in our state get insured, and in doing so send a clear message to our leaders in Washington that they value the safety and security of health coverage more than ever,” said David R. Jones, President and CEO of the Community Service Society.

“As the Affordable Care Act Navigators for Kings County – with five staff members speaking six languages and working in locations across Brooklyn – we know how crucial it is for every eligible resident to have health insurance. GetCoveredNYC is a terrific approach to increasing enrollment, and the Brooklyn Chamber looks forward to participating in the campaign and helping as many New Yorkers as possible get coverage,” said Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce CEO Andrew Hoan. “Congratulations to Mayor Bill de Blasio, Health and Hospitals Interim CEO Stan Brezenoff and Department of Health and Mental Hygiene Commissioner Mary Bassett on this wonderful initiative.”

“We applaud the Mayor’s Office’s expansion of GetCoveredNYC. It literally ‘takes a village’ to do this work,” said Lisa David, President and CEO of Public Health Solutions. “There are many supporting organizations doing great work reaching different populations. PHS, for instance, provides enrollment in 20 different languages. In addition, we use a co-location model that allows families to access Navigator services at locations where they go for other services like PHS’ Neighborhood WIC sites.”

“Doctors working in New York City’s public hospital system – the City’s safety net hospitals – serve the most at-risk and vulnerable New Yorkers. Often these patients come to our hospitals already quite sick. The frontline doctors have a pulse on the communities we serve and we know that access to comprehensive insurance coverage, as well as timely primary and preventive care, will lower health care costs and improve health outcomes for our patients and communities," said Dr. Frank Proscia, President, Doctors Council SEIU. "Our hospitals, especially public institutions, which serve large numbers of uninsured New Yorkers will be stronger and more viable with greater numbers of insured patients."

"Every day, uninsured New Yorkers are forced to make the decision to go without care because of prohibitive costs," said Donovan Purrier, Licensed Practical Nurse at Metropolitan Hospital and member, 1199SEIU. "Through the Mayor's GetCoveredNYC program, more people from across the five boroughs would no longer have to choose between seeing the doctor and putting food on the table. Our City's public Health + Hospital facilities are ready to continue providing the quality care every New Yorker deserves."

"The Asian American Federation applauds Mayor de Blasio for his GetCoveredNYC Initiative, which will help low-income Asian New Yorkers enroll in affordable/no-cost healthcare," said Jo-Ann Yoo, Executive Director of the Asian American Federation. "With more than 1 in 8 Asian New Yorkers lacking health insurance – the majority of whom are foreign-born, with particularly high uninsured rates in the Korean community – this program will be crucial in providing the uninsured self-employed and seniors and children living in poverty in our community access to healthcare."

"Make the Road New York applauds Mayor Bill De Blasio, Health + Hospitals and the Human Resources Administration for their increased efforts to inform New Yorkers of health insurance options currently available to them, and to encourage them to apply. The Affordable Care Act (ACA) has had an enormous impact on the lives of New Yorkers and it is essential that the ACA is protected so these individuals can continue to access quality, low cost health insurance options," said Becca Telzak, Director of Health Programs at Make the Road New York.

Barbara Bowen, President of PSC/CUNY, said, "We in New York City cannot control everything that will happen at the federal level, but we must do what we can to protect the rights of all New Yorkers. And no right is more fundamental than the right to healthcare. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for taking this important step to identify and enroll New Yorkers in need of health coverage. It is exactly the kind of initiative that is needed now."

Ron Pollack, Executive Director of Families U.S.A., said, "While some in Washington look backwards, we should look forwards to adding life-saving health coverage to New Yorkers so they can get good, affordable care to keep their families healthy. Families U.S.A. applauds the efforts Mayor de Blasio and his Administration have taken to launch GetCovered NYC at this important time."

"We've seen a huge surge in enrollment following National Youth Enrollment Day, so we're thrilled to see Mayor de Blasio and others working hard to sustain this momentum and help more young people get covered and take advantage of the financial help they are guaranteed under the ACA," said Kevin Stump, Northeast Director of Young Invincibles.

"We applaud Mayor de Blasio for launching GetCoveredNYC to keep New Yorkers of all ages healthy. We are also pleased to work with several City agencies to ensure that older New Yorkers have access to Medicaid and other benefits," said Allison Nickerson,

Executive Director of LiveOn NY.

"As a patient navigator for the Affordable Care Act, The Center knows first-hand how crucial it is for LGBT community members to be able to access affordable insurance coverage and quality care," said Glennnda Testone, Executive Director of NYC's Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Community Center. "We applaud Mayor de Blasio for introducing the GetCoveredNYC initiative and demonstrating the City's commitment to caring for its community in these uncertain times."

"We know just how critical it is for vulnerable communities to have access to affordable, affirming and appropriate care," said Wendy Stark, Executive Director of Callen-Lorde Community Health Center, which has provided LGBTQ-centric health care in New York City for nearly 50 years. "Since the inception of the Affordable Care Act, the percentage of our uninsured patients dropped from 37 percent to 26 percent, which means more New Yorkers have access to the care they need. We applaud the Mayor and his administration for promoting open enrollment through the GetCoveredNYC initiative."

"We commend Mayor de Blasio for taking action and creating the GetCoveredNYC initiative within the Public Engagement Unit, utilizing person to person outreach tactics and in-person enrollers to ensure every New Yorker knows what is available to them under the Affordable Care Act," said Rachel Linstead Goldsmith, State Assistance Director of the Eastern Region at Enroll America.

"I applaud the Mayor for this new initiative to help New Yorkers learn about free and low-cost health insurance available to them," said Rabbi David Niederman of the United Jewish Organizations of Williamsburg and North Brooklyn. "After helping thousands enroll in the various health insurance plans, we know firsthand the importance of increasing outreach and assistance with enrollment, so that people don't lack health coverage and don't hesitate to schedule medical appointments or seek treatment. This new initiative will reduce the number of uninsured and will help make New Yorkers healthier."

"Health care coverage plays a key role in reducing costs and improving outcomes for serious and life-threatening conditions, including HIV and AIDS. For that reason, GMHC has patient care navigators on staff to assist and advise our clients who are seeking enrollment. Thank you Mayor de Blasio for launching this critical initiative that seeks to increase enrollment rates and expand access to affordable health care," said Kelsey Louie, CEO of GMHC.

"It's about time all New Yorkers get covered with health insurance. I fully support this worthwhile effort. Thank you Mayor de Blasio," said Dorothy Turano, District Manager of Community Board 18 in Brooklyn, NY

"This is wonderful! I applaud The Mayor for creating GetCoveredNYC. Let's get New Yorkers enrolled," said Viola Greene-Walker, District Manager of Community Board 16 in Brooklyn, NY

"It is imperative that the administration raise awareness to all New Yorkers the options that are available within the healthcare system," said NYS Committeewoman Dorita Clarke. "It is a great advantage that young people up to the age of 26 are able to remain on their parents health insurance. I am confident that through GetCoveredNYC campaign, the number of enrollment will increase."

"For the past three years, American Muslim Health Professionals (AMHP) has been at the forefront of connecting Muslims to healthcare coverage. We recognize the value of person-to-person outreach effort and thank Mayor Bill de Blasio for taking the initiative to launch GetCoveredNYC to increase enrollment," said Madiha Shahid, co-Founder and President of NY/NJ Chapter of American Muslim Health Professionals.

New Yorkers may connect with free in-person GetCoveredNYC enrollment assistance near them through calling 311 or texting CoveredNYC to 877-877.

Dear Jonathan –

Happy New Year. Three years into Mayor de Blasio's tenure, New York City has never been more prosperous than it is right now. 2016 has been a year of record job growth, crime driven to historic lows, significant gains for students on state exams, a second historic rent freeze, thousands of working families protected against bad landlords – and many other achievements.

I wanted to share with you these facts, and while we still have challenges, let us take a moment to celebrate NYC's success in 2016.

Best Regards, Gabrielle

Mayor de Blasio believes all New Yorkers deserve a chance to succeed in the greatest city on earth. That means every child gets a quality education, every community is safe, and every New Yorker has an affordable place to call home. In 2016, we built on our record of progress.

Modern approach to public safety – safer streets, safer every day.

- January was the safest January on record – followed by the safest summer, safest September and safest October.
- Expanded neighborhood policing, launched force-wide trainings on implicit bias, alternatives to physical force, and conflict de-escalation → Stop-and-Frisk has declined by 97% from an all-time high in 2011.
- Arrests are down, murders and shootings at historic lows, record low numbers of robberies, burglaries, and auto thefts.
- Vision Zero efforts made 2015 the safest year on New York City streets since 1910, and 2016 is on course to be even safer.

Bolstering the economy with good-paying jobs and fiscal responsibility, creating opportunities for people to get ahead.

- For three years running, added to the City's financial reserves, preparing us for any potential shocks to the system.
- 60,000 new jobs created in 2016, and nearly 277,000 jobs since the Mayor took office.
- Unveiled a $500 million life science initiative, LifeSci NYC, to spur 16,000 new, good-paying jobs and establish New York City as a global leader in life sciences research and innovation.
- Signed a personnel order to provide paid parental leave to approximately 20,000 New York City employees – putting the City at the forefront of city and state policies around the country.
- Created a $250 million tech hub in Union Square, the heart of NYC's Silicon Alley.
- Rezoned Midtown East to increase office space and improve access to infrastructure.

Equity and excellence in all schools, preparing our students for the 21st century economy.

- High school graduation rate over 70% for the first time ever.
- 70,000 kids enrolled in Pre-K, more than triple the 20,000 children who attended before the Pre-K for All expansion.
- Computer Science For All launched, bringing CS education to all students – in year one, 450

- teachers were trained and CS education rolled out to 250 schools
- 103 reading coaches hired, trained, and on the job to get our students reading at grade level.
- City students scoring much higher on English exams, now in lockstep with NYS peers.
- Lowest-ever high school dropout rate, and the highest-ever rate of students enrolling in college.

Easing financial burden, tackling the affordability crisis, and creating opportunity.

- Fought for New Yorkers struggling to make the rent or find affordable housing.
  - On track to build and preserve 200,000 affordable housing apartments over the coming decade, benefitting half-a-million people.
  - Secured 55,309 affordable apartments since taking office, an all-time high for new, affordable construction.
  - Two consecutive rent freezes (2015 and 2016), keeping rent stable for 2.5 million tenants.
  - 150,000 people benefited from the expanded use of emergency rent assistance.
  - Stood up to bad landlords using all available tools – such as withholding rent and increasing funding for New Yorkers to access legal services – to hold landlords accountable.
  - Evictions down by 24 percent, meaning 21,000 people are still in their homes.
  - Replaced voluntary rules with a mandatory affordable housing requirement in new buildings.
- Fought for New York City’s homeowners.
  - Proposed a $183 water credit on the water bills of over 664,000 homeowners, in keeping with the City's past efforts to ensure bills stay as low as possible.
  - Saved 35,000 homeowners tens of millions of dollars in flood insurance premiums by working with FEMA.
- Fought for New Yorkers who need to get to work on time.
  - Eligible workers can now use pre-tax income to pay for their commuting costs, saving commuters $800 to $1,000 dollars a year.
  - Added 18 miles of new protected bike lanes.
  - Expansion of CitiBike to more New Yorkers, adding thousands of new bikes and hundreds of stations in 2016 across Red Hook, Brownstone Brooklyn, and Harlem.
  - Filled the administration’s one-millionth pothole and made a historic investment in repaving, reducing the need for future pothole repair.
  - Repaved city streets equivalent to the distance between New York City and Miami, Florida.
- Fought for the city’s most vulnerable.
  - HOME-STAT fully operational: outreach workers are identifying, engaging, and transitioning homeless New Yorkers to services and, ultimately, permanent housing.
  - Nearly 48,000 New Yorkers moved into permanent housing and avoided or exited shelters through permanent housing programs.
  - About 12,000 more households have been able to receive services from the HomeBase homelessness prevention program in each of the past two years.

Launched ThriveNYC: a holistic mental health plan

- Launched NYC Well, a 24/7 phone, text, or chat connection to mental health and substance misuse services.
- Convened 1,000 houses of worship to talk about mental illness and addiction, reaching 250,000 New Yorkers.
- Created a system to screen and treat 80 percent of pregnant women and new moms, with a goal of screening and treating ALL pregnant women and new moms for maternal depression.

- Mental health support for every school in the city.
- Placed over 100 Mental Health Service Corps (MHSC) members in neighborhoods with the highest need across the city.
- Launched the first, city-based movement for mental health – Cities Thrive. More than 80 cities have committed to mental health as a municipal policy and programming priority and to federal advocacy.

Progressive Governance

- Defended New York values. We are #AlwaysNewYork.
  - Stood up for the 65,000 hourly employees in the fast food industry who deserve fair notification on their work hours.
  - Funded major improvements in city parks and purchased the last site needed to complete the 28-acre Bushwick Inlet Park, fulfilling a promise made to the families of North Brooklyn.
  - Expanded graffiti removal, introduced sidewalk power washing in commercial corridors citywide, expanded Sunday and holiday litter basket service, and expanded highway shoulder and ramp cleanup.
  - Shattered enrollment expectations for the country's most ambitious municipal identification program, IDNYC.
  - Opened the Damian Family Care Center in the Bronx to serve 10,000 community residents.
  - Launched the nation's first government-led citywide ad campaign affirming every New Yorker's right to use the bathroom consistent with their gender identity.

Dear Press Office (because I cannot find any names!),

I'm putting together a piece for Networking+, a UK IT magazine and website, about an announcement by the City of London Corporation of a new wi-fi network.

You'll see that it is described as "world-class" and says (in the second paragraph) that it will "surpass" your city.

I'm sure that someone in your mayor's office, perhaps even the mayor himself, would like to comment.

(It's worth having in mind that the City of London has only a handful of residents -- it's packed with offices -- and is surrounded by 32 London boroughs. Together they form Greater London which has

8.5m residents.)

I look forward to hearing from you.

The release is pasted below my signature.

Kind regards,

Paul

SQUARE MILE TO GET WORLD-CLASS WIRELESS NETWORK

Residents, employees and visitors to the City of London will be able to use a new world-class wireless network this year as proposals to expand free Wi-Fi and improve mobile coverage across the Square Mile have been given the green light.

A new network will replace the current free Wi-Fi service provided by the Cloud. State of the art equipment will provide gigabit speeds and see users able to enjoy high bandwidth services like video on demand over free City Wi-Fi for the first time. The service will surpass that found in the world's other major international financial centre - New York.

The project is the single largest investment in wireless infrastructure ever seen in the City of London and will be rolled out from late spring 2017. The winning provider for the delivery of this work will be announced in the next few weeks.

London currently suffers from poor broadband speeds with four of the 12 constituencies with the worst superfast broadband being found in the capital - including the City and Westminster. London ranks 26th out of 33 European capitals in terms of broadband speed.

Over 400 'small cells', which will be built in the coming months, will boost the strength and reliability of the current wireless coverage by using street objects like lampposts, street signs, buildings and CCTV columns.

The combination of the Square Mile's tall buildings and narrow, historic streets mean that in some areas mobile service has been unreliable for some of the 400,000 City workers and 10 million yearly visitors. The new technology will enhance coverage, making working on-the-go easier. By utilising these street objects, the City will be able to boost the strength and reliability of the current wireless offer.

Mark Boleat, Chairman of the City of London Corporation's Policy and Resources Committee said: "As the world's leading financial hub, we are thrilled to bring our wireless connectivity up to speed. At a time when other major financial centres are competing with us, the Square Mile is boosting its appeal through initiatives such as this. The new service will allow City workers to become better connected than ever before."

Deputy Mayor for Business, Rajesh Agrawal, said: "Fast and reliable digital connectivity is crucial for businesses and I'm really pleased the City of London Corporation is taking this significant step in improving speed and coverage in the Square Mile. The Mayor is committed to improving London's connectivity, including tackling the capital's 'notspots' and ensuring providers have better access to public-sector property for digital infrastructure."

While London is the number one global financial centre according to the Global Financial Centres Index published by the Z/Yen Group, other centres like New York, Tokyo, Singapore and Hong Kong have invested in their information and communications (ICT) technology infrastructure in recent years. ICT is set to become more of a major competitive issue and something that will attract more investment into centres with enhanced connectivity.

The new service will pave the way for easier adoption of 5G technology, which is expected to be launched by the end of this decade.

Notes to editors

1. In addition, the City of London Corporation launched a new standardised legal document in July 2016 which will speed up the process for businesses to get superfast broadband. By working with London's main developers, landlords, broadband operators, including Virgin Media, property managers, Government, legal firms and key trade associations set of tools were produced which make it easier and faster to agree digital connections.

2. A key element is a standardised legal agreement - known as a wayleave. Previously, business tenants faced long negotiations with providers to agree new wayleaves from scratch each time they wanted to get broadband fibre installed. Previously, business tenants faced long negotiations with providers to agree new wayleaves from scratch each time they wanted to get broadband fibre installed. The toolkit can be found here.

3. About the City of London Corporation

The City of London Corporation provides local government and policing services for the financial and commercial heart of Britain, the 'Square Mile'. In addition, the City Corporation has three roles:

. We support London's communities by working in partnership with neighbouring boroughs on economic regeneration, education and skills projects. In addition, the City of London Corporation's charity City Bridge Trust makes grants of around £20 million annually to charitable projects across London and we also support education with three independent schools, three City Academies, a primary school and the world-renowned Guildhall School of Music and Drama.

. We also help look after key London's heritage and green spaces including Tower Bridge, Museum of London, Barbican Arts Centre, City gardens, Hampstead Heath, Epping Forest, Burnham Beeches, and important 'commons' in south London.

. We also support and promote the 'City' as a world-leading financial and business hub, with outward and inward business delegations, high-profile civic events and research-driven policies all reflecting a long-term approach.

Hi all,
Wanted to flag this post about a Link privacy rally tomorrow: <http://rethinklink.nyc/2017/01/12/rally-for-privacy.html>

If we get any inquiries, we drafted the following response and can clarify other questions on background:

“New York City and LinkNYC have created a user-first privacy policy. We do not track or store your online activity, and we will never sell or share your personal information with any third party -- including city agencies -- unless lawfully required. Nearly one million people have signed up to use LinkNYC, which now offers all five boroughs access to free, super-fast Wi-Fi, free phone calls, access to 311 and emergency services, and more.” -- Jen Hensley, General Manager, LinkNYC

I'm planning to stop by tomorrow to check it out.

Thanks,
Jovana

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

January 18, 2017

Contact: Jovana Rizzo, media@link.nyc

LinkNYC Reaches 1,000,000 Users in Less than 1 Year

Link Usage Rises to 4 Million Wi-Fi Sessions Every Week

78% of New Yorkers Have a Favorable Opinion of World's Largest and Fastest Free Public Wi-Fi Network

NEW YORK -- LinkNYC announced today that the world's largest and fastest free public Wi-Fi network has added its millionth user less than a year after publicly launching on the streets of New York City. As of January 4th, over 1,040,000 people -- more than the populations of San Jose, San Francisco, Seattle, or Denver -- have signed up to use its gigabit Wi-Fi service, with approximately 40,000 people joining the network for the first time each week.

"With Link kiosks now in all five boroughs, we have helped more than a million New Yorkers and visitors get online at the fastest speeds available in New York City, for free." said Jen Hensley, General Manager of LinkNYC. "Less than one year in, we are thrilled with the response to LinkNYC."

LinkNYC By the Numbers (As of January 4, 2017)

- Total Wi-Fi Users: 1,040,000
- New Wi-Fi Sign-ups Per Week: 40,000
- Wi-Fi Sessions Per Week: 4,000,000
- Wi-Fi Sessions Since Launch: 75,000,000
- Data downloaded by LinkNYC users since launch: 555,710 Gigabytes
- Busiest day by users: Jan 4, 2017: 125,756 unique users
- Busiest day by data transferred: Dec 31, 2016: 4,656 GB

New Yorkers Know -- and Love -- LinkNYC

71% of New Yorkers are aware of LinkNYC, and of them, 92% believe it has positive benefits for New York City, according to research conducted by Sachs Insights. Among those aware of LinkNYC:

- 78% have a favorable opinion of the network.
- 89% believe LinkNYC makes NYC more innovative than other cities.
- 89% appreciate that LinkNYC's services are free thanks to advertising.

Where to Find the World's Most Popular Links

The ~~world's~~ City's most popular Link stands in Herald Square (at 1313 Broadway) and has recorded about 600,000 Wi-Fi sessions all by itself. Here are the most popular Links in every borough:

Borough	Location
Brooklyn	Bed-Stuy (1874 Fulton St)

Comment [GS1]: Since there aren't that many in BK and Staten Island, I don't know if we want to put this in the release. Maybe have handy for Q&A?

Bronx	Yankee Stadium (52 East 161 Street)
Manhattan	Herald Square (1313 Broadway)
Queens	Jamaica Station (147-05 Jamaica Ave)

About LinkNYC

LinkNYC is the privately-funded, first-of-its-kind communications network replacing the city's payphones to build the world's fastest, largest free public Wi-Fi network. Since Mayor Bill de Blasio announced the public launch of LinkNYC in February, more than 600 Links have been installed across all five boroughs. Each Link provides New Yorkers with free, fast Wi-Fi, free domestic calling, two USB charging ports, and direct access to 911 and 311.

So far:

“We’re incredibly excited to see the overwhelmingly positive response to LinkNYC over the past year,” said Anne Roest, Commissioner of the Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications.

“Reaching 1 million users demonstrates that New Yorkers and our City’s record-breaking number of visitors are taking advantage of the free services that LinkNYC provides - superfast Wi-Fi, USB charging, City and emergency services, and phone calls. Our progress has been incredible so far, with over 500 active kiosks across the city, and we will continue to build on this ambitious, first-of-its kind network across the City in the coming years.”

“Free Wi-Fi internet access on our streets has been a game-changing new public service, and these numbers show it,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. “It’s not often that government rolls out an entirely new service to the public. Despite the inevitable bumps in the road, LinkNYC shows what government can do when we’re ambitious and forward-looking.”

“LinkNYC has set the standard for free public municipal Wi-Fi,” said Council Member James Vacca, Chair of the New York City Council Committee on Technology. “LinkNYC has provided a great benefit for residents, commuters, and tourists alike. Now with over 1,000,000 users, it’s clear that LinkNYC is here to stay and that free public Wi-Fi is the new standard for tech-friendly cities. I thank Mayor de Blasio and Commissioner Roest for their for their efforts.”

“Through advanced technology, New Yorkers of all backgrounds can now connect – locally and globally - for free. LinkNYC is a 21st Century approach to closing the digital divide. I would like to congratulate Mayor Bill de Blasio and the Department of Information Technology & Telecommunications (DoITT) for improving accessibility within Fort Greene and Crown Heights. I look forward to LinkNYC’s continued expansion throughout the 35th Council District and the City of New York,” said Council Member Laurie A. Cumbo.

“High speed broadband is the way of the present and future,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal. “In an ever increasingly digital world, we must take proactive steps to improve access to the Internet and technology for New Yorkers. I applaud the swift progress New York City has made in reaching over 1,000,000 users of LinkNYC in just one year! Let us keep up these innovative efforts and lead the nation in providing free public Wi-Fi.”

“I am very excited that our city is able to catapult into the 21st Century's Technological Age reaching the 1 million user milestone in under one year,” said Council Member Vincent Gentile. “LinkNYC has provided a facelift to New York City by replacing old payphones with free Wi-Fi kiosks empowering millions across the five boroughs. Congratulations on the accomplishment and here's to 1 million more!"

"In the reality of the world we live in, access to the Internet cannot be considered a luxury. So much of what we do depends on web connectivity, and is vital to people being able to exercise their right to freedom of expression. I applaud LinkNYC in working to make sure New Yorkers have access to Wi-Fi at no cost to the City's taxpayers," said Council Member Jumaane D. Williams.

CONTACT: media@link.nyc

DE BLASIO ADMINISTRATION AND CITYBRIDGE ANNOUNCE LINKNYC HAS REACHED ONE MILLION USERS IN LESS THAN ONE YEAR

Link Usage rises to 4 million Wi-Fi sessions every week; 78 percent of New Yorkers have a favorable opinion of world's largest and fastest free public Wi-Fi network

NEW YORK -- LinkNYC announced today that the world's largest and fastest free public Wi-Fi network has added its millionth user less than a year after publicly launching on the streets of New York City. As of January 4th, over 1,040,000 people – more than the populations of San Jose, San Francisco, Seattle, or Denver – have signed up to use its gigabit Wi-Fi service, with approximately 40,000 people joining the network for the first time each week.

“Bringing free Wi-Fi to our sidewalks is an important piece of our efforts to increase internet access for all New Yorkers. It’s no surprise that people are using the LinkNYC program and are happy about the services it provides – ultrafast Wi-Fi, phone calls, and more – at no cost to taxpayers,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

“With Link kiosks now in all five boroughs, we have helped more than a million New Yorkers and visitors get online at the fastest speeds available in New York City, for free.” said Jen Hensley, General Manager of LinkNYC. “Less than one year in, we are thrilled with the response to LinkNYC.”

LinkNYC By the Numbers (As of January 4, 2017)

- Total Wi-Fi Users: 1,040,000
- New Wi-Fi Sign-ups Per Week: 40,000
- Wi-Fi Sessions Per Week: 4,000,000
- Data downloaded by LinkNYC users since launch: 555,710 Gigabytes
- Busiest day by users: Jan 4, 2017: 125,756 unique users
- Busiest day by data transferred: Dec 31, 2016: 4,656 GB

New Yorkers Know – and Love – LinkNYC

71% of New Yorkers are aware of LinkNYC, and of them, 92% believe it has positive benefits for New York City, according to a survey conducted by Sachs Insights of 1,000 people across the New York City region. Among those aware of LinkNYC:

- 78% have a favorable opinion of the network.
- 89% believe LinkNYC makes NYC more innovative than other cities.
- 89% appreciate that LinkNYC's services are free thanks to advertising, which reaches over 11 million people weekly.

Where to Find the City's Most Popular Link

The city's most popular Link stands in Herald Square (at 1313 Broadway) and has served about 600,000 Wi-Fi sessions all by itself.

About LinkNYC

LinkNYC is the first-of-its-kind communications network replacing the city's payphones to build the world's fastest, largest free public Wi-Fi network at no cost to taxpayers. Since Mayor Bill de Blasio announced the public launch of LinkNYC in February, more than 600 Links have been installed across all five boroughs. Each Link provides New Yorkers with free, fast Wi-Fi, free domestic calling, two USB charging ports, Maps, and direct access to 911 and 311.

So far:

“We’re incredibly excited to see the overwhelmingly positive response to LinkNYC over the past year,” said Anne Roest, Commissioner of the Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications.

“Reaching 1 million users demonstrates that New Yorkers and our City’s record-breaking number of visitors are taking advantage of the free services that LinkNYC provides - superfast Wi-Fi, USB charging, City and emergency services, and phone calls. Our progress has been incredible so far, with over 500 active kiosks across the city, and we will continue to build on this ambitious, first-of-its kind network across the City in the coming years.”

“Free Wi-Fi internet access on our streets has been a game-changing new public service, and these numbers show it,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. “It’s not often that government rolls out an entirely new service to the public. Despite the inevitable bumps in the road, LinkNYC shows what government can do when we're ambitious and forward-looking."

"LinkNYC has set the standard for free public municipal Wi-Fi," said Council Member James Vacca, Chair of the New York City Council Committee on Technology. "LinkNYC has provided a great benefit for residents, commuters, and tourists alike. Now with over 1,000,000 users, it's clear that LinkNYC is here to stay and that free public Wi-Fi is the new standard for tech-friendly cities. I thank Mayor de Blasio and Commissioner Roest for their for their efforts."

"Through advanced technology, New Yorkers of all backgrounds can now connect – locally and globally - for free. LinkNYC is a 21st Century approach to closing the digital divide. I would like to congratulate Mayor Bill de Blasio and the Department of Information Technology & Telecommunications (DoITT) for improving accessibility within Fort Greene and Crown Heights. I look forward to LinkNYC's continued expansion throughout the 35th Council District and the City of New York," said Council Member Laurie A. Cumbo.

"High speed broadband is the way of the present and future," said Council Member Rafael Espinal. "In an ever increasingly digital world, we must take proactive steps to improve access to the Internet and technology for New Yorkers. I applaud the swift progress New York City has made in reaching over 1,000,000 users of LinkNYC in just one year! Let us keep up these innovative efforts and lead the nation in providing free public Wi-Fi."

"I am very excited that our city is able to catapult into the 21st Century's Technological Age reaching the 1 million user milestone in under one year," said Council Member Vincent Gentile. "LinkNYC has provided a facelift to New York City by replacing old payphones with free Wi-Fi kiosks empowering millions across the five boroughs. Congratulations on the accomplishment and here's to 1 million more!"

"In the reality of the world we live in, access to the Internet cannot be considered a luxury. So much of what we do depends on web connectivity, and is vital to people being able to exercise their right to freedom of expression. I applaud LinkNYC in working to make sure New Yorkers have access to Wi-Fi at no cost to the City's taxpayers," said Council Member Jumaane D. Williams.

So far:

“We’re incredibly excited to see the overwhelmingly positive response to LinkNYC over the past year,” said Anne Roest, Commissioner of the Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications. “Reaching 1 million users demonstrates that New Yorkers and our City’s record-breaking number of visitors are taking advantage of the free services that LinkNYC provides - superfast Wi-Fi, USB charging, City and emergency services, and phone calls. Our progress has been incredible so far, with over 500 active kiosks across the city, and we will continue to build on this ambitious, first-of-its kind network across the City in the coming years.”

“Free Wi-Fi internet access on our streets has been a game-changing new public service, and these numbers show it,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. “It’s not often that government rolls out an entirely new service to the public. Despite the inevitable bumps in the road, LinkNYC shows what government can do when we’re ambitious and forward-looking.”

“LinkNYC has set the standard for free public municipal Wi-Fi,” said Council Member James Vacca, Chair of the New York City Council Committee on Technology.

“LinkNYC has provided a great benefit for residents, commuters, and tourists alike. Now with over 1,000,000 users, it’s clear that LinkNYC is here to stay and that free public Wi-Fi is the new standard for tech-friendly cities. I thank Mayor de Blasio and Commissioner Roest for their for their efforts.”

“Through advanced technology, New Yorkers of all backgrounds can now connect – locally and globally - for free. LinkNYC is a 21st Century approach to closing the digital divide. I would like to congratulate Mayor Bill de Blasio and the Department of Information Technology & Telecommunications (DoITT) for improving accessibility within Fort Greene and Crown Heights. I look forward to LinkNYC’s continued expansion throughout the 35th Council District and the City of New York,” said Council Member Laurie A. Cumbo.

“High speed broadband is the way of the present and future,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal. “In an ever increasingly digital world, we must take proactive steps to improve access to the Internet and technology for New Yorkers. I applaud the swift progress New York City has made in reaching over 1,000,000 users of LinkNYC in just one year! Let us keep up these innovative efforts and lead the nation in providing free public Wi-Fi.”

"I am very excited that our city is able to catapult into the 21st Century's Technological Age reaching the 1 million user milestone in under one year," said Council Member Vincent Gentile. “LinkNYC has provided a facelift to New York City by replacing old payphones with free Wi-Fi kiosks empowering millions across the five boroughs. Congratulations on the accomplishment and here's to 1 million more!"

“In the reality of the world we live in, access to the Internet cannot be considered a luxury. So much of what we do depends on web connectivity, and is vital to people being able to exercise their right to freedom of expression. I applaud LinkNYC in working to make sure New Yorkers have access to Wi-Fi at no cost to the City’s taxpayers,” said Council Member Jumaane D. Williams.

DE BLASIO ADMINISTRATION AND CITYBRIDGE ANNOUNCE LINKNYC HAS REACHED ONE MILLION USERS IN LESS THAN ONE YEAR

Link usage rises to 4 million Wi-Fi sessions every week; 78 percent of New Yorkers have a favorable opinion of world's largest and fastest free public Wi-Fi network

NEW YORK -- LinkNYC announced today that the world's largest and fastest free public Wi-Fi network has added its millionth user less than a year after publicly launching on the streets of New York City. As of January 4th, over 1,040,000 people – more than the populations of San Jose, San Francisco, Seattle, or Denver – have signed up to use its gigabit Wi-Fi service, with approximately 40,000 people joining the network for the first time each week.

“Bringing free Wi-Fi to our sidewalks is an important part of our efforts to increase internet access for all New Yorkers. It’s no surprise that people are using the LinkNYC program and are happy about the services it provides – ultrafast Wi-Fi, phone calls, and more – at no cost to taxpayers,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

“With Link kiosks now in all five boroughs, we have helped more than a million New Yorkers and visitors get online at the fastest speeds available in New York City, for free.” said Jen Hensley, General Manager of LinkNYC. “Less than one year in, we are thrilled with the response to LinkNYC.”

LinkNYC By the Numbers (As of January 4, 2017)

- Total Wi-Fi subscribers: 1,040,000
- New Wi-Fi sign-ups per week: 40,000
- Wi-Fi sessions per week: 4,000,000
- Data downloaded by LinkNYC users since launch: 555,710 Gigabytes
- Busiest day by users: Jan 4, 2017: 125,756 unique users

- Busiest day by data transferred: Dec 31, 2016: 4,656 GB

New Yorkers Know – and Love – LinkNYC

71% of New Yorkers are aware of LinkNYC, and of them, 92% believe it has positive benefits for New York City, according to a survey conducted by Sachs Insights of 1,000 people across the New York City region. Among those aware of LinkNYC:

- 78% have a favorable opinion of the network.
- 89% believe LinkNYC makes NYC more innovative than other cities.
- 89% appreciate that LinkNYC's services are free thanks to advertising, which reaches over 11 million people weekly.

Where to Find the City's Most Popular Link

The city's most popular Link stands in Herald Square (at 1313 Broadway) and has served about 600,000 Wi-Fi sessions all by itself.

“We're incredibly excited to see the overwhelmingly positive response to LinkNYC over the past year,” said Anne Roest, Commissioner of the Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications. “Reaching 1 million users demonstrates that New Yorkers and our City's record-breaking number of visitors are taking advantage of the free services that LinkNYC provides - superfast Wi-Fi, USB charging, City and emergency services, and phone calls. Our progress has been incredible so far, with over 500 active kiosks across the city, and we will continue to build on this ambitious, first-of-its kind network across the City in the coming years.”

“Over 1 million users is a major milestone but it is just the beginning for LinkNYC. As the network expands and the word gets out, LinkNYC will continue to be a key component to provide connectivity for New Yorkers across the 5 boroughs,” said New York City Chief Technology Officer Miguel Gamiño.

“Free Wi-Fi internet access on our streets has been a game-changing new public service, and these numbers show it,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. “It's not often that government rolls out an entirely new service to the public. Despite the inevitable bumps in the road, LinkNYC shows what government can do when we're ambitious and forward-looking.”

“LinkNYC has set the standard for free public municipal Wi-Fi,” said Council Member James Vacca, Chair of the Committee on Technology. “LinkNYC has provided a great benefit for residents, commuters, and tourists alike. Now with over 1,000,000 users, it's clear that LinkNYC is here to stay and that free public Wi-Fi is the new standard for tech-friendly cities. I thank Mayor de Blasio and Commissioner Roest for their for their efforts.”

“Through advanced technology, New Yorkers of all backgrounds can now connect – locally and globally - for free. LinkNYC is a 21st Century approach to closing the digital divide. I would like to congratulate Mayor Bill de Blasio and the Department of Information Technology & Telecommunications (DoITT) for improving accessibility within Fort Greene and Crown Heights. I look forward to LinkNYC's continued expansion throughout the 35th Council District and the City of New York,” said Council Member Laurie A. Cumbo.

“High speed broadband is the way of the present and future,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal. “In an ever increasingly digital world, we must take proactive steps to improve access to the Internet and technology for New Yorkers. I applaud the swift progress New York City has made in reaching over 1,000,000 users of LinkNYC in just one year! Let us keep up these innovative efforts and lead the nation in providing free public Wi-Fi.”

"I am very excited that our city is able to catapult into the 21st Century's Technological Age reaching the 1 million user milestone in under one year," said Council Member Vincent Gentile. “LinkNYC has provided a facelift to New York City by replacing old payphones with free Wi-Fi kiosks empowering millions across the five boroughs. Congratulations on the accomplishment and here's to 1 million more!"

“The commemoration of 1 million unique users proves that our city is ready to move towards a more efficient and technologically friendly NYC,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso. “Not only do these stations provide our communities with free Wi-Fi networks, they also promote accessibility to city services and provide charging stations. I would like to commend the Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications and CityBridge for their innovation to ensure our city remains at the forefront of technology.”

“In the reality of the world we live in, access to the Internet cannot be considered a luxury. So much of what we do depends on web connectivity, and is vital to people being able to exercise their right to freedom of expression. I applaud LinkNYC in working to make sure New Yorkers have access to Wi-Fi at no cost to the City’s taxpayers,” said Council Member Jumaane D. Williams.

About LinkNYC

LinkNYC is the first-of-its-kind communications network replacing the city’s payphones to build the world’s fastest, largest free public Wi-Fi network at no cost to taxpayers. Since Mayor Bill de Blasio announced the public launch of LinkNYC in February, more than 600 Links have been installed across all five boroughs. Each Link provides New Yorkers with free, fast Wi-Fi, free domestic calling, two USB charging ports, Maps, and direct access to 911 and 311.

About LinkNYC

LinkNYC is the first-of-its-kind communications network replacing the city’s payphones to build the world’s fastest, largest free public Wi-Fi network at no cost to taxpayers. Since Mayor Bill de Blasio announced the public launch of LinkNYC in February, more than 600 Links have been installed across all five boroughs. Each Link provides New Yorkers with free, fast Wi-Fi, free domestic calling, two USB charging ports, Maps, and direct access to 911 and 311.

DE BLASIO ADMINISTRATION AND CITYBRIDGE ANNOUNCE LINKNYC HAS REACHED ONE MILLION USERS IN LESS THAN ONE YEAR

Link usage rises to 4 million Wi-Fi sessions every week; 78 percent of New Yorkers have a favorable opinion of world's largest and fastest free public Wi-Fi network

NEW YORK—LinkNYC announced today that the world's largest and fastest free public Wi-Fi network has added its millionth user less than a year after publicly launching on the streets of New York City. As of January 4th, over 1,040,000 people – more than the populations of San Jose, San Francisco, Seattle, or Denver – have signed up to use its gigabit Wi-Fi service, with approximately 40,000 people joining the network for the first time each week.

“Bringing free Wi-Fi to our sidewalks is an important part of our efforts to increase internet access for all New Yorkers. It's no surprise that people are using the LinkNYC program and are happy about the services it provides – ultrafast Wi-Fi, phone calls, and more – at no cost to taxpayers,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

“With Link kiosks now in all five boroughs, we have helped more than a million New Yorkers and visitors get online at the fastest speeds available in New York City, for free.” said Jen Hensley, General Manager of LinkNYC. “Less than one year in, we are thrilled with the response to LinkNYC.”

LinkNYC By the Numbers (As of January 4, 2017)

- Total Wi-Fi subscribers: 1,040,000
- New Wi-Fi sign-ups per week: 40,000
- Wi-Fi sessions per week: 4,000,000
- Data downloaded by LinkNYC users since launch: 555,710 Gigabytes
- Busiest day by users: Jan 4, 2017: 125,756 unique users
- Busiest day by data transferred: Dec 31, 2016: 4,656 GB

New Yorkers Know – and Love – LinkNYC

71% of New Yorkers are aware of LinkNYC, and of them, 92% believe it has positive benefits for New York City, according to a survey conducted by Sachs Insights of 1,000 people across the New York City region. Among those aware of LinkNYC:

- 78% have a favorable opinion of the network.
- 89% believe LinkNYC makes NYC more innovative than other cities.
- 89% appreciate that LinkNYC’s services are free thanks to advertising, which reaches over 11 million people weekly.

Where to Find the City’s Most Popular Link

The city’s most popular Link stands in Herald Square (at 1313 Broadway) and has served about 600,000 Wi-Fi sessions all by itself.

“We’re incredibly excited to see the overwhelmingly positive response to LinkNYC over the past year,” said Anne Roest, Commissioner of the Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications. “Reaching 1 million users demonstrates that New Yorkers and our City’s record-breaking number of visitors are taking advantage of the free services that LinkNYC provides - superfast Wi-Fi, USB charging, City and emergency services, and phone calls. Our progress has been incredible so far, with over 500 active kiosks across the city, and we will continue to build on this ambitious, first-of-its kind network across the City in the coming years.”

“Over 1 million users is a major milestone but it is just the beginning for LinkNYC. As the network expands and the word gets out, LinkNYC will continue to be a key component to provide connectivity for New Yorkers across the 5 boroughs,” said New York City Chief Technology Officer Miguel Gamiño.

“Free Wi-Fi internet access on our streets has been a game-changing new public service, and these numbers show it,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. “It’s not often that government rolls out an entirely new service to the public. Despite the inevitable bumps in the road, LinkNYC shows what government can do when we’re ambitious and forward-looking.”

“LinkNYC has set the standard for free public municipal Wi-Fi,” said Council Member James Vacca, Chair of the Committee on Technology. “LinkNYC has provided a great benefit for residents, commuters, and tourists alike. Now with over 1,000,000 users, it’s clear that LinkNYC is here to stay and that free public Wi-Fi is the new standard for tech-friendly cities. I thank Mayor de Blasio and Commissioner Roest for their for their efforts.”

“Through advanced technology, New Yorkers of all backgrounds can now connect – locally and globally - for free. LinkNYC is a 21st Century approach to closing the digital divide. I would like to congratulate Mayor Bill de Blasio and the Department of Information Technology & Telecommunications (DoITT) for improving accessibility within Fort Greene and Crown Heights. I look forward to LinkNYC’s continued expansion throughout the 35th Council District and the City of New York,” said Council Member Laurie A. Cumbo.

“High speed broadband is the way of the present and future,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal. “In an ever increasingly digital world, we must take proactive steps to improve access to the Internet and technology for New Yorkers. I applaud the swift progress New York City has made in reaching over 1,000,000 users of LinkNYC in just one year! Let us keep up these innovative efforts and lead the nation in providing free public Wi-Fi.”

"I am very excited that our city is able to catapult into the 21st Century's Technological Age reaching the 1 million user milestone in under one year,” said Council Member Vincent Gentile. “LinkNYC has provided a facelift to New York City by replacing old payphones with free Wi-Fi kiosks empowering millions across the five boroughs. Congratulations on the accomplishment and here's to 1 million more!"

“The commemoration of 1 million unique users proves that our city is ready to move towards a more efficient and technologically friendly NYC,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso. “Not only do these stations provide our communities with free Wi-Fi networks, they also promote accessibility to city services and provide charging stations. I would like to commend the Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications and CityBridge for their innovation to ensure our city remains at the forefront of technology.”

“In the reality of the world we live in, access to the Internet cannot be considered a luxury. So much of what we do depends on web connectivity, and is vital to people being able to exercise their right to freedom of expression. I applaud LinkNYC in working to make sure New Yorkers have access to Wi-Fi at no cost to the City's taxpayers," said Council Member Jumaane D. Williams.

I'm 99% sure that project is still active but running down answers on city side. But I'd like to see what you guys intend to provide re: coverage in harlem – tbh, seems like the part she's saying isn't "totally covered" is more covered than a lot of neighborhoods in NYC, so would like to tout progress there and note that it's expanding quickly in that neighborhood, if accurate.

Hi,
A question when you have a moment, please.

What happened to that free Wifi system that existed in Harlem? This was the program that began in 2013 and was the public-private partnership between the city, a private foundation and a company called Sky Packets. Does that network still exist? I ask because the stretch of Harlem that was once covered through that program is not totally served by Link.

Natalie,
Thank you for this.

After speaking with you and the rep from Berlin, can you please tell me why the four Link kiosks along Amsterdam and 120-122 were installed first before the kiosks were installed between 122-125? By the open source map, there were/are payphones along that stretch and in front of the Grant Houses. What technically happened such that those went in first but not the others? And, yes, I understand the city is working to put them in everywhere and this takes time, but I'm specifically trying to understand the decision to site these four kiosks before others.

Additionally, can you please provide for me the following: The Franchisee's "True-Up Report" showing total Gross Revenues generated during the first six months of the current Contract Year and for the full twelve months of the recently completed Contract Year.

Thanks,
Melanie

Siting – here's what I've shared before publicly.

Link rollout will track closely to where payphones exist today, but they will not necessarily replace every payphone. Currently, some payphone "installations" (payphone(s) + advertising enclosure) consist of two or even three phones, and some payphone installations are in very close proximity to other payphone installations.

Payphone installations that are replaced will be replaced by only one Link kiosk, and each Link kiosk is required to be at least 50' from any others. There are various other siting criteria as enumerated in Exhibit 4 of the LinkNYC franchise agreement. Payphones not replaced by Links will eventually be removed.

If the Grant houses are zoned residential they won't have any Links installed in front of them because advertising is not allowed in residential zones.

FOR RELEASE: JANUARY 19, 2017

NEW YORKERS DIVIDED ON MAYOR FIGHTING TRUMP, QUINNIPIAC UNIVERSITY POLL FINDS;
CUOMO WOULD BETTER PROTECT CITY, VOTERS SAY 3-1

New York City voters are divided on whether Mayor Bill de Blasio should challenge Trump administration policies, as 46 percent say the mayor should try to get along with President-elect Donald Trump, while 45 percent say the mayor should be a national leader against Trump policies, according to a Quinnipiac University poll released today.

Voters say 67 – 21 percent that Gov. Andrew Cuomo would be more effective than Mayor de Blasio “making sure New York City interests are best represented, with Republicans in control of Congress and the White House,” the independent Quinnipiac (KWIN-uh-pe-ack) University Poll finds.

Homelessness is a “very serious” problem in New York City, 72 percent of voters say, as 25 percent say it’s “somewhat serious.” They are seeing more homeless people on the streets and in parks and subways than a few years ago, 53 percent of voters say, and 48 percent say they are encountering more homeless people asking for money.

New York City voters disapprove 59 – 31 percent of the way de Blasio is handling poverty and homelessness, but approve 54 – 38 of how he is handling another key issue – crime.

He gets mixed grades on handling other issues:

- Negative 37 – 45 percent for handling public schools;
- 47 – 40 percent approval for handling relations between blacks and whites;
- Negative 42 – 50 percent for handling relations between police and the community;
- Negative 36 – 41 percent for handling the city budget;
- Negative 30 – 50 percent for handling political corruption.

“New Yorkers hand Mayor Bill de Blasio a split decision on two key issues in the city: They approve of the way he is handling crime and disapprove of the way he is handling homelessness,” said Tim Malloy, assistant director of the Quinnipiac University Poll.

Quinnipiac University Poll/January 19, 2017 – page 2

“Homelessness is hitting record numbers in New York City and three out of four voters say it’s a ‘very serious’ problem,” Malloy added.

Moving or Staying

Even if they could move, 67 percent of New York City voters say they would rather remain in the city, while 31 percent say they would move. The itch to move by borough is:

- Bronx – 46 percent would move and 53 percent would stay;
- Brooklyn – 25 percent would move and 73 percent would stay;
- Manhattan – 21 percent would move and 79 percent would stay;
- Queens – 34 percent would move and 65 percent would stay;
- Staten Island – 53 percent would move and 46 percent would stay.

New York City voters approve 50 – 17 percent of the job Police Commissioner James O’Neill is doing, with approval among black, white and Hispanic voters.

Voters approve 67 – 25 percent of the way New York City police in general are doing their job. Approval is 79 – 15 percent among white voters, 52 – 37 percent among black voters and 73 – 24 percent among Hispanic voters.

A total of 86 percent of New York City voters say crime is a “very serious” or “somewhat serious” problem. A total of 71 percent of voters say police brutality is a “very serious” or “somewhat serious” problem. A total of 61 percent of voters say police corruption is a “very serious” or “somewhat serious” problem.

By comparison, a total of 82 percent of New York City voters say political corruption is a “very serious” or “somewhat serious” problem.

Mayor de Blasio does favors for developers who make political contributions to campaigns in which he is involved, voters say 52 – 28 percent.

From January 11 – 17, Quinnipiac University surveyed 1,005 New York City voters with a margin of error of +/- 3.1 percentage points. Live interviewers call landlines and cell phones.

The Quinnipiac University Poll, directed by Douglas Schwartz, Ph.D., conducts public opinion surveys in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Florida, Ohio, Virginia, Iowa, Colorado, North Carolina, Georgia and the nation as a public service and for research.

On Cuomo split/

This isn't a horse race. It's organized coalition building against a very real threat to the progressivism that's helped make our city so strong. The Mayor and Governor will both have an important role in that resistance.

On battling Trump:

This is the kind of false choice that only exists in pollster conference rooms. There will be times when the Mayor aggressively challenges the incoming president, and I suspect there will be times one their interests align and they work together on an issue. The Mayor has both speeds - and he'll undoubtedly need them.

Good Afternoon,

Below is some initial research on the various silent auction website/apps that are out there. We can discuss in more detail this evening but wanted to send around some basic information.

Company	Cost	No. of Items	Method	Staff Assistance	Notes
Handbid	$995	75 Items	App	Available
GiveSmart	Flat rate based on event details.	Unlimited	App or Website/Text	Yes – Event Coordinator
32Auctions	There is a free option, most expensive option is $220	Free is up to 20 items, $220 is 100 items.	Website only
BidPal	Price not mentioned on website.	No limit	App	Yes
BiddingOwl	5% of highest bids.	No limit.	Website
My Mini Auction	Appears to be free of cost.	Unlimited	Website
eFlea	Free of cost to non-profits	Unlimited	Website		Have to confirm non-profit status if we use this service.

Subject: Questions from Crain's

Hi all –

Crain's New York's data reporter is writing about our 1 million user announcement and sent over the following questions. See our proposed answers below. Deadline is tomorrow AM.

- The data on Open Data only goes through October, can they get the same data up to now?

Yes [We will provide]

- Can we provide any info on how people are using the wi-fi -- top websites etc? –

LinkNYC does not store data on our users' browsing history or track the websites users visit on the Wi-Fi network. Anecdotally, we have seen who couldn't afford data plans relying on Link Wi-Fi to stay connected, and parents have stopped by to download movies for their kids, and show them how to use the 911 and Vonage app for emergencies. Tourists love the network because it avoids roaming charges.

- The average session duration jumped more than a minute between 9/19 and 9/26 -- is this for tablet or wi-fi, and do you have any explanation for how or why session usage goes up?

We believe a software update that better logged user sessions produced that change in session duration data. While we think the current session duration data is more accurate than before that update, we do not think that user behavior changed significantly between 9/19 and 9/26.

“New York City and LinkNYC have created a user-first privacy policy. We do not track or store your online activity, and we will never sell or share your personal information with any third party -- including city agencies -- unless lawfully required. Nearly one million people have signed up to use LinkNYC, which now offers all five boroughs access to free, super-fast Wi-Fi, free phone calls, access to 311 and emergency services, and more.” -- Jen Hensley, General Manager, LinkNYC

On background:

- We only ask for an e-mail address when you sign up to use LinkNYC's Wi-Fi, far less personal information than other internet service providers and cell phone carriers, which know your name, address, phone number, banking info and social security number.
- We do NOT store your browsing history or track the websites you visit when you use Link Wi-Fi with your personal device.

- There are 3 cameras on the Link kiosks and they are currently NOT turned on. There is no collection or storage of any audio.
- We will not use or share data or footage collected by LinkNYC cameras with anyone except:
  - to detect or address illegal activity on or associated with a Link
  - in response to vandalism
  - if we believe that disclosure is required by law or needed to protect your safety or the safety of others.

Dear Dan,
Thanks very much for your response and sorry I wasn't able to take your call.

I interviewed last week for my piece on the Link NYC program a group asserting that the link NYC kiosks are masquerading as free wifi but are in fact equipped to capture a great deal of citizens data, monetizing it and centralizing it for marketing purposes without the citizens' permission.

Also, according to this group (Re-Think Link NYC), the kiosks allegedly have cameras and microphones that capture audio and video that could be used to collect surveillance type of information potentially available to law enforcement agencies and/or private practice attorneys.

I wanted to be balanced in my piece and also feature your point of view, so if you get these questions answered I'd really appreciate it.

Thanks very much in advance for your help.

Could we tell them that in follow up? Using their foundation funds means that we take from local scholarship money to fund national scholarships - seems like an odd use of funds since it doesnt equal more scholarships from WTS generally. It would be better if they found a few hundred dollars in their budget.

Hello all,

Please see attached for a draft silent auction fund solicitation letter. We can discuss further on our upcoming call.

Regarding the types of donations you are looking for, here are some additional thoughts:

- Electronics-Best Buy has a reputation of being very philanthropic, especially with women's initiatives.
- Experiences-Does anyone have a connection to Sarah Feinberg? Though she is no longer with Facebook, perhaps she could facilitate the donation of a special tour of their HQ and a meet and greet with a couple of their key leaders...

- Sporting tickets – The New York City Football Club: they are still a relatively new team and are actively seeking engagement opportunities. You might be able to get a VIP package from them.

Many thanks,

Cassandra

They're reading the table wrong. Column 1 (12,483,718) is the current FY17 budget. Column 2, the number you reference below, is the current FY18 budget. This is for many, many different things that fit under this budget line and not specific to the investigations.

IF DE BLASIO THINKS HE'S INNOCENT, WHY DID HE

BUDGET $6 MILLION FOR CRIMINAL DEFENSE LAWYERS IN 2018?

New York--Jan. 26...Embattled New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio, who's facing unprecedented criminal probes at the local, state, and federal levels, announced this week that he will need an additional $6 million in tax revenue -- on top of the $10 million already budgeted -- to pay for his criminal defense lawyers next year.

Mr. de Blasio made the $6 million budget request to cover anticipated legal costs for his Park Avenue criminal defense team in his just-rolled-out 2018 Budget proposal.

"Not to put too fine a point on this, but didn't this mayor just telegraph that his legal problems are only just beginning?," said Massey for Mayor spokesman William O'Reilly. "The mayor's criminal defense team is working off a $10 million retainer, courtesy of hard working New Yorkers, but Mr. de Blasio is now saying he's going to need $6 million more headed into next year. Common sense tells you that this mayor knows he's in trouble.”

Mayor de Blasio is being investigated on myriad corruption issues, including pay-to-play activities and possible election fraud. Two criminal grand juries are in session to look into the de Blasio scandals, according to reports.

Cardinal Timothy Dolan will join top influencers from New York State – including business, finance, political, media and labor leaders – to deliver a major address on the role of charity and partnership in building a caring New York, marking the 100th anniversary of Catholic Charities of New York (CCNY), an organization committed to helping solve the problems of New Yorkers in need – non-Catholics and Catholics alike.

In his remarks, Cardinal Dolan will reveal several initiatives that Catholic Charities will undertake or launch over the course of their centennial year to meet the emerging needs of New Yorkers, including a Food Hub, a substance abuse recovery center, a low vision clinic, new affordable family apartments, safe haven beds for the homeless, and a “For Help” mobile application.

Cardinal Dolan will also announce a campaign to raise $100 million private philanthropic dollars over the next five years to support compassionate and quality human services to provide help and create hope for the children and families of New York – particularly the poorest and most vulnerable. This campaign, combined with additional private philanthropy through CCNY’s federation of agencies, will leverage over $4 billion to help New Yorkers in need.

WHAT: Catholic Charities kicks off its centennial celebration with a luncheon that will include top influencers and leaders from New York State. At the event, Cardinal Dolan will make a major announcement, committing more than $4 billion over the next five years for New Yorkers in need.

Could Marta give us any examples of how different neighborhoods are responding differently to the Links? For example, I saw the stat about Herald Square having the most WiFi sessions. Any other data you could supply, that we could turn into an answer?

We understand usage down to the individual Link at any given time, including how many devices are using the Wi-Fi. For instance, we know that on January 1 at 12:05AM, a Link in Times Square had the most concurrent sessions of all Links all year -- you can imagine all the texts, SnapChats, Tweets, and Instagram posts that must have been shared at that moment!

Any examples of a Link being used in an emergency?

One of our street team members recalled seeing a bike messenger use the 911 feature to call an ambulance for another injured bike messenger. Another saw a father teach his young daughter how to use the 911 button in case of emergency.

This is a routine interaction with the press regarding Intersection's product-driven advertising approach.

If asked about motion content, Marta's talking point will be: "We worked closely with DoITT and the City of New York on ensuring motion is appropriate for the locations it is deployed. Our advertisers have enthusiastically embraced this additional feature."

If questions come up about the business model, Marta will use our standard response that "CityBridge, a private company, is making all of the capital investment and we are generating approximately $500mm over the life of our contract in revenue with the City of New York generated from our ad sales."

If questions come up about how many Links are deployed, we will use the public number from the website: "530+ active Links, which is over 1000 screens, making it the largest digital out of home ad network in New York."

If any other specific Link questions come up, other than Intersection's general approach to product driven advertising, Marta will defer and we will pass Matt on to DoITT.

Hi Stanley,

To clarify, the interview is not about LinkNYC. It's about Intersection, which is an expansive business that has diverse contracts and projects in NYC and cities around the world. But since Link is our most high-profile project, I assume that he may ask some questions about it. She will not comment on deployment, privacy, or anything outside of her domain. She will talk about Intersection's approach to creating urban products supported by advertising, of which Link is an example -- along with our MTA kiosks, iPad ordering systems at LGA, Philly bus shelters, LinkUK, digital transit panels in Chicago and Minneapolis, etc.

While she oversees sales for all of Intersection's businesses, LinkNYC is likely to come up. She will avoid any issues about deployment, etc. since that is outside the scope of her domain.

I agree that the email should go out asap - Laurie, you mentioned it could go out from the foundation. Do you folks have the emails and would you be able to send out the emails once language is finalized?

As for collecting funds - is there someone one your committee who wouldn't mind being the point person? I'll email WTSI and copy you regarding the process for depositing and spending to buy items.

In that same email I can request a quick call with you folks regarding the thinking on the raffle decision. I asked again on Friday and they mentioned one reason as the fact that they have advertised a silent auction and mentioned the idea of having a raffle during one event (like that big dinner).

Good Afternoon silent auction committee,

I just wanted to reach out quickly with an update. During the last weekly call with WTSI we discussed the silent auction format that the committee recommended. Unfortunately, they weren't sold and requested that, if we wanted the new format, we also have some items with the old format. I can bring it up with them again on our call this Friday but, in the meantime, what do you think about focusing on starting to collect donations.

Nicole/Cathy,

Do we have a timeline for getting the request letter out to the chapters? Anything you need from us as far as next steps on that? Additionally, now that we have identified you as co-chairs, please feel free to organize committee actions (calls, next steps, etc) as you see fit.

Thanks!

Could we tell them that in follow up? Using their foundation funds means that we take from local scholarship money to fund national scholarships - seems like an odd use of funds since it doesn't equal more scholarships from WTS generally. It would be better if they found a few hundred dollars in their budget.

Hello all,

Please see attached for a draft silent auction fund solicitation letter. We can discuss further on our upcoming call.

Regarding the types of donations you are looking for, here are some additional thoughts:

- Electronics-Best Buy has a reputation of being very philanthropic, especially with women's initiatives.
- Experiences-Does anyone have a connection to Sarah Feinberg? Though she is no longer with Facebook, perhaps she could facilitate the donation of a special tour of their HQ and a meet and greet with a couple of their key leaders...
- Sporting tickets –The New York City Football Club: they are still a relatively new team and are actively seeking engagement opportunities. You might be able to get a VIP package from them.

Many thanks,
Cassandra

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: February 10, 2017
CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

MAYOR DE BLASIO, CHANCELLOR FARIÑA ANNOUNCE HIGHEST-EVER GRADUATION RATE

Graduation rate rises to 72.6 percent and dropout rate hits low of 8.5 percent with largest improvements for Hispanic and Black students

NEW YORK—Mayor de Blasio and Chancellor Carmen Fariña today announced that New York City's four-year high school graduation rate hit a historic high in 2016 – 72.6 percent. The dropout rate fell to the lowest ever – 8.5 percent. The improvements in both graduation and dropout rates were highest for Hispanic and Black students. Every single borough saw its graduation rate increase and dropout rate decrease – with the highest increase in graduation rate in the Bronx.

Mayor de Blasio and Chancellor Fariña's Equity and Excellence for All agenda will build on this progress, ensuring that by 2026, 80 percent of students graduate high school on time and two-thirds of graduates are college ready. Equity and Excellence for All is building a path from pre-K to college and careers for every child in every neighborhood in New York City.

“Our public schools are unquestionably the strongest they've ever been – we're graduating more students than ever before, and we are on track to reach our Equity and Excellence for All goal of 80 percent of students graduating on time,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “From Day 1, we've believed in the promise of our public schools as the ladder to success for all New Yorkers, and we are raising the bar at every school in every zip code."

"Our record-high graduation and the record-low dropout rates are a testament to the hard work of our students, their families, and our educators," said Schools Chancellor Carmen Fariña. "Our focus has always been on the work going on in every classroom, and that's where it's going to stay. While this is a day to celebrate progress, we're working harder than ever to improve instruction and provide equity and excellence for all students."

The rates below are the graduation and dropout percentages among the cohort of all students who entered 9th grade in the fall of 2012. All percentage point changes are comparisons to the previous year.

- The graduation rate rose to 72.6 percent, a 2.1 point gain
- The dropout rate fell to 8.5 percent, a 0.5 point decrease

Graduation rates improved across all ethnicities, with Hispanic and Black students posting the highest gains:

- Hispanic students' graduation rate increased to 66.9 percent, a 2.9 point gain
- Black students' graduation rate increased to 68.1 percent, a 2.6 point gain
- Asian students' graduation rate increased to 85.6 percent, a 0.6 point gain
- White students' graduation rate increased to 82.1 percent, a 0.1 point gain

Dropout rates fell or remained the same across all ethnicities:

- Hispanic students' dropout rate fell to 11.2 percent, a 0.7 point decrease
- Black students' dropout rate fell to 8.8 percent, a 0.6 point decrease
- Asian students' dropout rate fell to 4.6 percent, the same as last year
- White students' dropout rate fell to 4.8 percent, a 0.4 point decrease

Graduation rates increased and dropout rates fell in every borough. The largest improvement in graduation rates was in the Bronx:

	Graduation				Dropout
	2016 # Cohort	% 2016 Grad	% 2015 Grad	Pt. Diff	2016 # Cohort	% 2016 Dropout	% 2015 Dropout	Pt. Diff
Bronx	13,838	64.8	61.8	3.0	13,838	12.7	13.1	-0.4
Brooklyn	20,823	72.2	70.8	1.4	20,823	7.6	8.3	-0.7
Queens	19,398	75.5	73.3	2.2	19,398	7.7	7.9	-0.2
Manhattan	15,569	74.6	72.5	2.2	15,569	7.4	7.7	-0.4
Staten Island	4,544	79.3	77.4	1.9	4,544	6.4	7.5	-1.2

Graduation rates also increased at the City's 31 Renewal high schools. The graduation rate increased to 59.3 percent, a 4.8 percent increase – more than double the citywide increase in graduation rate. The dropout rate was 18.6 percent, a 0.8 point increase.

Earlier this school year, Mayor de Blasio and Chancellor Fariña announced:

- The highest-ever postsecondary enrollment rate – 55 percent of the Class of 2015.
- The highest-ever number of New York City students taking and passing Advanced Placement exams in 2016 with an 8.4 percent jump in students taking at least one AP and 8.2 percent jump in students passing at least one AP over the previous year.
- The highest-ever college readiness rate – 37 percent of all students, and 51 percent of graduates, in the Class of 2016 graduated high school on time and met CUNY's standards for college readiness in English and math.
- The highest-ever percentage of high school juniors taking the SAT – 52 percent. All juniors will be able to take the SAT free of charge during the school day this school year.

The progress extends to elementary and middle school grades – students made substantial gains on the most recent State English and math exams. For the first time, City students are now outperforming their New York State peers in English.

Mayor de Blasio and Chancellor Fariña's Equity and Excellence for All initiatives are building a pathway to success in college and careers for all students. Our schools are starting earlier – free, full-day, high-quality pre-K for every four-year-old through Pre-K for All. They are strengthening foundational skills and instruction earlier – Universal Literacy so that every student is reading on grade level by the end of 2nd grade; and Algebra for All to improve elementary- and middle-school math instruction and ensure that all 8th graders have access to algebra. They are offering students more challenging, hands-on, college and career-aligned coursework – Computer Science for All will bring 21st Century computer science instruction to every school, and AP for All will give all high school students access to at least five Advanced Placement courses. Along the way, they are giving students and families additional support through College Access for All, Single Shepherd, and investment in Community Schools.

More information on New York City's graduation and college readiness and rates can be found at <http://schools.nyc.gov/Accountability/data/GraduationDropoutReports/default.htm>.

“Congratulations to our students, educators and families across New York City – this is truly remarkable work. The highest-ever graduation rate and the lowest-ever dropout rate in our City's history is a big accomplishment, and we won't rest until every single student is firmly on the path to succeed in college and careers. We will continue working towards our vision of equity and excellence for all, by strengthening teaching and learning in every single classroom from pre-K to graduation,” said Deputy Chancellor for Teaching and Learning Phil Weinberg.

"As a parent of a public school student, I realize how important the reforms Mayor de Blasio and Chancellor Farina have been for all students these past few years. Now everyone knows that they have proved successful. Careful attention to at -risk students, guidance counselors, after school middle school and support for our high schools as full comprehensive schools is raising graduation rates and perhaps even more importantly, lowering drop out and discharge rates among our young adults; the future of our city. I look forward to even more positive results as pre-K and other Equity and Excellence initiatives continue. Congratulations to all the principals, teacher, parents, staff and students at all our schools, but especially our high schools," said Assembly Member Cathy Nolan, Chair of the Assembly Committee on Education.

"Graduation rates are at a record high thanks to our City's substantial investment in public education," said Council Member Daniel Dromm, Chair of the Education Committee. "Because we have embraced progressive approaches to education such as community schooling and restorative justice practices, thousands of students are now on the path to success. I celebrate these historic results and will continue to work alongside the administration to build upon this achievement."

"Our City's future is tied to the quality of education we provide to our young people and how successfully we equip them for adulthood," said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. "These higher achievement rates are great news, and I will continue to work with the Department of Education to strengthen the opportunities and support provided in our schools, with an emphasis on access to the latest technology and STEAM resources."

"Any improvement in graduation rates is encouraging. I look forward to the day when our children can all do math and reading at grade level, because we all know that there are too many people who need remedial work when they enter college. I also look forward to the day when the schools in my district receive the same resources as children in other parts of the city, so they can have the same opportunities to thrive and compete in our global market," said State Senator Ruben Diaz Sr.

"Our students, our teachers, our schools have been doing the hard work, and here you are seeing the results," said President of the United Federation of Teachers Michael Mulgrew. "By focusing our energy and resources on the classroom, we are making a difference for students across the city. Our job now is to keep up the momentum."

"These numbers are a tribute to our students, their families, and the teachers, staff and school leaders who make our public schools second to none," said Council of School Supervisors and Administrators President Ernest Logan. "We must not forget that high school diplomas change lives."

"In 2004, a study commissioned by the Partnership for New York City identified the four year graduation rate as a dismal 54.3 percent. The significant improvement in student performance reported today reflects the impact of mayoral control of school governance and the success of the de Blasio Administration and Chancellor Farina in aligning the interests of teachers, parents and the business community in support of our public schools," said Kathryn Wylde, President and CEO of Partnership for New York City.

"The growth in graduation rates and decrease in dropouts underscores the fact that reforms based on increasing student opportunities are more effective than the old test and punish approach," said Billy Easton, Executive Director of Alliance for Quality Education.

"There is no doubt the City's school system is moving in the right direction under Mayor de Blasio and Chancellor Fariña," said José Calderón, President of the Hispanic Federation. "We are starting to see real gains in Latino student performance and outcomes due to visionary investments in universal pre-kindergarten, community schools and English language learner programs. Nonetheless, far too many Latino students are still struggling to learn in underfunded, overcrowded schools without the full array of academic and social service supports needed to graduate college ready. Hispanic Federation is committed to continuing to work with this administration to amplify and speed up these improvements to ensure another generation of Latino kids doesn't fall through the cracks.”

Proposed talking points for Skift are below, let us know if you have any edits or comments. Also, some great news for Valentine's Day! As you know, there has been a campaign running asking people to get in touch with Link if they are planning to propose on Valentine's Day. There is a proposal happening tomorrow evening and the Daily News is potentially interested in doing a story about the first LinkNYC proposal! Could be a very fun NYC story. We will keep you posted when we know more.

Thanks!

What is LinkNYC? How did this idea come about?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->LinkNYC is a new communications network replacing the city's pay phones with free, super-fast wi-fi hotspots and services.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->The City of New York held a competition to replace the city's pay phones. After a competitive bidding process, the City announced that CityBridge – a consortium of companies that includes Intersection, Qualcomm, and CIVIQ Smartscares – was selected to develop and operate the first-of-its-kind LinkNYC network, bringing the world's fastest municipal Wi-Fi to millions of New Yorkers and visitors.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->The five-borough network is funded entirely through advertising revenues and is being built at no-cost to taxpayers or users.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->Each Link is equipped with free services like high-speed Wi-Fi, phone calls, a tablet for maps and city services, 911 button for emergencies and device charging for anyone living in or visiting New York City to enjoy.

What has usage been like since the launch?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->The reception from New Yorkers and visitors has been incredible.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->We are now in all five boroughs.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->We reached more than 1 million users in less than one year, and are seeing approximately 40,000 people join the network every week.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->There are about 4 million Wi-Fi sessions every week.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->We've heard some great anecdotes about how people are using Link -- a man wasn't able to pay for a data plan on his device and was relying on Link to stay connected. Parents have stopped by with their kids to show them how to use the 911 and Vonage app for emergencies. Teenagers are using the wi-fi and USB charging while they run around the city playing Pokemon.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->We recently announced that Link is coming to the London and the UK this year.

What are the benefits of Link for travelers?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->Tourists can stay connected to the Link Wi-Fi without incurring onerous roaming charges or using expensive international data plans.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->They can use Link's tablet to get directions on the go and make domestic calls, and to charge their phones.

How are visitors using Link?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->Anecdotally, visitors are using Link, taking advantage of the free wi-fi, device charging, and maps on the go.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->It's especially helpful for people from overseas who don't want to get costly data plans.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->There are Links in popular tourist areas -- Times Square, Midtown, Columbus Circle, and throughout the city.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->We had a street team out when it was warmer and tourists would stop by to learn about Link and sign up for the Wi-Fi -- nearly everyone was shocked and so excited that it is a free service.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->Visitors from England, Germany and South America all asked when Link would be expanding and coming to their cities.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->Some people even stopped to take pictures of Links -- it has become a part of the NYC streetscape.

Hi Jovana,

This press release is approved. However, we are not happy regarding the short amount of time we were given to review it. Please give us more time in the future. We are working on guidelines to address notification procedures for tablet content as well as innovative advertising, such as this campaign. For now, please make sure that DoITT has an opportunity to comment before campaigns like these are released to the public.

Regarding the Skift interview, may we see a list of questions? It would also be appropriate to connect them with NYC & Co., if they haven't already been in touch with them.

Thanks.

Hi Stanley and Stacy,
LinkNYC has a fun Instagram campaign for Valentine's Day that we'd like to send a release out about on Monday -- please see attached draft for your review.

We also received in an inquiry from the global travel outlet Skift -- they are interested in doing a story about the benefits of Link for travelers and tourists. It sounds like a good opportunity, and we are planning to schedule a short interview with them with Jen next week. Please let me know if you have any questions or want to discuss.

Thanks so much - enjoy the weekend!

Julia-

So the letter is finalized and now need to get it out the door. How do we get the list of email addresses for each of the chapter leaders? I can bring it up tomorrow at the all hands but I thought I'd ask you first!

Hi Nicole,

I reviewed the letter one more time. It looks great. No additional comments. Unfortunately, I do not have a list of donors from last year. I would guess the chapter that sponsored the conference last year would have that. I think it was in Austin, TX, which is the Heart of Texas chapter. I'm not sure who chaired the silent auction committee last year. Sorry. Also, if you need chapter leadership contacts, I think the WTS office could give you that. I would send the letter to the chapter presidents and copy the chapter scholarship chairs. Thanks.

Dear (use a mail merge field: Recipient First Name):

“When women support each other, incredible things happen.” On the eve of WTS’s 40th anniversary, this tenet holds more truth than ever and is evidenced daily by all the amazing things our members accomplish. This is why the WTS Foundation (WTSF) is counting on your support for the 2017 WTSF Fundraiser at the Annual Conference to help raise much needed funds for our national scholarship fund.

As you know for many years, the WTS Foundation has helped encourage, recognize and financially support generations of current and aspiring women transportation professionals. Our mentoring, networking, professional development and scholarship programs have touched the lives of hundreds over the years, but we need your help to ensure this longstanding tradition of support and empowerment continues.

In years past, this fundraiser was a silent auction. This year we are trying something new – a ticket raffle – which is described below.

At the 2017 WTS Annual Conference in New York City, we are working to build a more inclusive and dynamic fundraising competition to raise money for the WTSF fund. Our annual conference is one of the largest revenue drivers for the WTSF, which allows us to continue to award these national scholarships.

In celebration of our landmark 40th anniversary, we will have the first annual “Hamilton’s Lucky Draw” ticket raffle – Hamilton refers to the face on the $10 bill, which is what we will charge for each ticket sold. Members will be able to buy as many tickets as they wish and then place their tickets in raffle drawings for individual prizes. The more tickets you buy, the more chances you can enter to win each prize. At the end of the raffle, one ticket will be drawn to award each prize. We believe this approach will be more inclusive to all income levels and raise more money for the Foundation fund, while offering exciting prizes and experiences to those that enter and win.

As part of this new approach, the WTS Foundation and the WTS Annual Conference Raffle Committee is asking for monetary donations from each of the chapters. Our committee will use your funds to purchase gifts that will be included in the ticket raffle. This is a special year for WTS so please support the WTSF scholarship, education and research programs for tomorrow’s women leaders by making a gift of $250, $400 or $500 (or more) to our WTS Conference Hamilton Lucky’s Draw today. No amount is too small, and especially for our larger and older chapters, this is a chance to commemorate all the opportunities, friends and networks you've come to know through your involvement with WTS.

In addition to your chapter's financial contribution, we are also looking for big-ticket items to raffle, including plane tickets, hotel rooms, sporting event tickets, cooking classes, gift certificates, Broadway tickets, designer purses and more. As always, all donations are appreciated and are tax-deductible.

Proceeds generated by Hamilton's Lucky Draw will fund much-needed graduate and undergraduate scholarships to help young women overcome some of the barriers that stand between them and their professional aspirations in transportation. Your support is essential to continuing this program and plays a vital role in helping young women reach their highest potential.

"Women who support other women are confident, generous, visionaries."

- Mariela Dabbah, global career development guru

Join us in believing in the power of tomorrow's leaders by making a contribution to our WTS Conference Hamilton's Lucky Draw fund today. All donation checks should be made payable to the "WTS Foundation" and mailed with the donation form to Nicole Bucich, WSP|Parsons Brinckerhoff, One Penn Plaza, NY, NY 10119. If you are interested in donating an item in addition to your contribution, please contact Cathy Rought at cathy@berlinrosen.com or 202-263-9097 for more information. Thank you in advance for your support.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK

Fellow New Yorker,

Part of what has always made New York City such an extraordinary place is the fact that anyone has a shot here. It is one of the most beautiful things about this place, but that beautiful reality is at risk.

Yesterday, I gathered with New Yorkers to consider the state of our city, and to propose strong solutions to improve the lives of 8.5 million of our neighbors. The fact is: people are so fundamentally challenged by the affordability crisis that this city must do more and must do it quickly.

To any New Yorker who’s struggling to pay the bills, who’s fighting to stay in their own neighborhood, or who isn’t sure if they’re going to have enough to keep going: I say again, this is your city, and we are here for you.

In case you missed it, here's what you should know – click the images and share:

We will fight to keep New Yorkers in their homes.

I proposed a 2.5% tax on homes costing more than $2 million to help fund affordable senior housing.

We're building more affordable housing so more New Yorkers can stay New Yorkers.

And in case you didn't have an opportunity to meet Gershy, check out our video. He wants to tell you all about the things he did in Pre-K:

We need to stay a beacon of hope. And we need to remember that this is our city. We want to make sure you can grow here – and stay here – for a long time to come.

In solidarity,

Hello,

I'm working on an article about the new LinkUK Wi-Fi kiosks that are replacing phone boxes on London's streets. The first is set to be installed in North London mid-this year.

Relating to this, I have a couple of questions about LinkNYC. I read that there were complaints about the screens in NY last year because some people were watching pornography on the internet browsers on the kiosks. I wondered what action was taken on this? Were the Internet browsers still turned off? How secure are the browsers?

If you could get back to me by tomorrow (Friday) morning that would be great,

Many thanks,

We'll direct the reporter to the service update statement (<https://link.nyc/service-update.html>) and let them know:

- The issue was monopolization and long-term use of the kiosks
- The web browser was removed from all Links on September 14 — loitering complaints dropped 96% immediately and Link kiosk usage increased
- LinkNYC reached more than 1 million users in less than a year, with tens of thousands of tablet sessions every week

Subject: Media enquiry about LinkNYC kiosks

Hello,

I'm working on an article about the new LinkUK Wi-Fi kiosks that are replacing phone boxes on London's streets. The first is set to be installed in North London mid-this year.

Relating to this, I have a couple of questions about LinkNYC. I read that there were complaints about the screens in NY last year because some people were watching pornography on the internet browsers on the kiosks. I wondered what action was taken on this? Were the Internet browsers still turned off? How secure are the browsers?

If you could get back to me by tomorrow (Friday) morning that would be great,

Many thanks,
Jane

Privacy Policy Update Plan

Goal: Clarify our strong user-first policies for the press and public and announce security camera activation.

Timeline:

Finalize FAQ	March 9
Finalize validator quotes	March 10
Brief Stakeholders	March 10
Email to LinkNYC users	March 13
Press release	March 13

Embargoed briefings for select reporters:

- Kaveh Waddell, The Atlantic
- Andy Hawkins, The Verge
- Ruth Reader, Fast Company
- Charlie Herman, WNYC
- Matt Flamm, Crain's

Key Topline Messages:

- New York City and CityBridge take your privacy seriously. We have updated our privacy policy to make our practices and policies more clear and explain the ways we protect personal information.
- We only ask for an e-mail address when you sign up to use LinkNYC's Wi-Fi, far less personal information than most other internet service providers.
- We do not store your browsing history or track the websites you visit when you use LinkNYC's Wi-Fi.
- We will never sell your personal information, or share it with anyone else for their own use, including advertisers and City agencies, except as may be required by law, such as in response to a subpoena or court order. This policy also applies to LinkNYC camera footage.
- We heard NYCLU's feedback and worked to implement many of their suggestions into the revised policy.

Press Release

For Immediate Release: March 13, 2017

Contact: media@link.nyc

LinkNYC and DoITT Announce Updated Privacy Policy Revised policy outlines the superfast, free Wi-Fi network's commitment to user privacy.

NEW YORK - LinkNYC and New York City's Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications (DoITT) announced today the release of an updated privacy policy that outlines the superfast, free Wi-Fi network's commitment to user privacy.

While there is no change in LinkNYC's day-to-day privacy practices, the revised policy makes clear that:

- LinkNYC does not store your browsing history or track the websites you visit when you use LinkNYC's Wi-Fi.
- LinkNYC will never sell your personal information, or share it with anyone else for their own use, including advertisers and government agencies, except in response to a subpoena or court order.
- LinkNYC asks for an e-mail address when you sign up to use the Wi-Fi network, and does not require other personal information like name, address, or phone number.
- LinkNYC encrypts all user personal data using industry-leading security, and offers users with compatible devices access to a fully encrypted Private Wi-Fi network.

"New York City and CityBridge take your privacy seriously, and we have updated our privacy policy to make clear our commitment to the more than one million people who have signed up to use the LinkNYC network," said Jennifer Hensley, General Manager of LinkNYC. "LinkNYC will never sell your personal data, or track what you do on our Wi-Fi network."

Link Camera Activation

LinkNYC also announced today that security cameras on Link kiosks will be activated this week. Each Link kiosk has two security cameras, above each 55-inch side panel display, which will be used to monitor and maintain the Links and prevent vandalism.

All data and footage from LinkNYC cameras will be subject to the same strict privacy policy announced today. CityBridge will not use or share data or footage collected by cameras except to detect or address illegal activity on or associated with a Link, in response to vandalism, or in response to a subpoena or similar lawful request. Footage from Link cameras will be stored for a maximum for 7 days, unless the footage is necessary to investigate an incident. There is no collection or storage of any audio.

Link tablets have a built-in, user-activated camera that could be used for video calling or other user-initiated applications in the future. These cameras will remain inactive until a future announcement on new LinkNYC features.

Leak Statement

To be used if planned revisions to privacy policy leak before announcement:

“CityBridge is in conversations with DoITT and the City of New York to clarify our privacy policy and make it easier to understand. We take LinkNYC users’ privacy seriously and do not track what users do on the Wi-Fi network, and we will never share or sell your personal data with anyone for their own use.”

Interview Q and A

Q: So what exactly is changing here?

It's important to note that our day-to-day practices are not changing. What we are doing here is clarifying our privacy policy to match our commitment to user security and privacy. Specifically, the updated privacy policy makes clear that:

1. We do not track what users do on the Wi-Fi on their own devices.
2. We will not share any personal information about our users with anyone, including the City, without their explicit permission or a court order.
3. And it makes clear that any footage from LinkNYC cameras is subject to our privacy policy.

Q: Seems like a simple change, why did it take so long?

We wanted to make sure we got this right, and again, our day to day practices have been consistent since the start of the project and will remain the same.

Q: It seems like you’ve addressed some of the concerns that NYCLU and other groups raised, were they involved in drafting the revised policy?

We heard their feedback and are happy to have been able to implement their suggestions.

Q: MAC Addresses identify your phone, a personal device that is with you all the time. Shouldn’t that be treated as PII too?

We anonymize MAC addresses in our system, and our privacy policy makes clear that if technical information like MAC address is combined with any personal data or data that could identify the user -- like where that mobile device has connected to the network -- we would treat that as personally identifiable information, and we would not share or sell it.

Q: This is a lot of cameras, are they really needed?

The cameras will help us maintain the network and make sure LinkNYC is running smoothly for New Yorkers and visitors. All camera footage is subject to our privacy policy -- we do not share footage with anyone, including the NYPD, without a subpoena or court order.

Q: Will the cameras feed into NYPD's Domain Awareness System?

No.

Q: You say that you will not share personal information without a court order or subpoena. How many such orders have you processed?

To date we have not received any.

Q: Will you let people know if their data has been requested by law enforcement?

We will make a reasonable effort to let people know if we are able to. Of course, we only have the emails that people use to sign up for the network, and no other contact information, so that is the only way we can communicate with users.

Per Chad, all is still good w NYCLU and they will be positive. He writes "The only caveat she gave me was that she couldn't say that this is the model everyone should follow when putting together a privacy policy because there are many models out there that could work." As soon as I know/have more substance I will share.

One developing thing to make you aware of: based on some other stuff (non-Link related) that's brewing, we may have some flexibility on the date of the actual rollout – having Anne announce in budget the intention to issue the new policy either Wednesday or Thursday, and speak about it in broad strokes, but bump the media play to a day or two after. I figured this would make you happy! Things are shifting in real time with respect to this, and I assure you I'll stay in close touch about this as well.

Hey guys. Sorry for the late send; getting back online after an email snafu.

Sent this to the lawyers who made some changes and I piled on a bit too. Can you take a look, incorporate/edit, and send back in the body of an email?

Another email re: comms plan coming shortly.

Press Release

For Immediate Release: March TK, 2017

Contact: media@link.nyc

CityBridgeLinkNYC and DoITT Announce Updated Privacy Policy for LinkNYC

~~Revised-~~ policy outlines the superfast, free Wi-Fi network's commitment to user privacy.

NEW YORK — ~~CityBridge LinkNYC~~ and New York City's Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications (DoITT) announced today the release of an updated privacy policy ~~for the that outlines the~~ superfast, free LinkNYC Wi-Fi network's commitment to user privacy.

The policy is changing to better reflect and clarify ~~CityBridge's LinkNYC's~~ day-to-day privacy practices and make clear that:

- ~~CityBridge LinkNYC~~ does not store your browsing history or track the websites you visit when you use the LinkNYC's Wi-Fi network.
- ~~CityBridge LinkNYC~~ will never sell your ~~personal~~ personal information, or share it with anyone else for their own use, including advertisers and government agencies, except in response to a subpoena or court order.
- ~~CityBridge LinkNYC~~ asks for an e-mail address when you sign up to use the Wi-Fi network, and does not require other personal information like name, address, or phone number.
- ~~CityBridge LinkNYC~~ encrypts all user personal data using industry-leading security, and offers users with compatible devices access to a fully encrypted Private Wi-Fi network.
- The LinkNYC data retention period associated with an individual session is 60 days for user data other than anonymized device information, which is retained for 1 year, and the email address provided at registration which is retained up to 1 year after last use.

Link Camera Activation

CityBridge LinkNYC also announced today that security cameras on Link kiosks will be activated this week. Each Link kiosk has two security cameras, above each 55-inch side panel display, which will be used to monitor and maintain the Links and prevent vandalism.

All data and footage from LinkNYC cameras will be subject to the same strict privacy policy announced today. CityBridge will not use or share data or footage collected by cameras except to detect or address illegal activity on or associated with a Link, in response to vandalism, or in response to a subpoena or similar lawful request. Footage from Link cameras will be stored for a maximum ~~of for~~ 7 days, unless the footage is necessary to investigate an incident. There is no collection or storage of any audio.

Link tablets have a built-in, user-activated camera that could be used for video calling or other user-initiated applications in the future. These cameras will remain inactive until a future announcement on new LinkNYC features.

Q: So what exactly is changing here?

It's important to note that our day to day practices are not changing. What we are doing here is clarifying our privacy policy to match our commitment to user security and privacy. Specifically, the updated privacy policy makes clear that:

1. We do not track what users do on the Wi-Fi on their own devices.
2. We will not share any personal information about our users with anyone, including the City, without ~~their~~ our users' explicit permission or a court order.
3. And it makes clear that any footage from LinkNYC cameras is subject to our privacy policy.
4. The policy also advises as to our data retention policy.

Q: Seems like ~~a~~-simple changes, why did it take so long?

We wanted to make sure we got this right, and again, our day to day privacy practices have been consistent since the start of the project and will remain the same.

Q: It seems like you've addressed some of the concerns that NYCLU and other groups raised, were they involved in drafting the revised policy?

Yes. We appreciated their feedback and we are happy to have been able to implement their suggestions.

Q: MAC Addresses identify your phone, a personal device that is with you all the time. Shouldn't that be treated as PII too?

We anonymize MAC addresses in our system, which are needed to "remember" your device, and our privacy policy makes clear that if technical information like MAC address is combined with any personal data or data that could identify the user -- like where that mobile device has connected to the network -- we would treat that as personally identifiable information, and we would not share or sell it.

Q: This is a lot of cameras, are they really needed?

The cameras will help us maintain the network and make sure LinkNYC is running smoothly for New Yorkers and visitors. The cameras are not actively monitored. All camera footage is subject to our privacy policy -- we do not share footage with anyone, including the NYPD, without a subpoena or court order.

Q: Will the cameras feed into NYPD's Domain Awareness System?

No.

Q: You say that you will not share personal information without a court order or subpoena. How many such orders have you processed?

To date we have not received any.

Q: Will you let people know if their data has been requested by law enforcement?

We will make a reasonable effort to let people know if we are able to. Of course, we only have the emails addresses that people use to sign up for the network, and no other contact information, so that is the only way we can communicate with users.

Dear Jonathan —

Today, NYC launched a call to action to employers all over our City: hire a top NYC student for a summer internship.

This city-wide, multimedia advertising campaign seeks to encourage New York City employers to hire summer interns not just to open a door of opportunity for a young person, but to strengthen the talent pool from which employers hire. The Ladders for Leaders internship program creates a pipeline of local, diverse, high-achieving talent into NYC's best companies, big and small; a win-win for students and businesses.

Since 2014 we have increased employer participation 300% to 475 employers and 35% of the students received full-time job offers.

In addition to the ad campaign, we are promoting your success stories through an online public engagement campaign—we would be happy to package your content and share it with our network of hundreds of partners.

I hope you'll join us in shaping our future workforce and in creating access to careers.

Please email me or click WWW.LADDERSFORLEADERS.ORG for more information and sign-up.

Best Regards,
Gabrielle

City Strengthens Public Wi-Fi Privacy Policy after NYCLU Raises Concerns

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

March 16, 2017 – CityBridge, the company behind the kiosks for the city's public Wi-Fi network LinkNYC, announced today that it has greatly improved LinkNYC's privacy policy. The improvements follow the letter sent by the New York Civil Liberties Union raising concerns about the previous policy.

“We applaud the city for being so responsive to our concerns and now New Yorkers have significantly improved privacy protections when using public Wi-Fi,” said NYCLU Senior Staff Attorney Mariko Hirose. “Internet access is a modern-life necessity and public WiFi should be designed in partnership with the community to minimize the privacy risks of data collection and maximize the benefits to the public.”

LinkNYC, which was publicly launched in January of last year, will eventually become a network of as many as 7,500 to 10,000 public kiosks offering fast and free Wi-Fi throughout all five boroughs. In March of 2016, the NYCLU sent a letter to the Office of the Mayor warning that, under the previous privacy policy, CityBridge, the company behind the LinkNYC kiosks, could potentially retain a vast amount of information about users – often indefinitely. The NYCLU contended that this gave CityBridge the ability to build a massive database that could pose a risk of security breaches and unwarranted NYPD surveillance. The NYCLU further contended that the policy also left open the possibility that data collected by cameras at the LinkNYC kiosks might be available to the city or NYPD.

Under the old policy, users had to submit their e-mail addresses and agree to allow CityBridge to collect information about what websites they visited on their devices, where and how long they lingered on certain information on a webpage, and what links they clicked on. The privacy policy only offered to make “reasonable efforts” to clear out this massive amount of personally identifiable user information, and even then, only if there was 12 months of user inactivity. That meant that New Yorkers who used LinkNYC regularly could have their personally identifiable information stored for a lifetime and beyond.

The new policy announced today makes the following improvements:

- Clarifies that browsing history from personal devices will not be stored.
- Sets the retention period of most technical information for individual sessions to 60 days from the end of their last activity.
- Clarifies that disclosure of information will occur only as required by law and that there will be notice.
- Limits camera use and prohibits facial recognition on cameras.

CityBridge and DoITT Announce Updated LinkNYC Privacy Policy

Revised written policy now matches strong outlines the superfast, free Wi-Fi network's strong commitment to user privacy.

NEW YORK - CityBridge and New York City's Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications (DoITT) announced today the release of an updated LinkNYC privacy policy that outlines the superfast, free Wi-Fi network's commitment to user privacy.

The policy is changing to better reflect and clarify LinkNYC's day-to-day privacy practices and make clear that:

- LinkNYC does not store your browsing history or track the websites you visit when you use LinkNYC's Wi-Fi.
- LinkNYC will never sell your personal information (including any data about your usage of the network), or share it with anyone else for their own use, including advertisers, the City of New York, and government agencies, except in response to a subpoena or court order.
- LinkNYC asks for an e-mail address when you sign up to use the Wi-Fi network, and does not require other personal information like name, address, or phone number.
- LinkNYC encrypts all user personal data using industry-leading security, and offers users with compatible devices access to a fully encrypted Private Wi-Fi network.

“CityBridge takes your privacy seriously, and we have updated our privacy policy to make clear our commitment to the City of New York and the more than one million people who have signed up to use the LinkNYC network,” said Jennifer Hensley, General Manager of CityBridge. “LinkNYC will never sell your personal data, or track what you do on our Wi-Fi network.”

“LinkNYC is on track to be the world's largest, fastest free public Wi-Fi system, with one of the strongest privacy policies of any network of its kind,” said Anne Roest, Commissioner of the New York City Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications. “The updated policy clarifies what LinkNYC is doing every day to keep New Yorkers' information private. All 8.5 million New Yorkers—and our tens of millions of visitors—can rest assured that their privacy is of chief concern.”

OTHER QUOTES

“LinkNYC is a great example of how a public-private partnership can benefit the city and its citizens — and of the responsibility tech companies have to protect users' privacy,” said Julie Samuels, Executive Director of Tech:NYC. “We're encouraged by LinkNYC's commitment to data privacy and security and to educating New Yorkers about these practices, and we think these standards are a workable, digestible framework that could also work for other technology projects that serve the public.”

“It’s great to see the LinkNYC working to maximize the social utility of public wifi while simultaneously taking important steps to safeguard user privacy,” said Professor Jonathan Askin, Founder/Director, Brooklyn Law Incubator & Policy Clinic and internet law expert. “It’s sometimes a tough balancing act to foster robust functionality while protecting user privacy. LinkNYC recognizes this balance between occasionally conflicting objectives and has taken important steps to advance both objectives.”

LinkNYC’s updated privacy policy also makes clear how security camera footage from Links can be used. Each Link kiosk has two security cameras, above each 55-inch side panel display, which will be turned on starting this week to monitor and maintain the Links and prevent vandalism.

CityBridge will not use or share data or footage collected by cameras except to detect or address illegal activity on or associated with a Link, in response to vandalism, or in response to a subpoena or similar lawful request. Footage from Link cameras will be stored for a maximum of 7 days, unless the footage is necessary to investigate an incident. There is no collection or storage of any audio.

Link tablets have a built-in, user-activated camera that could be used for video calling or other user-initiated applications in the future. These cameras will remain inactive until a future announcement on new LinkNYC features.

Interview Q and A

Q: So what exactly is changing here?

It's important to note that our day to day practices are not changing. What we are doing here is clarifying our privacy policy to match our commitment to user security and privacy. Specifically, the updated privacy policy makes clear that:

1. We do not track what users do on the Wi-Fi on their own devices.
2. We will not share any personal information about our users with anyone, including the City, without their explicit permission or a court order.
3. And it makes clear that any footage from LinkNYC cameras is subject to our privacy policy.

Q: Seems like a simple change, why did it take so long?

We wanted to make sure we got this right, and again, our day to day privacy practices have been consistent since the start of the project and will remain the same.

Q: It seems like you've addressed some of the concerns that NYCLU and other groups raised, were they involved in drafting the revised policy?

We appreciated their feedback and we are happy to have been able to implement their suggestions.

Q: MAC Addresses identify your phone, a personal device that is with you all the time. Shouldn't that be treated as PII too?

We anonymize MAC addresses in our system, which are needed to "remember" your device, and our privacy policy makes clear that if technical information like MAC address is combined with any personal data or data that could identify the user -- like where that mobile device has connected to the network -- we would treat that as personally identifiable information, and we would not share or sell it.

Q: This is a lot of cameras, are they really needed?

The cameras will help us maintain the network and make sure LinkNYC is running smoothly for New Yorkers and visitors. The cameras are not actively monitored. All camera footage is subject to our privacy policy -- we do not share footage with anyone, including the NYPD, without a subpoena or court order.

Q: Will the cameras feed into NYPD's Domain Awareness System?

No.

Q: You say that you will not share personal information without a court order or subpoena. How many such orders have you processed?

To date we have not received any.

Q: Will you let people know if their data has been requested by law enforcement?

We will make a reasonable effort to let people know if we are able to. Of course, we only have the emails that people use to sign up for the network, and no other contact information, so that is the only way we can communicate with users.

Q: What about environmental sensors?

The sensors monitor the Link's environment, things like temperature and humidity. They do not capture any person information.

City Strengthens Public Wi-Fi Privacy Policy after NYCLU Raises Concerns

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

March 16, 2017 – CityBridge, the company behind the kiosks for the city's public Wi-Fi network LinkNYC, announced today that it has greatly improved LinkNYC's privacy policy. The improvements follow the letter sent by the New York Civil Liberties Union raising concerns about the previous policy.

“We applaud the city for being so responsive to our concerns and now New Yorkers have significantly improved privacy protections when using public Wi-Fi,” said NYCLU Senior Staff Attorney Mariko Hirose. “Internet access is a modern-life necessity and public WiFi should be designed in partnership with the community to minimize the privacy risks of data collection and maximize the benefits to the public.”

LinkNYC, which was publicly launched in January of last year, will eventually become a network of as many as 7,500 to 10,000 public kiosks offering fast and free Wi-Fi throughout all five boroughs. In March of 2016, the NYCLU sent a letter to the Office of the Mayor warning that, under the previous privacy policy, CityBridge, the company behind the LinkNYC kiosks, could potentially retain a vast amount of information about users – often indefinitely. The NYCLU contended that this gave CityBridge the ability to build a massive database that could pose a risk of security breaches and unwarranted NYPD surveillance. The NYCLU further contended that the policy also left open the possibility that data collected by cameras at the LinkNYC kiosks might be available to the city or NYPD.

Under the old policy, users had to submit their e-mail addresses and agree to allow CityBridge to collect information about what websites they visited on their devices, where and how long they lingered on certain information on a webpage, and what links they clicked on. The privacy policy only offered to make “reasonable efforts” to clear out this massive amount of personally identifiable user information, and even then, only if there was 12 months of user inactivity. That meant that New Yorkers who used LinkNYC regularly could have their personally identifiable information stored for a lifetime and beyond.

The new policy announced today makes the following improvements:

- Clarifies that browsing history from personal devices will not be stored.
- Sets the retention period of most technical information for individual sessions to 60 days from the end of their last activity.
- Clarifies that disclosure of information will occur only as required by law and that there will be notice.
- Limits camera use and prohibits facial recognition on cameras.

Our Community. Our Future.

Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project Approved by City Council

Innovative Partnership Between Brooklyn Public Library, Fifth Avenue Committee to Nearly Double Size of One of Brooklyn's Busiest Branches, Create 49 Units of Deeply Affordable Housing

Plan Receives Overwhelming Support in Final Round of Rigorous Public Approval Process

BROOKLYN, NY—The New York City Council has voted to approve the Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project (almost unanimously/unanimously), Brooklyn Public Library and development partner Fifth Avenue Committee announced today, finalizing the formal public approval process for the innovative project. The proposal previously received unanimous approval from the City Planning Commission and the city council's Land Use Committee and Subcommittee on Planning, Dispositions and Concessions. The project was also approved by the Borough President and the members of Community Board 7.

Developed in partnership with the Fifth Avenue Committee, a nonprofit with nearly four decades' experience in affordable housing and comprehensive community development, Brooklyn Public Library's new Sunset Park branch will provide the neighborhood with a modern, state-of-the-art library that is nearly twice the size of the current location. Sunset Park Library is one of Brooklyn's busiest, with attendance and circulation that rank in the top 10 of BPL's 60 branches.

"Thanks to the support of the city council and the residents of Sunset Park, we will soon begin construction on a library that will offer the robust and diverse programming, large multilingual collection and comfortable, inspiring environment that our patrons and staff deserve," said Brooklyn Public Library President and CEO Linda E. Johnson. "We look forward to designing and building the new Sunset Park Library with input from the community.”

“Fifth Avenue Committee is grateful for the overwhelming support this project has received and that FAC and BPL will be able to move forward to bring a 21st century public library and 100% truly and deeply affordable housing to the Sunset Park community. This project is a model in how to ensure that the community can achieve the maximum benefits possible as part of redeveloping public land for public good. We look forward to continuing to work with the community as this project moves forward towards construction,” said Michelle de la Uz, Fifth Avenue Committee Executive Director.

At 12,200 square feet, only 7,465 of which are accessible to the public, the current branch is too small to meet the needs of this growing community. Built in the 1970s, it is poorly laid out for modern use. The proposed new library will be 20,755 square feet, with 18,200 square feet expected to be accessible to the public. It will be outfitted for the modern era, with the collections, technology and flexible space needed to accommodate many uses and serve a large, diverse patronship.

The expansion of Sunset Park Library and the development of deeply affordable housing is especially timely given the growth of the neighborhood. A 2017 study by the New York City Comptroller's office identified a 34% increase in Sunset Park's population between 1990 and 2014, double the citywide growth rate. The median rent in the neighborhood has grown at a rate (63%) that far outpaces the growth in median income (25%).

The project will create 100% affordable housing atop the new library branch. Forty-nine affordable units will be available for incomes spanning 30% to 80% of Area Median Income (AMI); the majority of the units are reserved for incomes at or below 50% of AMI, and most apartments will rent for $500 to $1,000 per month. A minimum of 50% of the apartments will be reserved for Community Board 7 residents, 10% for city employees and 10% for the physically disabled. Nine units will be reserved for survivors of domestic violence. FAC, as a locally based, nonprofit developer whose mission is to advance economic and social justice, is committed to permanent affordability for all of the apartments, with 35% of the apartments being permanently affordable through City Regulatory Agreements that will be recorded with the property.

The Fifth Avenue Committee will construct the eight-story, mixed-use building, including the library's core and shell, at no cost to Brooklyn Public Library. BPL will fit out the new library for approximately $10 million, using a portion of the proceeds from the redevelopment of its Brooklyn Heights branch. The city will own the library in perpetuity, as it does the current branch.

Interim library service will be provided throughout the construction process at 4201

Fourth Avenue, at 42nd Street.

Here is a quote from HPD Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer:

“By combining affordable housing with improvements to public resources like the Sunset Park Library, we are serving local residents and the community for generations to come,” said HPD Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “Today’s vote is an important milestone in making way for 49 new affordable apartments and a much-enhanced and expanded space for the library so it can continue to serve as a vital hub for the neighborhood.”

I’ve attached a press release draft with updates from HPD. Let us know if you have any questions.

Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project Approved by City Council

Innovative Partnership Between the City of New York, Brooklyn Public Library, Fifth Avenue Committee to Nearly Double Size of One of Brooklyn's Busiest Branches, Create 49 Units of Deeply Affordable Housing

Plan Receives Overwhelming Support in Final Round of Rigorous Public Approval Process

BROOKLYN, NY—The New York City Council has voted to approve the Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project (almost unanimously/unanimously), Brooklyn Public Library and development partner Fifth Avenue Committee, and the de Blasio Administration announced today, finalizing the formal public approval process for the innovative project. The proposal previously received unanimous approval from the City Planning Commission and the City Council's Land Use Committee and Subcommittee on Planning, Dispositions and Concessions. The project was also approved by the Borough President and the members of Community Board 7.

Developed in partnership with the Fifth Avenue Committee, a nonprofit with nearly four decades' experience in affordable housing and comprehensive community development, Brooklyn Public Library's new Sunset Park branch will provide the neighborhood with a modern, state-of-the-art library that is nearly twice the size of the current location. Sunset Park Library is one of Brooklyn's busiest, with attendance and circulation that rank in the top 10 of BPL's 60 branches.

"Thanks to the support of the City Council and the residents of Sunset Park, we will soon begin construction on a library that will offer the robust and diverse programming, large multilingual collection and comfortable, inspiring environment that our patrons and staff deserve," said Brooklyn Public Library President and CEO Linda E. Johnson. "We look forward to designing and building the new Sunset Park Library with input from the community."

"Fifth Avenue Committee is grateful for the overwhelming support this project has received and that FAC and BPL will be able to move forward to bring a 21st century public library and 100% truly and deeply affordable housing to the Sunset Park community. This project is a model in how to ensure that the community can achieve the maximum benefits possible as part of redeveloping public land for public good. We look forward to continuing to work with the community as this project moves forward towards construction," said Michelle de la Uz, Fifth Avenue Committee Executive Director.

Formatted: Font: (Default) Arial, 11 pt

Formatted: Font: (Default) Arial, 11 pt

At 12,200 square feet, only 7,465 of which are accessible to the public, the current branch is too small to meet the needs of this growing community. Built in the 1970s, it is poorly laid out for modern use. The proposed new library will be 20,755 square feet, with 18,200 square feet expected to be accessible to the public. It will be outfitted for the modern era, with the collections, technology and flexible space needed to accommodate many uses and serve a large, diverse patronship.

The expansion of Sunset Park Library and the development of deeply affordable housing is especially timely given the growth of the neighborhood. A 2017 study by the New York City Comptroller's office identified a 34% increase in Sunset Park's population between 1990 and 2014, double the citywide growth rate. The median rent in the neighborhood has grown at a rate (63%) that far outpaces the growth in median income (25%).

The project will create 100% affordable housing atop the new library branch. Forty-nine affordable units will be available for incomes spanning 30% to 80% of Area Median Income (AMI); the majority of the units are reserved for incomes at or below 50% of AMI, and most apartments will rent for $500 to $1,000 per month. A minimum of 50% of the apartments will be reserved for Community Board 7 residents, 10% for city employees and 10% for the physically disabled. Nine units will be reserved for survivors of domestic violence. FAC, as a locally based, nonprofit developer whose mission is to advance economic and social justice, is committed to permanent affordability for all of the apartments, with 35% of the apartments being permanently affordable through City Regulatory Agreements that will be recorded with the property.

The Fifth Avenue Committee will construct the eight-story, mixed-use building, including the library's core and shell, at no cost to Brooklyn Public Library. BPL will fit out the new library for approximately $10 million, using a portion of the proceeds from the redevelopment of its Brooklyn Heights branch. The city will own the library in perpetuity, as it does the current branch.

Interim library service will be provided throughout the construction process at 4201 Fourth Avenue, at 42nd Street.

BROOKLYN, NY—The New York City Council has voted to approve the Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project unanimously, Brooklyn Public Library, Fifth Avenue Committee, and the de Blasio Administration announced today, finalizing the formal public approval process for the innovative project. The proposal previously received unanimous approval from the City Planning Commission and the City Council's Land Use Committee and Subcommittee on Planning, Dispositions and Concessions. The project was also approved by the Borough President and the members of Community Board 7.

Developed in partnership with the Fifth Avenue Committee, a nonprofit with nearly four decades' experience in affordable housing and comprehensive community development,

Brooklyn Public Library's new Sunset Park branch will provide the neighborhood with a modern, state-of-the-art library that is nearly twice the size of the current location. Sunset Park Library is one of Brooklyn's busiest, with attendance and circulation that rank in the top 10 of BPL's 60 branches.

"Thanks to the support of the City Council and the residents of Sunset Park, we will soon begin construction on a library that will offer the robust and diverse programming, large multilingual collection and comfortable, inspiring environment that our patrons and staff deserve," said Brooklyn Public Library President and CEO Linda E. Johnson. "We look forward to designing and building the new Sunset Park Library with input from the community."

"Fifth Avenue Committee is grateful for the overwhelming support this project has received and that FAC and BPL will be able to move forward to bring a 21st century public library and 100% truly and deeply affordable housing to the Sunset Park community. This project is a model in how to ensure that the community can achieve the maximum benefits possible as part of redeveloping public land for public good. We look forward to continuing to work with the community as this project moves forward towards construction," said Michelle de la Uz, Fifth Avenue Committee Executive Director.

CM MENCHACA QUOTE

At 12,200 square feet, only 7,465 of which are accessible to the public, the current branch is too small to meet the needs of this growing community. Built in the 1970s, it is poorly laid out for modern use. The proposed new library will be 20,755 square feet, with 18,200 square feet expected to be accessible to the public. It will be outfitted for the modern era, with the collections, technology and flexible space needed to accommodate many uses and serve a large, diverse patronship.

The expansion of Sunset Park Library and the development of deeply affordable housing is especially timely given the growth of the neighborhood. A 2017 study by the New York City Comptroller's office identified a 34% increase in Sunset Park's population between 1990 and 2014, double the citywide growth rate. The median rent in the neighborhood has grown at a rate (63%) that far outpaces the growth in median income (25%).

The project will create 100% affordable housing atop the new library branch. Forty-nine affordable units will be available for incomes spanning 30% to 80% of Area Median Income (AMI). The majority of the units are reserved for incomes at or below 50% of AMI, and most apartments will rent for $500 to $1,000 per month. A minimum of 50% of the apartments will be reserved for Community Board 7 residents, 10% for city employees and 10% for the physically disabled. Nine units will be reserved for survivors of domestic violence. As a locally-based nonprofit developer whose mission is to advance economic and social justice, FAC is committed to permanent affordability for all of the apartments. 35% of the apartments will be permanently affordable through City Regulatory Agreements that will be recorded with the property.

"By combining affordable housing with improvements to public resources like the Sunset Park Library, we are serving local residents and the community for generations to come," said HPD Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. "Today's vote is an important milestone in making way for 49 new affordable apartments and a much-enhanced and expanded space for the library so it can continue to serve as a vital hub for the neighborhood.”

The Fifth Avenue Committee will construct the eight-story, mixed-use building, including the library’s core and shell, at no cost to Brooklyn Public Library. BPL will fit out the new library for approximately $10 million, using a portion of the proceeds from the redevelopment of its Brooklyn Heights branch. The city will own the library in perpetuity, as it does the current branch.

Interim library service will be provided throughout the construction process at 4201 Fourth Avenue, at 42nd Street.

More details on the project are available here.

About Brooklyn Public Library:

Brooklyn Public Library (BPL) is an independent library system for the 2.5 million residents of Brooklyn. It is the fifth largest library system in the United States with 60 neighborhood libraries located throughout the borough. BPL offers free programs and services for all ages and stages of life, including a large selection of books in more than 30 languages, author talks, literacy programs and public computers. BPL’s eResources, such as eBooks and eVideos, catalog information and free homework help, are available to customers of all ages 24 hours a day at our website: www.bklynlibrary.org.

About Fifth Avenue Committee

Fifth Avenue Committee, Inc. (FAC) is a nationally recognized South Brooklyn based non-profit comprehensive community development corporation formed in 1978 whose mission is to advance economic and social justice by building vibrant, diverse communities where residents have genuine opportunities to achieve their goals as well as the power to shape the community’s future. FAC works to transform the lives of over 5,500 low and moderate income New Yorkers annually so that we can all live and work with dignity and respect while making our community more equitable, sustainable, inclusive and just. To achieve our mission FAC develops and manages affordable housing and community facilities, creates economic opportunities and ensures access to economic stability, organizes residents and workers, offers student centered adult education, and combats displacement caused by gentrification. FAC has developed nearly 900 units of affordable housing, currently manages more than 500 units and has an affordable housing pipeline of more than 1,000 units. In the meantime, here is a statement from our Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen for the release:

“Today’s vote on the Sunset Park Library project represents a major victory for the values we cherish – both creating new affordable housing and improving public libraries that are so central to our communities. By bringing 49 affordable apartments online and funding the expansion and upgrade of the library, this development will serve the neighborhood for decades to come.”

Here is a quote from HPD Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer:

“By combining affordable housing with improvements to public resources like the Sunset Park Library, we are serving local residents and the community for generations to come,” said HPD Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “Today’s vote is an important milestone in making way for 49 new affordable apartments and a much-enhanced and expanded space for the library so it can continue to serve as a vital hub for the neighborhood.”

I've attached a press release draft with updates from HPD. Let us know if you have any questions.

Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project Approved by City Council

Innovative Partnership Between the City of New York, Brooklyn Public Library, Fifth Avenue Committee to Nearly Double Size of One of Brooklyn's Busiest Branches, Create 49 Units of Deeply Affordable Housing

Plan Receives Unanimous Support 45-0 in Final Round of Rigorous Public Approval Process

BROOKLYN, NY—The New York City Council has voted to approve the Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project unanimously, Brooklyn Public Library, Fifth Avenue

Committee, and the de Blasio Administration announced today, finalizing the formal public approval process for the innovative project. The proposal previously received unanimous approval from the City Planning Commission and the City Council's Land Use Committee and Subcommittee on Planning, Dispositions and Concessions. The project was also approved by the Borough President and the members of Community Board 7.

Developed in partnership with the Fifth Avenue Committee, a nonprofit with nearly four decades' experience in affordable housing and comprehensive community development, Brooklyn Public Library's new Sunset Park branch will provide the neighborhood with a modern, state-of-the-art library that is nearly twice the size of the current location. Sunset Park Library is one of Brooklyn's busiest, with attendance and circulation that rank in the top 10 of BPL's 60 branches.

"Thanks to the support of the City Council and the residents of Sunset Park, we will soon begin construction on a library that will offer the robust and diverse programming, large multilingual collection and comfortable, inspiring environment that our patrons and staff deserve," said Brooklyn Public Library President and CEO Linda E. Johnson. "We look forward to designing and building the new Sunset Park Library with input from the community."

"Fifth Avenue Committee is grateful for the overwhelming support this project has received and that FAC and BPL will be able to move forward to bring a 21st century public library and 100% truly and deeply affordable housing to the Sunset Park community. This project is a model in how to ensure that the community can achieve the maximum benefits possible as part of redeveloping public land for public good. We look forward to continuing to work with the community as this project moves forward towards construction," said Michelle de la Uz, Fifth Avenue Committee Executive Director.

CM MENCHACA QUOTE

At 12,200 square feet, only 7,465 of which are accessible to the public, the current branch is too small to meet the needs of this growing community. Built in the 1970s, it is poorly laid out for modern use. The proposed new library will be 20,755 square feet, with 18,200 square feet expected to be accessible to the public. It will be outfitted for the modern era, with the collections, technology and flexible space needed to accommodate many uses and serve a large, diverse patronship.

The expansion of Sunset Park Library and the development of deeply affordable housing is especially timely given the growth of the neighborhood. A 2017 study by the New York City Comptroller's office identified a 34% increase in Sunset Park's population between 1990 and 2014, double the citywide growth rate. The median rent in the neighborhood has grown at a rate (63%) that far outpaces the growth in median income (25%).

The project will create 100% affordable housing atop the new library branch with anticipated funding from the New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development (HPD). Forty-nine affordable units will be available for incomes spanning 30% to 80% of Area Median Income (AMI). The majority of the units are reserved for incomes at or below 50% of AMI, and most apartments will rent for $500 to $1,000 per month. A minimum of 50% of the apartments will be reserved for Community Board 7 residents, 10% for city employees and 10% for the physically disabled. Nine units will be reserved for survivors of domestic violence. As a locally-based nonprofit developer whose mission is to advance economic and social justice, FAC is committed to permanent affordability for all of the apartments. 35% of the apartments will be permanently affordable through City Regulatory Agreements that will be recorded with the property.

“By combining affordable housing with improvements to public resources like the Sunset Park Library, we are serving local residents and the community for generations to come,” said HPD Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “Today’s vote is an important milestone in making way for 49 new affordable apartments and a much-enhanced and expanded space for the library so it can continue to serve as a vital hub for the neighborhood.”

The Fifth Avenue Committee will construct the eight-story, mixed-use building, including the library’s core and shell, at no cost to Brooklyn Public Library. BPL will fit out the new library for approximately $10 million, using a portion of the proceeds from the redevelopment of its Brooklyn Heights branch. The city will own the library in perpetuity, as it does the current branch.

Interim library service will be provided throughout the construction process at 4201 Fourth Avenue, at 42nd Street.

More details on the project are available here.

About Brooklyn Public Library:

Brooklyn Public Library (BPL) is an independent library system for the 2.5 million residents of Brooklyn. It is the fifth largest library system in the United States with 60 neighborhood libraries located throughout the borough. BPL offers free programs and services for all ages and stages of life, including a large selection of books in more than 30 languages, author talks, literacy programs and public computers. BPL’s eResources, such as eBooks and eVideos, catalog information and free homework help, are available to customers of all ages 24 hours a day at our website: www.bklynlibrary.org.

About Fifth Avenue Committee

Fifth Avenue Committee, Inc. (FAC) is a nationally recognized South Brooklyn based non-profit comprehensive community development corporation formed in 1978 whose mission is to advance economic and social justice by building vibrant, diverse communities where residents have genuine opportunities to achieve their goals as well as the power to shape the community’s future. FAC works to transform the lives of over 5,500 low and moderate income New Yorkers annually so that we can all live and work with dignity and respect while making our community more equitable, sustainable, inclusive and just. To achieve our mission FAC develops and manages affordable housing and community facilities, creates economic opportunities and ensures access to economic stability, organizes residents and workers, offers student centered adult education, and combats displacement caused by gentrification. FAC has developed nearly 900 units of affordable housing, currently manages more than 500 units and has an affordable housing pipeline of more than 1,000 units. “For the past two years, Sunset Park stakeholders and I have held public meetings and hearings on how to rebuild our aging library. A call for an expanded and modern library that meets local needs such as affordable housing and community space was at the center of this process. Together, we’ve worked to ensure that our residents’ recommendations were heard. Today, the New York City Council voted unanimously in approval of a project that includes legal requirements for 100% affordable housing and a permanently protected community library. BPL offers free programs and services for all ages and stages of life, including a large selection of books in more than 30 languages, author talks, literacy programs and public computers. BPL's eResources, such as eBooks and eVideos, catalog information and free homework help, are available to customers of all ages 24 hours a day at our website: www.bklynlibrary.org.

About Fifth Avenue Committee

Fifth Avenue Committee, Inc. (FAC) is a nationally recognized South Brooklyn based non-profit comprehensive community development corporation formed in 1978 whose mission is to advance economic and social justice by building vibrant, diverse communities where residents have genuine opportunities to achieve their goals as well as the power to shape the community's future. FAC works to transform the lives of over 5,500 low and moderate income New Yorkers annually so that we can all live and work with dignity and respect while making our community more equitable, sustainable, inclusive and just. To achieve our mission FAC develops and manages affordable housing and community facilities, creates economic opportunities and ensures access to economic stability, organizes residents and workers, offers student centered adult education, and combats displacement caused by gentrification. FAC has developed nearly 900 units of affordable housing, currently manages more than 500 units and has an affordable housing pipeline of more than 1,000 units. For more information about FAC go to www.fifthave.org.

Looks good, but can you send us final with Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen's quote?

"Today's vote on the Sunset Park Library project represents a major victory for the values we cherish – both creating new affordable housing and improving public libraries that are so central to our communities. By bringing 49 affordable apartments online and funding the expansion and upgrade of the library, this development will serve the neighborhood for decades to come."

Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project Approved by City Council

Plan Receives Unanimous Support 45-0 in Final Round of Rigorous Public Approval Process

BROOKLYN, NY—The New York City Council has voted to approve the Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project unanimously, Brooklyn Public Library, Fifth Avenue Committee, and the de Blasio Administration announced today, finalizing the formal public approval process for the innovative project. The proposal previously received unanimous approval from the City Planning Commission and the City Council's Land Use Committee and Subcommittee on Planning, Dispositions and Concessions. The project was also approved by the Borough President and the members of Community Board 7.

Developed in partnership with the Fifth Avenue Committee, a nonprofit with nearly four decades' experience in affordable housing and comprehensive community development, Brooklyn Public Library's new Sunset Park branch will provide the neighborhood with a modern, state-of-the-art library that is nearly twice the size of the current location. Sunset Park Library is one of Brooklyn's busiest, with attendance and circulation that rank in the top 10 of BPL's 60 branches.

"Thanks to the support of the City Council and the residents of Sunset Park, we will soon begin construction on a library that will offer the robust and diverse programming, large multilingual collection and comfortable, inspiring environment that our patrons and staff deserve,” said Brooklyn Public Library President and CEO Linda E. Johnson. “We look forward to designing and building the new Sunset Park Library with input from the community.”

“Fifth Avenue Committee is grateful for the overwhelming support this project has received and that FAC and BPL will be able to move forward to bring a 21st century public library and 100% truly and deeply affordable housing to the Sunset Park community. This project is a model in how to ensure that the community can achieve the maximum benefits possible as part of redeveloping public land for public good. We look forward to continuing to work with the community as this project moves forward towards construction,” said Michelle de la Uz, Fifth Avenue Committee Executive Director.

CM MENCHACA QUOTE

At 12,200 square feet, only 7,465 of which are accessible to the public, the current branch is too small to meet the needs of this growing community. Built in the 1970s, it is poorly laid out for modern use. The proposed new library will be 20,755 square feet, with 18,200 square feet expected to be accessible to the public. It will be outfitted for the modern era, with the collections, technology and flexible space needed to accommodate many uses and serve a large, diverse patronship.

The expansion of Sunset Park Library and the development of deeply affordable housing is especially timely given the growth of the neighborhood. A 2017 study by the New York City Comptroller's office identified a 34% increase in Sunset Park's population between 1990 and 2014, double the citywide growth rate. The median rent in the neighborhood has grown at a rate (63%) that far outpaces the growth in median income (25%).

The project will create 100% affordable housing atop the new library branch with anticipated funding from the New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development (HPD). Forty-nine affordable units will be available for incomes spanning 30% to 80% of Area Median Income (AMI). The majority of the units are reserved for incomes at or below 50% of AMI, and most apartments will rent for $500 to $1,000 per month. A minimum of 50% of the apartments will be reserved for Community Board 7 residents, 10% for city employees and 10% for the physically disabled. Nine units will be reserved for survivors of domestic violence. As a locally-based nonprofit developer whose mission is to advance economic and social justice, FAC is committed to permanent affordability for all of the apartments. 35% of the apartments will be permanently affordable through City Regulatory Agreements that will be recorded with the property.

“By combining affordable housing with improvements to public resources like the Sunset Park Library, we are serving local residents and the community for generations to come,” said HPD Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “Today's vote is an important milestone in making way for 49 new affordable apartments and a much-enhanced and expanded space for the library so it can continue to serve as a vital hub for the neighborhood.”

The Fifth Avenue Committee will construct the eight-story, mixed-use building, including the library's core and shell, at no cost to Brooklyn Public Library. BPL will fit out the new library for approximately $10 million, using a portion of the proceeds from the redevelopment of its Brooklyn Heights branch. The city will own the library in perpetuity, as it does the current branch.

Interim library service will be provided throughout the construction process at 4201 Fourth Avenue, at 42nd Street.

More details on the project are available here.

A 2017 study by the New York City Comptroller's office identified a 34% increase in Sunset Park's population between 1990 and 2014, double the citywide growth rate. The median rent in the neighborhood has grown at a rate (63%) that far outpaces the growth in median income (25%).

The project will create 100% affordable housing atop the new library branch with anticipated funding from the New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development (HPD). Forty-nine affordable units will be available for incomes spanning 30% to 80% of Area Median Income (AMI). The majority of the units are reserved for incomes at or below 50% of AMI, and most apartments will rent for $500 to $1,000 per month. A minimum of 50% of the apartments will be reserved for Community Board 7 residents, 10% for city employees and 10% for the physically disabled. Nine units will be reserved for survivors of domestic violence. As a locally-based nonprofit developer whose mission is to advance economic and social justice, FAC is committed to permanent affordability for all of the apartments. 35% of the apartments will be permanently affordable through City Regulatory Agreements that will be recorded with the property.

“By combining affordable housing with improvements to public resources like the Sunset Park Library, we are serving local residents and the community for generations to come,” said HPD Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer.

“Today's vote is an important milestone in making way for 49 new affordable apartments and a much-enhanced and expanded space for the library so it can continue to serve as a vital hub for the neighborhood.”

The Fifth Avenue Committee will construct the eight-story, mixed-use building, including the library's core and shell, at no cost to Brooklyn Public Library. BPL will fit out the new library for approximately $10 million, using a portion of the proceeds from the redevelopment of its Brooklyn Heights branch. The city will own the library in perpetuity, as it does the current branch.

Interim library service will be provided throughout the construction process at 4201 Fourth Avenue, at 42nd Street.

More details on the project are available here.

About Brooklyn Public Library:

Brooklyn Public Library (BPL) is an independent library system for the 2.5 million residents of Brooklyn. It is the fifth largest library system in the United States with 60 neighborhood libraries located throughout the borough. BPL offers free programs and services for all ages and stages of life, including a large selection of books in more than 30 languages, author talks, literacy programs and public computers. BPL's eResources, such as eBooks and eVideos, catalog information and free homework help, are available to customers of all ages 24 hours a day at our website: www.bklynlibrary.org.

About Fifth Avenue Committee

Fifth Avenue Committee, Inc. (FAC) is a nationally recognized South Brooklyn based non-profit comprehensive community development corporation formed in 1978 whose mission is to advance economic and social justice by building vibrant, diverse communities where residents have genuine opportunities to achieve their goals as well as the power to shape the community's future. FAC works to transform the lives of over 5,500 low and moderate income New Yorkers annually so that we can all live and work with dignity and respect while making our community more equitable, sustainable, inclusive and just. To achieve our mission FAC develops and manages affordable housing and community facilities, creates economic opportunities and ensures access to economic stability, organizes residents and workers, offers student centered adult education, and combats displacement caused by gentrification. FAC has developed nearly 900 units of affordable housing, currently manages more than 500 units and has an affordable housing pipeline of more than 1,000 units. ## Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project Approved by City Council

Innovative Partnership Between the City of New York, Brooklyn Public Library, Fifth Avenue Committee to Nearly Double Size of One of Brooklyn's Busiest Branches, Create 49 Units of Deeply Affordable Housing

Plan Receives Unanimous Support in Final Round of Rigorous Public Approval Process

BROOKLYN, NY—The New York City Council has voted to approve the Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project unanimously, Brooklyn Public Library, Fifth Avenue Committee and the de Blasio Administration announced today, finalizing the formal public approval process for the innovative project. The proposal previously received unanimous approval from the City Planning Commission and the City Council's Land Use Committee and Subcommittee on Planning, Dispositions and Concessions. The project was also approved by the Borough President and the members of Community Board 7.

Developed in partnership with the Fifth Avenue Committee, a nonprofit with nearly four decades' experience in affordable housing and comprehensive community development, Brooklyn Public Library's new Sunset Park branch will provide the neighborhood with a modern, state-of-the-art library that is nearly twice the size of the current location. Sunset Park Library is one of Brooklyn's busiest, with attendance and circulation that rank in the top 10 of BPL's 60 branches.

"Thanks to the support of the City Council and the residents of Sunset Park, we will soon begin construction of a library that will offer the robust and diverse programming, large multilingual collection and comfortable, inspiring environment that our patrons and staff deserve,” said Brooklyn Public Library President and CEO Linda E. Johnson. “We look forward to designing and building the new Sunset Park Library with input from the community.”

“Today’s vote on the Sunset Park Library project represents a major victory for the values we cherish – both creating new affordable housing and improving public libraries that are so central to our communities,” said Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen. “By bringing 49 affordable apartments online and funding the expansion and upgrade of the library, this development will serve the neighborhood for decades to come.”

“By combining affordable housing with improvements to public resources like the Sunset Park Library, we are serving local residents and the community for generations to come,” said Department of Housing, Preservation and Development Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “Today’s vote is an important milestone in making way for 49 new affordable apartments and a much-enhanced and expanded space for the library so it can continue to serve as a vital hub for the neighborhood.”

“Fifth Avenue Committee is grateful for the overwhelming support this project has received and that FAC and BPL will be able to move forward to bring a 21st century public library and 100% truly and deeply affordable housing to the Sunset Park community. This project is a model in how to ensure that the community can achieve the maximum benefits possible as part of redeveloping public land for public good. We look forward to continuing to work with the community as this project moves forward towards construction,” said Michelle de la Uz, Fifth Avenue Committee Executive Director.

“For the past two years, Sunset Park stakeholders and I have held public meetings and hearings on how to rebuild our aging library. A call for an expanded and modern library that meets local needs such as affordable housing and community space was at the center of this process. Together, we’ve worked to ensure that our residents’ recommendations were heard. Today, the New York City Council voted unanimously in approval of a project that includes legal requirements for 100% affordable housing and a permanently protected community library. I want to thank the Brooklyn Public Library and Fifth Avenue Committee for crafting a project that will serve Sunset Park residents for generations to come,” said Council Member Carlos Menchaca.

At 12,200 square feet, only 7,465 of which are accessible to the public, the current branch is too small to meet the needs of this growing community. Built in the 1970s, it is poorly laid out for modern use. The proposed new library will be 20,755 square feet, with 18,200 square feet expected to be accessible to the public. It will be outfitted for the modern era, with the collections, technology and flexible space needed to accommodate many uses and serve a large, diverse patronship.

The expansion of Sunset Park Library and the development of deeply affordable housing is especially timely given the growth of the neighborhood. A 2017 study by the New York City Comptroller's office identified a 34% increase in Sunset Park's population between 1990 and 2014, double the citywide growth rate. The median rent in the neighborhood has grown at a rate (63%) that far outpaces the growth in median income (25%).

The project will create 100% affordable housing atop the new library branch, with anticipated financing from the New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development. Forty-nine affordable units will be available for incomes spanning 30% to 80% of Area Median Income (AMI). The majority of the units are reserved for incomes at or below 50% of AMI, and most apartments will rent for $500 to $1,000 per month. A minimum of 50% of the apartments will be reserved for Community Board 7 residents, 10% for city employees and 10% for the physically disabled. Nine units will be reserved for survivors of domestic violence. As a locally-based nonprofit developer whose mission is to advance economic and social justice, FAC is committed to permanent affordability for all of the apartments. Thirty-five percent of the apartments will be permanently affordable through City Regulatory Agreements that will be recorded with the property.

The Fifth Avenue Committee will construct the eight-story, mixed-use building, including the library's core and shell, at no cost to Brooklyn Public Library. BPL will fit out the new library for approximately $10 million, using a portion of the proceeds from the redevelopment of its Brooklyn Heights branch. The city will own the library in perpetuity, as it does the current branch.

Interim library service will be provided throughout the construction process at 4201 Fourth Avenue, at 42nd Street.

The Fifth Avenue Committee will construct the eight-story, mixed-use building, including the library’s core and shell, at no cost to Brooklyn Public Library. BPL will fit out the new library for approximately $10 million, using a portion of the proceeds from the redevelopment of its Brooklyn Heights branch. The city will own the library in perpetuity, as it does the current branch.

Interim library service will be provided throughout the construction process at 4201 Fourth Avenue, at 42nd Street.

More details on the project are available here.

About Brooklyn Public Library:

Brooklyn Public Library (BPL) is an independent library system for the 2.5 million residents of Brooklyn. It is the fifth largest library system in the United States with 60 neighborhood libraries located throughout the borough. BPL offers free programs and services for all ages and stages of life, including a large selection of books in more than 30 languages, author talks, literacy programs and public computers. BPL's eResources, such as eBooks and eVideos, catalog information and free homework help, are available to customers of all ages 24 hours a day at our website: www.bklynlibrary.org.

About Fifth Avenue Committee

Fifth Avenue Committee, Inc. (FAC) is a nationally recognized South Brooklyn based non-profit comprehensive community development corporation formed in 1978 whose mission is to advance economic and social justice by building vibrant, diverse communities where residents have genuine opportunities to achieve their goals as well as the power to shape the community's future. FAC works to transform the lives of over 5,500 low and moderate income New Yorkers annually so that we can all live and work with dignity and respect while making our community more equitable, sustainable, inclusive and just. To achieve our mission FAC develops and manages affordable housing and community facilities, creates economic opportunities and ensures access to economic stability, organizes residents and workers, offers student centered adult education, and combats displacement caused by gentrification. FAC has developed nearly 900 units of affordable housing, currently manages more than 500 units and has an affordable housing pipeline of more than 1,000 units. ## Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project Approved by City Council

Innovative Partnership Between the City of New York, Brooklyn Public Library, Fifth Avenue Committee to Nearly Double Size of One of Brooklyn's Busiest Branches, Create 49 Units of Deeply Affordable Housing

Plan Receives Unanimous Support in Final Round of Rigorous Public Approval Process

BROOKLYN, NY—The New York City Council has voted to approve the Sunset Park Library Redevelopment Project unanimously, Brooklyn Public Library, Fifth Avenue Committee and the de Blasio Administration announced today, finalizing the formal public approval process for the innovative project. The proposal previously received unanimous approval from the City Planning Commission and the City Council's Land Use Committee and Subcommittee on Planning, Dispositions and Concessions. The project was also approved by the Borough President and the members of Community Board 7.

Developed in partnership with the Fifth Avenue Committee, a nonprofit with nearly four decades' experience in affordable housing and comprehensive community development, Brooklyn Public Library's new Sunset Park branch will provide the neighborhood with a modern, state-of-the-art library that is nearly twice the size of the current location. Sunset Park Library is one of Brooklyn's busiest, with attendance and circulation that rank in the top 10 of BPL's 60 branches.

"Thanks to the support of the City Council and the residents of Sunset Park, we will soon begin construction of a library that will offer the robust and diverse programming, large multilingual collection and comfortable, inspiring environment that our patrons and staff deserve," said Brooklyn Public Library President and CEO Linda E. Johnson. "We look forward to designing and building the new Sunset Park Library with input from the community."

"Yesterday's vote on the Sunset Park Library project represents a major victory for the values we cherish – both creating new affordable housing and improving public libraries that are so central to our communities," said Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen. "By bringing 49 affordable apartments online and funding the expansion and upgrade of the library, this development will serve the neighborhood for decades to come."

"By combining affordable housing with improvements to public resources like the Sunset Park Library, we are serving local residents and the community for generations to come," said Department of Housing, Preservation and Development Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. "Yesterday's vote is an important milestone in making way for 49 new affordable apartments and a much-enhanced and expanded space for the library so it can continue to serve as a vital hub for the neighborhood."

"Fifth Avenue Committee is grateful for the overwhelming support this project has received and that FAC and BPL will be able to move forward to bring a 21st century public library and 100% truly and deeply affordable housing to the Sunset Park community. This project is a model in how to ensure that the community can achieve the maximum benefits possible as part of redeveloping public land for public good. We look forward to continuing to work with the community as this project moves forward towards construction," said Michelle de la Uz, Fifth Avenue Committee Executive Director.

"For the past two years, Sunset Park stakeholders and I have held public meetings and hearings on how to rebuild our aging library. A call for an expanded and modern library that meets local needs such as affordable housing and community space was at the center of this process. Together, we've worked to ensure that our residents' recommendations were heard. Yesterday, the New York City Council voted unanimously in approval of a project that includes legal requirements for 100% affordable housing and a permanently protected community library. I want to thank the Brooklyn Public Library and Fifth Avenue Committee for crafting a project that will serve Sunset Park residents for generations to come," said Council Member Carlos Menchaca.

At 12,200 square feet, only 7,465 of which are accessible to the public, the current branch is too small to meet the needs of this growing community. Built in the 1970s, it is poorly laid out for modern use. The proposed new library will be 20,755 square feet, with 18,200 square feet expected to be accessible to the public. It will be outfitted for the modern era, with the collections, technology and flexible space needed to accommodate many uses and serve a large, diverse patronship.

The expansion of Sunset Park Library and the development of deeply affordable housing is especially timely given the growth of the neighborhood. A 2017 study by the New York City Comptroller's office identified a 34% increase in Sunset Park's population between 1990 and 2014, double the citywide growth rate. The median rent in the neighborhood has grown at a rate (63%) that far outpaces the growth in median income (25%).

The project will create 100% affordable housing atop the new library branch, with anticipated financing from the New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development. Forty-nine affordable units will be available for incomes spanning 30% to 80% of Area Median Income (AMI). The majority of the units are reserved for incomes at or below 50% of AMI, and most apartments will rent for $500 to $1,000 per month. A minimum of 50% of the apartments will be reserved for Community Board 7 residents, 10% for city employees and 10% for the physically disabled. Nine units will be reserved for survivors of domestic violence. As a locally-based nonprofit developer whose mission is to advance economic and social justice, FAC is committed to permanent affordability for all of the apartments. Thirty-five percent of the apartments will be permanently affordable through City Regulatory Agreements that will be recorded with the property.

The Fifth Avenue Committee will construct the eight-story, mixed-use building, including the library's core and shell, at no cost to Brooklyn Public Library. BPL will fit out the new library for approximately $10 million, using a portion of the proceeds from the redevelopment of its Brooklyn Heights branch. The city will own the library in perpetuity, as it does the current branch.

Interim library service will be provided throughout the construction process at 4201 Fourth Avenue, at 42nd Street.

Before the mayor stalked away this morning without answering any questions that concern the public whose support he is seeking for his "mansion tax," he did say "Everything else you want to talk about you can get answers to through the press office."

So regarding the criminal behavior to which de Blasio donor Jona Rechnitz pleaded guilty to: Rechnitz bundled more than $40,000 for the mayor in October 2013, gave $50,000 to Campaign for One New York in January 2014 and wrote a check for $102,000 to the New York State Democratic Senate Committee in October 2014 as part of the mayor's failed effort to swing the Senate to Democrat control. In the criminal information unsealed yesterday, Rechnitz specifically admitted that he "and others known and unknown provided financial and personal benefits and political contributions to public officials, including law enforcement officials, in exchange for official action as requested by Rechnitz and others." Couple of questions:

- *Please describe any interactions between the mayor and/or his representatives and Rechnitz regarding the bundling of $40,000 for the mayor's 2013 election campaign.
- *Please describe any interactions between the mayor and/or his representatives and Rechnitz regarding donating $50,000 to the mayor's Campaign for One New York.
- * Please describe any interactions between the mayor and/or his representatives and Rechnitz regarding donating $102,000 to his failed Senate flip campaign.

- *Please describe any result of these communications between the mayor and/or his representatives and Rechnitz regarding any "official action" sought by Rechnitz and/or his associates.
- *What is the mayor's response the Rechnitz's plea?

Story is for tomorrow's paper and I'm copying Levitan. Thanks.

Hey, Greg. This is from me:

The conduct described in the plea has nothing to do with the Mayor or his administration. No amount of sensationalized, misleading reporting will change the fact that two independent prosecutors confirmed that the Mayor and our administration acted within the law.

Thanks.

Subject: This morning's "press conference"

Before the mayor stalked away this morning without answering any questions that concern the public whose support he is seeking for his "mansion tax," he did say "Everything else you want to talk about you can get answers to through the press office."

So regarding the criminal behavior to which de Blasio donor Jona Rechnitz pleaded guilty to:

Rechnitz bundled more than $40,000 for the mayor in October 2013, gave $50,000 to Campaign for One New York in January 2014 and wrote a check for $102,000 to the New York State Democratic Senate Committee in October 2014 as part of the mayor's failed effort to swing the Senate to Democrat control. In the criminal information unsealed yesterday, Rechnitz specifically admitted that he "and others known and unknown provided financial and personal benefits and political contributions to public officials, including law enforcement officials, in exchange for official action as requested by Rechnitz and others." Couple of questions:

- *Please describe any interactions between the mayor and/or his representatives and Rechnitz regarding the bundling of $40,000 for the mayor's 2013 election campaign.
- *Please describe any interactions between the mayor and/or his representatives and Rechnitz regarding donating $50,000 to the mayor's Campaign for One New York.

- *Please describe any communications between the mayor and/or his representatives and Rechnitz regarding any "official action" sought by Rechnitz and/or his associates.
- *Please describe any result of these communications between the mayor and/or his representatives and Rechnitz regarding any "official action" sought by Rechnitz and/or his associates.
- *What is the mayor's response the Rechnitz's plea?

Also please note HRA and other government entities related to AccessNYC mentioned wanting a quote in the release.

I believe I already shared those contacts I had spoken with about this but happy to resend if needed.

Also just to clarify- the short cut for Aunt Bertha and AccessNYC will be available on the tablet for the same amount of time. It will be tablet creative that links to both of them. Once that "launch" is over Aunt Bertha will remain on the tablet and AccessNYC will continue to be accessible through 311.

best,

Ruth

Hi Kate, we can add some Access language to the release -- there will be a short cut on the tablet to its new mobile friendly site for a few days, starting the day we launch Aunt Bertha, and then as usual it will be accessible via the 311 app on the tablet. Will update our last release draft to include that.

Hi Isaac,

We have a request from a Chelsea Now reporter, Dusica Sue Malesevic, for a read-along with a street outreach team in Chelsea. She's interested in learning more about homeless street outreach and putting a human face on the issue in her local community. Her previous articles about homelessness have also been relatively positive.

The program staff at Breaking Ground's S2H program said that they'd be willing to take part and that ideally they'd want to set this up for the last week of April.

Is this a request that we're able to accommodate?

ANNOUNCE SWEEPING LEGISLATION TO CURB SMOKING, TOBACCO USAGE

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

DE BLASIO ADMINISTRATION, CITY COUNCIL MEMBERS AND ELECTED OFFICIALS ANNOUNCE SWEEPING LEGISLATION TO CURB SMOKING, TOBACCO USAGE

Proposals will reduce number of smokers in NYC by 160,000

Mayor Bill de Blasio today announced a series of legislative proposals to reduce the number of smokers in New York City by 160,000 over the next three years. While smoking rates in New York City have declined from 21.5 percent in 2002 to 14.3 percent in 2015, the city still has more than 900,000 smokers, including 15,000 youth. There are also 174,000 adults and 42,000 adolescents using e-cigarettes. These new proposals will decrease smoking rates to a historically low rate of 12 percent.

The five bills will put New York City at the forefront of smoking and tobacco control nationally by: (1) raising the minimum prices for all tobacco products, including cigarettes, and imposing a new 10% local tax on other tobacco products; (2) reducing through attrition the number of tobacco retailers citywide; (3) creating a retail license for e-cigarettes, and capping the number of e-cigarette retailers; (4) requiring all residential buildings to create a smoking policy and disclosing it to both current and prospective tenants; (5) and banning the sale of tobacco products at pharmacies.

The legislation was introduced by Council Members Corey Johnson, Brad Lander, Fernando Cabrera and Ritchie Torres, and the bills will be heard by the Health Committee on April 27, 2017.

“When it comes to New Yorker’s health, big tobacco is public enemy #1. These companies have used the same playbook for decades, and we can no longer sit by while the next generation becomes addicted,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “Today, we are taking a stand against these companies to not only reduce smoking and tobacco usage in New York City, but also save lives.”

"Tobacco continues to kill too many of our loved ones - especially those who suffer from anxiety and other mental illnesses," said First Lady Chirlane McCray. "Today, we're saying enough is enough and taking a preventive step towards protecting New Yorkers so they can thrive."

"These bills take on smoking and tobacco in a way that will both save lives and let people vote with their feet," said Dr. Herminia Palacio, Deputy Mayor for Health and Human Services. "By giving New Yorkers healthier options - from where they shop to the buildings they live in - we will bring all of our City's resources to bear so that we will all live longer and healthier lives."

"As a former smoker, I know how hard it is to quit," said Health Commissioner Dr. Mary T. Bassett. "These bills will make less it likely that New Yorkers will start smoking and easier for New Yorkers who smoke to quit, helping thousands of people lead longer, healthier lives. I'm proud that New York City will once again be at the forefront of tobacco control in the country."

"Easy access to tobacco retailers makes it hard for smokers to quit and has contributed to the recent rise of NYC youth using cigars and smokeless tobacco," said Department of Consumer Affairs Commissioner Lorelei Salas. "By giving DCA the ability to license e-cigarettes and limit the number of retailers selling tobacco products, we can better enforce existing laws that help keep tobacco products out of the hands of minors and improve the health of all New Yorkers."

Department of Finance Commissioner Jacques Jiha said, "DOF and the NYC Sheriff's office are pleased to build upon the strong partnerships we have with DOHMH and DCA to combat the harmful effects of tobacco use on New Yorkers. We will continue to use every tool that we have to achieve this goal."

Tobacco continues to be a leading contributor to preventable, premature death in New York City, killing an estimated 12,000 people annually. Despite an overall decline on smoking rates among young people, youth have increasingly used a range of other tobacco products. When combined, youth cigar, smokeless and hookah use exceed cigarette use. Nearly 9 out of 10 smokers first tried smoking before age 18. In the city, adolescent use of e-cigarettes is more than double the current smoking rate, 15.9% compared with 5.8%. This package of proposals will help all New Yorkers live healthier and longer lives by:

Advancing Public Health through Higher Minimum Prices on Tobacco

This bill (Int. 1544, Johnson) raises the minimum price of cigarettes and little cigars to $13 a pack from $10.50 and sets a first-ever price floor and tax for other tobacco products, such as cigars, smokeless tobacco, loose tobacco and tobacco-containing shisha. Increasing the cigarette price floor to $13 is projected to lead to a 6.4 percent decline in adult cigarette smoking, decreasing adult prevalence from 14.3 percent to 13.9 percent. The bill also imposes a tax of 10 percent on other tobacco products for the first time, which is expected to generate revenue of $1 million annually dedicated for public housing.

Limiting Tobacco Retail Licenses

This bill (Int. 1547, Lander) will reduce the number of stores that can sell tobacco products by capping the tobacco retail dealer licenses in each community district at 50 percent of the current number of licenses. No new tobacco retail dealer licenses will be issued in a community district until its total decreases through attrition below the cap. No current tobacco retail dealers will lose their license as a result of this proposal.

New York City has high tobacco retail density, with just over 8,200 licensed cigarette retailers citywide, averaging 30 dealers per square mile. Easy access to tobacco retailers makes it harder for smokers to quit. Moreover, youth who frequent retail stores every week have double the odds of trying smoking. Based on estimates from the Departments of Health and Consumer Affairs, ten years after implementation, this bill could achieve up to a 40 percent reduction in the number of tobacco licenses. Using community districts to reduce licenses will decrease density and promote health in neighborhoods citywide.

The bill also updates the New York City retail license for selling cigarettes to encompass all types of tobacco. These changes will improve enforcement of existing laws, including the minimum legal sale age of 21 for tobacco.

Creating a Retail License for E-Cigarettes

This bill (Int. 1532, Cabrera) creates a separate license for the retail sale of e-cigarettes and caps the number of these licenses. E-cigarette use has increased dramatically since e-cigarettes were introduced in U.S. markets less than 10 years ago. In 2015, 15.9 percent of New York City high school students were e-cigarette users.

E-cigarette retailers may apply for the new license during an open enrollment period; qualified applicants will demonstrate they were already selling e-cigarettes at the time the bill is voted into law, allowing retailers that currently sell e-cigarettes to continue operating. After the open enrollment period for e-cigarette licenses expires, no new licenses will be issued.

Smoking Disclosure Policy

This bill (which will be introduced by council member Torres on April 25) requires owners of residential buildings to create a policy on smoking and disclose it to both current and prospective residents. All residential buildings with three or more units will be covered, including rentals, condominiums and cooperatives. Buildings will not be required to adopt complete no-smoking policies.

Disclosure of a building's policy on smoking will be required annually and if a building changes its policy at any time. If an owner fails to disclose the policy, he/she may face a $100 civil penalty. Tenants would not be fined for smoking in non-smoking areas of buildings.

Disclosing a building's smoking policy will help tenants to make an informed decision about whether or not they want to live in a building. This information may be especially important for parents with young children and for others, such as older adults, who may spend more time at home and consequently have higher exposures to secondhand smoke.

Pharmacy Ban

This bill (Intro 1131-A, Lander) prohibit pharmacies, or retail stores that contain pharmacies, from selling tobacco products, including cigarettes. There are over 550 pharmacies in New York City licensed to sell tobacco products. Pharmacies are places of health and should not sell deadly consumer products.

These proposals build upon the de Blasio Administration's current effort to curb tobacco usage and smoking. The Health Department has spent $14 million in the last three fiscal years on public awareness campaigns that support cessation efforts and provide nicotine replacement therapy (NRT) through the NYS Smokers' Quitline. In 2016 alone, the Department of Consumer Affairs (DCA) issued more than 5,270 violations to ensure that current tobacco laws are being followed, and that tobacco and nicotine are not being sold to youth. While most licensees are in compliance, DCA revoked 434 licenses and suspended 271 licenses in 2016.

“Here in New York, we still lose far too many people each year to smoking related illness,” said Council Member Corey Johnson, Chair of the Committee on Health. “We’ve made progress on bringing smoking rates down, but now is the time to move these efforts into overdrive. Too many kids and non-smokers are still being subjected to harmful second-hand smoke, and cigarettes can be purchased on virtually every corner. We need policies that reflect the extreme danger that smoking poses to the public. I'm proud to join with Mayor de Blasio and my colleagues in the Council to advance meaningful legislation that will help New Yorkers live healthier, longer, smoke-free lives."

Council Member Ritchie Torres, Chair of Committee on Public Housing, stated: "By making clear what a building's smoking policy is potential tenants and current residents can be better informed about their living conditions, environment and health impact. Residents deserve to live in clean, smoke-free buildings, if they wish, and a disclosure policy can bring transparency that'll help residents make informed decisions," said Council Member Ritchie Torres of the Bronx.

"My bill, Intro 1532, requiring licensing of e-cigarette retail dealers, is a major step to limit the use of e-cigarettes, which are dangerous nicotine delivery systems that can lead to nicotine and potentially drug addiction," stated Council Member Fernando Cabrera. "Local governments are restricting access to e-cigarettes as the dangers of 'vaping' are more widely recognized. In the midst of an opioid addiction crisis, we must take leadership now to prevent more addiction. This is an important first step in protecting the health and safety of New Yorkers."

"While we've made good progress toward reducing smoking in NYC, there's still work to do," said Council Member Brad Lander. "These bills will put NYC at the forefront of smoking and tobacco control efforts across the country by implementing what we know works best: price increases and limiting access in order to prevent New Yorkers from picking up that first cigarette. I want to thank the Mayor de Blasio and Commissioner Bassett for their leadership on this critical public health issue."

Council Member Costa Constantinides said, "This legislative package to reduce smoking will bring great benefits to New Yorkers' public health. These proposals including raising minimum prices, banning tobacco sale at pharmacies, and reducing the number of tobacco retailers will be a role model for others in the nation to follow. Our city is working to prevent addiction and improve health. Thank you to Mayor de Blasio as well as my colleagues Council Members Johnson, Lander, Cabrera, and Torres for their leadership on this important public health issue."

Council Member Karen Koslowitz stated "As a former smoker, for many years, I fully understand the difficulties of stopping, and how healthy fully stopping is. I fully support this."

"Vape stores are proliferating throughout our city, especially near our schools where children continue to be the targets for early nicotine addiction. Parents complain every day about vape stores in front of their children's schools," said Council Member Ben Kallos. "Thank you Mayor de Blasio for your leadership in protecting our city and its children from nicotine addiction, and protecting our public health."

"This package of bills is an incredible step forward towards curbing the number of smokers in New York City," said Council Member Mark Levine. "It is imperative that we continue to take measures such as these that will improve public health and the environment around us, and I applaud Mayor de Blasio for his leadership in making New York a healthier, more livable city."

"I'm proud that our City is taking a major step in protecting current and future generations from the dangers of tobacco and e-cigarette use. These policies will ensure that residents have the basic human right to breathe clean air, which every New Yorker deserves. I want to thank Mayor de Blasio and my colleagues in the City Council on supporting this package of tobacco bills that protect our health, our children and our world," says Council Member Donovan Richards.

"Smoking, e-cigarettes, and tobacco products kill and sicken millions of Americans every year. I am incredibly proud that our city is taking a bold step to save lives by standing up to Big Tobacco and imposing stricter regulations on their dangerous products. I commend my Council Colleagues on this important legislative package and thank Mayor de Blasio, DCA Commissioner Lorelei Salas, and DOHMH Commissioner Dr. Mary Bassett for their commitment to protecting the health and safety of all of those live and work in our great City," said Council Member Vanessa Gibson.

"I applaud the Administration for taking a stand against a massive industry that has led to thousands of premature deaths across this city and country, and has targeted particularly low-income neighborhoods and communities of more color, " said Council Member Jumaane D. Williams, Deputy Leader. "These bills will go a long way in curbing smoking by limiting access to tobacco products and raising minimum sale prices. If we can do more to keep smoking products out of the hands of people to save lives, we must absolutely do so. This move will also reduce health care costs, and improve the quality of life for countless people."

"My stepfather died of lung cancer at 60 years old after a lifetime of smoking since his teen years, so I know firsthand how serious this issue is," said Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. "For far too long, the tobacco industry has had free rein to employ shady tactics that put profits over the health and well-being of our people. Spending over $1 million an hour on marketing in the United States, the tobacco industry uses especially heinous and deceptive marketing to target and influence our children in an attempt to sway another generation into the addictive habit of smoking. With these new policies that reduce the availability of tobacco products, we fight back, improve health outcomes, and lead the nation."

"New York City is and should remain a leader in helping smokers quit and preventing our youth from picking up the dangerous habit. We are working to take major steps in this effort at the NYC Council and I applaud Mayor de Blasio for his support. It is no secret these products are marketed to our children, and we must do all we can to prevent this," said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez.

"Smoking kills. We have an obligation to create a City that is safe for all New Yorkers, and that means ensuring a City that is free from deadly and dangerous tobacco and second-hand smoke," stated Public Advocate Tish James. New York City has made great strides in reducing smoking rates and minimizing smoking in public places; this new legislative package will go even further in making our City healthier and safer for everyone."

"The tobacco industry has shortened too many lives, and it's the job of government to act prudently to reduce and control smoking and related health risks," said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. "Reducing access to cigarettes, requiring residential buildings to adopt and disclose smoking policies, and creating licensing requirements and regulations for e-cigarette retailers are smart steps whose time has come."

State Senator Brad Hoylman said: "New York City's efforts to regulate tobacco have been one of the public health success stories of the last decade. Mayor de Blasio's new legislation represents a bold new step in the effort to build a healthier city and keep kids from picking up the habit. I'm proud to join the administration in announcing this new package and encourage my colleagues in the City Council top pass these important reforms."

"New York has made tremendous progress to encourage healthy tobacco-free communities, but we must do more," said Assembly Member Dan Quart. "The use of tobacco products is the number one cause of preventable deaths in our country, disproportionately affecting some of our most vulnerable neighborhoods and populations. This package of legislation will address the oversaturation of tobacco accessibility, make New York a healthier place for our families and ultimately save lives."

"After working for years to protect New Yorkers against the scourge of tobacco and the dangers associated with electronic cigarettes, I am pleased to have a partner in the City and look forward to partnering on important measures to reduce smoking rates citywide and protect the public health," said Assembly Member Linda B. Rosenthal.

Got it. Our team agrees, so I've asked them how long that "some time" would be and what date we expect to start bringing clients off streets.

Reporter seems focused on next week—does she have any flexibility there or is it Monday/Tuesday or bust?

This is a great opportunity I don't think we should miss, so if she's stuck on Mon/Tues, I think we should work with teams to figure out how to best move forward with telling this story.

Thanks!

Isaac

Feedback from Breaking Ground below - I can reply to the reporter and say we can circle back when it's fully up and running? Let me know what you think.

It seems advantageous to hold this off for some time, if possible. Furniture is just being delivered there this week, so buying some time for the offices to be set up and the full Queens outreach team to move there would be ideal. That would provide a much better backdrop for cameras.

Hi Jeff,

I hope this email finds you a well. I can't believe it's been almost 8 months since our original story. <http://www.ny1.com/nyc/all-boroughs/news/2016/09/14/proposal-for-ozone-park-homeless-facility-met-with-opposition-.html>

I see that the transitional drop in facility in ozone park queens is now open. I was wondering if we could do a follow up story about the center.

Perhaps take a tour of the place and hopefully talk to one of the clients.

Since there was so much opposition to this center before it opened - I want to revise with some of the people from my original story ... basically to show the fears were unwarranted. I am looking at doing this story either Monday or Tuesday of next week. Is that possible ?

Sounds like you guys have a lot of great items. I am working probably tomorrow on getting the ticket values updated on the square account so they will all be in and ready and I did hear 1 question about the password.

We will have a binder at the desk that walks volunteers how to download the app and log in with the username and password for it.

Can't wait to meet you all in New York and see all the great items you will have.

Also Malliotakis said she got a briefing from ICE on their NYC enforcement (??). Has City Hall?

On background from an ICE official:

Here are the arrests by area of responsibility for January 20 to March 13 for 2014-2017, and it's broken down by criminal and non-criminal.

Please note: Removal figures can fluctuate by month based on a number of factors, so a few months' removal statistics should not be used to determine any long-term trend.

Rosa,

I hope this is what you are looking for.

On background from an ICE official:
Here are the arrests by area of responsibility for January 20 to March 13 for 2014-2017, and it's broken down by criminal and non-criminal.

Please note: Removal figures can fluctuate by month based on a number of factors, so a few months' removal statistics should not be used to determine any long-term trend.

- 1) The Police Foundation is running $1M worth of ads, set to air shortly. The ads are coming amid an active mayoral campaign and can be seen as benefiting the mayor. Any comment about that?
- 2) Given the mayor's outspokenness about Citizens United and independent expenditures and big money influencing politics, any comment about a large ad buy like this, related to city services, coming from an organization whose donors are not publicly disclosed in full?
- 3) Would the campaign prefer these ads appear at a different time?

How New York City is solving the puzzle of out-of-work youth

With teen employment among the nation's lowest, city enacts plan to provide opportunity

By Gabrielle Fialkoff

May 17, 2017

Crain's New York

Most successful adults can vouch for the importance of early work experience in setting them on a path toward stable, rewarding careers. Whether they run a few hours after-school or two months in the summer, jobs teach responsibility, interpersonal skills, problem-solving and how to manage money. Even better, early work can help young people explore career interests and connect with adults who provide mentorship and support.

Unfortunately, both nationally and in New York City, too few young people have access to work opportunities.

In 2000, 55% of American teens had a paying job at some point during the year; by 2011, that number was down to 28%. And among the 100 largest U.S. cities, New York ranked 95th in work rate for people age 16 to 19 and 97th among those 20 to 24. Of particular concern is that a youths' likelihood of employment falls along with family income—meaning that those who could most benefit from work are the least likely to have it.

In the spring of 2015, my office launched the NYC Center for Youth Employment to deliver more and better work experiences for young New Yorkers. It aims to solve two problems that came up again and again in conversations with key stakeholders: too few employers at the table, and a fractured set of public youth employment programs that did not amount to a structured system.

The stakes of early work are high for both youth and employers. Research has shown that early exposure to work improves school attendance, the likelihood of steady employment and earning power through an individual's 20s and 30s. At the other extreme, it's estimated that the lifetime cost of each "disconnected youth"—individuals 16 to 24 years old who are neither in school nor working—is as much as $1 million in lost tax revenues and added social spending. When Mayor Bill de Blasio took office in 2014, New York City was home to 172,000 such young adults, representing a potential $172 billion drag on our economy.

An ineffective youth workforce system hurts businesses, too. Nationally, one in three American companies report having job openings for which they can't find qualified workers. At the same time, only 10% of companies report having recruitment outcomes that meet their diversity goals. Closer to home, New York City employers traditionally have found the city's programs difficult to navigate and overly bureaucratic. But any firm that has brought talented young people onboard knows how much they contribute in energy, new skills, and fresh thinking—as I can personally attest from many years as a business owner and employer before I entered city government.

The Center for Youth Employment has worked to expand opportunities for work, render programs more business-friendly and connect programs into a greater whole. In partnership with city agencies, employers, philanthropy and nonprofits, we have helped grow overall capacity across all youth workforce programs from an estimated 62,000 experiences to more than 84,000.

In keeping with the center's dual focus, it has prioritized support toward young people who most need access to opportunity. Three-quarters of students in the city's programs qualify for free or reduced-price lunch, and more than one in five live below the poverty line. The second focus of employer engagement has already paid off: The number of organizations hosting high-achieving high school and college students as paid summer interns has grown to more than 600 this year from 87 in 2014.

A new report from the mayor and City Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito calls for continued growth and improvement in New York City's youth workforce programming. It recommended that programs help youth prepare for the workforce by delivering a set of transferable skills that employers value, such as communications, problem-solving and critical thinking. Another crucial recommendation is to connect educational activities to work experiences, showing the relevance of school to future career paths—and taking us a big step closer to establishing a real system.

The value proposition of this effort is clear: When our young people are better prepared to enter the job market, our businesses are better able to thrive—and our city is better prepared to compete in the 21st century economy.

Matthew,

We are of course disappointed but we understand. We would be honored to have you present a Proclamation and present to Kelsey. We certainly will make certain that we capture this moment at the step-and-repeat.

Please give our kind regards to the Mayor!

Thanks,
Andrew

Hi Matthew,

We understand and appreciate the Mayor's support. No need to fill in with another speaker, but thank you for the offer.

Andrew will be able to respond further regarding the photo opp/proclamation with Kelsey.

Thank you and we'll look forward to seeing you!

Hi guys,

Unfortunately, due to scheduling conflicts, the Mayor regrets that he cannot make it to the AIDS Walk morning ceremonies. Let me know if you would like me to ask a Commissioner or Deputy Mayor to speak instead. I will be there to represent the Mayor, regardless. I can bring a Proclamation from the Mayor that declares the day AIDS Walk NYC Day. I know your speaking program is limited, so I wouldn't ask to speak. I could just do a quick photo presentation with Kelsey at the step-and-repeat.

Sorry we couldn't make this happen this year, but know the Mayor is fully behind all that you're doing to end the epidemic.

Best,
Matt

Thank you so much. I'm sure I don't need to tell you, but we're highly focused on the potentially disastrous effects of healthcare repeal on HIV-positive people, and our response as a united AIDS Walk community, standing up and resisting. Having the Mayor on board would really drive that message home!

Today, I had a conversation with Matthew McMorrow, Senior Advisor, Office of NYC Mayor Bill de Blasio. Matthew is working on potentially having the Mayor attend, and hopefully speak at AIDS Walk on Sunday, May 21.

I have copied Matthew on this email so that the two of you can review logistics. Please let me know if I can be of further assistance.

It seems advantageous to hold this off for some time, if possible. Furniture is just being delivered there this week, so buying some time for the offices to be set up and the full Queens outreach team to move there would be ideal. That would provide a much better backdrop for cameras.

I see that the transitional drop in facility in ozone park queens is now open. I was wondering if we could do a follow up story about the center.

Perhaps take a tour of the place and hopefully talk to one of the clients.
Since there was so much opposition to this center before it opened - I want to revise with some of the people from my original story ... basically to show the fears were unwarranted. I am looking at doing this story either Monday or Tuesday of next week. Is that possible ?

Hi Nicole,

That's a great idea. I will follow up with Lisa Marie and staff to see if we can get this emailed to the conference attendees. I'm definitely buying one for myself. Thx.

We spoke to Lisa Marie yesterday about this but I honestly have no confidence that she will follow up. Attached is the flyer for the AMELIA reprints. Is it possible for this to be sent to all attendees to make them aware that 50% of prints sold go to WTS Foundation?

Julia – Can we send this out via email blast to the Greater NY chapter?

Thanks-

Greenland Forest City Partners Celebrates the Opening of 535 Carlton, First 100 Percent Affordable Building Open at Pacific Park Brooklyn

COOKFOX-Designed Property Delivers 298 Modern Apartments to Low, Moderate, and Middle Income New Yorkers

Brooklyn, NY (June 12, 2017)—Greenland Forest City Partners, joined by New York City Deputy Mayor for Housing and Economic Development Alicia Glen, held a ribbon-cutting ceremony today to celebrate the opening of 535 Carlton, its 100 percent affordable residential property at Pacific Park Brooklyn. Designed by renowned New York-based architectural firm COOKFOX Architects, 535 Carlton is the second residential building to open in the new neighborhood. There are currently 479 units of below market-rate housing at Pacific Park and another 303 will become available this summer. When complete, Pacific Park will include 2,250 units of below market-rate housing set aside for low, moderate, and middle income households. All of the units will be built using union labor.

"535 Carlton is another exemplary thread to the growing fabric of Pacific Park Brooklyn," said Hu Gang, President and CEO of Greenland USA. "Adding a high-quality affordable building to this neighborhood is a testament to our mission of growing vibrant communities and economies, and we are extremely proud that this building offers new opportunities and possibilities to the citizens of New York."

"The opening of 535 Carlton further underscores Greenland Forest City Partners' commitment to affordable housing and ensures Pacific Park is a neighborhood inclusive of all New Yorkers," said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. "This extraordinary building proves that affordable housing can be practical and beautiful. The building combines first-rate design and top-tier amenities including a fitness center, residents' lounge, and a vibrant community garden. It's not only high-end luxury buildings that provide these types of amenities and services any longer."

535 Carlton sits between Pacific and Dean Streets in the heart of Pacific Park, Brooklyn's newest neighborhood bounded by Fort Greene, Boerum Hill, Clinton Hill, Prospect Heights and Park Slope. This 18-story, 298-unit building comes with a first-rate amenity package, including a fitness center, yoga studio, game room, children's playroom and outdoor terrace.

535 Carlton joins 461 Dean, a 50 percent affordable residential property designed by SHoP Architects, which opened last November. This summer, 38 Sixth Avenue, another 100 percent affordable residential property also designed by SHoP, will open at Pacific Park.

The 298 units at the building have been set aside for residents earning between 30 percent and 165 percent of the area median income (AMI). Preference was given to residents currently living in Brooklyn community boards 2, 3, 6 and 8, as well as municipal employees and those with vision, hearing or mobility disabilities.

Greenland Forest City Partners enlisted architectural visionaries COOKFOX to ensure the 100 percent affordable building was seamlessly integrated into the Brooklyn streetscape and adjacent green space. A pioneer of sustainable design, COOKFOX took inspiration from nature and incorporated natural materials, textures and colors throughout 535 Carlton. The architecture also emphasizes the building's relationship to the adjacent Pacific Park, designed by celebrated landscape architect Thomas Balsley; one will be able to see the green space from the street through the lobby, creating a strong visual connection with the neighborhood.

"We approached the design of 535 Carlton with two critical goals: to create the healthiest possible homes and respect the surrounding historic neighborhood," said Rick Cook, a founder and partner at COOKFOX. "We are proud to have designed affordable homes for a diverse community that connects residents with nature, daylight and views to green space, rooftop gardening, and natural materials and finishes."

COOKFOX also prioritized connecting 535 Carlton residents with nature and natural cycles. Daylit elevator vestibules look onto the park on each floor, and the residential entry is designed to provide open vistas through the lobby, creating a visual connection from the street to the park. Landscaped space distributed throughout the rooftop, terraces and setbacks provide residents with expansive vistas of Prospect Park, New York Harbor and surrounding Brooklyn neighborhoods. Urban agriculture and residential gardens are also fundamental to the building's design, offering opportunities for residents to foster a close community among neighbors and nature.

Residents are moving into 535 Carlton at a critical moment in Pacific Park Brooklyn's evolution. By the end of 2017, four of the neighborhood's 14 residential buildings will be open and home to thousands of new residents, including 38 Sixth Avenue, the neighborhood's second 100-percent affordable building. When complete, Pacific Park Brooklyn will include six million square feet of residential space across 6,430 units of housing, of which 2,250 will be affordable rental units. It will also contain 247,000 square feet of retail space, up to 1.6 million square feet of office space, and eight acres of publicly-accessible open space.

Hi Wiley,

Long time, no speak—hope you're doing well!

Attached is a draft press release for the 535 Carlton ribbon-cutting this Monday. Please let me know ASAP if this looks right to you. Also, we'd like to insert a quote from DM Glen into the release. Let us know when that has been drafted.

Thanks again, and looking forward to speaking with you soon. Please don't hesitate to call me at 646-200-5309 should you have questions.

Best,
Danielle

Could we have Crystal start the speaking program and intro Alicia? That'd be powerful! The write-up you send about her would be very strong if simply read aloud.

Few things:

Eric Enderlin from HDC will attend, but not speak. Just Alicia for the City.

Who will intro her?

Can that same person introduce Greenland?

I'll probably pull Alicia after seeing the resident's apartment, before amenities.

Gotcha, then she can stay for amenities.
Can we get Crystal in the speaking program somewhere? Her story sounds so compelling.
I can have Alicia hand off to Greenland if it keeps things moving easier for everyone.

We have a new run of show, MaryAnne introduces her. She can't hand it to next person?

Crystal -

Thank you for your time this morning! I loved meeting you and seeing your home. We are really excited about the press conference on monday.

Attached is the program. There are lots of details in there but the main point is your will speak last in the program and be introduced by my boss MaryAnne (who you will love). There will be a podium and microphone on the terrace where you will speak.

Please meet us in the lobby monday at 10am. And let us know if your son will join us.

We put together a few points for you below. Please let us know if they work for you!

Ashley

Remarks For Crystal Patterson

535 Carlton Ribbon Cutting- Monday, June 12, 2017

- Thank you MaryAnne, and good morning everyone.
- My name is Crystal Patterson and I moved into 535 Carlton in April.
- It would be impossible to overstate the gratitude I have for our new home; it has truly changed my family's life. And as a 4th generation Brooklynite, I am so thankful to have permanent roots in the city where I was born and raised.

- I have had quite a journey getting here today. I hadn't had a permanent home in [insert # of years]. I lost my job as a legal administrator when the recession hit, and couldn't afford housing anywhere in the city.
- We were scrappy and made it work: my son stayed in Williamsburg to be close to his middle school, and I would do short-term rentals in places like Long Island City and Weehawken, New Jersey. Sometimes, I'd rent a place on the Jersey Shore or Lake George, where the cost of living was far cheaper. Everything I owned had to fit into a suitcase that I could bring from place to place. All told, I lived in 15 different cities in two years.
- My mom was an amazing source of support and helped me through all these changes.
- But I had faith that one day, we would have a place to call our own. I applied for over 60 affordable housing lotteries throughout the five boroughs. And then, one day, I got an email that changed everything for us: we got an apartment at 535 Carlton.
- The joy we felt was indescribable. We would be a united family again. My mom, Trey and I went to the lease signing at the building, and were so excited to have a two-bedroom apartment, beautiful amenity spaces and amazing views of Manhattan. My mom and I made plans to toast our new home on the roof, right here where we're all standing, once we moved in.
-  He is going to high school this fall just down the street. He loves having friends from school over, and I love having a safe and beautiful home to make my own.
- Thank you to everyone here who helped make the dream of having a place of our own a reality, and for prioritizing affordable housing at Pacific Park Brooklyn.

Crystal -

Thank you for your time this morning! I loved meeting you and seeing your home. We are really excited about the press conference on Monday.

Attached is the program. There are lots of details in there but the main point is you will speak last in the program and be introduced by my boss MaryAnne (who you will love). There will be a podium and microphone on the terrace where you will speak.

Please meet us in the lobby Monday at 10am. And let us know if your son will join us.

We put together a few points for you below. Please let us know if they work for you!

Remarks For Crystal Patterson

535 Carlton Ribbon Cutting- Monday, June 12, 2017

- Thank you MaryAnne, and good morning everyone.
- My name is Crystal Patterson and I moved into 535 Carlton in April.
- It would be impossible to overstate the gratitude I have for our new home; it has truly changed my family's life. And as a 4th generation Brooklynite, I am so thankful to have permanent roots in the city where I was born and raised.
- I have had quite a journey getting here today. I hadn't had a permanent home in [insert # of years]. I lost my job as a legal administrator when the recession hit, and couldn't afford housing anywhere in the city.
- We were scrappy and made it work: my son stayed in Williamsburg to be close to his middle school, and I would do short-term rentals in places like Long Island City and Weehawken, New Jersey. Sometimes, I'd rent a place on the Jersey Shore or Lake George, where the cost of living was far cheaper. Everything I owned had to fit into a suitcase that I could bring from place to place. All told, I lived in 15 different cities in two years.

- My mom was an amazing source of support and helped me through all these changes.
- But I had faith that one day, we would have a place to call our own. I applied for over 60 affordable housing lotteries throughout the five boroughs. And then, one day, I got an email that changed everything for us: we got an apartment at 535 Carlton.
- The joy we felt was indescribable. We would be a united family again. My mom, Trey and I went to the lease signing at the building, and were so excited to have a two-bedroom apartment, beautiful amenity spaces and amazing views of Manhattan. My mom and I made plans to toast our new home on the roof, right here where we're all standing, once we moved in.
- [REDACTED] He is going to high school this fall just down the street. He loves having friends from school over, and I love having a safe and beautiful home to make my own.
- [REDACTED]
- Thank you to everyone here who helped make the dream of having a place of our own a reality, and for prioritizing affordable housing at Pacific Park Brooklyn.

UPDATED release attached. We want to issue this from City Hall, given Mayor's longstanding support of the project.

Couple things:

- 1.) HPD, can you fact check? Draft rls said 30% of AMI was the lowest but our record show 40% is as low as it goes.
- 2.) FCRC, can we get a quote from Crystal (maybe clip from testimony) for under Mayor
- 3.) Yume/FCRC—will leave it to you to gather elected quotes and divide labor there.
- 4.) Are Bertha, Jonathan or Ismene submitting quotes?

DE BLASIO ADMINISTRATION CUTS RIBBON ON 300 AFFORDABLE APARTMENTS AT PACIFIC PARK BROOKLYN

First 100 percent affordable building at Pacific Park will serve families earning as little as $25,000 up to those in the middle class

Brooklyn, NY (June 12, 2017)— New York City Deputy Mayor for Housing and Economic Development Alicia Glen, local officials, Greenland Forest City Partners and community groups today held a ribbon-cutting ceremony today to mark the opening of 535 Carlton. All 298 units at the building are affordable, and have been set aside for residents earning between 40 percent and 165 percent of the area median income. Preference was given to residents currently living in Brooklyn community boards 2, 3, 6 and 8, as well as municipal employees and those with vision, hearing or mobility disabilities.

“The people who built this borough have just as much right to the ‘New Brooklyn’ as any newcomer. This is their Brooklyn, too. Today, families are moving into new affordable homes that give them the security they need to raise a family, to grow old, and to remain an active part of this neighborhood. This is why we fought so hard to deliver the affordable housing this community was promised,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

The new building was part of a commitment Greenland Forest City Partners made with Governor Cuomo, Mayor de Blasio and local community groups in June 2014 to build 2,250 affordable apartments by 2025. There are currently 479 units of below market-rate housing at Pacific Park and another 303 will become available this summer. The project contributes to Mayor de Blasio’s affordable housing plan, which has so far financed more than 63,000 affordable homes in three years.

The New York City Housing Development Corporation is providing a $73 million tax-exempt first mortgage for the building, funded by Citi Community Capital. HDC is also contributing $11.75 million in subsidy financing. Pacific Park Brooklyn is a state-regulated development established by a General Project Plan adopted by the Empire State Development (ESD) Board of Directors in 2006 and governed by ESD. Pacific Park Brooklyn will include 6,430 units of housing, more than one-third of which will be affordable.

“When we broke ground on 535 Carlton in 2014 we made a commitment with Mayor de Blasio, Governor Cuomo, and local community groups to bring affordable housing to New Yorkers, and today we have delivered on that promise,” said Hu Gang, President and CEO of Greenland USA. “Adding a high-quality affordable building to Pacific Park Brooklyn is a testament to Greenland Forest City Partners’ mission of growing vibrant communities and economies inclusive of everyone, and we are extremely proud of this first step in increasing the affordable housing stock in New York City.”

“The opening of 535 Carlton further underscores Greenland Forest City Partners’ commitment to affordable housing and ensures Pacific Park is a neighborhood inclusive of all New Yorkers,” said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. “This extraordinary

building proves that affordable housing can be practical and beautiful. The building combines first-rate design and top-tier amenities including a fitness center, residents' lounge, and a vibrant community garden. It's not only high-end luxury buildings that provide these types of amenities and services any longer."

Tenants in the 18-story, 298-unit building comes with a first-rate amenity package, including a fitness center, yoga studio, game room, children's playroom and outdoor terrace.

Greenland Forest City Partners enlisted architectural firm COOKFOX to ensure the 100 percent affordable building was seamlessly integrated into the Brooklyn streetscape and adjacent green space. Daylit elevator vestibules look onto the park on each floor, and the residential entry is designed to provide open vistas through the lobby, creating a visual connection from the street to the park. Landscaped space distributed throughout the rooftop, terraces and setbacks provide residents with expansive vistas of Prospect Park, New York Harbor and surrounding Brooklyn neighborhoods. Urban agriculture and residential gardens are also fundamental to the building's design, offering opportunities for residents to foster a close community among neighbors and nature.

"We approached the design of 535 Carlton with two critical goals: to create the healthiest possible homes and respect the surrounding historic neighborhood," said Rick Cook, a founder and partner at COOKFOX. "We are proud to have designed affordable homes for a diverse community that connects residents with nature, daylight and views to green space, rooftop gardening, and natural materials and finishes."

When complete, Pacific Park Brooklyn will include six million square feet of residential space across 6,430 units of housing, of which 2,250 will be affordable rental units. It will also contain 247,000 square feet of retail space, up to 1.6 million square feet of office space, and eight acres of publicly-accessible open space.

Crystal -

Thank you for your time this morning! I loved meeting you and seeing your home. We are really excited about the press conference on monday.

Attached is the program. There are lots of details in there but the main point is your will speak last in the program and be introduced by my boss MaryAnne (who you will love). There will be a podium and microphone on the terrace where you will speak.

Please meet us in the lobby monday at 10am. And let us know if your son will join us.

We put together a few points for you below. Please let us know if they work for you!

Remarks For Crystal Patterson
535 Carlton Ribbon Cutting- Monday, June 12, 2017

- Thank you MaryAnne, and good morning everyone.
- My name is Crystal Patterson and I moved into 535 Carlton in April.
- It would be impossible to overstate the gratitude I have for our new home; it has truly changed my family's life. And as a 4th generation Brooklynite, I am so thankful to have permanent roots in the city where I was born and raised.
- I have had quite a journey getting here today. I hadn't had a permanent home in [insert # of years]. I lost my job as a legal administrator when the recession hit, and couldn't afford housing anywhere in the city.
- We were scrappy and made it work: my son stayed in Williamsburg to be close to his middle school, and I would do short-term rentals in places like Long Island City and Weehawken, New Jersey. Sometimes, I'd rent a place on the Jersey Shore or Lake George, where the cost of living was far cheaper. Everything I owned had to fit into a suitcase that I could bring from place to place. All told, I lived in 15 different cities in two years.
- My mom was an amazing source of support and helped me through all these changes.
- But I had faith that one day, we would have a place to call our own. I applied for over 60 affordable housing lotteries throughout the five boroughs. And then, one day, I got an email that changed everything for us: we got an apartment at 535 Carlton.
- The joy we felt was indescribable. We would be a united family again. My mom, Trey and I went to the lease signing at the building, and were so excited to have a two-bedroom apartment, beautiful amenity spaces and amazing views of Manhattan. My mom and I made plans to toast our new home on the roof, right here where we're all standing, once we moved in.

- [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] He is going to high school this fall just down the street. He loves having friends from school over, and I love having a safe and beautiful home to make my own.

- [REDACTED]

- Thank you to everyone here who helped make the dream of having a place of our own a reality, and for prioritizing affordable housing at Pacific Park Brooklyn.

Wiley, I confirmed that its 40% AMI. Also, just want to note that the AMIs reflect the marketing date, so if you look at the corresponding incomes, $25,000 isn't for a family, that's for an individual-- so I'd just adjust that subhead to say New Yorkers not families, as in the attached.

Couple things:

- 1.) HPD, can you fact check? Draft rls said 30% of AMI was the lowest but our record show 40% is as low as it goes.
- 2.) FCRC, can we get a quote from Crystal (maybe clip from testimony) for under Mayor
- 3.) Yume/FCRC—will leave it to you to gather elected quotes and divide labor there.
- 4.) Are Bertha, Jonathan or Ismene submitting quotes?

DE BLASIO ADMINISTRATION CUTS RIBBON ON 300 AFFORDABLE APARTMENTS AT PACIFIC PARK BROOKLYN

First 100 percent affordable building at Pacific Park ~~will serve~~ New Yorkers families earning as little as $25,000 up to those in the middle class

Brooklyn, NY (June 12, 2017)— New York City Deputy Mayor for Housing and Economic Development Alicia Glen, local officials, Greenland Forest City Partners and community groups today held a ribbon-cutting ceremony today to mark the opening of 535 Carlton. All 298 units at the building are affordable, and have been set aside for residents earning between 40 percent and 165 percent of the area median income. Preference was given to residents currently living in Brooklyn community boards 2, 3, 6 and 8, as well as municipal employees and those with vision, hearing or mobility disabilities.

“The people who built this borough have just as much right to the ‘New Brooklyn’ as any newcomer. This is their Brooklyn, too. Today, families are moving into new affordable homes that give them the security they need to raise a family, to grow old, and to remain an active part of this neighborhood. This is why we fought so hard to deliver the affordable housing this community was promised,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

The new building was part of a commitment Greenland Forest City Partners made with Governor Cuomo, Mayor de Blasio and local community groups in June 2014 to build 2,250 affordable apartments by 2025. There are currently 479 units of below market-rate housing at Pacific Park and another 303 will become available this summer. The project contributes to Mayor de Blasio’s affordable housing plan, which has so far financed more than 63,000 affordable homes in three years.

The New York City Housing Development Corporation is providing a $73 million tax-exempt first mortgage for the building, funded by Citi Community Capital. HDC is also contributing $11.75 million in subsidy financing. Pacific Park Brooklyn is a state-regulated development established by a General Project Plan adopted by the Empire State Development (ESD) Board of Directors in 2006 and governed by ESD. Pacific Park Brooklyn will include 6,430 units of housing, more than one-third of which will be affordable.

“When we broke ground on 535 Carlton in 2014 we made a commitment with Mayor de Blasio, Governor Cuomo, and local community groups to bring affordable housing to New Yorkers, and today we have delivered on that promise,” said Hu Gang, President and CEO of Greenland USA. “Adding a high-quality affordable building to Pacific Park Brooklyn is a testament to Greenland Forest City Partners’ mission of growing vibrant communities and economies inclusive of everyone, and we are extremely proud of this first step in increasing the affordable housing stock in New York City.”

“The opening of 535 Carlton further underscores Greenland Forest City Partners’ commitment to affordable housing and ensures Pacific Park is a neighborhood inclusive of all New Yorkers,” said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. “This extraordinary

building proves that affordable housing can be practical and beautiful. The building combines first-rate design and top-tier amenities including a fitness center, residents' lounge, and a vibrant community garden. It's not only high-end luxury buildings that provide these types of amenities and services any longer."

Tenants in the 18-story, 298-unit building comes with a first-rate amenity package, including a fitness center, yoga studio, game room, children's playroom and outdoor terrace.

Greenland Forest City Partners enlisted architectural firm COOKFOX to ensure the 100 percent affordable building was seamlessly integrated into the Brooklyn streetscape and adjacent green space. Daylit elevator vestibules look onto the park on each floor, and the residential entry is designed to provide open vistas through the lobby, creating a visual connection from the street to the park. Landscaped space distributed throughout the rooftop, terraces and setbacks provide residents with expansive vistas of Prospect Park, New York Harbor and surrounding Brooklyn neighborhoods. Urban agriculture and residential gardens are also fundamental to the building's design, offering opportunities for residents to foster a close community among neighbors and nature.

"We approached the design of 535 Carlton with two critical goals: to create the healthiest possible homes and respect the surrounding historic neighborhood," said Rick Cook, a founder and partner at COOKFOX. "We are proud to have designed affordable homes for a diverse community that connects residents with nature, daylight and views to green space, rooftop gardening, and natural materials and finishes."

When complete, Pacific Park Brooklyn will include six million square feet of residential space across 6,430 units of housing, of which 2,250 will be affordable rental units. It will also contain 247,000 square feet of retail space, up to 1.6 million square feet of office space, and eight acres of publicly-accessible open space.

First 100 percent affordable building serves New Yorkers earning as little as $25,000 and up to moderate and middle income New Yorkers

NEW YORK— Mayor Bill de Blasio, Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, local officials, Greenland Forest City Partners and community groups announced the opening of 535 Carlton. The building's 298 homes are all affordable, and reserved for New Yorkers with household incomes of between $25,000 and $173,000 a year. Preference goes to municipal employees and those with vision, hearing or mobility disabilities.

"Our administration is delivering on the affordable housing this community was promised. For hundreds of families right here in Brooklyn, these homes represent economic security, the chance to save a little every month and get ahead, and the assurance that they'll be able to afford to stay in the borough they love," said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

The new building is part of a commitment Greenland Forest City Partners made with Governor Cuomo, Mayor de Blasio and local community groups in June 2014 to build 2,250 affordable apartments by 2025. There are currently 479 units of below market-rate housing at Pacific Park and another 303 will become available this summer. The project contributes to Mayor de Blasio's affordable housing plan, which has financed more than 63,000 affordable homes in three years.

When complete, Pacific Park Brooklyn will include six million square feet of residential space across 6,430 units of housing, of which 2,250 will be affordable rental units. It will also contain 247,000 square feet of retail space, up to 1.6 million square feet of office space, and eight acres of publicly-accessible open space.

The New York City Housing Development Corporation is providing a $73 million tax-exempt first mortgage for the building, funded by Citi Community Capital. HDC is also contributing $11.75 million in subsidy financing. Pacific Park Brooklyn is a state-regulated development established by a General Project Plan adopted by the Empire State Development (ESD) Board of Directors in 2006 and governed by ESD. Pacific Park Brooklyn will include 6,430 units of housing, more than one-third of which will be affordable.

"When we broke ground on 535 Carlton in 2014 we made a commitment with Mayor de Blasio, Governor Cuomo, and local community groups to bring affordable housing to New Yorkers, and today we have delivered on that promise," said Hu Gang, President and CEO of Greenland USA. "Adding a high-quality affordable building to Pacific Park Brooklyn is a testament to Greenland Forest City Partners' mission of growing vibrant communities and economies inclusive of everyone, and we are extremely proud of this first step in increasing the affordable housing stock in New York City."

"The opening of 535 Carlton further underscores Greenland Forest City Partners' commitment to affordable housing and ensures Pacific Park is a neighborhood inclusive of all New Yorkers," said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. "This extraordinary building proves that affordable housing can be practical and beautiful. The building combines first-rate design and top-tier amenities including a fitness center, residents' lounge, and a vibrant community garden. It's not only high-end luxury buildings that provide these types of amenities and services any longer."

Tenants in the 18-story, 298-unit building comes with a first-rate amenity package, including a fitness center, yoga studio, game room, children's playroom and outdoor terrace. Greenland Forest City Partners enlisted architectural firm COOKFOX to ensure the building was seamlessly integrated into the streetscape and adjacent green space, and that means Daylit elevator vestibules look onto the park from each floor, and the open view lobby offers visual connection from the Carlson Avenue to Pacific Park. Landscaped rooftop, terraces and setbacks also provide residents with expansive vistas of the park, New York Harbor.

“We approached the design of 535 Carlton with two critical goals: to create the healthiest possible homes and respect the surrounding historic neighborhood,” said Rick Cook, a founder and partner at COOKFOX. “We are proud to have designed affordable homes for a diverse community that connects residents with nature, daylight and views to green space, rooftop gardening, and natural materials and finishes.”

UPDATED release attached. We want to issue this from City Hall, given Mayor's longstanding support of the project.

Couple things:

- 1.) HPD, can you fact check? Draft rls said 30% of AMI was the lowest but our record show 40% is as low as it goes.
- 2.) FCRC, can we get a quote from Crystal (maybe clip from testimony) for under Mayor
- 3.) Yume/FCRC—will leave it to you to gather elected quotes and divide labor there.
- 4.) Are Bertha, Jonathan or Ismene submitting quotes?

Crystal -

Thank you for your time this morning! I loved meeting you and seeing your home. We are really excited about the press conference on monday.

Attached is the program. There are lots of details in there but the main point is your will speak last in the program and be introduced by my boss MaryAnne (who you will love). There will be a podium and microphone on the terrace where you will speak.

Please meet us in the lobby monday at 10am. And let us know if your son will join us.

We put together a few points for you below. Please let us know if they work for you!

DRAFT

Remarks For Crystal Patterson

535 Carlton Ribbon Cutting- Monday, June 12, 2017

- Thank you MaryAnne, and good morning everyone.
- My name is Crystal Patterson and I moved into 535 Carlton in April.
- It would be impossible to overstate the gratitude I have for our new home; it has truly changed my family's life. And as a 4th generation Brooklynite, I am so thankful to have permanent roots in the city where I was born and raised.
- I have had quite a journey getting here today. I hadn't had a permanent home in [insert # of years]. I lost my job as a legal administrator when the recession hit, and couldn't afford housing anywhere in the city.
- We were scrappy and made it work: my son stayed in Williamsburg to be close to his middle school, and I would do short-term rentals in places like Long Island City and Weehawken, New Jersey. Sometimes, I'd rent a place on the Jersey Shore or Lake George, where the cost of living was far cheaper. Everything I owned had to fit into a suitcase that I could bring from place to place. All told, I lived in 15 different cities in two years.
- My mom was an amazing source of support and helped me through all these changes.
- But I had faith that one day, we would have a place to call our own. I applied for over 60 affordable housing lotteries throughout the five boroughs. And then, one day, I got an email that changed everything for us: we got an apartment at 535 Carlton.
- The joy we felt was indescribable. We would be a united family again. My mom, Trey and I went to the lease signing at the building, and were so excited to have a two-bedroom apartment, beautiful amenity spaces and amazing views of Manhattan. My mom and I made plans to toast our new home on the roof, right here where we're all standing, once we moved in.

- [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] He is going to high school this fall just down the street. He loves having friends from school over, and I love having a safe and beautiful home to make my own.
- [REDACTED]
- Thank you to everyone here who helped make the dream of having a place of our own a reality, and for prioritizing affordable housing at Pacific Park Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE, June 12, 2017
CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

MAYOR DE BLASIO ANNOUNCES OPENING OF NEARLY 300 AFFORDABLE APARTMENTS AT PACIFIC PARK IN BROOKLYN

First 100 percent affordable building serves New Yorkers earning as little as $25,000, and up to moderate and middle income earners

NEW YORK— Mayor Bill de Blasio, Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, local officials, Greenland Forest City Partners and community groups announced the opening of 535 Carlton. The building’s 298 homes are all affordable, and reserved for New Yorkers with household incomes of between $25,000 and $173,000 a year. Preference goes to municipal employees and those with vision, hearing or mobility disabilities.

“Our administration is delivering on the affordable housing this community was promised. For hundreds of families right here in Brooklyn, these homes represent economic security, the chance to save a little every month and get ahead, and the assurance that they’ll be able to afford to stay in the borough they love,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

The new building is part of a commitment Greenland Forest City Partners made with Governor Cuomo, Mayor de Blasio and local community groups in June 2014 to build 2,250 affordable apartments by 2025. There are currently 479 units of below market-rate housing at Pacific Park and another 303 will become available this summer. The project contributes to Mayor de Blasio’s affordable housing plan, which has financed more than 63,000 affordable homes in three years.

When complete, Pacific Park Brooklyn will include six million square feet of residential space across 6,430 units of housing, of which 2,250 will be affordable rental units. It will also contain 247,000 square feet of retail space, up to 1.6 million square feet of office space, and eight acres of publicly-accessible open space.

“With nearly 300 units that are affordable to low, moderate, and middle income households, 535 Carlton will provide an anchor of affordability in the heart of Prospect Heights, Brooklyn,” said Housing Development Corporation President Eric Enderlin. “The Pacific Park development also brings significant open park space, retail, and additional transit-infrastructure that will benefit the larger community. Thanks to all our partners, including the Mayor’s Office, the NYS Empire State Development Corporation, Greenland Forest City Partners, COOKFOX, and so many others, including various Brooklyn community stakeholders, for contributing to the success of 535 Carlton and the ongoing development at the Pacific Park project.”

“Through Housing New York, the City set out to secure as much affordability as possible in all our neighborhoods. When complete, the Pacific Park development will provide more than 2,200 affordable housing opportunities near this vital hub of transportation in thriving downtown Brooklyn,” said Housing Preservation and Development Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “The opening of 535 Carlton Avenue, the first hundred-percent affordable housing development underway at Pacific Park, represents housing security for 298 families, and the promise of more to come. Congratulations to HDC, the NYS Empire State Development Corporation, Greenland Forest City Partners, COOKFOX, and all our partners for working with us to ensure our neighborhoods are inclusive places of opportunity for New Yorkers at a wide range of incomes.”

The New York City Housing Development Corporation is providing a $73 million tax-exempt first mortgage for the building, funded by Citi Community Capital. HDC is also contributing $11.75 million in subsidy financing. Pacific Park Brooklyn is a state-regulated development established by a General Project Plan adopted by the Empire State Development (ESD) Board of Directors in 2006 and governed by ESD. Pacific Park Brooklyn will include 6,430 units of housing, more than one-third of which will be affordable.

“Having an affordable place to call home and sleep at night is a prerequisite for experiencing the American Dream. The addition of hundreds of critically-needed affordable housing units at 535 Carlton is welcome news for Brooklyn,” Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams said.

“535 Carlton is an example of public-private partnerships working together to provide beautiful and affordable housing for an array of individuals and families at a wide range of income levels,” said Ismene Speliotis, Executive Director of MHANY Management Inc. “We applaud the city and Greenland Forest City Partners for providing beautiful and affordable homes at the crossroads of Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues; creating an inclusive place to live and creating a replicable model for other developers.”

“When we broke ground on 535 Carlton in 2014 we made a commitment with Mayor de Blasio, Governor Cuomo, and local community groups to bring affordable housing to New Yorkers, and today we have delivered on that promise,” said Hu Gang, President and CEO of Greenland USA. “Adding a high-quality affordable building to Pacific Park Brooklyn is a testament to Greenland Forest City Partners’ mission of growing vibrant communities and economies inclusive of everyone, and we are extremely proud of this first step in increasing the affordable housing stock in New York City.”

“The opening of 535 Carlton further underscores Greenland Forest City Partners’ commitment to affordable housing and ensures Pacific Park is a neighborhood inclusive of all New Yorkers,” said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. “This extraordinary building proves that affordable housing can be practical and beautiful. The building combines first-rate design and top-tier amenities including a fitness center, residents’ lounge, and a vibrant community garden. UPDATED release attached. We want to issue this from City Hall, given Mayor's longstanding support of the project.

Couple things:

- 1.) HPD, can you fact check? Draft rls said 30% of AMI was the lowest but our record show 40% is as low as it goes.
- 2.) FCRC, can we get a quote from Crystal (maybe clip from testimony) for under Mayor
- 3.) Yume/FCRC—will leave it to you to gather elected quotes and divide labor there.
- 4.) Are Bertha, Jonathan or Ismene submitting quotes?

Crystal -

Thank you for your time this morning! I loved meeting you and seeing your home. We are really excited about the press conference on monday.

Attached is the program. There are lots of details in there but the main point is your will speak last in the program and be introduced by my boss MaryAnne (who you will love). There will be a podium and microphone on the terrace where you will speak.

Please meet us in the lobby monday at 10am. And let us know if your son will join us.

We put together a few points for you below. Please let us know if they work for you!

DRAFT
Remarks For Crystal Patterson
535 Carlton Ribbon Cutting- Monday, June 12, 2017

- Thank you MaryAnne, and good morning everyone.
- My name is Crystal Patterson and I moved into 535 Carlton in April.
- It would be impossible to overstate the gratitude I have for our new home; it has truly changed my family's life. And as a 4th generation Brooklynite, I am so thankful to have permanent roots in the city where I was born and raised.
- I have had quite a journey getting here today. I hadn't had a permanent home in [insert # of years]. I lost my job as a legal administrator when the recession hit, and couldn't afford housing anywhere in the city.
- We were scrappy and made it work: my son stayed in Williamsburg to be close to his middle school, and I would do short-term rentals in places like Long Island City and Weehawken, New Jersey. Sometimes, I'd rent a place on the Jersey Shore or Lake George, where the cost of living was far cheaper. Everything I owned had to fit into a suitcase that I could bring from place to place. All told, I lived in 15 different cities in two years.
- My mom was an amazing source of support and helped me through all these changes.
- But I had faith that one day, we would have a place to call our own. I applied for over 60 affordable housing lotteries throughout the five boroughs. And then, one day, I got an email that changed everything for us: we got an apartment at 535 Carlton.
- The joy we felt was indescribable. We would be a united family again. My mom, Trey and I went to the lease signing at the building, and were so excited to have a two-bedroom apartment, beautiful amenity spaces and amazing views of Manhattan. My mom and I made plans to toast our new home on the roof, right here where we're all standing, once we moved in.
- [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] He is going to high school this fall just down the street. He loves having friends from school over, and I love having a safe and beautiful home to make my own.
- [REDACTED]

- Thank you to everyone here who helped make the dream of having a place of our own a reality, and for prioritizing affordable housing at Pacific Park Brooklyn.

MAYOR DE BLASIO ANNOUNCES OPENING OF 300 AFFORDABLE APARTMENTS AT PACIFIC PARK IN BROOKLYN

First 100 percent affordable building serves New Yorkers earning as little as $25,000 and up to moderate and middle income New Yorkers

NEW YORK— Mayor Bill de Blasio, Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, local officials, Greenland Forest City Partners and community groups announced the opening of 535 Carlton. The building’s 298 homes are all affordable, and reserved for New Yorkers with household incomes of between $25,000 and $173,000 a year. Preference goes to municipal employees and those with vision, hearing or mobility disabilities.

“Our administration is delivering on the affordable housing this community was promised. For hundreds of families right here in Brooklyn, these homes represent economic security, the chance to save a little every month and get ahead, and the assurance that they’ll be able to afford to stay in the borough they love,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

The new building is part of a commitment Greenland Forest City Partners made with Governor Cuomo, Mayor de Blasio and local community groups in June 2014 to build 2,250 affordable apartments by 2025. There are currently 479 units of below market-rate housing at Pacific Park and another 303 will become available this summer. The project contributes to Mayor de Blasio’s affordable housing plan, which has financed more than 63,000 affordable homes in three years.

When complete, Pacific Park Brooklyn will include six million square feet of residential space across 6,430 units of housing, of which 2,250 will be affordable rental units. It will also contain 247,000 square feet of retail space, up to 1.6 million square feet of office space, and eight acres of publicly-accessible open space.

For high-resolution images of 535 Carlson, click here.

The New York City Housing Development Corporation is providing a $73 million tax-exempt first mortgage for the building, funded by Citi Community Capital. HDC is also contributing $11.75 million in subsidy financing. Pacific Park Brooklyn is a state-regulated development established by a General Project Plan adopted by the Empire State Development (ESD) Board of Directors in 2006 and governed by ESD. Pacific Park Brooklyn will include 6,430 units of housing, more than one-third of which will be affordable.

“When we broke ground on 535 Carlton in 2014 we made a commitment with Mayor de Blasio, Governor Cuomo, and local community groups to bring affordable housing to New Yorkers, and today we have delivered on that promise,” said Hu Gang, President and CEO of Greenland USA. “Adding a high-quality affordable building to Pacific Park Brooklyn is a testament to Greenland Forest City Partners’ mission of growing vibrant communities and economies inclusive of everyone, and we are extremely proud of this first step in increasing the affordable housing stock in New York City.”

“The opening of 535 Carlton further underscores Greenland Forest City Partners’ commitment to affordable housing and ensures Pacific Park is a neighborhood inclusive of all New Yorkers,” said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. “This extraordinary building proves that affordable housing can be practical and beautiful. The building combines first-rate design and top-tier amenities including a fitness center, residents’ lounge, and a vibrant community garden. It’s not only high-end luxury buildings that provide these types of amenities and services any longer.”

Tenants in the 18-story, 298-unit building comes with a first-rate amenity package, including a fitness center, yoga studio, game room, children’s playroom and outdoor terrace. Greenland Forest City Partners enlisted architectural firm COOKFOX to ensure the building was seamlessly integrated into the streetscape and adjacent green space, and that means Daylit elevator vestibules look onto the park from each floor, and the open view lobby offers visual connection from the Carlson Avenue to Pacific Park. Landscaped rooftop, terraces and setbacks also provide residents with expansive vistas of the park, New York Harbor.

“We approached the design of 535 Carlton with two critical goals: to create the healthiest possible homes and respect the surrounding historic neighborhood,” said Rick Cook, a founder and partner at COOKFOX. “We are proud to have designed affordable homes for a diverse community that connects residents with nature, daylight and views to green space, rooftop gardening, and natural materials and finishes.”

“With nearly 300 units that are affordable to low, moderate, and middle income households, 535 Carlton will provide an anchor of affordability in the heart of Prospect Heights, Brooklyn,” said Housing Development Corporation President Eric Enderlin. “The Pacific Park development also brings significant open park space, retail, and additional transit-infrastructure that will benefit the larger community. Thanks to all our partners, including the Mayor's Office, the NYS Empire State Development Corporation, Greenland Forest City Partners, COOKFOX, and so many others, including various Brooklyn community stakeholders, for contributing to the success of 535 Carlton and the ongoing development at the Pacific Park project.”

“Through Housing New York, the City set out to secure as much affordability as possible in all our neighborhoods. When complete, the Pacific Park development will provide more than 2,200 affordable housing opportunities near this vital hub of transportation in thriving downtown Brooklyn,” said Housing Preservation and Development Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “The opening of 535 Carlton Avenue, the first hundred-percent affordable housing development underway at Pacific Park, represents housing security for 298 families, and the promise of more to come. Congratulations to HDC, the NYS Empire State Development Corporation, Greenland Forest City Partners, COOKFOX, and all our partners for working with us to ensure our neighborhoods are inclusive places of opportunity for New Yorkers at a wide range of incomes.”

The New York City Housing Development Corporation is providing a $73 million tax-exempt first mortgage for the building, funded by Citi Community Capital. HDC is also contributing $11.75 million in subsidy financing. Pacific Park Brooklyn is a state-regulated development established by a General Project Plan adopted by the Empire State Development (ESD) Board of Directors in 2006 and governed by ESD. Pacific Park Brooklyn will include 6,430 units of housing, more than one-third of which will be affordable.

“Having an affordable place to call home and sleep at night is a prerequisite for experiencing the American Dream. The addition of hundreds of critically-needed affordable housing units at 535 Carlton is welcome news for Brooklyn,” Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams said.

“535 Carlton is an example of public-private partnerships working together to provide beautiful and affordable housing for an array of individuals and families at a wide range of income levels,” said Ismene Speliotis, Executive Director of MHANY Management Inc. “We applaud the city and Greenland Forest City Partners for providing beautiful and affordable homes at the crossroads of Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues; creating an inclusive place to live and creating a replicable model for other developers.”

“When we broke ground on 535 Carlton in 2014 we made a commitment with Mayor de Blasio, Governor Cuomo, and local community groups to bring affordable housing to New Yorkers, and today we have delivered on that promise,” said Hu Gang, President and CEO of Greenland USA. “Adding a high-quality affordable building to Pacific Park Brooklyn is a testament to Greenland Forest City Partners’ mission of growing vibrant communities and economies inclusive of everyone, and we are extremely proud of this first step in increasing the affordable housing stock in New York City.”

“The opening of 535 Carlton further underscores Greenland Forest City Partners’ commitment to affordable housing and ensures Pacific Park is a neighborhood inclusive of all New Yorkers,” said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. “This extraordinary building proves that affordable housing can be practical and beautiful. The building combines first-rate design and top-tier amenities including a fitness center, residents’ lounge, and a vibrant community garden. It’s not only high-end luxury buildings that provide these types of amenities and services any longer.”

Tenants in the 18-story, 298-unit building comes with a first-rate amenity package, including a fitness center, yoga studio, game room, children’s playroom and outdoor terrace. Greenland Forest City Partners enlisted architectural firm COOKFOX to ensure the building was seamlessly integrated into the streetscape and adjacent green space, and that means Daylit elevator vestibules look onto the park from each floor, and the open view lobby offers visual connection from the Carlson Avenue to Pacific Park. Landscaped rooftop, terraces and setbacks also provide residents with expansive vistas of the park, New York Harbor.

“We approached the design of 535 Carlton with two critical goals: to create the healthiest possible homes and respect the surrounding historic neighborhood,” said Rick Cook, a founder and partner at COOKFOX. “We are proud to have designed affordable homes for a diverse community that connects residents with nature, daylight and views to green space, rooftop gardening, and natural materials and finishes.”

MAYOR DE BLASIO ANNOUNCES OPENING OF 300 AFFORDABLE APARTMENTS AT PACIFIC PARK IN BROOKLYN

First 100 percent affordable building serves New Yorkers earning as little as $25,000 and up to moderate and middle income New Yorkers

NEW YORK— Mayor Bill de Blasio, Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, local officials, Greenland Forest City Partners and community groups announced the opening of 535 Carlton. The building's 298 homes are all affordable, and reserved for New Yorkers with household incomes of between $25,000 and $173,000 a year. Preference goes to municipal employees and those with vision, hearing or mobility disabilities.

“Our administration is delivering on the affordable housing this community was promised. For hundreds of families right here in Brooklyn, these homes represent economic security, the chance to save a little every month and get ahead, and the assurance that they’ll be able to afford to stay in the borough they love,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

The new building is part of a commitment Greenland Forest City Partners made with Governor Cuomo, Mayor de Blasio and local community groups in June 2014 to build 2,250 affordable apartments by 2025. There are currently 479 units of below market-rate housing at Pacific Park and another 303 will become available this summer. The project contributes to Mayor de Blasio’s affordable housing plan, which has financed more than 63,000 affordable homes in three years.

When complete, Pacific Park Brooklyn will include six million square feet of residential space across 6,430 units of housing, of which 2,250 will be affordable rental units. It will also contain 247,000 square feet of retail space, up to 1.6 million square feet of office space, and eight acres of publicly-accessible open space.

UPDATED release attached. We want to issue this from City Hall, given Mayor's longstanding support of the project.

Couple things:

- 1.) HPD, can you fact check? Draft rls said 30% of AMI was the lowest but our record show 40% is as low as it goes.
- 2.) FCRC, can we get a quote from Crystal (maybe clip from testimony) for under Mayor
- 3.) Yume/FCRC—will leave it to you to gather elected quotes and divide labor there.
- 4.) Are Bertha, Jonathan or Ismene submitting quotes?

Crystal -

Thank you for your time this morning! I loved meeting you and seeing your home. We are really excited about the press conference on Monday.

Attached is the program. There are lots of details in there but the main point is you will speak last in the program and be introduced by my boss MaryAnne (who you will love). There will be a podium and microphone on the terrace where you will speak.

Please meet us in the lobby Monday at 10am. And let us know if your son will join us.

We put together a few points for you below. Please let us know if they work for you!

Remarks For Crystal Patterson

535 Carlton Ribbon Cutting- Monday, June 12, 2017

- Thank you MaryAnne, and good morning everyone.
- My name is Crystal Patterson and I moved into 535 Carlton in April.
- It would be impossible to overstate the gratitude I have for our new home; it has truly changed my family's life. And as a 4th generation Brooklynite, I am so thankful to have permanent roots in the city where I was born and raised.
- I have had quite a journey getting here today. I hadn't had a permanent home in [insert # of years]. I lost my job as a legal administrator when the recession hit, and couldn't afford housing anywhere in the city.
- We were scrappy and made it work: my son stayed in Williamsburg to be close to his middle school, and I would do short-term rentals in places like Long Island City and Weehawken, New Jersey. Sometimes, I'd rent a place on the Jersey Shore or Lake George, where the cost of living was far cheaper. Everything I owned had to fit into a suitcase that I could bring from place to place. All told, I lived in 15 different cities in two years.

- My mom was an amazing source of support and helped me through all these changes.
- But I had faith that one day, we would have a place to call our own. I applied for over 60 affordable housing lotteries throughout the five boroughs. And then, one day, I got an email that changed everything for us: we got an apartment at 535 Carlton.
- The joy we felt was indescribable. We would be a united family again. My mom, Trey and I went to the lease signing at the building, and were so excited to have a two-bedroom apartment, beautiful amenity spaces and amazing views of Manhattan. My mom and I made plans to toast our new home on the roof, right here where we're all standing, once we moved in.
- [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] He is going to high school this fall just down the street. He loves having friends from school over, and I love having a safe and beautiful home to make my own.
- [REDACTED]
- Thank you to everyone here who helped make the dream of having a place of our own a reality, and for prioritizing affordable housing at Pacific Park Brooklyn.

MAYOR DE BLASIO ANNOUNCES OPENING OF 300 AFFORDABLE APARTMENTS AT PACIFIC PARK IN BROOKLYN

First 100 percent affordable building serves New Yorkers earning as little as $25,000 and up to moderate and middle income New Yorkers

opening of 535 Carlton. The building's 298 homes are all affordable, and reserved for New Yorkers with household incomes of between $25,000 and $173,000 a year. Preference goes to municipal employees and those with vision, hearing or mobility disabilities.

“Our administration is delivering on the affordable housing this community was promised. For hundreds of families right here in Brooklyn, these homes represent economic security, the chance to save a little every month and get ahead, and the assurance that they’ll be able to afford to stay in the borough they love,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

The new building is part of a commitment Greenland Forest City Partners made with Governor Cuomo, Mayor de Blasio and local community groups in June 2014 to build 2,250 affordable apartments by 2025. There are currently 479 units of below market-rate housing at Pacific Park and another 303 will become available this summer. The project contributes to Mayor de Blasio’s affordable housing plan, which has financed more than 63,000 affordable homes in three years.

When complete, Pacific Park Brooklyn will include six million square feet of residential space across 6,430 units of housing, of which 2,250 will be affordable rental units. It will also contain 247,000 square feet of retail space, up to 1.6 million square feet of office space, and eight acres of publicly-accessible open space.

The New York City Housing Development Corporation is providing a $73 million tax-exempt first mortgage for the building, funded by Citi Community Capital. HDC is also contributing $11.75 million in subsidy financing. Pacific Park Brooklyn is a state-regulated development established by a General Project Plan adopted by the Empire State Development (ESD) Board of Directors in 2006 and governed by ESD. Pacific Park Brooklyn will include 6,430 units of housing, more than one-third of which will be affordable.

“When we broke ground on 535 Carlton in 2014 we made a commitment with Mayor de Blasio, Governor Cuomo, and local community groups to bring affordable housing to New Yorkers, and today we have delivered on that promise,” said Hu Gang, President and CEO of Greenland USA. “Adding a high-quality affordable building to Pacific Park Brooklyn is a testament to Greenland Forest City Partners’ mission of growing vibrant communities and economies inclusive of everyone, and we are extremely proud of this first step in increasing the affordable housing stock in New York City.”

“The opening of 535 Carlton further underscores Greenland Forest City Partners’ commitment to affordable housing and ensures Pacific Park is a neighborhood inclusive of all New Yorkers,” said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. “This extraordinary building proves that affordable housing can be practical and beautiful. The building combines first-rate design and top-tier amenities including a fitness center, residents’ lounge, and a vibrant community garden. It’s not only high-end luxury buildings that provide these types of amenities and services any longer.”

Tenants in the 18-story, 298-unit building comes with a first-rate amenity package, including a fitness center, yoga studio, game room, children's playroom and outdoor terrace. Greenland Forest City Partners enlisted architectural firm COOKFOX to ensure the building was seamlessly integrated into the streetscape and adjacent green space, and that means Daylit elevator vestibules look onto the park from each floor, and the open view lobby offers visual connection from the Carlson Avenue to Pacific Park. Landscaped rooftop, terraces and setbacks also provide residents with expansive vistas of the park, New York Harbor.

“We approached the design of 535 Carlton with two critical goals: to create the healthiest possible homes and respect the surrounding historic neighborhood,” said Rick Cook, a founder and partner at COOKFOX. “We are proud to have designed affordable homes for a diverse community that connects residents with nature, daylight and views to green space, rooftop gardening, and natural materials and finishes.”

UPDATED release attached. We want to issue this from City Hall, given Mayor's longstanding support of the project.

Couple things:

- 1.) HPD, can you fact check? Draft rls said 30% of AMI was the lowest but our record show 40% is as low as it goes.
- 2.) FCRC, can we get a quote from Crystal (maybe clip from testimony) for under Mayor
- 3.) Yume/FCRC—will leave it to you to gather elected quotes and divide labor there.
- 4.) Are Bertha, Jonathan or Ismene submitting quotes?

Crystal -

Thank you for your time this morning! I loved meeting you and seeing your home. We are really excited about the press conference on Monday.

Attached is the program. There are lots of details in there but the main point is you will speak last in the program and be introduced by my boss MaryAnne (who you will love). There will be a podium and microphone on the terrace where you will speak.

Please meet us in the lobby Monday at 10am. And let us know if your son will join us.

We put together a few points for you below. Please let us know if they work for you!

Remarks For Crystal Patterson

535 Carlton Ribbon Cutting- Monday, June 12, 2017

- Thank you MaryAnne, and good morning everyone.
- My name is Crystal Patterson and I moved into 535 Carlton in April.
- It would be impossible to overstate the gratitude I have for our new home; it has truly changed my family's life. And as a 4th generation Brooklynite, I am so thankful to have permanent roots in the city where I was born and raised.
- I have had quite a journey getting here today. I hadn't had a permanent home in [insert # of years]. I lost my job as a legal administrator when the recession hit, and couldn't afford housing anywhere in the city.
- We were scrappy and made it work: my son stayed in Williamsburg to be close to his middle school, and I would do short-term rentals in places like Long Island City and Weehawken, New Jersey. Sometimes, I'd rent a place on the Jersey Shore or Lake George, where the cost of living was far cheaper. Everything I owned had to fit into a suitcase that I could bring from place to place. All told, I lived in 15 different cities in two years.

- My mom was an amazing source of support and helped me through all these changes.
- But I had faith that one day, we would have a place to call our own. I applied for over 60 affordable housing lotteries throughout the five boroughs. And then, one day, I got an email that changed everything for us: we got an apartment at 535 Carlton.
- The joy we felt was indescribable. We would be a united family again. My mom, Trey and I went to the lease signing at the building, and were so excited to have a two-bedroom apartment, beautiful amenity spaces and amazing views of Manhattan. My mom and I made plans to toast our new home on the roof, right here where we're all standing, once we moved in.

- [REDACTED] He is going to high school this fall just down the street. He loves having friends from school over, and I love having a safe and beautiful home to make my own.

- [REDACTED]

- Thank you to everyone here who helped make the dream of having a place of our own a reality, and for prioritizing affordable housing at Pacific Park Brooklyn.

“With nearly 300 units that are affordable to low, moderate, and middle income households, 535 Carlton will provide an anchor of affordability in the heart of Prospect Heights, Brooklyn,” said Housing Development Corporation President Eric Enderlin. “The Pacific Park development also brings significant open park space, retail, and additional transit-infrastructure that will benefit the larger community. Thanks to all our partners, including the Mayor’s Office, the NYS Empire State Development Corporation, Greenland Forest City Partners, COOKFOX, and so many others, including various Brooklyn community stakeholders, for contributing to the success of 535 Carlton and the ongoing development at the Pacific Park project.”

“Through Housing New York, the City set out to secure as much affordability as possible in all our neighborhoods. When complete, the Pacific Park development will provide more than 2,200 affordable housing opportunities near this vital hub of transportation in thriving downtown Brooklyn,” said Housing Preservation and Development Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “The opening of 535 Carlton Avenue, the first hundred-percent affordable housing development underway at Pacific Park, represents housing security for 298 families, and the promise of more to come. Congratulations to HDC, the NYS Empire State Development Corporation, Greenland Forest City Partners, COOKFOX, and all our partners for working with us to ensure our neighborhoods are inclusive places of opportunity for New Yorkers at a wide range of incomes.”

The New York City Housing Development Corporation is providing a $73 million tax-exempt first mortgage for the building, funded by Citi Community Capital. Pacific Park Brooklyn is a state-regulated development established by a General Project Plan adopted by the Empire State Development (ESD) Board of Directors in 2006 and governed by ESD. Pacific Park Brooklyn will include 6,430 units of housing, more than one-third of which will be affordable.

“Having an affordable place to call home and sleep at night is a prerequisite for experiencing the American Dream. The addition of hundreds of critically-needed affordable housing units at 535 Carlton is welcome news for Brooklyn,” Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams said.

“535 Carlton is an example of public-private partnerships working together to provide beautiful and affordable housing for an array of individuals and families at a wide range of income levels,” said Ismene Speliotis, Executive Director of MHANY Management Inc. “We applaud the city and Greenland Forest City Partners for providing beautiful and affordable homes at the crossroads of Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues; creating an inclusive place to live and creating a replicable model for other developers.”

“When we broke ground on 535 Carlton in 2014 we made a commitment with

UPDATED release attached. We want to issue this from City Hall, given Mayor's longstanding support of the project.

Couple things:

- 1.) HPD, can you fact check? Draft rls said 30% of AMI was the lowest but our record show 40% is as low as it goes.
- 2.) FCRC, can we get a quote from Crystal (maybe clip from testimony) for under Mayor
- 3.) Yume/FCRC—will leave it to you to gather elected quotes and divide labor there.
- 4.) Are Bertha, Jonathan or Ismene submitting quotes?

Crystal -

Thank you for your time this morning! I loved meeting you and seeing your home. We are really excited about the press conference on monday.

Attached is the program. There are lots of details in there but the main point is your will speak last in the program and be introduced by my boss MaryAnne (who you will love). There will be a podium and microphone on the terrace where you will speak.

Please meet us in the lobby monday at 10am. And let us know if your son will join us.

We put together a few points for you below. Please let us know if they work for you!

DRAFT
Remarks For Crystal Patterson
535 Carlton Ribbon Cutting- Monday, June 12, 2017

- Thank you MaryAnne, and good morning everyone.
- My name is Crystal Patterson and I moved into 535 Carlton in April.

- It would be impossible to overstate the gratitude I have for our new home; it has truly changed my family's life. And as a 4th generation Brooklynite, I am so thankful to have permanent roots in the city where I was born and raised.
- I have had quite a journey getting here today. I hadn't had a permanent home in [insert # of years]. I lost my job as a legal administrator when the recession hit, and couldn't afford housing anywhere in the city.
- We were scrappy and made it work: my son stayed in Williamsburg to be close to his middle school, and I would do short-term rentals in places like Long Island City and Weehawken, New Jersey. Sometimes, I'd rent a place on the Jersey Shore or Lake George, where the cost of living was far cheaper. Everything I owned had to fit into a suitcase that I could bring from place to place. All told, I lived in 15 different cities in two years.
- My mom was an amazing source of support and helped me through all these changes.
- But I had faith that one day, we would have a place to call our own. I applied for over 60 affordable housing lotteries throughout the five boroughs. And then, one day, I got an email that changed everything for us: we got an apartment at 535 Carlton.
- The joy we felt was indescribable. We would be a united family again. My mom, Trey and I went to the lease signing at the building, and were so excited to have a two-bedroom apartment, beautiful amenity spaces and amazing views of Manhattan. My mom and I made plans to toast our new home on the roof, right here where we're all standing, once we moved in.

[REDACTED] He is going to high school this fall just down the street. He loves having friends from school over, and I love having a safe and beautiful home to make my own.

- [REDACTED]
- Thank you to everyone here who helped make the dream of having a place of our own a reality, and for prioritizing affordable housing at Pacific Park Brooklyn.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE, June 12, 2017

CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

MAYOR DE BLASIO ANNOUNCES OPENING OF NEARLY 300 AFFORDABLE APARTMENTS AT PACIFIC PARK IN BROOKLYN

First 100 percent affordable building serves New Yorkers earning as little as $25,000, and up to moderate and middle income earners

NEW YORK— Mayor Bill de Blasio, Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, local officials, Greenland Forest City Partners and community groups announced the opening of 535 Carlton. The building's 298 homes are all affordable, and reserved for New Yorkers with household incomes of between $25,000 and $173,000 a year. Preference goes to municipal employees and those with vision, hearing or mobility disabilities.

“Our administration is delivering on the affordable housing this community was promised. For hundreds of families right here in Brooklyn, these homes represent economic security, the chance to save a little every month and get ahead, and the assurance that they’ll be able to afford to stay in the borough they love,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

The new building is part of a commitment Greenland Forest City Partners made with Governor Cuomo, Mayor de Blasio and local community groups in June 2014 to build 2,250 affordable apartments by 2025. There are currently 479 units of below market-rate housing at Pacific Park and another 303 will become available this summer. The project contributes to Mayor de Blasio’s affordable housing plan, which has financed more than 63,000 affordable homes in three years.

When complete, Pacific Park Brooklyn will include six million square feet of residential space across 6,430 units of housing, of which 2,250 will be affordable rental units. It will also contain 247,000 square feet of retail space, up to 1.6 million square feet of office space, and eight acres of publicly-accessible open space.

“With nearly 300 units that are affordable to low, moderate, and middle income households, 535 Carlton will provide an anchor of affordability in the heart of Prospect Heights, Brooklyn,” said Housing Development Corporation President Eric Enderlin. “The Pacific Park development also brings significant open park space, retail, and additional transit-infrastructure that will benefit the larger community. Thanks to all our partners, including the Mayor’s Office, the NYS Empire State Development Corporation, Greenland Forest City Partners, COOKFOX, and so many others, including various Brooklyn community stakeholders, for contributing to the success of 535 Carlton and the ongoing development at the Pacific Park project.”

“Through Housing New York, the City set out to secure as much affordability as possible in all our neighborhoods. When complete, the Pacific Park development will provide more than 2,200 affordable housing opportunities near this vital hub of transportation in thriving downtown Brooklyn,” said Housing Preservation and Development Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “The opening of 535 Carlton Avenue, the first hundred-percent affordable housing development underway at Pacific Park, represents housing security for 298 families, and the promise of more to come. Congratulations to HDC, the NYS Empire State Development Corporation, Greenland Forest City Partners, COOKFOX, and all our partners for working with us to ensure our neighborhoods are inclusive places of opportunity for New Yorkers at a wide range of incomes.”

The New York City Housing Development Corporation is providing a $73 million tax-exempt first mortgage for the building, funded by Citi Community Capital. HDC is also contributing $11.75 million in subsidy financing. Pacific Park Brooklyn is a state-regulated development established by a General Project Plan adopted by the Empire State Development (ESD) Board of Directors in 2006 and governed by ESD. Pacific Park Brooklyn will include 6,430 units of housing, more than one-third of which will be affordable.

“Having an affordable place to call home and sleep at night is a prerequisite for experiencing the American Dream. The addition of hundreds of critically-needed affordable housing units at 535 Carlton is welcome news for Brooklyn,” Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams said.

“535 Carlton is an example of public-private partnerships working together to provide beautiful and affordable housing for an array of individuals and families at a wide range of income levels,” said Ismene Speliotis, Executive Director of MHANY Management Inc. “We applaud the city and Greenland Forest City Partners for providing beautiful and affordable homes at the crossroads of Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues; creating an inclusive place to live and creating a replicable model for other developers.”

“When we broke ground on 535 Carlton in 2014 we made a commitment with Mayor de Blasio, Governor Cuomo, and local community groups to bring affordable housing to New Yorkers, and today we have delivered on that promise,” said Hu Gang, President and CEO of Greenland USA. “Adding a high-quality affordable building to Pacific Park Brooklyn is a testament to Greenland Forest City Partners’ mission of growing vibrant communities and economies inclusive of everyone, and we are extremely proud of this first step in increasing the affordable housing stock in New York City.”

“The opening of 535 Carlton further underscores Greenland Forest City Partners’ commitment to affordable housing and ensures Pacific Park is a neighborhood inclusive of all New Yorkers,” said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York.

“This extraordinary building proves that affordable housing can be practical and beautiful. The building combines first-rate design and top-tier amenities including a fitness center, residents’ lounge, and a vibrant community garden. It’s not only high-end luxury buildings that provide these types of amenities and services any longer.”

Tenants in the 18-story, 298-unit building comes with a first-rate amenity package, including a fitness center, yoga studio, game room, children’s playroom and outdoor terrace. Greenland Forest City Partners enlisted architectural firm COOKFOX to ensure the building was seamlessly integrated into the streetscape and adjacent green space, and that means Daylit elevator vestibules look onto the park from each floor, and the open view lobby offers visual connection from the Carlson Avenue to Pacific Park. Landscaped rooftop, terraces and setbacks also provide residents with expansive vistas of the park, New York Harbor.

“We approached the design of 535 Carlton with two critical goals: to create the healthiest possible homes and respect the surrounding historic neighborhood,” said Rick Cook, a founder and partner at COOKFOX. “We are proud to have designed affordable homes for a diverse community that connects residents with nature, daylight and views to green space, rooftop gardening, and natural materials and finishes.”

Crystal -

Thank you for your time this morning! I loved meeting you and seeing your home. We are really excited about the press conference on monday.

Attached is the program. There are lots of details in there but the main point is your will speak last in the program and be introduced by my boss MaryAnne (who you will love). There will be a podium and microphone on the terrace where you will speak.

Please meet us in the lobby monday at 10am. And let us know if your son will join us.

We put together a few points for you below. Please let us know if they work for you!

Remarks For Crystal Patterson

535 Carlton Ribbon Cutting- Monday, June 12, 2017

- Thank you MaryAnne, and good morning everyone.
- My name is Crystal Patterson and I moved into 535 Carlton in April.
- It would be impossible to overstate the gratitude I have for our new home; it has truly changed my family's life. And as a 4th generation Brooklynite, I am so thankful to have permanent roots in the city where I was born and raised.
- I have had quite a journey getting here today. I hadn't had a permanent home in [insert # of years]. I lost my job as a legal administrator when the recession hit, and couldn't afford housing anywhere in the city.
- We were scrappy and made it work: my son stayed in Williamsburg to be close to his middle school, and I would do short-term rentals in places like Long Island City and Weehawken, New Jersey. Sometimes, I'd rent a place on the Jersey Shore or Lake George, where the cost of living was far cheaper. Everything I owned had to fit into a suitcase that I could bring from place to place. All told, I lived in 15 different cities in two years.
- My mom was an amazing source of support and helped me through all these changes.
- But I had faith that one day, we would have a place to call our own. I applied for over 60 affordable housing lotteries throughout the five boroughs. And then, one day, I got an email that changed everything for us: we got an apartment at 535 Carlton.
- The joy we felt was indescribable. We would be a united family again. My mom, Trey and I went to the lease signing at the building, and were so excited to have a two-bedroom apartment, beautiful amenity spaces and amazing views of Manhattan. My mom and I made plans to toast our new home on the roof, right here where we're all standing, once we moved in.

- [REDACTED] He is going to high school this fall just down the street. He loves having friends from school over, and I love having a safe and beautiful home to make my own.

- [REDACTED]

- Thank you to everyone here who helped make the dream of having a place of our own a reality, and for prioritizing affordable housing at Pacific Park Brooklyn.

"It's a pleasure to be here today to celebrate the opening of 535 Carlton in Pacific Park, a development that shows how we can work together to meet New York City's affordable housing demand," said Gary LaBarbera, president of the 100,000 member Building & Construction Trades Council of Greater New York. "Not only is 535 Carlton adding to the affordable housing pool but was built with union labor and creating good middle-class jobs with benefits and high safety standards, something that is very important to this city's future. Nearly 300 New Yorkers will have a place to live thanks to the efforts of union workers, Forest City New York, Greenland USA, COOKFOX Architects and the New York City Deputy Mayor for Housing and Economic Development Alicia Glen."

MAYOR DE BLASIO ANNOUNCES OPENING OF NEARLY 300 AFFORDABLE APARTMENTS AT PACIFIC PARK IN BROOKLYN

First 100 percent affordable building serves New Yorkers earning as little as $20,100, and up to moderate and middle income earners

<image002.jpg>

NEW YORK— Mayor Bill de Blasio, Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, local officials, Greenland Forest City Partners and community groups announced the opening of 535 Carlton. The building’s 298 homes are all affordable, and reserved for New Yorkers with household incomes of between $20,100 for an individual and $149,000 for a family of three. Preference goes to municipal employees and those with vision, hearing or mobility disabilities.

“Our administration is delivering on the affordable housing this community was promised. For hundreds of families right here in Brooklyn, these homes represent economic security, the chance to save a little every month and get ahead, and the assurance that they’ll be able to afford to stay in the borough they love,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

“Having an affordable place to call home and sleep at night is a prerequisite for experiencing the American Dream. The addition of hundreds of critically-needed affordable housing units at 535 Carlton is welcome news for Brooklyn,” Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams said.

“Thank you to everyone who helped me make the dream of having a place of our own a reality and for prioritizing affordable housing at Pacific Park Brooklyn,” said Crystal Patterson, a resident of 535 Carlton.

The new building is part of a commitment Greenland Forest City Partners made with Governor Cuomo, Mayor de Blasio and local community groups in June 2014 to build 2,250 affordable apartments by 2025. There are currently 479 units of below market-rate housing at Pacific Park and another 303 will become available this summer. The project contributes to Mayor de Blasio’s affordable housing plan, which has financed more than 63,000 affordable homes in three years.

When complete, Pacific Park Brooklyn will include six million square feet of residential space across 6,430 units of housing, of which 2,250 will be affordable rental units. It will also contain 247,000 square feet of retail space, up to 1.6 million square feet of office space, and eight acres of publicly-accessible open space.

“With nearly 300 units that are affordable to low, moderate, and middle income households, 535 Carlton will provide an anchor of affordability in the heart of Prospect Heights, Brooklyn,” said Housing Development Corporation President Eric Enderlin. “The Pacific Park development also brings significant open park space, retail, and additional transit-infrastructure that will benefit the larger community. Thanks to all our partners, including the Mayor’s Office, the NYS Empire State Development Corporation, Greenland Forest City Partners, COOKFOX, and so many others, including various Brooklyn community stakeholders, for contributing to the success of 535 Carlton and the ongoing development at the Pacific Park project.”

“Through Housing New York, the City set out to secure as much affordability as possible in all our neighborhoods. When complete, the Pacific Park development will provide more than 2,200 affordable housing opportunities near this vital hub of transportation in thriving downtown Brooklyn,” said Housing Preservation and Development Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “The opening of 535 Carlton Avenue, the first hundred-percent affordable housing development underway at Pacific Park, represents housing security for 298 families, and the promise of more to come. Congratulations to HDC, the NYS Empire State Development Corporation, Greenland Forest City Partners, COOKFOX, and all our partners for working with us to ensure our neighborhoods are inclusive places of opportunity for New Yorkers at a wide range of incomes.”

The New York City Housing Development Corporation is providing a $73 million tax-exempt first mortgage for the building, funded by Citi Community Capital. HDC is also contributing $11.75 million in subsidy financing. Pacific Park Brooklyn is a state-regulated development established by a General Project Plan adopted by the Empire State Development (ESD) Board of Directors in 2006 and governed by ESD. Pacific Park Brooklyn will include 6,430 units of housing, more than one-third of which will be affordable.

“The opening of 535 Carlton will provide desperately-needed units of affordable housing for hundreds of people in Prospect Heights, a neighborhood where rent prices continue to increase beyond the means of families who have lived there for generations. I hope to continue working with Mayor de Blasio and Deputy Mayor Glen to build ‘One New York,’ where all families have an opportunity to thrive,” Congresswoman Yvette D. Clarke said.

“It’s a pleasure to be here today to celebrate the opening of 535 Carlton in Pacific Park, a development that shows how we can work together to meet New York City’s affordable housing demand,” said Gary LaBarbera, president of the 100,000 member Building & Construction Trades Council of Greater New York. “Not only is 535 Carlton adding to the affordable housing pool but was built with union labor and creating good middle-class jobs with benefits and high safety standards, something that is very important to this city's future. Nearly 300 New Yorkers will have a place to live thanks to the efforts of union workers, Forest City New York, Greenland USA, COOKFOX Architects and the New York City Deputy Mayor for Housing and Economic Development Alicia Glen.”

“535 Carlton is an example of public-private partnerships working together to provide beautiful and affordable housing for an array of individuals and families at a wide range of income levels,” said Ismene Speliotis, Executive Director of MHANY Management Inc. “We applaud the city and Greenland Forest City Partners for providing beautiful and affordable homes at the crossroads of Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues; creating an inclusive place to live and creating a replicable model for other developers.”

“When we broke ground on 535 Carlton in 2014 we made a commitment with Mayor de Blasio, Governor Cuomo, and local community groups to bring affordable housing to New Yorkers, and today we have delivered on that promise,” said Hu Gang, President and CEO of Greenland USA. “Adding a high-quality affordable building to Pacific Park Brooklyn is a testament to Greenland Forest City Partners' mission of growing vibrant communities and economies inclusive of everyone, and we are extremely proud of this first step in increasing the affordable housing stock in New York City."

"The opening of 535 Carlton further underscores Greenland Forest City Partners' commitment to affordable housing and ensures Pacific Park is a neighborhood inclusive of all New Yorkers," said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. "This extraordinary building proves that affordable housing can be practical and beautiful. The building combines first-rate design and top-tier amenities including a fitness center, residents' lounge, and a vibrant community garden. It's not only high-end luxury buildings that provide these types of amenities and services any longer."

Tenants in the 18-story, 298-unit building comes with a first-rate amenity package, including a fitness center, yoga studio, game room, children's playroom and outdoor terrace. Greenland Forest City Partners enlisted architectural firm COOKFOX to ensure the building was seamlessly integrated into the streetscape and adjacent green space, and that means Daylit elevator vestibules look onto the park from each floor, and the open view lobby offers visual connection from the Carlson Avenue to Pacific Park. Landscaped rooftop, terraces and setbacks also provide residents with expansive vistas of the park, New York Harbor.

"We approached the design of 535 Carlton with two critical goals: to create the healthiest possible homes and respect the surrounding historic neighborhood," said Rick Cook, a founder and partner at COOKFOX. "We are proud to have designed affordable homes for a diverse community that connects residents with nature, daylight and views to green space, rooftop gardening, and natural materials and finishes."

Mayors' Push for Union Jobs at Airports Takes Off

At U.S. Conf. of Mayors, Kenney, Levine, Gillum to Meet with Airport Workers; Call on CEOs of United, American Airlines to Respect Skycaps, Wheelchair Attendants, Baggage Handlers' Freedom to Join Unions

New Study Shows Raising Pay at Airports to At Least $15/Hour Would Generate $20 Billion in Economic Activity, Create 22,000 Jobs

MIAMI – Mayors from coast to coast Friday are launching a drive to push America's major airlines to respect workers' right to join together in a union, arguing that giving workers a voice on the job would help reverse a decades-long race to the bottom at our nation's airports that has lowered pay and exacerbated inequality.

At the annual gathering of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio is introducing a resolution urging airlines to "ensure that contracted airport workers are paid a living wage with benefits and freedom to form a union." More than a dozen mayors will attend a town-hall style meeting, where they will hear from airport workers across the country Friday about how they live in poverty despite working hard to keep the country moving and airlines' bottom lines healthy.

The mayors are highlighting that jobs at the nation's airports are a striking example of how working-class Americans have lost ground in the modern economy. Four decades ago, most jobs in an airport were good, family-sustaining jobs. Men and women worked directly for the major airlines, which paid a living wage, provided pensions and health care and respected Americans' right to stick together in a union. Today, most Americans who work at airports are employed by low-road subcontractors that pay low wages, without any benefits and actively suppress workers' right to form unions. Between 2002 and 2012 outsourcing of baggage porter jobs more than tripled, from 25 percent to 84 percent. Contracted airport workers – the majority of whom are immigrants and people of color – are now paid so little that four in ten go hungry or skip meals.

"As we saw with the recent shooting at Fort Lauderdale Airport, airport workers are literally on the front lines," says Newton Ingram, a Skycap at Fort-Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport. "We help make the airlines run and get passengers to where they need to go safely. We are an integral part of an airport—especially in a crisis—and we deserve the right to organize for better wages and dignity on the job."

A new study released today by the Economic Roundtable, Flying Right shows how the race to the bottom has cost American airline industry workers and what improving jobs at airports could do for the nation's economy:

- While U.S. passenger airlines reported $13.5 billion in profits for 2016, more than 1 in every 3 airport workers are paid less than $15/hour.
- Approximately 194,000 airport workers must rely on public assistance to get by, a hidden public subsidy to line the pockets of an industry that already receives billions in subsidies and profits.
- At 13 key service jobs at airports, nearly half of people are paid less than $15/hour. Two-thirds of the people working those jobs are age 40 or older.

- Raising minimum pay for U.S. airport workers would raise wages for airport workers by $1.8 billion per year, generate $20 billion in economic activity and create 22,512 year-round jobs.

“There are just under a quarter million U.S. airport workers with wages under $15 an hour, while the airline industry receives billions annually in public subsidies,” says Patrick Burns, Lead Author of Flying Right. “Raising the wage floor of U.S. airport workers to $15 an hour will lift many households out of poverty, reduce dependence on public assistance, support 22,512 new year-round jobs and stimulate $3.78 billion in added local sales. As this raise gets spent, it will boost tax revenues that pay for crucial government services.”

Airports have been a symbol of the decline of American bargaining power since 1981, when President Reagan fired and permanently replaced 11,000 striking air traffic controllers, paving the way for a decades-long march by corporations and elected officials to systematically dismantle Americans’ right to join together on the job in airports or anywhere else.

Now, airport workers in the nationwide Fight for $15 movement are transforming airports into a major part of the labor movement’s revival. In November, workers at Chicago O’Hare International Airport and Logan International airport joined fast-food workers across the country in a nation-wide strike for $15/hour and union rights. In December, more than 8,000 New York and New Jersey airport workers won their first union contract ever. And in April, more than 1,400 airport workers at Philadelphia International Airport joined SEIU 32BJ following an overwhelming vote in support of coming together in a union.

Contracted airport workers around the country are coming together in Airport Workers United, a movement of employees and their supporters raising their voices for $15 an hour and union rights to make our airports safe and secure for passengers, employees and our communities. By sticking together, speaking out, and going on strike, airport workers have won wage increases in Seattle, Los Angeles, New York City, Newark, Minneapolis, Boston, Philadelphia, Fort Lauderdale, and Miami. Since our movement began, 22,000 workers have joined SEIU and more than 110,000 have received wage increases or other improvements, including healthcare, paid sick leave and worker retention policies.

Ozone Park Homeless Drop-In Center Opens, Some Opponents now Support Facility

NY1 - Angi Gonzalez

<http://www.ny1.com/nyc/all-boroughs/news/2017/07/19/ozone-park-homeless-drop-in-center-opens--some-opponents-now-support-facility-html>

Just a few months ago residents packed community meetings and protested in the cold against the proposed opening of Queens first drop in homeless shelter.

It was first announced in 2016 that the facility could occupy the building at the corner of Atlantic Avenue and 102nd Street.

Since then, the non-profit Breaking Ground has moved forward with its plan, submitted to the Department of Homeless Services, to open the facility.

"Homelessness didn't happen overnight. It built up over many years," explained Steven Banks, the Commissioner for the NYC Human Resources Administration/Department of Social Services.

On Tuesday, Commissioner Banks and Breaking Ground officials gave NY1 an inside look at the facility that now serves about 10 homeless men and women a day.

"We've heard overwhelming positive remarks from our clients who are really excited to have a place in queens," said Amie Pospisi, the Deputy Vice President of Housing Operations and Programs at Breaking Ground.

The plan is to expand slowly and over time the facility will eventually serve up to 75 clients a day and have approximately 50 safe haven beds available.

Right now, clients can't sleep at the facility but they do have a place to eat, use the bathroom, can speak to a psychiatrist 2 days a week and get help applying for aid.

"You know they take you, they put you on the computer, they kind of guide you, they get you a SNAP application," exclaimed Abdul Hasan, a Breaking Ground client.

It's news that was encouraging to those who said they had previously protested the shelter's opening.

"I'm definitely at ease, you know, everyone needs a place to go and I think that's wonderful," said Apryll Abraham, who was initially opposed to shelter.

Some of the concern prior to the facility opening was its potential impact on the local neighborhood, but most of those NY1 spoke with said they hadn't seen any change.

"I think that it was more misconception they think homeless people are people with substance abuse problems or people with mental health problems," said Queens resident Jim Sideris.

On the top floor of the facility, Breaking Ground has also been able to streamline their services by providing those who work with the homeless in Queens with an office in the borough

"When we do outreach, because the fact our office is here...we're allotted more time on the road," said Sabina Britton, who works for Breaking Ground as part of their Queens outreach efforts.

It's just one of many benefits; the Commissioner said will better help address the city's homeless crisis.

If the reporter is flexible, can we all plan to do this on Wednesday from 2 to 3pm instead?

If the reporter is not flexible, we'll figure out how to give press a tour of the location on Tuesday, and connect the reporter(s)

Will advise ASAP.

Hey team,

Wanted to summarize what we've been discussing with regards to visiting the drop-in center at 100-32 Atlantic Avenue with Commissioner Banks for City Hall in Your Borough: Queens Week.

To confirm—yes, the Commissioner would like to make this happen. Yes, we've spoken to Breaking Ground communications folks who've said that Brenda Rosen, BG's CEO, would likely also attend. We envision this as a tour of the facility led by Banks and Rosen, with each of them discussing the street outreach efforts as well as why sites like these are such an important and necessary part of our outreach work, particularly given recent numbers. They would handle most if not all of the press. Press may want to speak with clients—but unless there are any known to you as viable, positive candidates for this, I think we will not allow that. Press may want to speak with outreach staff themselves—I believe we'll have Danielle on-site to represent? That being said, Cara if you wanted to say a few words or if there is an exemplary DIC staff member who we think would be well positioned to talk about day-to-day work at the location, that'd be great to have on hand.

Plan for staff on-site (other than making sure everything is beautiful and clean and as ready for primetime as possible) should be business as usual. The idea of the tour would be to show DHS in action. There isn't a real news hook, so we wouldn't be putting out a press release, just inviting a handful of media to see and learn about the place.

Media attending would be NY1 for TV, as well as a handful of local print outlets.

Date we're working towards is Tuesday, 7/18, from 1:30 to 2:30PM.

Hoping that covers everything for now—please let me know if there's anything I have missed her, or if you have any questions, or if anything is needed on our end as we get closer. If this works for everyone here, we will craft a mini run-of-show to circulate for all.

Thank you!

Dear Jonathan,

I am thrilled to report that together the public sector and NYC's employers are building the City's future workforce—a workforce that is homegrown, diverse, and skills-ready.

Through the Center for Youth Employment, our public-private partnership to prepare young people for the world of work, over 600 employers (up from 89 three years ago) gave 1600 paid summer internships to our best and brightest NYC students this summer.

We took an industry-based approach which was bolstered by our exciting pro bono, city-wide ad campaign -- the advertisements reached over 19 million New Yorkers in donated ad impressions.

A huge thank you to all of the Center for Youth Employment's partners and participating employers. Efforts like these, combined with the real strides of education initiatives like Computer Science For All, AP For All and Algebra For All are changing the futures of young New Yorkers and the companies they will work for.

Take a look at the press & campaign below and let us know what you think, and please consider getting involved in our workforce efforts, if you are not already engaged.

Best Regards, Gabrielle

Below is some of the media coverage highlighting the City's impact on youth employment as well as pictures of the advertisements that appeared across the City.

Mayor de Blasio has driven crime to record lows and put 2,000 more officers on the beat, while improving relations between police and the communities they serve. Assemblymember Malliotakis can use the Trump playbook of fearmongering and distortion, but no one is buying it.”

We're doing something on Malliotakis' comments today on the mayor's supervised release program. Most likely for second edition, but I intend to file for first just in case.

Does City Hall or the campaign want to comment on what she said?

Hey Melissa, Jeremy and I work together on One Vanderbilt.

We are pulling together the latest info on the public improvements and should have them to you tomorrow. But the biggest things under construction right now are the off-site improvements, i.e. things not in the One Vanderbilt footprint:

- the reconstruction of the long shuttered Mobil passageway to the former Mobil building on 42nd which will connect to GCT
- widening of the Lexington Ave. corner entrance (Strawberry store stairs)
- Enhancing the subway mezzanine level that leads to the 4/5/6 platforms, creating more circulation space
- Constructing and modifying staircases to aid circulation on platforms and mezzanine

Should have more detail to you tomorrow on entire package.

Hey Melissa, attached is a doc that breaks down OVA's on and off-site public improvements with some rough visuals. It also shows status on each item (the off-site work is all well underway which is something we should stress). We'd prefer Siff not report on the projected completion dates you see here but he can cite rough timing. This doc is just for background/not for publication. Also attaching the press release Garodnick issued during ULURP approval which contains some more basic language. Let me know if you have more questions.

Hey Melissa, Jeremy and I work together on One Vanderbilt.

We are pulling together the latest info on the public improvements and should have them to you tomorrow. But the biggest things under construction right now are the off-site improvements, i.e. things not in the One Vanderbilt footprint:

- the reconstruction of the long shuttered Mobil passageway to the former Mobil building on 42nd which will connect to GCT
- widening of the Lexington Ave. corner entrance (Strawberry store stairs)
- Enhancing the subway mezzanine level that leads to the 4/5/6 platforms, creating more circulation space
- Constructing and modifying staircases to aid circulation on platforms and mezzanine

Should have more detail to you tomorrow on entire package.

One Vanderbilt Transit Improvements

One Vanderbilt has proposed to construct and maintain a program of transit improvements, in support of an application for a zoning floor area bonus. All components of these improvements will comply with and be subject to the approval of New York City Transit (NYCT), Metro-North Railroad (MNR), and East Side Access guidelines and specifications, as applicable where these entities remain the authority holding jurisdiction. The improvements will be constructed within the property of the One Vanderbilt Avenue development site and its immediate adjacencies (on-site); the 42nd Street Station of the Lexington Avenue Subway and Shuttle to Times Square; within the property of the Grand Central Terminal, as well as within the property of 125 Park Avenue and 109 East 42nd Street (off-site).

On Site Transit Improvements

Work Items:	Description:	Schedule:
42 nd Street Entrance	1 New easement stairs, ADA accessible elevator, and express escalator at 42 nd street transit entrance of One Vanderbilt Avenue	December 2017 through August 2020
B2 Corridor Connector	2 New B2 corridor providing access between One Vanderbilt Avenue and the NYCT Lexington Avenue Station	October 2017 through August 2020
B1 Public Corridor Connector	3 New B1 public corridor providing access between One Vanderbilt Avenue, the Grand Central Terminal transit complex, and the NYCT Lexington Avenue Station	November 2017 through August 2020
B4 East Side Access Connector	4 Construction of the new B4 public corridors providing access between One Vanderbilt Avenue and the LIRR / ESA concourse via stairs, escalators, and elevator	September 2017 through August 2020
Transit Hall	5 New public room/train waiting area with stair access to B1 and accessible elevator to B1, 2, and 4	December 2017 through August 2020

Off Site Transit Improvements

Work Items:	Description:	Schedule:
Mobil Passageway	1 Rehabilitate the existing, decommissioned Mobil Building Passageway located below the south side of East 42 nd Street connecting 150 East 42 nd Street to the mezzanine level of the Grand Central - 42 nd Street Station.	June 2016 through December 2017
Lexington Avenue Stair and Elevator	2 New Street Stair and ADA elevator between mezzanine and street level of the Grand Central - 42 nd Street subway station at northwest corner of 42 nd Street and Lexington Avenue.	April 2017 through August 2020
Lexington Station Expanded Mezzanine	3 Expand R-240 control area and circulation space.	April 2017 through August 2020
P10 Staircase	4 Construct new P10 stair connecting the mezzanine and platform level of the Grand Central - 42 nd Station.	June 2016 through December 2017
Stair Modifications	5 Modify eleven existing stair structures to improve pedestrian circulation, visibility and capacity in the Grand Central - 42 nd Street subway station.	April 2017 through August 2020
P23 and P24 Staircases	6 Construct two new stairs in the expanded R-240 control area and circulation space connecting mezzanine to platform at Grand Central - 42 nd Street Station.	April 2017 through August 2020

Garodnick Secures City Council Approval of First Phase of East Midtown Rezoning

- Calling it a “much better deal for the public,” Garodnick won an unprecedented $220 Million in Critical Infrastructure Improvements from SL Green, Providing New Transit Access Points, Improving Circulation and Alleviating Congestion in City’s Iconic Transit Hub –

- New Zoning Changes Will Transform the Grand Central Business Corridor and Encourage Developers to Make Investments in Aging Transit Infrastructure -

By a unanimous vote, the New York City Council voted today in favor of the proposal to rezone a 5-block stretch of Vanderbilt Avenue, west of Grand Central Terminal and in the heart of the country’s largest central business district, and the application for a new office tower at One Vanderbilt. The Council’s vote was the final step in this rezoning, and the first step in the rezoning of the Greater East Midtown area. Council Member Dan Garodnick, who has been instrumental in guiding the framework of the greater East Midtown rezoning, announced his support for the proposal thanks to the significant public benefits that he was able to negotiate, and the transit infrastructure package being proposed as part of SL Green’s One Vanderbilt office tower. Further benefiting the region’s straphangers, Council Member Garodnick also secured considerable new public space enhancements within the footprint of One Vanderbilt.

"It is time to unlock the economic development potential in East Midtown," said Council Member Daniel R. Garodnick. "The area has gotten stuck in outdated rules, and has lost some of its competitiveness over time. That is going to change today, starting with the Vanderbilt Corridor -- where we will open the door to additional density in exchange for much needed improvements to our transit system. We have struck a much better deal for the public, and we will start seeing real benefits to Grand Central in the near term, even before a single new building is occupied."

In what is expected to be a first, critical step in rezoning the East Midtown business district, the City Council approved zoning changes to spur commercial development along Vanderbilt Avenue, between East 42nd and East 47th Streets. These changes will allow for improved circulation in and around Grand Central Terminal and increased opportunity for area landmarks to transfer unused development rights. The Vanderbilt Corridor, which will be anchored by SL Green’s proposed One Vanderbilt development, is highly accessible to public transportation, with underground connections linking all five blocks to the Grand Central Terminal complex. In addition, the MTA’s East Side Access project, which will bring Long Island Rail Road customers to East Midtown, is under construction below the corridor, with the station terminating directly below One Vanderbilt. This zoning change will be a major step forward in financing essential infrastructure upgrades for the MTA’s regional and local transportation network.

Under the One Vanderbilt plan, SL Green will construct new direct subway access points and circulation areas inside and around Grand Central Terminal, easing platform and mezzanine crowding and allowing trains to move more quickly through the station at peak hours. Approximately two thirds of the $220 million in public infrastructure funding will go directly to enhancing connections and circulation spaces along the over-crowded Lexington Avenue 4/5/6 line. One Vanderbilt will also extend the commuter experience to the west, providing direct access to Long Island Railroad East Side Access, Metro North and New York City Transit subway lines.

Working closely with SL Green, Council Member Garodnick also secured the creation of a grand three-story, light and air-filled public transit entrance on 42nd Street at the base of One Vanderbilt as well as 22 percent more subgrade circulation space for commuters to move underground from level to level. At a cost of $10 million, these additional improvements bring SL Green's total public investment to $220 million, an unprecedented public expenditure in New York City by a private firm. In addition to the robust value of this public improvement package, One Vanderbilt is projected to create 5,200 construction jobs, 190 permanent union jobs, double the number of workers employed on the block, and generate $50 million in annual tax revenues for the city. ### Garodnick Secures City Council Approval of First Phase of East Midtown Rezoning

- Calling it a “much better deal for the public,” Garodnick won an unprecedented $220 Million in Critical Infrastructure Improvements from SL Green, Providing New Transit Access Points, Improving Circulation and Alleviating Congestion in City’s Iconic Transit Hub –

- New Zoning Changes Will Transform the Grand Central Business Corridor and Encourage Developers to Make Investments in Aging Transit Infrastructure -

By a unanimous vote, the New York City Council voted today in favor of the proposal to rezone a 5-block stretch of Vanderbilt Avenue, west of Grand Central Terminal and in the heart of the country’s largest central business district, and the application for a new office tower at One Vanderbilt. The Council’s vote was the final step in this rezoning, and the first step in the rezoning of the Greater East Midtown area. Council Member Dan Garodnick, who has been instrumental in guiding the framework of the greater East Midtown rezoning, announced his support for the proposal thanks to the significant public benefits that he was able to negotiate, and the transit infrastructure package being proposed as part of SL Green’s One Vanderbilt office tower. Further benefiting the region’s straphangers, Council Member Garodnick also secured considerable new public space enhancements within the footprint of One Vanderbilt.

"It is time to unlock the economic development potential in East Midtown," said Council Member Daniel R. Garodnick. "The area has gotten stuck in outdated rules, and has lost some of its competitiveness over time. That is going to change today, starting with the Vanderbilt Corridor -- where we will open the door to additional density in exchange for much needed improvements to our transit system. We have struck a much better deal for the public, and we will start seeing real benefits to Grand Central in the near term, even before a single new building is occupied."

In what is expected to be a first, critical step in rezoning the East Midtown business district, the City Council approved zoning changes to spur commercial development along Vanderbilt Avenue, between East 42nd and East 47th Streets. These changes will allow for improved circulation in and around Grand Central Terminal and increased opportunity for area landmarks to transfer unused development rights. The Vanderbilt Corridor, which will be anchored by SL Green’s proposed One Vanderbilt development, is highly accessible to public transportation, with underground connections linking all five blocks to the Grand Central Terminal complex. In addition, the MTA’s East Side Access project, which will bring Long Island Rail Road customers to East Midtown, is under construction below the corridor, with the station terminating directly below One Vanderbilt. This zoning change will be a major step forward in financing essential infrastructure upgrades for the MTA’s regional and local transportation network.

Under the One Vanderbilt plan, SL Green will construct new direct subway access points and circulation areas inside and around Grand Central Terminal, easing platform and mezzanine crowding and allowing trains to move more quickly through the station at peak hours. Approximately two thirds of the $220 million in public infrastructure funding will go directly to enhancing connections and circulation spaces along the over-crowded Lexington Avenue 4/5/6 line. One Vanderbilt will also extend the commuter experience to the west, providing direct access to Long Island Railroad East Side Access, Metro North and New York City Transit subway lines.

Working closely with SL Green, Council Member Garodnick also secured the creation of a grand three-story, light and air-filled public transit entrance on 42nd Street at the base of One Vanderbilt as well as 22 percent more subgrade circulation space for commuters to move underground from level to level. At a cost of $10 million, these additional improvements bring SL Green's total public investment to $220 million, an unprecedented public expenditure in New York City by a private firm. In addition to the robust value of this public improvement package, One Vanderbilt is projected to create 5,200 construction jobs, 190 permanent union jobs, double the number of workers employed on the block, and generate $50 million in annual tax revenues for the city. Hey Melissa, attached is a doc that breaks down OVA's on and off-site public improvements with some rough visuals. It also shows status on each item (the off-site work is all well underway which is something we should stress). We'd prefer Siff not report on the projected completion dates you see here but he can cite rough timing. This doc is just for background/not for publication. Also attaching the press release Garodnick issued during ULURP approval which contains some more basic language. Let me know if you have more questions.

Hey Melissa, Jeremy and I work together on One Vanderbilt.

We are pulling together the latest info on the public improvements and should have them to you tomorrow. But the biggest things under construction right now are the off-site improvements, i.e. things not in the One Vanderbilt footprint:

- the reconstruction of the long shuttered Mobil passageway to the former Mobil building on 42nd which will connect to GCT
- widening of the Lexington Ave. corner entrance (Strawberry store stairs)
- Enhancing the subway mezzanine level that leads to the 4/5/6 platforms, creating more circulation space
- Constructing and modifying staircases to aid circulation on platforms and mezzanine

Should have more detail to you tomorrow on entire package.

One Vanderbilt Transit Improvements

One Vanderbilt has proposed to construct and maintain a program of transit improvements, in support of an application for a zoning floor area bonus. All components of these improvements will comply with and be subject to the approval of New York City Transit (NYCT), Metro-North Railroad (MNR), and East Side Access guidelines and specifications, as applicable where these entities remain the authority holding jurisdiction. The improvements will be constructed within the property of the One Vanderbilt Avenue development site and its immediate adjacencies (on-site); the 42nd Street Station of the Lexington Avenue Subway and Shuttle to Times Square; within the property of the Grand Central Terminal, as well as within the property of 125 Park Avenue and 109 East 42nd Street (off-site).

On Site Transit Improvements

Work Items:	Description:	Schedule:
42 nd Street Entrance	1 New easement stairs, ADA accessible elevator, and express escalator at 42 nd street transit entrance of One Vanderbilt Avenue	December 2017 through August 2020
B2 Corridor Connector	2 New B2 corridor providing access between One Vanderbilt Avenue and the NYCT Lexington Avenue Station	October 2017 through August 2020
B1 Public Corridor Connector	3 New B1 public corridor providing access between One Vanderbilt Avenue, the Grand Central Terminal transit complex, and the NYCT Lexington Avenue Station	November 2017 through August 2020

Garodnick Secures City Council Approval of First Phase of East Midtown Rezoning

- Calling it a “much better deal for the public,” Garodnick won an unprecedented $220 Million in Critical Infrastructure Improvements from SL Green, Providing New Transit Access Points, Improving Circulation and Alleviating Congestion in City’s Iconic Transit Hub –

- New Zoning Changes Will Transform the Grand Central Business Corridor and Encourage Developers to Make Investments in Aging Transit Infrastructure -

By a unanimous vote, the New York City Council voted today in favor of the proposal to rezone a 5-block stretch of Vanderbilt Avenue, west of Grand Central Terminal and in the heart of the country’s largest central business district, and the application for a new office tower at One Vanderbilt. The Council’s vote was the final step in this rezoning, and the first step in the rezoning of the Greater East Midtown area. Council Member Dan Garodnick, who has been instrumental in guiding the framework of the greater East Midtown rezoning, announced his support for the proposal thanks to the significant public benefits that he was able to negotiate, and the transit infrastructure package being proposed as part of SL Green’s One Vanderbilt office tower. Further benefiting the region’s straphangers, Council Member Garodnick also secured considerable new public space enhancements within the footprint of One Vanderbilt.

"It is time to unlock the economic development potential in East Midtown," said Council Member Daniel R. Garodnick. "The area has gotten stuck in outdated rules, and has lost some of its competitiveness over time. That is going to change today, starting with the Vanderbilt Corridor -- where we will open the door to additional density in exchange for much needed improvements to our transit system. We have struck a much better deal for the public, and we will start seeing real benefits to Grand Central in the near term, even before a single new building is occupied."

In what is expected to be a first, critical step in rezoning the East Midtown business district, the City Council approved zoning changes to spur commercial development along Vanderbilt Avenue, between East 42nd and East 47th Streets. These changes will allow for improved circulation in and around Grand Central Terminal and increased opportunity for area landmarks to transfer unused development rights. The Vanderbilt Corridor, which will be anchored by SL Green’s proposed One Vanderbilt development, is highly accessible to public transportation, with underground connections linking all five blocks to the Grand Central Terminal complex. In addition, the MTA’s East Side Access project, which will bring Long Island Rail Road customers to East Midtown, is under construction below the corridor, with the station terminating directly below One Vanderbilt. This zoning change will be a major step forward in financing essential infrastructure upgrades for the MTA’s regional and local transportation network.

Under the One Vanderbilt plan, SL Green will construct new direct subway access points and circulation areas inside and around Grand Central Terminal, easing platform and mezzanine crowding and allowing trains to move more quickly through the station at peak hours. Approximately two thirds of the $220 million in public infrastructure funding will go directly to enhancing connections and circulation spaces along the over-crowded Lexington Avenue 4/5/6 line. One Vanderbilt will also extend the commuter experience to the west, providing direct access to Long Island Railroad East Side Access, Metro North and New York City Transit subway lines.

Working closely with SL Green, Council Member Garodnick also secured the creation of a grand three-story, light and air-filled public transit entrance on 42nd Street at the base of One Vanderbilt as well as 22 percent more subgrade circulation space for commuters to move underground from level to level. At a cost of $10 million, these additional improvements bring SL Green's total public investment to $220 million, an unprecedented public expenditure in New York City by a private firm. In addition to the robust value of this public improvement package, One Vanderbilt is projected to create 5,200 construction jobs, 190 permanent union jobs, double the number of workers employed on the block, and generate $50 million in annual tax revenues for the city. It also shows status on each item (the off-site work is all well underway which is something we should stress). We'd prefer Siff not report on the projected completion dates you see here but he can cite rough timing. This doc is just for background/not for publication. Also attaching the press release Garodnick issued during ULURP approval which contains some more basic language. Let me know if you have more questions.

Hey Melissa, attached is a doc that breaks down OVA's on and off-site public improvements with some rough visuals. It also shows status on each item (the off-site work is all well underway which is something we should stress). We'd prefer Siff not report on the projected completion dates you see here but he can cite rough timing. This doc is just for background/not for publication. Also attaching the press release Garodnick issued during ULURP approval which contains some more basic language. Let me know if you have more questions.

Hey Melissa, Jeremy and I work together on One Vanderbilt.

We are pulling together the latest info on the public improvements and should have them to you tomorrow. But the biggest things under construction right now are the off-site improvements, i.e. things not in the One Vanderbilt footprint:

- the reconstruction of the long shuttered Mobil passageway to the former Mobil building on 42nd which will connect to GCT
- widening of the Lexington Ave. corner entrance (Strawberry store stairs)
- Enhancing the subway mezzanine level that leads to the 4/5/6 platforms, creating more circulation space
- Constructing and modifying staircases to aid circulation on platforms and mezzanine

Should have more detail to you tomorrow on entire package.

MAYOR DE BLASIO AND COUNCIL MEMBER GARODNICK ANNOUNCE ADOPTION OF GREATER EAST MIDTOWN REZONING

Decision to strengthen NYC's largest business district with more modern office buildings, 28,000 new jobs, protected landmarks, subway upgrades and more pedestrian space

NEW YORK—Mayor de Blasio and Council Member Daniel Garodnick today marked the City Council's unanimous approval of the Greater East Midtown rezoning. Years in the making, the plan will foster the new, modern office buildings needed to spur jobs and keep New York a global capital of commerce. The plan ties that growth directly to improvements in the district's public transit and public space, so as new buildings rise, New Yorkers will see major investments in subway stations, less congested sidewalks and expansive plazas for office workers and visitors.

East Midtown is the city's largest business district, generating 250,000 jobs and 10 percent of the city's property tax revenue. But its office buildings average 75 years-old and have become increasingly out-of-date and inefficient for today's companies. The district's historic growth was driven by access to public transit, but today its subways and streets are at capacity.

To overcome these challenges and revitalize the district, Councilmember Dan Garodnick and Borough President Gale Brewer led a host of community stakeholders in an extensive planning process that was advanced by the de Blasio administration and then the City Council. The approved rezoning covers 78 blocks between the east side of Third Avenue and the west side of Madison Avenue, from East 39th Street to East 57th Street.

“East Midtown’s growth is now directly linked to real-time improvements in its public transit and public realm. In the years ahead, this neighborhood will see major upgrades to subway stations, more expansive space for pedestrians, investments in its iconic landmarks, and a new generation of office buildings that will spur good jobs for New Yorkers. I thank the City Council, and congratulate City Planning Chair Lago, Council Member Garodnick and Borough President Brewer on this achievement,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

"With this vote, we are breathing new life into New York's most important business district," said Council Member Dan Garodnick. "Not only will we see sensible growth, but the public will benefit from extraordinary new investments in above-ground public spaces and in below-ground subway infrastructure. Better transit, new jobs, top-of-the-line office space: East Midtown is back, full of optimism, and open for business."

“The Greater East Midtown rezoning plan is a victory for everyone who lives, works, walks, or rides a subway through the East Side, and it also proves that stakeholder-driven planning works,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. “Putting all the stakeholders around a table before the plan was certified meant we could forge consensus on a sound blueprint for East Midtown’s future. This plan, based on that blueprint, will spur new, state-of-the-art office construction, attract jobs, and deliver major investments in transit and street-level infrastructure, open space, and local landmarks.”

“It doesn’t get any bigger than East Midtown. This is where New York City competes for a huge number of jobs and an enormous slice of our tax base. We made this a priority from Day One, and today’s vote is a signal that New York City is serious about investing in its economic future,” said Deputy Mayor for Housing and Economic Development Alicia Glen.

"The adoption today of this plan marks a significant achievement in our quest to assure that Greater East Midtown remains the globe's premier business district - one that works for the employees, residents and tourists who fill its streets every day. Incentivizing as-of-right redevelopment of aging buildings, facilitating the upkeep of beloved landmarks, and providing a private-sector funding stream for transit and streetscape improvements - that's a winning combination. Today's success has its roots in the excellent work of the many individuals who participated in a steering committee led by Borough President Brewer and Council Member Garodnick," said City Planning Commission Chair Marisa Lago.

“This vote represents a turning point in future of East Midtown and will produce new state of the art office buildings, improved transit connectivity, additional resources for some of New York’s most treasured landmarks, and significant new public space,” said Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito. “I congratulate Council Member Garodnick on his years of hard work to build consensus within the community and for his work with the administration to craft a zoning proposal and negotiate modifications that secure capital funding to kick-start public space improvements”

New and Upgraded Office Buildings

The zoning changes will enable the development of new Class-A commercial buildings, cementing East Midtown’s position as a world class business district that offers modern amenities and a range of office types. Buildings would be able to achieve higher density provided the developments support enhancements to the area’s public realm by providing transit improvements and/or purchasing unused floor area from the district’s landmarks.

The zoning framework will generate 6.8 million square feet in new commercial office space over the next 20 years, along with an additional 6.6 million square feet of older office space that will be upgraded into Class A office space. The resulting development is expected to create up to 28,000 new, permanent jobs and 23,000 construction jobs in the next two decades.

Improved Subways

In “Transit Improvement Zones” near transit hubs, new buildings are allowed to exceed current Floor Area Ratio (FAR) provided they undertake important improvements to subway stations like new and expanded entrances, escalators, elevators and stairwells, as well as full station rehabilitations. New buildings cannot be granted certificates of occupancy for their increased space until those improvements are completed.

The specific stations and improvements were selected in close consultation with the MTA and encompass:

- Lexington Avenue / 53rd – 51st Street (E,M,6)
- Lexington Avenue - 59th Street (N,Q,R,4,5,6)
- Fifth Avenue / 53rd Street (E,M)
- 47th / 50th Streets – Rockefeller Ctr (B,D,F,M)
- 42 St - Bryant Park / 5th Avenue (B,D,F,M,7)
- Grand Central / 42nd Street (4,5,6,7,S)

Strengthening Historic Landmarks

The plan permits property owners to purchase unused development rights from landmarks throughout the district on an as-of-right basis, a departure from current regulations. Those landmarks include a dozen buildings designated by the Landmarks Preservation Commission last year in advance of the rezoning which include some of the most historic and beloved icons in Midtown. This greater flexibility would increase the market for area landmarked buildings to sell their unused development rights, and thereby raise funds for their continued maintenance.

Improving and Expanding Public Space

New public realm projects across East Midtown will be funded by a minimum contribution of $61.49 per square foot or 20 percent of air rights’ sale price, ensuring that as development rights are sold to spur new development, the public reaps a steady funding stream to make commensurate improvements including shared streets, pedestrian plazas, thoroughfare upgrades.

The City will commit $38 million in capital funds for eligible public realm projects selected by the East Midtown Governing Group. Up to 12 million additional dollars will be committed to public benefits that include:

- Shared Street on 43rd Street between Lexington and 3rd Avenue
- Pershing East Plaza
- 53rd Street Thoroughfare Improvements
- Park Avenue Turn Lane Improvements
- Lexington Avenue Improvements

“In a City growing with historic levels of population, jobs and tourism, the rezoning of East Midtown offers a welcome antidote in the most crowded of Manhattan neighborhoods,” said DOT Commissioner Polly Trottenberg. “For transportation, the rezoning intelligently prioritizes the most efficient uses – by building much-needed new subway entrances and improvements, while further expanding pedestrian plazas and shared streets. With the detailed plan passed by the Council today, congratulations are in order to Mayor de Blasio, Council Member Garodnick and the entire Council for their productive partnership in getting it done.”

“NYC Parks is greatly supportive of this plan, which involved extensive community engagement and will ensure East Midtown remains a competitive business district while improving the neighborhood at large. Tying public realm improvements to development ensures that all New Yorkers will benefit from this plan,” said NYC Parks Commissioner Mitchell J. Silver, FAICP.

“Today’s Council approval is a successful conclusion to a robust process that integrated planning and landmark preservation to ensure that Greater East Midtown remains at the forefront of the global economy. The City’s comprehensive approach resulted in the designation of 12 outstanding historic buildings — bringing the number of protected individual landmarks in East Midtown to 50. Many thanks to the Greater East Midtown Steering Committee, led by Borough President Brewer and Council Member Garodnick, for their support of the Commission’s work in this neighborhood. The approval of this plan, along with the Commission’s landmark designations, fosters East Midtown’s growth and protects and preserves the heart of a district exemplified by its proud historic buildings,” said Landmarks Preservation Commission Chair Meenakshi Srinivasan.

“Providing accessibility to these subway stations will allow people with disabilities access to new job opportunities creating a more inclusive and accessible city,” said Mayor’s Office for People with Disabilities Commissioner Victor Calise.

"This rezoning ensures that East Midtown, with its legendary buildings and firms, will remain the place where the world comes together to do business for generations to come. The vision and leadership of Council Member Dan Garodnick and Borough President Gale Brewer drove a nuanced, participatory planning process with few parallels in our city's history. I thank and congratulate them both deeply as well as my colleagues and friends in the Council and the de Blasio administration for such a praiseworthy outcome,” said Council Member David Greenfield, chair of the Land Use Committee.

"This rezoning will finally tap into the true potential of East Midtown and deliver transit improvements, office space, open space and preserve historic landmarks," said Council Member Donovan Richards, chair of the Subcommittee on Zoning and Franchises. "This has been a long time coming, but residents and business owners will feel the benefits of this plan for decades to come. I'd like to congratulate Council Member Garodnick and Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer for showing true leadership in negotiating a big victory for their residents and business owners."

Congresswoman Carolyn B. Maloney said, “The rezoning approved by the New York City Council will transform east midtown, easing the way for state-of-the-art buildings in the city’s central business district, while generating funds for critical amenities. The end result will be a vibrant business district with buildings designed for the 21st Century, new jobs, investments in transportation and much-needed parks and open space.”

State Senator Liz Krueger said, "I am very pleased that a deal has been reached to move forward on the East Midtown rezoning after a long, comprehensive, and inclusive process. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for working diligently with Borough President Brewer, Council Member Garodnick, and an array of stakeholders to ensure that this extremely complex rezoning balances the needs of those who already live and work in East Midtown, vital infrastructure and open space improvements, and our historic structures, while encouraging the planned development of 21st Century commercial buildings."

State Senator Brad Hoylman said, "I'm grateful to the Borough President Gale Brewer, Council Member Dan Garodnick and the City Administration for their efforts on the East Midtown Rezoning. Through years of work and community engagement, they've ensured that the rezoning of East Midtown not only updates the building stock in one of the world's most important business districts, but also contributes to improvements that will benefit the public for years to come, including open space, pedestrian walkways, improved subway stations and historic preservation."

"These rezoning changes are pivotal to the future success of East Midtown," said Assemblymember Dan Quart. "This plan is a culmination of years of community input, inclusive planning, and careful consideration of diverse suggestions. I look forward to the coming transformation that will encourage economic development and spur public infrastructure projects. This is a major victory for our city and I applaud Council Member Garodnick for his leadership."

"The rezoning of Greater East Midtown provides the blueprint to transform and modernize commercial office space and spur new development in New York City's premiere business district. It also creates the mechanism for much needed improvements to the unmatched mass transit system serving our area while also giving us the opportunity to work on enhancing the public realm with the involvement of our stakeholders, which is critical for success," said Alfred C. Cerullo, III, President and CEO of the Grand Central Partnership.

"This rezoning initiative ensures that East Midtown will remain a competitive and viable center of international business activity. We thank Mayor de Blasio, Deputy Mayor Glen, Borough President Brewer, Council Member Garodnick, and all those who spearheaded this effort and worked to keep most of the vital Third Avenue corridor in the new subdistrict, while making certain that new development will bring with it new public space, which is sorely needed in this community," said Rob Byrnes, President of the East Midtown Partnership.

"The City Council's approval of the Greater East Midtown rezoning is an important milestone in an on-going effort to ensure the area remains one of the world's leading office districts. We want to thank Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, Borough President Gale Brewer, Council Member Dan Garodnick, City Planning Chair Marisa Lago, all the Community Board Members and the many other stakeholders who worked tirelessly and understood that encouraging development in East Midtown generates the tax revenue that pays for vital city services that benefit all New Yorkers," said John Banks, President of the Real Estate Board of New York.

"The Greater East Midtown Rezoning will help to revitalize one of New York City's most important neighborhoods, create new jobs for the community, and assist landmarked houses of worship to generate funds through the sale of air rights to maintain and preserve sacred structures, such as Central Synagogue and St. Patrick's Cathedral, both of whom supported this rezoning, for generations to come," said Reverend Monsignor Robert T. Ritchie, Rector, Saint Patrick's Cathedral.

"Today's passage of the East Midtown rezoning is the next critical step to ensure that New York City remains competitive in the global marketplace," said Bill Rudin, Chairman of the Association for a Better New York. "We applaud Mayor de Blasio and his administration, the City Council led by Speaker Mark-Viverito and Councilmember Garodnick and as well as Borough President Brewer and all the stakeholders. Their vision and perseverance led to the passage of a rezoning plan that will help further the revitalization and modernization of East Midtown, improve and expand our infrastructure and open space, and protect the landmarks that have made this area great."

"Making East Midtown's subway stations more accessible with escalators and elevators and ensuring adequate pedestrian and park space in this busy area are positive steps toward creating a livable New York City for people of all ages. AARP commends Council Member Garodnick, Borough President Brewer and Mayor de Blasio for pushing real, every-day improvements in East Midtown – which could serve as a model for making the entire city more age-friendly,” said Chris Widelo, Associate State Director for AARP.

Fred Kent, President of Project for Public Spaces said, "Quality of Place is a key factor in where businesses locate. Adding density can help do that. This zoning opens the door, but it requires a sustained commitment from both the public and private sectors. Our global work on Placemaking and Innovation could be a foundation for that to happen, and we look forward to following and participating in the work of the East Midtown governing group."

“We’re encouraged by the City’s well-measured response to East Midtown’s dire need for upgrading obsolete office buildings, and protecting landmarks. The Design Trust for Public Space looks forward to the upcoming concept plan from the Public Realm Governing Group. A well-functioning commercial district in a vibrant world capital requires a quality open space network. The Plan must include a comprehensive streetscape and open space strategy that provides new plazas and POPs, and ensures adequate sunlight on existing public spaces. It also must include substantially expanding our pedestrian and subway capacity for these new workers and visitors which is key to long term success of this district,” said Susan Chin, FAIA, Hon. ASLA, Executive Director, Design Trust for Public Space.

"We applaud the approval of this rezoning for East Midtown, which has long been an important economic driver for New York City," said Hector Figueroa, president of SEIU 32BJ, which represents over 800 commercial cleaners and security officers in the area included in the rezoning plan. “This plan will help ensure that East Midtown remains an influential economic center with good, family sustaining building service jobs for generations to come.”

"The members of the New York Hotel Trades Council would like to thank Mayor de Blasio, Speaker Mark-Viverito, Councilmember Garodnick, and Borough President Brewer for listening to our input throughout this critical rezoning process. Revitalizing Midtown East will allow our city to maintain its status as the world leader in providing the premium office space and public transit options that attract and retain the modern workforce. And this plan will ensure that new development in the district will be thoughtful and responsible," said Peter Ward, President of the New York Hotel Trades Council.

“The Greater East Midtown rezoning will not only help the city’s largest business district maintain its supremacy as a global leader in commerce, but it will also create thousands of good paying jobs in construction and other related industries,” said Gary LaBarbera, president of the 100,000 member Building and Construction Trades Council of Greater New York. “I want to thank the Mayor and City Council for working together on behalf of all New Yorkers to pass the rezoning and ultimately make these critical investments in our city's infrastructure. “

“The final approval for the Greater East Midtown rezoning is a major victory for one of the world’s most quintessential business districts, and the city as a whole. Thanks to the dedicated efforts and the collaborative spirit exhibited throughout the process by Mayor Bill de Blasio and his administration, Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer and the City Council, led by Council Member Dan Garodnick, the path has been cleared for the construction and renovation of a new generation of iconic office towers, which will ensure the long-term viability of the neighborhood and create thousands of jobs in the process," said Carlo Scissura, President & CEO, New York Building Congress.

"This rezoning paves the way for the next generation of redevelopment and modernization of an aging portion of the city's central business district. It will bring jobs and enhance values that will benefit all New Yorkers," said Kathryn Wylde, President and CEO of the Partnership for New York City.

“This reinforces New York’s draw as a headquarters location for companies generating good-paying jobs for our residents,” said Jessica Walker, president and CEO of the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce. “Thank you to all of the stakeholders who worked tirelessly over many years to make this happen for our city.”

"Among the biggest winners from the East Midtown rezoning are the hundreds of thousands of riders who regularly use one of the big six subway stations that serve the area," said Gene Russianoff, staff attorney for the Straphangers Campaign. "All of these crowded and hard-to-navigate stations - from Grand Central/42nd Street to Rockefeller Center - will receive major rehabilitation from developer funds."

John Raskin, Executive Director of the Riders Alliance, said, "This rezoning will not only reshape East Midtown; it will also lead to hundreds of millions of dollars in much-needed investment for public transit infrastructure. The transit system has suffered from decades of underfunding and neglect, resulting in today's dire situation of regular breakdowns, delays and unreliable service. We should look to creative tools to find the billions of dollars we will need to modernize our subways and buses, and the East Midtown rezoning is a step in the right direction."

“This is rezoning done right because it manages density with key improvements to improve transit and the public realm. We applaud Mayor de Blasio and Councilmember Garodnick for leading this landmark context-sensitive change to the fabric of our growing city,” said Paul White, Executive Director of Transportation Alternatives.

“The Greater East Midtown rezoning will enable much needed commercial development capacity while preserving area landmarks, improving the pedestrian experience, and bringing desperately needed improvements to surrounding MTA stations. It’s an excellent example of how to do planning the right way, bringing a diversity of stakeholders with very different interests to the table early in the process, and encouraging genuine dialogue -- a step in the direction of the proposals that will be made in RPA’s Fourth Regional Plan this fall,” said Pierina Ana Sanchez, New York Director of Regional Plan Association.

"With the passage of Midtown East Rezoning, a critically-important area of our city will become re-vitalized as a 21st-century global business district. This transformative vision promotes investment in public spaces, transit-oriented development, and hyper-efficient sustainable buildings. These changes consider meaningful improvements in accessibility, workplace productivity for companies and commuters, and an enhanced quality of life for New York’s citizens,” David Piscuskas, FAIA, President, American Institute of Architects New York Chapter.

“As a disabled New Yorker, I strongly support the East Midtown Plan as part of which 6 inaccessible subway stations being totally rehabilitated to be fully accessible. In addition, the plan includes upgrading sidewalks, pedestrian ramps and public plazas,” said Edith M Prentiss, Vice President Legislative Affairs for Disabled in Action.

“Under the leadership of Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer and Council Member Daniel Garodnick, the East Midtown Steering Committee process created a model of stakeholder engagement worth replicating. Particularly with respect to open space and historic preservation, this plan is a meaningful improvement on the 2013 proposal,” said Elizabeth Goldstein, President of The Municipal Art Society of New York. “However, the work is not yet done. This rezoning will undoubtedly bring great change to the neighborhood, and we must continue to find balance between private development and the public realm. Together, we can make East Midtown not just an appealing place to build, but an appealing place to live, work, and visit.”

"While we weren't always in agreement with the City's priorities for the rezoning of East Midtown, we applaud and deeply appreciate the efforts of our Council Member, Dan Garodnick, and Borough President Gale Brewer, who worked with Mayor Bill de Blasio and his administration to make it a better plan. We succeeded in creating more public space and a more attractive and pedestrian-friendly environment for the tens of thousands of workers who will spend their days around and within these new towers," said Vikki Barbero, Chair of Community Board Five.

Hey guys--need your help on this. MTA now saying 1 Vanderbilt won't increase train capacity (just caught up in politics of the day). Do we have a scope of work or some doc that officially makes that estimate clear? For WNBC TONIGHT. Need Asap.

Hi David,

Attached is a detailed list of pantry investments from the Collaborative, indexed by the neighborhood in which the pantry lives, the total investment, and the planned increase in food this investment will enable. These should track to the priority neighborhoods that you have seen, and provide a level of additional detail for thinking about a press conference location.

In addition to these, there is a launch event for “Pantry Forward” taking place on September 18th at Helmsley in Midtown. Pantry forward is a new initiative of the Collaborative, to help ten of the most promising pantries city-wide, and the event will be attended by Collaborative members, as well as representatives from the City’s strongest pantries. Potentially a good place / time to do interviews?

I hope this is helpful. Please let me know if I can provide anything else.

Thanks for all you are doing to get our work out there – it is deeply appreciated!

Hi again, David.

With apologies for multiple emails, the attachment here provides a bit of color on each of the pantry investments, and is a bit cleaner and more organized. Functionally, it is the same as the prior document.

In any case, let me know if there's anything else that I can provide.

Subject: List of pantry investments

Hi David,

Attached is a detailed list of pantry investments from the Collaborative, indexed by the neighborhood in which the pantry lives, the total investment, and the planned increase in food this investment will enable. These should track to the priority neighborhoods that you have seen, and provide a level of additional detail for thinking about a press conference location.

In addition to these, there is a launch event for "Pantry Forward" taking place on September 18th at Helmsley in Midtown. Pantry forward is a new initiative of the Collaborative, to help ten of the most promising pantries city-wide, and the event will be attended by Collaborative members, as well as representatives from the City's strongest pantries. Potentially a good place / time to do interviews?

I hope this is helpful. Please let me know if I can provide anything else.

Thanks for all you are doing to get our work out there – it is deeply appreciated!

Same response as last time.

“These are the first new high schools in East Harlem in 50 years, and they come alongside 300 permanently affordable apartments, new jobs for local residents and a full replacement of the playground. Anyone saying the status quo is better is turning a blind eye to this community’s need for better schools and homes people can afford.”

Mayoral Candidate Sal Albanese will hold a press conference on Thursday, August 17th @ noon to support community efforts to stop the City from giving away the beloved Marx Brothers Playground to a private developer, Avalon Bay. Not coincidentally, the developer has been represented over the last 2-3 years by a number of lobbying firms, including Capalino + Co, a firm that is very close to de Blasio and was enmeshed in the various City Hall pay-to-play scandals. The playground is named after the famous family of comedians who grew up in the neighborhood.

The development project itself has been controversial, since it will create a massive, outsized residential tower that will be the tallest building north of 60th Street, and is opposed by the community.

“The City owns at least 1,000 parcels of vacant land that could be easily used to create affordable housing, schools, etc. It is shameful that Mayor de Blasio is selling off children's playgrounds and precious public green space which is part of the Parks Department. This part of the City has the WORST person-to-green space ratio in the entire City, and de Blasio is giving it away to private developers. It would require a run around the zoning laws that de Blasio himself made happen. If we allow this, every other parcel of parkland throughout the City would be potentially up for grabs by private developers; no playground, no park, no public open space would be safe. De Blasio is reneging on a promise to return the Marx Brothers playground after the Second Avenue subway was built. Hands off this playground. It belongs to everyone,” said Albanese.

The East Harlem community also recently rejected the Mayor's rezoning plan that would have crushed the character of the neighborhood and increased hypergentrification. “It appears that the Mayor has ears only for the big real estate developers and lobbyists who engage in legalized pay-to-play. Once again, his favorite lobbying firm, Capalino + Co is one of several lobbying firms that have been variously representing the developer, Avalon Bay, for the last few years. De Blasio apparently can't hear the East Harlem community, and the removal of this playground from the public domain is just another example,” he said.

Your coverage is welcome.

Hi David and Barbara,

I hope you are well and have each retained two functioning retinas after yesterday's eclipse!

Thank you again for continuing to push the NYT/Mayor's event plan forward, David. We're all quite excited about the vision there and the potential to boost the work! I trust that you have what you need in terms of data, etc., but please say the word if there's anything we can pass along.

With input from Helmsley and BerlinRosen, below is a proposal for how we might work together alongside (and after) the current NYT/Mayor's event effort, to achieve the remaining parts of the comms strategy. Specifically:

- David continues work to pitch Nikita Stewart at the NYT, tied closely to an event that he seeks to coordinate with the Mayor and the Collaborative at a food pantry. This story and event shouldn't be scooped by other pitches, so all other media outreach will hold until after that.
- Ahead of the Mayor event, David can confirm if Nikita is able to cover it. If not, BR can make a push with other NYT reporters and other press in the lead up, day-of, and after the Mayor event.
- Assuming the NYT story and Mayor event happen, BR can pitch NYT Fixes (or similar outlets in NPR or elsewhere) as well as other tech outlets about Plentiful after the event.
- David can pitch some of the very local, neighborhood-level outlets for Collaborative stories.
- Separately, BR can pursue a general pitch to the Chronicle of Philanthropy about Helmsley and the Collaborative.

How does this look to you, David and Barbara? If this is in line with your thinking, BerlinRosen is ready to start pulling together pitches and doing target mapping for the later work, while your teams move the event and NYT piece into motion.

With appreciation,

The never ending attacks on Christopher Columbus are a reflection of the anti-Italian biases in America encouraged over generations by the entertainment industry seeking profit by exploiting an important ethnic group and sadly assisted by some Italians without any respect for their heritage.

Hi all,

Reconnecting with this communications-minded group, so we can catch BerlinRosen up to speed on this afternoon's developments!

Aaron and Tim – It does not look like a Mayor's event will take place, but we do still have an interview lined up with NYT. David – I assume this is with Nikita Stewart?

Tomorrow at 8am, several members of the Collaborative will have a planning call to discuss the NYT interview. Aaron or Tim – Are you free to join? Next week (date/time TBD), everyone will come to Helmsley for an in-person group interview with the NYT reporter. For Helmsley, our spokesperson will either be Tracy or our CEO Stephanie, so we will need to think about talking points for them for next week.

Per our plan, I believe we can then move forward with our other pitches to various innovation/tech/philanthropy outlets, once we have a sense of when this NYT story will run.

Thanks, all!

Hi Ivan and Bob,

Below are pantries that we could show the reporter. David said the reporter may also be interested in profiling three neighborhoods where we added capacity: Flushing, Boro Park, Jackson Heights, and East New York each have 2 pantries that we are proud of, and therefore make good places to visit. I believe Barbara wants the group to make this decision on the call tomorrow; hopefully this list is a good starting point for that conversation.

Hannah and I put this info together on short notice after our 5 pm meeting today so you could have it for tomorrow morning. Hannah will double check all of the details tomorrow and let you know if any of the hours or other details need to be updated.

Flushing

- South Asian Council on Social Services (Flushing)
  - New pantry that we funded in an existing NGO. Serves South Asian population in NYC.
  - Operate Friday at 11 am. Can easily meet at non-distribution times since they have full-time staff.
- La Jornada (Flushing)
  - Existing large pantry run in the historic St. George's Episcopal Church. Doubled the amount of food they distribute.
  - Operates Saturday mornings
- YWCA of Queens pop-up (Flushing)
  - Pop-up pantry at an existing CBO
  - Operating hours forthcoming

Jackson Heights

- Evangelical Church Christ is the Light (Jackson Heights)
  - Existing pantry that doubled its food distribution, converted to client choice, and was an early pilot site for Plentiful.
  - Operate Friday mornings 9 am
- Salvation Army Queens Temple Corps (Jackson Heights catchment area – technically East Elmhurst)
  - Small pantry that we transitioned to client choice.
  - Operate Wednesday 9 – 10 am.

Borough Park

- Masbia of Boro Park (Borough Park)
  - Funded a renovation to enable them to open a new site in Boro Park that houses both a client choice pantry and soup kitchen. They are one of our largest single supply increases. Part of the Masbia network, which serves Jewish and non-Jewish clients.
  - Pantry open Thursday 8 am – noon. Soup kitchen open for dinner Sun-Thu, 6:30 pm.
- Goke (Borough Park catchment area – technically Kensignton)
  - Existing pantry, we helped get them cold storage equipment and new access to City Harvest for fresh produce, and doubled the amount of food they get. Very diverse pantry line, and user of Plentiful.
  - Operate Tuesday evenings and Saturday mornings on alternate weeks – need to check which week is which

East New York

- Christian Cultural Center (East New York)
  - Major existing pantry – we bought them equipment and supplied more food, which enabled them to extend their operating hours.
  - Operate Thursday from 9 am – 2 pm.
- Pink Houses Pop-up (East New York)
  - Pop-up pantry at a large public housing complex
  - Operating hours forthcoming

Other neighborhoods

- La Puerta Estrecha (Washington Heights catchment area – technically Inwood)
  - New pantry that we funded in a large church. Early successful Plentiful adopter, committed to client service.
  - Operate Saturday at 10 am.

Nazareth Housing (Grand Concourse)

- Existing pantry in a CBO that significantly increased the amount of food distributed, and converted to client choice. They doubled their service hours.
- Operate Wednesday 8:30 am
- Grant Street Settlement Pop-up pantry (Lower East Side)
  - New pop-up pantry at an existing CBO
  - Operating hours forthcoming

David and Barbara,

If we solidify the potential Wednesday morning slot, we will reserve a conference room to host everyone here at the Helmsley Charitable Trust. We're here in the Helmsley Building, right by Grand Central, at 230 Park Avenue, Suite 569.

Yes it's Nikita Stewart. She wants to file the story by the end of next week
She also wants to profile three of the neighborhoods where we added capacity we were planning to figure out which through those are on the 8 a.m. call tomorrow.
I'm on my way out of town but will be available

Hi all,

Reconnecting with this communications-minded group, so we can catch BerlinRosen up to speed on this afternoon's developments!

Aaron and Tim – It does not look like a Mayor's event will take place, but we do still have an interview lined up with NYT. David – I assume this is with Nikita Stewart?

Tomorrow at 8am, several members of the Collaborative will have a planning call to discuss the NYT interview. Aaron or Tim – Are you free to join? Next week (date/time TBD), everyone will come to Helmsley for an in-person group interview with the NYT reporter. For Helmsley, our spokesperson will either be Tracy or our CEO Stephanie, so we will need to think about talking points for them for next week.

Per our plan, I believe we can then move forward with our other pitches to various innovation/tech/philanthropy outlets, once we have a sense of when this NYT story will run.

Thanks, all!

Hi David and Barbara,

I hope you are well and have each retained two functioning retinas after yesterday's eclipse!

Thank you again for continuing to push the NYT/Mayor's event plan forward, David. We're all quite excited about the vision there and the potential to boost the work! I trust that you have what you need in terms of data, etc., but please say the word if there's anything we can pass along.

With input from Helmsley and BerlinRosen, below is a proposal for how we might work together alongside (and after) the current NYT/Mayor's event effort, to achieve the remaining parts of the comms strategy. Specifically:

- David continues work to pitch Nikita Stewart at the NYT, tied closely to an event that he seeks to coordinate with the Mayor and the Collaborative at a food pantry. This story and event shouldn't be scooped by other pitches, so all other media outreach will hold until after that.
- Ahead of the Mayor event, David can confirm if Nikita is able to cover it. If not, BR can make a push with other NYT reporters and other press in the lead up, day-of, and after the Mayor event.
- Assuming the NYT story and Mayor event happen, BR can pitch NYT Fixes (or similar outlets in NPR or elsewhere) as well as other tech outlets about Plentiful after the event.
- David can pitch some of the very local, neighborhood-level outlets for Collaborative stories.
- Separately, BR can pursue a general pitch to the Chronicle of Philanthropy about Helmsley and the Collaborative.

How does this look to you, David and Barbara? If this is in line with your thinking, BerlinRosen is ready to start pulling together pitches and doing target mapping for the later work, while your teams move the event and NYT piece into motion.

With appreciation,

Good evening,
Edits below. Thank you!

Fordham Road Evangelical Lutheran Church Remarks

- Good Morning, everyone! What a WARM welcome.
- FIRST, I give honor to GOD.
- Through the written word and the spoken word, may we know your living word – so we may serve you now and always.
- Thank you Rev. Jonathan Recabarren [WRECK-a-barren] and your wonderful wife First Lady Vilma Recabarren for all the work you do to create a stronger and safer community. You do so much to build bridges between the faith community and local police. And I praise you for leading the gun buy back programs to get guns off our streets.
- I also thank you Reverend for the incredibly moving eulogy you gave Officer Miosotis Familia, who was taken from us while protecting this community.
- And State Senator Gustavo Rivera, thank you for your great public service to our City and State.
- And thank you Fordham Road!
- You know, Coretta Scott King – a woman of extraordinary faith – once said that, “The greatness of a community is most accurately measured by the compassionate actions of its members.”
- The COMPASSIONATE WORK of this community reminds me just how much her words still ring true.
- I’ve been working very hard these last years on ThriveNYC. Tell me, how many people in this room have been affected by mental health; either directly or through a loved one? Please raise your hands.
- ThriveNYC is what we call the umbrella of mental health programs that provide vital services to New Yorkers and their families who need help.
- We’re just getting started, but I’m pleased to say that Thrive is already the most comprehensive mental health plan of any city or state in the nation.

- Because of ThriveNYC, we have a number ANY New Yorker can call FOR FREE, and get information or get connected to mental health services.
- You can call for yourself or you can call for a loved one. Do you know the number? It's 1-888-NYC Well.
- Because of ThriveNYC we now have some form of mental health support in ALL our schools.
- Because of Thrive we have maternal depression screenings for our new mothers, AND women who are expecting.
- And through Thrive, our city now provides mental health services at 25 of our largest senior centers.
- But, we aren't doing this work alone. We have some amazing community partners.
- Earlier this year, 2,000 congregations all across NYC devoted part of their services to talk about mental health during our city's Weekend of Faith for Mental Health!
- This is the kind of PROGRESS we need to change the culture around mental health — to help people understand how common and treatable mental illness and substance misuse are.
- And this is the work we must continue.
- That's why it's so important to re-elect my husband, Mayor Bill de Blasio.
- So please tell your friends how THEY can get involved – and why standing on the sidelines IS NOT an option.
- Thank you again for joining me here today and for your support in helping us build a better future for our City.
- Praise be to God, and may you have a blessed day!

Dear colleagues,

Thanks to many of you for participating on Friday's call to prepare for our interview with Nikita Stewart. It was very useful to align around a strategy together.

Following that discussion, Redstone agreed to provide several items to ensure that we are coordinated heading into the meeting. To that end, I'm attaching:

- A brief memo that includes:
  - The basic three-part agenda that we plan to use with Nikita
  - The arc of the Collaborative story that we hope to convey
  - Talking points for anticipated questions, including which organization will respond to each question
  - Recommended pantries for Nikita to visit (Appendix A)
- A short PowerPoint presentation to use during the meeting
- An Excel table outlining the data we used to select the first 12 priority neighborhoods

David will share the recommended pantries (Appendix A) and Excel table with Nikita tomorrow (Tue) – thanks, David!

If you have any suggestions on the PowerPoint or talking points, please share those with me before 12noon ET tomorrow (Tue). I will try to circulate a final version of both by 2pm ET tomorrow, before I board a flight back to NYC.

I look forward to seeing you all on Wednesday at 9:30 at the Trust!

TELLING THE COLLABORATIVE'S STORY TO THE NY TIMES

- NIKITA STEWART INTERVIEW PARTICIPANT BRIEF -

This brief prepares NYC Food Assistance Collaborative participants for an interview with Nikita Stewart of the NY Times on Wednesday, August 6th. It outlines out approach to the meeting, the narrative arc of the Collaborative story, and roles and talking points for meeting participants.

1. Our approach to the meeting

This interview provides an opportunity to build support for the Collaborative members' work among NYC philanthropic funders, local politicians, and thoughtful individual donors. To demonstrate the spirit of collaboration, representatives from Collaborative member organizations will conduct a group interview with a reporter on August 6th. The group interview will take place in three parts:

- A representative from Helmsley will open the meeting by describing their motivation for initiating the Collaborative (5 to 10 minutes).
- Redstone will provide an overview of the Collaborative's story, supported by slides (15 to 20 minutes – slides under separate cover).
- Collaborative member representatives will respond to the reporter's questions on different topics, as outlined below

2. The Collaborative's story

The story we hope to convey about the Collaborative contains four parts:

1. Helmsley convened the collaborative to solve a discrete problem within five years, through a one-time infusion of about $10 million in funds and support
2. The Collaborative came together to solve four problems that were impeding NYC's response to hunger:
  - a. The charitable food system was unusually complex, with multiple players and limited coordination
  - b. Food distribution was occurring inequitably across NYC neighborhoods
  - c. Metrics in use by key players did not account for improvements
  - d. And technology was quite limited across the system
3. Over the last three years, the Collaborative has achieved five major goals that address these problems. Specifically, it:
  - a. Established a common metric (supply gap) and information-sharing system (FeedNYC) to better match supply with need
  - b. Strengthened pantry capacity at over 60 programs to distribute safe, nutritious food
  - c. Increased food supply to 12 underserved areas

- d. Better served clients through technology and coordination (Plentiful)
  - e. Raised money for these improvements
4. The Collaborative is building on this success with four additional goals (CAP addendum)

3. Talking points for anticipated questions

1. Describe the origin of the Collaborative.

Respondent: Helmsley

Helmsley cares about the well-being of New Yorkers, and has made major investments to improve the lives of New Yorkers, through our NYC Regional Grants Program. With over a million food insecure people living in NYC and a complex system of charitable food providers, there was a need to improve coordination and create a strong infrastructure for working together. As a relatively new funder, we also recognized the need to collaborate closely with other funders and stakeholders who know the City and its workings.

Our investment to launch the Collaborative assembled the major charitable food players to build on their expertise to create systems-level change. We recognized an opportunity to make one-time, time-limited investments to improve coordination among the City's food providers.

Now, with so many partners working closely together across the city, we feel delighted to have achieved our goal to improve the health and well-being of New Yorkers in need.

2. Which organizations are members of the Collaborative?

Barbara

The New York City Food Assistance Collaborative is a coalition of large charitable food distributors and funders in New York City, including City Harvest, United Way of NYC, NYC Mayor's Office of Food Policy, NYC Human Resources Administration's Emergency Food Assistance Program (EFAP), and NY State Dept. of Health's Hunger Prevention and Nutrition Assistance Program (HPNAP).

3. Is Food Bank involved?

Helmsley

The Collaborative would not have been nearly as successful if we had not had Food Bank at the table for the planning phase. They are an important player in NYC hunger relief, and their willingness to offer their perspectives, share information, and coordinate resulted in better plans. Food Bank chose not to participate in the implementation phase, but Collaborative members continue to coordinate with them as an important part of NYC's response to hunger.

4. Can you describe some of the challenges and successes of building EFP capacity?

Hannah

We have developed a systematic approach to investing in pantry capacity in underserved neighborhoods. We use information that Collaborative members have agreed to share – such as the amount of food being distributed to pantries in each neighborhood – to identify promising pantries and CBOs. Our capacity building staff conduct initial screening visits, to identify high-probability pantries. Then, members of all Collaborative organizations conduct day-long neighborhood visits, where we pile into a van to visit pantries, interview their leadership, size up their potential, and determine what kind of support we can provide them. These van trips have become a symbol of our work. They are efficient, strategic, and fun!

EFAP

One of the things that is a barrier for many pantries is a lack of reliable staff capacity. Running a high quality pantry requires dedicated capacity, week in and week out, yet many food pantries across the City are run by volunteers. Helmsley has provided much-needed funding for one-time costs like refrigerators and shelving, but they are unable to support ongoing staff costs. EFAP has tried to fill this gap, by allowing some of our annual funding for food programs to be used toward staff support and other ongoing administrative needs. This has been a boon for many pantries across the City.

City Harvest

One thing that we have discovered is that underserved neighborhoods often lack pantry infrastructure. It is not uncommon to visit a priority neighborhood and find very few pantries that have the capacity to grow. To increase the food flowing into these areas, we have had to rely on innovative distribution models, which is something that is a strategic priority for City Harvest. Through our Mobile Markets, which provide twice-a-month farmers' market-style distributions, or pop-up pantry models that utilize temporary infrastructure, we have been able to meet the needs of more of our priority neighborhoods.

Barbara

NYC is a city of immigrants, and many of the pantries in our priority neighborhoods serve immigrant families. Often, the pantry directors and volunteers speak a different language than the pantry clients, which creates a communication challenge. In partnership with the NYC Office of Immigrant Affairs, the Collaborative has been able to recruit multi-lingual pantry volunteers to match gaps in language capacity that we uncover in the field.

5. Describe some of the efficiencies you have you seen as a result of this work.

United Way

Before the Collaborative decided to invest in sharing information, a food pantry in NYC might be visited by site visitors from as many as five organizations, each with a slightly different set of questions and requirements. One of the things we did as a Collaborative was to compare these questions, and we found that there were over 400 unique questions that a single pantry might be asked. What's more, each time a site visitor came to an agency, they would ask these questions afresh, even though the answers were unlikely to change. Through concerted effort, we got this down to about 50 common questions, and through the technology of FeedNYC.org, we now have an electronic form that pre-populates the most recent site-visit data, to eliminate hours of useless data gathering. Our site visitors can now spend their time helping pantries accomplish their goals of serving more New Yorkers.

City Harvest

Another improvement is our common approach to assessing the capacity of food pantries. We agreed on five categories that we all care about – compliance, client dignity, distribution efficiency, resilience, and access to other services – and our common site visit form captures information about each of these. And we built simple reporting tools that allow our site visitors to create a simple report that illustrates a pantry’s capacity on each of those dimensions.

EFAP

Another improvement is our ability to see inequity in the types of foods that different pantries and neighborhoods receive. EFAP makes bulk orders of certain products, which are made available to nearly every pantry across the city. Prior to the Collaborative, we had limited insight into what kinds of food other distributors were providing. However, with shared data, we have been able to identify gaps in certain product types – such as dairy – and to see that some neighborhoods receive a far lower percentage of high-value foods like protein and fresh produce. We now think about how to fill those gaps when we are preparing our bulk orders.

6. How will you ensure continued funding? Will Helmsley keep supporting this?

Helmsley

From the very beginning of the Collaborative, we have planned for Helmsley’s exit given the premise of our NYC program, which is that we seek to solve specific and time-bound problems across in a variety of settings. That is why we sought guidance from the major funders of the charitable food system, including Robin Hood, Tisch, NY Community Trust, Clark, and Starr in developing a vision for the Collaborative. It is also why we have continued to engage these funders in the process for the last three years, as well as other key stakeholders, to help ensure ongoing success. We expect the core investments of the Collaborative to be sustained in different ways. For instance, FeedNYC will continue to be supported by the NYS Department of Health, and food increases to priority neighborhoods will continue to be a part of budget planning for participating institutions. We also believe, as do our colleagues around the table, that this collaboration can support more improvements to the charitable food system, if additional funding and support can be identified.

7. How did the idea of Plentiful come about?

City Harvest

Most pantries have not changed their approach to distribution in thirty years. They rely on pen and paper sign-in sheets. They use a telephone to communicate individually with their clients. And they are run by time-strapped volunteers. The result is that families seeking charitable food have to wait in long lines to get food.

When the Collaborative looked into technology solutions to solve these problems, we found an array of products that are designed to make it easier for pantries – variations on Salesforce for food pantries. But there were two problems: most pantries don’t have the capacity to operate complex client management systems, and even if they did, these systems do little to improve the experience of clients. So, we decided to create something new that would meet the pantries needs and improve the experience for clients, by eliminating lines, which is how we came up with Plentiful.

Our investment in Plentiful is at an earlier stage than our capacity building work. While our initial results are that pantries and clients really like it, we have many questions still to answer about how to make it a long-term success.

8. How will changes to federal food legislation or SNAP cuts affect the Collaborative?

Barbara

SNAP cuts or other reductions in support for families using charitable food would be devastating to millions of New Yorkers. But the actual need for charitable food today in NYC is already more than double the amount of food that is currently provided. So, we are accustomed to making efficient use of limited resources.

9. How is the Collaborative different from the Policy Committee?

EFAP

The Collaborative's work builds on the long-term efforts of the Policy Committee on NYC Hunger Resources. For instance, the Policy Committee built the original FeedNYC, and has convened a similar group of players since the 1990s. The Collaborative – through support from Helmsley and Redstone – has been able to take advantage of significant one-time resources, to make a substantial impact on problems that the Policy Committee has discussed for many years.

Appendix A: Recommended pantries

The following is a list of pantries in Collaborative priority neighborhoods that received notable investments to establish or expand service. They represent pantries with operating hours during the week of Sep. 4th, and with pantry directors that are likely to provide an interesting and compelling perspective on the problem of hunger in NYC and the Collaborative's work.

Flushing

- South Asian Council on Social Services is a new pantry in an existing CBO specializing in serving South Asian communities. Investments include renovations and startup support.
  - Fridays, 11 am – 1 pm, or during non-distribution times since they have full-time staff
- La Jornada is a large pantry in the historic St. George's Episcopal Church. Collaborative investments helped the pantry to distribute more food and convert to a client choice model.
  - Saturdays, 1 pm – 3 pm
- YWCA of Queens operates a new 'pop-up pantry' within an existing CBO. It specializes in serving Korean and Chinese communities.
  - 1st Saturdays, 10 am – 12 pm

Jackson Heights/Elmhurst

- Evangelical Church Christ is the Light is an existing pantry. Collaborative investments helped it to double food distribution, convert to client choice, and pilot Plentiful.
  - Fridays, 9 am- 11 am
- Salvation Army Queens Temple Corps is a small pantry with soup kitchen that we transitioned to client choice and helped to increase the quantity of food distributed.
  - Wednesdays, 9 – 10 am, or during non-distribution times since they have full-time staff

Borough Park

- Masbia of Boro Park is part of the Masbia network, which serves Jewish and non-Jewish clients. Collaborative investments funded the renovation for an expanded new site that houses both a client choice pantry and soup kitchen.
  - Thursdays, 8 am – 12noon
- Goke operates a very diverse pantry line in the Borough Park catchment area. Collaborative investments helped expand cold storage and distribution equipment, provide access to fresh produce from City Harvest, double the amount of food distributed, and launch Plentiful.
  - 1st & 3rd Tuesdays, 6:30 pm - 7:30 pm, and 2nd & 4th Saturdays 11 am – 2 pm

East New York

- Christian Cultural Center is a major existing pantry. Our investments bought new equipment and more food, to enable extended operating hours.
  - Thursdays, 9 am – 2 pm
- Pink Houses Pop-up, is a new pop-up pantry in a large public housing complex.

- 2nd & 4th Tuesdays, 10 am – 12 pm

Other neighborhoods

- La Puerta Estrecha in Inwood is a new pantry in a large church. They were an early Plentiful adopter and are committed to client service.
  - Saturday, 10 am – 12 pm
- Nazareth Housing in Grand Concourse is an existing pantry in a CBO that significantly increased food distributed, doubled service hours, and converted to client choice.
  - Wednesdays, 8:30 – 10:30am
- Grant Street Settlement Pop-up pantry in the Lower East Side is a new pop-up pantry that was started within an existing CBO
  - 2nd Mondays, 10 am – 12 pm

The Collaborative Story

NEW YORK CITY
Food Assistance Collaborative

Interview with Nikita Stewart

Wed, Sep 6, 2017

The Collaborative was formed to tackle hunger in NYC

- Began three years ago (early 2015)
- Set ambitious goal to increase equity and efficiency in charitable food distribution
- Includes major players in hunger reduction in NYC
- Received seed funding from the Helmsley Charitable Trust

The NYC charitable food system was unusually complex

3 main suppliers

900+ local agencies

~60% of agencies receive food from multiple suppliers

- Most cities have one supplier, but NYC had three, with limited coordination
- Suppliers serving the same agencies had no insight into what others were supplying
- Each supplier had its own inspection process, with many redundancies

Charitable food distribution was inequitable

2014 neighborhood food need vs. supply, $ millions

Previous measures only tracked need

Imagine a neighborhood with a meal gap of $2.5 million

Local pantries and kitchens provide over $1 million in charitable food

Yet, the measure of need remains high and the major success is not evident

A vintage computer monitor and keyboard are visible on the left side of the slide. The monitor is a CRT type with a dark bezel and a light-colored frame. The keyboard is a full-sized, dark-colored keyboard with light-colored keys. The background is a soft, out-of-focus light color.

And technology in the system was quite limited

- Multiple databases of overlapping information across organizations
- Pen and paper forms for pantry visits
- Paper sign-in sheets for clients at most pantries
- Unreliable, self-reported data on clients served at pantries

The Collaborative has achieved five major goals

Established a common metric and information-sharing system to better match supply with need

Strengthened pantry capacity to distribute safe, nutritious food

Increased food supply to underserved areas

Better served clients through technology and coordination

Raised money for these improvements

We agreed on a “supply gap” to measure our success

Meal gap

unaffected by charitable food programs)

Supply

charitable food
programs)

Supply gap

(common
food success)

And selected 12 neighborhoods to address inequities

Criteria for priority neighborhoods

SG High supply gaps

Vulnerable populations (e.g., undocumented immigrants)

Significant SNAP cuts

Difficult access to existing agencies

Insufficient retail availability of nutritious food

Coverage across the five boroughs

We analyzed investment needs in each neighborhood

Investments include:

- Starting new pantries where there are none
- Upgrading storage, especially for fresh food
- Adding more distribution hours
- Using alternative distribution methods (e.g., mobile vehicles) for hard-to-reach areas

Map of all charitable food agencies and supermarkets in Jackson Heights-Elmhurst, one of our priority neighborhoods

○ Likely pantries for investment

And are increasing capacity at 60+ pantries

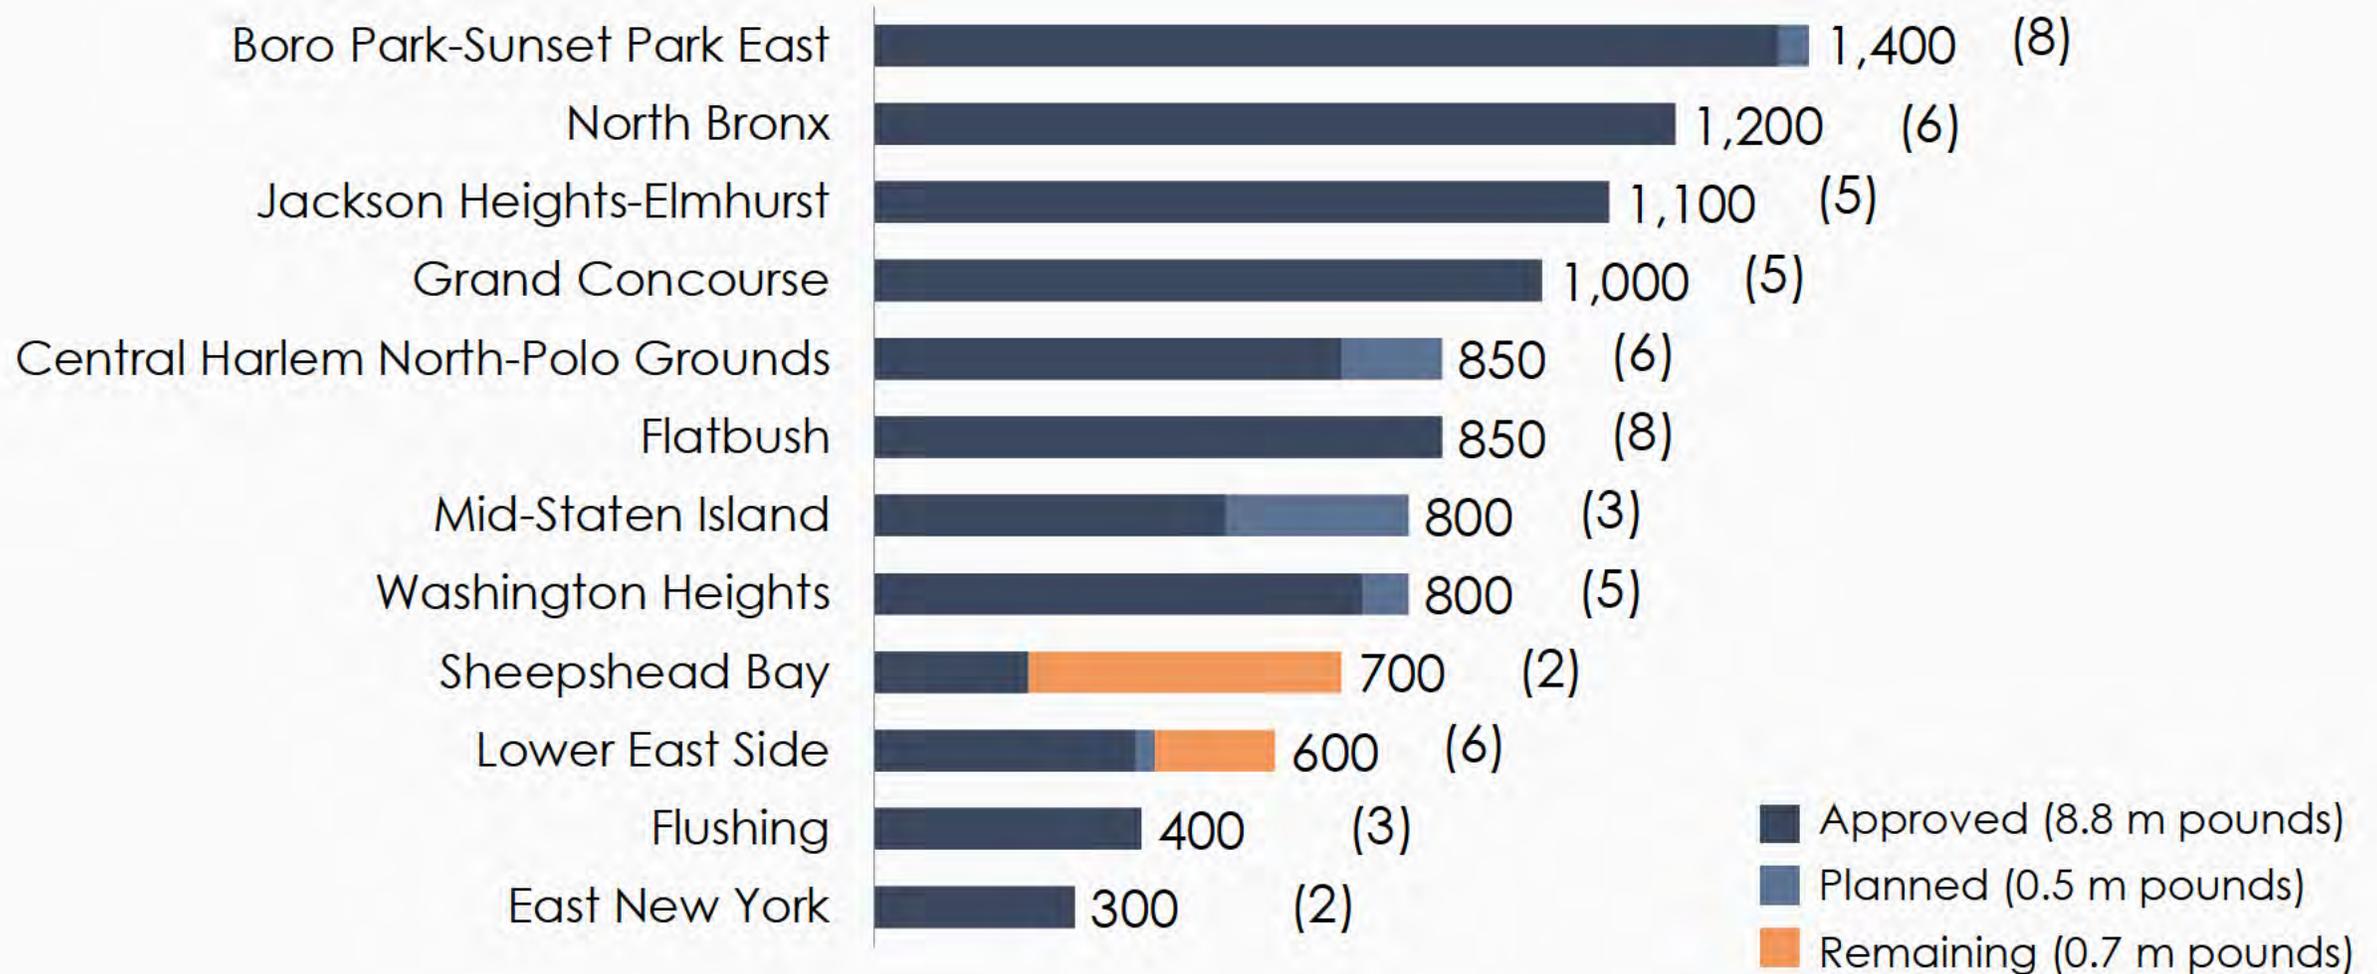

-  3 new mobile vehicles serving 45 sites
-  16 new pantries
-  40 expanded pantries
-  Additional investments TBD

Illustrative locations of new and expanded pantries

We are also adding 10 million pounds of new food

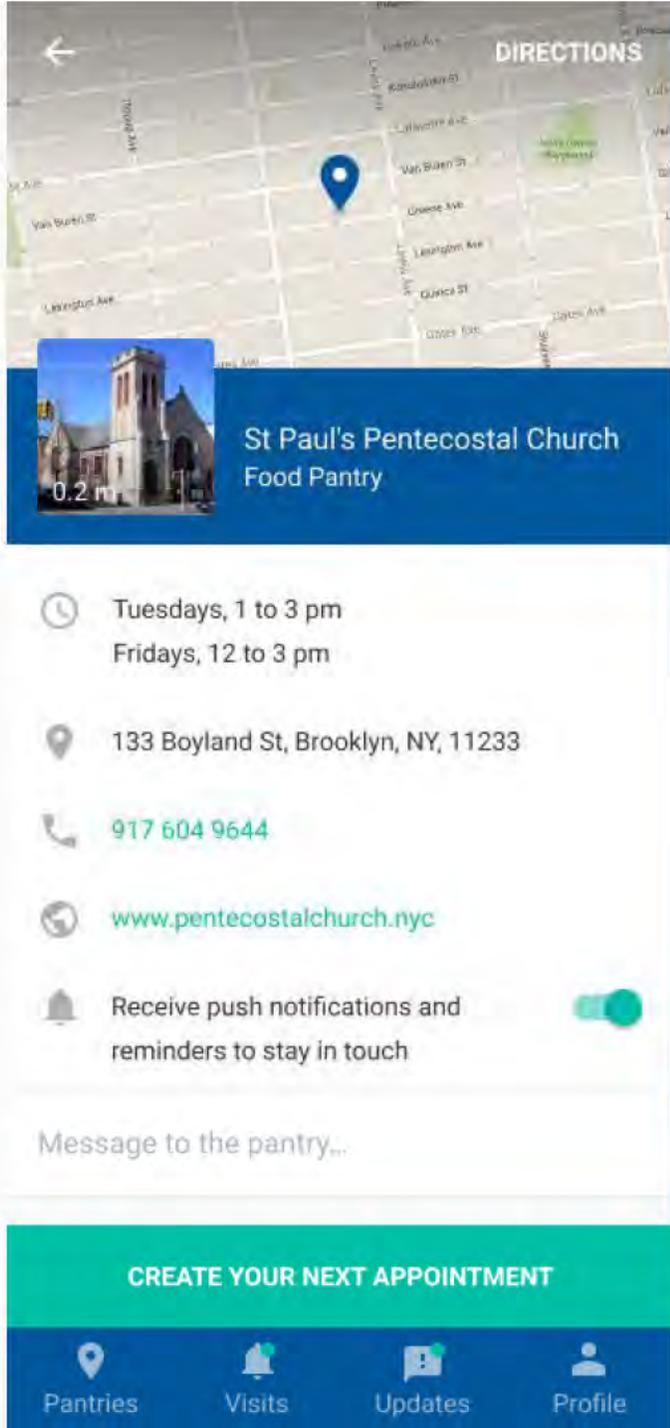

Thousands of pounds (number of EFPs)

We enhanced FeedNYC.org to share crucial information

- More-detailed monthly information about food supply
- Shared reporting on system-wide metrics
- Shared profiles of each pantry

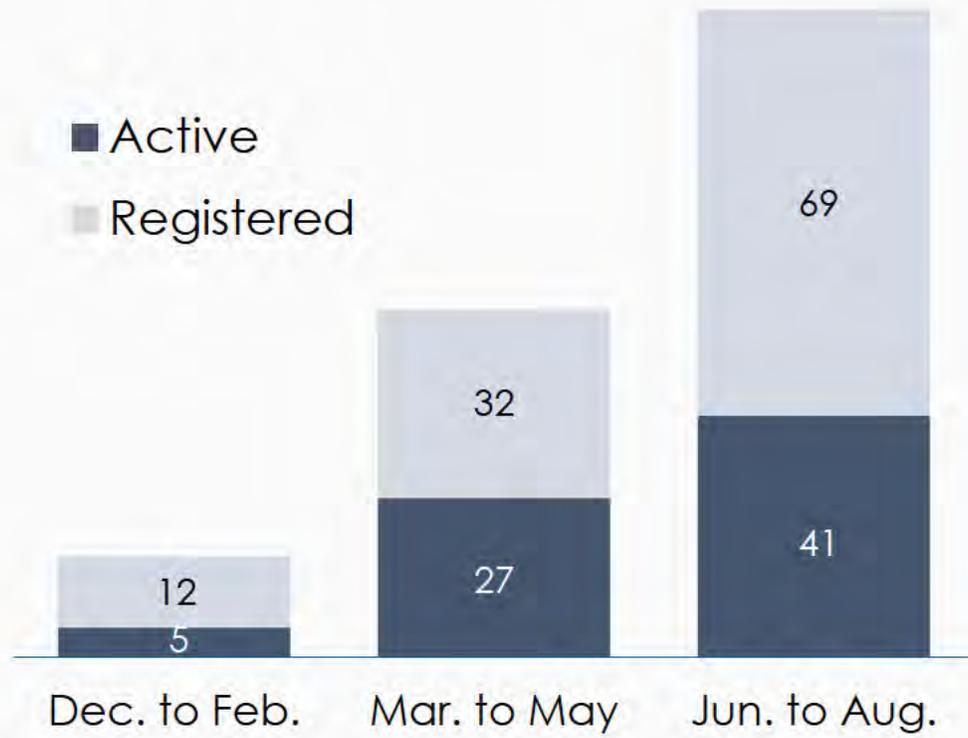

We also built Plentiful to improve client dignity

Plentiful is simple mobile technology that:

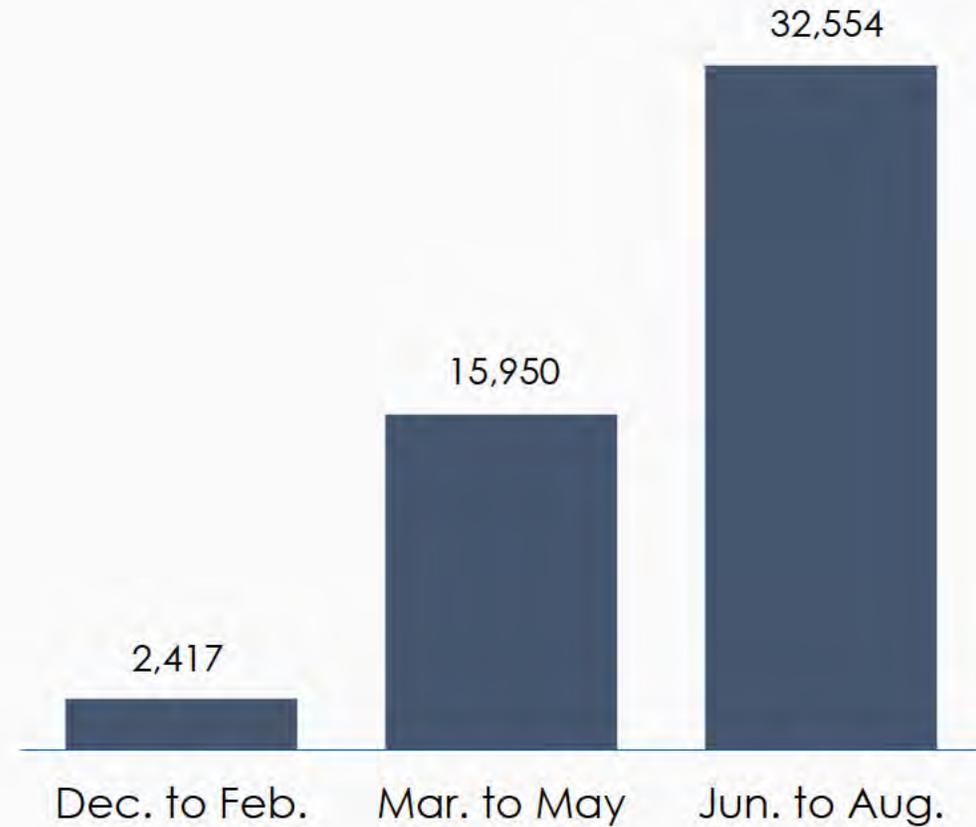

- Enables better customer service at pantries
- Improves the reliability of service statistics
- Enables a better understanding of client travel patterns

Pantries have loved Plentiful, and we see rapid adoption

Registered and active pantries

Households served

Finally, Helmsley's investments have catalyzed new spending

One-time investments by Helmsley

100% = $9.8m

Ongoing resources catalyzed

Over $15 million of new annual food commitments, including:

- Nearly $8 million of high value EFAP food
- Over 6 million new pounds of fresh food from City Harvest
- $1 million in flexible food funding from United Way

Countless other improvements for pantries and the New Yorkers they serve

We are now building on success with four additional goals

- Build capacity in six additional neighborhoods to bring them to the city-wide average

- Make the network more resilient by providing intensive capacity building to high-potential programs

- Enhance client service and dignity across the network by improving language access and gathering client feedback

- Set the Collaborative up for ongoing success through ongoing coordination and effective implementation roles

Dear colleagues,

Thanks to many of you for participating on Friday's call to prepare for our interview with Nikita Stewart. It was very useful to align around a strategy together.

Following that discussion, Redstone agreed to provide several items to ensure that we are coordinated heading into the meeting. To that end, I'm attaching:

- A brief memo that includes:
  - The basic three-part agenda that we plan to use with Nikita
  - The arc of the Collaborative story that we hope to convey
  - Talking points for anticipated questions, including which organization will respond to each question
  - Recommended pantries for Nikita to visit (Appendix A)
- A short PowerPoint presentation to use during the meeting
- An Excel table outlining the data we used to select the first 12 priority neighborhoods

David will share the recommended pantries (Appendix A) and Excel table with Nikita tomorrow (Tue) – thanks, David!

If you have any suggestions on the PowerPoint or talking points, please share those with me before 12noon ET tomorrow (Tue). I will try to circulate a final version of both by 2pm ET tomorrow, before I board a flight back to NYC.

I look forward to seeing you all on Wednesday at 9:30 at the Trust!

Heads up. Nikita says she will be asking a completely unrelated question about the Daily News story about the Dept of Education sending bad chicken to homeless shelters.

Here is the story if you have not seen it:

from the story:

“Rather than toss the drumsticks, education officials told the distributors to give the chicken to the Food Bank for New York City and City Harvest.”

“Representatives from Somma Foods and City Harvest did not respond to requests for comment. A food bank official said his group did not have the chicken.”

One question we will need to be able to discuss is how we selected the 12 priority areas since the data seems to indicate that we left off some very high need areas with low current supply.

Cornell Tech Campus Opens on Roosevelt Island, Marking Transformational Milestone for Tech in NYC

Cornell Tech is reinventing graduate research and education focused on digital technologies and their impact on individuals, society and the economy

Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute at Cornell Tech is a new kind of global academic partnership on research, education and technology commercialization

Transformational new campus is the first ever built for the digital age, reimagining academic space and pioneering new standards in sustainability and energy efficiency

NEW YORK CITY – Cornell Tech today celebrated the official opening of its campus on Roosevelt Island with a dedication event attended by New York Governor Andrew Cuomo, New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio, former mayor Mike Bloomberg, Cornell University President Martha Pollack, Technion President Peretz Lavie and Cornell Tech Dean Daniel Huttenlocher. Cornell Tech is the first campus ever built for the digital age, bringing together academia and industry to create pioneering leaders and transformational new research, products, companies and social ventures. Today marks the opening of the first phase of the Roosevelt Island campus, which features some of the most environmentally friendly and energy efficient buildings in the world.

In 2011, Cornell Tech was named the winner of Mayor Mike Bloomberg’s Administration’s visionary Applied Sciences Competition, designed with the goal of diversifying the economy and creating a national hub for tech. The City estimated the new campus would generate up to 8,000 permanent jobs, hundreds of spin-off companies and more than $23 billion in economic activity over the next 30 years.

“Cornell Tech is the latest in Cornell University’s great impact on and history in New York,” said Cornell University President Martha Pollack. “We’re proud to share this historic milestone with our partners at the Technion. The new campus is a modern day land grant institution -- just like our founding in Ithaca -- and it is our strong commitment to give back to New York. At Cornell Tech, we have created a center for impact and innovation in New York City, spinning out our next great tech leaders, ideas, and the research that will drive change in the digital age.”

Quote from Peretz Lavie

Quote from Governor Cuomo

Quote from Mayor de Blasio

"Cornell Tech is an investment in the future of New York City — a future that belongs to the generations to come, and the students here will help build it. Technological innovation played a central role in New York City becoming a global economic capital – and it must continue to play a central role for New York to remain a global economic capital. The companies and innovations spawned by Cornell Tech graduates will generate jobs for people across the economic spectrum and help our city compete with tech centers around the world, from Silicon Valley to Seoul," said Mike Bloomberg.

"I'm thrilled that the Cornell Tech campus is finally opening on Roosevelt Island," said Congresswoman Carolyn B. Maloney. "With its proximity to Manhattan and to industrial space in Western Queens, Roosevelt Island is the perfect setting for an educational institution, which is why I worked hard to ensure that it was selected when the City was considering locations for the new applied science campus. Cornell Tech will help us diversify our economic base and bring jobs through new startups. A New York school generates New York businesses and employs New Yorkers. As students are welcomed to the new campus, we know this is just the beginning – and that the future for this institution will be bright."

"As our world becomes more tech centered, the Cornell Tech campus will allow New York City to be at the heart of the innovation, leadership -- and most importantly, jobs -- in this space. This campus will bring academics, research and business together and educate the bright minds of our future. I look forward to seeing all that Cornell Tech has to offer our City, and to working with Cornell Tech to ensure that New Yorkers from every corner of our City benefit from this world-class institution," said Public Advocate Letitia James.

Academic Program & Research

Cornell Tech started up in a temporary space generously provided by Google and has already graduated more than 300 masters and doctoral students, with most entering the New York City tech sector after graduation by joining local companies or starting their own. Masters students across all programs -- computer science, law, business, electrical engineering, operations research, connective media and health tech -- spend time learning and working collaboratively together in a Studio curriculum with extensive engagement with the tech industry. The projects students pursue in the Studio encourage them to practice entrepreneurship, product design, tech and public policy, management and other skills, helping them graduate with tangible, marketable experience and a portfolio of completed work that will help launch their career.

Cornell Tech's 30-member faculty has launched cutting-edge research groups in the areas of Human-Computer Interaction and Social Computing, Security and Privacy, Artificial Intelligence, Data and Modeling, and Business, Law and Policy. All of the faculty have a focus on applied research and having a real world impact.

“We are entering a new era for tech in New York, and the Cornell Tech campus is at the heart of it. Cornell Tech was given the rare opportunity to create a campus and academic program from scratch. The opening of our new campus brings together academic disciplines critical to the digital transformation of society and the economy, together with companies, early stage investors, and government to spark innovation and help improve lives of people throughout the City, country and world,” said Cornell Tech Dean Daniel Huttenlocher.

Quote from Bob Harrison

The Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute at Cornell Tech is a unique academic partnership of two leading global universities, the Technion Israel Institute of Technology and Cornell. The Institute houses the Health Tech and Connective Media programs, where students receive dual degrees from Cornell and the Technion, and the Jacobs Runway Startup Postdoc program for recent tech PhDs. The Runway program has been responsible for about half of the more than 30 companies that have spun out of Cornell Tech campus with more than $20 million in funds raised and employing more than 100 people.

Quote from Ron Brachman

Campus

Cornell Tech’s mission of collaboration and innovation is reflected in the physical design of its Roosevelt Island campus. It is a new type of urban campus that provides space to think, but is also integrated—in both mission and design—with the city. The campus master plan was designed by Skidmore, Owings & Merrill and includes a number of innovative features and facilities across a river-to-river campus with expansive views, a series of green, public spaces and a seamless integration of indoor and outdoor areas. The campus has some of the most environmentally friendly and energy efficient buildings in the world.

Quote from SOM

The first phase of the campus includes:

The Emma and Georgina Bloomberg Center is the first academic building on campus. Cornell University received a $100 million gift from Bloomberg Philanthropies in 2014 for the building. Designed by Pritzker Prize-winning architect Thom Mayne of Morphosis Architects, the building is a departure from traditional academic facilities with an open plan and extensive collaborative as well as private work spaces, adapting open plan offices from the tech world to the academic arena. Cornell is aspiring for the building to be among the largest net-zero energy buildings in the United States, with all of its power generated on campus. Art is a key component of The Bloomberg Center, with newly commissioned works throughout the building by artists Alison Elizabeth Taylor, Michael Riedel, Matthew Ritchie and Matthew Day Jackson. The building also features a ground-floor cafe and a custom room that houses a Works Projects Administration (WPA) Federal Art Project mural by Ilya Bolotowsky, from the decommissioned Goldwater Memorial Hospital previously on the Cornell Tech site which has been carefully restored.

Quote from Morphosis

The Bridge, designed by Weiss/Manfredi and developed by Forest City New York, is a first-of-its-kind building that houses an extraordinary mix of cutting-edge companies working alongside groundbreaking Cornell academic teams: from recent Cornell Tech graduates hustling to commercialize a new idea, to start-ups on the verge of explosive growth and established companies developing leading edge technologies and products. Tech and investment firm Two Sigma is opening a Collision Lab in the building where engineers from its R&D team will tackle difficult challenges away from the company's main campus and interact with innovative start-up companies backed by Two Sigma Ventures. Citigroup is taking space to engage with Cornell University students, faculty, researchers, startups and other companies and create closer ties between academia and industry. Ferrero International S.A., the Italian confectionary group and one of the world's largest manufacturers of chocolates, is taking space for its Open Innovation Science division to explore digital age innovation in the food industry.

"By bringing academia and industry together under one roof at The Bridge, we are driving innovation and economic growth for New York," said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. "The Bridge is welcoming an incredible mix of companies who want to work alongside some of the top tech talent New York City has to offer, and get a competitive advantage to bring their ideas and new products to market."

Quote from Weiss/Manfredi

The House, designed by Handel Architects and developed by The Hudson Companies and Related Companies, is the tallest and largest residential Passive House high-rise in the world. Passive House is the strict international building standard that drastically reduces energy consumption while creating a healthier and more comfortable living environment for a fraction of residents' usual energy costs. Cornell faculty, staff and students live at The House, giving the campus 24/7 activity.

"We are very excited to bring this first of its kind building to the New York City market. We have been humbled to be a part of this amazing campus, working with an incredible team of architects, engineers and contractors," said David Kramer, President of The Hudson Companies. "We hope that The House can serve as a model for other developments to continue to build big, build more sustainably and push the (super sealed) envelope."

Quote from Handel

Quote from Related

Open space, designed by James Corner Field Operations anchors the campus, fostering collaboration and innovation while simultaneously inviting the public into the campus. The campus is a river-to-river experience, engaging Roosevelt Island's esplanade and extraordinary water frontage maximizing views of Manhattan and Queens. The Tech Walk is a quarter-mile long central spine creating a gateway to the campus and featuring a series of active and social spaces linked by pedestrian pathways. Throughout the campus, outdoor and indoor spaces are synergistically connected to allow people to move easily and comfortably in and out during the course of the day.

Quote from JCFO

Later this fall, Cornell Tech will begin construction on the Verizon Executive Education Center and Graduate Roosevelt Island Hotel, targeted for opening in 2019, providing a venue for academic conferences, executive programs and academic workshops.

When fully completed over the next few decades, the 12-acre campus will be home to more than 2,000 graduate students and hundreds of faculty and staff.

Commitment to Community: Building a More Diverse and Inclusive Tech Talent Pipeline

Cornell Tech is committed to having an impact beyond its campus, and to build and diversify New York City's tech talent pipeline so that more people can share in the rapid growth of the tech economy. Fulfilling its promise to New York City to spur K-12 tech education, the campus has partnered with more than a dozen local schools, including PS/IS 217 on Roosevelt Island, and is coordinating professional development opportunities for teachers to gain experience in incorporating tech thinking into their teaching. To date, Cornell Tech has impacted over 5,000 students and 350 teachers. Cornell Tech is also committed to building and diversifying the base of the technology talent in New York City. In partnership with CUNY and many tech companies in the city, Cornell Tech's Women in Technology and Entrepreneurship in New York (WiTNY) program provides the access, incentives and support needed for girls and women to succeed in the tech industry. To date, the curriculum has been implemented at more than a dozen CUNY campuses with 2,000 students impacted each year.

New York City Applied Sciences Competition

Cornell Tech was founded when the partnership of Cornell University and the Technion were selected in December of 2011 as the winner of New York City's visionary Applied Sciences NYC initiative, created under Mayor Mike Bloomberg and Deputy Mayor Robert Steel. The Economic Development Corporation, then led by Executive Director Seth Pinsky, sought proposals for a university or partnership to develop and operate a new or expanded campus in the City in exchange for City capital, access to City-owned land and the full support and partnership of City government. Cornell Tech's proposal was selected ahead of submissions from 17 world-class institutions from around the globe. The Cornell Tech proposal was selected by the City as the first winner of the competition and was provided with land on Roosevelt Island and $100 million in City capital to build the $2 billion, 2 million square foot tech campus.

About Cornell Tech

Cornell Tech brings together faculty, business leaders, tech entrepreneurs and students in a catalytic environment to produce visionary results grounded in significant needs that will reinvent the way we live in the digital age. The Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute embodies the academic partnership between the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology and Cornell University on the Cornell Tech campus.

From 2012-2017, the campus was temporarily located in Google's New York City building. In fall 2017, 30 world-class faculty and about 300 graduate students moved to the first phase of Cornell Tech's permanent campus on Roosevelt Island, continuing to conduct groundbreaking research, collaborate extensively with tech-oriented companies and organizations and pursue their own startups. When fully completed, the campus will include two million square feet of state-of-the-art buildings, over two acres of open space, and will be home to more than 2,000 graduate students and hundreds of faculty and staff.

What food bank told the New York Times that they were part of creating the plan and that one of the places that was discovered to have a gap is Hunts Point in the Bronx where they have their warehouse and they found that embarrassing and decided to focus on the neighborhood. They also said there are a lot of homeless people in shelter there who can not use pantries so they are setting up a kitchen in a church in the area.

Commissioner Banks pointed out to the reporter that most of the homeless clients in that area are in cluster Apartments where they would have their own kitchens. Like many other people receiving food stamps they may well run out of food and need to go to a pantry. But they would have a kitchen. Other than that he only had praise for food bank and its participation with the collaborative.

He also made clear that the city's ability to expand its own emergency food program is only possible because of the capacity expansion work done through the great public-private partnership the food assistance collaborative

Nikita says the story May run Monday which would mean it would be possibly online Sunday night

Commissioner Banks will be talking briefly to Nikita Stewart Saturday morning. Nikita was scheduled to speak to the head of Food Bank and if necessary we want to be able to respond to anything said.

Other than that his goal is to talk about the importance of the collaborative along these lines:

People have been fighting hunger in New York City for years and now thanks to the New York City Food Assistance Collaborative, all the agencies involved, funders, providers and pantries, have a greater ability to respond efficiently and effectively to the need and to feed more New Yorkers.

I will report on this conversation. Nikita says she is planning to file Saturday.

Jeremy, calling you on the release. In meantime, Mayor Bill de Blasio quote:

“As we work to keep New York City a leader in the 21st Century economy, we celebrate the opening of the Cornell Tech campus and the opportunities it opens up for our city and our people. I am proud to welcome our newest leading educational institution, which will become a tremendous catalyst for our tech sector. We won’t stop here. Though Computer Science for All, the Tech Talent Pipeline and the new Union Square Tech Hub, we are building on the progress Mayor Bloomberg set in motion, and helping more New Yorkers become a part of this extraordinary success story.”

NYN BUZZ:

* The New York State Health Foundation has a broad mission to improve the health of all New Yorkers, especially the most vulnerable. NYSHealth's efforts are concentrated on specific priority and focus areas, but to ensure flexibility and responsiveness to other important health issues, the Special Projects Fund supports projects that are outside of those areas. All projects must have an impact on New Yorkers either at a local, regional, or statewide level. Special Projects Fund awards should be considered one-time, nonrenewable funding opportunities. NYSHealth issues two funding cycles for its Special Projects Fund through a request for proposals each year. See the detailed 2018 Special Projects Fund RFP here.

* On Tuesday, Nov. 7, the Elton John AIDS Foundation will host its annual New York Fall Gala at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City. This year's gala commemorates the Foundation's 25th year and honors Founder Sir Elton John. President Bill Clinton, Governor Andrew M. Cuomo, Sharon Stone, and others will pay tribute to Elton John's achievements as a philanthropist and humanitarian. The legendary Aretha Franklin will be the special musical guest, along with performances by violinist Joshua Bell and Broadway's The Lion King, featuring Heather Headley. Neil Patrick Harris will host the event.

CAREER MOVES:

* After a six-month executive search, the Board of Directors of Providence House, a nonprofit with nearly 40 years serving women and children in New York, has appointed Danielle Minelli Pagnotta, LMSW, to the role of Executive Director effective Sept. 11. Pagnotta joins Providence House following 12 years with the New York City Department of Homeless Services, most recently as Deputy Commissioner of Street Homeless Solutions. While at DHS she led a 85-member team to create and implement the Safe Haven housing model; increase transitional housing capacity by more than 1,200 units; and operate the street homeless program continuum more than 25 City-wide, performance-based programs.

I wonder if folks would like to do a debrief on this article and the next tasks.

This story clearly had some positives and some very major disappointments.

I am considering giving the reporter some feedback and would be interested to hear what others think.

More important is how we can use this article to get more press.

Our list of tasks included getting a story about Helmsley in the press that covers foundations which I believe Berlin Rosen was going to handle.

and getting stories in local and ethnic media about specific pantries which we were going to take the lead on, though happy for suggestions and help.

Also, a story about Plentiful. We should firm up the plan for that.

How about a 2 pm phone call?

What food bank told the New York Times that they were part of creating the plan and that one of the places that was discovered to have a gap is Hunts Point in the Bronx where they have their warehouse and they found that embarrassing and decided to focus on the neighborhood. They also said there are a lot of homeless people in shelter there who can not use pantries so they are setting up a kitchen in a church in the area.

Commissioner Banks pointed out to the reporter that most of the homeless clients in that area are in cluster Apartments where they would have their own kitchens. Like many other people receiving food stamps they may well run out of food and need to go to a pantry. But they would have a kitchen. Other than that he only had praise for food bank and its participation with the collaborative.

He also made clear that the city's ability to expand its own emergency food program is only possible because of the capacity expansion work done through the great public-private partnership the food assistance collaborative

Nikita says the story May run Monday which would mean it would be possibly online Sunday night

Commissioner Banks will be talking briefly to Nikita Stewart Saturday morning. Nikita was scheduled to speak to the head of Food Bank and if necessary we want to be able to respond to anything said.

Other than that his goal is to talk about the importance of the collaborative along these lines:

People have been fighting hunger in New York City for years and now thanks to the New York City Food Assistance Collaborative, all the agencies involved, funders, providers and pantries, have a greater ability to respond efficiently and effectively to the need and to feed more New Yorkers.

I will report on this conversation. Nikita says she is planning to file Saturday.

Thanks, Melissa, these look fine. Only additional change, if we're saying 35 years on those numbers we will add a note that they were City estimates from 2011.

Made some changes, in blue, also highlighted – LMK if okay/not okay. Also, probably not my business by cut down the headers. So take or leave that, obviously
And then some factual changes.

- The $23 billion refers to 35 years of activity.
- Small point just for reference, the 8,000 jobs include direct and indirect jobs.
- There were multiple winners of the Applied Sciences initiative, so I swapped in 'one of the winners of the Applied Sciences NYC initiative.
- Also Pinsky was President of EDC not Exec Director

Cornell Tech Campus Opens on Roosevelt Island, Marking Transformational Milestone for Tech in NYC

New campus is the first ever built for the digital age, reimagining academic space and pioneering new standards in sustainability and energy efficiency

Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute at Cornell Tech is a new kind of global academic partnership on research, education and technology commercialization

NEW YORK CITY – Cornell Tech today celebrated the official opening of its campus on Roosevelt Island with a dedication event attended by New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio, former mayor Mike Bloomberg, New York Governor Andrew Cuomo, Cornell University President Martha Pollack, Technion President Peretz Lavie and Cornell Tech Dean Daniel Huttenlocher. Cornell Tech is the first campus ever built for the digital age, bringing together academia and industry to create pioneering leaders and transformational new research, products, companies and social ventures. Today marks the opening of the first phase of the Roosevelt Island campus, which features some of the most environmentally friendly and energy efficient buildings in the world.

In 2011, Cornell Tech was named the winner of the Bloomberg's Administration's visionary Applied Sciences Competition, designed with the goal of diversifying the economy and creating a national hub for tech. The project, managed by the City's Economic Development Corporation, has been carried forward by the de Blasio administration, with the campus breaking ground in 2015. The City estimates the new campus would generate up to 8,000 permanent jobs, hundreds of spin-off companies and more than $23 billion in economic activity over a period of 35 years. The campus is built on 12-acres of City land.

"Cornell Tech is the latest in Cornell University's great impact on and history in New York," said Cornell University President Martha Pollack. "We're proud to share this historic milestone with our partners at the Technion. The new campus is a modern day land grant institution -- just like our founding in Ithaca -- and it is our strong commitment to give back to New York. At Cornell Tech, we have created a center for impact and innovation in New York City, spinning out our next great tech leaders, ideas, and the research that will drive change in the digital age."

Quote from Peretz Lavie

"Cornell Tech is an investment in the future of New York City — a future that belongs to the generations to come, and the students here will help build it. Technological innovation played a central role in New York City becoming a global economic capital – and it must continue to play a central role for New York to remain a global economic capital. The companies and innovations spawned by Cornell Tech graduates will generate jobs for people across the economic spectrum and help our city compete with tech centers around the world, from Silicon Valley to Seoul," said Mike Bloomberg.

"As we work to keep New York City a leader in the 21st Century economy, we celebrate the opening of the Cornell Tech campus and the opportunities it opens up for our city and our people. I am proud to welcome our newest leading educational institution, which will become a tremendous catalyst for our tech sector. We won't stop here. Though Computer Science for All, the Tech Talent Pipeline and the new Union Square Tech Hub, we are building on the progress Mayor Bloomberg set in motion, and helping more New Yorkers become a part of this extraordinary success story," Mayor

Bill de Blasio said.

Quote from Governor Cuomo

"I'm thrilled that the Cornell Tech campus is finally opening on Roosevelt Island," said Congresswoman Carolyn B. Maloney. "With its proximity to Manhattan and to industrial space in Western Queens, Roosevelt Island is the perfect setting for an educational institution, which is which is why I worked hard to ensure that it was selected when the City was considering locations for the new applied science campus. Cornell Tech will help us diversify our economic base and bring jobs through new startups. A New York school generates New York businesses and employs New Yorkers. As students are welcomed to the new campus, we know this is just the beginning – and that the future for this institution will be bright."

"As our world becomes more tech centered, the Cornell Tech campus will allow New York City to be at the heart of the innovation, leadership -- and most importantly, jobs -- in this space. This campus will bring academics, research and business together and educate the bright minds of our future. I look forward to seeing all that Cornell Tech has to offer our City, and to working with Cornell Tech to ensure that New Yorkers from every corner of our City benefit from this world-class institution," said Public Advocate Letitia James.

Academic Program & Research

Cornell Tech started up in a temporary space generously provided by Google and has already graduated more than 300 masters and doctoral students, with most entering the New York City tech sector after graduation by joining local companies or starting their own. Masters students across all programs -- computer science, law, business, electrical engineering, operations research, connective media and health tech -- spend time learning and working collaboratively together in a Studio curriculum with extensive engagement with the tech industry. The projects students pursue in the Studio encourage them to practice entrepreneurship, product design, tech and public policy, management and other skills, helping them graduate with tangible, marketable experience and a portfolio of completed work that will help launch their career.

Cornell Tech's 30-member faculty has launched cutting-edge research groups in the areas of Human-Computer Interaction and Social Computing, Security and Privacy, Artificial Intelligence, Data and Modeling, and Business, Law and Policy. All of the faculty have a focus on applied research and having a real world impact.

"We are entering a new era for tech in New York, and the Cornell Tech campus is at the heart of it. Cornell Tech was given the rare opportunity to create a campus and academic program from scratch. The opening of our new campus brings together academic disciplines critical to the digital transformation of society and the economy, together with companies, early stage investors, and government to spark innovation and help improve lives of people throughout the City, country and world," said Cornell Tech Dean Daniel Huttenlocher.

Quote from Bob Harrison

The Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute at Cornell Tech is a unique academic partnership of two leading global universities, the Technion Israel Institute of Technology and Cornell. The Institute houses the Health Tech and Connective Media programs, where students receive dual degrees from Cornell and the Technion, and the Jacobs Runway Startup Postdoc program for recent tech PhDs. The Runway program has been responsible for about half of the more than 30 companies that have spun out of Cornell Tech campus with more than $20 million in funds raised and employing more than 100 people.

Quote from Ron Brachman

Campus

Cornell Tech's mission of collaboration and innovation is reflected in the physical design of its Roosevelt Island campus. It is a new type of urban campus that provides space to think, but is also integrated—in both mission and design—with the city. The campus master plan was designed by Skidmore, Owings & Merrill and includes a number of innovative features and facilities across a river-to-river campus with expansive views, a series of green, public spaces and a seamless integration of indoor and outdoor areas. The campus has some of the most environmentally friendly and energy efficient buildings in the world.

Quote from SOM

The first phase of the campus includes:

The Emma and Georgina Bloomberg Center is the first academic building on campus. Cornell University received a $100 million gift from Bloomberg Philanthropies in 2014 for the building. Designed by Pritzker Prize-winning architect Thom Mayne of Morphosis Architects, the building is a departure from traditional academic facilities with an open plan and extensive collaborative as well as private work spaces, adapting open plan offices from the tech world to the academic arena. Cornell is aspiring for the building to be among the largest net-zero energy buildings in the United States, with all of its power generated on campus. Art is a key component of The Bloomberg Center, with newly commissioned works throughout the building by artists Alison Elizabeth Taylor, Michael Riedel, Matthew Ritchie and Matthew Day Jackson. The building also features a ground-floor cafe and a custom room that houses a Works Projects Administration (WPA) Federal Art Project mural by Ilya Bolotowsky, from the decommissioned Goldwater Memorial Hospital previously on the Cornell Tech site which has been carefully restored.

Quote from Morphosis

The Bridge, designed by Weiss/Manfredi and developed by Forest City New York, is a first-of-its-kind building that houses an extraordinary mix of cutting-edge companies working alongside groundbreaking Cornell academic teams: from recent Cornell Tech graduates hustling to commercialize a new idea, to start-ups on the verge of explosive growth and established companies developing leading edge technologies and products. Tech and investment firm Two Sigma is opening a Collision Lab in the building where engineers from its R&D team will tackle difficult challenges away from the company's main campus and interact with innovative start-up companies backed by Two Sigma Ventures. Citigroup is taking space to engage with Cornell University students, faculty, researchers, startups and other companies and create closer ties between academia and industry. Ferrero International S.A., the Italian confectionary group and one of the world's largest manufacturers of chocolates, is taking space for its Open Innovation Science division to explore digital age innovation in the food industry.

“By bringing academia and industry together under one roof at The Bridge, we are driving innovation and economic growth for New York,” said MaryAnne Gilmartin, President and CEO of Forest City New York. “The Bridge is welcoming an incredible mix of companies who want to work alongside some of the top tech talent New York City has to offer, and get a competitive advantage to bring their ideas and new products to market.”

Quote from Weiss/Manfredi

The House, designed by Handel Architects and developed by The Hudson Companies and Related Companies, is the tallest and largest residential Passive House high-rise in the world. Passive House is the strict international building standard that drastically reduces energy consumption while creating a healthier and more comfortable living environment for a fraction of residents' usual energy costs. Cornell faculty, staff and students live at The House, giving the campus 24/7 activity.

"We are very excited to bring this first of its kind building to the New York City market. We have been humbled to be a part of this amazing campus, working with an incredible team of architects, engineers and contractors," said David Kramer, President of The Hudson Companies. "We hope that The House can serve as a model for other developments to continue to build big, build more sustainably and push the (super sealed) envelope."

Quote from Handel
Quote from Related

Open space, designed by James Corner Field Operations anchors the campus, fostering collaboration and innovation while simultaneously inviting the public into the campus. The campus is a river-to-river experience, engaging Roosevelt Island's esplanade and extraordinary water frontage maximizing views of Manhattan and Queens. The Tech Walk is a quarter-mile long central spine creating a gateway to the campus and featuring a series of active and social spaces linked by pedestrian pathways. Throughout the campus, outdoor and indoor spaces are synergistically connected to allow people to move easily and comfortably in and out during the course of the day.

Quote from JCFO

Later this fall, Cornell Tech will begin construction on the Verizon Executive Education Center and Graduate Roosevelt Island Hotel, targeted for opening in 2019, providing a venue for academic conferences, executive programs and academic workshops.

When fully completed over the next few decades, the 12-acre campus will be home to more than 2,000 graduate students and hundreds of faculty and staff.

NYC Ferry service to Roosevelt Island began in August, bringing more New York City neighborhoods within reach of the campus.

Commitment to Community: Building a More Diverse and Inclusive Tech Talent Pipeline

Cornell Tech is committed to having an impact beyond its campus, and to build and diversify New York City's tech talent pipeline so that more people can share in the rapid growth of the tech economy. Fulfilling its promise to New York City to spur K-12 tech education, the campus has partnered with more than a dozen local schools, including PS/IS 217 on Roosevelt Island, and is coordinating professional development opportunities for teachers to gain experience in incorporating tech thinking into their teaching. To date, Cornell Tech has impacted over 5,000 students and 350 teachers. Cornell Tech is also committed to building and diversifying the base of the technology talent in New York City. In partnership with CUNY and many tech companies in the city, Cornell Tech's Women in Technology and Entrepreneurship in New York (WiTNY) program provides the access, incentives and support needed for girls and women to succeed in the tech industry. To date, the curriculum has been implemented at more than a dozen CUNY campuses with 2,000 students impacted each year.

New York City Applied Sciences Competition

Cornell Tech was founded when the partnership of Cornell University and the Technion were selected in December of 2011 as one of the winners of New York City's visionary Applied Sciences NYC initiative, created under Mayor Mike Bloomberg and Deputy Mayor Robert Steel. The Economic Development Corporation, then led by Seth Pinsky, sought proposals for a university or partnership to develop and operate a new or expanded campus in the City in exchange for City capital, access to City-owned land and the full support and partnership of City government. Cornell Tech's proposal was selected ahead of submissions from 17 world-class institutions from around the globe. The Cornell Tech proposal was selected by the City as the first winner of the competition and was provided with land on Roosevelt Island and $100 million in City capital to build the $2 billion, 2 million square foot tech campus.

About Cornell Tech

Cornell Tech brings together faculty, business leaders, tech entrepreneurs and students in a catalytic environment to produce visionary results grounded in significant needs that will reinvent the way we live in the digital age. The Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute embodies the academic partnership between the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology and Cornell University on the Cornell Tech campus.

From 2012-2017, the campus was temporarily located in Google's New York City building. In fall 2017, 30 world-class faculty and about 300 graduate students moved to the first phase of Cornell Tech's permanent campus on Roosevelt Island, continuing to conduct groundbreaking research, collaborate extensively with tech-oriented companies and organizations and pursue their own startups. When fully completed, the campus will include two million square feet of state-of-the-art buildings, over two acres of open space, and will be home to more than 2,000 graduate students and hundreds of faculty and staff.

I agree with Laura's assessment of the value of a comms meeting, both then and now. The central issue now is that Margarettes photo bombed (as it were) the story. City Harvest bore the brunt of that, and they were basically made invisible, exacerbating one of the issues that has been a barrier to collaboration for years. Traditional comms has each agency represented by a press agent, but in this case, if I had it to do over again, I would have had each of take a turn talking about what the other partners had contributed, and how much we value it. I have a lot to say about each of them.

Jilly reached out yesterday after the meeting, and in her usual lovely way questioned whether and for how long we need to abide by Margarette's rules about how we talk about the Food Bank's participation publicly. This is where I ended up too after I read the article Monday night, and therefore the conversation is really among the principals (Tracy, Jilly, Sheena) about whether they are ready and willing to talk about what has been the greatest challenge.

Agreed, Bob. Although the NYT story did not take shape exactly as we had hoped, I think it's a misguided critique to suggest that the result would have been better if we had built an additional Comms meeting into the process of preparing for the NYT. Historically, the occasional convenings that we used to do with the Collaborative Comms people did not lead to productive results. For pitches to come to fruition, they need to be owned and executed by individuals -- as we are doing now through David's swift NYT opportunity, and BerlinRosen's pitches coming next. (Thank you again, David!)

That said, we can definitely host another in-person Collaborative Comms meeting in the weeks ahead since there may be a renewed demand for it. Why don't we start with BR's philanthropy pitch right now (since that is primarily on Helmsley's behalf), and we can keep the Collaborative Comms contacts updated via email on that one.

It would be great for BR to also move forward on a Plentiful pitch, but do we need to first address (either among this group on this email or with the full Collaborative) who really owns the Plentiful story and who is currently the best spokesperson for Plentiful?

Recommended next steps:

--Bob reconnects all the comms counterparts by email so BerlinRosen can give an update on the chronicle pitch, David can outline his vision for the local/ethnic pitches he had in mind, and we can begin coordinating schedules for a next in-person Comms meeting.

--This group weighs in on if it is okay for BerlinRosen to begin a Plentiful pitch, or if other crucial Collab members should be more involved.

Thoughts welcome!

Today's call was interesting. I think we heard a bit of backlash from moving forward quickly and decisively on press, without detailed, grinding input from the various comms people at Collaborative institutions. On the other hand, the last time we did get that kind of input, we did not end up with a piece in the NYT. What is your take on Cara's request?

Regarding next steps, my two cents is that the neighborhood/ethnic pieces and the Chronicle pieces are clear priorities. One is bread and butter and the other can be more or less exclusively led by Helmsley. We continue to run into issues with folks wanting to hitch their fundraising wagon to the Plentiful star, which I am concerned might get projected onto any press pitch about Plentiful. I may be overly concerned, so perhaps worth some discussion, while we're making headway on the other pieces. I would love for Plentiful to get some more press, but I don't want that to contribute to making it harder to stand up on its own in the coming months.

Thanks!

All,

Now that the NYT story is published, I believe we can move on to other pitches. Per the original plan, that should mean the following:

- BR can pitch other innovation outlets similar to NYT Fixes or tech outlets about the Collaborative or specifically about Plentiful.
- David can pitch some of the very local, neighborhood-level outlets for Collaborative stories.
- BR can pursue a general pitch to the Chronicle of Philanthropy about Helmsley and the Collaborative.

I'll hop on the 3:30 call that David just organized. Tim and Aaron – if you can't make it, we can catch you up by email afterwards.

Hi all,

Reconnecting with this communications-minded group, so we can catch BerlinRosen up to speed on this afternoon's developments!

Aaron and Tim – It does not look like a Mayor's event will take place, but we do still have an interview lined up with NYT. David – I assume this is with Nikita Stewart?

Tomorrow at 8am, several members of the Collaborative will have a planning call to discuss the NYT interview. Aaron or Tim – Are you free to join? Next week (date/time TBD), everyone will come to Helmsley for an in-person group interview with the NYT reporter. For Helmsley, our spokesperson will either be Tracy or our CEO Stephanie, so we will need to think about talking points for them for next week.

Per our plan, I believe we can then move forward with our other pitches to various innovation/tech/philanthropy outlets, once we have a sense of when this NYT story will run.

Thanks, all!

Subject: Check-in and next steps on Collaborative comms

Hi David and Barbara,

I hope you are well and have each retained two functioning retinas after yesterday's eclipse!

Thank you again for continuing to push the NYT/Mayor's event plan forward, David. We're all quite excited about the vision there and the potential to boost the work! I trust that you have what you need in terms of data, etc., but please say the word if there's anything we can pass along.

With input from Helmsley and BerlinRosen, below is a proposal for how we might work together alongside (and after) the current NYT/Mayor's event effort, to achieve the remaining parts of the comms strategy. Specifically:

- David continues work to pitch Nikita Stewart at the NYT, tied closely to an event that he seeks to coordinate with the Mayor and the Collaborative at a food pantry. This story and event shouldn't be scooped by other pitches, so all other media outreach will hold until after that.
- Ahead of the Mayor event, David can confirm if Nikita is able to cover it. If not, BR can make a push with other NYT reporters and other press in the lead up, day-of, and after the Mayor event.
- Assuming the NYT story and Mayor event happen, BR can pitch NYT Fixes (or similar outlets in NPR or elsewhere) as well as other tech outlets about Plentiful after the event.
- David can pitch some of the very local, neighborhood-level outlets for Collaborative stories.
- Separately, BR can pursue a general pitch to the Chronicle of Philanthropy about Helmsley and the Collaborative.

How does this look to you, David and Barbara? If this is in line with your thinking, BerlinRosen is ready to start pulling together pitches and doing target mapping for the later work, while your teams move the event and NYT piece into motion.

With appreciation,

"While our franchise siting requirements don't allow for any Links near bus stops, we thank Councilmember Lander for the suggestion. Links currently provide transit information and updates on the tablet via access to MTA.info. We are actively working to add relevant transit updates to the local information already provided on the large displays, such as the weather forecast, community board meeting notices, street fairs and cultural events."

- Why can't you just change the rules about where Links can go?

Good morning,

*I'm reaching out about calls by Councilman Brad Lander for DOT to partner with Link NYC and the MTA to develop software that would display real time bus data on Link NYC kiosks to help bridge the gap as bus countdown clocks are rolled out across the city. Lander said he is been in conversation with the city. Is DOT interested in working with Link NYC and the MTA to pursue this proposal?
I'd appreciate a response as soon as possible. Thanks in advance!*

Good morning,

I'm reaching out about calls by Councilman Brad Lander for DOT to partner with Link NYC and the MTA to develop software that would display real time bus data on Link NYC kiosks to help bridge the gap as bus countdown clocks are rolled out across the city. Lander said he is been in conversation with the city. Is DOT interested in working with Link NYC and the MTA to pursue this proposal?

I'd appreciate a response as soon as possible. Thanks in advance!

*Best,
Caroline*

Here's what we just got from Caroline Spivak...working on a response and will share with all here when it's finalized:

Good morning,

*I'm reaching out about calls by Councilman Brad Lander for DOT to partner with Link NYC and the MTA to develop software that would display real time bus data on Link NYC kiosks to help bridge the gap as bus countdown clocks are rolled out across the city. Lander said he is been in conversation with the city. Is DOT interested in working with Link NYC and the MTA to pursue this proposal?
I'd appreciate a response as soon as possible. Thanks in advance!*

*Best,
Caroline*

Here's our response, which I plan to send off at 12:15p to AM NY and DNA Info:

NYC DOT is proud to partner with communities regarding the installation of real time passenger information signage in all five boroughs to help get New Yorkers where they need to go. While we are always willing to explore the best ways to get information to New Yorkers, LinkNYC kiosks are specifically prohibited within 15 feet of a bus stop zone by city rules and the LinkNYC franchise agreement, which is meant to maintain the accessibility of the bus stop

Since Stacy is pulling the FA details, here's our response to this one:

- When will the transit updates you referenced be completed?
- While we can't share details of our product roadmap, the team is currently working on transit and other features.

FWIW not seeing anything on twitter.

Tiny tweak and a number of background Qs we need to be prepared to answer (Stacy can you pull FA language?):

"While our franchise siting requirements don't allow for any Links near bus stops, we thank Councilmember Lander for the suggestion Links currently provide transit information and updates on the tablet via access to MTA info We are actively working to add relevant transit updates to the local information already provided on the large displays, such as the weather forecast, community board meeting notices, street fairs and cultural events "

- Why aren't Links allowed in bus stops?
- What is the relevant language in the FA?
- When will the transit updates you referenced be completed?
- Why can't you just change the rules about where Links can go?

Hi Jennifer, Kate, and Dawnn,

Please see below our updated media advisory for tomorrow's ribbon cutting, which includes the First Lady's name. We're thrilled she'll be able to join us for this important landmark for GMHC.

I'm copying my colleagues at Berlin Rosen who are working on the media pitching for the opening so that they're fully looped in. They can send out this updated advisory if you're OK with it.

Thank you again—

Meghan and Sarah,

Hope all is well! We wanted to touch base with you about next week's Winternship event at Cornell Tech. Are you available for a call early this week?

In particular, it would be great to have a list of participants, companies, etc. We also want to run a press play on this, building on our theme that NYC is the best place in the world for women to build their careers in the tech industry. Winternships open the door for women, particularly those from underrepresented backgrounds, to participate in this ecosystem. Cornell Tech is leading the way in partnership with the City and Tech NYC.

Ideas and thoughts welcome! Let us know when you're free to discuss further. Thanks!

Cheers,
Sonam

Hope all is well! We wanted to touch base with you about next week's Winternship event at Cornell Tech. Are you available for a call early this week?

In particular, it would be great to have a list of participants, companies, etc. We also want to run a press play on this building on our theme that NYC is the best place in the world for women to build their careers in the tech industry. Winternships open the door for women, particularly those from underrepresented backgrounds, to participate in this ecosystem. Cornell Tech is leading the way in partnership with the City and Tech NYC.

Ideas and thoughts welcome! Let us know when you're free to discuss further. Thanks!

Cornell Tech & CUNY Launch Winternship: New Paid Internship Program & Digital Campaign for CUNY Women in Tech

Over 200 CUNY women to participate in special 2-week program across dozens of tech companies

*New campaign launches to open the doors for more young women in NYC
to pursue tech*

NEW YORK -- Cornell Tech and the City University of New York today launched a new winter internship program as part of the university's Women in Technology and Entrepreneurship in NY (WiTNY) partnership. The new program, called a Winternship, will provide paid internships to up to 200 CUNY women in their freshman or sophomore year who are studying computer science or related fields. Today participating companies came together to craft their Winternship experiences in conjunction with the launch of a marketing campaign to encourage more companies to participate and sponsor a Wintern and more young women to explore degree and career opportunities in technology, including digital advertising on social media platforms and on LinkNYC kiosks across the city.

Participating companies include: Verizon, OATH, Accenture, Citi, Turner, AppNexus, Pfizer, Microsoft, Bit.ly, Blackstone, and many others. The Winternships will occur over winter break in January 2018.

"Cornell Tech is proud to partner with CUNY and dozens of tech companies who are dedicated to launching the next generation of women in tech in New York," said Judith Spitz, Cornell Tech's WiTNY Program Director. "Winternships will give CUNY freshmen and sophomores that first 'foot in the door' and an early look into what their future in tech could look like as they build their skills, confidence, and network. We believe that with one or more of these experiences 'under their belt' and on their resumes, we will replace the obstacle course that these young women face with a glide path to success; launching the careers of a new generation of women in tech in NYC. We want all young women in New York to know there is a place for them in tech, and to have the opportunity to share in the benefits the tech industry affords."

CUNY QUOTE

DM GLEN

JULIE SAMUELS

Short internships early in their college careers will give these young CUNY women much needed exposure, experience and a set of credentials that make their resumes more competitive when it comes time to apply for full 10-week summer internships, and ultimately jobs. Giving young women these mini-internship experiences will help launch the careers of a new generation of women in tech in New York.

A digital advertising campaign on social media and LinkNYC kiosks across the five boroughs will show the diverse group of women who have participated in the WiTNY program to encourage more young women to pursue careers in tech. Through the campaign, WiTNY will also generate interest from additional companies who want to join the WiTNY network.

Cornell Tech is committed to encouraging more women to pursue careers in technology. As part of this mission, Cornell Tech, the City University of New York (CUNY), and a growing number of corporations have partnered to create WiTNY to facilitate, encourage and enable a significant increase in the participation of women in both higher education and entrepreneurship in fields related to technology in the New York market.

WiTNY's strategy is to recruit more women by working with CUNY faculty to offer innovative introductory curricula -- both undergraduate courses as well as a unique summer program called the Summer Guild for young women in between their last year of high school and first year at CUNY -- and retain them through scholarship incentives, career immersion via high tech internships, programming and mentorship to develop a robust community of tech women in New York. To expand access to computer science at the CUNY, Cornell Tech and CUNY partnered and developed curriculum that is being implemented at more than a dozen CUNY campuses, with as many as 2,000 students impacted each year.

About Cornell Tech

Cornell Tech brings together faculty, business leaders, tech entrepreneurs and students in a catalytic environment to produce visionary results grounded in significant needs that will reinvent the way we live in the digital age. The Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute embodies the academic partnership between the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology and Cornell University on the Cornell Tech campus.

From 2012-2017, the campus was temporarily located in Google's New York City building. In fall 2017, 30 world-class faculty and about 300 graduate students moved to the first phase of Cornell Tech's permanent campus on Roosevelt Island, continuing to conduct groundbreaking research, collaborate extensively with tech-oriented companies and organizations and pursue their own startups. When fully completed, the campus will include two million square feet of state-of-the-art buildings, over two acres of open space, and will be home to more than 2,000 graduate students and hundreds of faculty and staff.

Subject: Update on Relief Efforts
Date: Friday, October 06, 2017 12:15:58 PM

Dear Jonathan –

The past several weeks have been a terrible time for our nation and fellow Americans; New York City mourns all those injured and killed by the shooting in Las Vegas and we struggle to help all those affected by the hurricanes. I wanted to share with you an update of what the City is doing to help the Puerto Rico relief efforts, in addition to the heroic efforts of so many New Yorkers.

Immediately after Maria hit, Mayor de Blasio was asked to send first responders and emergency management officials to establish emergency command centers for the City of San Juan and for the island; Puerto Rico lacked such command centers. Additionally, New York City's Task Force 1, the 27 member urban search-and-rescue team made up of FDNY and NYPD first responders, has been crisscrossing the commonwealth for more than a week searching for survivors and those in need of evacuation. NYC has had 148 first responders on the ground in Puerto Rico helping to restore vital infrastructure and services to our 3.5 million fellow Americans on the island. And yesterday, Mayor de Blasio announced the deployment of 22 workers from the Department of Buildings and the Department of Housing Preservation and Development to conduct inspections of buildings impacted by the hurricane and 31 workers from the Department of Sanitation will to assist the Puerto Rico Emergency Management Agency (PREMA). Please see this Daily News story on Task Force 1's work.

As you may know, the City is also collecting the critical items of diapers, batteries, feminine hygiene products, first aid kits, and baby food at firehouses and police precincts throughout the five boroughs and we are diligently working on getting those items to Puerto Rico quickly and efficiently (if you can offer transit assistance, please let us know). City employees and New Yorkers from all across the City are donating to the Mayor's Fund to Advance NYC to be part of the effort.

In the coming weeks, I anticipate our relief efforts will shift to helping Puerto Ricans as they come to NYC to seek shelter and refuge. Students will need to go to school, seniors will need care, and families may come with nothing but the clothes on their backs. We are making plans to help those that arrive and need our help and believe there will be a great need for philanthropic support to help these Americans.

This disaster hits home for so many of our neighbors, as 10% of our City is Puerto Rican or has family on the island. We know that it will take several months and even years of work for Puerto Rico to recover. We will do everything we can to support this ongoing effort. If you would like more information on ways you can help in the coming weeks, please reach out to me directly.

Sincerely,
Gabrielle

Short internships early in their college careers will give these young CUNY women much needed exposure, experience and a set of credentials that make their resumes more competitive when it comes time to apply for full 10-week summer internships, and ultimately jobs. Giving young women these mini-internship experiences will help launch the careers of a new generation of women in tech in New York.

A digital advertising campaign on social media and LinkNYC kiosks across the five boroughs will show the diverse group of women who have participated in the WiTNY program to encourage more young women to pursue careers in tech. Through the campaign, WiTNY will also generate interest from additional companies who want to join the WiTNY network.

Cornell Tech is committed to encouraging more women to pursue careers in technology. As part of this mission, Cornell Tech, the City University of New York (CUNY), and a growing number of corporations have partnered to create WiTNY to facilitate, encourage and enable a significant increase in the participation of women in both higher education and entrepreneurship in fields related to technology in the New York market.

WiTNY's strategy is to recruit more women by working with CUNY faculty to offer innovative introductory curricula -- both undergraduate courses as well as a unique summer program called the Summer Guild for young women in between their last year of high school and first year at CUNY -- and retain them through scholarship incentives, career immersion via high tech internships, programming and mentorship to develop a robust community of tech women in New York. To expand access to computer science at the CUNY, Cornell Tech and CUNY partnered and developed curriculum that is being implemented at more than a dozen CUNY campuses.

About Cornell Tech

Cornell Tech brings together faculty, business leaders, tech entrepreneurs and students in a catalytic environment to produce visionary results grounded in significant needs that will reinvent the way we live in the digital age. The Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute embodies the academic partnership between the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology and Cornell University on the Cornell Tech campus.

From 2012-2017, the campus was temporarily located in Google's New York City building. In fall 2017, 30 world-class faculty and about 300 graduate students moved to the first phase of Cornell Tech's permanent campus on Roosevelt Island, continuing to conduct groundbreaking research, collaborate extensively with tech-oriented companies and organizations and pursue their own startups. When fully completed, the campus will include two million square feet of state-of-the-art buildings, over two acres of open space, and will be home to more than 2,000 graduate students and hundreds of faculty and staff.

Cornell Tech & CUNY Launch Winternship: New Paid Internship Program & Digital Campaign
for CUNY Women in Tech

Over 200 CUNY women to participate in special 2-week tech internship program across dozens of companies

*New campaign launches to open the doors for more young women in NYC
to pursue tech*

NEW YORK -- Cornell Tech and the City University of New York today launched a new winter internship program as part of the university's Women in Technology and Entrepreneurship in NY (WiTNY) partnership. The new program, called a Winternship, will provide paid internships to up to 200 CUNY women in their freshman or sophomore year who are studying computer science or related fields. Today participating companies came together to craft their Winternship experiences in conjunction with the launch of a marketing campaign to encourage more companies to participate and sponsor a Wintern and more young women to explore degree and career opportunities in technology, including digital advertising on social media platforms and on LinkNYC kiosks across the city.

Participating companies include: Verizon, OATH, Accenture, Citi, Turner, AppNexus, Pfizer, Bitly, Blackstone, and many others. The Winternships will occur over winter break in January 2018.

"Cornell Tech is proud to partner with CUNY and dozens of companies who are dedicated to launching the next generation of women in tech in New York," said Judith Spitz, Cornell Tech's WiTNY Program Director. "Winternships will give CUNY freshmen and sophomores that first 'foot in the door' and an early look into what their future in tech could be like as they build their skills, confidence, and network. We believe that with one or more of these experiences 'under their belt' and on their resumes, we will replace the obstacle course that these young women face with a glide path to success; giving them the opportunity to share in the benefits the tech industry affords."

The Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute embodies the academic partnership between the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology and Cornell University on the Cornell Tech campus.

From 2012-2017, the campus was temporarily located in Google's New York City building. In fall 2017, 30 world-class faculty and about 300 graduate students moved to the first phase of Cornell Tech's permanent campus on Roosevelt Island, continuing to conduct groundbreaking research, collaborate extensively with tech-oriented companies and organizations and pursue their own startups. When fully completed, the campus will include two million square feet of state-of-the-art buildings, over two acres of open space, and will be home to more than 2,000 graduate students and hundreds of faculty and staff.

Winternship:
A Paid Internship Program & Digital Campaign
for CUNY Women in Tech

Over 200 freshmen and sophomore women at CUNY will participate in 2-week program across dozens of tech companies; Campaign will open doors for more young women in tech sector

NEW YORK – Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, Cornell Tech, and the City University of New York today launched a new winter internship program as part of the Women in Technology and Entrepreneurship in NY (WiTNY) initiative. The program, called a Winternship, will provide paid internships to up to 200 CUNY women students in their freshman or sophomore year who are studying computer science or related fields. Today, participating companies came together at Cornell Tech to craft their Winternship program in conjunction with the launch of a marketing campaign to encourage more companies to sponsor young women exploring degree and career opportunities in technology. The campaign will include digital advertising on social media platforms and on LinkNYC kiosks across the city.

Participating companies include: Verizon, OATH, Accenture, Citi, Turner, AppNexus, Pfizer, Bitly, Blackstone, and many others. The Winternships will occur during CUNY's winter break in January 2018.

“Cornell Tech is proud to partner with CUNY and dozens of tech companies who are dedicated to launching the next generation of women in tech in New York,” said Judith Spitz, Cornell Tech’s WiTNY Program Director. “Winternships will give CUNY freshmen and sophomores that first ‘foot in the door’ and an early look into what their future in tech could be like as they build their skills, confidence, and network. We believe that with one or more of these experiences ‘under their belt’ and on their resumes, we will replace the obstacle course that these young women face with a glide path to success; giving them the opportunity to share in the benefits the tech industry affords.”

Short internships early in their college careers will give these young CUNY women much needed exposure, experience and a set of credentials that make their resumes more competitive when it comes time to apply for 10-week summer internships, and ultimately full-time jobs. Giving young women these mini-internship experiences will help launch the careers of a new generation of women in tech in New York.

A digital advertising campaign on social media and LinkNYC kiosks will show the diverse group of women who have participated in other WiTNY programs to encourage more young women to pursue careers in tech. Through the campaign, WiTNY will also generate interest from additional companies who want to join the WiTNY network.

The City of New York, along with Cornell Tech and CUNY, are committed to encouraging more women to pursue careers in technology. As part of this mission, Cornell Tech, CUNY, and a growing number of corporations have partnered to create WiTNY to facilitate, encourage, and enable a significant increase in the participation of women in both higher education and entrepreneurship in fields related to technology in the New York market. The City of New York has supported these efforts, facilitating industry-academia partnerships through its Tech Talent Pipeline and other initiatives to build a more inclusive tech ecosystem. [We WILL ADD STUFF HERE ON THE CITY'S PROGRAMS TO PROMOTE TECH]

WiTNY's strategy is to recruit more women by working with CUNY faculty to offer innovative introductory curricula -- both undergraduate courses as well as a unique summer program called the Summer Guild for young women in between their last year of high school and first year at CUNY -- and retain them through scholarship incentives, career immersion via high tech internships, programming and mentorship to develop a robust community of tech women in New York. To expand access to computer science at the CUNY, Cornell Tech and CUNY partnered and developed curriculum that is being implemented at more than a dozen CUNY campuses. “New York City is building the strongest tech sector for women anywhere in the country. These are real investments that put more women on career paths in technology. We thank Cornell Tech, CUNY and our private sector partners for collaborating to help women build their skills and their resumes,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

“Cornell Tech is proud to partner with CUNY and dozens of companies who are dedicated to launching the next generation of women in tech in New York,” said Judith Spitz, Cornell Tech’s WiTNY Program Director. “Winternships will give CUNY freshmen and sophomores that first ‘foot in the door’ and an early look into what their future in tech could be like as they build their skills, confidence, and network. Giving young women these mini-internship experiences will help launch the careers of a new generation of women in tech in New York.

“People are New York City’s greatest source of competitive advantage,” said Lynn McMahon, New York Metro Office Managing Director, Accenture. “At a time when employers are facing a skills gap – particularly in the technology field – internships are an effective way for companies to reach previously untapped pools of talent. We believe that the Cornell Tech and the City University of New York winter internship program is critical to ignite greater interest in technology and ultimately build a stronger pipeline in New York City.”

A digital advertising campaign on social media and LinkNYC kiosks will show the diverse group of women who have participated in other WiTNY programs to encourage more young women to pursue careers in tech. Through the campaign, WiTNY will also generate interest from additional companies who want to join the WiTNY network.

The City of New York, along with Cornell Tech and CUNY, are committed to encouraging more women to pursue careers in technology. As part of this mission, Cornell Tech, CUNY, and a growing number of corporations including Verizon, Accenture, IBM, Citi and Xerox have partnered to create WiTNY to facilitate, encourage, and enable a significant increase in the participation of women in both higher education and entrepreneurship in fields related to technology in the New York market. The City of New York has supported these efforts, facilitating industry-academia partnerships through its Tech Talent Pipeline and other initiatives to build a more inclusive tech ecosystem.

Over the past two years, graduates of TTP’s industry-informed college programs have secured jobs across the NYC tech ecosystem at companies like Time, Inc., Viacom, JP Morgan Chase, and Goldman Sachs. Through the Mayor’s TTP Academic Council, 16 presidents and provosts of public and private NYC colleges - including Columbia, NYU, Pace, Pratt Institute, and CUNY – have also made commitments to further pathways to tech careers for an additional 1,300 New Yorkers.

WiTNY’s strategy is to recruit more women by working with CUNY faculty to offer innovative introductory curricula -- both undergraduate courses as well as a unique summer program called the Summer Guild for women in between their last year of high school and first year at CUNY - - and retain them through scholarship incentives, career immersion via high tech internships, programming and mentorship to develop a robust community of tech women in New York.

To expand access to computer science at CUNY, Cornell Tech and CUNY partnered and developed curriculum that is being implemented at more than a dozen campuses. Building on this success, this past June, Mayor de Blasio announced a new comprehensive commitment to double the number of CUNY tech Bachelor’s recipients who graduate ready to secure and succeed in tech jobs by 2022.

The City will highlight new investments in instruction, advising, and internships as well as industry commitments to meeting this goal at a Partners Summit on October 23rd.

“Cornell Tech is proud to partner with CUNY and dozens of companies who are dedicated to launching the next generation of women in tech in New York,” said Judith Spitz, Cornell Tech's WiTNY Program Director. “Winternships will give CUNY freshmen and sophomores that first ‘foot in the door’ and an early look into what their future in tech could be like as they build their skills, confidence, and network. We believe that with one or more of these experiences ‘under their belt’ and on their resumes, we will replace the obstacle course that these young women face with a glide path to success; giving them the opportunity to share in the benefits the tech industry affords.”

“Women are vastly underrepresented in the technology workforce, and this new Winternship program is part of CUNY's comprehensive effort to address this problem,” said Associate Vice Chancellor Andrea Shapiro Davis, who is leading the WiTNY program at CUNY. “These internships will not only provide new opportunities for our students, but will more broadly introduce the NY tech ecosystem to the strengths and talents of our diverse student population and-show them that CUNY is a place to recruit the next generation of tech talent.”

"New York is the best place to be a woman in tech, and the Winternship program is an example of that," said Julie Samuels, Executive Director of Tech:NYC. "It's refreshing and meaningful to see institutions like Cornell Tech and CUNY join with the private sector to support our future women leaders and to work together to realize the goal of a tech industry where women are truly equal."

Short internships early in their college careers will give these young CUNY women much needed exposure, experience and a set of credentials that make their resumes more competitive when it comes time to apply for 10-week summer internships, and ultimately full-time jobs. Giving young women these mini-internship experiences will help launch the careers of a new generation of women in tech in New York.

"People are New York City's greatest source of competitive advantage," said Lynn McMahon, New York Metro Office Managing Director, Accenture. "At a time when employers are facing a skills gap – particularly in the technology field – internships are an effective way for companies to reach previously untapped pools of talent. We believe that the Cornell Tech and the City University of New York winter internship program is critical to ignite greater interest in technology and ultimately build a stronger pipeline in New York City."

A digital advertising campaign on social media and LinkNYC kiosks will show the diverse group of women who have participated in other WiTNY programs to encourage more young women to pursue careers in tech. Through the campaign, WiTNY will also generate interest from additional companies who want to join the WiTNY network.

The City of New York, along with Cornell Tech and CUNY, are committed to encouraging more women to pursue careers in technology. As part of this mission, Cornell Tech, CUNY, and a growing number of corporations including Verizon, Accenture, IBM, Citi and Xerox have partnered to create WiTNY to facilitate, encourage, and enable a significant increase in the participation of women in both higher education and entrepreneurship in fields related to technology in the New York market. The City of New York has supported these efforts, facilitating industry-academia partnerships through its Tech Talent Pipeline and other initiatives to build a more inclusive tech ecosystem.

Over the past two years, graduates of TTP's industry-informed college programs have secured jobs across the NYC tech ecosystem at companies like Time, Inc., Viacom, JP Morgan Chase, and Goldman Sachs. Through the Mayor's TTP Academic Council, 16 presidents and provosts of public and private NYC colleges - including Columbia, NYU, Pace, Pratt Institute, and CUNY – have also made commitments to further pathways to tech careers for an additional 1,300 New Yorkers.

WiTNY's strategy is to recruit more women by working with CUNY faculty to offer innovative introductory curricula -- both undergraduate courses as well as a unique summer program called the Summer Guild for women in between their last year of high school and first year at CUNY - and retain them through scholarship incentives, career immersion via high tech internships, programming and mentorship to develop a robust community of tech women in New York.

To expand access to computer science at CUNY, Cornell Tech and CUNY partnered and developed curriculum that is being implemented at more than a dozen campuses. Building on this success, this past June, Mayor de Blasio announced a new comprehensive commitment to double the number of CUNY tech Bachelor's recipients who graduate ready to secure and succeed in tech jobs by 2022.

The City will highlight new investments in instruction, advising, and internships as well as industry commitments to meeting this goal at a Partners Summit on October 23rd.

About Cornell Tech

Cornell Tech brings together faculty, business leaders, tech entrepreneurs and students in a catalytic environment to produce visionary results grounded in significant needs that will reinvent the way we live in the digital age. The Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute embodies the academic partnership between the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology and Cornell University on the Cornell Tech campus.

From 2012-2017, the campus was temporarily located in Google's New York City building. In fall 2017, 30 world-class faculty and about 300 graduate students moved to the first phase of Cornell Tech's permanent campus on Roosevelt Island, continuing to conduct groundbreaking research, collaborate extensively with tech-oriented companies and organizations and pursue their own startups. When fully completed, the campus will include two million square feet of state-of-the-art buildings, over two acres of open space, and will be home to more than 2,000 graduate students and hundreds of faculty and staff.

About CUNY

The City University of New York is the nation's leading urban public university. Founded in 1847, the University comprises 24 institutions: 11 senior colleges, seven community colleges, the William E. Macaulay Honors College at CUNY, the CUNY Graduate School Center, the CUNY Graduate School of Journalism, the CUNY School of Law, the CUNY School of Professional Studies and the CUNY Graduate School of Public Health and Health Policy. The University serves more than 272,000 degree-seeking students. College Now, the University's academic enrichment program, is offered at CUNY campuses and more than 400 high schools throughout the five boroughs. The University offers online baccalaureate and master's degrees through the CUNY School of Professional Studies.

About the NYC Tech Talent Pipeline

Launched by the Mayor in 2014, the NYC Tech Talent Pipeline is the City's tech Industry Partnership, designed to support the inclusive growth of the NYC tech sector and prepare New Yorkers for 21st century jobs. Incubated and supported by the NYC Department of Small Business Services, the NYC Tech Talent Pipeline works with 175 companies, 16 local colleges, and additional public and private partners to define employer needs, develop training and education models to meet these needs, and scale solutions throughout the City, delivering quality talent for the City's businesses and quality jobs for New Yorkers. Two minor edits in yellow:

--added "dozens of" before companies

--took out Pfizer (they haven't given okay) and added Grand Central Tech

If you're good with this we can all plan to push out. Can we say 12:30 instead of noon?

Mayor de Blasio, Cornell Tech, & CUNY Launch Winternship: A Paid Internship Program & Digital Campaign for CUNY Women in Tech

NEW YORK – Mayor de Blasio, Cornell Tech, and the City University of New York today launched a new winter internship program as part of the Women in Technology and Entrepreneurship in NY (WiTNY) initiative. Through the campaign, WiTNY will also generate interest from additional companies who want to join the WiTNY network.

The City of New York, along with Cornell Tech and CUNY, are committed to encouraging more women to pursue careers in technology. As part of this mission, Cornell Tech, CUNY, and a growing number of corporations including Verizon, Accenture, IBM, Citi and Xerox have partnered to create WiTNY to facilitate, encourage, and enable a significant increase in the participation of women in both higher education and entrepreneurship in fields related to technology in the New York market. The City of New York has supported these efforts, facilitating industry-academia partnerships through its Tech Talent Pipeline and other initiatives to build a more inclusive tech ecosystem.

Over the past two years, graduates of TTP’s industry-informed college programs have secured jobs across the NYC tech ecosystem at companies like Time, Inc., Viacom, JP Morgan Chase, and Goldman Sachs. Through the Mayor’s TTP Academic Council, 16 presidents and provosts of public and private NYC colleges - including Columbia, NYU, Pace, Pratt Institute, and CUNY – have also made commitments to further pathways to tech careers for an additional 1,300 New Yorkers.

WiTNY’s strategy is to recruit more women by working with CUNY faculty to offer innovative introductory curricula -- both undergraduate courses as well as a unique summer program called the Summer Guild for women in between their last year of high school and first year at CUNY -- and retain them through scholarship incentives, career immersion via high tech internships, programming and mentorship to develop a robust community of tech women in New York.

To expand access to computer science at CUNY, Cornell Tech and CUNY partnered and developed curriculum that is being implemented at more than a dozen campuses. Building on this success, this past June, Mayor de Blasio announced a new comprehensive commitment to double the number of CUNY tech Bachelor's recipients who graduate ready to secure and succeed in tech jobs by 2022.

The City will highlight new investments in instruction, advising, and internships as well as industry commitments to meeting this goal at a Partners Summit on October 23rd.

About Cornell Tech

Cornell Tech brings together faculty, business leaders, tech entrepreneurs and students in a catalytic environment to produce visionary results grounded in significant needs that will reinvent the way we live in the digital age. The Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute embodies the academic partnership between the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology and Cornell University on the Cornell Tech campus.

From 2012-2017, the campus was temporarily located in Google's New York City building. In fall 2017, 30 world-class faculty and about 300 graduate students moved to the first phase of Cornell Tech's permanent campus on Roosevelt Island, continuing to conduct groundbreaking research, collaborate extensively with tech-oriented companies and organizations and pursue their own startups. When fully completed, the campus will include two million square feet of state-of-the-art buildings, over two acres of open space, and will be home to more than 2,000 graduate students and hundreds of faculty and staff.

About CUNY

The City University of New York is the nation's leading urban public university. Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, Cornell Tech, & CUNY Launch
Winternship:
A Paid Internship Program & Digital Campaign
for CUNY Women in Tech

Over 200 freshmen and sophomore women at CUNY will participate in 2-week program across dozens of tech companies; Campaign will open doors for more young women in tech sector

NEW YORK – Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, Cornell Tech, and the City University of New York today launched a new winter internship program as part of the Women in Technology and Entrepreneurship in NY (WiTNY) initiative. The program, called a Winternship, will provide paid internships to up to 200 CUNY women students in their freshman or sophomore year who are studying computer science or related fields. Today, participating companies came together at Cornell Tech to craft their Winternship program in conjunction with the launch of a marketing campaign to encourage more companies to sponsor young women exploring degree and career opportunities in technology. The campaign will include digital advertising on social media platforms and on LinkNYC kiosks across the city.

Participating companies include: Verizon, OATH, Accenture, Citi, Turner, AppNexus, Pfizer, Bitly, Blackstone, and many others. The Winternships will occur during CUNY's winter break in January 2018.

“Cornell Tech is proud to partner with CUNY and dozens of tech companies who are dedicated to launching the next generation of women in tech in New York,” said Judith Spitz, Cornell Tech's WiTNY Program Director. “Winternships will give CUNY freshmen and sophomores that first ‘foot in the door’ and an early look into what their future in tech could be like as they build their skills, confidence, and network. We believe that with one or more of these experiences ‘under their belt’ and on their resumes, we will replace the obstacle course that these young women face with a glide path to success; giving them the opportunity to share in the benefits the tech industry affords.”

JULIE SAMUELS QUOTE

Short internships early in their college careers will give these young CUNY women much needed exposure, experience and a set of credentials that make their resumes more competitive when it comes time to apply for 10-week summer internships, and ultimately full-time jobs. Giving young women these mini-internship experiences will help launch the careers of a new generation of women in tech in New York.

A digital advertising campaign on social media and LinkNYC kiosks will show the diverse group of women who have participated in other WiTNY programs to encourage more young women to pursue careers in tech. Through the campaign, WiTNY will also generate interest from additional companies who want to join the WiTNY network.

MAYOR DE BLASIO, CORNELL TECH AND CUNY LAUNCH WINTERNSHIP: A PAID INTERNSHIP PROGRAM & DIGITAL CAMPAIGN FOR CUNY WOMEN IN TECH

Over 200 freshmen and sophomore women at CUNY will participate in two-week program across dozens of companies; campaign will open doors for more young women in tech sector

NEW YORK—Mayor de Blasio, Cornell Tech, and the City University of New York today launched a new winter internship program as part of the Women in Technology and Entrepreneurship in NY (WiTNY) initiative. The program, called a Winternship, will provide paid internships to up to 200 CUNY female students in their freshman or sophomore year who are studying computer science or related fields.

Today, Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen and dozens of companies gathered at Cornell Tech to craft their Winternship program in conjunction with the launch of a marketing campaign to encourage more companies to sponsor young women exploring degree and career opportunities in technology. The campaign will include digital advertising on social media platforms and on LinkNYC kiosks across the city.

Participating companies include Verizon, OATH, Accenture, Citi, Turner, AppNexus, Grand Central Tech, Bitly, Blackstone, and many others. The Winternships will occur during CUNY's winter break in January 2018.

“New York City is building the strongest tech sector for women anywhere in the country. These are real investments that put more women on career paths in technology. We thank Cornell Tech, CUNY and our private sector partners for collaborating to help women build their skills and their resumes,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio.

“Cornell Tech is proud to partner with CUNY and dozens of companies who are dedicated to launching the next generation of women in tech in New York,” said Judith Spitz, Cornell Tech's WiTNY Program Director. “Winternships will give CUNY freshmen and sophomores that first ‘foot in the door’ and an early look into what their future in tech could be like as they build their skills, confidence, and network. We believe that with one or more of these experiences ‘under their belt’ and on their resumes, we will replace the obstacle course that these young women face with a glide path to success; giving them the opportunity to share in the benefits the tech industry affords.”

“Women are vastly underrepresented in the technology workforce, and this new Winternship program is part of CUNY's comprehensive effort to address this problem,” said Associate Vice Chancellor Andrea Shapiro Davis, who is leading the WiTNY program at CUNY. “These internships will not only provide new opportunities for our students, but will more broadly introduce the NY tech ecosystem to the strengths and talents of our diverse student population and show them that CUNY is a place to recruit the next generation of tech talent.”

"New York is the best place to be a woman in tech, and the Winternship program is an example of that," said Julie Samuels, Executive Director of Tech:NYC. "It's refreshing and meaningful to see institutions like Cornell Tech and CUNY join with the private sector to support our future women leaders and to work together to realize the goal of a tech industry where women are truly equal."

Short internships early in their college careers will give these young CUNY women much needed exposure, experience and a set of credentials that make their resumes more competitive when it comes time to apply for 10-week summer internships, and ultimately full-time jobs. Giving young women these mini-internship experiences will help launch the careers of a new generation of women in tech in New York.

"People are New York City's greatest source of competitive advantage," said Lynn McMahon, New York Metro Office Managing Director, Accenture. "At a time when employers are facing a skills gap – particularly in the technology field – internships are an effective way for companies to reach previously untapped pools of talent. We believe that the Cornell Tech and the City University of New York winter internship program is critical to ignite greater interest in technology and ultimately build a stronger pipeline in New York City."

A digital advertising campaign on social media and LinkNYC kiosks will show the diverse group of women who have participated in other WiTNY programs to encourage more young women to pursue careers in tech. Through the campaign, WiTNY will also generate interest from additional companies who want to join the WiTNY network.

The City of New York, along with Cornell Tech and CUNY, are committed to encouraging more women to pursue careers in technology. As part of this mission, Cornell Tech, CUNY, and a growing number of corporations including Verizon, Accenture, IBM, Citi and Xerox have partnered to create WiTNY to facilitate, encourage, and enable a significant increase in the participation of women in both higher education and entrepreneurship in fields related to technology in the New York market. Jeremy, again, apologies.

Also, we have a details to fill out (highlighted towards end) – will update those in the morning and will send a quote for Alicia Glen

Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, Cornell Tech, & CUNY Launch
Winternship:
A Paid Internship Program & Digital Campaign
for CUNY Women in Tech

Over 200 freshmen and sophomore women at CUNY will participate in 2-week program across dozens of tech companies; Campaign will open doors for more young women in tech sector

NEW YORK – Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen, Cornell Tech, and the City University of New York today launched a new winter internship program as part of the Women in Technology and Entrepreneurship in NY (WiTNY) initiative. The program, called a Winternship, will provide paid internships to up to 200 CUNY women students in their freshman or sophomore year who are studying computer science or related fields. Today, participating companies came together at Cornell Tech to craft their Winternship program in conjunction with the launch of a marketing campaign to encourage more companies to sponsor young women exploring degree and career opportunities in technology. The campaign will include digital advertising on social media platforms and on LinkNYC kiosks across the city.

Participating companies include: Verizon, OATH, Accenture, Citi, Turner, AppNexus, Pfizer, Bitly, Blackstone, and many others. The Winternships will occur during CUNY's winter break in January 2018.

“Cornell Tech is proud to partner with CUNY and dozens of tech companies who are dedicated to launching the next generation of women in tech in New York,” said Judith Spitz, Cornell Tech's WiTNY Program Director. “Winternships will give CUNY freshmen and sophomores that first ‘foot in the door’ and an early look into what their future in tech could be like as they build their skills, confidence, and network. We believe that with one or more of these experiences ‘under their belt’ and on their resumes, we will replace the obstacle course that these young women face with a glide path to success; giving them the opportunity to share in the benefits the tech industry affords.”

DM GLEN QUOTE

CUNY QUOTE

JULIE SAMUELS QUOTE

Short internships early in their college careers will give these young CUNY women much needed exposure, experience and a set of credentials that make their resumes more competitive when it comes time to apply for 10-week summer internships, and ultimately full-time jobs. Giving young women these mini-internship experiences will help launch the careers of a new generation of women in tech in New York.

A digital advertising campaign on social media and LinkNYC kiosks will show the diverse group of women who have participated in other WiTNY programs to encourage more young women to pursue careers in tech. Through the campaign, WiTNY will also generate interest from additional companies who want to join the WiTNY network.

The City of New York, along with Cornell Tech and CUNY, are committed to encouraging more women to pursue careers in technology. As part of this mission, Cornell Tech, CUNY, and a growing number of corporations have partnered to create WiTNY to facilitate, encourage, and enable a significant increase in the participation of women in both higher education and entrepreneurship in fields related to technology in the New York market. The City of New York has supported these efforts, facilitating industry-academia partnerships through its Tech Talent Pipeline and other initiatives to build a more inclusive tech ecosystem. [We WILL ADD STUFF HERE ON THE CITY'S PROGRAMS TO PROMOTE TECH]

WITNY's strategy is to recruit more women by working with CUNY faculty to offer innovative introductory curricula -- both undergraduate courses as well as a unique summer program called the Summer Guild for young women in between their last year of high school and first year at CUNY -- and retain them through scholarship incentives, career immersion via high tech internships, programming and mentorship to develop a robust community of tech women in New York. To expand access to computer science at the CUNY, Cornell Tech and CUNY partnered and developed curriculum that is being implemented at more than a dozen CUNY campuses. [WILL ALSO ADD DETAILS ON CUNY 2X HERE]

About Cornell Tech

Cornell Tech brings together faculty, business leaders, tech entrepreneurs and students in a catalytic environment to produce visionary results grounded in significant needs that will reinvent the way we live in the digital age. The Jacobs Technion-Cornell Institute embodies the academic partnership between the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology and Cornell University on the Cornell Tech campus.

From 2012-2017, the campus was temporarily located in Google's New York City building. In fall 2017, 30 world-class faculty and about 300 graduate students moved to the first phase of Cornell Tech's permanent campus on Roosevelt Island, continuing to conduct groundbreaking research, collaborate extensively with tech-oriented companies and organizations and pursue their own startups. When fully completed, the campus will include two million square feet of state-of-the-art buildings, over two acres of open space, and will be home to more than 2,000 graduate students and hundreds of faculty and staff.

Dear Jonathan Rosen,

As the steward of “the People’s House” on the occasion of its 75th anniversary as official residence, I write inviting you to join the Mayor and First Lady on December 7 for an intimate dinner in the Wagner Ballroom awarding a Key to the City to Richard Parsons and Chita Rivera. The reply form attached provides the details. Your presence on the Host Committee and in person that night will assure the success merited to sustain our full range of public programs. It will also enhance our collective recognition of two legendary New Yorkers, whose career contributions set a standard of civic excellence that is second to none.

Thanks in advance.

We look forward to seeing you at Gracie on December 7, 2017.

NEW YORK CITY CYBER COMMAND RECOGNIZES NATIONAL CYBERSECURITY AWARENESS MONTH

LinkNYC Kiosks Now Featuring Cyber Tips for New Yorkers

NEW YORK – New York City Cyber Command today announced the launch of an “Internet Safety 101” tip series on LinkNYC kiosks throughout the city in recognition of National Cybersecurity Awareness Month. The new awareness campaign will display the top five basic cybersecurity tips and best practices on Link’s 55-inch digital screens in an effort to increase public understanding of cyber threats and empower New Yorkers to be safer and more secure online.

“As we continue to expand our digital footprint, it is becoming increasingly important to share best practices and make it known that cybersecurity is everyone’s responsibility,” said Geoffrey Brown, NYC Chief Information Security Officer (CISO) and Head of Cyber Command. “You don’t need to be a computer expert to practice good cyber hygiene. We hope these simple everyday reminders will help New Yorkers lead a safer online life.”

NYC Cyber Command (NYC3) was created by executive order in July 2017 to lead the City’s cyber defense efforts, working across more than 100 agencies and offices to prevent, detect, respond, and recover from cyber threats. Brown recently named Quiescence Phillips as the new Deputy CISO for Threat Management. Phillips will oversee the threat intelligence analysis and operations dedicated to countering and responding to cyber incidents across City government.

While NYC3’s work is exclusively focused on cyber defense within City government, the team has developed the following “Internet Safety 101” tips featured on LinkNYC kiosks for the general public: [ATTACH SCREENSHOTS]

- Never share your passwords -- with anyone.
- Always confirm sender before opening unknown links or attachments.
Use strong, unique passwords for all of your accounts.

- The Internet is forever: Be thoughtful about what you post online.
- Always use passcodes on your personal devices.

Cyber Security Awareness Month is a nationally recognized effort sponsored by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security in cooperation with the National Cyber Security Alliance to raise cybersecurity awareness across the country and to empower citizens, businesses, government and schools to improve their cyber security preparedness.

Simcha –

Mary from the Coalition for the Homeless is on leave, but here is a quote you can use from Shelly Nortz, Executive Director for Policy:

“The Mayor’s housing plan represents real progress toward making New York City more affordable. To lower record levels of homelessness, the City must build and complete an additional 10,000 units of affordable housing for currently homeless New Yorkers in the next five years. With that commitment, and doubling federal housing set-asides for homeless households, we can finally turn the tide on the homeless epidemic.”

SCHEDULE, ACCELERATE PACE AND EXPAND GOALS

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

MAYOR DE BLASIO TO COMPLETE AFFORDABLE HOUSING PLAN 2 YEARS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE, ACCELERATE PACE AND EXPAND GOALS

City will boost production to 25,000 apartments annually, administration sets new goal of 300,000 apartments by 2026

NEW YORK—Mayor Bill de Blasio today announced that his administration is now on track to build and protect 200,000 affordable homes by 2022, two years ahead of schedule. With the addition of new tools, programs and funding, the City will ramp up to securing 25,000 affordable apartments annually by 2021 and beyond—a pace it has never before reached. With that machinery in place, the City is taking on a new goal: 300,000 such apartments by 2026, enough for the entire population of Boston or Seattle.

In the coming days, the Mayor will unveil a battery of new programs designed to realize this new goal. Those efforts will target seniors, homeowners and tenants in existing affordable housing who need protection. To accelerate, the plan will require an additional $150 million per year in the current 4-year financial plan. This will bring the City's investment in achieving 100,000 more homes to about $1.3 billion per year over nine years. Future financial plans will reflect the commitment.

“We’ve kept our promises to New Yorkers, and now it’s time to go farther and faster. Like Mayor Koch before us, we are building an engine that will keep families in safe, decent and affordable homes for decades to come. We will keep this a city for seniors, veterans, working families and the middle class,” Mayor Bill de Blasio said.

“Every year, we have pushed this plan deeper to reach more people in more neighborhoods. Completing this plan two years early means tens of thousands more families will come home sooner to homes they can afford. I am so proud of our agency teams and all our partners who are building an engine for affordable housing that will continue building and protecting homes for years to come,” said Deputy Mayor for Housing and Economic Development Alicia Glen.

Mayor de Blasio announced the first new program today. The “Neighborhood Pillars” program will deploy a $275 million public-private fund to target fast-changing neighborhoods where aggressive speculators threaten traditional rent regulated apartment buildings. Through the largest program of its kind in the United States, the City’s Department of Housing Preservation and Housing Development Corporation will provide financing to non-profits and other mission-driven organizations to purchase older rent-regulated buildings to keep them affordable and keep current tenants in place. The program will secure an additional 1,000 affordable homes each year—7,500 total—putting those buildings in good hands before bad actors put tenants at risk of illegal rent hikes, harassment or eviction.

The program will help mission-driven non-profits grow and will take advantage of their ability to identify the buildings most at risk of speculation and rapid turnover. It will leverage funding from private-sector banking partners and philanthropic organizations.

“The gains we have made to date through Housing New York are borne out not just in the numbers, but in the people we are reaching through the affordable housing we build and preserve. We are excited to act even more boldly and decisively by tackling this new, more aggressive goal and by deploying more tools to safeguard affordability,” said Housing Preservation and Development Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer. “I want to thank the Mayor, my colleagues at HPD and HDC, and our many partners for their tireless work and commitment to ensuring New York is a more just and equitable city for generations to come.”

“We are proud to stand with the Mayor as he expands the City’s commitment to the people of New York with an accelerated housing plan,” said Housing Development Corporation President Eric Enderlin. “Together with our many dedicated partners we have set a solid course to reach the ambitious goals of Housing New York and are primed to amplify our production of affordable housing to reach even more New Yorkers in need.”

When the de Blasio administration took office, it inherited a strong foundation of affordable programs capable of building and protecting approximately 15,000 homes each year. Since 2014, the City has increased that pipeline to more than 20,000 per year. The new annual target of 25,000 per year represents a 66 percent jump from pre-2014 levels, and will represent a sustained level of production never before achieved by the City.

Accelerated and Expanded Housing Plan

To date, the City has secured 77,651 affordable homes—enough for more than 200,000 New Yorkers. The City’s efforts to reform and accelerate affordable housing have included:

- More housing for the lowest-income New Yorkers than ever before: Over 40 percent of all affordable homes secured last year served individuals making less than $33,500 or $43,000 for a family of three. New programs like ELLA (Extremely Low and Low Affordability) are now among the largest drivers of affordable housing in the city.
- More protections to keep New Yorkers in their homes: Rent regulated tenants saw two consecutive years of rent freezes, the City is funding free legal services for all tenants facing eviction, a new Anti-Harassment Task Force is laying criminal charges against landlords who put tenants’ safety at risk, and targeted preservation efforts are keeping hundreds of buildings affordable.
- A new paradigm for building: Permanent affordable housing is now mandatory in newly-rezoned residential buildings and neighborhoods, the City has passed reforms improving the quality and lowering the cost of affordable home construction, and tax incentive programs now require at least 25 percent of new apartments to be affordable—with no tax breaks at all for luxury condos.
- A bigger network of housing providers: More partners than ever are building and protecting affordable housing in the city. Non-profit organizations are involved in a third of all affordable projects, the City is cultivating MWBE partners with special requests for proposals, and City worked with Enterprise to fund a number of emerging Community Land Trusts.
- No stone left unturned: The City has added more affordable housing into existing projects like Lighthouse point on Staten Island and the Domino Sugar site in Williamsburg. The City has put two-thirds of its remaining public lots suitable for housing into production, and leveraged opportunities to add housing to City projects like the renovation and expansion of the Sunset Park library and at Brooklyn Bridge Park.

The Mayor made today's announced at CAMBA Gardens II, one of the first new affordable and supportive housing construction projects undertaken under the Mayor's housing plan in 2014. Today, tenants are moving into 293 brand new homes in Prospect Lefferts Gardens.

"Wherever I go in Brooklyn, the urgent demand for affordable housing is the same. We need to exhaust every resource we have to preserve and create the affordable homes that Brooklynites need to stay in the communities they helped to build. I thank Mayor de Blasio for advancing our City's affordable housing goals further forward and committing billions of dollars in new investment to this most critical of endeavors. My administration also appreciates the efforts to empower mission-driven non-profits to acquire buildings at risk of falling out of the rent regulation rolls, helping us combat those who may seek to engage in tenant harassment. Brooklyn must continue to be a home to everyone from everywhere," said the Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams.

State Senator Jose Peralta said, "Affordable housing is key in keeping New York what it is, a dynamic, diverse metropolis. Our city must maintain its identity by helping hard-working New Yorkers stay in the neighborhoods they built, and this is why I applaud Mayor Bill de Blasio and his administration's programs to increase the number of affordable homes."

"This city administration and I share the deep belief that safe, affordable housing is a life-changing commodity that stabilizes communities and infuses families and individuals with hope for the future," said Assemblyman Steven Cymbrowitz, Chair of the Housing Committee. "I commend Mayor de Blasio for achieving this housing plan and I'm pleased that these successful public-private partnerships will allow so many additional New Yorkers to realize the American Dream."

"Housing is the most critical necessity for the residents of our city. The preservation and creation of truly affordable housing will guarantee that our communities remain intact," said Assemblywoman Carmen De La Rosa. "I commend the efforts of Mayor de Blasio and his administration in making housing a priority for New York City."

"By dramatically preserving and expanding New York's affordable housing stock, Mayor de Blasio's administration is helping to ensure that our city remains livable city for people from all walks of life, including middle and low-income New Yorkers," Assembly Member Richard N. Gottfried said.

Assemblyman Jeffrey Dinowitz (D-Bronx) said: "New Yorkers are increasingly unable to afford to continue living in New York City. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for the almost 80,000 units of affordable housing already secured as well as the ambitious goal of 300,000 affordable units in the next decade. People in my district are facing new and evolving threats to their homes, such as preferential rents and the accompanying large rent increases. We must ensure that everyone has the ability to afford to live in our great City, and this affordable housing plan is an important first step."

Assemblyman Luis Sepulveda, member of Housing Committee, stated, "Affordable housing is a cornerstone of achieving an American Dream. I praise the mayor on his aggressive focus on this important problem. Every day I get people walking into my office looking for housing. I hope that this initiatives help to begin to solve homelessness problem and preserve housing for those who would otherwise faced imminent evictions as they could Not afford increased rent. Thank you mayor de Blasio, especially for your focus on seniors, veterans, working and middle class of our city who are in much need of quality affordable housing today!"

"I applaud Mayor Bill de Blasio and HPD Commissioner Torres-Springer for their ambitious efforts to create and preserve affordable housing at such a groundbreaking scale that is years ahead of schedule. NYC proudly invests in its residents to ensure that all New Yorkers have access to quality affordable housing at a broad range of income levels. I look forward to seeing the results of Housing New York's new goals across our diverse communities and congratulate my Council colleagues for their important role in funding and approving such projects in all five boroughs," said Council Member David Greenfield, Chair of the Committee on Land Use.

"Affordable Housing is the biggest issue of the day, so thankfully we are heading in the right direction in the Mayor's housing plan," said Council Member Donovan Richards, chair of the Subcommittee on Zoning and Franchises. "We look forwarding to working in the City Council to deliver more thoughtful affordable housing opportunities that bring key investments into our communities."

"Affordable housing is vital for the welfare of our low-income residents. No one should feel forced to skip meals in order to pay rent, or to relocate to another city due to New York City's high cost of living. This is a situation that needs an immediate solution and I'm glad to learn that Mayor de Blasio is delivering on his promise to increase affordable housing opportunities for New Yorkers, ahead of schedule," said Council Member Julissa Ferreras-Copeland, Chair of the Finance Committee.

"The importance of creating and securing more affordable housing in New York City cannot be overstated. Knowing that we are ahead of schedule in achieving the housing preservation and development goals set out by the Housing New York plan means we are making significant progress toward ensuring low-income New Yorkers are able to afford to stay in the city they call home. Boosting these goals and supplying additional programming and resources to attain them is indicative of the seriousness of the housing situation in New York and even more demonstrative of the City's commitment to creating and preserving more of it," Council Member Robert Cornegy said.

"Affordable housing is one of the most important things for New Yorkers. Everywhere I go and speak, people want to know about affordable housing. This is great news," said Council Member Karen Koslowitz.

"Working with the administration, we were able to put a plan in place to secure over 3,000 units of affordable housing in East New York," said Council Member Rafael Espinal. "This, in addition to the other investments in jobs, infrastructure and education, will be a vital protection for New Yorkers who deserve to have safe and affordable housing. Congratulations to Mayor de Blasio on exceeding his housing goals and keeping focused on addressing the affordability crisis in our city."

"The pace of progress signals this Administration's serious commitment to combatting the affordability crisis in New York City. We must continue the work to deepen affordability for families across the City. Every New Yorker has a right to a stable home," Council Member Ritchie Torres said.

“Affordable housing is a major issue in our city, and it is important for all of us to work together to address the needs of those most affected by this crisis. I want to commend our partners who have worked diligently to address this issue, including the Mayor, CAMBA, and numerous city agencies. There is more work to be done, but today’s announcement is a significant step in keeping the men and women of New York City in safe and affordable homes,” said Council Member Mathieu Eugene.

“This is historic and good news. The unprecedented success of the Mayor's affordable housing plan in combination with these new programs targeted for seniors, homeowners and existing affordable housing tenants in need of protection will make a real difference in addressing NYC's housing crisis,” said Council Member Brad Lander. “Today, I’m proud to stand beside Mayor de Blasio and the administration, as we set more ambitious goals in our fight to ensure affordable housing and commit ourselves to help the New Yorkers who simply want to stay in the homes they’ve been in for years, without fear of harassment or displacement.”

“To create a city that works for all New Yorkers, all of us have to be committed to creating quality, affordable housing,” said Council Member Rafael Salamanca, Jr. “That is certainly true of my district in the Bronx, and all efforts to expedite the creation of more housing is a worthy effort.”

“With the rampant speculation in my district, one of the biggest challenges we face is keeping tenants in their homes. The new Neighborhood Pillars policy acknowledges that non-profits have a long-term commitment to stabilizing our communities. I appreciate the administration’s attention to this issue and look forward to working with Mayor de Blasio to find opportunities for affordable housing preservation and development.” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso.

“In such a densely populated city, it can be difficult to meet the demand for affordable housing. The de Blasio administration has consistently embraced this challenge, developing and promptly fulfilling the goals outlined in the Housing New York plan. The Mayor’s commitment to providing adequate housing and additional protections for tenants will ensure that we maintain a high-quality of life for our most vulnerable New Yorkers.” said Council Member Annabel Palma.

“Today I want to welcome families into 293 brand new houses here in New York City. Housing and rent are serious issues in New York City, and when we do not take action, we see the consequences measured in higher prices, evictions, and instability for families. We have come far, but we will never stop working until every New Yorker has shelter. A special thank you to Mayor de Blasio for his role in ramping up the Housing NY plan, as well as to everyone working to bring affordable homes to New York,” said Council Member Carlos Menchaca.

“Today’s announcement that the City is on track to reach and surpass its goal to build 200,000 units of affordable housing is welcome news. I especially applaud the fact that we have been able to achieve this goal well ahead of schedule,” said Council Member Fernando Cabrera.

“Building and preserving affordable housing units in New York City was the number one priority for this administration,” said Council Member Ben Kallos. “Now, almost four years later, the Mayor remains focused on this priority and has managed to get ahead of his Affordable Housing plan’s ambitious schedule. Congratulations to Mayor de Blasio and all the agencies involved in reaching this milestone as we work together to keep New York City a place where New Yorkers of all incomes can afford to live."

"With a challenge as daunting as the lack of affordable housing in this city, our response must be as ambitious as possible," said Council Member Stephen Levin. "New Yorkers everywhere struggle with rising housing costs, displacement, and a constant worry about the future. There is no single policy solution that will save the day. We need a comprehensive, multi-pronged, and aggressive approach. This administration has already made significant progress expanding and preserving affordable housing. Under this new plan, I look forward to even greater progress on the biggest challenge facing our city."

"It is excellent news that the City is ahead of its schedule in terms of affordable housing units that are in process and existing units that have been preserved. The profound need for affordable housing across our city is a crisis that will take many years to address. In my district and many other neighborhoods, tenants in affordable units continue to be harassed and displaced. I commend the de Blasio administration for attacking this issue from multiple angles and pushing forward," said Council Member Helen Rosenthal.

"New York has over 8.5 million people who call this city home. Creating more affordable housing units will ensure it remains that way for generations," said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez. "We're living the consequences of lack of attention to affordable housing of years ago. I'm glad that as a city we're focused again on affordability for working and middle class New Yorkers."

"The pace at which this Administration has preserved and created affordable housing units is a remarkable achievement that will benefit New Yorkers for years to come. As our city continues to change and grow, it is absolutely imperative that we provide safe and affordable housing for the families and communities who have always lived here. I commend Mayor de Blasio and HPD Commissioner Maria Springer Torres for their leadership and their commitment to protecting the affordability of our neighborhoods and our communities," said Council Member Vanessa Gibson.

"Over the last four years, this Administration has affirmed its commitment to promoting home and housing affordability to the residents of my district," said Council Member I. Daneek Miller, Chair of the Civil Service and Labor Committee. "I've partnered with it to prevent the foreclosure and private equity consumption of distressed homes through the Council's Mortgage Buyback program, and to develop thousands of affordable housing units through the employment of M/WBE contractors. The innovative proposal unveiled today has great potential to build on these recent successes, and I commend Mayor de Blasio for taking this latest step to keep New Yorkers comfortably housed in their communities."

"Affordable housing and housing preservation are two keys to fighting homelessness. Mayor de Blasio and the Housing Preservation Department's work towards building new affordable housing and creating programs that preserve housing at affordable rates for those in need is laudable," said Council Member Andrew Cohen.

"I applaud the Mayor and his team for their creative, aggressive and indefatigable efforts to ensure quality affordable housing. These major affordable housing programs the Mayor has implemented over the course of his first term have made an extraordinary positive difference in the lives of many individuals and families in New York City. We still have much work ahead us. But we are on a right path for ensuring safe and accessible housing for all New Yorkers,” said Frederick A. Davie, of the Union Theological Seminary.

“We applaud the mayor for accelerating his ambitious housing plan and expanding it to ensure even more New Yorkers have the affordable housing that they need,” said 32BJ President Hector Figueroa. “The plan will help seniors and vulnerable people stay in their homes. And by providing more housing for working families at varying income levels, while ensuring the creation of quality, permanent jobs, we can make sure that our city remains the diverse and vibrant place that makes it so great.”

“The Mayor’s housing plan represents real progress toward making New York City more affordable. To lower record levels of homelessness, the City must build and complete an additional 10,000 units of affordable housing for currently homeless New Yorkers in the next five years. With that commitment, and doubling federal housing set-asides for homeless households, we can finally turn the tide on the homeless epidemic,” said Shelly Nortz, Executive Director for Policy, Coalition for the Homeless.

“Congratulations to the Mayor and every affordable housing provider in New York who are working tirelessly to ensure that our city stays a place where everyone can live with dignity. Still, there is more to do- which is why we look forward to supporting the Mayor's goal of protecting 300,000 units of affordable housing citywide by 2029,” said Paul R. Freitag, Executive Director, West Side Federation for Senior and Supportive Housing.

“The City's commitment to expanding affordable housing for individuals and families at risk of homelessness is unparalleled and Breaking Ground is proud to be a part of it. We thank the de Blasio Administration for their commitment to helping the most vulnerable New Yorkers and for their additional support today for mission-driven non-profits to do even more to keep the city we love affordable for all,” said Brenda Rosen, President and CEO of Breaking Ground.

“With New Yorkers in every neighborhood feeling the pressure of rising rents, building and preserving affordable homes citywide should be our number one priority,” said Judi Kende, vice president and New York market leader, Enterprise Community Partners. “By empowering mission-driven nonprofits to acquire and stabilize traditional rent regulated buildings, the Neighborhood Pillars Initiative will preserve homes and help tenants stay in their neighborhoods. We applaud the city for recognizing the critical role nonprofits and community organizations can play in solving New York’s affordable housing challenges and we look forward to continuing to work with the Mayor’s Office and HPD to ensure every New Yorker has an affordable place to call home.”

“We are thrilled to see the Mayor expand the Housing New York plan, and to focus much needed resources on seniors, homeowners and efforts to combat aggressive speculators” said Christie Peale, Executive Director of the Center for NYC Neighborhoods. “The Center strongly supports innovative models that ensure permanent affordability, such as community land trusts, that can protect homeowners and their renters from the volatility of the real estate market. We look forward to further supporting programs like the Homeowner HelpDesk that provide vulnerable homeowners with direct assistance, while also working with the City to catalyze new affordable homeownership opportunities.”

“Creating affordable housing for all income levels is key to maintaining New York City’s competitiveness,” said Bill Rudin, Chairman for the Association for a Better New York. “Mayor de Blasio’s commitment to this goal and his administration’s dedication has led to unprecedented levels of preservation and development, which is critical to keep pace with our increasing population.”

"Community Development Corporations have been providing housing to very low income New Yorkers for decades. We applaud the Mayor's recognition of the unique role that CDCs play in the City's affordable housing landscape. The Joint Ownership Entity is premised on increasing member CDCs' capacity to pursue new development opportunities and we look forward to working with HPD to develop of new financing tools to purchase rent regulated apartments," said Michael Rochford, Chair of the Joint Ownership Entity New York City (JOE NYC).

“We applaud the Mayor for progress toward its ambitious 10-year Housing New York Plan,” said Sam Marks, Executive Director of LISC NYC. “In particular we are excited about the announcement of the Community Pillars program, which aligns with our mission of bringing more affordable housing into nonprofit and community stewardship as a long term hedge against residential displacement.”

“People who work in New York must be able to afford to live in New York -- that means fair wages and access to affordable housing. We support the Mayor's efforts to make this a reality for all on both fronts. Affordable housing has been a priority for the De Blasio administration from day one and must continue to be. What he has achieved on affordable housing is important for all New Yorkers," said Stuart Appelbaum, President of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

“We applaud the Mayor’s commitment to meeting the growing homelessness crisis head-on, leaving no stone unturned in the effort to preserve and create truly affordable housing in New York City,” said Laura Mascuch, Executive Director, Supportive Housing Network of New York.

“We’re incredibly proud to partner with the city and very excited that our city, under Mayor de Blasio’s leadership, is set to exceed its affordable housing goals. CAMBA Gardens 2 is a perfect example of what can be created when innovation meets initiative. CAMBA/CAMBA Housing Ventures looks forward to developing and preserving affordable housing in New York City to accomplish Mayor de Blasio's housing goal. Thanks to the Mayor’s good efforts, more people can be served by this and other innovative programs within the next few years,” said Joanne Oplustil, President and CEO of CAMBA.

“New York City has had a long tradition of innovation in housing policies designed to protect our older rental housing stock, increase housing options for those most in need, and improve neighborhoods. With the latest announcement, Mayor deBlasio has further demonstrated his long term commitment to housing and with a new emphasis on partnering with our City’s not-for-profit housing organizations will expand opportunities to protect neighborhoods and help preserve their scarce rental housing resources for future generations,” said Jerilyn Perine, Executive Director, Citizens Housing & Planning Council.

JoAnne Page, President and CEO of the Fortune Society, said, “As a provider of innovative affordable and supportive housing to people with criminal justice histories and to low income members of the community, we know that a safe and affordable place to live is essential to helping people rebuild their lives and to building and preserving healthy families and communities. We commend the Mayor for significantly expanding New York City’s commitment to creating and preserving affordable housing. Such housing is essential for the health and vibrancy and diversity and justice of our beautiful city.”

“Kudos to the Mayor and his team: no one has ramped up affordable housing production to this level ever before, in New York City, or anywhere in the country. Frankly, I thought they’d have a hard time meeting their original goal when it was first announced; to now go up to 25,000 units a year is truly impressive, especially with the new plan’s welcome focus on helping nonprofits house very low-income New Yorkers,” said Ted Houghton, President, Gateway Housing.

“As a provider of supportive housing for young adults, Good Shepherd Services believes that every New Yorker must have the opportunity to thrive in a safe and stable home in order for our city to unleash its full potential. The de Blasio administration has made incredible progress creating and preserving affordable housing, implementing innovative programming with achievable goals. We look forward to working together and applaud the administration for setting aggressive new goals for Housing NY,” said Sr. Paulette LoMonaco, Executive Director, Good Shepherd Services.

“When Brooklyn’s workforce can keep and make their homes here too, it helps to strengthen our economy even more,” said Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Andrew Hoan. “We commend the Mayor and his administration for employing the services of our local MWBEs and non-profits, and for moving so quickly on such an important issue for Brooklyn and all of New York City.”

“We applaud the establishment of the Neighbor Pillars initiative which provides mission driven community organizations with the opportunity to protect properties. Over our 4 decades of work as a non-profit affordable housing developer we have worked against the displacement of tenants as unscrupulous rent regulated building owners harass and force out tenants in heated real estate markets. We have long advocated for expanded ownership of properties using public resources by locally controlled mission based non-profits to better ensure permanent affordability and community oversight and support the Mayor’s initiative to increase that component,” said Frank Lang Director of Housing at St Nicks Alliance.

Hi Natalie and Dan, I am bring both of you in on this because part of story involves a mayoral campaign ad.

<https://m.youtube.com/watch?v=6x7M-Eq9mc&feature=youtu.be>

This campaign ad that began airing a few weeks ago includes footage of kids playing among the toys at Underhill Playground. If the mayor felt that scene was good enough to use in a campaign ad showing progress the city has made, why would the city feel a need to remove the toys?

Also, I have to ask whether the toys were removed as a result of the campaign's visit to film ad a month ago.

Thanks

Hi, I am working on a story about beloved toys that children played with at Underhill Playground in Prospect Heights being removed the night of October 23 by Parks Department workers.

Parents in the area are very upset, saying the toys have been there for many years. While some were old, others were new and donated. Why not just remove the old toys if that was the issue?

Checking why the Parks Department decided to remove them.

Thanks

“As the Mayor has said, the property tax system in New York City is fundamentally broken and unfair, and he looks forward to working together with communities across the City on sensible reforms. Assemblymember Malliotakis has been a legislator in Albany for years – where the primary power to change the tax code lies -- and has never delivered anything for New York homeowners.”

Hello,

I am a reporter at WNYC. I'm working on a short story after Nicole Malliotakis was on our air today.

She said the mayor has fallen short of his promises to make the city more affordable. She claims that when he froze stabilized rents for a year, that put the burden on property owners because property taxes kept increasing and owners had to make up the difference.

I wanted to reach out to get a response to those criticisms.

Thank you,

Hi All,

Wanted to circle back to see if we have a time yet for the PA call? We have a mom interested but she needs to know the time ASAP since she is booking clients (she's a hair dresser) and want to works around this.

Also I just heard that the Senate could bring their bill to the floor likely the week after Thanksgiving (yikes!) so we might want to move ahead and start thinking about the other states we would want to do. On the call I was just on it sounds like the Senate Finance Rs are all yeses on the bill so it might not even be worth the time doing a call in Utah (unless we just want to through negative press at Hatch).

I think something in Arizona, Tennessee, Maine, and possibly Ohio would be best.

Thank you,
Elyssa

Hi All,

Wanted to circle back to see if we have a time yet for the PA call? We have a mom interested but she needs to know the time ASAP since she is booking clients (she's a hair dresser) and want to works around this.

Also I just heard that the Senate could bring their bill to the floor likely the week after Thanksgiving (yikes!) so we might want to move ahead and start thinking about the other states we would want to do. On the call I was just on it sounds like the Senate Finance Rs are all yeses on the bill so it might not even be worth the time doing a call in Utah (unless we just want to through negative press at Hatch).

I think something in Arizona, Tennessee, Maine, and possibly Ohio would be best.

Thank you,

Elyssa

Hi all,

As an update, if the call does get bumped to Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, Sen. Haywood's schedule for those days is this:

PA legislature is in session from about 1-4 pm on Tuesday and 11 am - 1 pm on Wednesday, so for his sake it'd be ideal to avoid those time blocks.

Thanks!

Hi,

Just to put this in writing:

We've got confirmation that state Sen. Art Haywood is interested in participating, and could participate on Monday 11/13, though he can't do anytime between 1 and 4 pm, since the legislature is in session then.

He represents Senate District 4, which straddles Philadelphia and Montgomery County.

Thanks Angela and all. This is coming together nicely, appreciate everyone's help.

I'd like to propose we have a call on Monday to review next steps in terms of logistics, RoS, talking points and press outreach. Mayor Kenney's primary point of contact can only do 3-4 on Monday. Can folks let me know today if that works for them as well?

Thanks again.

Hi All,

Wanted to circle back to see if we have a time yet for the PA call? We have a mom interested but she needs to know the time ASAP since she is booking clients (she's a hair dresser) and want to works around this.

Also I just heard that the Senate could bring their bill to the floor likely the week after Thanksgiving (yikes!) so we might want to move ahead and start thinking about the other states we would want to do. On the call I was just on it sounds like the Senate Finance Rs are all yeses on the bill so it might not even be worth the time doing a call in Utah (unless we just want to through negative press at Hatch).

I think something in Arizona, Tennessee, Maine, and possibly Ohio would be best.

Thank you,
Elyssa

As an update, if the call does get bumped to Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, Sen. Haywood's schedule for those days is this:

PA legislature is in session from about 1-4 pm on Tuesday and 11 am -1 pm on Wednesday, so for his sake it'd be ideal to avoid those time blocks.

Hi,

Just to put this in writing:

We've got confirmation that state Sen. Art Haywood is interested in participating, and could participate on Monday 11/13, though he can't do anytime between 1 and 4 pm, since the legislature is in session then.

He represents Senate District 4, which straddles Philadelphia and Montgomery County.

Hi All,

Wanted to circle back to see if we have a time yet for the PA call? We have a mom interested but she needs to know the time ASAP since she is booking clients (she's a hair dresser) and want to works around this.

Also I just heard that the Senate could bring their bill to the floor likely the week after Thanksgiving (yikes!) so we might want to move ahead and start thinking about the other states we would want to do. On the call I was just on it sounds like the Senate Finance Rs are all yeses on the bill so it might not even be worth the time doing a call in Utah (unless we just want to through negative press at Hatch).

I think something in Arizona, Tennessee, Maine, and possibly Ohio would be best.

Thank you,
Elyssa

Hi,

Just to put this in writing:

We've got confirmation that state Sen. Art Haywood is interested in participating, and could participate on Monday 11/13, though he can't do anytime between 1 and 4 pm, since the legislature is in session then.

He represents Senate District 4, which straddles Philadelphia and Montgomery County.

So are we all set with 3:15 on Wednesday, Nov. 15th?

Can someone lay out next steps so I can update our mom Gabby and our press team? (We are juggling multiple events next week so want to make sure nothing falls through the cracks).

Thank you all for organizing!

Hi All,

Wanted to circle back to see if we have a time yet for the PA call? We have a mom interested but she needs to know the time ASAP since she is booking clients (she's a hair dresser) and want to works around this.

Also I just heard that the Senate could bring their bill to the floor likely the week after Thanksgiving (yikes!) so we might want to move ahead and start thinking about the other states we would want to do. On the call I was just on it sounds like the Senate Finance Rs are all yeses on the bill so it might not even be worth the time doing a call in Utah (unless we just want to through negative press at Hatch).

I think something in Arizona, Tennessee, Maine, and possibly Ohio would be best.

Thank you,

Elyssa

Hi all,

As an update, if the call does get bumped to Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, Sen. Haywood's schedule for those days is this:

PA legislature is in session from about 1-4 pm on Tuesday and 11 am -1 pm on Wednesday, so for his sake it'd be ideal to avoid those time blocks.

Thanks!

Hi,

Just to put this in writing:

We've got confirmation that state Sen.
Art Haywood is interested in participating, and could participate on Monday 11/13, though he can't do anytime between 1 and 4 pm, since the

He represents Senate District 4, which

Thanks again.

Hi All,

Wanted to circle back to see if we have a time yet for the PA call? We have a mom interested but she needs to know the time ASAP since she is booking clients (she's a hair dresser) and want to works around this.

Also I just heard that the Senate could bring their bill to the floor likely the week after Thanksgiving (yikes!) so we might want to move ahead and start thinking about the other states we would want to do. On the call I was just on it sounds like the Senate Finance Rs are all yeses on the bill so it might not even be worth the time doing a call in Utah (unless we just want to through negative press at Hatch).

I think something in Arizona, Tennessee, Maine, and possibly Ohio would be best.

Thank you,
Elyssa

PA legislature is in session from about 1-4 pm on Tuesday and 11 am -1 pm on Wednesday, so for his sake it'd be ideal to avoid those time blocks.

Just to put this in writing:

We've got confirmation that state Sen. Art Haywood is interested in participating, and could participate on Monday 11/13, though he can't do anytime between 1 and 4 pm, since the legislature is in session then.

He represents Senate District 4, which straddles Philadelphia and Montgomery County.

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join “Not One Penny” Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor-Elect Garrett of Wilkinsburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor-Elect Marita Garrett of Wilkinsburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join with other Pennsylvanians to host a press call to discuss the harmful impacts that the Republican tax proposal will have on Pennsylvania families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and [xxxx], owner of [xxx] in [xxxx], and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans' tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

WHAT:

Press Call with Pennsylvania Mayors, business executives, and other local advocates of the "Not One Penny" campaign that opposes tax cuts for the rich at the expense of working families.

WHO:

Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia

Councilwoman Marita Garrett of Wilkinsburg

State Senator Art Haywood

Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire

Gabrielle Trinkle, MomsRising

[xxxx], small business owner, member of Main Street Alliance.

Hi All,

Wanted to circle back to see if we have a time yet for the PA call? We have a mom interested but she needs to know the time ASAP since she is booking clients (she's a hair dresser) and want to works around this.

Also I just heard that the Senate could bring their bill to the floor likely the week after Thanksgiving (yikes!) so we might want to move ahead and start thinking about the other states we would want to do. On the call I was just on it sounds like the Senate Finance Rs are all yeses on the bill so it might not even be worth the time doing a call in Utah (unless we just want to through negative press at Hatch).

I think something in Arizona, Tennessee, Maine, and possibly Ohio would be best.

Thank you,

Elyssa

Hi all,

As an update, if the call does get bumped to Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, Sen. Haywood's schedule for those days is this:

PA legislature is in session from about 1-4 pm on Tuesday and 11 am -1 pm on Wednesday, so for his sake it'd be ideal to avoid those time blocks.

Hi,

Just to put this in writing:

We've got confirmation that state Sen. Art Haywood is interested in participating, and could participate on Monday 11/13, though he can't do anytime between 1 and 4 pm, since the legislature is in session then.

He represents Senate District 4, which straddles Philadelphia and Montgomery County.

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials, business owners, and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point: Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan, and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150,000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system, providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages, talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)

Not One Penny | Talking Points

As President Trump and congressional Republicans push their plan to give massive tax breaks to the rich, progressive groups and grassroots organizations are mobilizing across the country to demand that elected officials provide not one penny in tax cuts for millionaires, billionaires, and wealthy corporations.

The last thing working-class Americans need is a tax code that further rigs the system in favor of corporations and the top 1 percent. This plan benefits the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

- This plan includes massive tax cuts aimed exclusively at millionaires, billionaires, and wealthy corporations that put public education, job training programs, Medicare, and Medicaid at risk. In fact, the bill gives 48 percent of its benefits to those in the top 1 percent.
- Trump's tax cuts rely on the same trickle-down economics that have left working families and small businesses behind as corporate profits skyrocket and wages stagnate.

This plan raises taxes on everyday people. The American middle class drives our economy and we must invest in working people. Tax cuts for the rich and wealthy corporations hurt the economy and cost jobs.

- The plan raises taxes on millions of people who can least afford it, including seniors on fixed incomes and people in the lowest income tax brackets. Under the Republican plan, more than 1 in 4 households would see a tax increase – averaging over $2,000 – once the plan is fully phased in.
- This framework is designed to shower even more benefits on millionaires and wealthy corporations as time goes by, but would mean tighter budgets for middle-class families over time. On average, families with children earning less $100,000 per year would see a tax increase.
- The Republican plan claims to cut taxes on small businesses. What it really does is create a special low tax rate for lobbyists, corporate lawyers, and other wealthy business owners, while excluding people who work for a salary or hourly wage.

This plan cuts trillions of dollars in funding for Medicare, Medicaid, education, and other vital services millions of Americans rely upon. Every dollar in new tax giveaways for the rich is another dollar taken away from our children's education, our loved ones' health care, and our families' financial security.

- The GOP plan gets rid of help for families with large medical expenses and for families who adopt, while also ending tax provisions that make it easier for veterans to find jobs, help workers pay off their student loans, and give assistance for the elderly.
- When Republicans say they want to repeal the Affordable Care Act, what they really mean is that they will take our health care away to give tax cuts to their donors.

Not one penny of tax cuts should go to those who need it the least, including multinational corporations and Wall Street. This plan gives a trillion-dollar tax cut to wealthy corporations and business owners.

- Slashing taxes for multinational corporations will not support small businesses and job creation. Instead, this bill will send even more jobs and profits offshore.
- This bill will provide massive tax breaks to the Wall Street executives that caused the Great Recession.

Under his proposed framework, Trump could stand to gain millions in tax cuts. Without his tax returns, we don't know how much this plan will benefit him. We must continue demanding Trump release his tax returns and calling on Republican leadership to stop giving tax breaks to millionaires, billionaires, and wealthy corporations.

Hi All,

Wanted to circle back to see if we have a time yet for the PA call? We have a mom interested but she needs to know the time ASAP since she is booking clients (she's a hair dresser) and want to works around this.

Also I just heard that the Senate could bring their bill to the floor likely the week after Thanksgiving (yikes!) so we might want to move ahead and start thinking about the other states we would want to do. On the call I was just on it sounds like the Senate Finance Rs are all yeses on the bill so it might not even be worth the time doing a call in Utah (unless we just want to through negative press at Hatch).

I think something in Arizona, Tennessee, Maine, and possibly Ohio would be best.

Thank you,
Elyssa

Hi all,

As an update, if the call does get bumped to Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, Sen. Haywood's schedule for those days is this:

PA legislature is in session from about 1-4 pm on Tuesday and 11 am -1 pm on Wednesday, so for his sake it'd be ideal to avoid those time blocks.

Thanks!

Hi,

Just to put this in writing:

We've got confirmation that state Sen. Art Haywood is interested in participating, and could participate on Monday 11/13, though he can't do anytime between 1 and 4 pm, since the legislature is in session then.

He represents Senate District 4, which straddles Philadelphia and Montgomery County.

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join “Not One Penny” Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenney of Philadelphia and Mayor-Elect Garrett of Wilkinsburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor-Elect Marita Garrett of Wilkinsburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join “Not One Penny” advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump’s tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans’ tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials, business owners, and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point: Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan, and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150,000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)
4. Run of Show

Hi all

My colleague Leslie Patterson who is also from BerlinRosen and works with MomsRising will be helping to staff the call. The plan should be for the speakers to introduce the person following them but Leslie will be on in case that doesn't happen. She will also call on press for questions. Let me know if there are any questions.

Thanks

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials, business owners, and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point: Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan, and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150,000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics -- Not One Penny is point on setting up call system, providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach -- Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages/talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny -- and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join “Not One Penny” Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilkesburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join “Not One Penny” advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump’s tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans’ tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I'd encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICYMI: Indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call, speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which, if any, Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways – Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you
Jon

Run of Show

3:15 - 3:16 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen, call facilitator
Leslie will open the call and introduce Mayor Jim Kenney

3:17 - 3:20 Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney
Mayor Kenney will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms Philadelphia and its residents. Mayor Kenney will introduce State Senator Art Haywood.

3:21 - 3:24 State Senator Art Haywood
State Senator Art Haywood will speak about the ways the tax reform bill harms the people of his district and the people of Pennsylvania. Senator Haywood will introduce Mayor Elect Garrett.

3:25 - 3:27 Councilwoman and Mayor-elect Marita Garrett of Wilkingsburg
Mayor-elect Garrett will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms small and medium sized cities and benefits Wall Street more than Main Street. Mayor Elect Garrett will introduce Richard Master.

3:28 - 3:30 Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire
Mr. Master will speak about how the ways in which tax bill will benefit him personally – but not give his business incentive to hire more workers or increase wages. Mr. Master will introduce Gabrielle Trinkle.

3:31 - 3:33 Gabrielle Trinkle, MomsRising member and mother of two
Gabrielle will speak about how the tax bill will grow the deficit and lead to cuts in programs like healthcare and education for her children. She will share how she depended on SNAP benefits earlier in her life and how the tax bill would lead to cuts in programs like that.

3:34 - 3:45 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen will facilitate Q & A from press

Hi all

My colleague Leslie Patterson who is also from BerlinRosen and works with MomsRising will be helping to staff the call. The plan should be for the speakers to introduce the person following them but Leslie will be on in case that doesn't happen. She will also call on press for questions. Let me know if there are any questions.

Thanks
Morgan

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials, business owners, and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point: Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan, and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150,000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join “Not One Penny” Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilkesburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join “Not One Penny” advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump’s tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans’ tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

Leslie have you and Ryan done a test drive of the call-in system? All set?
I'll dial into the press line so I'm not worried about whether my phone is muted.

Just want to make sure that the admin piece is completely handled. And I really appreciate you plugging that gap.

Thanks.

Hi everyone – thanks so much for all of this! It looks great and I'm excited about the call. Two quick questions

- Can other folks who are sending the advisory to press keep the group posted about RSVPs they're getting? We're going to be pitching aggressively tomorrow and want to have a sense of where we're at as much as possible. As of now we've heard that NBC 10 in Philly plans to cover.
- We'd like to add the dial-in information into the advisory when we resend it tomorrow – especially now that the vote might happen we want to make it easy for press to join on what's going to be a busy day. Can you let us know if there's any issue with doing that?

Finally, Jon, I agree with your recommendation on how to reframe remarks if the vote happens. I do think it would likely help with press attendance to our call depending on the timing. We'll look out for any updates from you on that front.

Thanks!
Leslie

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I'd encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICYMI, indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills, which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call, speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which, if any, Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways – Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you
Jon

3:15- 3:16 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen, call facilitator
Leslie will open the call and introduce Mayor Jim Kenney

3:17 – 3:20 Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney
Mayor Kenney will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms Philadelphia and its residents. Mayor Kenney will introduce State Senator Art Haywood

3:21 – 3:24 State Senator Art Haywood
State Senator Art Haywood will speak about the ways the tax reform bill harms the people of his district and the people of Pennsylvania. Senator Haywood will introduce Mayor Elect Garrett

3:25 – 3:27 Councilwoman and Mayor-elect Marita Garrett of Wilkensburg
Mayor-elect Garrett will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms small and medium-sized cities and benefits Wall Street more than Main Street. Mayor Elect Garrett will introduce Richard Master

3:28 – 3:30 Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire
Mr. Master will speak about how the ways in which tax bill will benefit him personally – but not give his business incentive to hire more workers or increase wages. Mr. Master will introduce Gabrielle Trinkle

3:31 – 3:33 Gabrielle Trinkle, MomsRising member and mother of two
Gabrielle will speak about how the tax bill will grow the deficit and lead to cuts in programs like healthcare and education for her children. She will share how she depended on SNAP benefits earlier in her life and how the tax bill would lead to cuts in programs like that.

3:34 – 3:45 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen will facilitate Q & A from press

Thanks Leslie.

I believe Mayor Kenney's office was planning to advise the call and include on his schedule for press.

Also to update folks I am now hearing that the vote on the house floor will be tomorrow morning after President Trump has a closed door meeting with the Republican house members at 9am.

Look forward to this call – thanks to all of you for participating.

Hi everyone – thanks so much for all of this! It looks great and I'm excited about the call. Two quick questions

- Can other folks who are sending the advisory to press keep the group posted about RSVPs they're getting? We're going to be pitching aggressively tomorrow and want to have a sense of where we're at as much as possible. As of now we've heard that NBC 10 in Philly plans to cover.
- We'd like to add the dial-in information into the advisory when we resend it tomorrow – especially now that the vote might happen we want to make it easy for press to join on what's going to be a busy day. Can you let us know if there's any issue with doing that?

Finally Jon I agree with your recommendation on how to reframe remarks if the vote happens. I do think it would likely help with press attendance to our call depending on the timing. We'll look out for any updates from you on that front.

Thanks!
Leslie

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I'd encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICYMI Indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which if any Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways – Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you
Jon

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials business owners and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150 000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join "Not One Penny" Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilkesburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join "Not One Penny" advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump's tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans' tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

Hi everyone – thanks so much for all of this! It looks great, and I'm excited about the call. Two quick questions:

- Can other folks who are sending the advisory to press keep the group posted about RSVPs they're getting? We're going to be pitching aggressively tomorrow and want to have a sense of where we're at, as much as possible. As of now, we've heard that NBC 10 in Philly plans to cover.

Finally, Jon, I agree with your recommendation on how to reframe remarks if the vote happens. I do think it would likely help with press attendance to our call, depending on the timing. We'll look out for any updates from you on that front.

Subject: Materials for call to prep for PA press call on 11/15

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials business owners and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150 000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)
4. Run of Show

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join "Not One Penny" Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilksburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilksburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join "Not One Penny" advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump's tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans' tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

I'll dial into the press line so I'm not worried about whether my phone is muted.

Just want to make sure that the admin piece is completely handled. And I really appreciate you plugging that gap.

Thanks.

Hi everyone -- thanks so much for all of this! It looks great and I'm excited about the call. Two quick questions

- Can other folks who are sending the advisory to press keep the group posted about RSVPs they're getting? We're going to be pitching aggressively tomorrow and want to have a sense of where we're at as much as possible. As of now we have heard that NBC 10 in Philly plans to cover.
- We'd like to add the dial-in information into the advisory when we resend it tomorrow -- especially now that the vote might happen -- we want to make it easy for press to join on what's going to be a busy day. Can you let us know if there's any issue with doing that?

Finally, Jon, I agree with your recommendation on how to reframe remarks if the vote happens. I do think it would likely help with press attendance to our call depending on the timing. We'll look out for any updates from you on that front.

Thanks!
Leslie

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I'd encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICYMI: Indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call, speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which if any Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways -- Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you
Jon

Run of Show

3:15 - 3:16 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen, call facilitator

Leslie will open the call and introduce Mayor Jim Kenney.

3:17 - 3:20 Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney

Mayor Kenney will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms Philadelphia and its residents. Mayor Kenney will introduce State Senator Art Haywood.

3:21 - 3:24 State Senator Art Haywood

State Senator Art Haywood will speak about the ways the tax reform bill harms the people of his district and the people of Pennsylvania. Senator Haywood will introduce Mayor Elect Garrett.

3:25 - 3:27 Councilwoman and Mayor-elect Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg

Mayor-elect Garrett will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms small and medium sized cities and benefits Wall Street more than Main Street. Mayor Elect Garrett will introduce Richard Master.

3:28 - 3:30 Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire

Mr. Master will speak about how the ways in which tax bill will benefit him personally – but not give his business incentive to hire more workers or increase wages. Mr. Master will introduce Gabrielle Trinkle.

3:31 - 3:33 Gabrielle Trinkle, MomsRising member and mother of two

Gabrielle will speak about how the tax bill will grow the deficit and lead to cuts in programs like healthcare and education for her children. She will share how she depended on SNAP benefits earlier in her life and how the tax bill would lead to cuts in programs like that.

3:34 - 3:45 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen will facilitate Q & A from press

Leslie have you and Ryan done a test drive of the call-in system? All set?
I'll dial into the press line so I'm not worried about whether my phone is muted.

Just want to make sure that the admin piece is completely handled. And I really appreciate you plugging that gap.

Thanks.

Hi everyone – thanks so much for all of this! It looks great and I'm excited about the call. Two quick questions

- Can other folks who are sending the advisory to press keep the group posted about RSVPs they're getting? We're going to be pitching aggressively tomorrow and want to have a sense of where we're at as much as possible. As of now, we've heard that NBC 10 in Philly plans to cover.
- We'd like to add the dial-in information into the advisory when we resend it tomorrow – especially now that the vote might happen, we want to make it easy for press to join on what's going to be a busy day. Can you let us know if there's any issue with doing that?

Finally, Jon, I agree with your recommendation on how to reframe remarks if the vote happens. I do think it would likely help with press attendance to our call, depending on the timing. We'll look out for any updates from you on that front.

Thanks!
Leslie

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I'd encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICYMI, indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills, which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call, speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which, if any, Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways – Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials business owners and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150 000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)
4. Run of Show

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join “Not One Penny” Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilkesburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join “Not One Penny” advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump’s tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans’ tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

We have only heard from CBS 6 and NBC 10 that they plan to have someone join. The other networks said they wouldn't know until right before and we kept getting passed around at the Inquirer but never got a confirmation that someone would join although several people have the call in number.

Subject: Materials for call to prep for PA press call on 11/15

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials, business owners, and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point: Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan, and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150,000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system, providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages, talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)
4. Run of Show

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join “Not One Penny” Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilkesburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join “Not One Penny” advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump’s tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans’ tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

WHAT:

We have only heard from CBS 6 and NBC 10 that they plan to have someone join. The other networks said they wouldn't know until right before and we kept getting passed around at the Inquirer but never got a confirmation that someone would join although several people have the call in number.

Just want to make sure that the admin piece is completely handled. And I really appreciate you plugging that gap.

Thanks.

Hi everyone -- thanks so much for all of this! It looks great and I'm excited about the call. Two quick questions

- Can other folks who are sending the advisory to press keep the group posted about RSVPs they're getting? We're going to be pitching aggressively tomorrow and want to have a sense of where we're at as much as possible. As of now we've heard that NBC 10 in Philly plans to cover.
- We'd like to add the dial-in information into the advisory when we resend it tomorrow -- especially now that the vote might happen we want to make it easy for press to join on what's going to be a busy day. Can you let us know if there's any issue with doing that?

Finally Jon I agree with your recommendation on how to reframe remarks if the vote happens. I do think it would likely help with press attendance to our call depending on the timing. We'll look out for any updates from you on that front.

Thanks!
Leslie

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I'd encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICymi Indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which if any Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways – Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you
Jon

Run of Show

3:15- 3:16 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen, call facilitator

Leslie will open the call and introduce Mayor Jim Kenny.

3:17 – 3:20 Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney

Mayor Kenney will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms Philadelphia and its residents. Mayor Kenney will introduce State Senator Art Haywood.

3:21 – 3:24 State Senator Art Haywood

State Senator Art Haywood will speak about the ways the tax reform bill harms the people of his district and the people of Pennsylvania. Senator Haywood will introduce Mayor Elect Garrett.

3:25 – 3:27 Councilwoman and Mayor-elect Marita Garrett of Wilkinsburg

Mayor-elect Garrett will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms small and medium sized cities and benefits Wall Street more than Main Street. Mayor Elect Garrett will introduce Richard Master.

3:28 – 3:30 Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire

Mr. Master will speak about how the ways in which tax bill will benefit him personally – but not give his business incentive to hire more workers or increase wages. Mr. Master will introduce Gabrielle Trinkle.

3:31 – 3:33 Gabrielle Trinkle, MomsRising member and mother of two

Gabrielle will speak about how the tax bill will grow the deficit and lead to cuts in programs like healthcare and education for her children. She will share how she depended on SNAP benefits earlier in her life and how the tax bill would lead to cuts in programs like that.

3:34 – 3:45 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen will facilitate Q & A from press

Hi everyone – thanks so much for all of this! It looks great and I'm excited about the call. Two quick questions:

- Can other folks who are sending the advisory to press keep the group posted about RSVPs they're getting? We're going to be pitching aggressively tomorrow and want to have a sense of where we're at as much as possible. As of now, we've heard that NBC 10 in Philly plans to cover.
- We'd like to add the dial-in information into the advisory when we resend it tomorrow – especially now that the vote might happen, we want to make it easy for press to join on what's going to be a busy day. Can you let us know if there's any issue with doing that?

Finally, Jon, I agree with your recommendation on how to reframe remarks if the vote happens. I do think it would likely help with press attendance to our call, depending on the timing. We'll look out for any updates from you on that front.

Thanks!
Leslie

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I'd encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICYMI: Indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call, speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which if any Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways – Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you
Jon

Run of Show

3:15 - 3:16 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen, call facilitator
Leslie will open the call and introduce Mayor Jim Kenny.

3:17 - 3:20 Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney
Mayor Kenney will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms Philadelphia and its residents. Mayor Kenney will introduce State Senator Art Haywood.

3:21 - 3:24 State Senator Art Haywood
State Senator Art Haywood will speak about the ways the tax reform bill harms the people of his district and the people of Pennsylvania. Senator Haywood will introduce Mayor Elect Garrett.

3:25 - 3:27 Councilwoman and Mayor-elect Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg
Mayor-elect Garrett will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms small and medium sized cities and benefits Wall Street more than Main Street. Mayor Elect Garrett will introduce Richard Master.

3:28 - 3:30 Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire
Mr. Master will speak about how the ways in which tax bill will benefit him personally – but not give his business incentive to hire more workers or increase wages. Mr. Master will introduce Gabrielle Trinkle.

3:31 - 3:33 Gabrielle Trinkle, MomsRising member and mother of two
Gabrielle will speak about how the tax bill will grow the deficit and lead to cuts in programs like healthcare and education for her children. She will share how she depended on SNAP benefits earlier in her life and how the tax bill would lead to cuts in programs like that.

3:34 - 3:45 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen will facilitate Q & A from press

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials, business owners, and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point: Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan, and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150,000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system, providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages, talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)
4. Run of Show

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join “Not One Penny” Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilkes-Barre to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilkes-Barre, and State Senator Art Haywood will join “Not One Penny” advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump’s tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans’ tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

WHAT:
 Press Call with Pennsylvania Mayors and Not One Penny Advocates

WHO:
 Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia
 Councilwoman Marita Garrett of Wilkes-Barre
 State Senator Art Haywood
 Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire
 Gabrielle Trinkle, MomsRising

ICYMI: Indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call, speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which, if any, Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways – Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you

3:15 - 3:16 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen, call facilitator
Leslie will open the call and introduce Mayor Jim Kenny.

3:17 – 3:20 Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney
Mayor Kenney will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms Philadelphia and its residents. Mayor Kenney will introduce State Senator Art Haywood.

3:21 – 3:24 State Senator Art Haywood
State Senator Art Haywood will speak about the ways the tax reform bill harms the people of his district and the people of Pennsylvania. Senator Haywood will introduce Mayor Elect Garrett.

3:25 – 3:27 Councilwoman and Mayor-elect Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg
Mayor-elect Garrett will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms small and medium sized cities and benefits Wall Street more than Main Street. Mayor Elect Garrett will introduce Richard Master.

3:28 – 3:30 Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire
Mr. Master will speak about how the ways in which tax bill will benefit him personally – but not give his business incentive to hire more workers or increase wages. Mr. Master will introduce Gabrielle Trinkle.

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials, business owners, and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point: Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan, and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150,000.

For our call at 3pm, we need to review:

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system, providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages, talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join "Not One Penny" Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilkes-Barre to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilkes-Barre, and State Senator Art Haywood will join "Not One Penny" advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump's tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans' tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

Hi everyone – thanks so much for all of this! It looks great, and I'm excited about the call. Two quick questions

- Can other folks who are sending the advisory to press keep the group posted about RSVPs they're getting? We're going to be pitching aggressively tomorrow and want to have a sense of where we're at as much as possible. As of now, we've heard that NBC 10 in Philly plans to cover.
- We'd like to add the dial-in information into the advisory when we resend it tomorrow – especially now that the vote might happen, we want to make it easy for press to join on what's going to be a busy day. Can you let us know if there's any issue with doing that?

Finally, Jon, I agree with your recommendation on how to reframe remarks if the vote happens. I do think it would likely help with press attendance to our call, depending on the timing. We'll look out for any updates from you on that front.

Thanks!

Leslie

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I'd encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICYMI: Indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. Just want to make sure that the admin piece is completely handled. And I really appreciate you plugging that gap.

Thanks.

Hi everyone – thanks so much for all of this! It looks great and I m excited about the call. Two quick questions

- Can other folks who are sending the advisory to press keep the group posted about RSVPs they re getting? We re going to be pitching aggressively tomorrow and want to have a sense of where we re at as much as possible. As of now we have heard that NBC 10 in Philly plans to cover.

- We'd like to add the dial-in information to the advisory when we resend it tomorrow – especially now that the vote might happen we want to make it easy for press to join on what's going to be a busy day. Can you let us know if there's any issue with doing that?

Finally, Jon, I agree with your recommendation on how to reframe remarks if the vote happens. I do think it would likely help with press attendance to our call depending on the timing. We'll look out for any updates from you on that front.

Thanks!
Leslie

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I do encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICYMI: Indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call, speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which if any Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways – Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you
Jon

Run of Show

3:15- 3:16 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen, call facilitator

Leslie will open the call and introduce Mayor Jim Kenney.

3:17 – 3:20 Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney

Mayor Kenney will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms Philadelphia and its residents. Mayor Kenney will introduce State Senator Art Haywood.

3:21 – 3:24 State Senator Art Haywood

State Senator Art Haywood will speak about the ways the tax reform bill harms the people of his district and the people of Pennsylvania. Senator Haywood will introduce Mayor Elect Garrett.

3:25 – 3:27 Councilwoman and Mayor-elect Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg

Mayor-elect Garrett will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms small and medium sized cities and benefits Wall Street more than Main Street. Mayor Elect Garrett will introduce Richard Master.

3:28 – 3:30 Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire

Mr. Master will speak about how the ways in which tax bill will benefit him personally – but not give his business incentive to hire more workers or increase wages. Mr. Master will introduce Gabrielle Trinkle.

3:31 – 3:33 Gabrielle Trinkle, MomsRising member and mother of two

Gabrielle will speak about how the tax bill will grow the deficit and lead to cuts in programs like healthcare and education for her children. She will share how she depended on SNAP benefits earlier in her life and how the tax bill would lead to cuts in programs like that.

3:34 – 3:45 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen will facilitate Q & A from press

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials, business owners, and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point: Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan, and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150,000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system, providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages, talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)
4. Run of Show

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join “Not One Penny” Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilkesburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join “Not One Penny” advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump’s tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans’ tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

Unfortunately, we didn't have media that joined the call. Even the two RSVPs we'd gotten dropped off last minute. We'd love to be able to send a press release, and we're supposed to be getting the recording so we'll try to use that to follow up with folks and urge coverage.

Hi everyone – thanks so much for all of this! It looks great and I'm excited about the call. Two quick questions

- Can other folks who are sending the advisory to press keep the group posted about RSVPs they're getting? We're going to be pitching aggressively tomorrow and want to have a sense of where we're at as much as possible. As of now we have heard that NBC 10 in Philly plans to cover.
- We'd like to add the dial-in information to the advisory when we resend it tomorrow – especially now that the vote might happen we want to make it easy for press to join on what's going to be a busy day. Can you let us know if there's any issue with doing that?

Finally, Jon, I agree with your recommendation on how to reframe remarks if the vote happens. I do think it would likely help with press attendance to our call depending on the timing. We'll look out for any updates from you on that front.

Thanks!
Leslie

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I do encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICYMI: Indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call, speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which if any Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways – Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you
Jon

Run of Show

3:15 – 3:16 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen, call facilitator
Leslie will open the call and introduce Mayor Jim Kenney.

3:17 – 3:20 Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney
Mayor Kenney will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms Philadelphia and its residents. Mayor Kenney will introduce State Senator Art Haywood.

3:21 – 3:24 State Senator Art Haywood
State Senator Art Haywood will speak about the ways the tax reform bill harms the people of his district and the people of Pennsylvania. Senator Haywood will introduce Mayor Elect Garrett.

3:25 – 3:27 Councilwoman and Mayor-elect Marita Garrett of Wilkinsburg
Mayor-elect Garrett will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms small and medium-sized cities and benefits Wall Street more than Main Street. Mayor Elect Garrett will introduce Richard Master.

3:28 – 3:30 Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire
Mr. Master will speak about how the ways in which tax bill will benefit him personally – but not give his business incentive to hire more workers or increase wages. Mr. Master will introduce Gabrielle Trinkle.

3:31 – 3:33 Gabrielle Trinkle, MomsRising member and mother of two
Gabrielle will speak about how the tax bill will grow the deficit and lead to cuts in programs like healthcare and education for her children. She will share how she depended on SNAP benefits earlier in her life and how the tax bill would lead to cuts in programs like that.

3:34 – 3:45 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen will facilitate Q & A from press

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials, business owners, and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point: Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan, and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150,000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system, providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages, talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)
4. Run of Show

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join “Not One Penny” Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilkesburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join “Not One Penny” advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump’s tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans’ tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

Greetings all

Thanks for everyone's help organizing tomorrow's PA press call. Attached and copied below is a draft run of show including speaking times and the call-in information both for speakers and press.

I'd encourage each of you to try to have your speaker do this call from a land line as that reduces risk of disconnection and poor reception.

Also note Michael Row of the Penn Book Store might not be able to participate and is not listed in the run of show for that reason. If MSA is able to confirm him or add a replacement we can update.

ICYMI Indications are that the vote on the floor of the House could happen sometime tomorrow. This is not a vote on final passage as the Senate still needs to have their committee mark-up and a floor vote and then there would likely be a conference to reconcile the two bills which would have to go back to both chambers. We will keep close tabs on the progress of the floor vote and if the vote has happened prior to this call speakers should frame their remarks as a reaction to the vote rather than a pre-emptive strike. But the messages are largely unchanged. We will of course let the group know about which if any Representatives in Pennsylvania vote against the bill. I could imagine this development could impact press interest in the call in both positive and negative ways – Morgan may have thoughts on that.

Don't hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Thank you
Jon

Run of Show

3:15- 3:16 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen, call facilitator
Leslie will open the call and introduce Mayor Jim Kenny.

3:17 – 3:20 Philadelphia Mayor Jim Kenney
Mayor Kenney will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms Philadelphia and its residents. Mayor Kenney will introduce State Senator Art Haywood.

3:21 – 3:24 State Senator Art Haywood
State Senator Art Haywood will speak about the ways the tax reform bill harms the people of his district and the people of Pennsylvania. Senator Haywood will introduce Mayor Elect Garrett.

3:25 – 3:27 Councilwoman and Mayor-elect Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg
Mayor-elect Garrett will speak about the ways in which the tax reform bill harms small and medium sized cities and benefits Wall Street more than Main Street. Mayor Elect Garrett will introduce Richard Master.

3:28 – 3:30 Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a Patriotic Millionaire
Mr. Master will speak about how the ways in which tax bill will benefit him personally – but not give his business incentive to hire more workers or increase wages. Mr. Master will introduce Gabrielle Trinkle.

3:31 – 3:33 Gabrielle Trinkle, MomsRising member and mother of two
Gabrielle will speak about how the tax bill will grow the deficit and lead to cuts in programs like healthcare and education for her children. She will share how she depended on SNAP benefits earlier in her life and how the tax bill would lead to cuts in programs like that.

3:34 – 3:45 Leslie Patterson of Berlin Rosen will facilitate Q & A from press

Hi all

My colleague Leslie Patterson who is also from BerlinRosen and works with MomsRising will be helping to staff the call. The plan should be for the speakers to introduce the person following them but Leslie will be on in case that doesn't happen. She will also call on press for questions. Let me know if there are any questions.

Thanks
Morgan

Subject: Materials for call to prep for PA press call on 11/15

Attached and below is a draft media advisory for the Wednesday press call with local elected officials business owners and a member of Moms Rising.

Below the press release is a helpful table from Institute for Tax and Economic Policy (ITEP) showing the distributional effects of the tax reform bill in PA. Key data point Over 1 million PA families will see taxes increase under this plan and 70% of those have family incomes of less than $150,000.

For our call at 3pm we need to review

1. Logistics – Not One Penny is point on setting up call system providing call-in information for participants and press.
2. Press outreach – Berlin Rosen can handle? Should coordinate with elected officials press offices.
3. Top-line messages talking points (see attached material from Not One Penny – and I think there will be other points we will want specific speakers to touch on)
4. Run of Show

WEDNESDAY PRESS CALL: Pennsylvania Mayors Join “Not One Penny” Advocates in Opposing Trump Tax Scam

Mayor Kenny of Philadelphia and Mayor Garrett of Wilkesburg to Join Progressive Organizations Mobilizing Against GOP Tax Bill

Washington, D.C. — On Wednesday, as House Republicans are set to vote on the disastrous tax bill, Mayor Jim Kenney of Philadelphia, Mayor Marita Garrett of Wilkesburg, and State Senator Art Haywood will join “Not One Penny” advocates to host a press call to denounce Trump’s tax plan as a giveaway to the wealthy and well-connected at the expense of working families.

The elected officials will be joined on the call by Richard Master, CEO of MCS Industries and a member of Patriotic Millionaires, Gabrielle Trinkle, a mother of two from Newburg, PA, and a member of MomsRising, and Michael Row, owner of the Penn Book Center in Philadelphia, and a member of the Main Street Alliance.

Speakers will discuss how Republicans’ tax framework overwhelmingly benefits the wealthiest Americans while millions of working families will see tax increases and the elimination of critical deductions that families depend on.

WHAT:

Thank you all for the good communications check-in last week! To give everyone a sense of the filming style used by RedFitz (the videographer we hope to hire for the Collaborative video project), please see a variety of their sample work below. We've also included a few other non-RedFitz videos that we hope you'll watch so we can hear your reactions on video style elements you like and don't like.

Please look at each of these to inspire some thoughts on which visual styles and which storytelling methods you think could work well for our story about people collaboratively improving emergency food assistance across an enormous city. We will share any feedback with the videographer as they brainstorm the look and approach of this project.

Videos by RedFitz:

1. Until There is a Cure (produced for Helmsley's Type 1 Diabetes Program)
2. The Good Deed Feed (this ad for Subway was NOT edited by RedFitz, but all footage and interviews are by RedFitz)
3. IHG Hotels + Cisco (this animation style that traces into real world objects could be applicable to this project)

Other video examples:

4. Fighting Hunger in NYC (City Harvest video)
5. Why We Should Be Urban Farming (a longer documentary-style video about solving Detroit's food waste with urban farming)

Short clips of a potential style for opening scene drone visuals:

6. New York City by Air
7. Movement from an Aerial Reel
8. Bulk Logistics (just watch first 4 secs)

Thanks in advance for your thoughts,
Silan and Laura

Hi all,

We look forward to getting together later this week to discuss our communications work streams. In advance of that conversation, here are the agenda items that we propose, in addition to anything that you might like to discuss:

- Check-in on the press pitches and/or releases that UW and CH/HRA opted to pursue
- Update on the Plentiful pitch – content and outlets
- Update on the Chronicle pitch for Helmsley

I will be calling in, and Sam will join in person.

Thanks!

Subject: RE: Thursday's Communications meeting

Welcome back, all. As Laura and Ben have been tracking the press hits, I thought I would share them along to the full group here. Here's what we've seen:

- AgFunderNews ran a story about the gap that Plentiful is filling for food banks' and food pantries' unique technology needs
- The Daily Meal, a culinary news outlet, posted a brief recap of the Fast Company story, which was then picked up again in the San Diego Union Tribune and the Baltimore Sun
- No one has seen a NY Daily News story so far

Thanks!

Subject: RE: Thursday's Communications meeting

Thank you all for the good communications check-in last week! To give everyone a sense of the filming style used by RedFitz (the videographer we hope to hire for the Collaborative video project), please see a variety of their sample work below. We've also included a few other non-RedFitz videos that we hope you'll watch so we can hear your reactions on video style elements you like and don't like.

Please look at each of these to inspire some thoughts on which visual styles and which storytelling methods you think could work well for our story about people collaboratively improving emergency food assistance across an enormous city. We will share any feedback with the videographer as they brainstorm the look and approach of this project.

Videos by RedFitz:

1. Until There is a Cure (produced for Helmsley's Type 1 Diabetes Program)

2. The Good Deed Feed (this ad for Subway was NOT edited by RedFitz, but all footage and interviews are by RedFitz)
3. IHG Hotels + Cisco (this animation style that traces into real world objects could be applicable to this project)

Other video examples:

4. Fighting Hunger in NYC (City Harvest video)
5. Why We Should Be Urban Farming (a longer documentary-style video about solving Detroit's food waste with urban farming)

Short clips of a potential style for opening scene drone visuals:

6. New York City by Air
7. Movement from an Aerial Reel
8. Bulk Logistics (just watch first 4 secs)

Thanks in advance for your thoughts,
Silan and Laura

Hi all,

We look forward to getting together later this week to discuss our communications work streams. In advance of that conversation, here are the agenda items that we propose, in addition to anything that you might like to discuss:

- Check-in on the press pitches and/or releases that UW and CH/HRA opted to pursue
- Update on the Plentiful pitch – content and outlets
- Update on the Chronicle pitch for Helmsley

I will be calling in, and Sam will join in person.

Thanks!

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: November 7, 2016
CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

STATEMENTS FROM MAYOR DE BLASIO AND HEALTH CARE LEADERS ON THE RECOMMENDATION OF STANLEY BREZENOFF AS INTERIM PRESIDENT AND CEO OF HEALTH + HOSPITALS

On November 7, 2016, Mayor Bill de Blasio announced that Stanley Brezenoff would be recommended to the Health + Hospitals Board of Directors for appointment as Interim President and CEO of the public healthcare system. Mr. Brezenoff served as H+H President under Mayor Koch, as well as President and CEO of Continuum Health Partners, a non-profit hospitals network. He currently serves as Chair of the Board of Correction.

Statement from Mayor Bill de Blasio:

“Today’s vision for Health + Hospitals recognizes that in our changing healthcare landscape, we must work to ensure that the City is able to guarantee a high quality of care for all. I thank Dr. Raju not only for his service but for also making this his mission as he led H+H. Our public healthcare system will continue to put stable leadership in place as we make progress on our financial targets and define our modernization plan. Stanley Brezenoff’s vast experience in the public healthcare system will be a great asset.”

Statement from Dr. Ramanathan Raju:

“As I exit, Health + Hospitals will be under the leadership of Interim CEO Stanley Brezenoff, who previously served as Health + Hospitals President, and can provide the experienced leadership necessary to continue moving this essential health system into the future.”

Statement from Stanley Brezenoff, Chair of the Board of Correction:

“Dr. Raju's leadership has paved the way for the nation's largest public healthcare system to implement a bold transformation plan that will keep entire communities healthy. I'm committed to ensuring a smooth transition that supports the critical efforts to preserve Health + Hospitals' essential safety-net mission and modernizing healthcare services for the 21st century. New Yorkers deserve high-quality affordable health care, and a transformed Health + Hospitals will be the cornerstone of a vibrant and equitable city.”

Statement from Deputy Mayor for Health and Human Services Dr. Herminia Palacio:

“I am delighted that Stan has agreed to serve as Interim President and CEO. His extraordinary experience in both the public and voluntary healthcare systems – in combination with his rich career at the highest levels of City government – make him an outstanding choice to keep the transformation moving full-steam ahead.”

Statement from Gordon J. Campbell, Acting Chair of the Board of Directors for Health + Hospitals:

“I want to commend Mayor de Blasio on recommending that Stanley Brezenoff serve as Interim President and CEO of Health + Hospitals. Given Stan's extensive service in New York City government and health care, including his previous service as President and CEO of Health + Hospitals, the City will be well-served. Having known Stan for many years, I look forward to working with him on our ongoing efforts to transform Health + Hospitals.”

Statement from Martha King, Executive Director of the Board of Correction:

“Stan Brezenoff's contributions to the Board of Correction have been instrumental in making the Board stronger and more effective. He will continue to serve as Chair of the Board of Correction until he transitions into his H+H role. We are deeply grateful for his leadership of the Board and that he will continue to serve our City while at Health and Hospitals.”

Subject: MAYOR DE BLASIO SIGNS PACKAGE OF LEGISLATION TO INCREASE ACCESS AND INFORMATION ON GAS PRACTICES, PROCEDURES AND INFRASTRUCTURE

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: December 6, 2016
pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

MAYOR DE BLASIO SIGNS PACKAGE OF LEGISLATION TO INCREASE ACCESS AND INFORMATION ON GAS PRACTICES, PROCEDURES AND INFRASTRUCTURE

Also signs bill to establish electric car charging pilot program

NEW YORK – Mayor Bill de Blasio today held public hearings for and signed 17 pieces of legislation into law – Intros. 738-A, 1079-A, 1088-A, 1090-A, 1093-A, 1094-A, 1098-A, 1100-A, 1101 and 1102, in relation to gas safety; Intro. 1124-A, in relation to establishing an electric vehicle charging station pilot program; Intro. 1138-A, in relation to establishing a task force on affordability, admissions and graduation rates at the City University of New York; Intro. 1228-B, in relation to amending the New York City charter to review the operations, policies, programs and practices of the Department of Correction; Intro. 301-A, in relation to the removal of snow and ice from fire hydrants; Intro. 1147-A, in relation to establishing an Office of Crime Victim Services; and Intros. 1213-A and 1214-A, in relation to services provided to NYCHA residents, including the Jobs-Plus program.

“Gas safety is important for all New Yorkers, and this legislative package will resolve numerous regulatory oversights. These bills will help protect tenants in the event of an outage and require greater information sharing between City agencies and gas utilities to enhance safety,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “Most importantly, these reforms will ensure both property owners and utility companies are accountable for keeping buildings safe.”

“I would like to thank Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito for her continued support fighting for the safety of all New Yorkers and for sponsoring Intro. 1079-A. Additionally, I would like to thank Council Members Mark Levine, Rafael Espinal, Vanessa Gibson, Rosie Mendez, Donovan Richards, Ydanis Rodriguez, Jimmy Vacca and Jumaine Williams for sponsoring Intros. 738-A, 1088-A, 1090-A, 1093-A, 1094-A, 1098-A, 1100-A, 1101-A and 1102-A respectfully,” said Mayor de Blasio.

“Ensuring meaningful oversight in New York City jails is paramount to our commitment to a fair and equitable criminal justice system,” said Council Speaker Melissa Mark Viverito. “First proposed in my State of the City address earlier this year, establishing a permanent entity to monitor, review and report on DOC activity marks an important milestone toward achieving this goal. I thank Mayor de Blasio for signing this measure into law, and commend my fellow council members for their advocacy on this critical issue.”

The first bill, Intro. 738-A, requires that all work on gas piping systems be done by a licensed master plumber, a person with a gas work qualification or a person with a limited gas work qualification. This bill also requires that such qualifications be issued by the Department of Buildings.

The second bill, Intro. 1079-A, requires the final inspection of gas pipe systems to be conducted by the Department of Buildings in the presence of the building holder or the superintendent of the building.

The third bill, Intro. 1088-A, requires building owners to have their gas piping systems inspected by a DOB qualified inspector every five years. This bill also requires building owners to report on any fixes or corrections which were made after this inspection.

The fourth bill, Intro. 1090-A, requires dwelling owners to deliver a notice to all current and prospective tenants with written guidance of what they should do if a gas leak is suspected or discovered.

The fifth bill, Intro. 1093-A, requires gas service operators and owners to notify the DOB within 24 hours of gas service being shut off in a building. Additionally, gas service operators and owners must notify the DOB within 24 hours if gas cannot be restored due to safety concerns.

The sixth bill, Intro. 1094-A, requires an agency or office designated by the Mayor, to identify potential risk factors that may indicate a hazard to health or safety. Some risk factors include unauthorized gas usage, abandoned structures or structures condemned by the City and unusual gas usage for small buildings.

The seventh bill, Intro. 1098-A, requires gas utility corporations to provide annual reports with information on gas asset conditions, a summary of major planned infrastructure projects and investment priorities over the next year. This report will be discussed with City officials each year after being submitted.

The eighth bill, Intro. 1100-A, requires the DOB to establish or adopt a standard governing the installation and location of natural gas detectors after an industry standard has been promulgated. Intro. 1100-A also require that owners install and maintain these detectors.

The ninth bill, Intro. 1101-A, requires the Commissioner of the DOB to establish a penalty waiver program, allowing building owners an opportunity to bring appliances and systems up to code without paying a penalty. Eligibility would be restricted to building owners who own more than one building with fuel gas piping systems.

The tenth bill, Intro. 1102-A, classifies certain violations as “immediately hazardous,” including supplying or installing gas without a permit; operating an altered or newly installed gas piping system without first notifying the utility company; or operating an altered or newly installed piping system without completing a compliance inspection.

“I want to thank Mayor de Blasio and our partners in the City Council and in the construction industry for their effort on these bills. This package of legislation builds upon the Department’s work to enhance gas safety for all New Yorkers, while further enhancing coordination between DOB’s inspectors and utility companies,” said Rick Chandler, P.E., Commissioner of the Department of Buildings.

"In a relatively short time we've seen a number of gas explosions take place in the City; many of them due to failures to report and handle gas leaks properly. To ensure the well-being of New Yorkers and first responders, it's vital we pass legislation that will implement and enforce a system of safety procedures followed by all building owners and plumbers," said Council Member Jumaane Williams, Chair of the Committee on Housing and Buildings.

"Gas explosions are devastating, tragic and, in many cases, preventable. I applaud Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito and Council Member Jumaane Williams for championing a package of bills that will set forth new regulations for monitoring gas installations and enact harsher punishments against those whose actions put the safety of their neighbors at risk, and I thank Mayor de Blasio for signing them into law today. As we continue to examine the potential impacts of our aging infrastructure, I look forward to continued conversations with all stakeholders, the Administration and the public in pursuit of a better and safer New York," said Council Member Vanessa Gibson.

"We saw several explosions over the last few years related to gas from Harlem to the East Village, so my bill looks to identify risk factors that could lead to another fatal incident and have the city take more action in this particular area," said Council Member Donovan Richards. "We want to have a more proactive approach before we have to lose more people to these catastrophes. There are risk factors that the City, working with the gas companies, can identify. We want to catch the bad actors, the people cutting corners to save a few dollars. If we can identify a cracked pipe or illegal hookup early, maybe we can prevent a tragedy. I'd like to thank Mayor de Blasio, Speaker Mark-Viverito, and all of my colleagues in the Council who sponsored this package of bills."

"In the wake of several gas related tragedies throughout New York City in recent years, it is time that we reform our laws in relation to gas piping systems," said Council Member Rafael Espinal. "I was shocked to learn that the City has required inspections for boilers, elevators, water tanks, water recycling systems, and sprinklers, but until now, no inspections for gas piping systems have been required. I am proud to be the lead sponsor of Intro 1088-A, which will ensure proper monitoring of gas piping systems to prevent future gas related incidents. I would like to thank Mayor de Blasio for signing this bill into law and applaud Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito, as well as, Chair Jumaane Williams on putting forth a comprehensive set of bills that will go a long way to ensuring lasting safety in our city."

"Natural gas alarms will make our multifamily dwellings much safer," said Council Member James Vacca. "I'm proud to sponsor legislation that will provide potentially lifesaving early warnings of a dangerous gas leak. We have seen horrible tragedies throughout our city due to natural gas explosions. By requiring natural gas alarms, we will treat natural gas leaks with the same care and concern we have for carbon monoxide and fires. I thank Mayor de Blasio and Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito for their consideration of this legislation and the package as a whole."

"I am proud to work with my colleagues in the City Council to have introduced a package of legislation aimed at preventing another disaster. We have a duty as legislators to make sure that we hold individuals and agencies accountable, particularly when the public is at risk. Intro. 1093 would require gas service operators and building owners to notify the Department of Buildings ("DOB") within 24 hours when gas service to a building is shut-off or not restored based on safety concerns. Our city has had several gas explosions in recent years, in particular the East Harlem in 2014 and East Village Explosions in 2015 that caused several casualties, unspeakable damage and shook New Yorkers to our core. Intro. 1093 coupled with the other bills in this legislative package will NYC safer and ensure that the agencies are receiving information in real time that will go a long way to prevent future disasters," said Council Member Rosie Mendez.

"After the tragic east Harlem explosion, it was clear our gas regulations needed an upgrade to prevent these catastrophes going forward," said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez, sponsor of Intro. 1098. "The Council has responded with important measures aimed at ensuring gas workers are experienced and licensed and that companies are attentive to decaying infrastructure."

The eleventh bill, Intro.1124-A, requires the establishment of an electric vehicle charging station pilot program. This program requires the City to install at least 25 electric charging stations across the city, with at least two stations in each borough. The pilot program will end on March 1, 2020. The Electric Vehicle Advisory Committee will monitor the results of the program. In his remarks, the Mayor thanked the bill's co-sponsors, Council Members Costa Constantinides and Ydanis Rodriguez.

“Reaching our 80 x 50 greenhouse gas reduction goal requires greater use of electric vehicles and the infrastructure to support them. This new local law launches an important effort to provide a public-access electric vehicle charging network that will empower New Yorkers to go electric when they purchase vehicles,” said Daniel Zarrilli, Senior Director for Climate Policy and Programs and the Chief Resilience Officer for the Mayor’s Office. “We applaud Council Members Constantinides and Rodriguez on their stewardship to make sure we can meet the growing demand for sustainable transportation options in all five boroughs.”

“The adoption of electric vehicles is a critical component of the City’s commitment to green the transportation sector within our 80 x 50 greenhouse gas emissions reduction plan,” said Mark Chambers, Director of the Mayor’s Office of Sustainability. “The pilot program that goes into effect with today’s signing keeps us on the path to delivering cleaner transportation options for all New Yorkers. We thank Council Members Constantinides and Rodriguez for their efforts, and look forward to working with them to implement, support and grow these types of sustainable programs.”

“The City currently operates 356 charging stations for City owned fleet vehicles, the largest single EV charging network in NY State,” said DCAS Commissioner Lisette Camilo. “As DCAS grows this fleet network even further, we look forward to also supporting public access to charging through this bill.”

“Thank you to Council Members Constantinides and Rodriguez as well as to Mayor Bill de Blasio for their leadership in reducing carbon emissions in New York City,” said Commissioner Polly Trottenberg. “DOT already proudly hosts electric vehicle charging infrastructure at municipal lots in all five boroughs and the pilot established in this bill will help us to expand on this program to serve even more New Yorkers.”

“Now more than ever, our City must implement innovative policies that decrease our reliance on traditional fossil fuels. Intro. 1124-A will help us reach our goal of reducing our carbon emissions 80 percent by 2050 by encouraging sustainable habits. A pilot program for electric vehicle charging stations will encourage more New Yorkers to use electric cars – a more renewable energy source than traditional gasoline. I look forward to continuing to be global role models in sustainability and to lead on environmental policy. I thank Mayor de Blasio and my Council colleagues for their support of this important legislation,” said Council Member Costa Constantinides.

“The intersections between transportation and environmental protection are abundant and encouraging more environmentally-friendly vehicles is a serious first step toward a more productive future,” said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez, Chair of the Committee on Transportation. “I’m proud to sponsor Intro. 1124-A, so that New Yorkers become more familiar with electric vehicles and begin to see the value in them. This is a classic, ‘if you build it, they will come’ scenario, and we as a city should do all we can to lower our impact on the environment.”

The twelfth bill, Intro. 300-A, requires property owners to keep snow and other materials from accumulating near fire hydrants which front their property. This bill will clarify the bounds of the area around the fire hydrant which property owners are responsible for clearing and removes the requirement that residents must clear snow from the street. In his remarks, the Mayor thanked the bill’s sponsor, Council Member Andy King.

“There comes a time when all of us must shoulder the responsibility of keeping others around us safe, which is why I am pleased that today Mayor de Blasio is signing my piece of legislation, Intro. 300-A, into law. This law will make it so that there is a clear and explicit duty on building owners, homeowners, lessees and tenants to keep fire hydrants clear of obstructions such as snow or ice within four hours after the snow has stopped falling. This will add to the safety of our neighborhoods because it will prevent emergency responders, such as the FDNY that need access to fire hydrants, from being delayed in their work,” said Council Member Andy King.

“As Chair of the Council’s Sanitation Committee, I appreciate thoughtful legislation like Intro. 300-A. This bill helps provide better clarity over the responsibilities for property owners after a snowfall, and will require that fire hydrants are cleared of snow to help ensure the Fire Department has proper access to hydrants,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso.

The thirteenth bill, Intro. 1228-B, requires that the Commissioner of the Department of Investigation permanently maintain a position to monitor and investigate the operations, policies and practices of the DOC. In his remarks, the Mayor thanked the bill’s sponsor, Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito.

DOI Commissioner Mark G. Peters said, “As the City’s independent Inspector General, DOI’s work to date on Rikers has resulted in 36 arrests for violence and contraband smuggling as well as better hiring procedures going forward. To that end, I particularly appreciate that this bill reflects that confidence through the commitment of additional resources to carry out further work on these issues.”

“We thank the Council for its support of our reforms. The legislation strengthens oversight by ensuring that our partnership with the Department of Investigation continues during future administrations,” said Department of Correction Commissioner Joseph Ponte.

The fourteenth bill, Intro. 1147-A, creates an Office of Crime Victim Services. This new office will be a resource to connect crime victims to services designed to support them. In his remarks, the Mayor thanked the bill’s co-sponsors, Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito and Council Member Laurie Cumbo.

"After surviving a traumatic experience, it can be challenging for crime victims to navigate through our City agencies and nonprofit partners in search of immediate assistance. Through my legislation, Intro. 1147-A, we will create a dedicated office that can connect New Yorkers directly to the vast network of service providers that will support their recovery," said Council Member Laurie A. Cumbo, Chair of the Committee on Women's Issues and co-Chair of the Women's Caucus.

“Following an attack, crime victims may need access to a number of services, ranging from trauma therapy to relocation. In her State of the City speech, our Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito proposed a new, cohesive strategy of victim services, one that centralized services to make life easier for victims and their families. I thank Mayor de Blasio, Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito, and co-Chair of the Women's Caucus Council Member Laurie Cumbo for their leadership and their commitment to close this long standing gap in criminal justice reform. As Chair of the Committee on Public Safety, I am so proud to see this plan come to fruition and for New York City to have an office dedicated to ensuring victims can become victors,” said Council Member Vanessa Gibson, Chair of the Committee on Public Safety.

The fifteenth bill, Intro. 1138-A, creates a task force to examine ways to increase affordability, admissions and graduation rates at CUNY schools. In his remarks, the Mayor thanked the bill’s sponsor, Council Member Inez Barron.

"I am a proud graduate of Hunter College. I was fortunate to have attended CUNY when tuition was free. Our current CUNY students find themselves struggling to balance tuition, student fees, textbook costs, rent, food, transportation and child care costs, as well as often times having work schedules. We, as elected officials have an obligation to assist with helping college students achieve a college degree. As we know, it is access to higher education that leads to improved academic, social and economic conditions, both for the individual and for the society at-large. It is our obligation and responsibility as political leaders to remove barriers to admission and completion of college. We know that student debt has surpassed consumer debt levels. Tuition cost is a contributing factor to students not completing their college program. In today's highly technological world, if we make provisions to provide for college as a mandatory post-secondary education, we will expand the opportunities and increase the number of those who have been marginalized and locked out of participating meaningfully in the world economy. It is my hope that this task force will conduct the necessary research and identify possible funding streams to lift the burden of students from having to pay for tuition," said Council Member Inez Barron.

The sixteenth bill, Intro. 1213-A, requires the City of New York to report on utilization of services and the outcomes of services provided to public housing residents. This report will be completed on an annual basis. In his remarks, the Mayor thanked the bill's sponsor, Council Member Ritchie Torres.

The seventeenth bill, Intro. 1214-A, calls for the City's Center for Economic Opportunity to develop a recommendation for how the City might expand the Jobs-Plus program for public housing residents. Jobs-Plus is a comprehensive employment program including job and career support. In his remarks, the Mayor thanked the bill's sponsor, Council Member Ritchie Torres.

"The Center for Economic Opportunity, housed within the Mayor's Office of Operations, is committed to building effective programs through data-driven and evidence-based decision making," said Mindy Tarlow, Director of the Mayor's Office of Operations. "Intro. 1214-A advances these goals by asking for a plan that shows how Jobs-Plus, a robust employment program, could expand to serve all eligible public housing residents."

"The Center for Economic Opportunity assesses programs and policies with two significant considerations in mind: Are they effective, and can they operate at citywide scale?" said Matthew Klein, Executive Director of the Center for Economic Opportunity. "We look forward to producing a plan that assesses how the promising Jobs-Plus model could be made available to all eligible New Yorkers."

NYCHA Chair and CEO Shola Olatoye said, "Jobs-Plus is a proven-effective employment program that is strengthening pathways to opportunity for our residents and creating more connected communities. Thanks to Mayor de Blasio and Public Housing Committee Chair Torres, more residents will have access to this tool. Additionally, today's legislation will increase transparency and help us ensure all of our residents receive services more effectively, efficiently, and equitably."

"Jobs-Plus is NYCHA's hidden gem that has proven to raise income and employment opportunities for public housing residents. It has been implemented in various parts of the country and in several public housing developments in the City, and has shown to increase the earnings of public housing residents by as much as 17 percent. Jobs-Plus should be expanded to all NYCHA developments so that residents have the tools to land jobs and stable careers. These 2 bills are steps in that direction and I look forward to them being signed into law," said Council Member Ritchie Torres of the Bronx, Chair of the Council's Public Housing Committee.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: August 30, 2016
CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

CITY REPORT REVEALS MAJOR INCREASE IN THE NUMBER OF TENANTS IN HOUSING COURT WHO HAVE LEGAL REPRESENTATION

Three years ago just 1 in 100 tenants in housing court had representation. Today, more than 1 in 4

Office of Civil Justice report shows number of tenants in eviction proceedings with legal representation in court has increased to 27 percent from 1 percent in 2013

City funding for free or low-cost legal assistance will exceed $100 million in Fiscal Year 2017

NEW YORK – Mayor Bill de Blasio today released the findings of the Office of Civil Justice’s first annual report, which show that 27 percent of tenants in Housing Court for eviction proceedings have legal representation – up from 1 percent in 2013. As a result of annual investments totaling over $100 million in civil legal services of all types under Mayor de Blasio, evictions have fallen 24 percent in the last two years according to the report.

The report details the various legal needs common among low-income New Yorkers, and the effect of providing free and low-cost legal services to meet those needs, with a special focus on legal services for tenants facing evictions, harassment and other housing-related problems.

“As we face one of the most serious affordable housing crises in our city’s history, we have made an unprecedented commitment to provide legal assistance for low-income New Yorkers, and we are beginning to see the results of these efforts,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “The Office of Civil Justice’s first annual report documents the progress we have made in providing New Yorkers in need with access to quality legal representation, particularly to prevent evictions and harassment by unscrupulous landlords.”

“The New York City Council is committed to ensuring better access to justice in civil legal matters for our residents,” said Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito. “Our creation of the Office of Civil Justice was an important first step and this initial report is a promising indication that the work we're doing is making a difference for our most vulnerable citizens. We look forward to continuing to collaborate with the Office and the administration as we plan for even more robust access to justice for low-income New Yorkers, and we remain committed to continuing to bring equity and justice to New Yorkers in every borough. I would like to thank Council Members Mark Levine and Vanessa Gibson for their leadership on this issue."

"Under Mayor de Blasio's administration, New York City has become a national leader in the provision of legal services for low-income families and individuals," said Department of Social Services Commissioner Steven Banks. "Based at the Human Resources Administration, the Office of Civil Justice offers critical assistance that can truly make a difference in the lives of tens of thousands of New Yorkers in need who otherwise would not be able to afford legal representation. This report provides a clear picture of who those New Yorkers are and what we need to do to support them."

For Fiscal Year 2017, City funding for legal services addressing the needs of low-income New Yorkers will total $110 million; including $82 million from mayoral initiatives, and nearly $28 million from City Council discretionary funds. Through the Human Resource Administration's (HRA) Tenant Support Unit (TSU), mayoral funding for legal services for tenants facing eviction or harassment has increased to approximately $62 million, 10 times the investment made by the previous administration. The TSU proactively engages with New Yorkers through door-to-door outreach, connecting them with vital services and case managing their issues to resolution.

During FY17, this additional investment is expected to provide housing-related legal services to 33,000 low-income households, including a total of 113,000 New Yorkers. As these expanded tenant legal services – including anti-eviction and anti-harassment legal programs funded through HRA – are being fully-implemented, the increase in funding over the last two years is already yielding positive results. In 2015, there were 21,988 marshals' evictions, compared to 26,857 in 2014 and 28,849 in 2013 – a significant two-year decline of 24 percent.

Other key findings of the report are:

- More than half of the legal representation for tenants who appear in Housing Court for eviction cases is provided by non-profit legal services organizations serving low income New Yorkers.
- The average anti-eviction legal service client is 43 years old and resides in a household of three.
- 99 percent of landlords in eviction proceedings in court have legal representation.

See a copy of the report here.

"New York City has made an investment in civil legal services larger than any other municipality, and this first Annual Report is the Administration's latest step towards ensuring that low-income New Yorkers have access to a fair and equitable civil justice system" said Jordan Dressler, Civil Justice Coordinator. "The findings in this Report will establish a solid foundation for discussions about the future of civil legal assistance for low-income people in New York City."

Pursuant to legislation sponsored by Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito and Council Member Mark Levine, the Office of Civil Justice (OCJ) was formally created in June 2015 when Mayor de Blasio signed Local Law 61 into law and placed the office under HRA, the agency in charge of addressing poverty, income inequality and reducing homelessness. Its main focus is to provide coordination, planning, and oversight of city resources and programs to meet the civil legal needs of low-income New Yorkers.

OCJ is required to prepare an annual report and to develop a five-year plan based on the information provided in these reports. In addition, it makes budget recommendations on funding, and provides outreach and education about the legal services programs.

As part of its effort to consolidate and enhance civil legal services in New York City, the Administration has also increased mayoral funding in the Fiscal Year 2017 adopted budget for legal assistance for low-income immigrant New Yorkers, including: $7.9 million for legal services and community outreach as part of the ActionNYC program; and $8.5 million in funding for the Immigrant Opportunity Initiative legal services programs.

"This landmark report provides us the most complete picture we've ever had of the New Yorkers whose lives hang in the balance in housing court. Thankfully, our rapidly increasing investment in tenant legal services has already brought about a significant drop in evictions. I look forward to further gains for our city's most vulnerable as we continue to scale up these vital services," said Council Member Mark Levine.

"Whether or not you can afford a lawyer should not be the determining factor between staying in your home and becoming homeless. At a time when tenant harassment and abuse is at an all-time high, tenants need someone on their side to fight back. By providing legal representation to our most needy the City is leveling the playing field and keeping tenants in their homes. This report highlights the progress being made in the midst of the housing affordability crisis, and I applaud the Mayor's continued commitment to this groundbreaking initiative," said Council Member Stephen Levin, Chair of the General Welfare Committee.

"This report confirms what many of us have long known: City funded legal services protects tenants from harassment and eviction while preserving the long term affordability of New York City. The investments the Administration has made to protect those facing eviction have proven to be important and successful steps in our ongoing efforts to create a more fair and just City. I commend Mayor de Blasio and Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito for their leadership, and I look forward to working with my partner in the fight for right to counsel, Council Member Mark Levine, and all of the advocates and stakeholders as we work to further expand protections for tenants in housing court," said Council Member Vanessa L. Gibson.

"Given the lack of affordable, quality housing opportunities in the city, many bad-acting landlords continue to take advantage of our City's most vulnerable residents. This is why, as Chair of the Committee on Housing and Buildings, we've held numerous hearings and passed a number of bills aimed at helping keep people in their homes, and preventing illegal, unlawful activities aimed at pressuring them out. I'm pleased that the administration, and the council, is continuing its efforts to protect those who need it most," said Council Member Jumaane D. Williams, Chair of the Housing and Buildings Committee.

"Representation in Housing Court is vital if we're going to un-stack the deck for New York City's tenants," said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. "Civil legal services are a wise, practical investment that promotes fairness, prevents homelessness, and helps keep precious rent-regulated apartments from being lost."

"Without representation, tenants facing eviction find themselves on an uneven playing field that far too often leaves them without a place to live," said State Senator Adriano Espaillat. "This report shows that we are starting to move in the right direction, providing more tenants with the legal aid they need to keep their homes. I commend Mayor de Blasio for his commitment to evening the playing field for our city's tenants in housing court."

"New York City has made great strides in providing legal representation to those who need it most. I applaud Mayor de Blasio and the City Council for increasing the City funding for free or low-cost legal assistance to over $100 million. This additional funding will help even more New Yorkers gain access to quality legal representation," said State Senator José M. Serrano.

“No tenant in New York City should lose their home because they lack the resources to afford adequate legal representation,” said State Senator Gustavo Rivera. “Due to this investment, my office has been able to help hundreds of constituents avoid unnecessary evictions and get the repairs they need. I look forward to continue working with Mayor de Blasio’s administration in providing New Yorkers greater access to rental assistance programs and quality legal representation to help fight our City’s affordable housing crisis.”

“Families in Housing Court are focused on keeping stable homes and protecting their rights during what are often some of the most stressful times they will ever experience,” said Assembly Member Latoya Joyner. “Expanding access to needed legal counsel is an important step toward leveling the playing field and ensuring that the fundamental rights of Bronx families are respected. I appreciate the determined efforts Mayor de Blasio and his administration have put into expanding the right to counsel for our families.”

“The Legal Aid Society has long argued that providing access to legal representation to low-income tenants facing eviction, the most vulnerable and least likely to seek or afford representation legal representation, would result not only in a decrease of evictions and homelessness, but in an overall financial savings to the City. We are pleased that the City’s data shows that providing access to legal services is resulting in marked decreased evictions as well as a more just court process,” said Magda Rosa-Rios, Director of the Tenant Rights Campaign at the Legal Aid Society.

“The Office of Civil Justice’s report demonstrates what advocates have long known – that anti-eviction and anti-harassment legal services keep families in their homes and protect New York City’s diverse and vibrant communities,” said Raun Rasmussen, Executive Director of Legal Services NYC. “The City’s unprecedented investment in these services provides a national model for eviction prevention, and has made New York City fairer and more just for all.”

“For far too long, the deck has been stacked against tenants facing eviction because they lacked the resources to hire an attorney to defend their rights. The City’s provision of these critical resources is leveling the playing field and helping vulnerable populations avoid eviction and homelessness,” said Reverend Patrick J. Keating, Chief Executive Officer of Catholic Migration Services.

“Housing Conservation Coordinators applauds Mayor de Blasio and the Council for their significant investment in legal services. Providing greater access to legal services is a common sense approach to reducing evictions and homelessness. It is not only cost effective in that it saves taxpayer dollars by avoiding shelter enrollments, but has immeasurable benefits to those families who avoid eviction, and thus the negative ramifications of homelessness, such as disruption in school enrollments, missed school days, and lost wages or employment from days taken off work. This Administration’s historic investment in legal services has proven to be effective in reducing evictions, improving access to justice for low income families, and in the midst of a housing crisis, has also preserved housing affordable to those families,” said Sarah Desmond, Executive Director, Housing Conservation Coordinators, Inc.

“The Urban Justice Center’s Community Development Project, Mental Health Project, Safety Net Project and Veteran Advocacy Project have been able to expand the housing representation they provide to tenants due to this mayoral funding. The impact of being represented by an attorney in housing court is tremendous both in the lives of the families who the Urban Justice Center’s projects have protected from eviction and in the fabric of the communities in which they live,” said Mary Beth Anderson, Director of the Urban Justice Center’s Mental Health Project.

“Long-term, low income tenants in many neighborhoods where rents are rapidly escalating are facing powerful pressures to move, including harassment by landlords, through frivolous eviction proceedings brought by landlords, refusal to renew leases, improper rent over charges, and denial of repairs. A skilled advocate is essential to assert and achieve rights under city, state and federal law,” said Hillary Exter, Coordination of the Anti-Harassment Tenant Protection Program at the Urban Justice Center, which is the lead agency of LEAP, a consortium of 13 legal services providers working through a city-funded grant

“The findings of the Office of Civil Justice’s first annual survey demonstrate that funding legal services for low-income tenants facing eviction and other housing issues is having a profound impact on access to justice in Housing Court,” said Beth Goldman, President and Attorney-in-Charge of the New York Legal Assistance Group. “We applaud the unprecedented commitment to this cause by the de Blasio administration and the City Council and look forward to continuing to work with the Human Resources Administration and the Office of Civil Justice to demonstrate even more conclusively the benefits of civil legal services to the City - and to poor and near-poor New Yorkers who risk losing their housing without the benefit of legal representation.”

“NMIC is proud to partner with New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio and the New York City Human Resources Administration to provide eviction prevention services to low income tenants who are struggling with gentrification. These services help protect NYC's vibrant multicultural communities by ensuring residents have access to the legal services they need to maintain their homes,” said NMIC Executive Director Maria Lizardo.

"As public defenders in the Bronx, we have seen first-hand the positive impact of being able to expand our representation in housing, an area where the collateral consequences of any involvement in the criminal justice system can be devastating," said Runa Rajagopal, Director of the Civil Action Practice at The Bronx Defenders. "This is an important milestone toward the critical goal of guaranteeing legal representation for low-income New Yorkers who are most vulnerable to harassment, displacement and wrongful evictions by private, as well as public, landlords. We must now seize the opportunity to capitalize on this progress and address the root of the problem by establishing, once and for all, a right to counsel in housing court."

“I knew that when the Mayor implemented more tenant protections that it would help stop these no good landlords in their tracks. I am so glad to hear about these great results...let’s keep up the good work,” said Cynthia Simpson, President of the Marcy Houses Tenants Green Committee.

“I want to thank the Mayor for not only hearing but for addressing tenant harassment issues. The increase from 1 percent to 27 percent shows that when government gets it rights positive results will follow,” said Lenora Keith, President of Tompkins Houses Resident Association.

"Legal representation is a lifeline for so many low-income New Yorkers. It helps level the playing field for immigrants, seniors and other tenants to have confidence that their cases are treated fairly. We welcome increased attention and resources for legal services which will result from this report," said Amy T. Paul, Executive Director of Woodside on the Move Inc.

STATEMENT FROM MAYOR DE BLASIO ON MEMORIAL DAY

“Today we honor the men and women who made the ultimate sacrifice to fight for our own independence, from those who freed the world from the scourge of fascism, to those protecting us from 21st century terrorism. We owe an enormous debt of gratitude to all who have served our country and all those serving us now. They have exhibited the utmost courage, fortitude and resilience in protecting this nation and the world – which is why every veteran should have a home, a good job and high-quality mental health services when they return home. As a City, we have committed to delivering these essential resources that veterans deserve. We also are very proud that for the first time in New York City history we have created a Department of Veteran Services, so we can honor our veterans better than ever before. We continue the mission to serve and honor the heroes of today, because that’s our way to honor the memories of the heroes who made all our lives possible. Thank you and God bless.”

Clinton Avenue co-named Carey Gabay Way in honor of former State public servant

NEW YORK— Mayor Bill de Blasio and Council Member Laurie A. Cumbo today co-named Clinton Avenue between Myrtle Avenue and Willoughby Avenue as Carey Gabay Way in honor of the former First Deputy Counsel for the Empire State Development Corporation, who lost his life last year at the J'Ouvert festival. Today, he would have turned 44.

"My thoughts and prayers remain with the family of Carey Gabay," said Mayor de Blasio. "Gabay would have turned 44 today, and I'm sure he would have continued serving the interests of all New Yorkers if he was still with us. He was raised in public housing, attended public schools and rose to the top after graduating summa cum laude from Harvard Law School. Gabay went on to serve the State where he promoted affordable housing and fought against job discrimination. It's safe to say Gabay epitomized the American Dream – a dream his Jamaican parents were in pursuit of when they immigrated to America. Now, when people look up at Carey Gabay Way, they will be inspired by and reminded of the great public servant who put the needs of working-class New Yorkers ahead of his own."

"Carey Gabay was an exemplary public servant who dedicated his life to the city he loved," said Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Verteno. "Carey Gabay Way will serve as a lasting testament to Carey's enduring spirit and will inspire future generations of New Yorkers to pursue the promise of the American dream. As we mark Carey's 44th Birthday, I join Governor Andrew M. Cuomo, Council Member Laurie Cumbo, the Mayor, my colleagues in government and Carey's loved ones in honoring Carey's life and the lasting legacy he left on our City."

"From public housing to public service, Carey Gabay embodied the American spirit and was a pillar of his community. Carey Gabay Way is a testament of his incredible contribution to the City and State of New York. Today, on what would have been his 44th birthday, we remember Gabay not only as an upstanding citizen, but as a hero in his own right who inspired others to pursue the American Dream. In honor of his life and legacy, we remain steadfast in our commitment to end gun violence," said Council Member Laurie A. Cumbo.

Carey Gabay epitomized the American Dream being the son of Jamaican immigrants and growing up in public housing in the Bronx. Gabay attended New York City public schools through high school before graduating from Harvard University and Harvard Law School summa cum laude. While at Harvard, Gabay studied government and, during his senior year, was elected as the first black President of the Undergraduate Council, the main body of student government.

He started off his career practicing law in the private sector for several years before dedicating himself to public service. Gabay served as an assistant counsel to New York Governor Andrew Cuomo and most recently as First Deputy Counsel for the Empire State Development Corporation, the State's chief economic development agency.

Gabay was critically wounded while seeking cover after being caught in the crossfire between rival gangs at the J'Ouvert festival in Brooklyn, hours before the start of the West Indian Day Parade in 2015. He is survived by his wife Trenelle Gabay; brother Aaron McNaughton; sisters Crystal Gabay-Nurse and Stephanie Gabay-Smith; his mother Audrey Hylton; father Nerval Gabay; and step father Rupert McNaughton.

"Carey Gabay was a dedicated public servant who epitomized the spirit of what it means to be a New Yorker. Today, on what would have been his 44th birthday, we rename this street so that his contributions to our city and state will never be forgotten. The senseless violence that took Carey's life is unforgivable, and my thoughts and prayers continue to be with his family and loved ones," said Public Advocate Letitia James.

"Carey Gabay lives on in the hearts and minds of all Brooklynites, his legacy of public service and commitment to excellence is a shining beacon for every person striving to achieve more for their community. The work to honor his memory goes beyond the co-naming of a street; it continues as we pursue efforts to end senseless gun violence, uplift every immigrant, and ensure safe, affordable housing for each and every New Yorker," said Borough President Eric Adams.

MAYOR DE BLASIO RELEASES ONE NEW YORK: THE PLAN FOR A STRONG AND JUST CITY

OneNYC establishes bold goals and specific targets for a strong, sustainable, resilient, and equitable city – 800,000 people out of poverty by 2025, Zero Waste, eliminating long-term displacement after future shock events, and much more

Mayor de Blasio: Environmental and Economic Sustainability Must Go Hand in Hand – and OneNYC is the Blueprint

NEW YORK—The de Blasio administration announced today the release of “One New York: The Plan for a Strong and Just City,” a comprehensive plan for a sustainable and resilient city for all New Yorkers that addresses the profound social, economic, and environmental challenges ahead.

OneNYC builds on prior long-term sustainability plans for New York City, expanding on the critical targets established under previous plans, as well as on the work of the de Blasio administration over the last 16 months. Growth, sustainability, and resiliency remain at the core of OneNYC – but with the poverty rate remaining high and income inequality continuing to grow, the de Blasio administration added equity as a guiding principle throughout the plan.

OneNYC sets measurable goals for tackling these challenges in the coming years – including a poverty reduction target of 800,000 New Yorkers over the next 10 years, zero waste to landfills by 2030, and the elimination of long-term displacement from homes and jobs after shock events by 2050 – with critical action in the short-term to put the city on the path to achieving these goals.

“Environmental and economic sustainability must go hand in hand – and OneNYC is the blueprint to ensure they do,” said Mayor de Blasio. “Today, we are laying out specific goals to make sure that as we build a stronger, more sustainable, and more resilient city, we are also creating a more equitable one. From our unprecedented goal of lifting 800,000 New Yorkers out of poverty, to sweeping environmental initiatives such as Zero Waste, the cleanest air of any large city, and a dramatic reduction in emissions, this is a bold and ambitious plan – and New York City requires nothing less. OneNYC builds on the strong foundation created by the Bloomberg administration, and ensures that our city can meet the challenges we face today and in the future, while inspiring others around the world to do the same.”

Visit nyc.gov/onenyc to read the full plan.

Today, New York City faces a number of challenges, including a rapidly growing population, rising inequality, an aging infrastructure, and climate change. OneNYC lays out a series of specific targets and initiatives to prepare New York City for the future generations, including:

- Making New York City home to 4.9 million jobs by 2040.
- Creating 240,000 new housing units by 2025, and an additional 250,000 to 300,000 by 2040.
- Enabling the average New Yorker to reach 25% more jobs – or 1.8 million jobs – within 45 minutes by public transit.
- Lifting 800,000 New Yorkers out of poverty or near-poverty by 2025.
- Cutting premature mortality by 25 percent by 2040, while reducing racial/ethnic disparities.
- Reducing the city’s greenhouse gas emissions by 80 percent by 2050, over 2005 levels.
- Sending zero waste to landfills and reducing waste disposal by 90 percent relative to 2005 levels, by 2030.
- Ensuring New York City has the best air quality among all large U.S. cities by 2030.
- Reducing risks of flooding in most affected communities.

- Eliminating long-term displacement from homes and jobs after future shock events by 2050.
- Reducing the city’s Social Vulnerability Index for neighborhoods across the City;
- Reducing annual economic losses from climate-related events;
- Continued investment as part of an over-$20 billion program that includes a range of physical, social, and economic resiliency measures.

The plan recognizes New York City’s role and responsibilities as a regional hub, and calls on the City’s partners to work together on shared goals for building a strong region. The plan follows months of engagement with thousands of New Yorkers across the five boroughs – including through an online survey available in seven language, dozens of community meetings, a phone survey, and meetings with hundreds of civic organizations and local and regional elected officials. In the coming months, the de Blasio administration will continue the conversation with residents, civic leaders, and elected officials to refine initiatives and encourage civic engagement. New Yorkers can also share their thoughts and priorities at nyc.gov/onenyc.

The plan – a 332-page document – is divided into four visions for a stronger, more equitable, more sustainable, and more resilient New York City, and includes over 200 new initiatives, with over 80 specific new metrics and targets.

The full report – including complete initiatives and indicators – can be viewed at nyc.gov/oneNYC.

Vision 1: Our Growing, Thriving City

New York City will continue to be the world’s most dynamic urban economy where families, businesses, and neighborhoods thrive:

- Industry Expansion & Cultivation: New York City will have the space and assets to be a global economic leader and grow quality jobs across a diverse range of sectors.
- Workforce Development: New York City will have a workforce equipped with the skills needed to participate in the 21st century economy.
- Housing: New Yorkers will have access to affordable, high-quality housing coupled with robust infrastructure and neighborhood services.
- Thriving Neighborhoods: New York City’s neighborhoods will continue to thrive and be well-served.
- Culture: All New Yorkers will have easy access to cultural resources and activities.
- Transportation: New York City’s transportation network will be reliable, safe, sustainable, and accessible, meeting the needs of all New Yorkers and supporting the city’s growing economy.
- Infrastructure Planning and Management: New York City’s infrastructure and built environment will exemplify global economic, environmental, and social leadership.
- Broadband: Every resident and business will have access to affordable, reliable, high-speed broadband service everywhere by 2025.

Vision 2: Our Just and Equitable City

OneNYC will have an inclusive, equitable economy that offers well-paying jobs and opportunities for all New Yorkers to live with dignity and security:

- Early Childhood: Every child in New York City will be nurtured, will be protected, and will thrive.
- Integrated Government and Social Services: All New Yorkers will have access to high-quality, conveniently located, community-based City resources that promote civic engagement and enable them to thrive.
- Healthy Neighborhoods, Active Living: New Yorkers of all ages will live, work, learn, and play in neighborhoods that promote an active and healthy lifestyle.
- Healthcare Access: All New Yorkers will have access to the physical and mental healthcare services they need.
- Criminal Justice Reform: Among large U.S. cities, New York will continue to be the safest and will have the lowest incarceration, with a criminal justice system that leads the nation in fairness and efficiency.
- Vision Zero: New Yorkers will continue to embrace Vision Zero and accept no traffic fatalities on New York City Streets.

Vision 3: Our Sustainable City

OneNYC will ensure that New York City is the most sustainable big city in the world and a global leader in the fight against climate change:

- 80x50: New York City's greenhouse gas emissions will be 80 percent lower by 2050 than in 2005.
- Zero Waste: New York City will send zero waste to landfills by 2030.
- Air Quality: New York City will have the best air quality among all large U.S. cities by 2030.
- Brownfields: New York City will clean up contaminated land to address disproportionately high exposures in low-income communities, and convert land to safe and beneficial use.
- Water Management: New York City will mitigate neighborhood flooding and offer high-quality water services.
- Parks and Natural Resources: All New Yorkers will benefit from useful, accessible, and beautiful open spaces.

Vision 4: Our Resilient City

OneNYC will ensure that our neighborhoods, economy, and public services are ready to withstand and emerge stronger from the impacts of climate change and other 21st century threats:

- Neighborhoods: Every city neighborhood will be safer by strengthening community, social, and economic resiliency.
- Buildings: The city’s buildings will be upgraded against climate impacts.
- Infrastructure: Infrastructure systems across the region will adapt to enable continued services.
- Coastal Defense: New York City’s coastal defenses will be strengthened against flood and sea level rise.

“The City Council is committed to making New York a more sustainable City for all New Yorkers,” said Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito. “From passing legislation to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by 80 percent by 2050 to encouraging low-carbon transportation options and increasing energy efficiencies, the City Council is proud of its work to strengthen New York City and I thank the de Blasio Administration for their shared efforts to preserve and protect New York City for future generations.”

“OneNYC puts New York City in the global forefront of sustainable development. The City’s new plan is bold, comprehensive, creative, and most important, achievable. It will be a model for cities around the world as all nations take up the new Sustainable Development Goals at the UN this Fall. The vision, reach, and detailed groundwork of this plan will help to ensure that NYC achieves its visions of prosperity, justice, sustainability, and resiliency in the coming generation,” said Jeffrey D. Sachs, Co-Chair of the OneNYC Advisory Board and Director of the Earth Institute at Columbia University.

“As New York City contends with the challenge of combatting climate change, PlanNYC has been an integral component in outlining our vision to become a truly sustainable city,” said Council Member Donovan Richards, Chair to the Committee on Environmental Protection and Co-Chair to the OneNYC Advisory Board. “OneNYC gave the city a unique opportunity to recalibrate and to set ambitious but attainable goals. From legislation to limit unnecessary nighttime illumination, advising new housing developments to be smoke free, building the infrastructure to support and charge electric vehicles and updating the air code, a number of bills will set key legislative standards citywide. Locally, Southeast Queens residents will finally see long and short term mitigation measures in their neighborhoods to address flooding along with other expected courses of action to respond to concerns in low and middle income neighborhoods. I commend the administration for developing OneNYC and securing a future for New York City that will certainly be greener than its past.”

Michael Berkowitz, President of 100 Resilient Cities, pioneered by the Rockefeller Foundation, said, “To truly build resilience a city must not only consider sustainability and disaster response, but also take in to account social and economic issues, and it needs to consider them together. By considering social, physical and economic issues together, the city will be able to address not only the challenges it knows are coming, but those it doesn’t. In other words, making a city stronger overall, in good times and bad, makes the city better able to withstand all types of shocks. This holistic plan that New York has developed, interweaving social, economic, and physical resilience, puts the city on the forefront of urban planning worldwide.”

“Mayor de Blasio’s One NYC Plan recognizes the link between poverty and pollution, while providing concrete steps that will make New York City one of the most environmentally sustainable cities in the nation. As Hurricane Sandy illustrated, poor people are often disproportionately impacted by pollution and the impacts of climate change,” said Judith A. Enck, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Regional Administrator. “The One NYC Plan’s focus on driving down greenhouse gas emissions and working toward zero waste are examples of environmental protection policies that also provide huge economic benefits.”

“OneNYC addresses the increasing risk that climate change poses to the neighborhoods of New York, using the best available science to inform its approach,” said Cynthia Rosenzweig, Co-Chair of the New York City Panel on Climate Change, NASA and Columbia University. “This is essential to achieving resiliency to heat and coastal flooding throughout the City.”

“OneNYC continues the important long-term planning work that is so essential to our city’s future. The de Blasio Administration has appropriately added a regional lens to the city's long term plan,” said Kathryn Wylde, President and CEO of the Partnership for New York City. “This reflects that our tri-state economy is increasingly interconnected and we need a vision and infrastructure that supports a coordinated approach to economic development, transportation and resiliency.”

“We commend Mayor de Blasio for committing to integrate equity into the fiber of OneNYC,” said Eddie Bautista, Executive Director of the NYC Environmental Justice Alliance. “The plan's ambitious zero waste goals and acknowledgement of the need to reassess our commercial waste system are a significant step toward a more sustainable and equitable city for all New Yorkers. The NYC Environmental Justice Alliance and our allies will be combing through the fine details of the plan in the weeks ahead to fully assess its impacts on environmental justice communities. We look forward to working with the Administration throughout the next steps of OneNYC.”

“Persistent poverty continues to keep too many New Yorkers from moving ahead economically,” said David R. Jones, President and CEO of the Community Service Society of New York. “Mayor de Blasio has staked his administration on addressing income inequality and the needs of the segments of our city who are struggling. And now he's setting a milestone and a plan for how to get there. It's an ambitious plan, with the goal of lifting one in five poor New Yorkers out of poverty by 2025. But we should be setting ambitious goals. More than 20 percent of our city lives in poverty, with 40 percent living below twice the poverty threshold. Two-thirds of New Yorkers are worried about a disappearing middle class. Raising the minimum wage and expanding higher education opportunities, such as making college more affordable, are measures New Yorkers believe can help improve the economic prospects of low-income residents.”

“This is a broad and ambitious plan to make New York a more sustainable city and a better place to live,” said Eric Goldstein, New York City Environment Director at the Natural Resources Defense Council. “Perhaps most notably, this is the first time ever the City’s sustainability plan approaches these issues through an equity lens. That’s key because many urban environmental problems, including climate change, hit poor and working class New Yorkers the hardest. Critical to this plan’s success, of course, will be putting it into action. We look forward to working with the de Blasio administration to accomplish that objective.”

“THE POINT CDC is thrilled and encouraged by the release of Mayor De Blasio’s agenda for addressing environmental and economic injustice through sustainability in the OneNYC initiative. The South Bronx, like so many communities throughout New York City, have suffered the burden of inequitable policies that have resulted in disproportionate health impacts such as sky rocking asthma rates. We are in need of an agenda that tackles these issues head on through fair share and waste equity, economic democracy, and infrastructure investments, to help our communities confront inequality through creating and sustaining living wage jobs in communities where we can raise our families in without fear of displacement. We look forward to continuing to work with our families, community partners, the Mayor, friends in the City Council and all of our elected officials, to ensure this vision becomes something real for those of us that need it most,” said Kellie Terry, Executive Director, The Point.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK

Friend --

Our state legislature is deciding the future of mayoral control of our city's schools right now -- and our students could feel the effects of that decision as early as July 1st. It's imperative that we let Albany know that mayoral control must be made permanent.

Before mayoral control, the city's school system was fragmented. There was little accountability, and we saw far too many instances of waste, mismanagement, and corruption.

In the more than ten years since mayoral control passed, we've seen improved attendance and graduation rates, safer schools, and more kids given the chance to succeed. We've increased parental engagement with teachers and are making parents and communities partners in shaping successful schools. But all that progress could halt if we don't make sure mayoral control is here to stay.

Join me in calling on Albany to make mayoral control permanent -- add your name to our petition.

So much of what we've accomplished together wouldn't have been possible without mayoral control.

We're bringing free, full-day, high-quality pre-K to more than 70,000 children this September. Our Renewal Schools program is turning struggling schools around by providing them with the support and resources they need. These and other new programs are bringing innovation, collaboration, and comprehensive services into our schools.

We've come too far to turn back now. Sign our petition asking Albany to make mayoral control permanent:

Thank you,

Bill de Blasio

STATEMENT FROM MAYOR DE BLASIO ON SUPREME COURT DECISION ON MARRIAGE EQUALITY

“America will never forget this day, and neither will people all across the world who know the meaning of love and compassion. June 26, 2015, will forever be memorialized as a pivotal moment in the history of our nation – the day the Supreme Court affirmed our core values of love, equality, and justice, rejected ignorance and malice, and appealed to the humanity in us all. Our country will finally afford millions of Americans the rights they have always deserved, but until now were unable to exercise. Today, this country is richer – filled with more equality, more acceptance, and more love than yesterday. And for the people of this city, where the movement for LGBT rights began in 1969 at the Stonewall Inn, we can be proud that we helped blaze the trail to this great victory.”

De Blasio Enlists New York City's Wealthy for His War on Income Inequality

BLOOMBERG - Henry Goldman

<http://www.bloomberg.com/politics/articles/2015-12-08/de-blasio-enlists-nyc-s-wealthy-for-his-war-on-income-inequality>

New York Mayor Bill de Blasio, who became a scourge of the wealthy with a vow to raise their taxes, has enlisted members of the financial elite to advance his agenda.

Venture capitalist Fred Wilson has offered $5 million to get computer science in every city school, while Viacom Chief Executive Officer Philippe Dauman is pushing for more broadband Internet in the Bronx. Hedge-fund operators Paul Tudor Jones and William Ackman and Blackstone Group LP President Tony James are helping with affordable housing, mental health and youth employment.

De Blasio, 54, a Democrat who pledged to fight income inequality, has accused the rich of using their influence to block antipoverty efforts. Lately, that rhetoric has been mixed with paeans to public-private partnerships forged to attack homelessness, create jobs and improve schools and health.

“We may not agree on individual issues but we’re all in the same ecosystem,” said Morgan Stanley Chief Executive Officer James Gorman. He’s co-chairman of the Partnership for New York City, a group that finds corporate partners for city programs, such as job experience for youth and investment in economic development.

For several corporate leaders, cooperation began last year when de Blasio sought their help in a failed effort to persuade the Democratic Party to choose New York City for the 2016 convention.

Selfish Interest

Wilson, co-founder of Union Square Ventures who helped finance Twitter Inc.’s creation, persuaded the de Blasio administration to embark on an $81 million plan to train 5,000 teachers over 10 years. He put up $5 million, matched by AOL’s charitable foundation, with the city and more private sources paying the rest. Wilson said he approached city officials after reading that de Blasio said that boosting schools’ ability to teach science, technology, electronics and math could solve the industry’s labor shortage.

“I’m invested in 25 technology companies and none of them can find enough workers, so I have a selfish interest in solving this,” Wilson said. “Even if we just got 5 percent of the 65,000 kids who graduate each year, that would amount to 3,000 kids, as opposed to the 500 now enrolled in Advanced Placement computer science.”

Just last week, Unilever contributed about 80 percent of a $5.3 million donation for a city public-health program providing 12 low-income neighborhoods with better access to fresh fruit and vegetables, recreation and exercise and health-care facilities.

“Our city’s business and philanthropic communities are critical collaborators in our work fighting against income inequality,” de Blasio said in an e-mailed statement. “With support of our private partners we are working to strengthen the economy, prepare our future workforce and make our city more equal and accessible.”

Jones, founder of asset manager Tudor Investment, has been trying to find a way for the Robin Hood Foundation, which he started 27 years ago to aid New York City’s poor, to help de Blasio realize his goal of creating 200,000 units of affordable housing. The foundation has also backed de Blasio’s computer-science initiative.

The foundation, built on the largesse of Wall Street and real-estate investors, last year contributed more than $130 million to programs run by the city government and private nonprofits.

Wealth Concentrated

“We can bring everyone in the real-estate industry to the table and have a wonderful public-private partnership,” Jones said last summer after briefly encountering de Blasio at the East Hampton home of billionaire investor Ronald Perelman.

The encounter occurred just a month after de Blasio told CNN’s Carol Costello, “we have seen wealth concentrated in fewer and fewer hands and have a negative impact on how many people are unemployed and what kind of wages they have.”

The mayor has quieted the antagonism since then, said Robin Hood executive director David Saltzman.

“It took a little bit of time for the relationship to blossom but it has blossomed,” Saltzman said.

Criticism Faced

As the mayor’s relationship with some of the wealthiest investors and executives has improved, he’s faced criticism from neighborhood groups and past supporters.

His affordable-housing zoning plan, which would increase density to help finance construction of below-market units, has come under attack from advocates and community boards who say it would spur gentrification. Some accuse him of being too generous with developers who would benefit from tax abatements and subsidies.

De Blasio also has failed to convince some of the city’s wealthiest philanthropists. Kenneth Langone, the Home Depot Inc. co-founder and Republican donor who has served on the Robin Hood Foundation’s board, said he’s not interested in collaborating with de Blasio.

“I have no interest in being involved with politicians, because clearly they can’t get anything done,” said Langone, who gave $200 million to NYU Medical Center and millions more to other charities. “He’s got plenty of authority to do what it takes to fix the schools. When he does that, he’ll have a better chance of getting more cooperation and help.”

De Blasio’s outreach to investors and corporations is coordinated by an Office of Strategic Partnerships. Its director, Gabrielle Fialkoff, is a former jewelry-company president who was finance director for Hillary Clinton’s 2000 U.S. Senate campaign, which de Blasio managed.

Fialkoff enlisted Blackstone President Tony James and Deloitte’s New York managing partner Steve Gallucci, to participate in a coalition of 60 companies to raise $5.4 million, some of which paid for an $80 million program that helped connect 54,000 young people to jobs and internships. Her goal is for the city to create 100,000 such opportunities within five years.

“If the city is to remain the commercial center of the world, we need the private sector at the table,” she said. “They understand that we can offer them a return on their investment.”

WNYC EXCLUSIVE: De Blasio To Offer Six Weeks Paid Parental Leave

WNYC has learned New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio plans to issue an executive order guaranteeing some city workers 6-weeks of paid parental leave. He plans to make the announcement Tuesday.

Starting in January, 20,000 managers and non-unionized workers will be eligible for the policy – covering maternity, paternity, adoption, and foster care leave, at 100 percent of their salary. When combined with existing paid time off, some employees will be eligible for up to 12 weeks total.

“I remember after Chiara was born, just our economic reality was that Chirlane had to go back to work very quickly,” de Blasio told WNYC. “She has always felt a tension over that. She didn't feel good about not being able to spend more time with Chiara.”

It's a decision faced by many new parents: bond with your baby or pay the bills.

“We want to give parents that choice. We want to give them that opportunity at that precious moment to spend time with their child in the way that makes sense for them,” de Blasio said.

To cover the $15 million cost, all non-union employees will see their vacation time reduced by two days, from 27 to 25. The city will also take back a small portion of a multi-year raise that would have taken effect in July 2017 to pay for the extra leave.

The policy does not apply to the city’s 300,000 union employees. But the mayor said the benefit can be added to their contracts through collective bargaining.

Henry Garrido, head of District Council 37, the largest municipal union, says that is “absolutely” what he wants for his 122,000 members.

“I think it should be offered to all city employees and I think we should begin a process to negotiate,” Garrido said.

Paid family leave is becoming more popular in the private sector as companies compete to keep employees. But in the public sector, this benefit is a rarity. Only Austin and Pittsburgh offer 6 weeks paid leave.

It's something feminist activist and writer Gloria Steinem has been trying to push since the Nixon administration. She says the city's new policy is progress.

“It sends the message that we might barely begin to catch up with other advanced democracies in the world that have long since offered such policies,” Steinem told WNYC. She added, “We are way behind.”

According to a United Nations report, only two countries in the world do not guarantee some form of paid leave parental leave: the United States and Papua New Guinea.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: February 15, 2016
CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

MAYOR DE BLASIO REMINDS NEW YORKERS THAT A TRAVEL ADVISORY REMAINS IN EFFECT FOR MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Wintry mix of snow, freezing rain and rain may impact travel and cause dangerously slick driving conditions

Minor coastal flooding possible during Tuesday afternoon and evening high tide cycles

New York—Mayor Bill de Blasio today reminded New Yorkers that a wintry mix of snow, freezing rain and rain will create dangerous driving conditions throughout Monday and into Tuesday.

“New Yorkers who are driving this evening should be extra careful – roads may be slick and dangerous as the snow transitions to rain,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “While the temperature is rising, the ground is still freezing from the colder weather this weekend, so roads and sidewalks will be icy this evening.”

The New York City Emergency Management Department issued a travel advisory for Monday, February 15, 2016 and Tuesday, February 16. The National Weather Service has issued a Winter Weather Advisory from 1:00 PM Monday through midnight. Snow will continue throughout the afternoon, and begin to mix with sleet and freezing rain before transitioning to all rain later this evening. Rain, moderate to heavy at times, will continue throughout the day Tuesday.

A total of 1 to 2 inches of snow, a trace of ice, and 1 ¼ to 1 ½ inches of rain are predicted throughout the event. High winds are predicted Tuesday, with sustained winds of 20-25 mph, and gusts up to 30-40 mph. Temperatures Monday are forecast to be in the lower 30s, and will continue to increase to mid-50s on Tuesday. Minor coastal flooding is possible during Tuesday afternoon and evening high tide cycles. New Yorkers are asked to exercise caution and be prepared for limited visibility and slick, slippery road conditions.

Please allow for extra travel time during your commutes. New York City residents living in coastal areas expected to experience minor coastal flooding should take action to protect their property.

SNOW PREPARATIONS

DSNY

The New York City Department of Sanitation issued a Snow Alert effective 9:00 AM Monday, February 15, 2016, and will pre-deploy 579 salt spreaders across the five boroughs. In addition, DSNY will have 1,600 plows available in anticipation of any plowing needs (more than 2 inches of accumulation). 1,000 Sanitation workers are being assigned.

DOT

The Department of Transportation will deploy anti-icing units to each of the East River bridges. The Staten Island Ferry is expected to run on a holiday schedule, with crews clearing snow from terminals as needed. JCDecaux has pretreated more than 3,000 bus shelters throughout the city. Citi Bike is expected to remain in service.

Alternate Side Parking rules were suspended Monday, February 15 for President's Day. Parking meters remain in effect throughout the city.

DHS

DHS outreach teams are warning their own vulnerable clients to move indoors and have made placements this past week leading up to the extreme weather (including some involuntarily) because of the risks.

DHS has been in enhanced outreach from 4:00 PM to 8:00 AM every day this weekend and will continue to have 24/7 coverage throughout the cold weather event, including twice as much coverage overnight than usual, with more than 160 outreach workers in the streets.

A Code Blue Weather Emergency notice is issued when the weather drops to 32 degrees or below. No one seeking shelter in New York City will be denied. Anyone who sees a homeless individual or family out in the cold should call 311 immediately and an outreach team will be dispatched to assist them. Code Blue Weather Emergencies includes the following options for the homeless:

Shelters: During a Code Blue, homeless adults can access any shelter location for single individuals. Beds are available system-wide to accommodate anyone brought in by outreach teams or walk-ins.

Drop-in centers: All drop-in centers are open 24 hours a day when Code Blue procedures are in effect, taking in as many people as possible for the duration of the inclement weather. Drop-in staff also can make arrangements for homeless individuals at other citywide facilities.

Safe havens and stabilization beds: Chronically homeless individuals may be transported to these low-threshold housing options, where they may go directly from the street to a bed.

Safety Tips

- New Yorkers are also encouraged to take the following precautions:
- Drive slowly. Vehicles take longer to stop on snow and ice than on dry pavement.

- Four-wheel drive vehicles may make it easier to drive on snow-covered roads, but they do not stop quicker than other vehicles.
- Use major streets or highways for travel whenever possible.
- Know your vehicle's braking system. Vehicles with anti-lock brakes require a different braking technique than vehicles without anti-lock brakes in snowy conditions.
- If you are driving and begin to skid, ease your foot off the gas and steer in the direction you want the front of the car to go. Straighten the wheel when the car moves in the desired direction.
- If you have an anti-lock braking system (ABS), apply steady pressure to the brake pedal. Never pump the brakes on an ABS equipped vehicle.
- Try to keep your vehicle's gas tank as full as possible.
- Keep the name and phone number of at least one local towing service in your car in case you break down or become stuck.
- Exercise caution and avoid slippery surfaces; some ice may not be visible. Wear sturdy boots that provide traction to reduce slipping. Use handrails when using stairs.
- Seniors should take extra care outdoors to avoid slips and falls.

COASTAL FLOODING PREPARATIONS

NYC residents living in coastal areas expected to experience minor coastal flooding should take the following preparedness steps:

- Prepare a Go Bag that you can grab in case you need to leave your home in a hurry.
- Learn the safest route from your home or workplace to safe, high ground in case you have to evacuate. This should be part of your household emergency plan.
- If you live in a flood-susceptible area, keep materials, such as sandbags, plywood, plastic sheeting, and lumber, on hand to help protect your home.
- Stay informed. Before and during an emergency, the City will send emergency alerts and updates to New Yorkers through various channels.
- If you have to walk in water, walk where the water is not moving or use a stick to check the firmness of the ground in front of you.
- Stay out of any building if it is surrounded by floodwaters.
- When outside, avoid walking and driving through flooded areas. As few as six inches of moving water can knock a person over. Six inches of water will reach the bottom of most passenger cars, causing loss of control and possible stalling. One or two feet of water can carry away a vehicle.

MAYOR DE BLASIO LAUNCHES FIRST EVER CITYWIDE AD CAMPAIGN AFFIRMING RIGHT TO USE BATHROOMS CONSISTENT WITH GENDER IDENTITY

New York City first municipality to launch citywide campaign on bathroom use and gender identity

Ads will appear in subway cars, bus shelters, phone booths, NYC TV, ethnic and community newspapers, and on social media

NEW YORK— Mayor Bill de Blasio and the New York City Commission on Human Rights today launched the nation’s first government-led citywide ad campaign affirming every New Yorkers’ right to use the bathroom consistent with their gender identity, regardless of their sex assigned at birth.

“No one deserves to be denied access to bathrooms or discriminated against for being who they are. Every New Yorker has the legal right to use the bathroom consistent with their gender identity, no questions asked – and these powerful ads affirm this right,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “New York City has long been a leader in the fight for LGBTQ equality, and these ads are further evidence of the City’s unwavering support of our diverse communities. While other cities and states are legislating intolerance and taking away individuals’ right to use bathrooms consistent with their gender identity, we are proudly standing with our transgender and gender non-conforming New Yorkers.”

“Every New Yorker has the right to use the restroom that matches their gender identity and where they feel comfortable and safe,” said First Lady Chirlane McCray, Honorary Chair of the Commission on Gender Equity. “No New Yorker should have to worry about hiding their gender identity to take care of basic human needs. Others may advance hateful agendas that discriminate based on gender or gender identity, but that kind of bigotry will never be acceptable here, and we will keep fighting to root it out until no New Yorker feels discriminated against.”

The campaign, which kicks off LGBTQ Pride Month, includes ads and videos featuring transgender New Yorkers and instructs readers to “look past pink and blue” and to “use the restroom consistent with who you are.” The ads will appear in subway cars, bus shelters, phone booths, ethnic and community newspapers, and in ads in digital publications and across social media in English and Spanish. Ethnic newspaper ads will appear in Spanish, Korean, Chinese, Russian and Bengali. Later this month, the Commission will release two digital videos, also featuring transgender New Yorkers, as part of the campaign affirming the bathroom access rights of transgender and gender non-conforming New Yorkers.

The campaign ads and videos were created following audience research with transgender and cisgender New Yorkers and input from transgender community and legal advocates. The ads feature real transgender New Yorkers, including Alisha King, a Bronx resident and full-time mom; Charlie Solidum, a Brooklyn resident and health care professional; Ky Platt, a Bronx resident and technical theatre professional; and Ariel Murtagh, a transgender rights activist and rising high school student. Participants joined this campaign to raise awareness of transgender rights and the legal right to use bathrooms consistent with their identity in New York City.

“Bathroom discrimination is a regular occurrence for the transgender community,” said Alisha King. “So much so that many of us avoid even using public restrooms to begin with. I sincerely hope these ads help people understand that transgender people are people just like you. We just want to use the restroom safely and be treated with respect.”

"Given the recent national rhetoric threatening trans peoples' access to public spaces, I feel privileged to live in New York City, where the laws are explicit about protecting us regardless of our documentation, transition status or gender expression", said Charles Solidum. “Harassment and discrimination of trans people in bathrooms happen every day, especially for trans women and gender non-conforming folks. These ads help to ensure trans New Yorkers know that the city stands with us and supports our access to the same rights and opportunities as everyone else.”

Leading the Nation

New York City continues to lead the nation in protecting the rights of the transgender and gender non-conforming community. In December 2015, the NYC Commission on Human Rights issued legal enforcement guidance defining specific gender identity protections under the City Human Rights Law, including equal bathroom access. In March, Mayor de Blasio issued an executive order requiring City agencies to ensure that employees and members of the public are given equal access to City single-sex facilities without being required to show identification, medical documentation or any other form of proof or verification of gender. Today, New York City becomes the first municipality to launch a citywide campaign specifically affirming the right of transgender individuals to use the bathroom consistent with their gender identity or expression.

The City's campaign ads come at time when many cities and states continue to deny transgender and gender non-conforming people the right to use bathrooms consistent with their gender identity or expression. At last count, 11 states are suing the U.S. Department of Justice following a letter from the Obama administration directing schools to grant transgender students equal access to bathrooms and locker rooms. To this day, more than 200 bills have been introduced in 32 states this year that would deny LGBT individuals the same rights as everyone else, according to the Human Rights Campaign.

In New York City, equal bathroom access has been policy for years, including in New York City public schools. Despite the often-cited myth that these policies encourage bathroom attacks, there has been no reported incidence in New York City. The New York City Human Rights Law has protected gender identity and expression since 2002 when then-Council Member Bill de Blasio co-sponsored an amendment to add it to the law as a protected category.

Studies show that transgender and gender nonconforming people routinely experience gender identity discrimination in the workplace, at school and in public accommodations. In a nationwide survey conducted by the National Center for Transgender Equality and the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force, 63 percent of participants said they have experienced a serious act of discrimination, including bullying, loss of job due to bias and physical or sexual assault. Roughly 90 percent reported discrimination in the workplace, including denied access to appropriate bathrooms at work, and 26 percent reported being denied access to bathrooms in an educational setting.

“Safe and equal bathrooms access is essential for everyone,” said Human Rights Commissioner and Chair Carmelyn P. Malalis. “And in New York City, it’s the law. We created these ads to remind every New Yorker, cis and transgender alike, that the City protects your right to live and work according to your gender identity and expression, including your right to use bathrooms consistent with their gender identity. Far too often, transgender people suffer bullying, harassment and violence for being who they are. These ads show that transgender people, like everyone else, have the right to use the restroom in peace.”

"In the 14 years that New York City has protected equal access to bathrooms, we know of no incidents where this policy has presented a public safety concern," said Police Commissioner William J. Bratton. "The NYPD protects the safety of all New Yorkers."

“New York City is a safe and fair City. Safety and fairness include access to bathrooms. These new ads make clear that gender fairness extends to our City facilities to improve the lives of all New Yorkers,” said Counsel to the Mayor Maya Wiley.

“Whether in the bathroom or elsewhere, every person – regardless of their gender identity – has the right to freedom from harassment of any kind, be it insults, bullying or assault,” said Brooklyn Borough President Eric L. Adams. “By affirming that all New Yorkers have the right to use the bathroom consistent with their gender identity, as the law requires, this campaign continues our City’s tradition as a leader in protecting the right of each individual to full and equal participation in our civil society.”

"All New Yorkers should have access to the bathrooms, locker rooms and other single-sex facilities they feel are most appropriate to them without the risk of shaming, baseless policing or an unjustified invasion of their privacy," said Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer. "Sending that message loud and clear is the right thing to do."

"New York values mean basic fairness for all," said State Senator Daniel Squadron. "As we continue to make progress for transgender and gender non-conforming New Yorkers throughout the state, I thank the City for this step, and continue to urge the state to pass GENDA and codify basic protections for all."

Assembly Member Felix W. Ortiz said, "I am proud that New York City is leading the way to ensure that everyone, regardless of their sexual identity, will have equal access to restrooms throughout the five boroughs. A successful advertising campaign will let everyone know that diversity and equality matter. There is no room in New York for the hatred or divisiveness we've seen elsewhere."

"Discrimination against transgender and gender non-conforming people has no place in our city," said Council Member Daniel Dromm. "As a Council Member representing one of the largest transgender communities in New York City, I applaud Mayor de Blasio for launching this historic ad campaign which affirms the right to use the bathrooms consistent with one's gender identity. I will continue to support this trailblazing campaign and work to enhance protections for all transgender and non-confirming individuals across the five boroughs."

"This campaign reaffirms our commitment to equality as New Yorkers," said Council Member Corey Johnson. "When civil rights are under attack around the country, we in New York emphasize the importance of inclusion and diversity. That's exactly what this campaign is all about. By bringing exposure to this important citywide policy, we are building a culture of acceptance and proclaiming our values as New Yorkers. I thank Mayor de Blasio and NYC Human Rights Commissioner and Chair Carmelyn P. Malalis for this important campaign."

"Once again, New York City continues to be a leader in ensuring rights for all people are protected and enhanced. This campaign is a clear message that our City will protect the right of transgender people to use facilities that are in line with their gender identity and expression. It is an important and visible campaign that speaks loudly to our City's values," said Council Member Ritchie Torres.

Council Member Carlos Menchaca said, "Every New Yorker deserves equal access to public accommodations. I am proud my city upholds the right of everyone to define their own identity. As the nation's leader in LGBT equality, we share an expectation of safe and equal bathroom access. Now, New York City is showing the nation how to promote equality using an ad campaign featuring authentic individuals. The transgender and gender non-conforming people who have experienced discrimination and faced danger have much to teach us about securing equality for all."

"At a time when transgender people face staggering rates of discrimination and violence, it's critical that they receive the same protections as everybody else, including the basic right to use the bathroom that matches who they are," said GLAAD President and CEO Sarah Kate Ellis. "With this groundbreaking ad campaign, New York City and Mayor de Blasio continue their strong legacy of support for LGBT New Yorkers."

"The Center stands firmly behind this powerful ad campaign to reinforce what Mayor de Blasio and Commissioner Malalis stated last March – that all New Yorkers deserve the same rights and protections, including our transgender and gender nonconforming community members," said Executive Director of The Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual & Transgender Community Center Glenda Testone. "New York has long been a proud leader in protecting our citizens' rights, and we're thrilled to see the city stepping up to ensure that every person has the freedom to use the bathroom consistent with their gender identity."

"It's so heartening that Mayor de Blasio has consistently shown true leadership in making sure that all of New York City's residents can participate fully in public life," said Executive Director of the National Center for

Transgender Equality Mara Keisling. “Many Americans still don’t know who transgender people are, which can lead them to form inaccurate conclusions. This ad campaign not only reaffirms that transgender people’s safety and well-being are a priority for the Mayor, but will also help people realize that transgender New Yorkers are just New Yorkers.”

Reporting Discrimination

If a member of the public believes they have been discriminated against on the basis of gender or gender identity at work, in housing, or in public accommodations, they should call 311 and ask for the Commission on Human Rights. Individuals also have the opportunity to go to court and file a claim under the New York City Human Rights Law. ## MAYORS DE BLASIO AND GARCETTI ANNOUNCE LEGAL ACTION IN SUPPORT OF IMMIGRATION REFORMS

More Than 70 Cities & Counties Sign Texas vs. United States Appeal Urging Immediate Implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action

NEW YORK—New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti announced today that 73 cities and counties had filed a new friend-of-the-court brief in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, urging immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration.

“Continuing to delay implementation of the President’s executive action on immigration hurts our economy and puts families at risk,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “Cities are where immigrants live, and cities are where the President’s executive action will be successfully implemented. Our cities are united, and we will fight for the immigration reform this nation needs and deserves – whether in the courtroom, in Congress, or in our communities. Make no mistake about it: our voices will be heard.”

“Our cities cannot afford delays to immigration reforms that will strengthen our economy and help families,” said Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti. “This isn’t a blue or red issue, but a human and economic one.”

The brief demonstrates robust support from the country’s largest cities – as well as suburbs and rural areas – for the President’s reforms, which will temporarily relieve from deportation thousands of immigrants who have longstanding ties to the U.S.

The cities and counties – representing 43 million people across the country – argue that the district court judge who temporarily blocked implementation of the programs failed to consider the significant harm to America’s local governments caused by this delay.

According to an analysis by the City, each month that the implementation of these programs is delayed, New York City and New York State will lose at least $1.5 million in additional state and local tax revenue that would be generated if 100,000 immigrants in New York City were able to access temporary work permits through executive action.

“New York’s immigrants are vital to our economy and we must do all we can to help them grow and thrive. Mayor de Blasio is correct – instead of putting up barriers, we should be looking at ways to help immigrants climb the ladder of economic opportunity and welcome them into our communities. The New York State Assembly Majority strongly supports President Obama’s executive action on immigration, and further delay by those who would derail this important initiative is unacceptable,” said New York State Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie.

“Each day we wait to implement President Obama’s bold immigration reforms, millions of hard-working families remain in legal limbo. Immigrant communities built New York City, and they are the heart and soul of urban centers across our country,” said Public Advocate Letitia James. “As Congress and federal courts stall meaningful progress on immigration, New York City will continue to lead the nation.”

As part of Cities United for Immigration Action, Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti led the effort to organize more than 70 cities and counties, the National League of Cities, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors in arguing that the national public interest is served clearly and overwhelmingly by implementing immigration relief by executive action without delay. Today’s brief more than doubles the number of local governments that had previously voiced opposition to the lawsuit brought by states seeking to block President Obama’s immigration reform efforts.

The brief also argues that the District Court judge’s decision to block executive action with a preliminary injunction is bad for the economy, hurts families, threatens law enforcement priorities, and will stall desperately needed changes to the federal government’s immigration policies.

The de Blasio Administration has a proven track record of spearheading initiatives that integrate immigrants into the civic and economic life of New York City. From the IDNYC municipal identification program to increasing access to federal immigration benefits, New York City is committed to championing pro-immigrant policies that promote equity and create opportunity for all residents.

This collective action to offer the Court the crucial perspective of American cities and counties is an outcome of the organizing efforts of the Cities United for Immigration Action coalition. By filing this brief, America’s mayors and county leaders are making a strong statement in support of the President’s plan to grant administrative relief to over four million undocumented children and adults.

Numerous cities and counties signed on to today’s brief are located in states that brought the lawsuit against the Obama administration or have otherwise indicated support for the lawsuit, including five cities in Texas, six localities in New Jersey, two counties in Arizona, and three municipalities in Wisconsin. Cities and counties signed on to the brief (in formation) include the following local governments:

“Brooklyn is what America looks like, with nearly 40 percent of our residents being foreign-born, and when it comes to embracing our immigrant population, it is what America ought to be. President Obama's executive order on immigration is the most significant and meaningful step our nation has taken toward addressing this long-standing crisis and the millions of families who have been stuck in the shadows of our society, including hundreds of thousands right here in New York City. Our diversity is our greatest strength, and I join my fellow urban leaders from coast to coast in making this call to support the President's reforms,” said Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams.

“Legally and morally, the president's executive action on immigration was both within his power and the right thing to do,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer. “Blocking its implementation will do real harm to cities. That’s why joining with other cities and counties across the country urging its implementation is the right thing as well.”

“We stand with New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio’s and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti’s decision to file a ‘friend-of-the-court’ brief in support of President Barack Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Bronx Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. “The President’s executive action currently being blocked in the courts hurts The Bronx and New York City, with the borough losing out on potential local tax revenues that would be generated by these hard-working immigrants who just want to come out the shadows and positively contribute to our country. We are the land of opportunity, built on the ideal that we are melting pot that promotes equality for all and we must continue to strive for those ideals that make our country great.”

“President Obama's executive actions were bold and decisive steps toward fixing America's broken immigration system. The Statue of Liberty stands tall in our City, reminding us that America was built by generations of immigrants who came to its shores in search of a better life and a chance to make our country greater,” said U.S. Representative Charles Rangel. “I am proud to see that Mayor de Blasio is committed to keeping that promise alive for years to come.”

“The delay in the implementation of DAPA and expanded DACA threatens millions of American families with deportation, as well as the many communities, such as New York City, of which immigrants are an integral part,” said U.S. Representative Yvette Clarke. “No serious doubt exists that President Obama had the authority to establish DAPA and DACA. I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and the many community leaders across this nation who have raised their voices on behalf of millions of families who want to pursue the American Dream.”

“In the absence of legislative action by House Republicans, President Obama took decisive action on immigration because he knows that there are real lives at stake in our current broken system,” said U.S. Representative Joe Crowley. “It is deeply troubling that a Texas judge known to be hostile to immigrants is delaying the President’s executive measures, especially given the legal precedents set by previous administrations. Halting action that will help keep American families together strikes at the heart of what our country ought to be about, and I thank Mayors de Blasio, Garcetti, and many others for taking a stand and showing the widespread support for the President’s action. I’m confident the Department of Justice will succeed in its appeal of this decision and that we will move forward with this much-needed action that will make such a difference in New York City and elsewhere.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio for working with cities across the nation to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration,” said U.S. Representative Carolyn Maloney. “With over 12 million undocumented immigrants living in our country, comprehensive immigration reform is long overdue. Unfortunately, Congress has failed to act. That is why I strongly support President Obama’s executive actions, which will help keep families together, boost our economy and generate new tax revenue. These are common sense steps that mimic similar actions by Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush, and it’s long past time that President Obama’s reforms are implemented.”

“We can’t continue to delay implementing President Obama’s executive action on immigration. With this friend-of-the-court brief, New York City is joined by more than 70 cities nationwide in voicing its strong support for moving ahead with providing administrative deportation relief to more than 4 million immigrants with strong ties to the U.S. As the brief argues, the District Court’s holdup only hurts our economy, harmless immigrant families, and the federal government’s ability to address our broken immigration system. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for once again putting New York City at the forefront of efforts to help the immigrant community, in New York City, and nationwide,” said U.S. Representative José Serrano, Sr.

“The President’s immigration reforms make badly needed changes to a broken system and will benefit thousands of our neighbors,” stated U.S. Representative Nydia Velázquez. “It is critical for New York City and our nation as a whole that these reforms be implemented without delay.”

“Every day we delay fixing our broken immigration system is a missed opportunity,” said U.S. Representative Kathleen Rice. “There’s no question that we need to keep fighting for comprehensive immigration reform at the federal level, but our local communities can’t afford to wait when there’s no sign that this Congress is willing to pass real legislative solutions. Thousands of hard-working Long Island families are ready to come out of the shadows, stop living in fear and start participating fully in our local economies, and there’s no reason to deny them that opportunity any longer. Last week I joined several fellow Members of Congress in signing an amicus brief affirming our support for the government’s appeal, and the brief filed today by Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti shows that local and federal leaders across the country are united in our commitment to implementing the President’s executive actions.”

“Immigrants move New York’s economy forward,” said State Senator Leroy Comrie. “I represent a district where over a third of its population is foreign-born, and where many more are the children and grandchildren of the rich immigrant legacy this city – and this nation – is so proud of. Immigrants are innovators, business owners and job creators: they augment this City's supply of capital and ideas to diversify its narrative and keep it nationally and globally competitive. Not only is it in our best interest to immediately implement the President's platform for immigration reform, but it is the socially and morally responsible thing to do.”

“Every day the President's executive actions on immigration are blocked, is another day hundreds of thousands of young adults and parents, trying to provide for their families, are unable to work. This is not good for anyone, and the leaders of our cities and counties across the country know this first hand. I thank them for standing with undocumented immigrants and working to bring them out of the shadows,” said State Senator Adriano Espaillat, Chair of the State Senate Puerto Rican/Latino Caucus.

“This friend-of-the-court brief stands with immigrants in our communities against needless delay in the urgently needed Deferred Action programs. President Obama has charted a course for a more compassionate immigration system – a system that treats our friends and neighbors with the dignity they deserve. I commend this action by Mayor de Blasio and dozens of mayors across the United States in keeping with the vision President Obama outlined. I join these mayors and leaders across the country in reaffirming our commitment to America’s longstanding tradition of welcoming immigrants to our communities,” said State Senator Jesse Hamilton.

“It is time to stop intolerant views toward our immigrants. I am in full support of this brief, which is intended to safeguard and implement President Obama’s executive actions on immigration that are intended to keep families together,” said State Senator Jose Peralta. “We, as immigrants, live in all cities across our nation, and blocking the implementation of the President’s policies, hurts not just families fighting for the American Dream, but also our ongoing efforts to enrich and repair our economy.”

“I am very proud that New York City is leading the way on a collective amicus brief in the Texas vs. United States case which calls for swift and sweeping implementation of President Obama’s executive actions concerning rational immigration policy. The lives of millions of people hang in the balance, so many of them New Yorkers who share the same hopes, dreams and aspirations that each successive wave of immigrants harbored generations ago. Each of them found a true home here and it is time for our City and Country to open our arms and our hearts in the name of fundamental human rights,” said State Senator Bill Perkins.

“The implementation of President Obama's executive action on immigration is imperative to ensuring we support the countless immigrants that contribute to the social and economic life of our country,” said State Senator Gustavo Rivera. “We are a country of immigrants, and this executive action will help us strengthen and protect our diverse population, while honoring our values as Americans. I commend and thank Mayor de Blasio for having New York join cities and counties across our country in taking legal action to support an initial step towards immigration reform.”

“Here in a city and state where we pride ourselves on diversity, we can only benefit from the implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said State Senator James Sanders Jr. “It will allow for a reprieve from deportation while giving the undocumented a chance to work, providing a much needed boost to the economy. Just this past week, the state budget failed to include the DREAM Act, which would have given thousands of vibrant young people a chance at success by allowing them to continue their education and creating a pathway to citizenship. Let's not miss another opportunity to help build a stronger New York."

"Unjust deportations have continued to tear apart our families, our schools and our communities. We must act swiftly in implementing President Obama's immigration executive action in order to protect these important populations. Immigrants are the backbone of our communities, and I thank Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for creating a united front to demonstrate our support for the swift implementation of the President's measures," said State Senator José Serrano.

"The delay to President Obama's executive action on immigration is intolerable and comes with a real cost to real people," said Assembly Member Rodneyse Bichotte. "Every day, families of aspiring Americans are destroyed by a system badly in need of reform and the President's executive action offers needed help. I join with Mayor de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the Texas v. United States lawsuit to urge immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration. As a daughter of Haitian immigrants, and as a proud citizen of the United States and elected official of New York, I have a duty to act on behalf of the social justice of our people—as well as a fiduciary responsibility to ensure our economies gain the benefits immigration brings."

"As a child of Jamaican immigrants, it is personal for me that we stand up for Immigration justice and demand immediate action. The implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration is a moral, social, and economic necessity. The delays are inexcusable, and we must move forward. In past years, immigrants in NYC have accounted for more than $200 billion in economic activity to help revitalize vibrant neighborhoods including the work of Latino, Caribbean and African entrepreneurs in the South Bronx. Through hard work and tireless dedication, Immigrants embody the entrepreneurial spirit that makes our country so beautiful, and the best country in the world," said Assembly Member Michael Blake. "Immigrants are our neighbors, our friends, and our family, and I proudly stand with Mayor Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in calling for our judicial system to do the right thing, the humane thing, the compassionate thing, and give our communities the life they deserve."

"I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and all the other mayors for supporting immigration reforms. Implementation of the President's Immigration Executive action will provide much needed relief to immigrant families suffering under our broken system and is a crucial first step on the road to treating our immigrants with the fairness and respect they deserve," said Assembly Member Guillermo Linares.

"Every month that goes by without President Obama's executive actions is another month that families can be ripped apart," said Assembly Member Francisco Moya. "For those of us who deal with the fallout from our nation's flawed immigration policies on a daily basis, we know how critical the President's executive actions truly are. Keeping families together is not only the right thing to do; it's also in our nation's best interest."

"Mayor de Blasio is taking the right step filing today's court brief," said Assembly Member Felix Ortiz. "Without action from the Congress and State Legislature, we must support President Obama's efforts to protect workers and their families from deportation. While we keep the fight alive in Albany for the Dream Act, driver licenses and state-issued identification cards for non-citizens and better wages for all workers, today's action by our Mayor and by so many others across the nation is a positive step to make life better for millions. We can't wait any longer.”

“We need comprehensive immigration reform immediately,” said Assembly Member Robert Rodriguez. “President Obama’s Executive action is a huge step towards creating fair policies that help our growing immigrant communities of New York City thrive, any hindrance to its enactment harms us irreparably.”

“It is clear that our immigration system is broken and comprehensive reform is needed to provide long-term relief for the families who have contributed to the growth and prosperity of our nation,” said Assembly Member Nily Rozic. “Filing this brief is reflective of New York City's commitment to advancing immigrants' rights and I commend the Mayor for his continued advocacy and leadership on this urgent issue.

“With an estimated 100,000 undocumented immigrants in New York City who would benefit greatly from President Obama’s executive action this brief sends a strong message on the importance of implementing these reforms,” said Assembly Member Luis Sepúlveda. “New York has long been at the forefront of immigration reform. Mayor de Blasio has proven his commitment to immigrants throughout his first year in office and continues to through actions like this. I commend the Mayor and the many other cities and counties for supporting these initiatives, as implementing each one of them will be for the national public interest.”

“Opportunity for families in America to obtain basic rights and a better quality of life should not be dictated by political games. The partisan stalling of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action is sophomoric, and the District Court's preliminary objection undoubtedly has a deleterious effect on our national economy. New York City is, and always has been a city of immigrants, and we have this community to thank for the strength we enjoy as a City and a Nation . I am proud of New York City's participation in the amicus brief filed in Texas vs. United States, and am hopeful that the demand from such a robust list of diverse urban areas will bring us closer to real reform which has been long overdue,” said Assembly Member Keith Wright.

“I commend Mayor de Blasio in joining the effort to defend the President’s Administrative Relief that offers potential relief to millions of immigrants with strong ties to our nation, and who already work hard and contribute to make this a better country. While the Court stalls, and Congress fails to enact meaningful immigration reform, New York City will continue to protect the rights of immigrants and ensure that their contributions to our City are recognized—and celebrated. Our City continues to offer affirming spaces for immigrant populations, and I am hopeful that this action from our Mayor—and from his colleagues from around the country—will provide some context about the urgent need for the implementation of the President’s programs,” said Council Member Carlos Menchaca, Chair of the Committee on Immigration.

“I support the new friend-of-the-court brief urging immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. Immigrants are in important part of the fabric of our society and economy and granting administrative relief to those immigrants in need is an act of social responsibility,” said Council Member Inez Barron.

“I applaud New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio for joining Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti in filing a friend-of-the-court brief calling for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration. As an elected official representing an area with a significant immigrant population, I join with others across the country in urging the courts to move forward on providing deportation relief. The President’s immigration policies provide a just, sensible solution for millions of immigrants who live in the U.S. and contribute to our nation’s society in myriad ways. From an economic perspective, there is no question that New York stands to benefit from implementation of these policies, as significant tax revenues would be generated by the granting of temporary work permits to our City’s population of 100,000 immigrants,” said Council Member Fernando Cabrera.

“President Obama’s executive action on immigration will have a profoundly positive impact on thousands of families in our city, and it must be implemented immediately,” said Council Member Margaret Chin. “I strongly support today’s legal action in support of the President’s reforms, and I thank Mayor de Blasio for his continued leadership on this fundamentally important issue.”

“New York City is, was, and always will be a leader in the immigrant rights movement. We stand united in support of President Obama’s Executive Order,” said Council Member Andrew Cohen.

“We have waited for federal immigration reform for too long,” said Council Member Costa Constantinides. “The current federal laws are broken and lead to families being broken up or to unwarranted detention. President Obama’s executive order will take significant steps to help ameliorate these concerns. We must ensure due process and respect for all. I stand with Mayor De Blasio, Mayor Garcetti, and with 70 other cities across the nation that support the President’s order.”

“The stand the District Court Judge has taken against immigration reform is harming the future of our country, our immigrants,” said Council Member Daniel Dromm. “I am glad Mayor de Blasio has signed on to an amicus brief to push back against the court’s anti-immigrant actions. In New York City we support our immigrants not hold them back by putting obstacles to citizenship in their way.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio and the Mayors of more than 70 cities across the country for making it clear that they are ready, willing, and able to implement the reforms proposed by President Obama’s executive action. As the son of immigrants, I know firsthand the difficulties faced by those who have come to the United States seeking a better life for themselves and their families. Our immigration system is broken and full implementation of President Obama’s executive action is necessary in order to ensure more families are not harmed by failed policies,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal.

“President Obama’s executive action would be a lifeline to many families in our City who only want to work hard and provide more than they had for their children,” said Council Member Julissa Ferreras. “The continued delay of immigration reform only hurts our cities by separating families as well as denying our local governments millions of dollars in tax revenue. I commend Mayor de Blasio, Mayor Garcetti and the chief executives of over 70 American cities for championing this issue in our courts and call on Congress to finally do the right thing and recognize that immigration reform makes sense for all.”

“For too long, cities have been trying to navigate a federal immigration policy that is in dire need of reform. The President's executive actions were an important first step toward making sense of those immigration policies. Delaying their implementation creates very real problems for the cities that are on the front lines of the immigration debate,” said Council Member Dan Garodnick.

“By delaying the implementation of immigration reform, the court is making a decision that hurts state and local economies and needlessly diverts law enforcement attention,” said Council Member Vanessa Gibson. “Spending tax dollars to prosecute otherwise law abiding residents who want to work here, raise families here, and spend money here is a policy that has never made sense and I urge the court to recognize the considerable good immigration reform will bring to our communities. I am proud to stand with legislators within New York and around the country in support of President Obama’s actions and I look forward to a favorable decision that will uphold the ordered relief of nearly 4 million undocumented adults and children.”

“Today, New York City stands with over 70 American municipalities in support of President Obama’s recent executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Corey Johnson. “If implemented, the plan would grant much needed administrative relief and protection from deportation to over 4 million undocumented individuals. Our country and New York City were built by immigrants and their families. Barring immigrants from fully participating in American civic and economic life is contrary to our values. It’s time to make a change.”

“We are a nation of immigrants, including my grandparents who came here to escape antisemitism, and the grandparents of so many. We must continue to accept all those 'yearning to breathe free',” said Council Member Ben Kallos. “The state invests resources in every person the second they set foot in our soil. By welcoming people with open arms, we guarantee a return on that investment. I applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for urging the immediate implementation of President Obama's immigration reforms.”

“President Obama has signed an Executive Order and it’s shameful and unheard of for the District Court judge to block the executive action,” said Council Member Andy King, Co-Chair of the Black, Latino & Asian Caucus. “New York is and has always been a city of immigrants and President Obama’s vision allows for immediate reform in our communities. I stand with the Mayor and the President and all Americans across the nation committed to justice and our voices will be heard.”

"I see every day the positive impact immigrants have on our communities, as a representative of one of the most diverse areas in the country," said Council Member Rory Lancman. "Immigrants start businesses, pay taxes and raise their children here. Unfortunately, current US immigration policies leave far too many of our neighbors afraid that they will be deported from the country that has been their home for years. Mayor de Blasio's brief, joined by so many other cities, sends a clear message to the Court that cities support the President's action and want our immigrants to be able to come out of the shadows."

“New York City can’t wait any longer for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Steve Levin. “Thank you to Mayor de Blasio and cities and counties around the United States who are taking a stand for smart and needed immigration reforms.”

“Undocumented immigrants and their families have waited far too long for substantive and comprehensive immigration reform. Not only do we need these reforms to be effectuated, we also need more policies that will help bring relief to millions of immigrants, help keep their families together, while strengthening our economy. I’m proud to stand with Mayor de Blasio, my colleagues in City Council, and the cities and counties across the country, who are fighting for the rights of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Annabel Palma.

“I’d like to thank Mayor de Blasio for taking leadership on this important issue. Implementation of President Obama’s executive order would have a major positive impact on the lives of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso.

“I am proud to stand with Mayor De Blasio and 70 other municipalities throughout the nation in full support of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Donovan Richards. “The history of the United States is a history of immigrants. Extending temporary relief from deportation for residents that contribute millions of dollars to our domestic economy is common sense.

“President Obama’s actions will bring 5 million immigrants out of the shadows. For years these families have lived with the constant anxiety and fear of deportation. But no longer. Now undocumented immigrants can apply to receive services that they’ve long deserved. By receiving social security cards and work permits so many will be able to legally work towards the American Dream they came to pursue,” said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez. “However, some among us want to push these families back into the shadows. Today we, the cities that drive our country’s economy forward, stand united in support of the President’s actions.”

“The temporary work permits granted by President Barack Obama’s executive action are essential to the daily functions of New York City and cities nationwide. We are a nation of immigrants, and delaying implementation of this program is, frankly, un-American. I stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti and the 72 cities and counties throughout the US (list in formation), in urging immediate implementation of this executive action,” said Council Member Helen Rosenthal.

“Immigrants make critical contributions our local economies and civic infrastructure, but cannot continue doing so if they are living in the shadows. The growing list of municipalities and counties signed onto the brief further underscores the importance and urgency of administrative relief for millions of undocumented children and adults. The Mayor has been a tireless champion of New York’s immigrant communities and I commend him for spearheading this effort,” said Council Member Richie Torres.

“I support the immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive order,” said Council Member Mark Weprin. “Immigrants have always played a vital role in shaping our nation’s economy and continue to contribute every day to the vitality of New York City.”

“Delaying President Obama’s executive orders to implement real immigration reform only puts New York City’s efforts to provide countless families economic opportunity they need on hold,” said New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. “Now is the time to act and our City is prepared to. I support Mayor de Blasio and numerous other cities throughout our nation’s efforts to begin implementing much-needed reforms for the millions of families who are looking to us for assistance to become included and engaged citizens of New York City and our great nation.”

“The time for a rational immigration policy has long been overdue. Where Congress has failed to act in the collective interest of the American people, President Obama has sought to step into the breach. The use of executive authority on this issue is with precedent, and this unfortunate maneuver by the State of Texas to stymie him ignores the greater economic, security, and familial needs of all our citizens. Mayor de Blasio recognizes these plain truths, and I support the amicus brief he and so many other municipalities, nationwide, have filed in support of the President’s action,” said Council Member Ruben Wills.

“In cities across the country, hard-working men and women are waiting for President Obama’s Executive Action to go into effect so they can live and work without fear of deportation and separation from their families,” said Hector Figueroa, President of 32BJ SEIU. “In Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington DC and many more cities up and down the East Coast, 32BJ members have long been part of the fight for immigration reform and we will continue to take action in Congress and on the streets until these reforms are implemented. It is the humane and just thing to do for immigrants and the right path forward for our country.”

“Immigrants are essential to local economies and industries throughout our country, especially the hospitality industry. Today’s actions show that local governments recognize that delaying the President’s Executive Action not only harms millions of working families but also jeopardizes recovering local economies,” said Peter Ward, President of the Hotel Trades Council.

“Workers and their families desperately need the immediate implementation of President Obama’s Executive Action for immigration reform. We commend these cities and their elected officials for submitting an amicus brief in support of President Obama’s Executive Action, the most far reaching immigration reform initiative in decades. Cities make up the backbone of the U.S. economy, much of it based on the work of immigrants. Millions of hard working immigrant families stand to benefit from this action, and they deserve this administrative relief,” said Stuart Appelbaum, President of Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

“The AFL-CIO has made supporting real immigration reform one of our top priorities because we understand the importance of ensuring that all workers receive the wages and benefits to which they are entitled,” said Vincent Alvarez, President of the New York City Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO. “By allowing undocumented workers to come out of the shadows, we will be working to eradicate the tools that allow unscrupulous employers to drive down wages, and rob workers of fair pay, benefits, and workplace rights. The implementation of President Obama’s immigration recommendations is already long overdue. Let’s make this happen for New York City’s workers.”

“Immigrants, including many who would be eligible for work permits under President Obama’s Executive Action, contribute every day to the vibrancy and health of our cities. The Executive Action will keep families together, boost our economy and focus law enforcement resources. We applaud Mayor de Blasio’s advocacy on behalf of these hard-working New Yorkers and join him in calling for immediate implementation of the action,” said Maria Castaneda, Secretary-Treasurer of 1199 SEIU.

"We applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for leading the charge to demand immediate implementation of immigration relief to keep families together across the United States. As our communities demand action, scores of cities from coast to coast are stepping up and saying with one voice that the Court of Appeals must allow President Obama's administrative actions, which are grounded in strong legal precedent, to move forward," said Javier H. Valdés, co-Executive Director of Make the Road New York.

"Very much like every major city in America, New York City is a strong and vibrant city thanks to our immigrant population," said Jonathan Westin, Executive Director of New York Communities for Change. "Our cities are better when our immigrant brothers and sisters can thrive. Therefore, we urge the immediate implementation of the President's Immigration Executive Action. Our cities have too much to lose if action is not taken now."

"We are proud that our city's Mayor Bill de Blasio is setting a precedent by taking legal action and making it known that the delays to President Obama's executive actions are unacceptable," said Steven Choi, executive director of the New York Immigration Coalition. "The NYIC and our membership, along with our city and state partners including the Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs, continue our efforts to prepare the 100,000 plus New Yorkers who can benefit from these programs. We stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the call for immediate implementation of immigration relief."

"At a time when anti-immigrant voices are using myths about immigrants and the effects of immigration to derail a constructive national policy debate, few actions are more important than local governments uniting to fight for immediate relief and implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Actions. In outlining the economic and fiscal benefits of deferred action policies, New York City is a key stakeholder. Mayor Bill de Blasio has underscored once again our city's courage in the fight for justice and we stand in solidarity to see administrative relief programs take full-effect immediately," said Lucia Gomez, Executive Director of La Fuente.

"The Asian American Federation fully supports Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti's appeal to implement President Obama's executive action without any further delay. Immigrants and their families, who have made valuable contributions to the U.S., deserve the temporary relief and protection that this immigration reform provides. We stand with our community to ensure that the President's executive action sees the light of day," said Jo-Ann Yoo, Executive Director of the Asian American Federation.

"Millions of lives are on hold as President Obama's legal Executive Action is being dragged through the courts. Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights commends Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for supporting legal action urging immediate implementation of Executive Action," said Angela Fernandez, Executive Director of Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights.

"Immigration reform is vital for New York's African immigrant communities," said Amaha Kassa, Executive Director of African Communities Together. "All of our members have heard about President Obama's executive actions, many are qualified and ready to apply for relief, and none of them can understand why progress has been put on hold. This filing sends an important message that New York City has immigrants' backs, even if some states have chosen to send the opposite message."

“President Obama’s November, 2014 Deferred Action programs – both the DACA extension and DAPA – should be implemented now. With each passing day, families continue to be torn apart, leaving behind American children to fend for themselves. Hard-working immigrant parents live in fear and are preyed upon, and cannot become full members of our society. As the child of Mexican immigrant parents whose life dramatically changed after they received legal status via IRCA, the benefits of immigration relief to are society are clear to me. My parents became homeowners and were able to support three college graduates. I applaud Mayors De Blasio and Garcetti, along with the 70 cities and counties who have signed on, for their leadership and for lending their voice to challenge the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, said Aracelis Lucero, Executive Director of Masa, Inc.

“Chicago has always been a city of immigrants, and for us to stay true to our history and our values, we must ensure that immigrants can fully participate in all aspects of our economic and cultural life,” said Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel. “We are proud to join numerous cities in filing this amicus brief to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. They will help keep families together, increase safety in our communities, and maximize the contributions that immigrants make every day in every part of our city.”

“Cities are strongly affected by immigration. The old, dysfunctional immigration policies hurt our economies, our neighborhoods, our businesses and our residents. The President is attempting to interject common sense and humanity. We are grateful for his efforts and we stand with him,” said Portland Mayor Charlie Hales.

“I am signing onto this brief because as a nation of immigrants, I believe ensuring access to a fair and legal process for people to come to this country and pursue their dreams reflects our highest values,” said Chapel Hill Mayor Mark Kleinschmidt.

“We must do better to honor our country's proud immigration tradition. Too many immigrants live in fear, afraid to become members of our society, while Congress fails to take any meaningful action to fix a broken immigration system. Their inaction has real consequences for our communities, which is why I fully support President Obama's leadership and common sense executive actions. I thank Mayor de Blasio for initiating this brief and building this important coalition of leaders,” said Hoboken Mayor Dawn Zimmer.

MAYORS DE BLASIO AND GARCETTI ANNOUNCE LEGAL ACTION IN SUPPORT OF IMMIGRATION REFORMS

More Than 70 Cities & Counties Sign Texas vs. United States Appeal Urging Immediate Implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action

NEW YORK—New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti announced today that 73 cities and counties had filed a new friend-of-the-court brief in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, urging immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration.

“Continuing to delay implementation of the President’s executive action on immigration hurts our economy and puts families at risk,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “Cities are where immigrants live, and cities are where the President’s executive action will be successfully implemented. Our cities are united, and we will fight for the immigration reform this nation needs and deserves – whether in the courtroom, in Congress, or in our communities. Make no mistake about it: our voices will be heard.”

“Our cities cannot afford delays to immigration reforms that will strengthen our economy and help families,” said Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti. “This isn’t a blue or red issue, but a human and economic one.”

The brief demonstrates robust support from the country’s largest cities – as well as suburbs and rural areas – for the President’s reforms, which will temporarily relieve from deportation thousands of immigrants who have longstanding ties to the U.S.

The cities and counties – representing 43 million people across the country – argue that the district court judge who temporarily blocked implementation of the programs failed to consider the significant harm to America’s local governments caused by this delay.

According to an analysis by the City, each month that the implementation of these programs is delayed, New York City and New York State will lose at least $1.5 million in additional state and local tax revenue that would be generated if 100,000 immigrants in New York City were able to access temporary work permits through executive action.

“New York’s immigrants are vital to our economy and we must do all we can to help them grow and thrive. Mayor de Blasio is correct – instead of putting up barriers, we should be looking at ways to help immigrants climb the ladder of economic opportunity and welcome them into our communities. The New York State Assembly Majority strongly supports President Obama’s executive action on immigration, and further delay by those who would derail this important initiative is unacceptable,” said New York State Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie.

“Each day we wait to implement President Obama’s bold immigration reforms, millions of hard-working families remain in legal limbo. Immigrant communities built New York City, and they are the heart and soul of urban centers across our country,” said Public Advocate Letitia James. “As Congress and federal courts stall meaningful progress on immigration, New York City will continue to lead the nation.”

As part of Cities United for Immigration Action, Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti led the effort to organize more than 70 cities and counties, the National League of Cities, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors in arguing that the national public interest is served clearly and overwhelmingly by implementing immigration relief by executive action without delay. Today’s brief more than doubles the number of local governments that had previously voiced opposition to the lawsuit brought by states seeking to block President Obama’s immigration reform efforts.

The brief also argues that the District Court judge’s decision to block executive action with a preliminary injunction is bad for the economy, hurts families, threatens law enforcement priorities, and will stall desperately needed changes to the federal government’s immigration policies.

The de Blasio Administration has a proven track record of spearheading initiatives that integrate immigrants into the civic and economic life of New York City. From the IDNYC municipal identification program to increasing access to federal immigration benefits, New York City is committed to championing pro-immigrant policies that promote equity and create opportunity for all residents.

This collective action to offer the Court the crucial perspective of American cities and counties is an outcome of the organizing efforts of the Cities United for Immigration Action coalition. By filing this brief, America’s mayors and county leaders are making a strong statement in support of the President’s plan to grant administrative relief to over four million undocumented children and adults.

Numerous cities and counties signed on to today’s brief are located in states that brought the lawsuit against the Obama administration or have otherwise indicated support for the lawsuit, including five cities in Texas, six localities in New Jersey, two counties in Arizona, and three municipalities in Wisconsin. Cities and counties signed on to the brief (in formation) include the following local governments:

U.S. Conference of Mayors

“Brooklyn is what America looks like, with nearly 40 percent of our residents being foreign-born, and when it comes to embracing our immigrant population, it is what America ought to be. President Obama's executive order on immigration is the most significant and meaningful step our nation has taken toward addressing this long-standing crisis and the millions of families who have been stuck in the shadows of our society, including hundreds of thousands right here in New York City. Our diversity is our greatest strength, and I join my fellow urban leaders from coast to coast in making this call to support the President's reforms,” said Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams.

“Legally and morally, the president's executive action on immigration was both within his power and the right thing to do,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer. “Blocking its implementation will do real harm to cities. That’s why joining with other cities and counties across the country urging its implementation is the right thing as well.”

“We stand with New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio’s and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti’s decision to file a ‘friend-of-the-court’ brief in support of President Barack Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Bronx Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. “The President’s executive action currently being blocked in the courts hurts The Bronx and New York City, with the borough losing out on potential local tax revenues that would be generated by these hard-working immigrants who just want to come out the shadows and positively contribute to our country. We are the land of opportunity, built on the ideal that we are melting pot that promotes equality for all and we must continue to strive for those ideals that make our country great.”

“President Obama's executive actions were bold and decisive steps toward fixing America's broken immigration system. The Statue of Liberty stands tall in our City, reminding us that America was built by generations of immigrants who came to its shores in search of a better life and a chance to make our country greater,” said U.S. Representative Charles Rangel. “I am proud to see that Mayor de Blasio is committed to keeping that promise alive for years to come.”

“The delay in the implementation of DAPA and expanded DACA threatens millions of American families with deportation, as well as the many communities, such as New York City, of which immigrants are an integral part,” said U.S. Representative Yvette Clarke. “No serious doubt exists that President Obama had the authority to establish DAPA and DACA. I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and the many community leaders across this nation who have raised their voices on behalf of millions of families who want to pursue the American Dream.”

“In the absence of legislative action by House Republicans, President Obama took decisive action on immigration because he knows that there are real lives at stake in our current broken system,” said U.S. Representative Joe Crowley. “It is deeply troubling that a Texas judge known to be hostile to immigrants is delaying the President’s executive measures, especially given the legal precedents set by previous administrations. Halting action that will help keep American families together strikes at the heart of what our country ought to be about, and I thank Mayors de Blasio, Garcetti, and many others for taking a stand and showing the widespread support for the President’s action. I’m confident the Department of Justice will succeed in its appeal of this decision and that we will move forward with this much-needed action that will make such a difference in New York City and elsewhere.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio for working with cities across the nation to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration,” said U.S. Representative Carolyn Maloney. “With over 12 million undocumented immigrants living in our country, comprehensive immigration reform is long overdue. Unfortunately, Congress has failed to act. That is why I strongly support President Obama’s executive actions, which will help keep families together, boost our economy and generate new tax revenue. These are common sense steps that mimic similar actions by Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush, and it’s long past time that President Obama’s reforms are implemented.”

“We can’t continue to delay implementing President Obama’s executive action on immigration. With this friend-of-the-court brief, New York City is joined by more than 70 cities nationwide in voicing its strong support for moving ahead with providing administrative deportation relief to more than 4 million immigrants with strong ties to the U.S. As the brief argues, the District Court’s holdup only hurts our economy, harmless immigrant families, and the federal government’s ability to address our broken immigration system. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for once again putting New York City at the forefront of efforts to help the immigrant community, in New York City, and nationwide,” said U.S. Representative José Serrano, Sr.

“The President’s immigration reforms make badly needed changes to a broken system and will benefit thousands of our neighbors,” stated U.S. Representative Nydia Velázquez. “It is critical for New York City and our nation as a whole that these reforms be implemented without delay.”

“Every day we delay fixing our broken immigration system is a missed opportunity,” said U.S. Representative Kathleen Rice. “There’s no question that we need to keep fighting for comprehensive immigration reform at the federal level, but our local communities can’t afford to wait when there’s no sign that this Congress is willing to pass real legislative solutions. Thousands of hard-working Long Island families are ready to come out of the shadows, stop living in fear and start participating fully in our local economies, and there’s no reason to deny them that opportunity any longer. Last week I joined several fellow Members of Congress in signing an amicus brief affirming our support for the government’s appeal, and the brief filed today by Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti shows that local and federal leaders across the country are united in our commitment to implementing the President’s executive actions.”

“Immigrants move New York’s economy forward,” said State Senator Leroy Comrie. “I represent a district where over a third of its population is foreign-born, and where many more are the children and grandchildren of the rich immigrant legacy this city – and this nation – is so proud of. Immigrants are innovators, business owners and job creators: they augment this City's supply of capital and ideas to diversify its narrative and keep it nationally and globally competitive. Not only is it in our best interest to immediately implement the President's platform for immigration reform, but it is the socially and morally responsible thing to do.”

“Every day the President's executive actions on immigration are blocked, is another day hundreds of thousands of young adults and parents, trying to provide for their families, are unable to work. This is not good for anyone, and the leaders of our cities and counties across the country know this first hand. I thank them for standing with undocumented immigrants and working to bring them out of the shadows,” said State Senator Adriano Espaillat, Chair of the State Senate Puerto Rican/Latino Caucus.

“This friend-of-the-court brief stands with immigrants in our communities against needless delay in the urgently needed Deferred Action programs. President Obama has charted a course for a more compassionate immigration system – a system that treats our friends and neighbors with the dignity they deserve. I commend this action by Mayor de Blasio and dozens of mayors across the United States in keeping with the vision President Obama outlined. I join these mayors and leaders across the country in reaffirming our commitment to America’s longstanding tradition of welcoming immigrants to our communities,” said State Senator Jesse Hamilton.

“It is time to stop intolerant views toward our immigrants. I am in full support of this brief, which is intended to safeguard and implement President Obama’s executive actions on immigration that are intended to keep families together,” said State Senator Jose Peralta. “We, as immigrants, live in all cities across our nation, and blocking the implementation of the President’s policies, hurts not just families fighting for the American Dream, but also our ongoing efforts to enrich and repair our economy.”

“I am very proud that New York City is leading the way on a collective amicus brief in the Texas vs. United States case which calls for swift and sweeping implementation of President Obama’s executive actions concerning rational immigration policy. The lives of millions of people hang in the balance, so many of them New Yorkers who share the same hopes, dreams and aspirations that each successive wave of immigrants harbored generations ago. Each of them found a true home here and it is time for our City and Country to open our arms and our hearts in the name of fundamental human rights,” said State Senator Bill Perkins.

“The implementation of President Obama's executive action on immigration is imperative to ensuring we support the countless immigrants that contribute to the social and economic life of our country,” said State Senator Gustavo Rivera. “We are a country of immigrants, and this executive action will help us strengthen and protect our diverse population, while honoring our values as Americans. I commend and thank Mayor de Blasio for having New York join cities and counties across our country in taking legal action to support an initial step towards immigration reform.”

“Here in a city and state where we pride ourselves on diversity, we can only benefit from the implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said State Senator James Sanders Jr. “It will allow for a reprieve from deportation while giving the undocumented a chance to work, providing a much needed boost to the economy. Just this past week, the state budget failed to include the DREAM Act, which would have given thousands of vibrant young people a chance at success by allowing them to continue their education and creating a pathway to citizenship. Let's not miss another opportunity to help build a stronger New York."

"Unjust deportations have continued to tear apart our families, our schools and our communities. We must act swiftly in implementing President Obama's immigration executive action in order to protect these important populations. Immigrants are the backbone of our communities, and I thank Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for creating a united front to demonstrate our support for the swift implementation of the President's measures," said State Senator José Serrano.

"The delay to President Obama's executive action on immigration is intolerable and comes with a real cost to real people," said Assembly Member Rodneyse Bichotte. "Every day, families of aspiring Americans are destroyed by a system badly in need of reform and the President's executive action offers needed help. I join with Mayor de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the Texas v. United States lawsuit to urge immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration. As a daughter of Haitian immigrants, and as a proud citizen of the United States and elected official of New York, I have a duty to act on behalf of the social justice of our people—as well as a fiduciary responsibility to ensure our economies gain the benefits immigration brings."

"As a child of Jamaican immigrants, it is personal for me that we stand up for Immigration justice and demand immediate action. The implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration is a moral, social, and economic necessity. The delays are inexcusable, and we must move forward. In past years, immigrants in NYC have accounted for more than $200 billion in economic activity to help revitalize vibrant neighborhoods including the work of Latino, Caribbean and African entrepreneurs in the South Bronx. Through hard work and tireless dedication, Immigrants embody the entrepreneurial spirit that makes our country so beautiful, and the best country in the world," said Assembly Member Michael Blake. "Immigrants are our neighbors, our friends, and our family, and I proudly stand with Mayor Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in calling for our judicial system to do the right thing, the humane thing, the compassionate thing, and give our communities the life they deserve."

"I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and all the other mayors for supporting immigration reforms. Implementation of the President's Immigration Executive action will provide much needed relief to immigrant families suffering under our broken system and is a crucial first step on the road to treating our immigrants with the fairness and respect they deserve," said Assembly Member Guillermo Linares.

"Every month that goes by without President Obama's executive actions is another month that families can be ripped apart," said Assembly Member Francisco Moya. "For those of us who deal with the fallout from our nation's flawed immigration policies on a daily basis, we know how critical the President's executive actions truly are. Keeping families together is not only the right thing to do; it's also in our nation's best interest."

"Mayor de Blasio is taking the right step filing today's court brief," said Assembly Member Felix Ortiz. "Without action from the Congress and State Legislature, we must support President Obama's efforts to protect workers and their families from deportation. While we keep the fight alive in Albany for the Dream Act, driver licenses and state-issued identification cards for non-citizens and better wages for all workers, today's action by our Mayor and by so many others across the nation is a positive step to make life better for millions. We can't wait any longer.”

“We need comprehensive immigration reform immediately,” said Assembly Member Robert Rodriguez. “President Obama’s Executive action is a huge step towards creating fair policies that help our growing immigrant communities of New York City thrive, any hindrance to its enactment harms us irreparably.”

“It is clear that our immigration system is broken and comprehensive reform is needed to provide long-term relief for the families who have contributed to the growth and prosperity of our nation,” said Assembly Member Nily Rozic. “Filing this brief is reflective of New York City's commitment to advancing immigrants' rights and I commend the Mayor for his continued advocacy and leadership on this urgent issue.

“With an estimated 100,000 undocumented immigrants in New York City who would benefit greatly from President Obama’s executive action this brief sends a strong message on the importance of implementing these reforms,” said Assembly Member Luis Sepúlveda. “New York has long been at the forefront of immigration reform. Mayor de Blasio has proven his commitment to immigrants throughout his first year in office and continues to through actions like this. I commend the Mayor and the many other cities and counties for supporting these initiatives, as implementing each one of them will be for the national public interest.”

“Opportunity for families in America to obtain basic rights and a better quality of life should not be dictated by political games. The partisan stalling of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action is sophomoric, and the District Court's preliminary objection undoubtedly has a deleterious effect on our national economy. New York City is, and always has been a city of immigrants, and we have this community to thank for the strength we enjoy as a City and a Nation . I am proud of New York City's participation in the amicus brief filed in Texas vs. United States, and am hopeful that the demand from such a robust list of diverse urban areas will bring us closer to real reform which has been long overdue,” said Assembly Member Keith Wright.

“I commend Mayor de Blasio in joining the effort to defend the President’s Administrative Relief that offers potential relief to millions of immigrants with strong ties to our nation, and who already work hard and contribute to make this a better country. While the Court stalls, and Congress fails to enact meaningful immigration reform, New York City will continue to protect the rights of immigrants and ensure that their contributions to our City are recognized—and celebrated. Our City continues to offer affirming spaces for immigrant populations, and I am hopeful that this action from our Mayor—and from his colleagues from around the country—will provide some context about the urgent need for the implementation of the President’s programs,” said Council Member Carlos Menchaca, Chair of the Committee on Immigration.

“I support the new friend-of-the-court brief urging immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. Immigrants are in important part of the fabric of our society and economy and granting administrative relief to those immigrants in need is an act of social responsibility,” said Council Member Inez Barron.

“I applaud New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio for joining Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti in filing a friend-of-the-court brief calling for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration. As an elected official representing an area with a significant immigrant population, I join with others across the country in urging the courts to move forward on providing deportation relief. The President’s immigration policies provide a just, sensible solution for millions of immigrants who live in the U.S. and contribute to our nation’s society in myriad ways. From an economic perspective, there is no question that New York stands to benefit from implementation of these policies, as significant tax revenues would be generated by the granting of temporary work permits to our City’s population of 100,000 immigrants,” said Council Member Fernando Cabrera.

“President Obama’s executive action on immigration will have a profoundly positive impact on thousands of families in our city, and it must be implemented immediately,” said Council Member Margaret Chin. “I strongly support today’s legal action in support of the President’s reforms, and I thank Mayor de Blasio for his continued leadership on this fundamentally important issue.”

“New York City is, was, and always will be a leader in the immigrant rights movement. We stand united in support of President Obama’s Executive Order,” said Council Member Andrew Cohen.

“We have waited for federal immigration reform for too long,” said Council Member Costa Constantinides. “The current federal laws are broken and lead to families being broken up or to unwarranted detention. President Obama’s executive order will take significant steps to help ameliorate these concerns. We must ensure due process and respect for all. I stand with Mayor De Blasio, Mayor Garcetti, and with 70 other cities across the nation that support the President’s order.”

“The stand the District Court Judge has taken against immigration reform is harming the future of our country, our immigrants,” said Council Member Daniel Dromm. “I am glad Mayor de Blasio has signed on to an amicus brief to push back against the court’s anti-immigrant actions. In New York City we support our immigrants not hold them back by putting obstacles to citizenship in their way.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio and the Mayors of more than 70 cities across the country for making it clear that they are ready, willing, and able to implement the reforms proposed by President Obama’s executive action. As the son of immigrants, I know firsthand the difficulties faced by those who have come to the United States seeking a better life for themselves and their families. Our immigration system is broken and full implementation of President Obama’s executive action is necessary in order to ensure more families are not harmed by failed policies,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal.

“President Obama’s executive action would be a lifeline to many families in our City who only want to work hard and provide more than they had for their children,” said Council Member Julissa Ferreras. “The continued delay of immigration reform only hurts our cities by separating families as well as denying our local governments millions of dollars in tax revenue. I commend Mayor de Blasio, Mayor Garcetti and the chief executives of over 70 American cities for championing this issue in our courts and call on Congress to finally do the right thing and recognize that immigration reform makes sense for all.”

“For too long, cities have been trying to navigate a federal immigration policy that is in dire need of reform. The President's executive actions were an important first step toward making sense of those immigration policies. Delaying their implementation creates very real problems for the cities that are on the front lines of the immigration debate,” said Council Member Dan Garodnick.

“By delaying the implementation of immigration reform, the court is making a decision that hurts state and local economies and needlessly diverts law enforcement attention,” said Council Member Vanessa Gibson. “Spending tax dollars to prosecute otherwise law abiding residents who want to work here, raise families here, and spend money here is a policy that has never made sense and I urge the court to recognize the considerable good immigration reform will bring to our communities. I am proud to stand with legislators within New York and around the country in support of President Obama’s actions and I look forward to a favorable decision that will uphold the ordered relief of nearly 4 million undocumented adults and children.”

“Today, New York City stands with over 70 American municipalities in support of President Obama’s recent executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Corey Johnson. “If implemented, the plan would grant much needed administrative relief and protection from deportation to over 4 million undocumented individuals. Our country and New York City were built by immigrants and their families. Barring immigrants from fully participating in American civic and economic life is contrary to our values. It’s time to make a change.”

“We are a nation of immigrants, including my grandparents who came here to escape antisemitism, and the grandparents of so many. We must continue to accept all those 'yearning to breathe free',” said Council Member Ben Kallos. “The state invests resources in every person the second they set foot in our soil. By welcoming people with open arms, we guarantee a return on that investment. I applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for urging the immediate implementation of President Obama's immigration reforms.”

“President Obama has signed an Executive Order and it’s shameful and unheard of for the District Court judge to block the executive action,” said Council Member Andy King, Co-Chair of the Black, Latino & Asian Caucus. “New York is and has always been a city of immigrants and President Obama’s vision allows for immediate reform in our communities. I stand with the Mayor and the President and all Americans across the nation committed to justice and our voices will be heard.”

"I see every day the positive impact immigrants have on our communities, as a representative of one of the most diverse areas in the country," said Council Member Rory Lancman. "Immigrants start businesses, pay taxes and raise their children here. Unfortunately, current US immigration policies leave far too many of our neighbors afraid that they will be deported from the country that has been their home for years. Mayor de Blasio's brief, joined by so many other cities, sends a clear message to the Court that cities support the President's action and want our immigrants to be able to come out of the shadows."

“New York City can’t wait any longer for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Steve Levin. “Thank you to Mayor de Blasio and cities and counties around the United States who are taking a stand for smart and needed immigration reforms.”

“Undocumented immigrants and their families have waited far too long for substantive and comprehensive immigration reform. Not only do we need these reforms to be effectuated, we also need more policies that will help bring relief to millions of immigrants, help keep their families together, while strengthening our economy. I’m proud to stand with Mayor de Blasio, my colleagues in City Council, and the cities and counties across the country, who are fighting for the rights of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Annabel Palma.

“I’d like to thank Mayor de Blasio for taking leadership on this important issue. Implementation of President Obama’s executive order would have a major positive impact on the lives of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso.

“I am proud to stand with Mayor De Blasio and 70 other municipalities throughout the nation in full support of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Donovan Richards. “The history of the United States is a history of immigrants. Extending temporary relief from deportation for residents that contribute millions of dollars to our domestic economy is common sense.

“President Obama’s actions will bring 5 million immigrants out of the shadows. For years these families have lived with the constant anxiety and fear of deportation. But no longer. Now undocumented immigrants can apply to receive services that they’ve long deserved. By receiving social security cards and work permits so many will be able to legally work towards the American Dream they came to pursue,” said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez. “However, some among us want to push these families back into the shadows. Today we, the cities that drive our country’s economy forward, stand united in support of the President’s actions.”

“The temporary work permits granted by President Barack Obama’s executive action are essential to the daily functions of New York City and cities nationwide. We are a nation of immigrants, and delaying implementation of this program is, frankly, un-American. I stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti and the 72 cities and counties throughout the US (list in formation), in urging immediate implementation of this executive action,” said Council Member Helen Rosenthal.

“Immigrants make critical contributions our local economies and civic infrastructure, but cannot continue doing so if they are living in the shadows. The growing list of municipalities and counties signed onto the brief further underscores the importance and urgency of administrative relief for millions of undocumented children and adults. The Mayor has been a tireless champion of New York’s immigrant communities and I commend him for spearheading this effort,” said Council Member Richie Torres.

“I support the immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive order,” said Council Member Mark Weprin. “Immigrants have always played a vital role in shaping our nation’s economy and continue to contribute every day to the vitality of New York City.”

“Delaying President Obama’s executive orders to implement real immigration reform only puts New York City’s efforts to provide countless families economic opportunity they need on hold,” said New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. “Now is the time to act and our City is prepared to. I support Mayor de Blasio and numerous other cities throughout our nation’s efforts to begin implementing much-needed reforms for the millions of families who are looking to us for assistance to become included and engaged citizens of New York City and our great nation.”

“The time for a rational immigration policy has long been overdue. Where Congress has failed to act in the collective interest of the American people, President Obama has sought to step into the breach. The use of executive authority on this issue is with precedent, and this unfortunate maneuver by the State of Texas to stymie him ignores the greater economic, security, and familial needs of all our citizens. Mayor de Blasio recognizes these plain truths, and I support the amicus brief he and so many other municipalities, nationwide, have filed in support of the President’s action,” said Council Member Ruben Wills.

“In cities across the country, hard-working men and women are waiting for President Obama’s Executive Action to go into effect so they can live and work without fear of deportation and separation from their families,” said Hector Figueroa, President of 32BJ SEIU. “In Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington DC and many more cities up and down the East Coast, 32BJ members have long been part of the fight for immigration reform and we will continue to take action in Congress and on the streets until these reforms are implemented. It is the humane and just thing to do for immigrants and the right path forward for our country.”

“Immigrants are essential to local economies and industries throughout our country, especially the hospitality industry. Today’s actions show that local governments recognize that delaying the President’s Executive Action not only harms millions of working families but also jeopardizes recovering local economies,” said Peter Ward, President of the Hotel Trades Council.

“Workers and their families desperately need the immediate implementation of President Obama’s Executive Action for immigration reform. We commend these cities and their elected officials for submitting an amicus brief in support of President Obama’s Executive Action, the most far reaching immigration reform initiative in decades. Cities make up the backbone of the U.S. economy, much of it based on the work of immigrants. Millions of hard working immigrant families stand to benefit from this action, and they deserve this administrative relief,” said Stuart Appelbaum, President of Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

“The AFL-CIO has made supporting real immigration reform one of our top priorities because we understand the importance of ensuring that all workers receive the wages and benefits to which they are entitled,” said Vincent Alvarez, President of the New York City Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO. “By allowing undocumented workers to come out of the shadows, we will be working to eradicate the tools that allow unscrupulous employers to drive down wages, and rob workers of fair pay, benefits, and workplace rights. The implementation of President Obama’s immigration recommendations is already long overdue. Let’s make this happen for New York City’s workers.”

“Immigrants, including many who would be eligible for work permits under President Obama’s Executive Action, contribute every day to the vibrancy and health of our cities. The Executive Action will keep families together, boost our economy and focus law enforcement resources. We applaud Mayor de Blasio’s advocacy on behalf of these hard-working New Yorkers and join him in calling for immediate implementation of the action,” said Maria Castaneda, Secretary-Treasurer of 1199 SEIU.

"We applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for leading the charge to demand immediate implementation of immigration relief to keep families together across the United States. As our communities demand action, scores of cities from coast to coast are stepping up and saying with one voice that the Court of Appeals must allow President Obama's administrative actions, which are grounded in strong legal precedent, to move forward," said Javier H. Valdés, co-Executive Director of Make the Road New York.

"Very much like every major city in America, New York City is a strong and vibrant city thanks to our immigrant population," said Jonathan Westin, Executive Director of New York Communities for Change. "Our cities are better when our immigrant brothers and sisters can thrive. Therefore, we urge the immediate implementation of the President's Immigration Executive Action. Our cities have too much to lose if action is not taken now."

"We are proud that our city's Mayor Bill de Blasio is setting a precedent by taking legal action and making it known that the delays to President Obama's executive actions are unacceptable," said Steven Choi, executive director of the New York Immigration Coalition. "The NYIC and our membership, along with our city and state partners including the Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs, continue our efforts to prepare the 100,000 plus New Yorkers who can benefit from these programs. We stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the call for immediate implementation of immigration relief."

"At a time when anti-immigrant voices are using myths about immigrants and the effects of immigration to derail a constructive national policy debate, few actions are more important than local governments uniting to fight for immediate relief and implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Actions. In outlining the economic and fiscal benefits of deferred action policies, New York City is a key stakeholder. Mayor Bill de Blasio has underscored once again our city's courage in the fight for justice and we stand in solidarity to see administrative relief programs take full-effect immediately," said Lucia Gomez, Executive Director of La Fuente.

"The Asian American Federation fully supports Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti's appeal to implement President Obama's executive action without any further delay. Immigrants and their families, who have made valuable contributions to the U.S., deserve the temporary relief and protection that this immigration reform provides. We stand with our community to ensure that the President's executive action sees the light of day," said Jo-Ann Yoo, Executive Director of the Asian American Federation.

"Millions of lives are on hold as President Obama's legal Executive Action is being dragged through the courts. Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights commends Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for supporting legal action urging immediate implementation of Executive Action," said Angela Fernandez, Executive Director of Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights.

"Immigration reform is vital for New York's African immigrant communities," said Amaha Kassa, Executive Director of African Communities Together. "All of our members have heard about President Obama's executive actions, many are qualified and ready to apply for relief, and none of them can understand why progress has been put on hold. This filing sends an important message that New York City has immigrants' backs, even if some states have chosen to send the opposite message."

“President Obama’s November, 2014 Deferred Action programs – both the DACA extension and DAPA – should be implemented now. With each passing day, families continue to be torn apart, leaving behind American children to fend for themselves. Hard-working immigrant parents live in fear and are preyed upon, and cannot become full members of our society. As the child of Mexican immigrant parents whose life dramatically changed after they received legal status via IRCA, the benefits of immigration relief to are society are clear to me. My parents became homeowners and were able to support three college graduates. I applaud Mayors De Blasio and Garcetti, along with the 70 cities and counties who have signed on, for their leadership and for lending their voice to challenge the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, said Aracelis Lucero, Executive Director of Masa, Inc.

“Chicago has always been a city of immigrants, and for us to stay true to our history and our values, we must ensure that immigrants can fully participate in all aspects of our economic and cultural life,” said Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel. “We are proud to join numerous cities in filing this amicus brief to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. They will help keep families together, increase safety in our communities, and maximize the contributions that immigrants make every day in every part of our city.”

“Cities are strongly affected by immigration. The old, dysfunctional immigration policies hurt our economies, our neighborhoods, our businesses and our residents. The President is attempting to interject common sense and humanity. We are grateful for his efforts and we stand with him,” said Portland Mayor Charlie Hales.

“I am signing onto this brief because as a nation of immigrants, I believe ensuring access to a fair and legal process for people to come to this country and pursue their dreams reflects our highest values,” said Chapel Hill Mayor Mark Kleinschmidt.

“We must do better to honor our country's proud immigration tradition. Too many immigrants live in fear, afraid to become members of our society, while Congress fails to take any meaningful action to fix a broken immigration system. Their inaction has real consequences for our communities, which is why I fully support President Obama's leadership and common sense executive actions. I thank Mayor de Blasio for initiating this brief and building this important coalition of leaders,” said Hoboken Mayor Dawn Zimmer.

MAYORS DE BLASIO AND GARCETTI ANNOUNCE LEGAL ACTION IN SUPPORT OF IMMIGRATION REFORMS

More Than 70 Cities & Counties Sign Texas vs. United States Appeal Urging Immediate Implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action

NEW YORK—New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti announced today that 73 cities and counties had filed a new friend-of-the-court brief in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, urging immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration.

“Continuing to delay implementation of the President’s executive action on immigration hurts our economy and puts families at risk,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “Cities are where immigrants live, and cities are where the President’s executive action will be successfully implemented. Our cities are united, and we will fight for the immigration reform this nation needs and deserves – whether in the courtroom, in Congress, or in our communities. Make no mistake about it: our voices will be heard.”

“Our cities cannot afford delays to immigration reforms that will strengthen our economy and help families,” said Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti. “This isn’t a blue or red issue, but a human and economic one.”

The brief demonstrates robust support from the country’s largest cities – as well as suburbs and rural areas – for the President’s reforms, which will temporarily relieve from deportation thousands of immigrants who have longstanding ties to the U.S.

The cities and counties – representing 43 million people across the country – argue that the district court judge who temporarily blocked implementation of the programs failed to consider the significant harm to America’s local governments caused by this delay.

According to an analysis by the City, each month that the implementation of these programs is delayed, New York City and New York State will lose at least $1.5 million in additional state and local tax revenue that would be generated if 100,000 immigrants in New York City were able to access temporary work permits through executive action.

“New York’s immigrants are vital to our economy and we must do all we can to help them grow and thrive. Mayor de Blasio is correct – instead of putting up barriers, we should be looking at ways to help immigrants climb the ladder of economic opportunity and welcome them into our communities. The New York State Assembly Majority strongly supports President Obama’s executive action on immigration, and further delay by those who would derail this important initiative is unacceptable,” said New York State Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie.

“Each day we wait to implement President Obama’s bold immigration reforms, millions of hard-working families remain in legal limbo. Immigrant communities built New York City, and they are the heart and soul of urban centers across our country,” said Public Advocate Letitia James. “As Congress and federal courts stall meaningful progress on immigration, New York City will continue to lead the nation.”

As part of Cities United for Immigration Action, Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti led the effort to organize more than 70 cities and counties, the National League of Cities, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors in arguing that the national public interest is served clearly and overwhelmingly by implementing immigration relief by executive action without delay. Today’s brief more than doubles the number of local governments that had previously voiced opposition to the lawsuit brought by states seeking to block President Obama’s immigration reform efforts.

The brief also argues that the District Court judge’s decision to block executive action with a preliminary injunction is bad for the economy, hurts families, threatens law enforcement priorities, and will stall desperately needed changes to the federal government’s immigration policies.

The de Blasio Administration has a proven track record of spearheading initiatives that integrate immigrants into the civic and economic life of New York City. From the IDNYC municipal identification program to increasing access to federal immigration benefits, New York City is committed to championing pro-immigrant policies that promote equity and create opportunity for all residents.

This collective action to offer the Court the crucial perspective of American cities and counties is an outcome of the organizing efforts of the Cities United for Immigration Action coalition. By filing this brief, America’s mayors and county leaders are making a strong statement in support of the President’s plan to grant administrative relief to over four million undocumented children and adults.

Numerous cities and counties signed on to today’s brief are located in states that brought the lawsuit against the Obama administration or have otherwise indicated support for the lawsuit, including five cities in Texas, six localities in New Jersey, two counties in Arizona, and three municipalities in Wisconsin. Cities and counties signed on to the brief (in formation) include the following local governments:

“Brooklyn is what America looks like, with nearly 40 percent of our residents being foreign-born, and when it comes to embracing our immigrant population, it is what America ought to be. President Obama's executive order on immigration is the most significant and meaningful step our nation has taken toward addressing this long-standing crisis and the millions of families who have been stuck in the shadows of our society, including hundreds of thousands right here in New York City. Our diversity is our greatest strength, and I join my fellow urban leaders from coast to coast in making this call to support the President's reforms,” said Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams.

“Legally and morally, the president's executive action on immigration was both within his power and the right thing to do,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer. “Blocking its implementation will do real harm to cities. That’s why joining with other cities and counties across the country urging its implementation is the right thing as well.”

“We stand with New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio’s and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti’s decision to file a ‘friend-of-the-court’ brief in support of President Barack Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Bronx Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. “The President’s executive action currently being blocked in the courts hurts The Bronx and New York City, with the borough losing out on potential local tax revenues that would be generated by these hard-working immigrants who just want to come out the shadows and positively contribute to our country. We are the land of opportunity, built on the ideal that we are melting pot that promotes equality for all and we must continue to strive for those ideals that make our country great.”

“President Obama's executive actions were bold and decisive steps toward fixing America's broken immigration system. The Statue of Liberty stands tall in our City, reminding us that America was built by generations of immigrants who came to its shores in search of a better life and a chance to make our country greater,” said U.S. Representative Charles Rangel. “I am proud to see that Mayor de Blasio is committed to keeping that promise alive for years to come.”

“The delay in the implementation of DAPA and expanded DACA threatens millions of American families with deportation, as well as the many communities, such as New York City, of which immigrants are an integral part,” said U.S. Representative Yvette Clarke. “No serious doubt exists that President Obama had the authority to establish DAPA and DACA. I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and the many community leaders across this nation who have raised their voices on behalf of millions of families who want to pursue the American Dream.”

“In the absence of legislative action by House Republicans, President Obama took decisive action on immigration because he knows that there are real lives at stake in our current broken system,” said U.S. Representative Joe Crowley. “It is deeply troubling that a Texas judge known to be hostile to immigrants is delaying the President’s executive measures, especially given the legal precedents set by previous administrations. Halting action that will help keep American families together strikes at the heart of what our country ought to be about, and I thank Mayors de Blasio, Garcetti, and many others for taking a stand and showing the widespread support for the President’s action. I’m confident the Department of Justice will succeed in its appeal of this decision and that we will move forward with this much-needed action that will make such a difference in New York City and elsewhere.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio for working with cities across the nation to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration,” said U.S. Representative Carolyn Maloney. “With over 12 million undocumented immigrants living in our country, comprehensive immigration reform is long overdue. Unfortunately, Congress has failed to act. That is why I strongly support President Obama’s executive actions, which will help keep families together, boost our economy and generate new tax revenue. These are common sense steps that mimic similar actions by Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush, and it’s long past time that President Obama’s reforms are implemented.”

“We can’t continue to delay implementing President Obama’s executive action on immigration. With this friend-of-the-court brief, New York City is joined by more than 70 cities nationwide in voicing its strong support for moving ahead with providing administrative deportation relief to more than 4 million immigrants with strong ties to the U.S. As the brief argues, the District Court’s holdup only hurts our economy, harmless immigrant families, and the federal government’s ability to address our broken immigration system. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for once again putting New York City at the forefront of efforts to help the immigrant community, in New York City, and nationwide,” said U.S. Representative José Serrano, Sr.

“The President’s immigration reforms make badly needed changes to a broken system and will benefit thousands of our neighbors,” stated U.S. Representative Nydia Velázquez. “It is critical for New York City and our nation as a whole that these reforms be implemented without delay.”

“Every day we delay fixing our broken immigration system is a missed opportunity,” said U.S. Representative Kathleen Rice. “There’s no question that we need to keep fighting for comprehensive immigration reform at the federal level, but our local communities can’t afford to wait when there’s no sign that this Congress is willing to pass real legislative solutions. Thousands of hard-working Long Island families are ready to come out of the shadows, stop living in fear and start participating fully in our local economies, and there’s no reason to deny them that opportunity any longer. Last week I joined several fellow Members of Congress in signing an amicus brief affirming our support for the government’s appeal, and the brief filed today by Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti shows that local and federal leaders across the country are united in our commitment to implementing the President’s executive actions.”

“Immigrants move New York’s economy forward,” said State Senator Leroy Comrie. “I represent a district where over a third of its population is foreign-born, and where many more are the children and grandchildren of the rich immigrant legacy this city – and this nation – is so proud of. Immigrants are innovators, business owners and job creators: they augment this City's supply of capital and ideas to diversify its narrative and keep it nationally and globally competitive. Not only is it in our best interest to immediately implement the President's platform for immigration reform, but it is the socially and morally responsible thing to do.”

“Every day the President's executive actions on immigration are blocked, is another day hundreds of thousands of young adults and parents, trying to provide for their families, are unable to work. This is not good for anyone, and the leaders of our cities and counties across the country know this first hand. I thank them for standing with undocumented immigrants and working to bring them out of the shadows,” said State Senator Adriano Espaillat, Chair of the State Senate Puerto Rican/Latino Caucus.

“This friend-of-the-court brief stands with immigrants in our communities against needless delay in the urgently needed Deferred Action programs. President Obama has charted a course for a more compassionate immigration system – a system that treats our friends and neighbors with the dignity they deserve. I commend this action by Mayor de Blasio and dozens of mayors across the United States in keeping with the vision President Obama outlined. I join these mayors and leaders across the country in reaffirming our commitment to America’s longstanding tradition of welcoming immigrants to our communities,” said State Senator Jesse Hamilton.

“It is time to stop intolerant views toward our immigrants. I am in full support of this brief, which is intended to safeguard and implement President Obama’s executive actions on immigration that are intended to keep families together,” said State Senator Jose Peralta. “We, as immigrants, live in all cities across our nation, and blocking the implementation of the President’s policies, hurts not just families fighting for the American Dream, but also our ongoing efforts to enrich and repair our economy.”

“I am very proud that New York City is leading the way on a collective amicus brief in the Texas vs. United States case which calls for swift and sweeping implementation of President Obama’s executive actions concerning rational immigration policy. The lives of millions of people hang in the balance, so many of them New Yorkers who share the same hopes, dreams and aspirations that each successive wave of immigrants harbored generations ago. Each of them found a true home here and it is time for our City and Country to open our arms and our hearts in the name of fundamental human rights,” said State Senator Bill Perkins.

“The implementation of President Obama's executive action on immigration is imperative to ensuring we support the countless immigrants that contribute to the social and economic life of our country,” said State Senator Gustavo Rivera. “We are a country of immigrants, and this executive action will help us strengthen and protect our diverse population, while honoring our values as Americans. I commend and thank Mayor de Blasio for having New York join cities and counties across our country in taking legal action to support an initial step towards immigration reform.”

“Here in a city and state where we pride ourselves on diversity, we can only benefit from the implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said State Senator James Sanders Jr. “It will allow for a reprieve from deportation while giving the undocumented a chance to work, providing a much needed boost to the economy. Just this past week, the state budget failed to include the DREAM Act, which would have given thousands of vibrant young people a chance at success by allowing them to continue their education and creating a pathway to citizenship. Let's not miss another opportunity to help build a stronger New York."

"Unjust deportations have continued to tear apart our families, our schools and our communities. We must act swiftly in implementing President Obama's immigration executive action in order to protect these important populations. Immigrants are the backbone of our communities, and I thank Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for creating a united front to demonstrate our support for the swift implementation of the President's measures," said State Senator José Serrano.

"The delay to President Obama's executive action on immigration is intolerable and comes with a real cost to real people," said Assembly Member Rodneyse Bichotte. "Every day, families of aspiring Americans are destroyed by a system badly in need of reform and the President's executive action offers needed help. I join with Mayor de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the Texas v. United States lawsuit to urge immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration. As a daughter of Haitian immigrants, and as a proud citizen of the United States and elected official of New York, I have a duty to act on behalf of the social justice of our people—as well as a fiduciary responsibility to ensure our economies gain the benefits immigration brings."

"As a child of Jamaican immigrants, it is personal for me that we stand up for Immigration justice and demand immediate action. The implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration is a moral, social, and economic necessity. The delays are inexcusable, and we must move forward. In past years, immigrants in NYC have accounted for more than $200 billion in economic activity to help revitalize vibrant neighborhoods including the work of Latino, Caribbean and African entrepreneurs in the South Bronx. Through hard work and tireless dedication, Immigrants embody the entrepreneurial spirit that makes our country so beautiful, and the best country in the world," said Assembly Member Michael Blake. "Immigrants are our neighbors, our friends, and our family, and I proudly stand with Mayor Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in calling for our judicial system to do the right thing, the humane thing, the compassionate thing, and give our communities the life they deserve."

"I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and all the other mayors for supporting immigration reforms. Implementation of the President's Immigration Executive action will provide much needed relief to immigrant families suffering under our broken system and is a crucial first step on the road to treating our immigrants with the fairness and respect they deserve," said Assembly Member Guillermo Linares.

"Every month that goes by without President Obama's executive actions is another month that families can be ripped apart," said Assembly Member Francisco Moya. "For those of us who deal with the fallout from our nation's flawed immigration policies on a daily basis, we know how critical the President's executive actions truly are. Keeping families together is not only the right thing to do; it's also in our nation's best interest."

"Mayor de Blasio is taking the right step filing today's court brief," said Assembly Member Felix Ortiz. "Without action from the Congress and State Legislature, we must support President Obama's efforts to protect workers and their families from deportation. While we keep the fight alive in Albany for the Dream Act, driver licenses and state-issued identification cards for non-citizens and better wages for all workers, today's action by our Mayor and by so many others across the nation is a positive step to make life better for millions. We can't wait any longer.”

“We need comprehensive immigration reform immediately,” said Assembly Member Robert Rodriguez. “President Obama’s Executive action is a huge step towards creating fair policies that help our growing immigrant communities of New York City thrive, any hindrance to its enactment harms us irreparably.”

“It is clear that our immigration system is broken and comprehensive reform is needed to provide long-term relief for the families who have contributed to the growth and prosperity of our nation,” said Assembly Member Nily Rozic. “Filing this brief is reflective of New York City's commitment to advancing immigrants' rights and I commend the Mayor for his continued advocacy and leadership on this urgent issue.

“With an estimated 100,000 undocumented immigrants in New York City who would benefit greatly from President Obama’s executive action this brief sends a strong message on the importance of implementing these reforms,” said Assembly Member Luis Sepúlveda. “New York has long been at the forefront of immigration reform. Mayor de Blasio has proven his commitment to immigrants throughout his first year in office and continues to through actions like this. I commend the Mayor and the many other cities and counties for supporting these initiatives, as implementing each one of them will be for the national public interest.”

“Opportunity for families in America to obtain basic rights and a better quality of life should not be dictated by political games. The partisan stalling of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action is sophomoric, and the District Court's preliminary objection undoubtedly has a deleterious effect on our national economy. New York City is, and always has been a city of immigrants, and we have this community to thank for the strength we enjoy as a City and a Nation . I am proud of New York City's participation in the amicus brief filed in Texas vs. United States, and am hopeful that the demand from such a robust list of diverse urban areas will bring us closer to real reform which has been long overdue,” said Assembly Member Keith Wright.

“I commend Mayor de Blasio in joining the effort to defend the President’s Administrative Relief that offers potential relief to millions of immigrants with strong ties to our nation, and who already work hard and contribute to make this a better country. While the Court stalls, and Congress fails to enact meaningful immigration reform, New York City will continue to protect the rights of immigrants and ensure that their contributions to our City are recognized—and celebrated. Our City continues to offer affirming spaces for immigrant populations, and I am hopeful that this action from our Mayor—and from his colleagues from around the country—will provide some context about the urgent need for the implementation of the President’s programs,” said Council Member Carlos Menchaca, Chair of the Committee on Immigration.

“I support the new friend-of-the-court brief urging immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. Immigrants are in important part of the fabric of our society and economy and granting administrative relief to those immigrants in need is an act of social responsibility,” said Council Member Inez Barron.

“I applaud New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio for joining Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti in filing a friend-of-the-court brief calling for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration. As an elected official representing an area with a significant immigrant population, I join with others across the country in urging the courts to move forward on providing deportation relief. The President’s immigration policies provide a just, sensible solution for millions of immigrants who live in the U.S. and contribute to our nation’s society in myriad ways. From an economic perspective, there is no question that New York stands to benefit from implementation of these policies, as significant tax revenues would be generated by the granting of temporary work permits to our City’s population of 100,000 immigrants,” said Council Member Fernando Cabrera.

“President Obama’s executive action on immigration will have a profoundly positive impact on thousands of families in our city, and it must be implemented immediately,” said Council Member Margaret Chin. “I strongly support today’s legal action in support of the President’s reforms, and I thank Mayor de Blasio for his continued leadership on this fundamentally important issue.”

“New York City is, was, and always will be a leader in the immigrant rights movement. We stand united in support of President Obama's Executive Order,” said Council Member Andrew Cohen.

“We have waited for federal immigration reform for too long,” said Council Member Costa Constantinides. “The current federal laws are broken and lead to families being broken up or to unwarranted detention. President Obama’s executive order will take significant steps to help ameliorate these concerns. We must ensure due process and respect for all. I stand with Mayor De Blasio, Mayor Garcetti, and with 70 other cities across the nation that support the President’s order.”

“The stand the District Court Judge has taken against immigration reform is harming the future of our country, our immigrants,” said Council Member Daniel Dromm. “I am glad Mayor de Blasio has signed on to an amicus brief to push back against the court’s anti-immigrant actions. In New York City we support our immigrants not hold them back by putting obstacles to citizenship in their way.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio and the Mayors of more than 70 cities across the country for making it clear that they are ready, willing, and able to implement the reforms proposed by President Obama’s executive action. As the son of immigrants, I know firsthand the difficulties faced by those who have come to the United States seeking a better life for themselves and their families. Our immigration system is broken and full implementation of President Obama’s executive action is necessary in order to ensure more families are not harmed by failed policies,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal.

“President Obama’s executive action would be a lifeline to many families in our City who only want to work hard and provide more than they had for their children,” said Council Member Julissa Ferreras. “The continued delay of immigration reform only hurts our cities by separating families as well as denying our local governments millions of dollars in tax revenue. I commend Mayor de Blasio, Mayor Garcetti and the chief executives of over 70 American cities for championing this issue in our courts and call on Congress to finally do the right thing and recognize that immigration reform makes sense for all.”

“For too long, cities have been trying to navigate a federal immigration policy that is in dire need of reform. The President's executive actions were an important first step toward making sense of those immigration policies. Delaying their implementation creates very real problems for the cities that are on the front lines of the immigration debate,” said Council Member Dan Garodnick.

“By delaying the implementation of immigration reform, the court is making a decision that hurts state and local economies and needlessly diverts law enforcement attention,” said Council Member Vanessa Gibson. “Spending tax dollars to prosecute otherwise law abiding residents who want to work here, raise families here, and spend money here is a policy that has never made sense and I urge the court to recognize the considerable good immigration reform will bring to our communities. I am proud to stand with legislators within New York and around the country in support of President Obama’s actions and I look forward to a favorable decision that will uphold the ordered relief of nearly 4 million undocumented adults and children.”

“Today, New York City stands with over 70 American municipalities in support of President Obama’s recent executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Corey Johnson. “If implemented, the plan would grant much needed administrative relief and protection from deportation to over 4 million undocumented individuals. Our country and New York City were built by immigrants and their families. Barring immigrants from fully participating in American civic and economic life is contrary to our values. It’s time to make a change.”

“We are a nation of immigrants, including my grandparents who came here to escape antisemitism, and the grandparents of so many. We must continue to accept all those 'yearning to breathe free',” said Council Member Ben Kallos. “The state invests resources in every person the second they set foot in our soil. By welcoming people with open arms, we guarantee a return on that investment. I applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for urging the immediate implementation of President Obama's immigration reforms.”

“President Obama has signed an Executive Order and it’s shameful and unheard of for the District Court judge to block the executive action,” said Council Member Andy King, Co-Chair of the Black, Latino & Asian Caucus. “New York is and has always been a city of immigrants and President Obama’s vision allows for immediate reform in our communities. I stand with the Mayor and the President and all Americans across the nation committed to justice and our voices will be heard.”

"I see every day the positive impact immigrants have on our communities, as a representative of one of the most diverse areas in the country," said Council Member Rory Lancman. "Immigrants start businesses, pay taxes and raise their children here. Unfortunately, current US immigration policies leave far too many of our neighbors afraid that they will be deported from the country that has been their home for years. Mayor de Blasio's brief, joined by so many other cities, sends a clear message to the Court that cities support the President's action and want our immigrants to be able to come out of the shadows."

“New York City can’t wait any longer for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Steve Levin. “Thank you to Mayor de Blasio and cities and counties around the United States who are taking a stand for smart and needed immigration reforms.”

“Undocumented immigrants and their families have waited far too long for substantive and comprehensive immigration reform. Not only do we need these reforms to be effectuated, we also need more policies that will help bring relief to millions of immigrants, help keep their families together, while strengthening our economy. I’m proud to stand with Mayor de Blasio, my colleagues in City Council, and the cities and counties across the country, who are fighting for the rights of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Annabel Palma.

“I’d like to thank Mayor de Blasio for taking leadership on this important issue. Implementation of President Obama’s executive order would have a major positive impact on the lives of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso.

“I am proud to stand with Mayor De Blasio and 70 other municipalities throughout the nation in full support of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Donovan Richards. “The history of the United States is a history of immigrants. Extending temporary relief from deportation for residents that contribute millions of dollars to our domestic economy is common sense.

“President Obama's actions will bring 5 million immigrants out of the shadows. For years these families have lived with the constant anxiety and fear of deportation. But no longer. Now undocumented immigrants can apply to receive services that they've long deserved. By receiving social security cards and work permits so many will be able to legally work towards the American Dream they came to pursue,” said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez. “However, some among us want to push these families back into the shadows. Today we, the cities that drive our country's economy forward, stand united in support of the President’s actions.”

“The temporary work permits granted by President Barack Obama's executive action are essential to the daily functions of New York City and cities nationwide. We are a nation of immigrants, and delaying implementation of this program is, frankly, un-American. I stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti and the 72 cities and counties throughout the US (list in formation), in urging immediate implementation of this executive action,” said Council Member Helen Rosenthal.

“Immigrants make critical contributions our local economies and civic infrastructure, but cannot continue doing so if they are living in the shadows. The growing list of municipalities and counties signed onto the brief further underscores the importance and urgency of administrative relief for millions of undocumented children and adults. The Mayor has been a tireless champion of New York’s immigrant communities and I commend him for spearheading this effort,” said Council Member Richie Torres.

“I support the immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive order,” said Council Member Mark Weprin. “Immigrants have always played a vital role in shaping our nation’s economy and continue to contribute every day to the vitality of New York City.”

“Delaying President Obama’s executive orders to implement real immigration reform only puts New York City’s efforts to provide countless families economic opportunity they need on hold,” said New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. “Now is the time to act and our City is prepared to. I support Mayor de Blasio and numerous other cities throughout our nation’s efforts to begin implementing much-needed reforms for the millions of families who are looking to us for assistance to become included and engaged citizens of New York City and our great nation.”

“The time for a rational immigration policy has long been overdue. Where Congress has failed to act in the collective interest of the American people, President Obama has sought to step into the breach. The use of executive authority on this issue is with precedent, and this unfortunate maneuver by the State of Texas to stymie him ignores the greater economic, security, and familial needs of all our citizens. Mayor de Blasio recognizes these plain truths, and I support the amicus brief he and so many other municipalities, nationwide, have filed in support of the President’s action,” said Council Member Ruben Wills.

“In cities across the country, hard-working men and women are waiting for President Obama’s Executive Action to go into effect so they can live and work without fear of deportation and separation from their families,” said Hector Figueroa, President of 32BJ SEIU. “In Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington DC and many more cities up and down the East Coast, 32BJ members have long been part of the fight for immigration reform and we will continue to take action in Congress and on the streets until these reforms are implemented. It is the humane and just thing to do for immigrants and the right path forward for our country.”

“Immigrants are essential to local economies and industries throughout our country, especially the hospitality industry. Today’s actions show that local governments recognize that delaying the President’s Executive Action not only harms millions of working families but also jeopardizes recovering local economies,” said Peter Ward, President of the Hotel Trades Council.

“Workers and their families desperately need the immediate implementation of President Obama’s Executive Action for immigration reform. We commend these cities and their elected officials for submitting an amicus brief in support of President Obama’s Executive Action, the most far reaching immigration reform initiative in decades. Cities make up the backbone of the U.S. economy, much of it based on the work of immigrants. Millions of hard working immigrant families stand to benefit from this action, and they deserve this administrative relief,” said Stuart Appelbaum, President of Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

“The AFL-CIO has made supporting real immigration reform one of our top priorities because we understand the importance of ensuring that all workers receive the wages and benefits to which they are entitled,” said Vincent Alvarez, President of the New York City Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO. “By allowing undocumented workers to come out of the shadows, we will be working to eradicate the tools that allow unscrupulous employers to drive down wages, and rob workers of fair pay, benefits, and workplace rights. The implementation of President Obama’s immigration recommendations is already long overdue. Let’s make this happen for New York City’s workers.”

“Immigrants, including many who would be eligible for work permits under President Obama’s Executive Action, contribute every day to the vibrancy and health of our cities. The Executive Action will keep families together, boost our economy and focus law enforcement resources. We applaud Mayor de Blasio’s advocacy on behalf of these hard-working New Yorkers and join him in calling for immediate implementation of the action,” said Maria Castaneda, Secretary-Treasurer of 1199 SEIU.

"We applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for leading the charge to demand immediate implementation of immigration relief to keep families together across the United States. As our communities demand action, scores of cities from coast to coast are stepping up and saying with one voice that the Court of Appeals must allow President Obama's administrative actions, which are grounded in strong legal precedent, to move forward," said Javier H. Valdés, co-Executive Director of Make the Road New York.

"Very much like every major city in America, New York City is a strong and vibrant city thanks to our immigrant population," said Jonathan Westin, Executive Director of New York Communities for Change. "Our cities are better when our immigrant brothers and sisters can thrive. Therefore, we urge the immediate implementation of the President's Immigration Executive Action. Our cities have too much to lose if action is not taken now."

"We are proud that our city's Mayor Bill de Blasio is setting a precedent by taking legal action and making it known that the delays to President Obama's executive actions are unacceptable," said Steven Choi, executive director of the New York Immigration Coalition. "The NYIC and our membership, along with our city and state partners including the Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs, continue our efforts to prepare the 100,000 plus New Yorkers who can benefit from these programs. We stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the call for immediate implementation of immigration relief."

"At a time when anti-immigrant voices are using myths about immigrants and the effects of immigration to derail a constructive national policy debate, few actions are more important than local governments uniting to fight for immediate relief and implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Actions. In outlining the economic and fiscal benefits of deferred action policies, New York City is a key stakeholder. Mayor Bill de Blasio has underscored once again our city's courage in the fight for justice and we stand in solidarity to see administrative relief programs take full-effect immediately," said Lucia Gomez, Executive Director of La Fuente.

"The Asian American Federation fully supports Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti's appeal to implement President Obama's executive action without any further delay. Immigrants and their families, who have made valuable contributions to the U.S., deserve the temporary relief and protection that this immigration reform provides. We stand with our community to ensure that the President's executive action sees the light of day," said Jo-Ann Yoo, Executive Director of the Asian American Federation.

"Millions of lives are on hold as President Obama's legal Executive Action is being dragged through the courts. Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights commends Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for supporting legal action urging immediate implementation of Executive Action," said Angela Fernandez, Executive Director of Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights.

"Immigration reform is vital for New York's African immigrant communities," said Amaha Kassa, Executive Director of African Communities Together. "All of our members have heard about President Obama's executive actions, many are qualified and ready to apply for relief, and none of them can understand why progress has been put on hold. This filing sends an important message that New York City has immigrants' backs, even if some states have chosen to send the opposite message."

“President Obama’s November, 2014 Deferred Action programs – both the DACA extension and DAPA – should be implemented now. With each passing day, families continue to be torn apart, leaving behind American children to fend for themselves. Hard-working immigrant parents live in fear and are preyed upon, and cannot become full members of our society. As the child of Mexican immigrant parents whose life dramatically changed after they received legal status via IRCA, the benefits of immigration relief to are society are clear to me. My parents became homeowners and were able to support three college graduates. I applaud Mayors De Blasio and Garcetti, along with the 70 cities and counties who have signed on, for their leadership and for lending their voice to challenge the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, said Aracelis Lucero, Executive Director of Masa, Inc.

“Chicago has always been a city of immigrants, and for us to stay true to our history and our values, we must ensure that immigrants can fully participate in all aspects of our economic and cultural life,” said Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel. “We are proud to join numerous cities in filing this amicus brief to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. They will help keep families together, increase safety in our communities, and maximize the contributions that immigrants make every day in every part of our city.”

“Cities are strongly affected by immigration. The old, dysfunctional immigration policies hurt our economies, our neighborhoods, our businesses and our residents. The President is attempting to interject common sense and humanity. We are grateful for his efforts and we stand with him,” said Portland Mayor Charlie Hales.

“I am signing onto this brief because as a nation of immigrants, I believe ensuring access to a fair and legal process for people to come to this country and pursue their dreams reflects our highest values,” said Chapel Hill Mayor Mark Kleinschmidt.

“We must do better to honor our country's proud immigration tradition. Too many immigrants live in fear, afraid to become members of our society, while Congress fails to take any meaningful action to fix a broken immigration system. Their inaction has real consequences for our communities, which is why I fully support President Obama's leadership and common sense executive actions. I thank Mayor de Blasio for initiating this brief and building this important coalition of leaders,” said Hoboken Mayor Dawn Zimmer.

MAYORS DE BLASIO AND GARCETTI ANNOUNCE LEGAL ACTION IN SUPPORT OF IMMIGRATION REFORMS

More Than 70 Cities & Counties Sign Texas vs. United States Appeal Urging Immediate Implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action

NEW YORK—New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti announced today that 73 cities and counties had filed a new friend-of-the-court brief in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, urging immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration.

“Continuing to delay implementation of the President’s executive action on immigration hurts our economy and puts families at risk,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “Cities are where immigrants live, and cities are where the President’s executive action will be successfully implemented. Our cities are united, and we will fight for the immigration reform this nation needs and deserves – whether in the courtroom, in Congress, or in our communities. Make no mistake about it: our voices will be heard.”

“Our cities cannot afford delays to immigration reforms that will strengthen our economy and help families,” said Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti. “This isn’t a blue or red issue, but a human and economic one.”

The brief demonstrates robust support from the country’s largest cities – as well as suburbs and rural areas – for the President’s reforms, which will temporarily relieve from deportation thousands of immigrants who have longstanding ties to the U.S.

The cities and counties – representing 43 million people across the country – argue that the district court judge who temporarily blocked implementation of the programs failed to consider the significant harm to America’s local governments caused by this delay.

According to an analysis by the City, each month that the implementation of these programs is delayed, New York City and New York State will lose at least $1.5 million in additional state and local tax revenue that would be generated if 100,000 immigrants in New York City were able to access temporary work permits through executive action.

“New York’s immigrants are vital to our economy and we must do all we can to help them grow and thrive. Mayor de Blasio is correct – instead of putting up barriers, we should be looking at ways to help immigrants climb the ladder of economic opportunity and welcome them into our communities. The New York State Assembly Majority strongly supports President Obama’s executive action on immigration, and further delay by those who would derail this important initiative is unacceptable,” said New York State Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie.

“Each day we wait to implement President Obama’s bold immigration reforms, millions of hard-working families remain in legal limbo. Immigrant communities built New York City, and they are the heart and soul of urban centers across our country,” said Public Advocate Letitia James. “As Congress and federal courts stall meaningful progress on immigration, New York City will continue to lead the nation.”

As part of Cities United for Immigration Action, Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti led the effort to organize more than 70 cities and counties, the National League of Cities, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors in arguing that the national public interest is served clearly and overwhelmingly by implementing immigration relief by executive action without delay. Today’s brief more than doubles the number of local governments that had previously voiced opposition to the lawsuit brought by states seeking to block President Obama’s immigration reform efforts.

The brief also argues that the District Court judge’s decision to block executive action with a preliminary injunction is bad for the economy, hurts families, threatens law enforcement priorities, and will stall desperately needed changes to the federal government’s immigration policies.

The de Blasio Administration has a proven track record of spearheading initiatives that integrate immigrants into the civic and economic life of New York City. From the IDNYC municipal identification program to increasing access to federal immigration benefits, New York City is committed to championing pro-immigrant policies that promote equity and create opportunity for all residents.

This collective action to offer the Court the crucial perspective of American cities and counties is an outcome of the organizing efforts of the Cities United for Immigration Action coalition. By filing this brief, America’s mayors and county leaders are making a strong statement in support of the President’s plan to grant administrative relief to over four million undocumented children and adults.

Numerous cities and counties signed on to today’s brief are located in states that brought the lawsuit against the Obama administration or have otherwise indicated support for the lawsuit, including five cities in Texas, six localities in New Jersey, two counties in Arizona, and three municipalities in Wisconsin. Cities and counties signed on to the brief (in formation) include the following local governments:

“Brooklyn is what America looks like, with nearly 40 percent of our residents being foreign-born, and when it comes to embracing our immigrant population, it is what America ought to be. President Obama's executive order on immigration is the most significant and meaningful step our nation has taken toward addressing this long-standing crisis and the millions of families who have been stuck in the shadows of our society, including hundreds of thousands right here in New York City. Our diversity is our greatest strength, and I join my fellow urban leaders from coast to coast in making this call to support the President's reforms,” said Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams.

“Legally and morally, the president's executive action on immigration was both within his power and the right thing to do,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer. “Blocking its implementation will do real harm to cities. That’s why joining with other cities and counties across the country urging its implementation is the right thing as well.”

“We stand with New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio’s and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti’s decision to file a ‘friend-of-the-court’ brief in support of President Barack Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Bronx Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. “The President’s executive action currently being blocked in the courts hurts The Bronx and New York City, with the borough losing out on potential local tax revenues that would be generated by these hard-working immigrants who just want to come out the shadows and positively contribute to our country. We are the land of opportunity, built on the ideal that we are melting pot that promotes equality for all and we must continue to strive for those ideals that make our country great.”

“President Obama's executive actions were bold and decisive steps toward fixing America's broken immigration system. The Statue of Liberty stands tall in our City, reminding us that America was built by generations of immigrants who came to its shores in search of a better life and a chance to make our country greater,” said U.S. Representative Charles Rangel. “I am proud to see that Mayor de Blasio is committed to keeping that promise alive for years to come.”

“The delay in the implementation of DAPA and expanded DACA threatens millions of American families with deportation, as well as the many communities, such as New York City, of which immigrants are an integral part,” said U.S. Representative Yvette Clarke. “No serious doubt exists that President Obama had the authority to establish DAPA and DACA. I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and the many community leaders across this nation who have raised their voices on behalf of millions of families who want to pursue the American Dream.”

“In the absence of legislative action by House Republicans, President Obama took decisive action on immigration because he knows that there are real lives at stake in our current broken system,” said U.S. Representative Joe Crowley. “It is deeply troubling that a Texas judge known to be hostile to immigrants is delaying the President’s executive measures, especially given the legal precedents set by previous administrations. Halting action that will help keep American families together strikes at the heart of what our country ought to be about, and I thank Mayors de Blasio, Garcetti, and many others for taking a stand and showing the widespread support for the President’s action. I’m confident the Department of Justice will succeed in its appeal of this decision and that we will move forward with this much-needed action that will make such a difference in New York City and elsewhere.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio for working with cities across the nation to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration,” said U.S. Representative Carolyn Maloney. “With over 12 million undocumented immigrants living in our country, comprehensive immigration reform is long overdue. Unfortunately, Congress has failed to act. That is why I strongly support President Obama’s executive actions, which will help keep families together, boost our economy and generate new tax revenue. These are common sense steps that mimic similar actions by Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush, and it’s long past time that President Obama’s reforms are implemented.”

“We can’t continue to delay implementing President Obama’s executive action on immigration. With this friend-of-the-court brief, New York City is joined by more than 70 cities nationwide in voicing its strong support for moving ahead with providing administrative deportation relief to more than 4 million immigrants with strong ties to the U.S. As the brief argues, the District Court’s holdup only hurts our economy, harmless immigrant families, and the federal government’s ability to address our broken immigration system. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for once again putting New York City at the forefront of efforts to help the immigrant community, in New York City, and nationwide,” said U.S. Representative José Serrano, Sr.

“The President’s immigration reforms make badly needed changes to a broken system and will benefit thousands of our neighbors,” stated U.S. Representative Nydia Velázquez. “It is critical for New York City and our nation as a whole that these reforms be implemented without delay.”

“Every day we delay fixing our broken immigration system is a missed opportunity,” said U.S. Representative Kathleen Rice. “There’s no question that we need to keep fighting for comprehensive immigration reform at the federal level, but our local communities can’t afford to wait when there’s no sign that this Congress is willing to pass real legislative solutions. Thousands of hard-working Long Island families are ready to come out of the shadows, stop living in fear and start participating fully in our local economies, and there’s no reason to deny them that opportunity any longer. Last week I joined several fellow Members of Congress in signing an amicus brief affirming our support for the government’s appeal, and the brief filed today by Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti shows that local and federal leaders across the country are united in our commitment to implementing the President’s executive actions.”

“Immigrants move New York’s economy forward,” said State Senator Leroy Comrie. “I represent a district where over a third of its population is foreign-born, and where many more are the children and grandchildren of the rich immigrant legacy this city – and this nation – is so proud of. Immigrants are innovators, business owners and job creators: they augment this City's supply of capital and ideas to diversify its narrative and keep it nationally and globally competitive. Not only is it in our best interest to immediately implement the President's platform for immigration reform, but it is the socially and morally responsible thing to do.”

“Every day the President's executive actions on immigration are blocked, is another day hundreds of thousands of young adults and parents, trying to provide for their families, are unable to work. This is not good for anyone, and the leaders of our cities and counties across the country know this first hand. I thank them for standing with undocumented immigrants and working to bring them out of the shadows,” said State Senator Adriano Espaillat, Chair of the State Senate Puerto Rican/Latino Caucus.

“This friend-of-the-court brief stands with immigrants in our communities against needless delay in the urgently needed Deferred Action programs. President Obama has charted a course for a more compassionate immigration system – a system that treats our friends and neighbors with the dignity they deserve. I commend this action by Mayor de Blasio and dozens of mayors across the United States in keeping with the vision President Obama outlined. I join these mayors and leaders across the country in reaffirming our commitment to America’s longstanding tradition of welcoming immigrants to our communities,” said State Senator Jesse Hamilton.

“It is time to stop intolerant views toward our immigrants. I am in full support of this brief, which is intended to safeguard and implement President Obama’s executive actions on immigration that are intended to keep families together,” said State Senator Jose Peralta. “We, as immigrants, live in all cities across our nation, and blocking the implementation of the President’s policies, hurts not just families fighting for the American Dream, but also our ongoing efforts to enrich and repair our economy.”

“I am very proud that New York City is leading the way on a collective amicus brief in the Texas vs. United States case which calls for swift and sweeping implementation of President Obama’s executive actions concerning rational immigration policy. The lives of millions of people hang in the balance, so many of them New Yorkers who share the same hopes, dreams and aspirations that each successive wave of immigrants harbored generations ago. Each of them found a true home here and it is time for our City and Country to open our arms and our hearts in the name of fundamental human rights,” said State Senator Bill Perkins.

“The implementation of President Obama's executive action on immigration is imperative to ensuring we support the countless immigrants that contribute to the social and economic life of our country,” said State Senator Gustavo Rivera. “We are a country of immigrants, and this executive action will help us strengthen and protect our diverse population, while honoring our values as Americans. I commend and thank Mayor de Blasio for having New York join cities and counties across our country in taking legal action to support an initial step towards immigration reform.”

“Here in a city and state where we pride ourselves on diversity, we can only benefit from the implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said State Senator James Sanders Jr. “It will allow for a reprieve from deportation while giving the undocumented a chance to work, providing a much needed boost to the economy. Just this past week, the state budget failed to include the DREAM Act, which would have given thousands of vibrant young people a chance at success by allowing them to continue their education and creating a pathway to citizenship. Let's not miss another opportunity to help build a stronger New York."

"Unjust deportations have continued to tear apart our families, our schools and our communities. We must act swiftly in implementing President Obama's immigration executive action in order to protect these important populations. Immigrants are the backbone of our communities, and I thank Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for creating a united front to demonstrate our support for the swift implementation of the President's measures," said State Senator José Serrano.

"The delay to President Obama's executive action on immigration is intolerable and comes with a real cost to real people," said Assembly Member Rodneyse Bichotte. "Every day, families of aspiring Americans are destroyed by a system badly in need of reform and the President's executive action offers needed help. I join with Mayor de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the Texas v. United States lawsuit to urge immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration. As a daughter of Haitian immigrants, and as a proud citizen of the United States and elected official of New York, I have a duty to act on behalf of the social justice of our people—as well as a fiduciary responsibility to ensure our economies gain the benefits immigration brings."

"As a child of Jamaican immigrants, it is personal for me that we stand up for Immigration justice and demand immediate action. The implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration is a moral, social, and economic necessity. The delays are inexcusable, and we must move forward. In past years, immigrants in NYC have accounted for more than $200 billion in economic activity to help revitalize vibrant neighborhoods including the work of Latino, Caribbean and African entrepreneurs in the South Bronx. Through hard work and tireless dedication, Immigrants embody the entrepreneurial spirit that makes our country so beautiful, and the best country in the world," said Assembly Member Michael Blake. "Immigrants are our neighbors, our friends, and our family, and I proudly stand with Mayor Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in calling for our judicial system to do the right thing, the humane thing, the compassionate thing, and give our communities the life they deserve."

"I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and all the other mayors for supporting immigration reforms. Implementation of the President's Immigration Executive action will provide much needed relief to immigrant families suffering under our broken system and is a crucial first step on the road to treating our immigrants with the fairness and respect they deserve," said Assembly Member Guillermo Linares.

"Every month that goes by without President Obama's executive actions is another month that families can be ripped apart," said Assembly Member Francisco Moya. "For those of us who deal with the fallout from our nation's flawed immigration policies on a daily basis, we know how critical the President's executive actions truly are. Keeping families together is not only the right thing to do; it's also in our nation's best interest."

"Mayor de Blasio is taking the right step filing today's court brief," said Assembly Member Felix Ortiz. "Without action from the Congress and State Legislature, we must support President Obama's efforts to protect workers and their families from deportation. While we keep the fight alive in Albany for the Dream Act, driver licenses and state-issued identification cards for non-citizens and better wages for all workers, today's action by our Mayor and by so many others across the nation is a positive step to make life better for millions. We can't wait any longer.”

“We need comprehensive immigration reform immediately,” said Assembly Member Robert Rodriguez. “President Obama’s Executive action is a huge step towards creating fair policies that help our growing immigrant communities of New York City thrive, any hindrance to its enactment harms us irreparably.”

“It is clear that our immigration system is broken and comprehensive reform is needed to provide long-term relief for the families who have contributed to the growth and prosperity of our nation,” said Assembly Member Nily Rozic. “Filing this brief is reflective of New York City's commitment to advancing immigrants' rights and I commend the Mayor for his continued advocacy and leadership on this urgent issue.

“With an estimated 100,000 undocumented immigrants in New York City who would benefit greatly from President Obama’s executive action this brief sends a strong message on the importance of implementing these reforms,” said Assembly Member Luis Sepúlveda. “New York has long been at the forefront of immigration reform. Mayor de Blasio has proven his commitment to immigrants throughout his first year in office and continues to through actions like this. I commend the Mayor and the many other cities and counties for supporting these initiatives, as implementing each one of them will be for the national public interest.”

“Opportunity for families in America to obtain basic rights and a better quality of life should not be dictated by political games. The partisan stalling of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action is sophomoric, and the District Court's preliminary objection undoubtedly has a deleterious effect on our national economy. New York City is, and always has been a city of immigrants, and we have this community to thank for the strength we enjoy as a City and a Nation . I am proud of New York City's participation in the amicus brief filed in Texas vs. United States, and am hopeful that the demand from such a robust list of diverse urban areas will bring us closer to real reform which has been long overdue,” said Assembly Member Keith Wright.

“I commend Mayor de Blasio in joining the effort to defend the President’s Administrative Relief that offers potential relief to millions of immigrants with strong ties to our nation, and who already work hard and contribute to make this a better country. While the Court stalls, and Congress fails to enact meaningful immigration reform, New York City will continue to protect the rights of immigrants and ensure that their contributions to our City are recognized—and celebrated. Our City continues to offer affirming spaces for immigrant populations, and I am hopeful that this action from our Mayor—and from his colleagues from around the country—will provide some context about the urgent need for the implementation of the President’s programs,” said Council Member Carlos Menchaca, Chair of the Committee on Immigration.

“I support the new friend-of-the-court brief urging immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. Immigrants are in important part of the fabric of our society and economy and granting administrative relief to those immigrants in need is an act of social responsibility,” said Council Member Inez Barron.

“I applaud New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio for joining Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti in filing a friend-of-the-court brief calling for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration. As an elected official representing an area with a significant immigrant population, I join with others across the country in urging the courts to move forward on providing deportation relief. The President’s immigration policies provide a just, sensible solution for millions of immigrants who live in the U.S. and contribute to our nation’s society in myriad ways. From an economic perspective, there is no question that New York stands to benefit from implementation of these policies, as significant tax revenues would be generated by the granting of temporary work permits to our City’s population of 100,000 immigrants,” said Council Member Fernando Cabrera.

“President Obama’s executive action on immigration will have a profoundly positive impact on thousands of families in our city, and it must be implemented immediately,” said Council Member Margaret Chin. “I strongly support today’s legal action in support of the President’s reforms, and I thank Mayor de Blasio for his continued leadership on this fundamentally important issue.”

“New York City is, was, and always will be a leader in the immigrant rights movement. We stand united in support of President Obama's Executive Order,” said Council Member Andrew Cohen.

“We have waited for federal immigration reform for too long,” said Council Member Costa Constantinides. “The current federal laws are broken and lead to families being broken up or to unwarranted detention. President Obama’s executive order will take significant steps to help ameliorate these concerns. We must ensure due process and respect for all. I stand with Mayor De Blasio, Mayor Garcetti, and with 70 other cities across the nation that support the President’s order.”

“The stand the District Court Judge has taken against immigration reform is harming the future of our country, our immigrants,” said Council Member Daniel Dromm. “I am glad Mayor de Blasio has signed on to an amicus brief to push back against the court’s anti-immigrant actions. In New York City we support our immigrants not hold them back by putting obstacles to citizenship in their way.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio and the Mayors of more than 70 cities across the country for making it clear that they are ready, willing, and able to implement the reforms proposed by President Obama’s executive action. As the son of immigrants, I know firsthand the difficulties faced by those who have come to the United States seeking a better life for themselves and their families. Our immigration system is broken and full implementation of President Obama’s executive action is necessary in order to ensure more families are not harmed by failed policies,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal.

“President Obama’s executive action would be a lifeline to many families in our City who only want to work hard and provide more than they had for their children,” said Council Member Julissa Ferreras. “The continued delay of immigration reform only hurts our cities by separating families as well as denying our local governments millions of dollars in tax revenue. I commend Mayor de Blasio, Mayor Garcetti and the chief executives of over 70 American cities for championing this issue in our courts and call on Congress to finally do the right thing and recognize that immigration reform makes sense for all.”

“For too long, cities have been trying to navigate a federal immigration policy that is in dire need of reform. The President's executive actions were an important first step toward making sense of those immigration policies. Delaying their implementation creates very real problems for the cities that are on the front lines of the immigration debate,” said Council Member Dan Garodnick.

“By delaying the implementation of immigration reform, the court is making a decision that hurts state and local economies and needlessly diverts law enforcement attention,” said Council Member Vanessa Gibson. “Spending tax dollars to prosecute otherwise law abiding residents who want to work here, raise families here, and spend money here is a policy that has never made sense and I urge the court to recognize the considerable good immigration reform will bring to our communities. I am proud to stand with legislators within New York and around the country in support of President Obama’s actions and I look forward to a favorable decision that will uphold the ordered relief of nearly 4 million undocumented adults and children.”

“Today, New York City stands with over 70 American municipalities in support of President Obama’s recent executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Corey Johnson. “If implemented, the plan would grant much needed administrative relief and protection from deportation to over 4 million undocumented individuals. Our country and New York City were built by immigrants and their families. Barring immigrants from fully participating in American civic and economic life is contrary to our values. It’s time to make a change.”

“We are a nation of immigrants, including my grandparents who came here to escape antisemitism, and the grandparents of so many. We must continue to accept all those 'yearning to breathe free',” said Council Member Ben Kallos. “The state invests resources in every person the second they set foot in our soil. By welcoming people with open arms, we guarantee a return on that investment. I applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for urging the immediate implementation of President Obama's immigration reforms.”

“President Obama has signed an Executive Order and it’s shameful and unheard of for the District Court judge to block the executive action,” said Council Member Andy King, Co-Chair of the Black, Latino & Asian Caucus. “New York is and has always been a city of immigrants and President Obama’s vision allows for immediate reform in our communities. I stand with the Mayor and the President and all Americans across the nation committed to justice and our voices will be heard.”

"I see every day the positive impact immigrants have on our communities, as a representative of one of the most diverse areas in the country," said Council Member Rory Lancman. "Immigrants start businesses, pay taxes and raise their children here. Unfortunately, current US immigration policies leave far too many of our neighbors afraid that they will be deported from the country that has been their home for years. Mayor de Blasio's brief, joined by so many other cities, sends a clear message to the Court that cities support the President's action and want our immigrants to be able to come out of the shadows."

“New York City can’t wait any longer for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Steve Levin. “Thank you to Mayor de Blasio and cities and counties around the United States who are taking a stand for smart and needed immigration reforms.”

“Undocumented immigrants and their families have waited far too long for substantive and comprehensive immigration reform. Not only do we need these reforms to be effectuated, we also need more policies that will help bring relief to millions of immigrants, help keep their families together, while strengthening our economy. I’m proud to stand with Mayor de Blasio, my colleagues in City Council, and the cities and counties across the country, who are fighting for the rights of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Annabel Palma.

“I’d like to thank Mayor de Blasio for taking leadership on this important issue. Implementation of President Obama’s executive order would have a major positive impact on the lives of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso.

“I am proud to stand with Mayor De Blasio and 70 other municipalities throughout the nation in full support of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Donovan Richards. “The history of the United States is a history of immigrants. Extending temporary relief from deportation for residents that contribute millions of dollars to our domestic economy is common sense.

“President Obama's actions will bring 5 million immigrants out of the shadows. For years these families have lived with the constant anxiety and fear of deportation. But no longer. Now undocumented immigrants can apply to receive services that they've long deserved. By receiving social security cards and work permits so many will be able to legally work towards the American Dream they came to pursue,” said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez. “However, some among us want to push these families back into the shadows. Today we, the cities that drive our country's economy forward, stand united in support of the President’s actions.”

“The temporary work permits granted by President Barack Obama's executive action are essential to the daily functions of New York City and cities nationwide. We are a nation of immigrants, and delaying implementation of this program is, frankly, un-American. I stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti and the 72 cities and counties throughout the US (list in formation), in urging immediate implementation of this executive action,” said Council Member Helen Rosenthal.

“Immigrants make critical contributions our local economies and civic infrastructure, but cannot continue doing so if they are living in the shadows. The growing list of municipalities and counties signed onto the brief further underscores the importance and urgency of administrative relief for millions of undocumented children and adults. The Mayor has been a tireless champion of New York’s immigrant communities and I commend him for spearheading this effort,” said Council Member Richie Torres.

“I support the immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive order,” said Council Member Mark Weprin. “Immigrants have always played a vital role in shaping our nation’s economy and continue to contribute every day to the vitality of New York City.”

“Delaying President Obama’s executive orders to implement real immigration reform only puts New York City’s efforts to provide countless families economic opportunity they need on hold,” said New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. “Now is the time to act and our City is prepared to. I support Mayor de Blasio and numerous other cities throughout our nation’s efforts to begin implementing much-needed reforms for the millions of families who are looking to us for assistance to become included and engaged citizens of New York City and our great nation.”

“The time for a rational immigration policy has long been overdue. Where Congress has failed to act in the collective interest of the American people, President Obama has sought to step into the breach. The use of executive authority on this issue is with precedent, and this unfortunate maneuver by the State of Texas to stymie him ignores the greater economic, security, and familial needs of all our citizens. Mayor de Blasio recognizes these plain truths, and I support the amicus brief he and so many other municipalities, nationwide, have filed in support of the President’s action,” said Council Member Ruben Wills.

“In cities across the country, hard-working men and women are waiting for President Obama’s Executive Action to go into effect so they can live and work without fear of deportation and separation from their families,” said Hector Figueroa, President of 32BJ SEIU. “In Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington DC and many more cities up and down the East Coast, 32BJ members have long been part of the fight for immigration reform and we will continue to take action in Congress and on the streets until these reforms are implemented. It is the humane and just thing to do for immigrants and the right path forward for our country.”

“Immigrants are essential to local economies and industries throughout our country, especially the hospitality industry. Today’s actions show that local governments recognize that delaying the President’s Executive Action not only harms millions of working families but also jeopardizes recovering local economies,” said Peter Ward, President of the Hotel Trades Council.

“Workers and their families desperately need the immediate implementation of President Obama’s Executive Action for immigration reform. We commend these cities and their elected officials for submitting an amicus brief in support of President Obama’s Executive Action, the most far reaching immigration reform initiative in decades. Cities make up the backbone of the U.S. economy, much of it based on the work of immigrants. Millions of hard working immigrant families stand to benefit from this action, and they deserve this administrative relief,” said Stuart Appelbaum, President of Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

“The AFL-CIO has made supporting real immigration reform one of our top priorities because we understand the importance of ensuring that all workers receive the wages and benefits to which they are entitled,” said Vincent Alvarez, President of the New York City Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO. “By allowing undocumented workers to come out of the shadows, we will be working to eradicate the tools that allow unscrupulous employers to drive down wages, and rob workers of fair pay, benefits, and workplace rights. The implementation of President Obama’s immigration recommendations is already long overdue. Let’s make this happen for New York City’s workers.”

“Immigrants, including many who would be eligible for work permits under President Obama’s Executive Action, contribute every day to the vibrancy and health of our cities. The Executive Action will keep families together, boost our economy and focus law enforcement resources. We applaud Mayor de Blasio’s advocacy on behalf of these hard-working New Yorkers and join him in calling for immediate implementation of the action,” said Maria Castaneda, Secretary-Treasurer of 1199 SEIU.

"We applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for leading the charge to demand immediate implementation of immigration relief to keep families together across the United States. As our communities demand action, scores of cities from coast to coast are stepping up and saying with one voice that the Court of Appeals must allow President Obama's administrative actions, which are grounded in strong legal precedent, to move forward," said Javier H. Valdés, co-Executive Director of Make the Road New York.

"Very much like every major city in America, New York City is a strong and vibrant city thanks to our immigrant population," said Jonathan Westin, Executive Director of New York Communities for Change. "Our cities are better when our immigrant brothers and sisters can thrive. Therefore, we urge the immediate implementation of the President's Immigration Executive Action. Our cities have too much to lose if action is not taken now."

"We are proud that our city's Mayor Bill de Blasio is setting a precedent by taking legal action and making it known that the delays to President Obama's executive actions are unacceptable," said Steven Choi, executive director of the New York Immigration Coalition. "The NYIC and our membership, along with our city and state partners including the Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs, continue our efforts to prepare the 100,000 plus New Yorkers who can benefit from these programs. We stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the call for immediate implementation of immigration relief."

"At a time when anti-immigrant voices are using myths about immigrants and the effects of immigration to derail a constructive national policy debate, few actions are more important than local governments uniting to fight for immediate relief and implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Actions. In outlining the economic and fiscal benefits of deferred action policies, New York City is a key stakeholder. Mayor Bill de Blasio has underscored once again our city's courage in the fight for justice and we stand in solidarity to see administrative relief programs take full-effect immediately," said Lucia Gomez, Executive Director of La Fuente.

"The Asian American Federation fully supports Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti's appeal to implement President Obama's executive action without any further delay. Immigrants and their families, who have made valuable contributions to the U.S., deserve the temporary relief and protection that this immigration reform provides. We stand with our community to ensure that the President's executive action sees the light of day," said Jo-Ann Yoo, Executive Director of the Asian American Federation.

"Millions of lives are on hold as President Obama's legal Executive Action is being dragged through the courts. Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights commends Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for supporting legal action urging immediate implementation of Executive Action," said Angela Fernandez, Executive Director of Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights.

"Immigration reform is vital for New York's African immigrant communities," said Amaha Kassa, Executive Director of African Communities Together. "All of our members have heard about President Obama's executive actions, many are qualified and ready to apply for relief, and none of them can understand why progress has been put on hold. This filing sends an important message that New York City has immigrants' backs, even if some states have chosen to send the opposite message."

“President Obama’s November, 2014 Deferred Action programs – both the DACA extension and DAPA – should be implemented now. With each passing day, families continue to be torn apart, leaving behind American children to fend for themselves. Hard-working immigrant parents live in fear and are preyed upon, and cannot become full members of our society. As the child of Mexican immigrant parents whose life dramatically changed after they received legal status via IRCA, the benefits of immigration relief to are society are clear to me. My parents became homeowners and were able to support three college graduates. I applaud Mayors De Blasio and Garcetti, along with the 70 cities and counties who have signed on, for their leadership and for lending their voice to challenge the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, said Aracelis Lucero, Executive Director of Masa, Inc.

“Chicago has always been a city of immigrants, and for us to stay true to our history and our values, we must ensure that immigrants can fully participate in all aspects of our economic and cultural life,” said Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel. “We are proud to join numerous cities in filing this amicus brief to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. They will help keep families together, increase safety in our communities, and maximize the contributions that immigrants make every day in every part of our city.”

“Cities are strongly affected by immigration. The old, dysfunctional immigration policies hurt our economies, our neighborhoods, our businesses and our residents. The President is attempting to interject common sense and humanity. We are grateful for his efforts and we stand with him,” said Portland Mayor Charlie Hales.

“I am signing onto this brief because as a nation of immigrants, I believe ensuring access to a fair and legal process for people to come to this country and pursue their dreams reflects our highest values,” said Chapel Hill Mayor Mark Kleinschmidt.

“We must do better to honor our country's proud immigration tradition. Too many immigrants live in fear, afraid to become members of our society, while Congress fails to take any meaningful action to fix a broken immigration system. Their inaction has real consequences for our communities, which is why I fully support President Obama's leadership and common sense executive actions. I thank Mayor de Blasio for initiating this brief and building this important coalition of leaders,” said Hoboken Mayor Dawn Zimmer.

MAYORS DE BLASIO AND GARCETTI ANNOUNCE LEGAL ACTION IN SUPPORT OF IMMIGRATION REFORMS

More Than 70 Cities & Counties Sign Texas vs. United States Appeal Urging Immediate Implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action

NEW YORK—New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti announced today that 73 cities and counties had filed a new friend-of-the-court brief in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, urging immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration.

"Continuing to delay implementation of the President's executive action on immigration hurts our economy and puts families at risk," said Mayor Bill de Blasio. "Cities are where immigrants live, and cities are where the President's executive action will be successfully implemented. Our cities are united, and we will fight for the immigration reform this nation needs and deserves – whether in the courtroom, in Congress, or in our communities. Make no mistake about it: our voices will be heard."

"Our cities cannot afford delays to immigration reforms that will strengthen our economy and help families," said Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti. "This isn't a blue or red issue, but a human and economic one."

The brief demonstrates robust support from the country's largest cities – as well as suburbs and rural areas – for the President's reforms, which will temporarily relieve from deportation thousands of immigrants who have longstanding ties to the U.S.

The cities and counties – representing 43 million people across the country – argue that the district court judge who temporarily blocked implementation of the programs failed to consider the significant harm to America's local governments caused by this delay.

According to an analysis by the City, each month that the implementation of these programs is delayed, New York City and New York State will lose at least $1.5 million in additional state and local tax revenue that would be generated if 100,000 immigrants in New York City were able to access temporary work permits through executive action.

"New York's immigrants are vital to our economy and we must do all we can to help them grow and thrive. Mayor de Blasio is correct – instead of putting up barriers, we should be looking at ways to help immigrants climb the ladder of economic opportunity and welcome them into our communities. The New York State Assembly Majority strongly supports President Obama's executive action on immigration, and further delay by those who would derail this important initiative is unacceptable," said New York State Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie.

"Each day we wait to implement President Obama's bold immigration reforms, millions of hard-working families remain in legal limbo. Immigrant communities built New York City, and they are the heart and soul of urban centers across our country,” said Public Advocate Letitia James. “As Congress and federal courts stall meaningful progress on immigration, New York City will continue to lead the nation.”

As part of Cities United for Immigration Action, Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti led the effort to organize more than 70 cities and counties, the National League of Cities, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors in arguing that the national public interest is served clearly and overwhelmingly by implementing immigration relief by executive action without delay. Today’s brief more than doubles the number of local governments that had previously voiced opposition to the lawsuit brought by states seeking to block President Obama’s immigration reform efforts.

The brief also argues that the District Court judge’s decision to block executive action with a preliminary injunction is bad for the economy, hurts families, threatens law enforcement priorities, and will stall desperately needed changes to the federal government’s immigration policies.

The de Blasio Administration has a proven track record of spearheading initiatives that integrate immigrants into the civic and economic life of New York City. From the IDNYC municipal identification program to increasing access to federal immigration benefits, New York City is committed to championing pro-immigrant policies that promote equity and create opportunity for all residents.

This collective action to offer the Court the crucial perspective of American cities and counties is an outcome of the organizing efforts of the Cities United for Immigration Action coalition. By filing this brief, America’s mayors and county leaders are making a strong statement in support of the President’s plan to grant administrative relief to over four million undocumented children and adults.

Numerous cities and counties signed on to today’s brief are located in states that brought the lawsuit against the Obama administration or have otherwise indicated support for the lawsuit, including five cities in Texas, six localities in New Jersey, two counties in Arizona, and three municipalities in Wisconsin. Cities and counties signed on to the brief (in formation) include the following local governments:

“Brooklyn is what America looks like, with nearly 40 percent of our residents being foreign-born, and when it comes to embracing our immigrant population, it is what America ought to be. President Obama's executive order on immigration is the most significant and meaningful step our nation has taken toward addressing this long-standing crisis and the millions of families who have been stuck in the shadows of our society, including hundreds of thousands right here in New York City. Our diversity is our greatest strength, and I join my fellow urban leaders from coast to coast in making this call to support the President's reforms,” said Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams.

“Legally and morally, the president's executive action on immigration was both within his power and the right thing to do,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer. “Blocking its implementation will do real harm to cities. That’s why joining with other cities and counties across the country urging its implementation is the right thing as well.”

“We stand with New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio’s and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti’s decision to file a ‘friend-of-the-court’ brief in support of President Barack Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Bronx Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. “The President’s executive action currently being blocked in the courts hurts The Bronx and New York City, with the borough losing out on potential local tax revenues that would be generated by these hard-working immigrants who just want to come out the shadows and positively contribute to our country. We are the land of opportunity, built on the ideal that we are melting pot that promotes equality for all and we must continue to strive for those ideals that make our country great.”

“President Obama's executive actions were bold and decisive steps toward fixing America's broken immigration system. The Statue of Liberty stands tall in our City, reminding us that America was built by generations of immigrants who came to its shores in search of a better life and a chance to make our country greater,” said U.S. Representative Charles Rangel. “I am proud to see that Mayor de Blasio is committed to keeping that promise alive for years to come.”

“The delay in the implementation of DAPA and expanded DACA threatens millions of American families with deportation, as well as the many communities, such as New York City, of which immigrants are an integral part,” said U.S. Representative Yvette Clarke. “No serious doubt exists that President Obama had the authority to establish DAPA and DACA. I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and the many community leaders across this nation who have raised their voices on behalf of millions of families who want to pursue the American Dream.”

“In the absence of legislative action by House Republicans, President Obama took decisive action on immigration because he knows that there are real lives at stake in our current broken system,” said U.S. Representative Joe Crowley. “It is deeply troubling that a Texas judge known to be hostile to immigrants is delaying the President’s executive measures, especially given the legal precedents set by previous administrations. Halting action that will help keep American families together strikes at the heart of what our country ought to be about, and I thank Mayors de Blasio, Garcetti, and many others for taking a stand and showing the widespread support for the President’s action. I’m confident the Department of Justice will succeed in its appeal of this decision and that we will move forward with this much-needed action that will make such a difference in New York City and elsewhere.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio for working with cities across the nation to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration,” said U.S. Representative Carolyn Maloney. “With over 12 million undocumented immigrants living in our country, comprehensive immigration reform is long overdue. Unfortunately, Congress has failed to act. That is why I strongly support President Obama’s executive actions, which will help keep families together, boost our economy and generate new tax revenue. These are common sense steps that mimic similar actions by Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush, and it’s long past time that President Obama’s reforms are implemented.”

“We can’t continue to delay implementing President Obama’s executive action on immigration. With this friend-of-the-court brief, New York City is joined by more than 70 cities nationwide in voicing its strong support for moving ahead with providing administrative deportation relief to more than 4 million immigrants with strong ties to the U.S. As the brief argues, the District Court’s holdup only hurts our economy, harmless immigrant families, and the federal government’s ability to address our broken immigration system. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for once again putting New York City at the forefront of efforts to help the immigrant community, in New York City, and nationwide,” said U.S. Representative José Serrano, Sr.

“The President’s immigration reforms make badly needed changes to a broken system and will benefit thousands of our neighbors,” stated U.S. Representative Nydia Velázquez. “It is critical for New York City and our nation as a whole that these reforms be implemented without delay.”

“Every day we delay fixing our broken immigration system is a missed opportunity,” said U.S. Representative Kathleen Rice. “There’s no question that we need to keep fighting for comprehensive immigration reform at the federal level, but our local communities can’t afford to wait when there’s no sign that this Congress is willing to pass real legislative solutions. Thousands of hard-working Long Island families are ready to come out of the shadows, stop living in fear and start participating fully in our local economies, and there’s no reason to deny them that opportunity any longer. Last week I joined several fellow Members of Congress in signing an amicus brief affirming our support for the government’s appeal, and the brief filed today by Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti shows that local and federal leaders across the country are united in our commitment to implementing the President’s executive actions.”

“Immigrants move New York’s economy forward,” said State Senator Leroy Comrie. “I represent a district where over a third of its population is foreign-born, and where many more are the children and grandchildren of the rich immigrant legacy this city – and this nation – is so proud of. Immigrants are innovators, business owners and job creators: they augment this City's supply of capital and ideas to diversify its narrative and keep it nationally and globally competitive. Not only is it in our best interest to immediately implement the President's platform for immigration reform, but it is the socially and morally responsible thing to do.”

“Every day the President's executive actions on immigration are blocked, is another day hundreds of thousands of young adults and parents, trying to provide for their families, are unable to work. This is not good for anyone, and the leaders of our cities and counties across the country know this first hand. I thank them for standing with undocumented immigrants and working to bring them out of the shadows,” said State Senator Adriano Espaillat, Chair of the State Senate Puerto Rican/Latino Caucus.

“This friend-of-the-court brief stands with immigrants in our communities against needless delay in the urgently needed Deferred Action programs. President Obama has charted a course for a more compassionate immigration system – a system that treats our friends and neighbors with the dignity they deserve. I commend this action by Mayor de Blasio and dozens of mayors across the United States in keeping with the vision President Obama outlined. I join these mayors and leaders across the country in reaffirming our commitment to America’s longstanding tradition of welcoming immigrants to our communities,” said State Senator Jesse Hamilton.

“It is time to stop intolerant views toward our immigrants. I am in full support of this brief, which is intended to safeguard and implement President Obama’s executive actions on immigration that are intended to keep families together,” said State Senator Jose Peralta. “We, as immigrants, live in all cities across our nation, and blocking the implementation of the President’s policies, hurts not just families fighting for the American Dream, but also our ongoing efforts to enrich and repair our economy.”

“I am very proud that New York City is leading the way on a collective amicus brief in the Texas vs. United States case which calls for swift and sweeping implementation of President Obama’s executive actions concerning rational immigration policy. The lives of millions of people hang in the balance, so many of them New Yorkers who share the same hopes, dreams and aspirations that each successive wave of immigrants harbored generations ago. Each of them found a true home here and it is time for our City and Country to open our arms and our hearts in the name of fundamental human rights,” said State Senator Bill Perkins.

“The implementation of President Obama's executive action on immigration is imperative to ensuring we support the countless immigrants that contribute to the social and economic life of our country,” said State Senator Gustavo Rivera. “We are a country of immigrants, and this executive action will help us strengthen and protect our diverse population, while honoring our values as Americans. I commend and thank Mayor de Blasio for having New York join cities and counties across our country in taking legal action to support an initial step towards immigration reform.”

“Here in a city and state where we pride ourselves on diversity, we can only benefit from the implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said State Senator James Sanders Jr. “It will allow for a reprieve from deportation while giving the undocumented a chance to work, providing a much needed boost to the economy. Just this past week, the state budget failed to include the DREAM Act, which would have given thousands of vibrant young people a chance at success by allowing them to continue their education and creating a pathway to citizenship. Let's not miss another opportunity to help build a stronger New York."

"Unjust deportations have continued to tear apart our families, our schools and our communities. We must act swiftly in implementing President Obama's immigration executive action in order to protect these important populations. Immigrants are the backbone of our communities, and I thank Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for creating a united front to demonstrate our support for the swift implementation of the President's measures," said State Senator José Serrano.

"The delay to President Obama's executive action on immigration is intolerable and comes with a real cost to real people," said Assembly Member Rodneyse Bichotte. "Every day, families of aspiring Americans are destroyed by a system badly in need of reform and the President's executive action offers needed help. I join with Mayor de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the Texas v. United States lawsuit to urge immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration. As a daughter of Haitian immigrants, and as a proud citizen of the United States and elected official of New York, I have a duty to act on behalf of the social justice of our people—as well as a fiduciary responsibility to ensure our economies gain the benefits immigration brings."

"As a child of Jamaican immigrants, it is personal for me that we stand up for Immigration justice and demand immediate action. The implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration is a moral, social, and economic necessity. The delays are inexcusable, and we must move forward. In past years, immigrants in NYC have accounted for more than $200 billion in economic activity to help revitalize vibrant neighborhoods including the work of Latino, Caribbean and African entrepreneurs in the South Bronx. Through hard work and tireless dedication, Immigrants embody the entrepreneurial spirit that makes our country so beautiful, and the best country in the world," said Assembly Member Michael Blake. "Immigrants are our neighbors, our friends, and our family, and I proudly stand with Mayor Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in calling for our judicial system to do the right thing, the humane thing, the compassionate thing, and give our communities the life they deserve."

"I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and all the other mayors for supporting immigration reforms. Implementation of the President's Immigration Executive action will provide much needed relief to immigrant families suffering under our broken system and is a crucial first step on the road to treating our immigrants with the fairness and respect they deserve," said Assembly Member Guillermo Linares.

"Every month that goes by without President Obama's executive actions is another month that families can be ripped apart," said Assembly Member Francisco Moya. "For those of us who deal with the fallout from our nation's flawed immigration policies on a daily basis, we know how critical the President's executive actions truly are. Keeping families together is not only the right thing to do; it's also in our nation's best interest."

"Mayor de Blasio is taking the right step filing today's court brief," said Assembly Member Felix Ortiz. "Without action from the Congress and State Legislature, we must support President Obama's efforts to protect workers and their families from deportation. While we keep the fight alive in Albany for the Dream Act, driver licenses and state-issued identification cards for non-citizens and better wages for all workers, today's action by our Mayor and by so many others across the nation is a positive step to make life better for millions. We can't wait any longer.”

“We need comprehensive immigration reform immediately,” said Assembly Member Robert Rodriguez. “President Obama’s Executive action is a huge step towards creating fair policies that help our growing immigrant communities of New York City thrive, any hindrance to its enactment harms us irreparably.”

“It is clear that our immigration system is broken and comprehensive reform is needed to provide long-term relief for the families who have contributed to the growth and prosperity of our nation,” said Assembly Member Nily Rozic. “Filing this brief is reflective of New York City's commitment to advancing immigrants' rights and I commend the Mayor for his continued advocacy and leadership on this urgent issue.

“With an estimated 100,000 undocumented immigrants in New York City who would benefit greatly from President Obama’s executive action this brief sends a strong message on the importance of implementing these reforms,” said Assembly Member Luis Sepúlveda. “New York has long been at the forefront of immigration reform. Mayor de Blasio has proven his commitment to immigrants throughout his first year in office and continues to through actions like this. I commend the Mayor and the many other cities and counties for supporting these initiatives, as implementing each one of them will be for the national public interest.”

“Opportunity for families in America to obtain basic rights and a better quality of life should not be dictated by political games. The partisan stalling of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action is sophomoric, and the District Court's preliminary objection undoubtedly has a deleterious effect on our national economy. New York City is, and always has been a city of immigrants, and we have this community to thank for the strength we enjoy as a City and a Nation . I am proud of New York City's participation in the amicus brief filed in Texas vs. United States, and am hopeful that the demand from such a robust list of diverse urban areas will bring us closer to real reform which has been long overdue,” said Assembly Member Keith Wright.

“I commend Mayor de Blasio in joining the effort to defend the President’s Administrative Relief that offers potential relief to millions of immigrants with strong ties to our nation, and who already work hard and contribute to make this a better country. While the Court stalls, and Congress fails to enact meaningful immigration reform, New York City will continue to protect the rights of immigrants and ensure that their contributions to our City are recognized—and celebrated. Our City continues to offer affirming spaces for immigrant populations, and I am hopeful that this action from our Mayor—and from his colleagues from around the country—will provide some context about the urgent need for the implementation of the President’s programs,” said Council Member Carlos Menchaca, Chair of the Committee on Immigration.

“I support the new friend-of-the-court brief urging immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. Immigrants are in important part of the fabric of our society and economy and granting administrative relief to those immigrants in need is an act of social responsibility,” said Council Member Inez Barron.

“I applaud New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio for joining Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti in filing a friend-of-the-court brief calling for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration. As an elected official representing an area with a significant immigrant population, I join with others across the country in urging the courts to move forward on providing deportation relief. The President’s immigration policies provide a just, sensible solution for millions of immigrants who live in the U.S. and contribute to our nation’s society in myriad ways. From an economic perspective, there is no question that New York stands to benefit from implementation of these policies, as significant tax revenues would be generated by the granting of temporary work permits to our City’s population of 100,000 immigrants,” said Council Member Fernando Cabrera.

“President Obama’s executive action on immigration will have a profoundly positive impact on thousands of families in our city, and it must be implemented immediately,” said Council Member Margaret Chin. “I strongly support today’s legal action in support of the President’s reforms, and I thank Mayor de Blasio for his continued leadership on this fundamentally important issue.”

“New York City is, was, and always will be a leader in the immigrant rights movement. We stand united in support of President Obama’s Executive Order,” said Council Member Andrew Cohen.

“We have waited for federal immigration reform for too long,” said Council Member Costa Constantinides. “The current federal laws are broken and lead to families being broken up or to unwarranted detention. President Obama’s executive order will take significant steps to help ameliorate these concerns. We must ensure due process and respect for all. I stand with Mayor De Blasio, Mayor Garcetti, and with 70 other cities across the nation that support the President’s order.”

“The stand the District Court Judge has taken against immigration reform is harming the future of our country, our immigrants,” said Council Member Daniel Dromm. “I am glad Mayor de Blasio has signed on to an amicus brief to push back against the court’s anti-immigrant actions. In New York City we support our immigrants not hold them back by putting obstacles to citizenship in their way.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio and the Mayors of more than 70 cities across the country for making it clear that they are ready, willing, and able to implement the reforms proposed by President Obama’s executive action. As the son of immigrants, I know firsthand the difficulties faced by those who have come to the United States seeking a better life for themselves and their families. Our immigration system is broken and full implementation of President Obama’s executive action is necessary in order to ensure more families are not harmed by failed policies,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal.

“President Obama’s executive action would be a lifeline to many families in our City who only want to work hard and provide more than they had for their children,” said Council Member Julissa Ferreras. “The continued delay of immigration reform only hurts our cities by separating families as well as denying our local governments millions of dollars in tax revenue. I commend Mayor de Blasio, Mayor Garcetti and the chief executives of over 70 American cities for championing this issue in our courts and call on Congress to finally do the right thing and recognize that immigration reform makes sense for all.”

“For too long, cities have been trying to navigate a federal immigration policy that is in dire need of reform. The President's executive actions were an important first step toward making sense of those immigration policies. Delaying their implementation creates very real problems for the cities that are on the front lines of the immigration debate,” said Council Member Dan Garodnick.

“By delaying the implementation of immigration reform, the court is making a decision that hurts state and local economies and needlessly diverts law enforcement attention,” said Council Member Vanessa Gibson. “Spending tax dollars to prosecute otherwise law abiding residents who want to work here, raise families here, and spend money here is a policy that has never made sense and I urge the court to recognize the considerable good immigration reform will bring to our communities. I am proud to stand with legislators within New York and around the country in support of President Obama’s actions and I look forward to a favorable decision that will uphold the ordered relief of nearly 4 million undocumented adults and children.”

“Today, New York City stands with over 70 American municipalities in support of President Obama’s recent executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Corey Johnson. “If implemented, the plan would grant much needed administrative relief and protection from deportation to over 4 million undocumented individuals. Our country and New York City were built by immigrants and their families. Barring immigrants from fully participating in American civic and economic life is contrary to our values. It’s time to make a change.”

“We are a nation of immigrants, including my grandparents who came here to escape antisemitism, and the grandparents of so many. We must continue to accept all those 'yearning to breathe free',” said Council Member Ben Kallos. “The state invests resources in every person the second they set foot in our soil. By welcoming people with open arms, we guarantee a return on that investment. I applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for urging the immediate implementation of President Obama's immigration reforms.”

“President Obama has signed an Executive Order and it’s shameful and unheard of for the District Court judge to block the executive action,” said Council Member Andy King, Co-Chair of the Black, Latino & Asian Caucus. “New York is and has always been a city of immigrants and President Obama’s vision allows for immediate reform in our communities. I stand with the Mayor and the President and all Americans across the nation committed to justice and our voices will be heard.”

"I see every day the positive impact immigrants have on our communities, as a representative of one of the most diverse areas in the country," said Council Member Rory Lancman. "Immigrants start businesses, pay taxes and raise their children here. Unfortunately, current US immigration policies leave far too many of our neighbors afraid that they will be deported from the country that has been their home for years. Mayor de Blasio's brief, joined by so many other cities, sends a clear message to the Court that cities support the President's action and want our immigrants to be able to come out of the shadows."

“New York City can’t wait any longer for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Steve Levin. “Thank you to Mayor de Blasio and cities and counties around the United States who are taking a stand for smart and needed immigration reforms.”

“Undocumented immigrants and their families have waited far too long for substantive and comprehensive immigration reform. Not only do we need these reforms to be effectuated, we also need more policies that will help bring relief to millions of immigrants, help keep their families together, while strengthening our economy. I’m proud to stand with Mayor de Blasio, my colleagues in City Council, and the cities and counties across the country, who are fighting for the rights of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Annabel Palma.

“I’d like to thank Mayor de Blasio for taking leadership on this important issue. Implementation of President Obama’s executive order would have a major positive impact on the lives of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso.

“I am proud to stand with Mayor De Blasio and 70 other municipalities throughout the nation in full support of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Donovan Richards. “The history of the United States is a history of immigrants. Extending temporary relief from deportation for residents that contribute millions of dollars to our domestic economy is common sense.

“President Obama's actions will bring 5 million immigrants out of the shadows. For years these families have lived with the constant anxiety and fear of deportation. But no longer. Now undocumented immigrants can apply to receive services that they've long deserved. By receiving social security cards and work permits so many will be able to legally work towards the American Dream they came to pursue,” said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez. “However, some among us want to push these families back into the shadows. Today we, the cities that drive our country's economy forward, stand united in support of the President’s actions.”

“The temporary work permits granted by President Barack Obama's executive action are essential to the daily functions of New York City and cities nationwide. We are a nation of immigrants, and delaying implementation of this program is, frankly, un-American. I stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti and the 72 cities and counties throughout the US (list in formation), in urging immediate implementation of this executive action,” said Council Member Helen Rosenthal.

“Immigrants make critical contributions our local economies and civic infrastructure, but cannot continue doing so if they are living in the shadows. The growing list of municipalities and counties signed onto the brief further underscores the importance and urgency of administrative relief for millions of undocumented children and adults. The Mayor has been a tireless champion of New York’s immigrant communities and I commend him for spearheading this effort,” said Council Member Richie Torres.

“I support the immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive order,” said Council Member Mark Weprin. “Immigrants have always played a vital role in shaping our nation’s economy and continue to contribute every day to the vitality of New York City.”

“Delaying President Obama’s executive orders to implement real immigration reform only puts New York City’s efforts to provide countless families economic opportunity they need on hold,” said New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. “Now is the time to act and our City is prepared to. I support Mayor de Blasio and numerous other cities throughout our nation’s efforts to begin implementing much-needed reforms for the millions of families who are looking to us for assistance to become included and engaged citizens of New York City and our great nation.”

“The time for a rational immigration policy has long been overdue. Where Congress has failed to act in the collective interest of the American people, President Obama has sought to step into the breach. The use of executive authority on this issue is with precedent, and this unfortunate maneuver by the State of Texas to stymie him ignores the greater economic, security, and familial needs of all our citizens. Mayor de Blasio recognizes these plain truths, and I support the amicus brief he and so many other municipalities, nationwide, have filed in support of the President’s action,” said Council Member Ruben Wills.

“In cities across the country, hard-working men and women are waiting for President Obama’s Executive Action to go into effect so they can live and work without fear of deportation and separation from their families,” said Hector Figueroa, President of 32BJ SEIU. “In Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington DC and many more cities up and down the East Coast, 32BJ members have long been part of the fight for immigration reform and we will continue to take action in Congress and on the streets until these reforms are implemented. It is the humane and just thing to do for immigrants and the right path forward for our country.”

“Immigrants are essential to local economies and industries throughout our country, especially the hospitality industry. Today’s actions show that local governments recognize that delaying the President’s Executive Action not only harms millions of working families but also jeopardizes recovering local economies,” said Peter Ward, President of the Hotel Trades Council.

“Workers and their families desperately need the immediate implementation of President Obama’s Executive Action for immigration reform. We commend these cities and their elected officials for submitting an amicus brief in support of President Obama’s Executive Action, the most far reaching immigration reform initiative in decades. Cities make up the backbone of the U.S. economy, much of it based on the work of immigrants. Millions of hard working immigrant families stand to benefit from this action, and they deserve this administrative relief,” said Stuart Appelbaum, President of Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

“The AFL-CIO has made supporting real immigration reform one of our top priorities because we understand the importance of ensuring that all workers receive the wages and benefits to which they are entitled,” said Vincent Alvarez, President of the New York City Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO. “By allowing undocumented workers to come out of the shadows, we will be working to eradicate the tools that allow unscrupulous employers to drive down wages, and rob workers of fair pay, benefits, and workplace rights. The implementation of President Obama’s immigration recommendations is already long overdue. Let’s make this happen for New York City’s workers.”

“Immigrants, including many who would be eligible for work permits under President Obama’s Executive Action, contribute every day to the vibrancy and health of our cities. The Executive Action will keep families together, boost our economy and focus law enforcement resources. We applaud Mayor de Blasio’s advocacy on behalf of these hard-working New Yorkers and join him in calling for immediate implementation of the action,” said Maria Castaneda, Secretary-Treasurer of 1199 SEIU.

"We applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for leading the charge to demand immediate implementation of immigration relief to keep families together across the United States. As our communities demand action, scores of cities from coast to coast are stepping up and saying with one voice that the Court of Appeals must allow President Obama's administrative actions, which are grounded in strong legal precedent, to move forward," said Javier H. Valdés, co-Executive Director of Make the Road New York.

"Very much like every major city in America, New York City is a strong and vibrant city thanks to our immigrant population," said Jonathan Westin, Executive Director of New York Communities for Change. "Our cities are better when our immigrant brothers and sisters can thrive. Therefore, we urge the immediate implementation of the President's Immigration Executive Action. Our cities have too much to lose if action is not taken now."

"We are proud that our city's Mayor Bill de Blasio is setting a precedent by taking legal action and making it known that the delays to President Obama's executive actions are unacceptable," said Steven Choi, executive director of the New York Immigration Coalition. "The NYIC and our membership, along with our city and state partners including the Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs, continue our efforts to prepare the 100,000 plus New Yorkers who can benefit from these programs. We stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the call for immediate implementation of immigration relief."

"At a time when anti-immigrant voices are using myths about immigrants and the effects of immigration to derail a constructive national policy debate, few actions are more important than local governments uniting to fight for immediate relief and implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Actions. In outlining the economic and fiscal benefits of deferred action policies, New York City is a key stakeholder. Mayor Bill de Blasio has underscored once again our city's courage in the fight for justice and we stand in solidarity to see administrative relief programs take full-effect immediately," said Lucia Gomez, Executive Director of La Fuente.

"The Asian American Federation fully supports Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti's appeal to implement President Obama's executive action without any further delay. Immigrants and their families, who have made valuable contributions to the U.S., deserve the temporary relief and protection that this immigration reform provides. We stand with our community to ensure that the President's executive action sees the light of day," said Jo-Ann Yoo, Executive Director of the Asian American Federation.

"Millions of lives are on hold as President Obama's legal Executive Action is being dragged through the courts. Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights commends Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for supporting legal action urging immediate implementation of Executive Action," said Angela Fernandez, Executive Director of Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights.

"Immigration reform is vital for New York's African immigrant communities," said Amaha Kassa, Executive Director of African Communities Together. "All of our members have heard about President Obama's executive actions, many are qualified and ready to apply for relief, and none of them can understand why progress has been put on hold. This filing sends an important message that New York City has immigrants' backs, even if some states have chosen to send the opposite message."

“President Obama’s November, 2014 Deferred Action programs – both the DACA extension and DAPA – should be implemented now. With each passing day, families continue to be torn apart, leaving behind American children to fend for themselves. Hard-working immigrant parents live in fear and are preyed upon, and cannot become full members of our society. As the child of Mexican immigrant parents whose life dramatically changed after they received legal status via IRCA, the benefits of immigration relief to are society are clear to me. My parents became homeowners and were able to support three college graduates. I applaud Mayors De Blasio and Garcetti, along with the 70 cities and counties who have signed on, for their leadership and for lending their voice to challenge the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, said Aracelis Lucero, Executive Director of Masa, Inc.

“Chicago has always been a city of immigrants, and for us to stay true to our history and our values, we must ensure that immigrants can fully participate in all aspects of our economic and cultural life,” said Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel. “We are proud to join numerous cities in filing this amicus brief to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. They will help keep families together, increase safety in our communities, and maximize the contributions that immigrants make every day in every part of our city.”

“Cities are strongly affected by immigration. The old, dysfunctional immigration policies hurt our economies, our neighborhoods, our businesses and our residents. The President is attempting to interject common sense and humanity. We are grateful for his efforts and we stand with him,” said Portland Mayor Charlie Hales.

“I am signing onto this brief because as a nation of immigrants, I believe ensuring access to a fair and legal process for people to come to this country and pursue their dreams reflects our highest values,” said Chapel Hill Mayor Mark Kleinschmidt.

“We must do better to honor our country's proud immigration tradition. Too many immigrants live in fear, afraid to become members of our society, while Congress fails to take any meaningful action to fix a broken immigration system. Their inaction has real consequences for our communities, which is why I fully support President Obama's leadership and common sense executive actions. I thank Mayor de Blasio for initiating this brief and building this important coalition of leaders,” said Hoboken Mayor Dawn Zimmer.

MAYORS DE BLASIO AND GARCETTI ANNOUNCE LEGAL ACTION IN SUPPORT OF IMMIGRATION REFORMS

More Than 70 Cities & Counties Sign Texas vs. United States Appeal Urging Immediate Implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action

NEW YORK—New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti announced today that 73 cities and counties had filed a new friend-of-the-court brief in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, urging immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration.

“Continuing to delay implementation of the President’s executive action on immigration hurts our economy and puts families at risk,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “Cities are where immigrants live, and cities are where the President’s executive action will be successfully implemented. Our cities are united, and we will fight for the immigration reform this nation needs and deserves – whether in the courtroom, in Congress, or in our communities. Make no mistake about it: our voices will be heard.”

“Our cities cannot afford delays to immigration reforms that will strengthen our economy and help families,” said Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti. “This isn’t a blue or red issue, but a human and economic one.”

The brief demonstrates robust support from the country’s largest cities – as well as suburbs and rural areas – for the President’s reforms, which will temporarily relieve from deportation thousands of immigrants who have longstanding ties to the U.S.

The cities and counties – representing 43 million people across the country – argue that the district court judge who temporarily blocked implementation of the programs failed to consider the significant harm to America’s local governments caused by this delay.

According to an analysis by the City, each month that the implementation of these programs is delayed, New York City and New York State will lose at least $1.5 million in additional state and local tax revenue that would be generated if 100,000 immigrants in New York City were able to access temporary work permits through executive action.

“New York’s immigrants are vital to our economy and we must do all we can to help them grow and thrive. Mayor de Blasio is correct – instead of putting up barriers, we should be looking at ways to help immigrants climb the ladder of economic opportunity and welcome them into our communities. The New York State Assembly Majority strongly supports President Obama’s executive action on immigration, and further delay by those who would derail this important initiative is unacceptable,” said New York State Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie.

“Each day we wait to implement President Obama’s bold immigration reforms, millions of hard-working families remain in legal limbo. Immigrant communities built New York City, and they are the heart and soul of urban centers across our country,” said Public Advocate Letitia James. “As Congress and federal courts stall meaningful progress on immigration, New York City will continue to lead the nation.”

As part of Cities United for Immigration Action, Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti led the effort to organize more than 70 cities and counties, the National League of Cities, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors in arguing that the national public interest is served clearly and overwhelmingly by implementing immigration relief by executive action without delay. Today’s brief more than doubles the number of local governments that had previously voiced opposition to the lawsuit brought by states seeking to block President Obama’s immigration reform efforts.

The brief also argues that the District Court judge’s decision to block executive action with a preliminary injunction is bad for the economy, hurts families, threatens law enforcement priorities, and will stall desperately needed changes to the federal government’s immigration policies.

The de Blasio Administration has a proven track record of spearheading initiatives that integrate immigrants into the civic and economic life of New York City. From the IDNYC municipal identification program to increasing access to federal immigration benefits, New York City is committed to championing pro-immigrant policies that promote equity and create opportunity for all residents.

This collective action to offer the Court the crucial perspective of American cities and counties is an outcome of the organizing efforts of the Cities United for Immigration Action coalition. By filing this brief, America’s mayors and county leaders are making a strong statement in support of the President’s plan to grant administrative relief to over four million undocumented children and adults.

Numerous cities and counties signed on to today’s brief are located in states that brought the lawsuit against the Obama administration or have otherwise indicated support for the lawsuit, including five cities in Texas, six localities in New Jersey, two counties in Arizona, and three municipalities in Wisconsin. Cities and counties signed on to the brief (in formation) include the following local governments:

“Brooklyn is what America looks like, with nearly 40 percent of our residents being foreign-born, and when it comes to embracing our immigrant population, it is what America ought to be. President Obama's executive order on immigration is the most significant and meaningful step our nation has taken toward addressing this long-standing crisis and the millions of families who have been stuck in the shadows of our society, including hundreds of thousands right here in New York City. Our diversity is our greatest strength, and I join my fellow urban leaders from coast to coast in making this call to support the President's reforms,” said Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams.

“Legally and morally, the president's executive action on immigration was both within his power and the right thing to do,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer. “Blocking its implementation will do real harm to cities. That’s why joining with other cities and counties across the country urging its implementation is the right thing as well.”

“We stand with New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio’s and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti’s decision to file a ‘friend-of-the-court’ brief in support of President Barack Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Bronx Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. “The President’s executive action currently being blocked in the courts hurts The Bronx and New York City, with the borough losing out on potential local tax revenues that would be generated by these hard-working immigrants who just want to come out the shadows and positively contribute to our country. We are the land of opportunity, built on the ideal that we are melting pot that promotes equality for all and we must continue to strive for those ideals that make our country great.”

“President Obama's executive actions were bold and decisive steps toward fixing America's broken immigration system. The Statue of Liberty stands tall in our City, reminding us that America was built by generations of immigrants who came to its shores in search of a better life and a chance to make our country greater,” said U.S. Representative Charles Rangel. “I am proud to see that Mayor de Blasio is committed to keeping that promise alive for years to come.”

“The delay in the implementation of DAPA and expanded DACA threatens millions of American families with deportation, as well as the many communities, such as New York City, of which immigrants are an integral part,” said U.S. Representative Yvette Clarke. “No serious doubt exists that President Obama had the authority to establish DAPA and DACA. I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and the many community leaders across this nation who have raised their voices on behalf of millions of families who want to pursue the American Dream.”

“In the absence of legislative action by House Republicans, President Obama took decisive action on immigration because he knows that there are real lives at stake in our current broken system,” said U.S. Representative Joe Crowley. “It is deeply troubling that a Texas judge known to be hostile to immigrants is delaying the President’s executive measures, especially given the legal precedents set by previous administrations. Halting action that will help keep American families together strikes at the heart of what our country ought to be about, and I thank Mayors de Blasio, Garcetti, and many others for taking a stand and showing the widespread support for the President’s action. I’m confident the Department of Justice will succeed in its appeal of this decision and that we will move forward with this much-needed action that will make such a difference in New York City and elsewhere.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio for working with cities across the nation to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration,” said U.S. Representative Carolyn Maloney. “With over 12 million undocumented immigrants living in our country, comprehensive immigration reform is long overdue. Unfortunately, Congress has failed to act. That is why I strongly support President Obama’s executive actions, which will help keep families together, boost our economy and generate new tax revenue. These are common sense steps that mimic similar actions by Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush, and it’s long past time that President Obama’s reforms are implemented.”

“We can’t continue to delay implementing President Obama’s executive action on immigration. With this friend-of-the-court brief, New York City is joined by more than 70 cities nationwide in voicing its strong support for moving ahead with providing administrative deportation relief to more than 4 million immigrants with strong ties to the U.S. As the brief argues, the District Court’s holdup only hurts our economy, harmless immigrant families, and the federal government’s ability to address our broken immigration system. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for once again putting New York City at the forefront of efforts to help the immigrant community, in New York City, and nationwide,” said U.S. Representative José Serrano, Sr.

“The President’s immigration reforms make badly needed changes to a broken system and will benefit thousands of our neighbors,” stated U.S. Representative Nydia Velázquez. “It is critical for New York City and our nation as a whole that these reforms be implemented without delay.”

“Every day we delay fixing our broken immigration system is a missed opportunity,” said U.S. Representative Kathleen Rice. “There’s no question that we need to keep fighting for comprehensive immigration reform at the federal level, but our local communities can’t afford to wait when there’s no sign that this Congress is willing to pass real legislative solutions. Thousands of hard-working Long Island families are ready to come out of the shadows, stop living in fear and start participating fully in our local economies, and there’s no reason to deny them that opportunity any longer. Last week I joined several fellow Members of Congress in signing an amicus brief affirming our support for the government’s appeal, and the brief filed today by Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti shows that local and federal leaders across the country are united in our commitment to implementing the President’s executive actions.”

“Immigrants move New York’s economy forward,” said State Senator Leroy Comrie. “I represent a district where over a third of its population is foreign-born, and where many more are the children and grandchildren of the rich immigrant legacy this city – and this nation – is so proud of. Immigrants are innovators, business owners and job creators: they augment this City's supply of capital and ideas to diversify its narrative and keep it nationally and globally competitive. Not only is it in our best interest to immediately implement the President's platform for immigration reform, but it is the socially and morally responsible thing to do.”

“Every day the President's executive actions on immigration are blocked, is another day hundreds of thousands of young adults and parents, trying to provide for their families, are unable to work. This is not good for anyone, and the leaders of our cities and counties across the country know this first hand. I thank them for standing with undocumented immigrants and working to bring them out of the shadows,” said State Senator Adriano Espaillat, Chair of the State Senate Puerto Rican/Latino Caucus.

“This friend-of-the-court brief stands with immigrants in our communities against needless delay in the urgently needed Deferred Action programs. President Obama has charted a course for a more compassionate immigration system – a system that treats our friends and neighbors with the dignity they deserve. I commend this action by Mayor de Blasio and dozens of mayors across the United States in keeping with the vision President Obama outlined. I join these mayors and leaders across the country in reaffirming our commitment to America’s longstanding tradition of welcoming immigrants to our communities,” said State Senator Jesse Hamilton.

“It is time to stop intolerant views toward our immigrants. I am in full support of this brief, which is intended to safeguard and implement President Obama’s executive actions on immigration that are intended to keep families together,” said State Senator Jose Peralta. “We, as immigrants, live in all cities across our nation, and blocking the implementation of the President’s policies, hurts not just families fighting for the American Dream, but also our ongoing efforts to enrich and repair our economy.”

“I am very proud that New York City is leading the way on a collective amicus brief in the Texas vs. United States case which calls for swift and sweeping implementation of President Obama’s executive actions concerning rational immigration policy. The lives of millions of people hang in the balance, so many of them New Yorkers who share the same hopes, dreams and aspirations that each successive wave of immigrants harbored generations ago. Each of them found a true home here and it is time for our City and Country to open our arms and our hearts in the name of fundamental human rights,” said State Senator Bill Perkins.

“The implementation of President Obama's executive action on immigration is imperative to ensuring we support the countless immigrants that contribute to the social and economic life of our country,” said State Senator Gustavo Rivera. “We are a country of immigrants, and this executive action will help us strengthen and protect our diverse population, while honoring our values as Americans. I commend and thank Mayor de Blasio for having New York join cities and counties across our country in taking legal action to support an initial step towards immigration reform.”

“Here in a city and state where we pride ourselves on diversity, we can only benefit from the implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said State Senator James Sanders Jr. “It will allow for a reprieve from deportation while giving the undocumented a chance to work, providing a much needed boost to the economy. Just this past week, the state budget failed to include the DREAM Act, which would have given thousands of vibrant young people a chance at success by allowing them to continue their education and creating a pathway to citizenship. Let's not miss another opportunity to help build a stronger New York."

"Unjust deportations have continued to tear apart our families, our schools and our communities. We must act swiftly in implementing President Obama's immigration executive action in order to protect these important populations. Immigrants are the backbone of our communities, and I thank Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for creating a united front to demonstrate our support for the swift implementation of the President's measures," said State Senator José Serrano.

"The delay to President Obama's executive action on immigration is intolerable and comes with a real cost to real people," said Assembly Member Rodneyse Bichotte. "Every day, families of aspiring Americans are destroyed by a system badly in need of reform and the President's executive action offers needed help. I join with Mayor de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the Texas v. United States lawsuit to urge immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration. As a daughter of Haitian immigrants, and as a proud citizen of the United States and elected official of New York, I have a duty to act on behalf of the social justice of our people—as well as a fiduciary responsibility to ensure our economies gain the benefits immigration brings."

"As a child of Jamaican immigrants, it is personal for me that we stand up for Immigration justice and demand immediate action. The implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration is a moral, social, and economic necessity. The delays are inexcusable, and we must move forward. In past years, immigrants in NYC have accounted for more than $200 billion in economic activity to help revitalize vibrant neighborhoods including the work of Latino, Caribbean and African entrepreneurs in the South Bronx. Through hard work and tireless dedication, Immigrants embody the entrepreneurial spirit that makes our country so beautiful, and the best country in the world," said Assembly Member Michael Blake. "Immigrants are our neighbors, our friends, and our family, and I proudly stand with Mayor Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in calling for our judicial system to do the right thing, the humane thing, the compassionate thing, and give our communities the life they deserve."

"I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and all the other mayors for supporting immigration reforms. Implementation of the President's Immigration Executive action will provide much needed relief to immigrant families suffering under our broken system and is a crucial first step on the road to treating our immigrants with the fairness and respect they deserve," said Assembly Member Guillermo Linares.

"Every month that goes by without President Obama's executive actions is another month that families can be ripped apart," said Assembly Member Francisco Moya. "For those of us who deal with the fallout from our nation's flawed immigration policies on a daily basis, we know how critical the President's executive actions truly are. Keeping families together is not only the right thing to do; it's also in our nation's best interest."

"Mayor de Blasio is taking the right step filing today's court brief," said Assembly Member Felix Ortiz. "Without action from the Congress and State Legislature, we must support President Obama's efforts to protect workers and their families from deportation. While we keep the fight alive in Albany for the Dream Act, driver licenses and state-issued identification cards for non-citizens and better wages for all workers, today's action by our Mayor and by so many others across the nation is a positive step to make life better for millions. We can't wait any longer.”

“We need comprehensive immigration reform immediately,” said Assembly Member Robert Rodriguez. “President Obama’s Executive action is a huge step towards creating fair policies that help our growing immigrant communities of New York City thrive, any hindrance to its enactment harms us irreparably.”

“It is clear that our immigration system is broken and comprehensive reform is needed to provide long-term relief for the families who have contributed to the growth and prosperity of our nation,” said Assembly Member Nily Rozic. “Filing this brief is reflective of New York City's commitment to advancing immigrants' rights and I commend the Mayor for his continued advocacy and leadership on this urgent issue.

“With an estimated 100,000 undocumented immigrants in New York City who would benefit greatly from President Obama’s executive action this brief sends a strong message on the importance of implementing these reforms,” said Assembly Member Luis Sepúlveda. “New York has long been at the forefront of immigration reform. Mayor de Blasio has proven his commitment to immigrants throughout his first year in office and continues to through actions like this. I commend the Mayor and the many other cities and counties for supporting these initiatives, as implementing each one of them will be for the national public interest.”

“Opportunity for families in America to obtain basic rights and a better quality of life should not be dictated by political games. The partisan stalling of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action is sophomoric, and the District Court's preliminary objection undoubtedly has a deleterious effect on our national economy. New York City is, and always has been a city of immigrants, and we have this community to thank for the strength we enjoy as a City and a Nation . I am proud of New York City's participation in the amicus brief filed in Texas vs. United States, and am hopeful that the demand from such a robust list of diverse urban areas will bring us closer to real reform which has been long overdue,” said Assembly Member Keith Wright.

“I commend Mayor de Blasio in joining the effort to defend the President’s Administrative Relief that offers potential relief to millions of immigrants with strong ties to our nation, and who already work hard and contribute to make this a better country. While the Court stalls, and Congress fails to enact meaningful immigration reform, New York City will continue to protect the rights of immigrants and ensure that their contributions to our City are recognized—and celebrated. Our City continues to offer affirming spaces for immigrant populations, and I am hopeful that this action from our Mayor—and from his colleagues from around the country—will provide some context about the urgent need for the implementation of the President’s programs,” said Council Member Carlos Menchaca, Chair of the Committee on Immigration.

“I support the new friend-of-the-court brief urging immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. Immigrants are in important part of the fabric of our society and economy and granting administrative relief to those immigrants in need is an act of social responsibility,” said Council Member Inez Barron.

“I applaud New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio for joining Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti in filing a friend-of-the-court brief calling for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration. As an elected official representing an area with a significant immigrant population, I join with others across the country in urging the courts to move forward on providing deportation relief. The President’s immigration policies provide a just, sensible solution for millions of immigrants who live in the U.S. and contribute to our nation’s society in myriad ways. From an economic perspective, there is no question that New York stands to benefit from implementation of these policies, as significant tax revenues would be generated by the granting of temporary work permits to our City’s population of 100,000 immigrants,” said Council Member Fernando Cabrera.

“President Obama’s executive action on immigration will have a profoundly positive impact on thousands of families in our city, and it must be implemented immediately,” said Council Member Margaret Chin. “I strongly support today’s legal action in support of the President’s reforms, and I thank Mayor de Blasio for his continued leadership on this fundamentally important issue.”

“New York City is, was, and always will be a leader in the immigrant rights movement. We stand united in support of President Obama’s Executive Order,” said Council Member Andrew Cohen.

“We have waited for federal immigration reform for too long,” said Council Member Costa Constantinides. “The current federal laws are broken and lead to families being broken up or to unwarranted detention. President Obama’s executive order will take significant steps to help ameliorate these concerns. We must ensure due process and respect for all. I stand with Mayor De Blasio, Mayor Garcetti, and with 70 other cities across the nation that support the President’s order.”

“The stand the District Court Judge has taken against immigration reform is harming the future of our country, our immigrants,” said Council Member Daniel Dromm. “I am glad Mayor de Blasio has signed on to an amicus brief to push back against the court’s anti-immigrant actions. In New York City we support our immigrants not hold them back by putting obstacles to citizenship in their way.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio and the Mayors of more than 70 cities across the country for making it clear that they are ready, willing, and able to implement the reforms proposed by President Obama’s executive action. As the son of immigrants, I know firsthand the difficulties faced by those who have come to the United States seeking a better life for themselves and their families. Our immigration system is broken and full implementation of President Obama’s executive action is necessary in order to ensure more families are not harmed by failed policies,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal.

“President Obama’s executive action would be a lifeline to many families in our City who only want to work hard and provide more than they had for their children,” said Council Member Julissa Ferreras. “The continued delay of immigration reform only hurts our cities by separating families as well as denying our local governments millions of dollars in tax revenue. I commend Mayor de Blasio, Mayor Garcetti and the chief executives of over 70 American cities for championing this issue in our courts and call on Congress to finally do the right thing and recognize that immigration reform makes sense for all.”

“For too long, cities have been trying to navigate a federal immigration policy that is in dire need of reform. The President's executive actions were an important first step toward making sense of those immigration policies. Delaying their implementation creates very real problems for the cities that are on the front lines of the immigration debate,” said Council Member Dan Garodnick.

“By delaying the implementation of immigration reform, the court is making a decision that hurts state and local economies and needlessly diverts law enforcement attention,” said Council Member Vanessa Gibson. “Spending tax dollars to prosecute otherwise law abiding residents who want to work here, raise families here, and spend money here is a policy that has never made sense and I urge the court to recognize the considerable good immigration reform will bring to our communities. I am proud to stand with legislators within New York and around the country in support of President Obama’s actions and I look forward to a favorable decision that will uphold the ordered relief of nearly 4 million undocumented adults and children.”

“Today, New York City stands with over 70 American municipalities in support of President Obama’s recent executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Corey Johnson. “If implemented, the plan would grant much needed administrative relief and protection from deportation to over 4 million undocumented individuals. Our country and New York City were built by immigrants and their families. Barring immigrants from fully participating in American civic and economic life is contrary to our values. It’s time to make a change.”

“We are a nation of immigrants, including my grandparents who came here to escape antisemitism, and the grandparents of so many. We must continue to accept all those 'yearning to breathe free',” said Council Member Ben Kallos. “The state invests resources in every person the second they set foot in our soil. By welcoming people with open arms, we guarantee a return on that investment. I applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for urging the immediate implementation of President Obama's immigration reforms.”

“President Obama has signed an Executive Order and it’s shameful and unheard of for the District Court judge to block the executive action,” said Council Member Andy King, Co-Chair of the Black, Latino & Asian Caucus. “New York is and has always been a city of immigrants and President Obama’s vision allows for immediate reform in our communities. I stand with the Mayor and the President and all Americans across the nation committed to justice and our voices will be heard.”

"I see every day the positive impact immigrants have on our communities, as a representative of one of the most diverse areas in the country," said Council Member Rory Lancman. "Immigrants start businesses, pay taxes and raise their children here. Unfortunately, current US immigration policies leave far too many of our neighbors afraid that they will be deported from the country that has been their home for years. Mayor de Blasio's brief, joined by so many other cities, sends a clear message to the Court that cities support the President's action and want our immigrants to be able to come out of the shadows."

“New York City can’t wait any longer for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Steve Levin. “Thank you to Mayor de Blasio and cities and counties around the United States who are taking a stand for smart and needed immigration reforms.”

“Undocumented immigrants and their families have waited far too long for substantive and comprehensive immigration reform. Not only do we need these reforms to be effectuated, we also need more policies that will help bring relief to millions of immigrants, help keep their families together, while strengthening our economy. I’m proud to stand with Mayor de Blasio, my colleagues in City Council, and the cities and counties across the country, who are fighting for the rights of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Annabel Palma.

“I’d like to thank Mayor de Blasio for taking leadership on this important issue. Implementation of President Obama’s executive order would have a major positive impact on the lives of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso.

“I am proud to stand with Mayor De Blasio and 70 other municipalities throughout the nation in full support of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Donovan Richards. “The history of the United States is a history of immigrants. Extending temporary relief from deportation for residents that contribute millions of dollars to our domestic economy is common sense.

“President Obama's actions will bring 5 million immigrants out of the shadows. For years these families have lived with the constant anxiety and fear of deportation. But no longer. Now undocumented immigrants can apply to receive services that they've long deserved. By receiving social security cards and work permits so many will be able to legally work towards the American Dream they came to pursue,” said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez. “However, some among us want to push these families back into the shadows. Today we, the cities that drive our country's economy forward, stand united in support of the President’s actions.”

“The temporary work permits granted by President Barack Obama's executive action are essential to the daily functions of New York City and cities nationwide. We are a nation of immigrants, and delaying implementation of this program is, frankly, un-American. I stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti and the 72 cities and counties throughout the US (list in formation), in urging immediate implementation of this executive action,” said Council Member Helen Rosenthal.

“Immigrants make critical contributions our local economies and civic infrastructure, but cannot continue doing so if they are living in the shadows. The growing list of municipalities and counties signed onto the brief further underscores the importance and urgency of administrative relief for millions of undocumented children and adults. The Mayor has been a tireless champion of New York’s immigrant communities and I commend him for spearheading this effort,” said Council Member Richie Torres.

“I support the immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive order,” said Council Member Mark Weprin. “Immigrants have always played a vital role in shaping our nation’s economy and continue to contribute every day to the vitality of New York City.”

“Delaying President Obama’s executive orders to implement real immigration reform only puts New York City’s efforts to provide countless families economic opportunity they need on hold,” said New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. “Now is the time to act and our City is prepared to. I support Mayor de Blasio and numerous other cities throughout our nation’s efforts to begin implementing much-needed reforms for the millions of families who are looking to us for assistance to become included and engaged citizens of New York City and our great nation.”

“The time for a rational immigration policy has long been overdue. Where Congress has failed to act in the collective interest of the American people, President Obama has sought to step into the breach. The use of executive authority on this issue is with precedent, and this unfortunate maneuver by the State of Texas to stymie him ignores the greater economic, security, and familial needs of all our citizens. Mayor de Blasio recognizes these plain truths, and I support the amicus brief he and so many other municipalities, nationwide, have filed in support of the President’s action,” said Council Member Ruben Wills.

“In cities across the country, hard-working men and women are waiting for President Obama’s Executive Action to go into effect so they can live and work without fear of deportation and separation from their families,” said Hector Figueroa, President of 32BJ SEIU. “In Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington DC and many more cities up and down the East Coast, 32BJ members have long been part of the fight for immigration reform and we will continue to take action in Congress and on the streets until these reforms are implemented. It is the humane and just thing to do for immigrants and the right path forward for our country.”

“Immigrants are essential to local economies and industries throughout our country, especially the hospitality industry. Today’s actions show that local governments recognize that delaying the President’s Executive Action not only harms millions of working families but also jeopardizes recovering local economies,” said Peter Ward, President of the Hotel Trades Council.

“Workers and their families desperately need the immediate implementation of President Obama’s Executive Action for immigration reform. We commend these cities and their elected officials for submitting an amicus brief in support of President Obama’s Executive Action, the most far reaching immigration reform initiative in decades. Cities make up the backbone of the U.S. economy, much of it based on the work of immigrants. Millions of hard working immigrant families stand to benefit from this action, and they deserve this administrative relief,” said Stuart Appelbaum, President of Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

“The AFL-CIO has made supporting real immigration reform one of our top priorities because we understand the importance of ensuring that all workers receive the wages and benefits to which they are entitled,” said Vincent Alvarez, President of the New York City Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO. “By allowing undocumented workers to come out of the shadows, we will be working to eradicate the tools that allow unscrupulous employers to drive down wages, and rob workers of fair pay, benefits, and workplace rights. The implementation of President Obama’s immigration recommendations is already long overdue. Let’s make this happen for New York City’s workers.”

“Immigrants, including many who would be eligible for work permits under President Obama’s Executive Action, contribute every day to the vibrancy and health of our cities. The Executive Action will keep families together, boost our economy and focus law enforcement resources. We applaud Mayor de Blasio’s advocacy on behalf of these hard-working New Yorkers and join him in calling for immediate implementation of the action,” said Maria Castaneda, Secretary-Treasurer of 1199 SEIU.

"We applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for leading the charge to demand immediate implementation of immigration relief to keep families together across the United States. As our communities demand action, scores of cities from coast to coast are stepping up and saying with one voice that the Court of Appeals must allow President Obama's administrative actions, which are grounded in strong legal precedent, to move forward," said Javier H. Valdés, co-Executive Director of Make the Road New York.

"Very much like every major city in America, New York City is a strong and vibrant city thanks to our immigrant population," said Jonathan Westin, Executive Director of New York Communities for Change. "Our cities are better when our immigrant brothers and sisters can thrive. Therefore, we urge the immediate implementation of the President's Immigration Executive Action. Our cities have too much to lose if action is not taken now."

"We are proud that our city's Mayor Bill de Blasio is setting a precedent by taking legal action and making it known that the delays to President Obama's executive actions are unacceptable," said Steven Choi, executive director of the New York Immigration Coalition. "The NYIC and our membership, along with our city and state partners including the Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs, continue our efforts to prepare the 100,000 plus New Yorkers who can benefit from these programs. We stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the call for immediate implementation of immigration relief."

"At a time when anti-immigrant voices are using myths about immigrants and the effects of immigration to derail a constructive national policy debate, few actions are more important than local governments uniting to fight for immediate relief and implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Actions. In outlining the economic and fiscal benefits of deferred action policies, New York City is a key stakeholder. Mayor Bill de Blasio has underscored once again our city's courage in the fight for justice and we stand in solidarity to see administrative relief programs take full-effect immediately," said Lucia Gomez, Executive Director of La Fuente.

"The Asian American Federation fully supports Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti's appeal to implement President Obama's executive action without any further delay. Immigrants and their families, who have made valuable contributions to the U.S., deserve the temporary relief and protection that this immigration reform provides. We stand with our community to ensure that the President's executive action sees the light of day," said Jo-Ann Yoo, Executive Director of the Asian American Federation.

"Millions of lives are on hold as President Obama's legal Executive Action is being dragged through the courts. Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights commends Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for supporting legal action urging immediate implementation of Executive Action," said Angela Fernandez, Executive Director of Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights.

"Immigration reform is vital for New York's African immigrant communities," said Amaha Kassa, Executive Director of African Communities Together. "All of our members have heard about President Obama's executive actions, many are qualified and ready to apply for relief, and none of them can understand why progress has been put on hold. This filing sends an important message that New York City has immigrants' backs, even if some states have chosen to send the opposite message."

“President Obama’s November, 2014 Deferred Action programs – both the DACA extension and DAPA – should be implemented now. With each passing day, families continue to be torn apart, leaving behind American children to fend for themselves. Hard-working immigrant parents live in fear and are preyed upon, and cannot become full members of our society. As the child of Mexican immigrant parents whose life dramatically changed after they received legal status via IRCA, the benefits of immigration relief to are society are clear to me. My parents became homeowners and were able to support three college graduates. I applaud Mayors De Blasio and Garcetti, along with the 70 cities and counties who have signed on, for their leadership and for lending their voice to challenge the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, said Aracelis Lucero, Executive Director of Masa, Inc.

“Chicago has always been a city of immigrants, and for us to stay true to our history and our values, we must ensure that immigrants can fully participate in all aspects of our economic and cultural life,” said Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel. “We are proud to join numerous cities in filing this amicus brief to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. They will help keep families together, increase safety in our communities, and maximize the contributions that immigrants make every day in every part of our city.”

“Cities are strongly affected by immigration. The old, dysfunctional immigration policies hurt our economies, our neighborhoods, our businesses and our residents. The President is attempting to interject common sense and humanity. We are grateful for his efforts and we stand with him,” said Portland Mayor Charlie Hales.

“I am signing onto this brief because as a nation of immigrants, I believe ensuring access to a fair and legal process for people to come to this country and pursue their dreams reflects our highest values,” said Chapel Hill Mayor Mark Kleinschmidt.

“We must do better to honor our country's proud immigration tradition. Too many immigrants live in fear, afraid to become members of our society, while Congress fails to take any meaningful action to fix a broken immigration system. Their inaction has real consequences for our communities, which is why I fully support President Obama's leadership and common sense executive actions. I thank Mayor de Blasio for initiating this brief and building this important coalition of leaders,” said Hoboken Mayor Dawn Zimmer.

MAYORS DE BLASIO AND GARCETTI ANNOUNCE LEGAL ACTION IN SUPPORT OF IMMIGRATION REFORMS

More Than 70 Cities & Counties Sign Texas vs. United States Appeal Urging Immediate Implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action

NEW YORK—New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti announced today that 73 cities and counties had filed a new friend-of-the-court brief in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, urging immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration.

"Continuing to delay implementation of the President's executive action on immigration hurts our economy and puts families at risk," said Mayor Bill de Blasio. "Cities are where immigrants live, and cities are where the President's executive action will be successfully implemented. Our cities are united, and we will fight for the immigration reform this nation needs and deserves – whether in the courtroom, in Congress, or in our communities. Make no mistake about it: our voices will be heard."

"Our cities cannot afford delays to immigration reforms that will strengthen our economy and help families," said Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti. "This isn't a blue or red issue, but a human and economic one."

The brief demonstrates robust support from the country's largest cities – as well as suburbs and rural areas – for the President's reforms, which will temporarily relieve from deportation thousands of immigrants who have longstanding ties to the U.S.

The cities and counties – representing 43 million people across the country – argue that the district court judge who temporarily blocked implementation of the programs failed to consider the significant harm to America's local governments caused by this delay.

According to an analysis by the City, each month that the implementation of these programs is delayed, New York City and New York State will lose at least $1.5 million in additional state and local tax revenue that would be generated if 100,000 immigrants in New York City were able to access temporary work permits through executive action.

"New York's immigrants are vital to our economy and we must do all we can to help them grow and thrive. Mayor de Blasio is correct – instead of putting up barriers, we should be looking at ways to help immigrants climb the ladder of economic opportunity and welcome them into our communities. The New York State Assembly Majority strongly supports President Obama's executive action on immigration, and further delay by those who would derail this important initiative is unacceptable," said New York State Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie.

"Each day we wait to implement President Obama's bold immigration reforms, millions of hard-working families remain in legal limbo. Immigrant communities built New York City, and they are the heart and soul of urban centers across our country,” said Public Advocate Letitia James. “As Congress and federal courts stall meaningful progress on immigration, New York City will continue to lead the nation.”

As part of Cities United for Immigration Action, Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti led the effort to organize more than 70 cities and counties, the National League of Cities, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors in arguing that the national public interest is served clearly and overwhelmingly by implementing immigration relief by executive action without delay. Today’s brief more than doubles the number of local governments that had previously voiced opposition to the lawsuit brought by states seeking to block President Obama’s immigration reform efforts.

The brief also argues that the District Court judge’s decision to block executive action with a preliminary injunction is bad for the economy, hurts families, threatens law enforcement priorities, and will stall desperately needed changes to the federal government’s immigration policies.

The de Blasio Administration has a proven track record of spearheading initiatives that integrate immigrants into the civic and economic life of New York City. From the IDNYC municipal identification program to increasing access to federal immigration benefits, New York City is committed to championing pro-immigrant policies that promote equity and create opportunity for all residents.

This collective action to offer the Court the crucial perspective of American cities and counties is an outcome of the organizing efforts of the Cities United for Immigration Action coalition. By filing this brief, America’s mayors and county leaders are making a strong statement in support of the President’s plan to grant administrative relief to over four million undocumented children and adults.

Numerous cities and counties signed on to today’s brief are located in states that brought the lawsuit against the Obama administration or have otherwise indicated support for the lawsuit, including five cities in Texas, six localities in New Jersey, two counties in Arizona, and three municipalities in Wisconsin. Cities and counties signed on to the brief (in formation) include the following local governments:

“Brooklyn is what America looks like, with nearly 40 percent of our residents being foreign-born, and when it comes to embracing our immigrant population, it is what America ought to be. President Obama's executive order on immigration is the most significant and meaningful step our nation has taken toward addressing this long-standing crisis and the millions of families who have been stuck in the shadows of our society, including hundreds of thousands right here in New York City. Our diversity is our greatest strength, and I join my fellow urban leaders from coast to coast in making this call to support the President's reforms,” said Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams.

“Legally and morally, the president's executive action on immigration was both within his power and the right thing to do,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer. “Blocking its implementation will do real harm to cities. That’s why joining with other cities and counties across the country urging its implementation is the right thing as well.”

“We stand with New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio’s and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti’s decision to file a ‘friend-of-the-court’ brief in support of President Barack Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Bronx Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. “The President’s executive action currently being blocked in the courts hurts The Bronx and New York City, with the borough losing out on potential local tax revenues that would be generated by these hard-working immigrants who just want to come out the shadows and positively contribute to our country. We are the land of opportunity, built on the ideal that we are melting pot that promotes equality for all and we must continue to strive for those ideals that make our country great.”

“President Obama's executive actions were bold and decisive steps toward fixing America's broken immigration system. The Statue of Liberty stands tall in our City, reminding us that America was built by generations of immigrants who came to its shores in search of a better life and a chance to make our country greater,” said U.S. Representative Charles Rangel. “I am proud to see that Mayor de Blasio is committed to keeping that promise alive for years to come.”

“The delay in the implementation of DAPA and expanded DACA threatens millions of American families with deportation, as well as the many communities, such as New York City, of which immigrants are an integral part,” said U.S. Representative Yvette Clarke. “No serious doubt exists that President Obama had the authority to establish DAPA and DACA. I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and the many community leaders across this nation who have raised their voices on behalf of millions of families who want to pursue the American Dream.”

“In the absence of legislative action by House Republicans, President Obama took decisive action on immigration because he knows that there are real lives at stake in our current broken system,” said U.S. Representative Joe Crowley. “It is deeply troubling that a Texas judge known to be hostile to immigrants is delaying the President’s executive measures, especially given the legal precedents set by previous administrations. Halting action that will help keep American families together strikes at the heart of what our country ought to be about, and I thank Mayors de Blasio, Garcetti, and many others for taking a stand and showing the widespread support for the President’s action. I’m confident the Department of Justice will succeed in its appeal of this decision and that we will move forward with this much-needed action that will make such a difference in New York City and elsewhere.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio for working with cities across the nation to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration,” said U.S. Representative Carolyn Maloney. “With over 12 million undocumented immigrants living in our country, comprehensive immigration reform is long overdue. Unfortunately, Congress has failed to act. That is why I strongly support President Obama’s executive actions, which will help keep families together, boost our economy and generate new tax revenue. These are common sense steps that mimic similar actions by Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush, and it’s long past time that President Obama’s reforms are implemented.”

“We can’t continue to delay implementing President Obama’s executive action on immigration. With this friend-of-the-court brief, New York City is joined by more than 70 cities nationwide in voicing its strong support for moving ahead with providing administrative deportation relief to more than 4 million immigrants with strong ties to the U.S. As the brief argues, the District Court’s holdup only hurts our economy, harmless immigrant families, and the federal government’s ability to address our broken immigration system. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for once again putting New York City at the forefront of efforts to help the immigrant community, in New York City, and nationwide,” said U.S. Representative José Serrano, Sr.

“The President’s immigration reforms make badly needed changes to a broken system and will benefit thousands of our neighbors,” stated U.S. Representative Nydia Velázquez. “It is critical for New York City and our nation as a whole that these reforms be implemented without delay.”

“Every day we delay fixing our broken immigration system is a missed opportunity,” said U.S. Representative Kathleen Rice. “There’s no question that we need to keep fighting for comprehensive immigration reform at the federal level, but our local communities can’t afford to wait when there’s no sign that this Congress is willing to pass real legislative solutions. Thousands of hard-working Long Island families are ready to come out of the shadows, stop living in fear and start participating fully in our local economies, and there’s no reason to deny them that opportunity any longer. Last week I joined several fellow Members of Congress in signing an amicus brief affirming our support for the government’s appeal, and the brief filed today by Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti shows that local and federal leaders across the country are united in our commitment to implementing the President’s executive actions.”

“Immigrants move New York’s economy forward,” said State Senator Leroy Comrie. “I represent a district where over a third of its population is foreign-born, and where many more are the children and grandchildren of the rich immigrant legacy this city – and this nation – is so proud of. Immigrants are innovators, business owners and job creators: they augment this City's supply of capital and ideas to diversify its narrative and keep it nationally and globally competitive. Not only is it in our best interest to immediately implement the President's platform for immigration reform, but it is the socially and morally responsible thing to do.”

“Every day the President's executive actions on immigration are blocked, is another day hundreds of thousands of young adults and parents, trying to provide for their families, are unable to work. This is not good for anyone, and the leaders of our cities and counties across the country know this first hand. I thank them for standing with undocumented immigrants and working to bring them out of the shadows,” said State Senator Adriano Espaillat, Chair of the State Senate Puerto Rican/Latino Caucus.

“This friend-of-the-court brief stands with immigrants in our communities against needless delay in the urgently needed Deferred Action programs. President Obama has charted a course for a more compassionate immigration system – a system that treats our friends and neighbors with the dignity they deserve. I commend this action by Mayor de Blasio and dozens of mayors across the United States in keeping with the vision President Obama outlined. I join these mayors and leaders across the country in reaffirming our commitment to America’s longstanding tradition of welcoming immigrants to our communities,” said State Senator Jesse Hamilton.

“It is time to stop intolerant views toward our immigrants. I am in full support of this brief, which is intended to safeguard and implement President Obama’s executive actions on immigration that are intended to keep families together,” said State Senator Jose Peralta. “We, as immigrants, live in all cities across our nation, and blocking the implementation of the President’s policies, hurts not just families fighting for the American Dream, but also our ongoing efforts to enrich and repair our economy.”

“I am very proud that New York City is leading the way on a collective amicus brief in the Texas vs. United States case which calls for swift and sweeping implementation of President Obama’s executive actions concerning rational immigration policy. The lives of millions of people hang in the balance, so many of them New Yorkers who share the same hopes, dreams and aspirations that each successive wave of immigrants harbored generations ago. Each of them found a true home here and it is time for our City and Country to open our arms and our hearts in the name of fundamental human rights,” said State Senator Bill Perkins.

“The implementation of President Obama's executive action on immigration is imperative to ensuring we support the countless immigrants that contribute to the social and economic life of our country,” said State Senator Gustavo Rivera. “We are a country of immigrants, and this executive action will help us strengthen and protect our diverse population, while honoring our values as Americans. I commend and thank Mayor de Blasio for having New York join cities and counties across our country in taking legal action to support an initial step towards immigration reform.”

“Here in a city and state where we pride ourselves on diversity, we can only benefit from the implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said State Senator James Sanders Jr. “It will allow for a reprieve from deportation while giving the undocumented a chance to work, providing a much needed boost to the economy. Just this past week, the state budget failed to include the DREAM Act, which would have given thousands of vibrant young people a chance at success by allowing them to continue their education and creating a pathway to citizenship. Let's not miss another opportunity to help build a stronger New York."

"Unjust deportations have continued to tear apart our families, our schools and our communities. We must act swiftly in implementing President Obama's immigration executive action in order to protect these important populations. Immigrants are the backbone of our communities, and I thank Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for creating a united front to demonstrate our support for the swift implementation of the President's measures," said State Senator José Serrano.

"The delay to President Obama's executive action on immigration is intolerable and comes with a real cost to real people," said Assembly Member Rodneyse Bichotte. "Every day, families of aspiring Americans are destroyed by a system badly in need of reform and the President's executive action offers needed help. I join with Mayor de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the Texas v. United States lawsuit to urge immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration. As a daughter of Haitian immigrants, and as a proud citizen of the United States and elected official of New York, I have a duty to act on behalf of the social justice of our people—as well as a fiduciary responsibility to ensure our economies gain the benefits immigration brings."

"As a child of Jamaican immigrants, it is personal for me that we stand up for Immigration justice and demand immediate action. The implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration is a moral, social, and economic necessity. The delays are inexcusable, and we must move forward. In past years, immigrants in NYC have accounted for more than $200 billion in economic activity to help revitalize vibrant neighborhoods including the work of Latino, Caribbean and African entrepreneurs in the South Bronx. Through hard work and tireless dedication, Immigrants embody the entrepreneurial spirit that makes our country so beautiful, and the best country in the world," said Assembly Member Michael Blake. "Immigrants are our neighbors, our friends, and our family, and I proudly stand with Mayor Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in calling for our judicial system to do the right thing, the humane thing, the compassionate thing, and give our communities the life they deserve."

"I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and all the other mayors for supporting immigration reforms. Implementation of the President's Immigration Executive action will provide much needed relief to immigrant families suffering under our broken system and is a crucial first step on the road to treating our immigrants with the fairness and respect they deserve," said Assembly Member Guillermo Linares.

"Every month that goes by without President Obama's executive actions is another month that families can be ripped apart," said Assembly Member Francisco Moya. "For those of us who deal with the fallout from our nation's flawed immigration policies on a daily basis, we know how critical the President's executive actions truly are. Keeping families together is not only the right thing to do; it's also in our nation's best interest."

"Mayor de Blasio is taking the right step filing today's court brief," said Assembly Member Felix Ortiz. "Without action from the Congress and State Legislature, we must support President Obama's efforts to protect workers and their families from deportation. While we keep the fight alive in Albany for the Dream Act, driver licenses and state-issued identification cards for non-citizens and better wages for all workers, today's action by our Mayor and by so many others across the nation is a positive step to make life better for millions. We can't wait any longer.”

“We need comprehensive immigration reform immediately,” said Assembly Member Robert Rodriguez. “President Obama’s Executive action is a huge step towards creating fair policies that help our growing immigrant communities of New York City thrive, any hindrance to its enactment harms us irreparably.”

“It is clear that our immigration system is broken and comprehensive reform is needed to provide long-term relief for the families who have contributed to the growth and prosperity of our nation,” said Assembly Member Nily Rozic. “Filing this brief is reflective of New York City's commitment to advancing immigrants' rights and I commend the Mayor for his continued advocacy and leadership on this urgent issue.

“With an estimated 100,000 undocumented immigrants in New York City who would benefit greatly from President Obama’s executive action this brief sends a strong message on the importance of implementing these reforms,” said Assembly Member Luis Sepúlveda. “New York has long been at the forefront of immigration reform. Mayor de Blasio has proven his commitment to immigrants throughout his first year in office and continues to through actions like this. I commend the Mayor and the many other cities and counties for supporting these initiatives, as implementing each one of them will be for the national public interest.”

“Opportunity for families in America to obtain basic rights and a better quality of life should not be dictated by political games. The partisan stalling of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action is sophomoric, and the District Court's preliminary objection undoubtedly has a deleterious effect on our national economy. New York City is, and always has been a city of immigrants, and we have this community to thank for the strength we enjoy as a City and a Nation . I am proud of New York City's participation in the amicus brief filed in Texas vs. United States, and am hopeful that the demand from such a robust list of diverse urban areas will bring us closer to real reform which has been long overdue,” said Assembly Member Keith Wright.

“I commend Mayor de Blasio in joining the effort to defend the President’s Administrative Relief that offers potential relief to millions of immigrants with strong ties to our nation, and who already work hard and contribute to make this a better country. While the Court stalls, and Congress fails to enact meaningful immigration reform, New York City will continue to protect the rights of immigrants and ensure that their contributions to our City are recognized—and celebrated. Our City continues to offer affirming spaces for immigrant populations, and I am hopeful that this action from our Mayor—and from his colleagues from around the country—will provide some context about the urgent need for the implementation of the President’s programs,” said Council Member Carlos Menchaca, Chair of the Committee on Immigration.

“I support the new friend-of-the-court brief urging immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. Immigrants are in important part of the fabric of our society and economy and granting administrative relief to those immigrants in need is an act of social responsibility,” said Council Member Inez Barron.

“I applaud New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio for joining Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti in filing a friend-of-the-court brief calling for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration. As an elected official representing an area with a significant immigrant population, I join with others across the country in urging the courts to move forward on providing deportation relief. The President’s immigration policies provide a just, sensible solution for millions of immigrants who live in the U.S. and contribute to our nation’s society in myriad ways. From an economic perspective, there is no question that New York stands to benefit from implementation of these policies, as significant tax revenues would be generated by the granting of temporary work permits to our City’s population of 100,000 immigrants,” said Council Member Fernando Cabrera.

“President Obama’s executive action on immigration will have a profoundly positive impact on thousands of families in our city, and it must be implemented immediately,” said Council Member Margaret Chin. “I strongly support today’s legal action in support of the President’s reforms, and I thank Mayor de Blasio for his continued leadership on this fundamentally important issue.”

“New York City is, was, and always will be a leader in the immigrant rights movement. We stand united in support of President Obama’s Executive Order,” said Council Member Andrew Cohen.

“We have waited for federal immigration reform for too long,” said Council Member Costa Constantinides. “The current federal laws are broken and lead to families being broken up or to unwarranted detention. President Obama’s executive order will take significant steps to help ameliorate these concerns. We must ensure due process and respect for all. I stand with Mayor De Blasio, Mayor Garcetti, and with 70 other cities across the nation that support the President’s order.”

“The stand the District Court Judge has taken against immigration reform is harming the future of our country, our immigrants,” said Council Member Daniel Dromm. “I am glad Mayor de Blasio has signed on to an amicus brief to push back against the court’s anti-immigrant actions. In New York City we support our immigrants not hold them back by putting obstacles to citizenship in their way.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio and the Mayors of more than 70 cities across the country for making it clear that they are ready, willing, and able to implement the reforms proposed by President Obama’s executive action. As the son of immigrants, I know firsthand the difficulties faced by those who have come to the United States seeking a better life for themselves and their families. Our immigration system is broken and full implementation of President Obama’s executive action is necessary in order to ensure more families are not harmed by failed policies,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal.

“President Obama’s executive action would be a lifeline to many families in our City who only want to work hard and provide more than they had for their children,” said Council Member Julissa Ferreras. “The continued delay of immigration reform only hurts our cities by separating families as well as denying our local governments millions of dollars in tax revenue. I commend Mayor de Blasio, Mayor Garcetti and the chief executives of over 70 American cities for championing this issue in our courts and call on Congress to finally do the right thing and recognize that immigration reform makes sense for all.”

“For too long, cities have been trying to navigate a federal immigration policy that is in dire need of reform. The President's executive actions were an important first step toward making sense of those immigration policies. Delaying their implementation creates very real problems for the cities that are on the front lines of the immigration debate,” said Council Member Dan Garodnick.

“By delaying the implementation of immigration reform, the court is making a decision that hurts state and local economies and needlessly diverts law enforcement attention,” said Council Member Vanessa Gibson. “Spending tax dollars to prosecute otherwise law abiding residents who want to work here, raise families here, and spend money here is a policy that has never made sense and I urge the court to recognize the considerable good immigration reform will bring to our communities. I am proud to stand with legislators within New York and around the country in support of President Obama’s actions and I look forward to a favorable decision that will uphold the ordered relief of nearly 4 million undocumented adults and children.”

“Today, New York City stands with over 70 American municipalities in support of President Obama’s recent executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Corey Johnson. “If implemented, the plan would grant much needed administrative relief and protection from deportation to over 4 million undocumented individuals. Our country and New York City were built by immigrants and their families. Barring immigrants from fully participating in American civic and economic life is contrary to our values. It’s time to make a change.”

“We are a nation of immigrants, including my grandparents who came here to escape antisemitism, and the grandparents of so many. We must continue to accept all those 'yearning to breathe free',” said Council Member Ben Kallos. “The state invests resources in every person the second they set foot in our soil. By welcoming people with open arms, we guarantee a return on that investment. I applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for urging the immediate implementation of President Obama's immigration reforms.”

“President Obama has signed an Executive Order and it’s shameful and unheard of for the District Court judge to block the executive action,” said Council Member Andy King, Co-Chair of the Black, Latino & Asian Caucus. “New York is and has always been a city of immigrants and President Obama’s vision allows for immediate reform in our communities. I stand with the Mayor and the President and all Americans across the nation committed to justice and our voices will be heard.”

"I see every day the positive impact immigrants have on our communities, as a representative of one of the most diverse areas in the country," said Council Member Rory Lancman. "Immigrants start businesses, pay taxes and raise their children here. Unfortunately, current US immigration policies leave far too many of our neighbors afraid that they will be deported from the country that has been their home for years. Mayor de Blasio's brief, joined by so many other cities, sends a clear message to the Court that cities support the President's action and want our immigrants to be able to come out of the shadows."

“New York City can’t wait any longer for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Steve Levin. “Thank you to Mayor de Blasio and cities and counties around the United States who are taking a stand for smart and needed immigration reforms.”

“Undocumented immigrants and their families have waited far too long for substantive and comprehensive immigration reform. Not only do we need these reforms to be effectuated, we also need more policies that will help bring relief to millions of immigrants, help keep their families together, while strengthening our economy. I’m proud to stand with Mayor de Blasio, my colleagues in City Council, and the cities and counties across the country, who are fighting for the rights of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Annabel Palma.

“I’d like to thank Mayor de Blasio for taking leadership on this important issue. Implementation of President Obama’s executive order would have a major positive impact on the lives of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso.

“I am proud to stand with Mayor De Blasio and 70 other municipalities throughout the nation in full support of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Donovan Richards. “The history of the United States is a history of immigrants. Extending temporary relief from deportation for residents that contribute millions of dollars to our domestic economy is common sense.

“President Obama’s actions will bring 5 million immigrants out of the shadows. For years these families have lived with the constant anxiety and fear of deportation. But no longer. Now undocumented immigrants can apply to receive services that they’ve long deserved. By receiving social security cards and work permits so many will be able to legally work towards the American Dream they came to pursue,” said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez. “However, some among us want to push these families back into the shadows. Today we, the cities that drive our country’s economy forward, stand united in support of the President’s actions.”

“The temporary work permits granted by President Barack Obama’s executive action are essential to the daily functions of New York City and cities nationwide. We are a nation of immigrants, and delaying implementation of this program is, frankly, un-American. I stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti and the 72 cities and counties throughout the US (list in formation), in urging immediate implementation of this executive action,” said Council Member Helen Rosenthal.

“Immigrants make critical contributions our local economies and civic infrastructure, but cannot continue doing so if they are living in the shadows. The growing list of municipalities and counties signed onto the brief further underscores the importance and urgency of administrative relief for millions of undocumented children and adults. The Mayor has been a tireless champion of New York’s immigrant communities and I commend him for spearheading this effort,” said Council Member Richie Torres.

“I support the immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive order,” said Council Member Mark Weprin. “Immigrants have always played a vital role in shaping our nation’s economy and continue to contribute every day to the vitality of New York City.”

“Delaying President Obama’s executive orders to implement real immigration reform only puts New York City’s efforts to provide countless families economic opportunity they need on hold,” said New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. “Now is the time to act and our City is prepared to. I support Mayor de Blasio and numerous other cities throughout our nation’s efforts to begin implementing much-needed reforms for the millions of families who are looking to us for assistance to become included and engaged citizens of New York City and our great nation.”

“The time for a rational immigration policy has long been overdue. Where Congress has failed to act in the collective interest of the American people, President Obama has sought to step into the breach. The use of executive authority on this issue is with precedent, and this unfortunate maneuver by the State of Texas to stymie him ignores the greater economic, security, and familial needs of all our citizens. Mayor de Blasio recognizes these plain truths, and I support the amicus brief he and so many other municipalities, nationwide, have filed in support of the President’s action,” said Council Member Ruben Wills.

“In cities across the country, hard-working men and women are waiting for President Obama’s Executive Action to go into effect so they can live and work without fear of deportation and separation from their families,” said Hector Figueroa, President of 32BJ SEIU. “In Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington DC and many more cities up and down the East Coast, 32BJ members have long been part of the fight for immigration reform and we will continue to take action in Congress and on the streets until these reforms are implemented. It is the humane and just thing to do for immigrants and the right path forward for our country.”

“Immigrants are essential to local economies and industries throughout our country, especially the hospitality industry. Today’s actions show that local governments recognize that delaying the President’s Executive Action not only harms millions of working families but also jeopardizes recovering local economies,” said Peter Ward, President of the Hotel Trades Council.

“Workers and their families desperately need the immediate implementation of President Obama’s Executive Action for immigration reform. We commend these cities and their elected officials for submitting an amicus brief in support of President Obama’s Executive Action, the most far reaching immigration reform initiative in decades. Cities make up the backbone of the U.S. economy, much of it based on the work of immigrants. Millions of hard working immigrant families stand to benefit from this action, and they deserve this administrative relief,” said Stuart Appelbaum, President of Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

“The AFL-CIO has made supporting real immigration reform one of our top priorities because we understand the importance of ensuring that all workers receive the wages and benefits to which they are entitled,” said Vincent Alvarez, President of the New York City Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO. “By allowing undocumented workers to come out of the shadows, we will be working to eradicate the tools that allow unscrupulous employers to drive down wages, and rob workers of fair pay, benefits, and workplace rights. The implementation of President Obama’s immigration recommendations is already long overdue. Let’s make this happen for New York City’s workers.”

“Immigrants, including many who would be eligible for work permits under President Obama’s Executive Action, contribute every day to the vibrancy and health of our cities. The Executive Action will keep families together, boost our economy and focus law enforcement resources. We applaud Mayor de Blasio’s advocacy on behalf of these hard-working New Yorkers and join him in calling for immediate implementation of the action,” said Maria Castaneda, Secretary-Treasurer of 1199 SEIU.

"We applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for leading the charge to demand immediate implementation of immigration relief to keep families together across the United States. As our communities demand action, scores of cities from coast to coast are stepping up and saying with one voice that the Court of Appeals must allow President Obama's administrative actions, which are grounded in strong legal precedent, to move forward," said Javier H. Valdés, co-Executive Director of Make the Road New York.

"Very much like every major city in America, New York City is a strong and vibrant city thanks to our immigrant population," said Jonathan Westin, Executive Director of New York Communities for Change. "Our cities are better when our immigrant brothers and sisters can thrive. Therefore, we urge the immediate implementation of the President's Immigration Executive Action. Our cities have too much to lose if action is not taken now."

"We are proud that our city's Mayor Bill de Blasio is setting a precedent by taking legal action and making it known that the delays to President Obama's executive actions are unacceptable," said Steven Choi, executive director of the New York Immigration Coalition. "The NYIC and our membership, along with our city and state partners including the Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs, continue our efforts to prepare the 100,000 plus New Yorkers who can benefit from these programs. We stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the call for immediate implementation of immigration relief."

"At a time when anti-immigrant voices are using myths about immigrants and the effects of immigration to derail a constructive national policy debate, few actions are more important than local governments uniting to fight for immediate relief and implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Actions. In outlining the economic and fiscal benefits of deferred action policies, New York City is a key stakeholder. Mayor Bill de Blasio has underscored once again our city's courage in the fight for justice and we stand in solidarity to see administrative relief programs take full-effect immediately," said Lucia Gomez, Executive Director of La Fuente.

"The Asian American Federation fully supports Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti's appeal to implement President Obama's executive action without any further delay. Immigrants and their families, who have made valuable contributions to the U.S., deserve the temporary relief and protection that this immigration reform provides. We stand with our community to ensure that the President's executive action sees the light of day," said Jo-Ann Yoo, Executive Director of the Asian American Federation.

"Millions of lives are on hold as President Obama's legal Executive Action is being dragged through the courts. Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights commends Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for supporting legal action urging immediate implementation of Executive Action," said Angela Fernandez, Executive Director of Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights.

"Immigration reform is vital for New York's African immigrant communities," said Amaha Kassa, Executive Director of African Communities Together. "All of our members have heard about President Obama's executive actions, many are qualified and ready to apply for relief, and none of them can understand why progress has been put on hold. This filing sends an important message that New York City has immigrants' backs, even if some states have chosen to send the opposite message."

“President Obama’s November, 2014 Deferred Action programs – both the DACA extension and DAPA – should be implemented now. With each passing day, families continue to be torn apart, leaving behind American children to fend for themselves. Hard-working immigrant parents live in fear and are preyed upon, and cannot become full members of our society. As the child of Mexican immigrant parents whose life dramatically changed after they received legal status via IRCA, the benefits of immigration relief to are society are clear to me. My parents became homeowners and were able to support three college graduates. I applaud Mayors De Blasio and Garcetti, along with the 70 cities and counties who have signed on, for their leadership and for lending their voice to challenge the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, said Aracelis Lucero, Executive Director of Masa, Inc.

“Chicago has always been a city of immigrants, and for us to stay true to our history and our values, we must ensure that immigrants can fully participate in all aspects of our economic and cultural life,” said Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel. “We are proud to join numerous cities in filing this amicus brief to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. They will help keep families together, increase safety in our communities, and maximize the contributions that immigrants make every day in every part of our city.”

“Cities are strongly affected by immigration. The old, dysfunctional immigration policies hurt our economies, our neighborhoods, our businesses and our residents. The President is attempting to interject common sense and humanity. We are grateful for his efforts and we stand with him,” said Portland Mayor Charlie Hales.

“I am signing onto this brief because as a nation of immigrants, I believe ensuring access to a fair and legal process for people to come to this country and pursue their dreams reflects our highest values,” said Chapel Hill Mayor Mark Kleinschmidt.

“We must do better to honor our country's proud immigration tradition. Too many immigrants live in fear, afraid to become members of our society, while Congress fails to take any meaningful action to fix a broken immigration system. Their inaction has real consequences for our communities, which is why I fully support President Obama's leadership and common sense executive actions. I thank Mayor de Blasio for initiating this brief and building this important coalition of leaders,” said Hoboken Mayor Dawn Zimmer.

MAYOR'S OFFICE OF STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIPS
CITY HALL
NEW YORK, NY 10007

Dear Jonathan --

Today, we are proud to announce that in one year, we have raised $20 million, trained over 450 teachers, and have expanded Computer Science education to nearly 250 schools as part of Computer Science for All, a landmark ten-year public-private initiative to bring CS education to all 1.1 million NYC public school students.

Please see below for the full release and for more information on CS4All.

Warm regards,
Gabrielle

$20 MILLION IN PRIVATE DONATIONS RAISED FOR MAYOR DE BLASIO'S COMPUTER SCIENCE FOR ALL INITIATIVE

Program has already reached 246 schools and trained more than 450 teachers

Goal of universal access to computer science education for 1.1 million students ahead of progress

NEW YORK—Mayor Bill de Blasio, Schools Chancellor Carmen Fariña and Gabrielle Fialkoff, Senior Advisor and Director of the Office of Strategic Partnerships, announced today that Mayor de Blasio's Computer Science for All (CS4All) initiative has raised $20 million in private funding. The fundraising campaign is half-way toward meeting a $40 million goal that will ultimately be matched in public funding for one of the cornerstones of the Mayor's Equity and Excellence education reforms.

Today, 246 elementary, middle and high schools across the city are participating in CS4All. More than 450 teachers are receiving rigorous training to bring computer science instruction to their schools. CS4All gives students the computational thinking, problem solving and critical thinking skills necessary for college and professional success. Last September, the Mayor announced that the City would be bringing the program to every elementary, middle, and high school by 2025.

“Last year we announced an ambitious plan to bring computer science education to every public school student by 2025 – making New York City the largest school district in the country to do so. Today, we are announcing real strides in completing our goal,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “The city’s tech industry is growing, yet before Computer Science for All, fewer than five percent of our public school students had even the most basic skills necessary to apply for these jobs. Through this program, we’re laying the groundwork today so that our kids can apply for these jobs tomorrow.”

The initiative is a model for effective public-private partnerships, with the City of New York and the private sector bearing programmatic costs equally. Today the Mayor announced new commitments from: Math for America (MfA); Robin Hood Education and Technology Fund, co-chaired by David Siegel and John Overdeck; Paulson Family Foundation; Alexandria Real Estate Equities, Inc.; the Hutchins Family Foundation; Association for a Better New York and the Rudin Family Foundation; Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz; Ron Conway, Founder, SV Angel; and Nancy and Alan Schwartz. Founding partners Fred Wilson and CSNYC, Robin Hood and the AOL Charitable Foundation, as well as early investment from AT&T that helped make the initiative possible. Public dollars support the infrastructure and human capital needed to pull off what is the largest effort of its kind. Private dollars support the training of nearly 5,000 teachers over the next ten years. These funds are overseen and administered by the New York City Fund for Public Schools.

“Computer Science for All is a cornerstone of equity and excellence in our public schools – these are the skills our students need to be successful in high school, college, and careers in the 21st century,” said Schools Chancellor Carmen Fariña. “This isn’t just for particular students from particular backgrounds; learning how to think critically and computationally, and how to create with technology, must be for all students. I thank our private partners for recognizing the importance of this initiative and for their investment.”

“The Mayor’s vision for New York City schools will put a new generation on the path toward success,” said Gabrielle Fialkoff, Senior Advisor to the Mayor and Director of the Office of Strategic Partnerships. “Through this landmark public-private partnership, we will level the playing field for every student in every borough. Computer Science for All is an investment in creating opportunities for all of our young people, particularly in a global economy where technology is integral to every industry.”

Through the implementation of this ten-year initiative, New York City will be the largest school district in the country to provide computer science education to all students, particularly populations underrepresented in tech including girls, African-American and Latino students and students from low-income families. Most students in public schools traditionally either lack access to computer science or gain these skills too late. Early and widespread exposure to computer science is key to breaking down gender and racial barriers, leading to greater diversity and equality in the tech sector and relevant industries. The initiative promotes critical skills like thinking creatively, working as a team, and interacting with technology, as well as technical skills that will power the 21st century economy.

Computer science education at the scale of New York City's public school system, encompassing 1.1 million students, will allow a new generation to be active creators of technology. By expanding access to computer science throughout NYC public schools, CS4All will also promote the cultivation of local and diverse talent for the City's own workforce, including technology, and have a ripple effect across the country, where only a quarter of professional computing jobs are held by women and less than ten percent are held by African-Americans and Latinos.

Of the 246 schools participating in Computer Science for All programs, 98 are offering full-year courses or multi-year sequences including AP Computer Science Principles, the Software Engineering Program (SEP) and the SEP Jr. program for elementary schools. Teachers from the remaining schools have participated in the "CS Track" of the Department of Education's STEM Institute and received intensive training to implement rigorous, hands-on CS lessons and units in their schools. Through teachers' participation in these programs, students in elementary, middle and high school will learn the fundamentals of computer science, such as coding, robotics and web design.

By 2025, all New York City public school students will receive at least one meaningful, high-quality computer science unit or course at each school level: elementary, middle, and high school. The centerpiece of the initiative is the training of nearly 5,000 teachers who will, by year ten, bring computer science to more than 245,000 students each year.

Importantly, many of these students will be prepared to fill the 200,000 additional technology jobs that New York City's employers will create over the next decade while all graduates will be equipped with soft skills needed to successfully navigate the 21st century economy. Together, the Equity and Excellence initiatives will support progress across all schools so that, by 2026, 80 percent of students graduate high school on time, two-thirds of graduates are college ready and all students are reading on grade level by the end of 2nd grade. More information on Equity and Excellence is available online.

"I am very gratified to see so many leaders of the private sector in NYC get behind CS4All. This is the kind of transformational effort that requires the support of both government and the private sector. Together we are making sure that all of our students in NYC are trained in the skills that they need to be successful in the private sector and really any sector. So it makes sense that everyone is coming together to support this work," said Fred Wilson, Founder and Chairman of CSNYC Partner and Union Square Ventures.

"Computer Science is a spectacularly rich and beautiful subject, closely connected to mathematics and science, and nowadays to everyday life as well," said John Ewing, MfA President. "MfA's one thousand math and science teachers are enthusiastic about the computer science initiative, and many are already involved. We are delighted to support an effort at the frontiers of education – one that offers exciting opportunities not only for students but for teachers as well."

“CS4ALL is about helping our students develop the necessary skills and competencies to be successful in the 21st century. Access to high-quality computer science education will increase the demand for our city’s students in higher education and in the job market,” said John Paulson, President of Paulson and Co. Inc.

“We are incredibly pleased to support the City’s commitment to providing computer science and technology skills to a new generation of innovative thinkers,” said Joel S. Marcus, Chairman, CEO and Founder of Alexandria Real Estate Equities, Inc. “As the leading provider of science and technology campuses, and the developer of the City’s first and only world-class science and technology campus in Manhattan, Alexandria feels strongly about creating the knowledge workforce of the future and supporting the recruitment of highly skilled talent for our tenants who work day-in and day-out to treat, cure, and manage disease.”

"Just as accounting is the language of business and calculus is the language of physics, computer science is the language of innovation. The vision of Computer Science for All to teach teachers is a uniquely powerful means to equip the students of New York City to participate and prosper in the innovation economy of the future. The Hutchins Family Foundation is pleased to be able to play a part in this invaluable initiative." Debbie and Glenn Hutchins, co-Founders of the Hutchins Family Foundation.

“CS4All is the largest public sector effort to educate our children in computer science and to match their skills with the needs and the opportunities of tomorrow,” said William C. Rudin, Chairman of the Association for a Better New York. “The May and Samuel Rudin Family Foundation and the ABNY Foundation are proud to be supporters of Mayor de Blasio and the New York City Department of Education in taking on bold initiatives for our children and for the future of our city.”

“Wachtell Lipton has been proud to join with leaders in every sector of our city to support CS4All. Its progress in just the first year, and its transformative vision for the years to come, will make a powerful difference in the lives of children across this city who will be given the opportunity to learn, and ultimately themselves to lead, in a critical business sector and in an indispensable language of the future,” said Kevin S. Schwartz, Partner at Wachtell, Lipton and Rosen & Katz.

"CS4All is an initiative that I hope spreads across the country fast, including Silicon Valley! Computer science is a ‘basic’ goal for all students now, and the sooner we make the curriculum available to all, the better,” said Ron Conway, Founder of SV Angel.

“As a founding partner of CS4All, Robin Hood is proud of what has been accomplished in just a year. With professional development opportunities for hundreds of teachers and schools, this was a strong start to what is already an important initiative. We all share a commitment that all of New York City’s students should be graduating from high school having received a strong education and with the skills and tools they need to succeed,” Reynold Levy, President of Robin Hood.

“We know that many young people miss out on careers in technology, because they just don’t have the chance to uncover their passion for it,” said Sara Link, President of the AOL Charitable Foundation. “By giving NYC students from all backgrounds the exposure to computer science, they are gaining skills and experiences they will need to achieve success in their academic careers and beyond in our tech-enabled world. The AOL Charitable Foundation is proud to support this groundbreaking program alongside CSNYC, Robin Hood, the DOE and other leading partners to make a real difference in the lives of NYC students.”

"Tech jobs are growing faster than any other sector, and yet we do not have enough skilled workers to fill them. CS4All ensures that the next generation of New Yorkers will be fully prepared for the jobs of the future," said Kathryn S. Wylde, President and CEO of the Partnership for New York City.

“We often say that genius is evenly distributed across zip codes, but opportunity is not. This is particularly true when it comes to access to Computer Science education – skills that are increasingly critical to the well-paying jobs of the future,” said Mitch Kapor, tech pioneer and partner at Kapor Capital. “We’ve seen in Oakland that these types of public-private partnerships can help tap the genius that is often overlooked in underrepresented students, and we are enthusiastic supporters of New York’s CS4ALL efforts.”

"More than at any time in our history, it is critical for companies like AT&T to invest in developing a diverse talent pipeline, providing our young people with the skills that they need to succeed and that will help our society prosper. That’s why AT&T is so proud to be a longtime supporter of STEM education in New York City, starting with our investment in the Software Engineering Pilot program that laid the groundwork for Computer Science for All,” said Marissa Shorenstein, New York State President of AT&T. "We are thrilled to watch our commitment come to life in more than 250 schools during just the first year of this initiative, and we look forward to seeing hundreds more following suit next year.”

"As a partner in this effort, we applaud the work of NYC schools to expand access to computer science for all students, especially for underrepresented minorities. It's inspiring to see educators rise up to bring this opportunity to classrooms and to students who would otherwise be left behind,” said Hadi Partovi, Founder of Code.org.

“Facebook applauds Mayor de Blasio’s important effort to provide all 1.1 million New York City public school children access to a computer science education. By equipping every single student with the skills and knowledge to compete in today’s economy, Computer Science for All will help create a new generation of talented, creative leaders,” said Will Castleberry, Vice President of State and Local Policy of Facebook.

"Accenture is delighted to support New York City’s Computer Science For All initiative – which has the potential to fundamentally change the future of the tech industry through its scale and scope,” said Lynn McMahon, New York Metro Managing Director of Accenture. “Technology is changing the workplace in many ways, and we are committed to helping the next generation build skills that will help them succeed in the digital economy.”

“Computer Science for All demonstrates the power of public private partnerships,” said Sarah Geisenheimer, Executive Director of the Fund for Public Schools. “With commitments from the City and private funders we are able to move quickly to ensure that every single NYC student has access to an education that will equip them with the skills to succeed in the future. We are grateful for this partnership and the investments that will create opportunities for all our students.”

“New York's CS4All initiative is an essential program for preparing students to live and work in a world where technologies are increasingly pervasive. The New York Hall of Science is proud to stand as a partner with the Department of Education to help give New York City students every advantage in acquiring the skills and knowledge that will enable them to play an active role in shaping the future of technology,” said Margaret Honey, President and CEO of the New York Hall of Science.

"I congratulate Mayor de Blasio's ambitious effort to integrate computer science as a new subject matter into the public schools in New York. In this digital era it is more critical than ever before for every student in our city to have exposure to the fundamentals of computers. I am thrilled to support the work of this initiative,” said Eliot Horowitz, Chief Technology Officer and co-Founder at MongoDB.

"Code/Interactive is proud to partner with the NYC Department of Education to develop computer science programs in schools across the city. We trained over 100 computer science teachers this summer through the NYC Department of Education's STEM Institute, Exploring Computer Science professional development, and Code.org's AP Computer Science Principles course. Our work with students, teachers, and schools would not be possible without support and leadership from the Mayor's Office and the NYC Department of Education," said Michael Denton, Executive Director of Code/Interactive.

“By integrating computer science into existing math classes through our introductory course, schools across NYC have been able to introduce computer science to their entire student body – without having to create a dedicated class. We’re proud to continue our work with thousands of students across NYC,” said Emmanuel Schanzer, Founder of Bootstrap.

“The K-5 teachers in our workshop at the STEM Institute have been amazing. It's exciting to see educators at different points in their careers designing and coding their own robots and lessons to bring back to their classrooms. At only a couple weeks into the New Year, our early ed teachers are already starting to introduce robotics and coding into their classrooms, integrating their new skills and knowledge with their regular lessons and classroom activities. This level of buy-in and integration is paramount to the success of computer science education, and we're thrilled to be working with the NYC Department of Education to help teachers channel this enthusiasm into high quality and engaging lessons,” said Gaelen Hadlett, co-Director of Sunset Spark.

“Computer Science for All is enabling our students to become better thinkers, problem-solvers, and builders of ideas and technology – as opposed to just consumers. It’s thrilling to see our educators expanding their toolbox, as they collaborate across the city to bring innovative lessons to their classrooms. Our partners are essential in making all of this possible, and we will continue to work hand-in-hand to achieve equity and excellence for all students,” said Phil Weinberg, Deputy Chancellor for Teaching and Learning.

“We are excited to partner with nearly 5,000 innovative, committed and creative teachers and their administrators to bring computer science to all NYC students. The 450-plus teachers we’ve worked with have shown tremendous dedication to learning new content, embracing their students' and their own creativity, and expanding opportunities for all students," said Debbie Marcus, Executive Director of Computer Science for the New York City Department of Education.

"We recognize that all children, regardless of socioeconomic status or background, need to have access to the computer science skills that will help them to thrive in the marketplace and we applaud City leaders for taking the necessary action to make this a reality for students across New York" said Leecia Eve, Vice President of New York State Government Affairs at Verizon. "Programs like these are vital to our communities and mirror our commitment to providing equal access to technology and STEM education for underserved students. And in the spirit of this mission, through the White House ConnectEd program, we are proud to donate tablets and Internet access for students, along with professional development for the teachers through Verizon Innovative Learning to three City schools. The work being done in NYC is a model example of what we need to see nationwide."

"Classroom teachers are essential allies in democratizing access to computing education – and I admire CS4All's strong commitment to supporting teachers as part of this initiative. Our research team has been delighted to support NYC teachers through professional development events, curriculum, and building connections to an international community of educators who are passionate about computing as a creative medium," said Karen Brennan, Associate Professor and Director of the Creative Computing Lab at the Harvard Graduate School of Education.

"CS4All is an important step in expanding access for girls, who have been left behind in computer science education. As we continue to grow CS4All in New York City, we look forward to seeing more public and private investment to ensure that we're meeting the needs of girls and other underrepresented minorities," said Reshma Saujani, Founder and CEO of Girls Who Code.

"New York City is moving towards computer science being considered a core subject, as necessary as history and literature for our students' success. By working together, we are helping more students gain critical skills and be better prepared for the careers and demands of an information economy," said Michael Mulgrew, President of the United Federation of Teachers.

"Technology and computer literacy has quickly become an integral part of the 21st century workforce, and our schools must adapt quickly to teach our students the skills they need to succeed in college and to get good paying jobs. That's why I am a strong supporter of STEM initiatives and computer science programs to close the digital gap that disproportionately affects low income students and students of color," said Congressman José E. Serrano. "I applaud Mayor de Blasio's leadership on this issue and for making the right investments to make sure all our kids have the best opportunity to thrive in life."

Council Member Daniel Dromm, Chair of the New York City Council Committee on Education said, "These donations are equipping our students with skills that will benefit them their entire lives. Computer science education teaches students to think creatively and strategically. Those who wish to major in computer science in college will be better prepared for this course of study. I am pleased that the Administration is prioritizing Computer Science for All and will continue to work with them to further expand this initiative."

"Computer science is the cornerstone of the modern economy and therefore should be a major component of our education curriculum," said Council Member James Vacca, Chair of the New York City Council Committee on Technology. "CS4All is a great leap towards providing computer science training for all of our students. I'm pleased that we've reached this important funding benchmark and look forward to the full implementation of the initiative. I applaud Mayor de Blasio, Chancellor Fariña and Director Fialkoff for their commitment to this cause."

"New York's fastest growing business sector is the tech industry, only second in the country to Silicon Valley and accounting for over 300,000 new jobs with median salaries of $100,000. Computer science is no longer a niche discipline as the subject has become an integral part of nearly every aspect of our lives, and it's time our classrooms caught up with that trend. 21st century schools should have 21st century curricula, and we owe it to the 1.1 million NYC public school students to prepare them for the 21st century job market," said Council Member Mark Levine. "We've taken a big step forward by adding computer science curricula to over 246 schools. I applaud the Mayor for his CS4ALL campaign, and look forward to seeing the positive effects it will have in the years to come."

About the Fund for Public Schools

The Fund for Public Schools (FPS) is a nonprofit partner to the NYC Department of Education, building public-private partnerships to strengthen our city's public schools and create opportunities for its 1.1 million students. The Fund secures private dollars for critical system-wide education initiatives, develops partnerships, and encourages broad public engagement both in our schools and in the lives of our students.

In New York, an Explosion of Partnerships Between Philanthropy and Government

Mayoral funds represent an interesting development in local philanthropy, and not one without controversy. In the recent past, we've written about the Mayor's Fund for Los Angeles and the Mayor's Fund to Advance New York City, which are both public-private efforts aimed at mobilizing extra resources—from foundations, corporations, and major individual donors—to address challenges in those cities.

But in New York City, there's another entity that's linked to the mayor connected with philanthropy and is all about strengthening new types of partnerships for the good of the city. It's called the NYC Mayor's Office of Strategic Partnerships, and it's at the nexus of a rapidly expanding set of initiatives bringing together philanthropic funders and city agencies, touching on multiple areas of life in the city.

Before saying more about this effort, it's worth noting that partnerships between government and philanthropy have really blossomed at the national level under the Obama administration. The White House Office of Social Innovation and Civic Participation has been at the center of this action. The administration's best-known effort to work with philanthropy, My Brother's Keeper, boosts boys and young men of color. But there have been other initiatives, too, including one focused on young women of color, as we've reported.

So what's happening along these lines in New York?

Well, a few weeks ago, Mayor de Blasio announced the success of Computer Science for All, or CS4All, one of the top initiatives of his Office of Strategic Partnerships. The aim of this effort is to bring computer science education to 1.1 million public school kids. Right now, 95 percent of students in New York—who are mostly low-income kids of color—don't have access to CS education.

A key to CS4All has been rallying private funders to pitch in, and over the past year, many have stepped up, donating an impressive $20 million. As you would hope, the tech community has gotten behind CS4All, and founding partners including the venture capitalist Fred Wilson, the AOL

Charitable Foundation and AT&T. Also, as you'd expect, the Robin Hood Foundation has been involved from the start. Meanwhile, new commitments have come in from the Paulson Family Foundation, Math for America, the Rudin Family Foundation and several other funders.

This strong philanthropic support in New York for computer science education comes amid a flurry of funder-backed initiatives around the U.S. to teach kids to code and bolster tech skills overall. Quite a bit of this work is focused on bringing more diversity to the STEM field by engaging girls and young people of color.

These efforts draw in a diverse array of funders and stakeholders because they advance several goals at once, including promoting equity, meeting future employer needs, and strengthening local economies.

“The city’s tech industry is growing, yet before Computer Science for All, fewer than 5 percent of our public school students had even the most basic skills necessary to apply for these jobs,” Mayor de Blasio said. “Through this program, we’re laying the groundwork today so that our kids can apply for these jobs tomorrow.”

CS4ALL has already reached 246 schools and trained more than 450 teachers, and interestingly, the City of New York and the private sector are bearing costs of the program equally.

But there’s much more to NYC’s Office of Strategic Partnerships (OSP) than just this one relevant and timely program. It’s a new division that Mayor de Blasio created to mobilize philanthropic support behind a range of efforts to address inequities in the city. It was also designed to oversee the various funds set up to support city programs, namely the Mayor’s Fund, Fund for Public Health, and Fund for Public Schools.

Gabrielle Fialkoff has been the woman in charge of this ambitious effort since March 2014. As senior advisor to the Mayor of New York City and the director of OSP, she oversees the activities of these and other city-affiliated nonprofits. The Fund for Public Housing and the Gracie Mansion Conservancy are also on this list.

As well, the Office of Strategic Partnerships recently launched a brand new initiative called Building Healthy Communities (BHC), so this is another effort to keep an eye on around town. The goal is to improve health outcomes in 12 underserved neighborhoods, and this public-private partnership encompasses things like physical activity, access to healthy food, and public safety in communities notorious for poverty.

The leaders at work on BHC are OSP and the Fund for Public Health, which is doing the grants management and ongoing fundraising. Current funding is coming from the following sources, several of which we cover regularly here at IP: Unilever North America, the Laurie M. Tisch Illumination Fund, New York State Health Foundation, Target, Aetna Foundation, Astoria Energy, Empire Blue Cross Blue Shield HealthPlus, the New York Community Trust, the Durst Organization, Merck Family Fund, Pure Edge, Inc. Success Through Focus, KaBOOM!, New York City FC, the U.S. Soccer Foundation, and Adidas. So far, this effort has at least $12 million to work with.

The neighborhoods of East Harlem, Brownsville, Canarsie, Mott Haven, Hunts Point, Morrisania, Bedford-Stuyvesant, Central Harlem, Corona, Flushing, Mariners Harbor, and Stapleton were chosen to be part of BHC because of their lack of parks and access to safe public spaces and healthy foods.

There’s so much inter-agency collaboration involved in this effort that it can be difficult to wrap your head around it all at times. For example, BHC funds are paying for five urban farms at developments of the New York City Housing Authority, the building of 50 new soccer fields is underway with the US Soccer Foundation, and BHC is working with the Department of Transportation to improve public walking paths and signage. Check out this press release for full details.

Although it's not what we think of as a traditional philanthropic funder, OSP is definitely an entity to watch and get involved with, given its connectedness and impressive influence. NYN Media's interview with Fialkoff is worth a read to get a sense of her perspective, and the Office of the Mayor's news page is a good way to keep up with what these partnerships are doing.

MAYOR'S OFFICE OF STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIPS
CITY HALL
NEW YORK, NY 10007

Dear Jonathan—

I hope you and your loved ones are having a wonderful holiday season. As we find ourselves at the end of another successful year, I wanted to share with you some of the partnerships the de Blasio Administration has developed with the private sector to further the Mayor's goals of fighting inequality across the five boroughs. Below are a few highlights; we are especially proud of our success in securing a record number of summer jobs for NYC's young people, the First Lady's continued steadfast leadership on the issue of Mental Health, the expansion of our Building Healthy Communities Initiative, and the early success of Computer Science for All.

None of this would have been possible without the support and commitment of our partners – the companies, foundations, and individuals who are just as dedicated to making this an even better City for all 8.5 million New Yorkers.

Many thanks, and I look forward to continued partnership in 2017.

Happy Holidays,
Gabrielle

Center for Youth Employment: Announced Record Number of Summer Jobs and Employers

- 475 employers participated in Ladders for Leaders internships, double the number from the previous summer.
- Launched Industry Partnerships to support jobs in five of New York's most vital sectors: media and entertainment, real estate, hospitality, business services, and fashion.
- The Summer Youth Employment Program, the nation's largest summer jobs program, enrolled a record 60,113 participants in 2016.
- Created an Employer Best Practices Playbook, to share strategies for businesses to host interns and build a pool of diverse talent.

Fund for Public Schools: 250 Schools Now Have Computer Science Education, with 450 Teachers Trained

- Secured 50% of the private funding needed in the first 12 months for Computer Science for All, a ten-year citywide initiative to create universal computer science education in public schools.
- Training and implementation ahead of schedule in the initiative's first year.

Fund for Public Health: Building Healthy Communities (BHC), 3 Urban Farms Launched – 8000 Pounds of Food Delivered to NYCHA Residents

- Built 3 urban farms at NYCHA developments in East Harlem, Brownsville, and Canarsie, training and employing NYCHA youth.
- Activated programming to improve health outcomes in the underserved neighborhoods of East Harlem, Hunts Point, Morrisania, Mott Haven, Brownville, Stapleton, Corona, and Flushing.
- Developed and distributed BHC maps and guides for Brownsville and South Bronx to increase knowledge and awareness of key health assets for the community.

City Soccer Initiative: Funded 50 New Soccer Fields and Programming for 10,000 Kids

- $3-million public-private partnership with NYCFC, adidas, the US Soccer Foundation to build 50 mini-soccer fields and the “Soccer for Success” mentorship programming to 10,000 kids across the five boroughs.

ThriveNYC: Celebrated First Anniversary of First Lady’s Mental Health Plan with Major Milestones

- Trained 578 employees at 15 Community-Based Organizations in the first year of Connections to Care, a $30-million public-private partnership with the White House to train service providers in low-income communities to address clients’ mental health needs.
- Launched NYC Well, a free, confidential service to connect New Yorkers to support for mental health and substance use.
- Hosted CitiesThrive, a conference that brought together representatives from over 60 cities to promote mental health policy and action.

Created Fund for Public Housing

- Developed this year to form public-private partnerships to serve the City’s 500,000 NYCHA residents, the Fund for Public Housing has raised $900,000.
- Created youth leadership development opportunities for hundreds of NYCHA teens.
- Provided scholarships to 10 CUNY-City College students who live in public housing.

Gracie Mansion Conservancy: 21,000 New Yorkers Visit the People’s House

- Between weekly tours, special events, and heritage receptions, Gracie Mansion welcomed over 21,000 visitors through its doors in 2016.
- The First Lady launched the Gracie Book Club, with its inaugural theme, “Envisioning Distant Neighbors.”
