Q: Earlier this morning a hearing was held in Staten Island to review petition requests seeking transcripts, instructions and evidence from the grand jury that investigated the death of Eric Garner but decided not to indict the police officer involved in his chokehold death in July. Do you believe those transcripts should be unsealed?

A: For many people there are obviously a lot of unanswered questions. The death of Eric Garner was an unspeakable tragedy. I understand their desire for more information and transparency. But, I'm not going to weigh in on what should ultimately happen with the transcripts. That is for a judge to decide, and I believe it is important to allow the judicial process to play out as it ultimately will.

Q: Some say they haven't seen police-community relations this bad since the David Dinkins era.

A: We've been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it's not just here in New York. It's a conversation we're having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens.

Q: There's a petition circulating suggesting that you resign.

A: I understand that in the middle of an act of senseless violence, human nature causes us to look for someone to blame – some way to make sense of it all. But I don't think injecting politics into the middle of tragedy is the way forward.

Q: The killer said that this was an act of retribution for Garner. Doesn't that make it political right there? Isn't that exactly what people were protesting in New York – the people you spoke to and defended?

A: This was a deranged individual with a history of violence...a gang-member from Baltimore who allegedly shot his ex-girlfriend there before coming to New York to continue his unspeakable acts. Just because he cloaked his act of violence in the words of non-violent protestors does not mean he speaks for those peaceful protestors any more than Timothy McVeigh spoke for those who advocate for smaller government. This was an act of evil, pure and simple.

Q: Are you worried about copy-cats – like the attempted shooting in the Bronx? Should New Yorkers expect this to continue?

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

A: The people of New York should know that they are safe; that their city and their police force are here to protect them; and that we will work together to ensure that the violence ends. We will double-down on the extraordinary work the NYPD is already doing, and we will stamp out the violence.

Q: But aren't cops going to be afraid to go to work now?

A: Anyone who says that underestimates the courage and valor of our police officer here in New York. These men and women put their lives on the line every day, and they aren't going to be deterred from doing their jobs. They don't intimidate easy; they act heroically, and will continue to do so.

Q: There are those who've suggested that your own police security detail should ease up on protecting you. Did you take that as a threat?

A: New York City police officers have been protecting me for decades – including the years before I ever entered public life. They protected me as a resident of New York City – just like they protect millions of families like mine every day. I know these men and women, and I have immense respect for the job they do, and I'm not going to respond to the vitriolic rants of extremists.

Q: Should you apologize to the police unions and the NYPD generally for your previous comments about your son Dante and the conversation you and the First Lady had with him about taking special care when interacting with the police?

A: No, I will not apologize. This wasn't about Dante or my family. For those who say I should apologize for a conversation that thousands of families have had across this city, no, I will not. This is a very real issue that needs to be talked about and discussed openly because it's something that needs to be fixed. I won't take it back, but I will fix it.

Q: Does today's positive crime statistics give us reason to move past the Broken Windows strategy in policing? Do they ratify the strategy, or nullify it?

A: We've had an extraordinary year, working on a strategy we believe in. While Broken Windows has its merits and has been an effective strategy on many fronts, I also believe it should be constantly reviewed and refined. And that's what we plan to do. (ex. Marijuana arrests)

*Note: Throughout the Q&A, remember to take every opportunity to pivot + back to year-end crime numbers, as well as all of the things we've done for NYPD; nearly $400 million investments is safety and security for cops and all new Yorkers, etc ...

From: John Del Cecato
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats
Date: Monday, January 05, 2015 12:33:32 PM

What time is the Q&A

From: <Hagelgans>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 12:23 PM
To: "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

Hi all, We don't have stats yet, but Jerika updated the Q&A following last night's call. Pasted below for ease

Q&A

Q: We've been hearing that there is a work slowdown and possible a complete work stoppage altogether by police officers. How do you plan to address this matter?

A: It's been an unusual few weeks. At this point there is not sufficient evidence yet that there has in fact been a slowdown. But if we get that evidence, we will act and there will be consequences.

Q: Do you think the unions are aiding and abetting or spearheading this alleged work slowdown/stoppage?

A: What you have just raised is a serious matter, and I am not going to influence what could be a legal matter at some point. Right now we are reviewing the data and conducting our own review. I believe the overwhelming majority of men and women in uniform are doing a great job and their very best. But if circumstances point to some who are not carrying out their duties, we most certainly will look into it. (Taylor Law)

Q: Do you have any arrest updates on last month's assaults on police officers during a protest rally on the Brooklyn Bridge?

A: Last week, the NYPD arrested and charged a fifth suspect, 29 year-old Jarrod Shanahan in connection with the Brooklyn Bridge assault. Shanahan faces multiple charges, including assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, and obstructing governmental administration. Rest assured the Department with the full support of City Hall is doing everything in its power to ensure the perpetrators are apprehended held to account for their actions. That said, the Commissioner and his chiefs can provide you with more details on this specific arrest.

Q: This year police officer shooting deaths increased 56%. Given the current climate and the rise in death threats from anti-police extremists, what are you doing to protect the City's police officers?

A: We've put safety first in this administration by increasing police resources, expanding camera use in all five boroughs, and maintaining force levels. Since the tragic shootings of Officer Ramos and Officer Liu, we've doubled down and now have officers on foot patrols working in pairs and uniformed sentries now guard each precinct station house. The NYPD is actively monitoring social media and investigating any threats against police officers that come through that or any other medium. And I'd like to continue to urge the public to be vigilant and report any suspicious activity they see or hear. We must work together to prevent a tragedy like this from ever happening again.

Q: On Friday, the Commissioner issued a memo to the entire Department outlining his expectations for how members of the Department should behave at Officer Liu's funeral. Where you aware of the memo? Did he do this at your request?

A: Look the Commissioner has been a law enforcement leader for decades. He is a smart, independent, and principled public servant. While I do agree with the tenor of his statement and believe that funerals, especially one's where we are honoring one of our City's fallen, are solemn occasions that should be devoid of politics, the Commissioner certainly doesn't need any micro-managing for me. I respect his judgment, and I leave it to his discretion as to what he should and shouldn't say to his officers.

Q: Officer Liu was laid to rest this past weekend. What do you say to those who reacted negatively to your involvement in the funeral?

A: Officer Liu was an example of the best of what this City has to offer. And words can't express how profoundly his tragic death has impacted all of us. We lost a dedicated public servant who answered the call to protect and serve this great city, and Officer Liu deserves our gratitude and respect. This was not about politics, it was about taking the time to honor his memory and support his family.

Q: How do you respond to Pat Lynch and George Pataki, who say that you have "blood on your hands?"

A: No, I do not have blood on my hands. That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want.

Q: What about the cops who turned their backs on you? How did you take that?

A: Frankly, I think that behavior is reprehensible. To politicize a funeral dishonors the memory of our fallen officers. It is disrespectful to their families, their colleagues, the entire NYPD, the City, and all New Yorkers. This was a tragic loss for everyone, and we're all grieving.

Q: Do you plan to discipline the police officers who turned their backs at the funeral? How do you plan deal with this going forward?

A: I'll leave that to the Commissioner. These actions have elicited a lot of anger and disrespectful to the families and the city. Have absolute faith in Commissioner Bratton and his leadership of the department. So whatever he decides is most appropriate, I'm going to respect his process.

Q: Earlier this morning a hearing was held in Staten Island to review petition requests seeking transcripts, instructions and evidence from the grand jury that investigated the death of Eric Garner but decided not to indict the police officer involved in his chokehold death in July. Do you believe those transcripts should be unsealed?

A: For many people there are obviously a lot of unanswered questions. The death of Eric Garner was an unspeakable tragedy. I understand their desire for more information and transparency. But, I'm not going to weigh in on what should ultimately happen with the transcripts. That is for a judge to decide, and I believe it is important to allow the judicial process to play out as it ultimately will.

Q: Some say they haven't seen police-community relations this bad since the David Dinkins era.

A: We've been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it's not just here in New York. It's a conversation we're having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens.

Q: There's a petition circulating suggesting that you resign.

A: I understand that in the middle of an act of senseless violence, humannature causes us to look for someone to blame – some way to make sense of it all. But I don't think injecting politics into the middle of tragedy is the way forward.

Q: The killer said that this was an act of retribution for Garner. Doesn't that make it political right there? Isn't that exactly what people were protesting in New York – the people you spoke to and defended?

A: This was a deranged individual with a history of violence...a gang-member from Baltimore who allegedly shot his ex-girlfriend there before coming to New York to continue his unspeakable acts. Just because he cloaked his act of violence in the words of non-violent protestors does not mean he speaks for those peaceful protestors any more than Timothy McVeigh spoke for those who advocate for smaller government. This was an act of evil, pure and simple.

Q: Are you worried about copy-cats – like the attempted shooting in the Bronx? Should New Yorkers expect this to continue?

A: The people of New York should know that they are safe; that their city and their police force are here to protect them; and that we will work together to ensure that the violence ends. We will double-down on the extraordinary work the NYPD is already doing, and we will stamp out the violence.

Q: But aren't cops going to be afraid to go to work now?

A: Anyone who says that underestimates the courage and valor of our police officer here in New York. These men and women put their lives on the line every day, and they aren't going to be deterred from doing their jobs. They don't intimidate easy; they act heroically, and will continue to do so.

Q: There are those who've suggested that your own police security detail should ease up on protecting you. Did you take that as a threat?

A: New York City police officers have been protecting me for decades –including the years before I ever entered public life. They protected me as a resident of New York City – just like they protect millions of families like mine every day. I know these men and women, and I have immense respect for the job they do, and I'm not going to respond to the vitriolic rants of extremists.

Q: Should you apologize to the police unions and the NYPD generally for your previous comments about your son Dante and the conversation you and the First Lady had with him about taking special care when interacting with the police?

A: No, I will not apologize. This wasn't about Dante or my family. For those who say I should apologize for a conversation that thousands of families have had across this city, no, I will not. This is a very real issue that needs to be talked about and discussed openly because it's something that needs to be fixed. I won't take it back, but I will fix it.

Q: Does today's positive crime statistics give us reason to move past the Broken Windows strategy in policing? Do they ratify the strategy, or nullify it?

A: We've had an extraordinary year, working on a strategy we believe in. While Broken Windows has its merits and has been an effective strategy on many fronts, I also believe it should be constantly reviewed and refined. And that's what we plan to do. (ex. Marijuana arrests)

*Note: Throughout the Q&A, remember to take every opportunity to pivot + back to year-end crime numbers, as well as all of the things we've done for NYPD; nearly $400 million investments in safety and security for cops and all new Yorkers, etc ...

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 12:19 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 7:20 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika

Subject: Re: Pls edits

Dial in plz

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:19 PM

To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Cc: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

Sense of when?

From: Carey, Michael

Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 07:07 PM

To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Wolfe, Emma

Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika

Subject: Re: Pls edits

U can pop off unless you want to chat before hand. He won't be on for another 10 at least.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM

To: "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

I am on

From: <Wolfe>, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM

To: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Cc: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

Are we supposed to get on this call now?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:31 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Pls edits

How much time you want JDC?

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:30 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I'm headed back to my computer now, but generally, we need more time to make tweaks to Q and A if possible

On Jan 4, 2015, at 6:24 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Supposed to talk again around 630 PM, but waiting for them to get back to GM.

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:23 PM
To: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

+mpc

And what do we want to achieve, from the convo @ 3 pm ?

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:22 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

What time are we talking to him again?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:16 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Pls edits

I have tried to punch up the language per his request. Pls edit quickly

Message Strategy

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Focus on what matters – Protect and Respect
 <!--[if !supportLists]-->○ <!--[endif]-->Keeping crime low
 <!--[if !supportLists]-->○ <!--[endif]-->Bringing police and community closer together – because its good for both police AND community

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Reaffirm confidence in and support in NYPD and its leadership

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Use emotions strategically --- to draw the line and make clear work stoppages are unacceptable and will not be tolerated. New Yorkers expect that their police force is working and those who choose not to do their job can find another line of work.

Topline Themes Likely to Guide Every Question

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Emotions: How did it make you feel when backs were turned? Is there anything you regret saying [ie, Dante comparison]? Were you surprised at the reaction?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Apologies: Should you apologize to the NYPD? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Cause and Effect: Do you believe your comments and actions have caused this escalation?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Forward-looking: How do you and the City move forward? Now that you've met with the unions, what's next? How do you respond to claims that the first meeting was non-productive and what does that mean for future talks?

SAMPLE Q+A

Q: Should you apologize like some in the media have said? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

A: Look, this isn't about how I feel. My focus is on keeping our City safe, keeping crime numbers low and bringing police and community together.

Q: Some in the NYPD have said comments about Dante in particular needing to take special care w police were offensive to them. What did you mean and do you regret those remarks?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->

Our police officers do a dangerous and essential, but often thankless job. And striking the right balance between rigorously protecting public safety and respecting individuals is part of what makes the job so challenging. It must be done with extraordinary care and restraint. In turn, our police deserve our gratitude and our respect.

It is also true that at times, people of color have felt suspect simply because of how they look. That sense of distrust doesn't make policing any easier. It makes it more difficult.

The question we must ask ourselves is this: how do we keep EVERY New Yorker safe – whether they wear a suit and tie, a uniform, or a hoodie; whether they were the targets of stop and frisk policing, subjects of ugly, hate-filled taunts or despicable violent protests; or victims of a deranged individual who shamefully uses peaceful protests as a cover for his acts of unthinkable evil.

Q: Is there a police work slowdown happening right now, and if so what are you and the PC going to do to end it?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->We know that typically after a police officer is killed there is a brief period of mourning. As Commissioner Bratton put it, a time for grieving. But let me be clear—New Yorkers will not tolerate any perceived slow down, the police Commissioner won't and I certainly won't. New Yorkers expect officers to do their job and to do it well. Those who can't should consider a new line of work. And for those few who are deliberately stopping/slowing or encouraging others to abdicate their responsibilities, there very well may be legal consequences.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->Q. <!--[endif]-->Are you exploring legal options?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->I expect our cops to do their jobs and to do them admirably. And the NYPD is the finest in the country. If we perceive a slowdown, we will look at all options to keep New Yorkers safe.

Q: Next mtg with Lynch and the unions? What are next steps in that relationship? How do you repair and move forward?

Q: Reaction to those protestors who say and chant vile hateful things about the NYPD?

Q: Do you have any arrest updates on last month's assaults on police officers during a protest rally on the Brooklyn Bridge?

A: Last week, the NYPD arrested and charged a fifth suspect, 29 year-old Jarrod Shanahan in connection with the Brooklyn Bridge assault. Shanahan faces multiple charges, including assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, and obstructing governmental administration. Rest assured the Department with the full support of City Hall is doing everything in its power to ensure the perpetrators are apprehended held to account for their actions. That said, the Commissioner and his chiefs can provide you with more details on this specific arrest.

Q: This year police officer shooting deaths increased 56%. Given the current climate and the rise in death threats from anti-police extremists, what are you doing to protect the City's police officers? Is your rhetoric at all responsible for this climate?

A: No, this was the act of a deranged individual, pure and simple.

We've put safety first in this administration by increasing police resources, expanding camera use in all five boroughs, and maintaining force levels. Since the tragic shootings of Officer Ramos and Officer Liu, we've doubled down and now have officers on foot patrols working in pairs and uniformed sentries now guard each precinct station house. The NYPD is actively monitoring social media and investigating any threats against police officers that come through that or any other medium. And I'd like to continue to urge the public to be vigilant and report any suspicious activity they see or hear. We must work together to prevent a tragedy like this from ever happening again.

Q: On Friday, the Commissioner issued a memo to the entire Department outlining his expectations for how members of the Department should behave at Officer Liu's funeral. Were you aware of the memo? Did he do this at your request?

A: The Commissioner has been a law enforcement leader for decades. He is a smart, independent, and principled public servant. While I do agree with the tenor of his statement and believe that funerals, especially one's where we are honoring one of our City's fallen, are solemn occasions that should be devoid of politics, the Commissioner certainly doesn't need any micro-managing for me. I respect his judgment, and I leave it to his discretion as to what he should and shouldn't say to his officers.

Q: Officer Liu was laid to rest this past weekend. What do you say to those who reacted negatively to your involvement in the funeral?

A: Officer Liu was an example of the best of what this City has to offer. And words can't express how profoundly his tragic death has impacted all of us. We lost a dedicated public servant who answered the call to protect and serve this great city, and Officer Liu deserves our gratitude and respect. This was not about politics, it was about taking the time to honor his memory and support his family.

Q: What about the cops who turned their backs on you? How did you take that?

A: It was the actions of a few – I certainly heard from New Yorkers who were upset to see some who would choose to politicize funerals in direct contrast to the families request. My focus is on how we make sure this City is safe, continue to the low-crime rates, honor the memories of the two men we've lost; protect our officers from future acts; and begin to heal our city.

Q: How do you respond to those who turned their backs or who made statements, such as you have "blood on your hands?"

A: Short answer – No, I do not believe that nor do I think the majority of New Yorkers believe that. That's the kind of divisive politics that does nothing to move this City forward.,

If people want to politicize someone's funeral, that's on them and you can ask them what they think of that. I've got a job to do as Mayor. We've kept crime low and we're remaking the relationship between police and community. No number of baseless attacks are going to stop us from getting their together.

Q: Earlier this morning a hearing was held in Staten Island to review petition requests seeking transcripts, instructions and evidence from the grand jury that investigated the death of Eric Garner but decided not to indict the police officer involved in his chokehold death in July. Do you believe those transcripts should be unsealed?

A: For many people there are obviously a lot of unanswered questions. The death of Eric Garner was an unspeakable tragedy. I understand their desire for more information and transparency. But, I'm not going to weigh in on what should ultimately happen with the transcripts. That is for a judge to decide, and I believe it is important to allow the judicial process to play out as it ultimately will.

Q: Some say they haven't seen police-community relations this bad since the David Dinkins era.

A: We've been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it's not just here in New York. It's a conversation we're having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens. We are making progress, reduction in stops or example. We will continue the work. Playing the long game, and am confident we are going in the right direction.

Q: There's a petition circulating suggesting that you resign.

A: I understand that in the middle of an act of senseless violence, humannature causes us to look for someone to blame – some way to make sense of it all. But I don't think injecting politics into the middle of tragedy is the way forward. I am confident this Administration has the confidence and support of the people of NYC.

Q: The killer said that this was an act of retribution for Garner. Doesn't that make it political right there? Isn't that exactly what people were protesting in New York – the people you spoke to and defended.

A: This was a deranged individual with a history of violence...a gang-member from Baltimore who allegedly shot his ex-girlfriend there before coming to New York to continue his unspeakable acts. Just because he cloaked his act of violence in the words of non-violent protestors does not mean he speaks for those peaceful protestors any more than Timothy McVeigh spoke for those who advocate for smaller government. This was an act of evil, pure and simple.

Q: Are you worried about copy-cats – like the attempted shooting in the Bronx? Should New Yorkers expect this to continue?

A: The people of New York should know that they are safe; that their city and their police force are here to protect them; and that we will work together to ensure that the violence ends. We will double-down on the extraordinary work the NYPD is already doing, and we will stamp out the violence. And we will have our cops' backs.

Q: But aren't cops going to be afraid to go to work now?

A: Anyone who says that underestimates the courage and valor of our police officer here in New York. These men and women put their lives on the line every day, and they aren't going to be deterred from doing their jobs. They don't intimidate easy; they act heroically, and will continue to do so.

Q: There are those who've suggested that your own police security detail should ease up on protecting you. Did you take that as a threat?

A: New York City police officers have been protecting me and my family for decades – including the years before I ever entered public life. They protected me as a resident of New York City – just like they protect millions of families like mine every day. I know these men and women, they are professionals who take their duty seriously and I have immense respect for the job they do.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Richardson, Jerika
To: "John Del Cecato"; Shorris, Anthony; Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Ragone, Peter; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats
Date: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:09:53 PM

Thanks, John. I'll adopt this language and add it to the briefing Q & A.

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:06 PM
To: Shorris, Anthony; Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Ragone, Peter; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Re: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

Agreed - that was an (inadequate) answer that I wrote right after the killings.

In today's environment, we need to remind people that a year ago, we had 700K stop and frisks, and now we have less than 50K or whatever - and crime set a record low in 2014... The extreme statements don't represent most police officers, most New Yorkers, or the reality of a city that is striving towards protecting and respecting its people...

From: <Shorris>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 12:54 PM
To: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

He should not accept this premise -- this looks like he agrees. There is no evidence of this at all. Police union-City Hall relationships are difficult now -- as they have been many times in the past.

Q: Some say they haven't seen police-community relations this bad since the David Dinkins era.

A: We've been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it's not just here in New York. It's a conversation we're having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens.

Anthony E. Shorris
First Deputy Mayor
City of New York
City Hall
New York, NY 10007

212-788-3191

On Jan 5, 2015, at 12:23 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Q: Some say they haven't seen police-community relations this bad since theDavid Dinkins era.

A: We've been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it's not just here in New York. It's a conversation we're having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens.

From: Ragone, Peter
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Re: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats
Date: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:34:23 PM

Thinking like this is a debate and most folks are carrying the news conference live I feel like we go hard on statistics about how safe the city is and then close with this before q and a.

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 01:32 PM
To: Ragone, Peter; Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Re: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

I like it... MBDB will say it's a little long - but if it's part of a prepared statement, I think it's great

From: <Ragone>, Peter <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 1:30 PM
To: "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

As part of opening, what do folks think about this?

A Vision for New York City

Rather than get lost in the daily back and forth by the loudest and most disrespectful voices in this debate, let talk for a second about where we are going as a city. And let me tell you what I see in the near future. I see a New York where streets are safe. A New York where citizens and police officers are partners in that endeavor. I believe that vision of New York will prevail over the ones where the loudest voices of disunity and discord rule the day and drive news cycles. We'll spend the next few minutes talking about what dishonest charge has been made today or yesterday by folks on either extreme of the discussion. But it won't change the vision I, and millions of others of New Yorkers have for the city we're going to create. Lower crime, safe streets for both citizens and cops. In that city we will have the strongest relationship we've ever had between cops and the people they protect. And that won't be stopped, no matter what obstacle unions or anti cop protesters try to erect.

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:21 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

I'll create a document for these now.

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:15 PM
To: Ragone, Peter; Richardson, Jerika; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

JLR should have additions from last night – turned backs on families and the city, but not going to let that distract from the work we are doing to keep crime low and to bring police and community closer together

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:11 PM
To: Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

Can we do a cheat sheet of sound bites for the mayor before the briefing...

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 12:19 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 7:20 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Dial in plz

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:19 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Sense of when?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 07:07 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

U can pop off unless you want to chat before hand. He won't be on for another 10 at least.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM
To: "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I am on

From: <Wolfe>, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM
To: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

Are we supposed to get on this call now?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:31 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Pls edits

How much time you want JDC?

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:30 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I'm headed back to my computer now, but generally, we need more time to make tweaks to Q and A if possible

On Jan 4, 2015, at 6:24 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Supposed to talk again around 630 PM, but waiting for them to get back to GM.

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:23 PM
To: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

+mpc

And what do we want to achieve, from the convo @ 3 pm ?

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:22 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

What time are we talking to him again?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea

Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:16 PM

To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Pls edits

I have tried to punch up the language per his request. Pls edit quickly

Message Strategy

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Focus on what matters – Protect and Respect

<!--[if !supportLists]-->○ <!--[endif]-->Keeping crime low

<!--[if !supportLists]-->○ <!--[endif]-->Bringing police and community closer together – because its good for both police AND community

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Reaffirm confidence in and support in NYPD and its leadership

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Use emotions strategically --- to draw the line and make clear work stoppages are unacceptable and will not be tolerated. New Yorkers expect that their police force is working and those who choose not to do their job can find another line of work.

Topline Themes Likely to Guide Every Question

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Emotions: How did it make you feel when backs were turned? Is there anything you regret saying [ie, Dante comparison]? Were you surprised at the reaction?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Apologies: Should you apologize to the NYPD? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Cause and Effect: Do you believe your comments and actions have caused this escalation?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Forward-looking: How do you and the City move forward? Now that you've met with the unions, what's next? How do you respond to claims that the first meeting was non-productive and what does that mean for future talks?

SAMPLE Q+A

Q: Should you apologize like some in the media have said? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

A: Look, this isn't about how I feel. My focus is on keeping our City safe, keeping crime numbers low and bringing police and community together.

Q: Some in the NYPD have said comments about Dante in particular needing to take special care w police were offensive to them. What did you mean and do you regret those remarks?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->
Our police officers do a dangerous and essential, but often thankless job. And striking the right balance between rigorously protecting public safety and respecting individuals is part of what makes the job so challenging. It must be done with extraordinary care and restraint. In turn, our police deserve our gratitude and our respect.

It is also true that at times, people of color have felt suspect simply because of how they look. That sense of distrust doesn't make policing any easier. It makes it more difficult.

The question we must ask ourselves is this: how do we keep EVERY New Yorker safe – whether they wear a suit and tie, a uniform, or a hoodie; whether they were the targets of stop and frisk policing, subjects of ugly, hate-filled taunts or despicable violent protests; or victims of a deranged individual who shamefully uses peaceful protests as a cover for his acts of unthinkable evil.

Q: Is there a police work slowdown happening right now, and if so what are you and the PC going to do to end it?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->We know that typically after a police officer is killed there is a brief period of mourning. As Commissioner Bratton put it, a time for grieving. But let me be clear—New Yorkers will not tolerate any perceived slow down, the police Commissioner won't and I certainly won't. New Yorkers expect officers to do their job and to do it well. Those who can't should consider a new line of work. And for those few who are deliberately stopping/slowing or encouraging others to abdicate their responsibilities, there very well may be legal consequences.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->Q. <!--[endif]-->Are you exploring legal options?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->I expect our cops to do their jobs and to do them admirably. And the NYPD is the finest in the country. If we perceive a slowdown, we will look at all options to keep New Yorkers safe.

Q: Next mtg with Lynch and the unions? What are next steps in that relationship? How do you repair and move forward?

Q: Reaction to those protestors who say and chant vile hateful things about the NYPD?

Q: Do you have any arrest updates on last month's assaults on police officers during a protest rally on the Brooklyn Bridge?

A: Last week, the NYPD arrested and charged a fifth suspect, 29 year-old Jarrod Shanahan in connection with the Brooklyn Bridge assault. Shanahan faces multiple charges, including assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, and obstructing governmental administration. Rest assured the Department with the full support of City Hall is doing everything in its power to ensure the perpetrators are apprehended held to account for their actions. That said, the Commissioner and his chiefs can provide you with more details on this specific arrest.

Q: This year police officer shooting deaths increased 56%. Given the current climate and the rise in death threats from anti-police extremists, what are you doing to protect the City's police officers? Is your rhetoric at all responsible for this climate?

A: No, this was the act of a deranged individual, pure and simple.

We've put safety first in this administration by increasing police resources, expanding camera use in all five boroughs, and maintaining force levels. Since the tragic shootings of Officer Ramos and Officer Liu, we've doubled down and now have officers on foot patrols working in pairs and uniformed sentries now guard each precinct station house. The NYPD is actively monitoring social media and investigating any threats against police officers that come through that or any other medium. And I'd like to continue to urge the public to be vigilant and report any suspicious activity they see or hear. We must work together to prevent a tragedy like this from ever happening again.

Q: On Friday, the Commissioner issued a memo to the entire Department outlining his expectations for how members of the Department should behave at Officer Liu's funeral. Were you aware of the memo? Did he do this at your request?

A: The Commissioner has been a law enforcement leader for decades. He is a smart, independent, and principled public servant. While I do agree with the tenor of his statement and believe that funerals, especially one's where we are honoring one of our City's fallen, are solemn occasions that should be devoid of politics, the Commissioner certainly doesn't need any micro-managing for me. I respect his judgment, and I leave it to his discretion as to what he should and shouldn't say to his officers.

Q: Officer Liu was laid to rest this past weekend. What do you say to those who reacted negatively to your involvement in the funeral?

A: Officer Liu was an example of the best of what this City has to offer. And words can't express how profoundly his tragic death has impacted all of us. We lost a dedicated public servant who answered the call to protect and serve this great city, and Officer Liu deserves our gratitude and respect. This was not about politics, it was about taking the time to honor his memory and support his family.

Q: What about the cops who turned their backs on you? How did you take that?

A: It was the actions of a few – I certainly heard from New Yorkers who were upset to see some who would choose to politicize funerals in direct contrast to the families request. My focus is on how we make sure this City is safe, continue to the low-crime rates, honor the memories of the two men we've lost; protect our officers from future acts; and begin to heal our city.

Q: How do you respond to those who turned their backs or who made statements, such as you have "blood on your hands?"

A: Short answer – No, I do not believe that nor do I think the majority of New Yorkers believe that. That's the kind of divisive politics that does nothing to move this City forward.,

If people want to politicize someone's funeral, that's on them and you can ask them what they think of that. I've got a job to do as Mayor. We've kept crime low and we're remaking the relationship between police and community. No number of baseless attacks are going to stop us from getting their together.

Q: Earlier this morning a hearing was held in Staten Island to review petition requests seeking transcripts, instructions and evidence from the grand jury that investigated the death of Eric Garner but decided not to indict the police officer involved in his chokehold death in July. Do you believe those transcripts should be unsealed?

A: For many people there are obviously a lot of unanswered questions. The death of Eric Garner was an unspeakable tragedy. I understand their desire for more information and transparency. But, I'm not going to weigh in on what should ultimately happen with the transcripts. That is for a judge to decide, and I believe it is important to allow the judicial process to play out as it ultimately will.

Q: Some say they haven't seen police-community relations this bad since the David Dinkins era.

A: We've been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it's not just here in New York. It's a conversation we're having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens. We are making progress, reduction in stops or example. We will continue the work. Playing the long game, and am confident we are going in the right direction.

Q: There's a petition circulating suggesting that you resign.

A: I understand that in the middle of an act of senseless violence, humannature causes us to look for someone to blame – some way to make sense of it all. But I don't think injecting politics into the middle of tragedy is the way forward. I am confident this Administration has the confidence and support of the people of NYC.

Q: The killer said that this was an act of retribution for Garner. Doesn't that make it political right there? Isn't that exactly what people were protesting in New York – the people you spoke to and defended.

A: This was a deranged individual with a history of violence...a gang-member from Baltimore who allegedly shot his ex-girlfriend there before coming to New York to continue his unspeakable acts. Just because he cloaked his act of violence in the words of non-violent protestors does not mean he speaks for those peaceful protestors any more than Timothy McVeigh spoke for those who advocate for smaller government. This was an act of evil, pure and simple.

Q: Are you worried about copy-cats – like the attempted shooting in the Bronx? Should New Yorkers expect this to continue?

A: The people of New York should know that they are safe; that their city and their police force are here to protect them; and that we will work together to ensure that the violence ends. We will double-down on the extraordinary work the NYPD is already doing, and we will stamp out the violence. And we will have our cops' backs.

Q: But aren't cops going to be afraid to go to work now?

A: Anyone who says that underestimates the courage and valor of our police officer here in New York. These men and women put their lives on the line every day, and they aren't going to be deterred from doing their jobs. They don't intimidate easy; they act heroically, and will continue to do so.

Q: There are those who've suggested that your own police security detail should ease up on protecting you. Did you take that as a threat?

A: New York City police officers have been protecting me and my family for decades – including the years before I ever entered public life. They protected me as a resident of New York City – just like they protect millions of families like mine every day. I know these men and women, they are professionals who take their duty seriously and I have immense respect for the job they do.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Richardson, Jerika
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats
Date: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:50:50 PM
Attachments: Crime Stats Presser One-Liners.docx

See the attached document.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

"No, I do not have blood on my hands. That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want."

"I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations."

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:15 PM
To: Ragone, Peter; Richardson, Jerika; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

JLR should have additions from last night – turned backs on families and the city, but not going to let that distract from the work we are doing to keep crime low and to bring police and community closer together

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:11 PM
To: Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

Can we do a cheat sheet of sound bites for the mayor before the briefing...

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 12:19 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 7:20 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Dial in plz

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:19 PM

To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Cc: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

Sense of when?

From: Carey, Michael

Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 07:07 PM

To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Wolfe, Emma

Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika

Subject: Re: Pls edits

U can pop off unless you want to chat before hand. He won't be on for another 10 at least.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM

To: "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

I am on

From: <Wolfe>, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM

To: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Cc: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

Are we supposed to get on this call now?

From: Carey, Michael

Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:31 PM

To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma

Subject: Re: Pls edits

How much time you want JDC?

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:30 PM

To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

I'm headed back to my computer now, but generally, we need more time to make tweaks to Q and A if possible

On Jan 4, 2015, at 6:24 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Supposed to talk again around 630 PM, but waiting for them to get back to GM.

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:23 PM

To: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

+mpc

And what do we want to achieve, from the convo @ 3 pm ?

From: Ragone, Peter

Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:22 PM

To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

What time are we talking to him again?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea

Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:16 PM

To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Pls edits

I have tried to punch up the language per his request. Pls edit quickly

Message Strategy

- Focus on what matters – Protect and Respect
 - Keeping crime low
 - Bringing police and community closer together – because its good for both police AND community
- Reaffirm confidence in and support in NYPD and its leadership
- Use emotions strategically --- to draw the line and make clear work stoppages are unacceptable and will not be tolerated. New Yorkers expect that their police force is working and those who choose not to do their job can find another line of work.

Topline Themes Likely to Guide Every Question

- Emotions: How did it make you feel when backs were turned? Is there anything you regret saying [ie, Dante comparison]? Were you surprised at the reaction?
- Apologies: Should you apologize to the NYPD? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?
- Cause and Effect: Do you believe your comments and actions have caused this escalation?
- Forward-looking: How do you and the City move forward? Now that you've met with the unions, what's next? How do you respond to claims that the first meeting was non-productive and what does that mean for future talks?

SAMPLE Q+A

Q: Should you apologize like some in the media have said? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

A: Look, this isn't about how I feel. My focus is on keeping our City safe, keeping crime numbers low and bringing police and community together.

Q: Some in the NYPD have said comments about Dante in particular needing to take special care w police were offensive to them. What did you mean and do you regret those remarks?

A.

Our police officers do a dangerous and essential, but often thankless job. And striking the right balance between rigorously protecting public safety and respecting individuals is part of what makes the job so challenging. It must be done with extraordinary care and restraint. In turn, our police deserve our gratitude and our respect.

It is also true that at times, people of color have felt suspect simply because of how they look. That sense of distrust doesn't make policing any easier. It makes it more difficult.

The question we must ask ourselves is this: how do we keep EVERY New Yorker safe – whether they wear a suit and tie, a uniform, or a hoodie; whether they were the targets of stop and frisk policing, subjects of ugly, hate-filled taunts or despicable violent protests; or victims of a deranged individual who shamefully uses peaceful protests as a cover for his acts of unthinkable evil.

Q: Is there a police work slowdown happening right now, and if so what are you and the PC going to do to end it?

A. We know that typically after a police officer is killed there is a brief period of mourning. As Commissioner Bratton put it, a time for grieving. But let me be clear—New Yorkers will not tolerate any perceived slow down, the police Commissioner won't and I certainly won't. New Yorkers expect officers to do their job and to do it well. Those who can't should consider a new line of work. And for those few who are deliberately stopping/slowing or encouraging others to abdicate their responsibilities, there very well may be legal consequences.

Q. Are you exploring legal options?

A. I expect our cops to do their jobs and to do them admirably. And the NYPD is the finest in the country. If we perceive a slowdown, we will look at all options to keep New Yorkers safe.

Q: Next mtg with Lynch and the unions? What are next steps in that relationship? How do you repair and move forward?

Q: Reaction to those protestors who say and chant vile hateful things about the NYPD?

Q: Do you have any arrest updates on last month's assaults on police officers during a protest rally on the Brooklyn Bridge?

A: Last week, the NYPD arrested and charged a fifth suspect, 29 year-old Jarrod Shanahan in connection with the Brooklyn Bridge assault. Shanahan faces multiple charges, including assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, and obstructing governmental administration. Rest assured the Department with the full support of City Hall is doing everything in its power to ensure the perpetrators are apprehended, held to account for their actions. That said, the Commissioner and his chiefs can provide you with more details on this specific arrest.

Q: This year police officer shooting deaths increased 56%. Given the current climate and the rise in death threats from anti-police extremists, what are you doing to protect the City's police officers? Is your rhetoric at all responsible for this climate?

A: No, this was the act of a deranged individual, pure and simple.

We've put safety first in this administration by increasing police resources, expanding camera use in all five boroughs, and maintaining force levels. Since the tragic shootings of Officer Ramos and Officer Liu, we've doubled down and now have officers on foot patrols working in pairs and uniformed sentries now guard each precinct station house. The NYPD is actively monitoring social media and investigating any threats against police officers that come through that or any other medium. And I'd like to continue to urge the public to be vigilant and report any suspicious activity they see or hear. We must work together to prevent a tragedy like this from ever happening again.

Q: On Friday, the Commissioner issued a memo to the entire Department outlining his expectations for how members of the Department should behave at Officer Liu's funeral. Were you aware of the memo? Did he do this at your request?

A: The Commissioner has been a law enforcement leader for decades. He is a smart, independent, and principled public servant. While I do agree with the tenor of his statement and believe that funerals, especially one's where we are honoring one of our City's fallen, are solemn occasions that should be devoid of politics, the Commissioner certainly doesn't need any micro-managing for me. I respect his judgment, and I leave it to his discretion as to what he should and shouldn't say to his officers.

Q: Officer Liu was laid to rest this past weekend. What do you say to those who reacted negatively to your involvement in the funeral?

A: Officer Liu was an example of the best of what this City has to offer. And words can't express how profoundly his tragic death has impacted all of us. We lost a dedicated public servant who answered the call to protect and serve this great city, and Officer Liu deserves our gratitude and respect. This was not about politics, it was about taking the time to honor his memory and support his family.

Q: What about the cops who turned their backs on you? How did you take that?

A: It was the actions of a few – I certainly heard from New Yorkers who were upset to see some who would choose to politicize funerals in direct contrast to the families request. My focus is on how we make sure this City is safe, continue to the low-crime rates, honor the memories of the two men we've lost; protect our officers from future acts; and begin to heal our city.

Q: How do you respond to those who turned their backs or who made statements, such as you have "blood on your hands?"

A: Short answer – No, I do not believe that nor do I think the majority of New Yorkers believe that. That's the kind of divisive politics that does nothing to move this City forward.,

If people want to politicize someone's funeral, that's on them and you can ask them what they think of that. I've got a job to do as Mayor. We've kept crime low and we're remaking the relationship between police and community. No number of baseless attacks are going to stop us from getting their together.

Q: Earlier this morning a hearing was held in Staten Island to review petition requests seeking transcripts, instructions and evidence from the grand jury that investigated the death of Eric Garner but decided not to indict the police officer involved in his chokehold death in July. Do you believe those transcripts should be unsealed?

A: For many people there are obviously a lot of unanswered questions. The death of Eric Garner was an unspeakable tragedy. I understand their desire for more information and transparency. But, I'm not going to weigh in on what should ultimately happen with the transcripts. That is for a judge to decide, and I believe it is important to allow the judicial process to play out as it ultimately will.

Q: Some say they haven't seen police-community relations this bad since the David Dinkins era.

A: We've been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it's not just here in New York. It's a conversation we're having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens. We are making progress, reduction in stops or example. We will continue the work. Playing the long game, and am confident we are going in the right direction.

Q: There's a petition circulating suggesting that you resign.

A: I understand that in the middle of an act of senseless violence, humannature causes us to look for someone to blame – some way to make sense of it all. But I don't think injecting politics into the middle of tragedy is the way forward. I am confident this Administration has the confidence and support of the people of NYC.

Q: The killer said that this was an act of retribution for Garner. Doesn't that make it political right there? Isn't that exactly what people were protesting in New York – the people you spoke to and defended.

A: This was a deranged individual with a history of violence...a gang-member from Baltimore who allegedly shot his ex-girlfriend there before coming to New York to continue his unspeakable acts. Just because he cloaked his act of violence in the words of non-violent protestors does not mean he speaks for those peaceful protesters any more than Timothy McVeigh spoke for those who advocate for smaller government. This was an act of evil, pure and simple.

Q: Are you worried about copy-cats – like the attempted shooting in the Bronx? Should New Yorkers expect this to continue?

A: The people of New York should know that they are safe; that their city and their police force are here to protect them; and that we will work together to ensure that the violence ends. We will double-down on the extraordinary work the NYPD is already doing, and we will stamp out the violence. And we will have our cops' backs.

Q: But aren't cops going to be afraid to go to work now?

A: Anyone who says that underestimates the courage and valor of our police officer here in New York. These men and women put their lives on the line every day, and they aren't going to be deterred from doing their jobs. They don't intimidate easy; they act heroically, and will continue to do so.

Q: There are those who've suggested that your own police security detail should ease up on protecting you. Did you take that as a threat?

A: New York City police officers have been protecting me and my family for decades – including the years before I ever entered public life. They protected me as a resident of New York City – just like they protect millions of families like mine every day. I know these men and women, they are professionals who take their duty seriously and I have immense respect for the job they do.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

EVENT: PRESS CONFERENCE WITH COMMISSIONER BRATTON ON 2014 CRIME STATISTICS

DATE: Monday, January 5, 2015

TIME: 3:00 PM

LOCATION: One Police Plaza
New York, NY 10038

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

"No, I do not have blood on my hands. That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want."

"I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations."

From: Richardson, Jerika
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Revised One-Liners - Let me know if you'd like anything cut.
Date: Monday, January 05, 2015 2:07:56 PM
Attachments: Crime Stats Presser One-Liners v2.docx

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

"No, I do not have blood on my hands. That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want."

"No, I will not apologize. This wasn't about Dante or my family. For those who say I should apologize for a conversation that thousands of families have had across this city."

"This is a very real issue that needs to be talked about and discussed openly because it's something that needs to be fixed."

"I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations."

"To politicize a funeral dishonors the memory of our fallen officers. It is disrespectful to their families, their colleagues, the entire NYPD, the City, and all New Yorkers."

"At this point there is not sufficient evidence yet that there has in fact been a slowdown. But if we get that evidence, we will act and there will be consequences."

"I am not going to influence what could be a legal matter at some point. Right now we are reviewing the data and conducting our own review. I believe the overwhelming majority of men and women in uniform are doing a great job and their very best. But if circumstances point to some who are not carrying out their duties, we most certainly will look into it."

(Taylor Law)

“We've had an extraordinary year, working on a strategy we believe in. While Broken Windows has its merits and has been an effective strategy on many fronts, I also believe it should be constantly reviewed and refined. And that's what we plan to do.”

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:51 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

See the attached document.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

“No, I do not have blood on my hands. That’s the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want.”

“I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations.”

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:15 PM
To: Ragone, Peter; Richardson, Jerika; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic

Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

JLR should have additions from last night – turned backs on families and the city, but not going to let that distract from the work we are doing to keep crime low and to bring police and community closer together

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:11 PM
To: Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

Can we do a cheat sheet of sound bites for the mayor before the briefing....

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 12:19 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 7:20 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma

Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Dial in plz

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:19 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Sense of when?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 07:07 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

U can pop off unless you want to chat before hand. He won't be on for another 10 at least.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM
To: "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I am on

From: <Wolfe>, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM
To: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Are we supposed to get on this call now?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:31 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Pls edits

How much time you want JDC?

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:30 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I'm headed back to my computer now, but generally, we need more time to make tweaks to Q and A if possible

On Jan 4, 2015, at 6:24 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Supposed to talk again around 630 PM, but waiting for them to get back to GM.

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:23 PM
To: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

+mpc

And what do we want to achieve, from the convo @ 3 pm ?

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:22 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

What time are we talking to him again?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:16 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Pls edits

I have tried to punch up the language per his request. Pls edit quickly

Message Strategy

- Focus on what matters – Protect and Respect
 - Keeping crime low
 - Bringing police and community closer together – because its good for both police AND community
- Reaffirm confidence in and support in NYPD and its leadership
- Use emotions strategically --- to draw the line and make clear work stoppages are unacceptable and will not be tolerated. New Yorkers expect that their police force is working and those who choose not to do their job can find another line of work.

Topline Themes Likely to Guide Every Question

- Emotions: How did it make you feel when backs were turned? Is there anything you regret saying [ie, Dante comparison]? Were you surprised at the reaction?
- Apologies: Should you apologize to the NYPD? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?
- Cause and Effect: Do you believe your comments and actions have caused this escalation?
- Forward-looking: How do you and the City move forward? Now that you've met with the unions, what's next? How do you respond to claims that the first meeting was non-productive and what does that mean for future talks?

SAMPLE Q+A

Q: Should you apologize like some in the media have said? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

A: Look, this isn't about how I feel. My focus is on keeping our City safe, keeping crime numbers low and bringing police and community together.

Q: Some in the NYPD have said comments about Dante in particular needing to take special care w police were offensive to them. What did you mean and do you regret those remarks?

A.

Our police officers do a dangerous and essential, but often thankless job. And striking the right balance between rigorously protecting public safety and respecting individuals is part of what makes the job so challenging. It must be done with extraordinary care and restraint. In turn, our police deserve our gratitude and our respect.

It is also true that at times, people of color have felt suspect simply because of how they look. That sense of distrust doesn't make policing any easier. It makes it more difficult.

The question we must ask ourselves is this: how do we keep EVERY New Yorker safe – whether they wear a suit and tie, a uniform, or a hoodie; whether they were the targets of stop and frisk policing, subjects of ugly, hate-filled taunts or despicable violent protests; or victims of a deranged individual who shamefully uses peaceful protests as a cover for his acts of unthinkable evil.

Q: Is there a police work slowdown happening right now, and if so what are you and the PC going to do to end it?

A. We know that typically after a police officer is killed there is a brief period of mourning. As Commissioner Bratton put it, a time for grieving. But let me be clear—New Yorkers will not tolerate any perceived slow down, the police Commissioner won't and I certainly won't. New Yorkers expect officers to do their job and to do it well. Those who can't should consider a new line of work. And for those few who are deliberately stopping/slowing or encouraging others to abdicate their responsibilities, there very well may be legal consequences.

Q. Are you exploring legal options?

A. I expect our cops to do their jobs and to do them admirably. And the NYPD is the finest in the country. If we perceive a slowdown, we will look at all options to keep New Yorkers safe.

Q: Next mtg with Lynch and the unions? What are next steps in that relationship? How do you repair and move forward?

Q: Reaction to those protestors who say and chant vile hateful things about the NYPD?

Q: Do you have any arrest updates on last month's assaults on police officers during a protest rally on the Brooklyn Bridge?

A: Last week, the NYPD arrested and charged a fifth suspect, 29 year-old Jarrod Shanahan in connection with the Brooklyn Bridge assault. Shanahan faces multiple charges, including assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, and obstructing governmental administration. Rest assured the Department with the full support of City Hall is doing everything in its power to ensure the perpetrators are apprehended held to account for their actions. That said, the Commissioner and his chiefs can provide you with more details on this specific arrest.

Q: This year police officer shooting deaths increased 56%. Given the current climate and the rise in death threats from anti-police extremists, what are you doing to protect the City's police officers? Is your rhetoric at all responsible for this climate?

A: No, this was the act of a deranged individual, pure and simple.

We've put safety first in this administration by increasing police resources, expanding camera use in all five boroughs, and maintaining force levels. Since the tragic shootings of Officer Ramos and Officer Liu, we've doubled down and now have officers on foot patrols working in pairs and uniformed sentries now guard each precinct station house. The NYPD is actively monitoring social media and investigating any threats against police officers that come through that or any other medium. And I'd like to continue to urge the public to be vigilant and report any suspicious activity they see or hear. We must work together to prevent a tragedy like this from ever happening again.

Q: On Friday, the Commissioner issued a memo to the entire Department outlining his expectations for how members of the Department should behave at Officer Liu's funeral. Were you aware of the memo? Did he do this at your request?

A: The Commissioner has been a law enforcement leader for decades. He is a smart, independent, and principled public servant. While I do agree with the tenor of his statement and believe that funerals, especially one's where we are honoring one of our City's fallen, are solemn occasions that should be devoid of politics, the Commissioner certainly doesn't need any micro-managing for me. I respect his judgment, and I leave it to his discretion as to what he should and shouldn't say to his officers.

Q: Officer Liu was laid to rest this past weekend. What do you say to those who reacted negatively to your involvement in the funeral?

A: Officer Liu was an example of the best of what this City has to offer. And words can't express how profoundly his tragic death has impacted all of us. We lost a dedicated public servant who answered the call to protect and serve this great city, and Officer Liu deserves our gratitude and respect. This was not about politics, it was about taking the time to honor his memory and support his family.

Q: What about the cops who turned their backs on you? How did you take that?

A: It was the actions of a few – I certainly heard from New Yorkers who were upset to see some who would choose to politicize funerals in direct contrast to the families request. My focus is on how we make sure this City is safe, continue to the low-crime rates, honor the memories of the two men we've lost; protect our officers from future acts; and begin to heal our city.

Q: How do you respond to those who turned their backs or who made statements, such as you have "blood on your hands?"

A: Short answer – No, I do not believe that nor do I think the majority of New Yorkers believe that. That's the kind of divisive politics that does nothing to move this City forward.,

If people want to politicize someone's funeral, that's on them and you can ask them what they think of that. I've got a job to do as Mayor. We've kept crime low and we're remaking the relationship between police and community. No number of baseless attacks are going to stop us from getting their together.

Q: Earlier this morning a hearing was held in Staten Island to review petition requests seeking transcripts, instructions and evidence from the grand jury that investigated the death of Eric Garner but decided not to indict the police officer involved in his chokehold death in July. Do you believe those transcripts should be unsealed?

A: For many people there are obviously a lot of unanswered questions. The death of Eric Garner was an unspeakable tragedy. I understand their desire for more information and transparency. But, I'm not going to weigh in on what should ultimately happen with the transcripts. That is for a judge to decide, and I believe it is important to allow the judicial process to play out as it ultimately will.

Q: Some say they haven't seen police-community relations this bad since the David Dinkins era.

A: We've been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it's not just here in New York. It's a conversation we're having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens. We are making progress, reduction in stops or example. We will continue the work. Playing the long game, and am confident we are going in the right direction.

Q: There's a petition circulating suggesting that you resign.

A: I understand that in the middle of an act of senseless violence, humannature causes us to look for someone to blame – some way to make sense of it all. But I don't think injecting politics into the middle of tragedy is the way forward. I am confident this Administration has the confidence and support of the people of NYC.

Q: The killer said that this was an act of retribution for Garner. Doesn't that make it political right there? Isn't that exactly what people were protesting in New York – the people you spoke to and defended.

A: This was a deranged individual with a history of violence...a gang-member from Baltimore who allegedly shot his ex-girlfriend there before coming to New York to continue his unspeakable acts. Just because he cloaked his act of violence in the words of non-violent protestors does not mean he speaks for those peaceful protestors any more than Timothy McVeigh spoke for those who advocate for smaller government. This was an act of evil, pure and simple.

Q: Are you worried about copy-cats – like the attempted shooting in the Bronx? Should New Yorkers expect this to continue?

A: The people of New York should know that they are safe; that their city and their police force are here to protect them; and that we will work together to ensure that the violence ends. We will double-down on the extraordinary work the NYPD is already doing, and we will stamp out the violence. And we will have our cops' backs.

Q: But aren't cops going to be afraid to go to work now?

A: Anyone who says that underestimates the courage and valor of our police officer here in New York. These men and women put their lives on the line every day, and they aren't going to be deterred from doing their jobs. They don't intimidate easy; they act heroically, and will continue to do so.

Q: There are those who've suggested that your own police security detail should ease up on protecting you. Did you take that as a threat?

A: New York City police officers have been protecting me and my family for decades – including the years before I ever entered public life. They protected me as a resident of New York City – just like they protect millions of families like mine every day. I know these men and women, they are professionals who take their duty seriously and I have immense respect for the job they do.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

EVENT: PRESS CONFERENCE WITH COMMISSIONER BRATTON ON 2014 CRIME STATISTICS

DATE: Monday, January 5, 2015

TIME: 3:00 PM

LOCATION: One Police Plaza
New York, NY 10038

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

"No, I do not have blood on my hands. That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want."

"No, I will not apologize. This wasn't about Dante or my family. For those who say I should apologize for a conversation that thousands of families have had across this city."

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

“This is a very real issue that needs to be talked about and discussed openly because it’s something that needs to be fixed.”

“I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations.”

“To politicize a funeral dishonors the memory of our fallen officers. It is disrespectful to their families, their colleagues, the entire NYPD, the City, and all New Yorkers.”

“At this point there is not sufficient evidence yet that there has in fact been a slowdown. But if we get that evidence, we will act and there will be consequences.”

“I am not going to influence what could be a legal matter at some point. Right now we are reviewing the data and conducting our own review. I believe the overwhelming majority of men and women in uniform are doing a great job and their very best. But if circumstances point to some who are not carrying out their duties, we most certainly will look into it.” (Taylor Law)

“We've had an extraordinary year, working on a strategy we believe in. While Broken Windows has its merits and has been an effective strategy on many fronts, I also believe it should be constantly reviewed and refined. And that’s what we plan to do.”

From: John Del Cecato
To: Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Re: Revised One-Liners - Let me know if you'd like anything cut.
Date: Monday, January 05, 2015 2:12:35 PM

Few revisions below in yellow - most important, don't repeat "blood on hands"

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

"No, I ~~do not have blood on my hands.~~ That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want."

"No, I will not apologize. This wasn't about Dante or my family. For those who say I should apologize for a conversation that thousands of families have had across this city just don't understand the reality facing many young men of color."

"This is a very real issue that needs to be talked about and discussed openly because it's something that needs to be fixed."

"I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations."

"To politicize a funeral dishonors the memory of our fallen officers. It is disrespectful to their families, their colleagues, the entire NYPD, the City, and all New Yorkers."

"At this point there is not sufficient evidence yet that there has in fact been a slowdown. But if we get that evidence, we will act and there will be consequences."

"I am not going to influence what could be a legal matter at some point. Right now we are reviewing the data and conducting our own review. I believe the overwhelming majority of men and women in uniform are doing a great job and their very best. But if circumstances point to some who are not carrying out their duties, ~~we most certainly will look into it~~ we will take swift action." (Taylor Law)

"We've had an extraordinary year, working on a strategy we believe in. While ~~Broken Windows~~ cracking down on low-level offenses has its merits and has been an effective strategy on many fronts, I also believe it should be constantly reviewed and refined. And that's what we plan to do."

From: <Richardson>, Jerika <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 2:07 PM

To: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Cc: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Revised One-Liners - Let me know if you'd like anything cut.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

"No, I do not have blood on my hands. That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want."

"No, I will not apologize. This wasn't about Dante or my family. For those who say I should apologize for a conversation that thousands of families have had across this city."

"This is a very real issue that needs to be talked about and discussed openly because it's something that needs to be fixed."

“I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations.”

“To politicize a funeral dishonors the memory of our fallen officers. It is disrespectful to their families, their colleagues, the entire NYPD, the City, and all New Yorkers.”

“At this point there is not sufficient evidence yet that there has in fact been a slowdown. But if we get that evidence, we will act and there will be consequences.”

“I am not going to influence what could be a legal matter at some point. Right now we are reviewing the data and conducting our own review. I believe the overwhelming majority of men and women in uniform are doing a great job and their very best. But if circumstances point to some who are not carrying out their duties, we most certainly will look into it.”
(Taylor Law)

“We've had an extraordinary year, working on a strategy we believe in. While Broken Windows has its merits and has been an effective strategy on many fronts, I also believe it should be constantly reviewed and refined. And that's what we plan to do.”

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:51 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

See the attached document.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

“No, I do not have blood on my hands. That’s the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want.”

“I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations.”

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:15 PM
To: Ragone, Peter; Richardson, Jerika; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

JLR should have additions from last night – turned backs on families and the city, but not going to let that distract from the work we are doing to keep crime low and to bring police and community closer together

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

“Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:11 PM
To: Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

Can we do a cheat sheet of sound bites for the mayor before the briefing...

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 12:19 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 7:20 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Dial in plz

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:19 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Sense of when?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 07:07 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

U can pop off unless you want to chat before hand. He won't be on for another 10 at least.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM
To: "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I am on

From: <Wolfe>, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM
To: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Are we supposed to get on this call now?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:31 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Pls edits

How much time you want JDC?

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:30 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I'm headed back to my computer now, but generally, we need more time to make tweaks to Q and A if possible

On Jan 4, 2015, at 6:24 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Supposed to talk again around 630 PM, but waiting for them to get back to GM.

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:23 PM
To: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

+mpc

And what do we want to achieve, from the convo @ 3 pm ?

From: Ragone, Peter

Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:22 PM

To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Re: Pls edits

What time are we talking to him again?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea

Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:16 PM

To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Pls edits

I have tried to punch up the language per his request. Pls edit quickly

Message Strategy

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Focus on what matters – Protect and Respect

<!--[if !supportLists]-->○ <!--[endif]-->Keeping crime low

<!--[if !supportLists]-->○ <!--[endif]-->Bringing police and community closer together – because its good for both police AND community

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Reaffirm confidence in and support in NYPD and its leadership

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Use emotions strategically --- to draw the line and make clear work stoppages are unacceptable and will not be tolerated. New Yorkers expect that their police force is working and those who choose not to do their job can find another line of work.

Topline Themes Likely to Guide Every Question

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Emotions: How did it make you feel when backs were turned? Is there anything you regret saying [ie, Dante comparison]? Were you surprised at the reaction?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Apologies: Should you apologize to the NYPD? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Cause and Effect: Do you believe your comments and actions have caused this escalation?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Forward-looking: How do you and the City move forward? Now that you've met with the unions, what's next? How do you respond to claims that the first meeting was non-productive and what does that mean for future talks?

SAMPLE Q+A

Q: Should you apologize like some in the media have said? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

A: Look, this isn't about how I feel. My focus is on keeping our City safe, keeping crime numbers low and bringing police and community together.

Q: Some in the NYPD have said comments about Dante in particular needing to take special care w police were offensive to them. What did you mean and do you regret those remarks?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->

Our police officers do a dangerous and essential, but often thankless job. And striking the right balance between rigorously protecting public safety and respecting individuals is part of what makes the job so challenging. It must be done with extraordinary care and restraint. In turn, our police deserve our gratitude and our respect.

It is also true that at times, people of color have felt suspect simply because of how they look. That sense of distrust doesn't make policing any easier. It makes it more difficult.

The question we must ask ourselves is this: how do we keep EVERY New Yorker safe – whether they wear a suit and tie, a uniform, or a hoodie; whether they were the targets of stop and frisk policing, subjects of ugly, hate-filled taunts or despicable violent protests; or victims of a deranged individual who shamefully uses peaceful protests as a cover for his acts of unthinkable evil.

Q: Is there a police work slowdown happening right now, and if so what are you and the PC going to do to end it?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->We know that typically after a police officer is killed there is a brief period of mourning. As Commissioner Bratton put it, a time for grieving. But let me be clear—New Yorkers will not tolerate any perceived slow down, the police Commissioner won't and I certainly won't. New Yorkers expect officers to do their job and to do it well. Those who can't should consider a new line of work. And for those few who are deliberately stopping/slowing or encouraging others to abdicate their responsibilities, there very well may be legal consequences.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->Q. <!--[endif]-->Are you exploring legal options?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->I expect our cops to do their jobs and to do them admirably. And the NYPD is the finest in the country. If we perceive a slowdown, we will look at all options to keep New Yorkers safe.

Q: Next mtg with Lynch and the unions? What are next steps in that relationship? How do you repair and move forward?

Q: Reaction to those protestors who say and chant vile hateful things about the NYPD?

Q: Do you have any arrest updates on last month's assaults on police officers during a protest rally on the Brooklyn Bridge?

A: Last week, the NYPD arrested and charged a fifth suspect, 29 year-old Jarrod Shanahan in connection with the Brooklyn Bridge assault. Shanahan faces multiple charges, including assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, and obstructing governmental administration. Rest assured the Department with the full support of City Hall is doing everything in its power to ensure the perpetrators are apprehended held to account for their actions. That said, the Commissioner and his chiefs can provide you with more details on this specific arrest.

Q: This year police officer shooting deaths increased 56%. Given the current climate and the rise in death threats from anti-police extremists, what are you doing to protect the City's police officers? Is your rhetoric at all responsible for this climate?

A: No, this was the act of a deranged individual, pure and simple.

We've put safety first in this administration by increasing police resources, expanding camera use in all five boroughs, and maintaining force levels. Since the tragic shootings of Officer Ramos and Officer Liu, we've doubled down and now have officers on foot patrols working in pairs and uniformed sentries now guard each precinct station house. The NYPD is actively monitoring social media and investigating any threats against police officers that come through that or any other medium. And I'd like to continue to urge the public to be vigilant and report any suspicious activity they see or hear. We must work together to prevent a tragedy like this from ever happening again.

Q: On Friday, the Commissioner issued a memo to the entire Department outlining his expectations for how members of the Department should behave at Officer Liu's funeral. Were you aware of the memo? Did he do this at your request?

A: The Commissioner has been a law enforcement leader for decades. He is a smart, independent, and principled public servant. While I do agree with the tenor of his statement and believe that funerals, especially one's where we are honoring one of our City's fallen, are solemn occasions that should be devoid of politics, the Commissioner certainly doesn't need any micro-managing for me. I respect his judgment, and I leave it to his discretion as to what he should and shouldn't say to his officers.

Q: Officer Liu was laid to rest this past weekend. What do you say to those who reacted negatively to your involvement in the funeral?

A: Officer Liu was an example of the best of what this City has to offer. And words can't express how profoundly his tragic death has impacted all of us. We lost a dedicated public servant who answered the call to protect and serve this great city, and Officer Liu deserves our gratitude and respect. This was not about politics, it was about taking the time to honor his memory and support his family.

Q: What about the cops who turned their backs on you? How did you take that?

A: It was the actions of a few – I certainly heard from New Yorkers who were upset to see some who would choose to politicize funerals in direct contrast to the families request. My focus is on how we make sure this City is safe, continue to the low-crime rates, honor the memories of the two men we've lost; protect our officers from future acts; and begin to heal our city.

Q: How do you respond to those who turned their backs or who made statements, such as you have "blood on your hands?"

A: Short answer – No, I do not believe that nor do I think the majority of New Yorkers believe that. That's the kind of divisive politics that does nothing to move this City forward.,

If people want to politicize someone's funeral, that's on them and you can ask them what they think of that. I've got a job to do as Mayor. We've kept crime low and we're remaking the relationship between police and community. No number of baseless attacks are going to stop us from getting their together.

Q: Earlier this morning a hearing was held in Staten Island to review petition requests seeking transcripts, instructions and evidence from the grand jury that investigated the death of Eric Garner but decided not to indict the police officer involved in his chokehold death in July. Do you believe those transcripts should be unsealed?

A: For many people there are obviously a lot of unanswered questions. The death of Eric Garner was an unspeakable tragedy. I understand their desire for more information and transparency. But, I'm not going to weigh in on what should ultimately happen with the transcripts. That is for a judge to decide, and I believe it is important to allow the judicial process to play out as it ultimately will.

Q: Some say they haven't seen police-community relations this bad since the David Dinkins era.

A: We've been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it's not just here in New York. It's a conversation we're having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens. We are making progress, reduction in stops or example. We will continue the work. Playing the long game, and am confident we are going in the right direction.

Q: There's a petition circulating suggesting that you resign.

A: I understand that in the middle of an act of senseless violence, humannature causes us to look for someone to blame – some way to make sense of it all. But I don't think injecting politics into the middle of tragedy is the way forward. I am confident this Administration has the confidence and support of the people of NYC.

Q: The killer said that this was an act of retribution for Garner. Doesn't that make it political right there? Isn't that exactly what people were protesting in New York – the people you spoke to and defended.

A: This was a deranged individual with a history of violence...a gang-member from Baltimore who allegedly shot his ex-girlfriend there before coming to New York to continue his unspeakable acts. Just because he cloaked his act of violence in the words of non-violent protestors does not mean he speaks for those peaceful protestors any more than Timothy McVeigh spoke for those who advocate for smaller government. This was an act of evil, pure and simple.

Q: Are you worried about copy-cats – like the attempted shooting in the Bronx? Should New Yorkers expect this to continue?

A: The people of New York should know that they are safe; that their city and their police force are here to protect them; and that we will work together to ensure that the violence ends. We will double-down on the extraordinary work the NYPD is already doing, and we will stamp out the violence. And we will have our cops' backs.

Q: But aren't cops going to be afraid to go to work now?

A: Anyone who says that underestimates the courage and valor of our police officer here in New York. These men and women put their lives on the line every day, and they aren't going to be deterred from doing their jobs. They don't intimidate easy; they act heroically, and will continue to do so.

Q: There are those who've suggested that your own police security detail should ease up on protecting you. Did you take that as a threat?

A: New York City police officers have been protecting me and my family for decades – including the years before I ever entered public life. They protected me as a resident of New York City – just like they protect millions of families like mine every day. I know these men and women, they are professionals who take their duty seriously and I have immense respect for the job they do.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Ragone, Peter
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Re: Revised One-Liners - Let me know if you'd like anything cut.
Date: Monday, January 05, 2015 2:15:18 PM

Jerika can you revise and bring down to me the mayors office?

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 02:12 PM
To: Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Re: Revised One-Liners - Let me know if you'd like anything cut.

Few revisions below in yellow - most important, don't repeat "blood on hands"

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

"No, ~~I do not have blood on my hands.~~ That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want."

"No, I will not apologize. This wasn't about Dante or my family. ~~For~~ those who say I should apologize for a conversation that thousands of families have had across this city ~~just don't understand the reality facing many young men of color.~~"

"This is a very real issue that needs to be talked about and discussed openly because it's something that needs to be fixed."

"I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations."

“To politicize a funeral dishonors the memory of our fallen officers. It is disrespectful to their families, their colleagues, the entire NYPD, the City, and all New Yorkers.”

“At this point there is not sufficient evidence yet that there has in fact been a slowdown. But if we get that evidence, we will act and there will be consequences.”

“I am not going to influence what could be a legal matter at some point. Right now we are reviewing the data and conducting our own review. I believe the overwhelming majority of men and women in uniform are doing a great job and their very best. But if circumstances point to some who are not carrying out their duties, ~~we most certainly will look into it~~ we will take swift action.” (Taylor Law)

“We've had an extraordinary year, working on a strategy we believe in. While ~~Broken Windows~~ cracking down on low-level offenses has its merits and has been an effective strategy on many fronts, I also believe it should be constantly reviewed and refined. And that's what we plan to do.”

From: <Richardson>, Jerika <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 2:07 PM

To: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Cc: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Revised One-Liners - Let me know if you'd like anything cut.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

“No, I do not have blood on my hands. That’s the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want.”

“No, I will not apologize. This wasn't about Dante or my family. For those who say I should apologize for a conversation that thousands of families have had across this city.”

“This is a very real issue that needs to be talked about and discussed openly because it’s something that needs to be fixed.”

“I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations.”

“To politicize a funeral dishonors the memory of our fallen officers. It is disrespectful to their families, their colleagues, the entire NYPD, the City, and all New Yorkers.”

“At this point there is not sufficient evidence yet that there has in fact been a slowdown. But if we get that evidence, we will act and there will be consequences.”

“I am not going to influence what could be a legal matter at some point. Right now we are reviewing the data and conducting our own review. I believe the overwhelming majority of men and women in uniform are doing a great job and their very best. But if circumstances point to some who are not carrying out their duties, we most certainly will look into it.”
(Taylor Law)

“We've had an extraordinary year, working on a strategy we believe in. While Broken Windows has its merits and has been an effective strategy on many fronts, I also believe it should be constantly reviewed and refined. And that’s what we plan to do.”

From: Richardson, Jerika

Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:51 PM

To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma

Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic

Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

See the attached document.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

"No, I do not have blood on my hands. That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want."

"I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations."

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:15 PM
To: Ragone, Peter; Richardson, Jerika; jfdc@akpdmmedia.com; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

JLR should have additions from last night – turned backs on families and the city, but not going to let that distract from the work we are doing to keep crime low and to bring police and community closer together

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:11 PM
To: Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

Can we do a cheat sheet of sound bites for the mayor before the briefing...

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 12:19 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 7:20 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Dial in plz

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:19 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Sense of when?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 07:07 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

U can pop off unless you want to chat before hand. He won't be on for another 10 at least.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM

To: "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I am on

From: <Wolfe>, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM
To: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Are we supposed to get on this call now?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:31 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Pls edits

How much time you want JDC?

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:30 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I'm headed back to my computer now, but generally, we need more time to make tweaks to Q and A if possible

On Jan 4, 2015, at 6:24 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Supposed to talk again around 630 PM, but waiting for them to get back to GM.

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:23 PM
To: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

+mpc

And what do we want to achieve, from the convo @ 3 pm ?

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:22 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

What time are we talking to him again?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:16 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Pls edits

I have tried to punch up the language per his request. Pls edit quickly

Message Strategy

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Focus on what matters – Protect and Respect
 <!--[if !supportLists]-->○ <!--[endif]-->Keeping crime low
 <!--[if !supportLists]-->○ <!--[endif]-->Bringing police and community closer together – because its good for both police AND community

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Reaffirm confidence in and support in NYPD and its leadership

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Use emotions strategically --- to draw the line and make clear work stoppages are unacceptable and will not be tolerated. New Yorkers expect that their police force is working and those who choose not to do their job can find another line of work.

Topline Themes Likely to Guide Every Question

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Emotions: How did it make you feel when backs were turned? Is there anything you regret saying [ie, Dante comparison]? Were you surprised at the reaction?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Apologies: Should you apologize to the NYPD? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Cause and Effect: Do you believe your comments and actions have caused this escalation?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->· <!--[endif]-->Forward-looking: How do you and the City move forward? Now that you've met with the unions, what's next? How do you respond to claims that the first meeting was non-productive and what does that mean for future talks?

SAMPLE Q+A

Q: Should you apologize like some in the media have said? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

A: Look, this isn't about how I feel. My focus is on keeping our City safe, keeping crime numbers low and bringing police and community together.

Q: Some in the NYPD have said comments about Dante in particular needing to take special care w police were offensive to them. What did you mean and do you regret those remarks?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->

Our police officers do a dangerous and essential, but often thankless job. And striking the right balance between rigorously protecting public safety and respecting individuals is part of what makes the job so challenging. It must be done with extraordinary care and restraint. In turn, our police deserve our gratitude and our respect.

It is also true that at times, people of color have felt suspect simply because of how they look. That sense of distrust doesn't make policing any easier. It makes it more difficult.

The question we must ask ourselves is this: how do we keep EVERY New Yorker safe – whether they wear a suit and tie, a uniform, or a hoodie; whether they were the targets of stop and frisk policing, subjects of ugly, hate-filled taunts or despicable violent protests; or victims of a deranged individual who shamefully uses peaceful protests as a cover for his acts of unthinkable evil.

Q: Is there a police work slowdown happening right now, and if so what are you and the PC going to do to end it?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->We know that typically after a police officer is killed there is a brief period of mourning. As Commissioner Bratton put it, a time for grieving. But let me be clear—New Yorkers will not tolerate any perceived slow down, the police Commissioner won't and I certainly won't. New Yorkers expect officers to do their job and to do it well. Those who can't should consider a new line of work. And for those few who are deliberately stopping/slowing or encouraging others to abdicate their responsibilities, there very well may be legal consequences.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->Q. <!--[endif]-->Are you exploring legal options?

<!--[if !supportLists]-->A. <!--[endif]-->I expect our cops to do their jobs and to do them admirably. And the NYPD is the finest in the country. If we perceive a slowdown, we will look at all options to keep New Yorkers safe.

Q: Next mtg with Lynch and the unions? What are next steps in that relationship? How do you repair and move forward?

Q: Reaction to those protestors who say and chant vile hateful things about the NYPD?

Q: Do you have any arrest updates on last month's assaults on police officers during a protest rally on the Brooklyn Bridge?

A: Last week, the NYPD arrested and charged a fifth suspect, 29 year-old Jarrod Shanahan in connection with the Brooklyn Bridge assault. Shanahan faces multiple charges, including assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, and obstructing governmental administration. Rest assured the Department with the full support of City Hall is doing everything in its power to ensure the perpetrators are apprehended held to account for their actions. That said, the Commissioner and his chiefs can provide you with more details on this specific arrest.

Q: This year police officer shooting deaths increased 56%. Given the current climate and the rise in death threats from anti-police extremists, what are you doing to protect the City's police officers? Is your rhetoric at all responsible for this climate?

A: No, this was the act of a deranged individual, pure and simple.

We've put safety first in this administration by increasing police resources, expanding camera use in all five boroughs, and maintaining force levels. Since the tragic shootings of Officer Ramos and Officer Liu, we've doubled down and now have officers on foot patrols working in pairs and uniformed sentries now guard each precinct station house. The NYPD is actively monitoring social media and investigating any threats against police officers that come through that or any other medium. And I'd like to continue to urge the public to be vigilant and report any suspicious activity they see or hear. We must work together to prevent a tragedy like this from ever happening again.

Q: On Friday, the Commissioner issued a memo to the entire Department outlining his expectations for how members of the Department should behave at Officer Liu's funeral. Were you aware of the memo? Did he do this at your request?

A: The Commissioner has been a law enforcement leader for decades. He is a smart, independent, and principled public servant. While I do agree with the tenor of his statement and believe that funerals, especially one's where we are honoring one of our City's fallen, are solemn occasions that should be devoid of politics, the Commissioner certainly doesn't need any micro-managing for me. I respect his judgment, and I leave it to his discretion as to what he should and shouldn't say to his officers.

Q: Officer Liu was laid to rest this past weekend. What do you say to those who reacted negatively to your involvement in the funeral?

A: Officer Liu was an example of the best of what this City has to offer. And words can't express how profoundly his tragic death has impacted all of us. We lost a dedicated public servant who answered the call to protect and serve this great city, and Officer Liu deserves our gratitude and respect. This was not about politics, it was about taking the time to honor his memory and support his family.

Q: What about the cops who turned their backs on you? How did you take that?

A: It was the actions of a few – I certainly heard from New Yorkers who were upset to see some who would choose to politicize funerals in direct contrast to the families request. My focus is on how we make sure this City is safe, continue to the low-crime rates, honor the memories of the two men we've lost; protect our officers from future acts; and begin to heal our city.

Q: How do you respond to those who turned their backs or who made statements, such as you have "blood on your hands?"

A: Short answer – No, I do not believe that nor do I think the majority of New Yorkers believe that. That’s the kind of divisive politics that does nothing to move this City forward.,

If people want to politicize someone’s funeral, that's on them and you can ask them what they think of that. I've got a job to do as Mayor. We've kept crime low and we're remaking the relationship between police and community. No number of baseless attacks are going to stop us from getting their together.

Q: Earlier this morning a hearing was held in Staten Island to review petition requests seeking transcripts, instructions and evidence from the grand jury that investigated the death of Eric Garner but decided not to indict the police officer involved in his chokehold death in July. Do you believe those transcripts should be unsealed?

A: For many people there are obviously a lot of unanswered questions. The death of Eric Garner was an unspeakable tragedy. I understand their desire for more information and transparency. But, I’m not going to weigh in on what should ultimately happen with the transcripts. That is for a judge to decide, and I believe it is important to allow the judicial process to play out as it ultimately will.

Q: Some say they haven’t seen police-community relations this bad since the David Dinkins era.

A: We’ve been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it’s not just here in New York. It’s a conversation we’re having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens. We are making progress, reduction in stops or example. We will continue the work. Playing the long game, and am confident we are going in the right direction.

Q: There’s a petition circulating suggesting that you resign.

A: I understand that in the middle of an act of senseless violence, humannature causes us to look for someone to blame – some way to make sense of it all. But I don’t think injecting politics into the middle of tragedy is the way forward. I am confident this Administration has the confidence and support of the people of NYC.

Q: The killer said that this was an act of retribution for Garner. Doesn’t that make it political right there? Isn’t that exactly what people were protesting in New York – the people you spoke to and defended.

A: This was a deranged individual with a history of violence...a gang-member from Baltimore who allegedly shot his ex-girlfriend there before coming to New York to continue his unspeakable acts. Just because he cloaked his act of violence in the words of non-violent protestors does not mean he speaks for those peaceful protesters any more than Timothy McVeigh spoke for those who advocate for smaller government. This was an act of evil, pure and simple.

Q: Are you worried about copy-cats – like the attempted shooting in the Bronx? Should New Yorkers expect this to continue?

A: The people of New York should know that they are safe; that their city and their police force are here to protect them; and that we will work together to ensure that the violence ends. We will double-down on the extraordinary work the NYPD is already doing, and we will stamp out the violence. And we will have our cops' backs.

Q: But aren't cops going to be afraid to go to work now?

A: Anyone who says that underestimates the courage and valor of our police officer here in New York. These men and women put their lives on the line every day, and they aren't going to be deterred from doing their jobs. They don't intimidate easy; they act heroically, and will continue to do so.

Q: There are those who've suggested that your own police security detail should ease up on protecting you. Did you take that as a threat?

A: New York City police officers have been protecting me and my family for decades – including the years before I ever entered public life. They protected me as a resident of New York City – just like they protect millions of families like mine every day. I know these men and women, they are professionals who take their duty seriously and I have immense respect for the job they do.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Walzak, Phil
To: Shorris, Anthony; Richardson, Jerika; Ragone, Peter; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Revised One-Liners - Let me know if you'd like anything cut.
Date: Monday, January 05, 2015 2:23:05 PM

agree w both

should say on #2 we are watching carefully

From: Shorris, Anthony
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 2:14 PM
To: Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Revised One-Liners - Let me know if you'd like anything cut.

Two comments

I do not think he should ever say this: "No, I do not have blood on my hands." It is a disgusting statement and he should not dignify it by repeating it (gives it more credence, like "I am not a crook.").

Seems a little disingenuous given the data and the press reports for him to say this: "At this point there is not sufficient evidence yet that there has in fact been a slowdown. But if we get that evidence, we will act and there will be consequences." May be better to say that after a tough couple of weeks of mourning and special duties for officers, the NYPD will be looking at every precinct and every shift this week to make sure activity levels are normal at this time of year.

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 2:08 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Revised One-Liners - Let me know if you'd like anything cut.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

"No, I do not have blood on my hands. That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want."

"No, I will not apologize. This wasn't about Dante or my family. For those who say I should apologize for a conversation that thousands of families have had across this city."

"This is a very real issue that needs to be talked about and discussed openly because it's something that needs to be fixed."

"I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations."

"To politicize a funeral dishonors the memory of our fallen officers. It is disrespectful to their families, their colleagues, the entire NYPD, the City, and all New Yorkers."

"At this point there is not sufficient evidence yet that there has in fact been a slowdown. But if we get that evidence, we will act and there will be consequences."

"I am not going to influence what could be a legal matter at some point. Right now we are reviewing the data and conducting our own review. I believe the overwhelming majority of men and women in uniform are doing a great job and their very best. But if circumstances point to some who are not carrying out their duties, we most certainly will look into it."
(Taylor Law)

"We've had an extraordinary year, working on a strategy we believe in. While Broken Windows has its merits and has been an effective strategy on many fronts, I also believe it should be constantly reviewed and refined. And that's what we plan to do."

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:51 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

See the attached document.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

"No, I do not have blood on my hands. That's the worst type of rhetoric; it does a disservice to the families. The reality is we are trying to make reforms that the vast majority of New Yorkers want."

"I won't take it back, but I will fix the problem that necessitates those conversations."

From: Walzak, Phil

Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:15 PM

To: Ragone, Peter; Richardson, Jerika; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma

Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic

Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

JLR should have additions from last night – turned backs on families and the city, but not going to let that distract from the work we are doing to keep crime low and to bring police and community closer together

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 1:11 PM
To: Richardson, Jerika; Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

Can we do a cheat sheet of sound bites for the mayor before the briefing...

From: Richardson, Jerika
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 12:19 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Updated Crimes Stats Briefing Memo & Q& A - We're still waiting on stats

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 7:20 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Dial in plz

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:19 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Sense of when?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 07:07 PM

To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika
Subject: Re: Pls edits

U can pop off unless you want to chat before hand. He won't be on for another 10 at least.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM
To: "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I am on

From: <Wolfe>, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 7:06 PM
To: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Williams, Dominic" <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

Are we supposed to get on this call now?

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:31 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Pls edits

How much time you want JDC?

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:30 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

I'm headed back to my computer now, but generally, we need more time to make tweaks to Q and A if possible

On Jan 4, 2015, at 6:24 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Supposed to talk again around 6:30 PM, but waiting for them to get back to GM.

From: <Walzak>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 4, 2015 at 6:23 PM
To: Peter Ragone <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Dominic Williams <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

+mpc

And what do we want to achieve, from the convo @ 3 pm ?

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:22 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Pls edits

What time are we talking to him again?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Sunday, January 04, 2015 06:16 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Richardson, Jerika; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Pls edits

I have tried to punch up the language per his request. Pls edit quickly

Message Strategy

- Focus on what matters – Protect and Respect
 - Keeping crime low
 - Bringing police and community closer together – because its good for both police AND community
- Reaffirm confidence in and support in NYPD and its leadership
- Use emotions strategically --- to draw the line and make clear work stoppages are unacceptable and will not be tolerated. New Yorkers expect that their police force is working and those who choose not to do their job can find another line of work.

Topline Themes Likely to Guide Every Question

- Emotions: How did it make you feel when backs were turned? Is there anything you regret saying [ie, Dante comparison]? Were you surprised at the reaction?
- Apologies: Should you apologize to the NYPD? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?
- Cause and Effect: Do you believe your comments and actions have caused this escalation?
- Forward-looking: How do you and the City move forward? Now that you've met with the unions, what's next? How do you respond to claims that the first meeting was non-productive and what does that mean for future talks?

SAMPLE Q+A

Q: Should you apologize like some in the media have said? Should Lynch and others apologize to you?

A: Look, this isn't about how I feel. My focus is on keeping our City safe, keeping crime numbers low and bringing police and community together.

Q: Some in the NYPD have said comments about Dante in particular needing to take special care w police were offensive to them. What did you mean and do you regret those remarks?

A.

Our police officers do a dangerous and essential, but often thankless job. And striking the right balance between rigorously protecting public safety and respecting individuals is part of what makes the job so challenging. It must be done with extraordinary care and restraint. In turn, our police deserve our gratitude and our respect.

It is also true that at times, people of color have felt suspect simply because of how they look. That sense of distrust doesn't make policing any easier. It makes it more difficult.

The question we must ask ourselves is this: how do we keep EVERY New Yorker safe – whether they wear a suit and tie, a uniform, or a hoodie; whether they were the targets of stop and frisk policing, subjects of ugly, hate-filled taunts or despicable violent protests; or victims of a deranged individual who shamefully uses peaceful protests as a cover for his acts of unthinkable evil.

Q: Is there a police work slowdown happening right now, and if so what are you and the PC going to do to end it?

A. We know that typically after a police officer is killed there is a brief period of mourning. As Commissioner Bratton put it, a time for grieving. But let me be clear—New Yorkers will not tolerate any perceived slow down, the police Commissioner won't and I certainly won't. New Yorkers expect officers to do their job and to do it well. Those who can't should consider a new line of work. And for those few who are deliberately stopping/slowing or encouraging others to abdicate their responsibilities, there very well may be legal consequences.

Q. Are you exploring legal options?

A. I expect our cops to do their jobs and to do them admirably. And the NYPD is the finest in the country. If we perceive a slowdown, we will look at all options to keep New Yorkers safe.

Q: Next mtg with Lynch and the unions? What are next steps in that relationship? How do you repair and move forward?

Q: Reaction to those protestors who say and chant vile hateful things about the NYPD?

Q: Do you have any arrest updates on last month's assaults on police officers during a protest rally on the Brooklyn Bridge?

A: Last week, the NYPD arrested and charged a fifth suspect, 29 year-old Jarrod Shanahan in connection with the Brooklyn Bridge assault. Shanahan faces multiple charges, including assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, and obstructing governmental administration. Rest assured the Department with the full support of City Hall is doing everything in its power to ensure the perpetrators are apprehended held to account for their actions. That said, the Commissioner and his chiefs can provide you with more details on this specific arrest.

Q: This year police officer shooting deaths increased 56%. Given the current climate and the rise in death threats from anti-police extremists, what are you doing to protect the City's police officers? Is your rhetoric at all responsible for this climate?

A: No, this was the act of a deranged individual, pure and simple.

We've put safety first in this administration by increasing police resources, expanding camera use in all five boroughs, and maintaining force levels. Since the tragic shootings of Officer Ramos and Officer Liu, we've doubled down and now have officers on foot patrols working in pairs and uniformed sentries now guard each precinct station house. The NYPD is actively monitoring social media and investigating any threats against police officers that come through that or any other medium. And I'd like to continue to urge the public to be vigilant and report any suspicious activity they see or hear. We must work together to prevent a tragedy like this from ever happening again.

Q: On Friday, the Commissioner issued a memo to the entire Department outlining his expectations for how members of the Department should behave at Officer Liu's funeral. Were you aware of the memo? Did he do this at your request?

A: The Commissioner has been a law enforcement leader for decades. He is a smart, independent, and principled public servant. While I do agree with the tenor of his statement and believe that funerals, especially one's where we are honoring one of our City's fallen, are solemn occasions that should be devoid of politics, the Commissioner certainly doesn't need any micro-managing for me. I respect his judgment, and I leave it to his discretion as to what he should and shouldn't say to his officers.

Q: Officer Liu was laid to rest this past weekend. What do you say to those who reacted negatively to your involvement in the funeral?

A: Officer Liu was an example of the best of what this City has to offer. And words can't express how profoundly his tragic death has impacted all of us. We lost a dedicated public servant who answered the call to protect and serve this great city, and Officer Liu deserves our gratitude and respect. This was not about politics, it was about taking the time to honor his memory and support his family.

Q: What about the cops who turned their backs on you? How did you take that?

A: It was the actions of a few – I certainly heard from New Yorkers who were upset to see some who would choose to politicize funerals in direct contrast to the families request. My focus is on how we make sure this City is safe, continue to the low-crime rates, honor the memories of the two men we've lost; protect our officers from future acts; and begin to heal our city.

Q: How do you respond to those who turned their backs or who made statements, such as you have “blood on your hands?”

A: Short answer – No, I do not believe that nor do I think the majority of New Yorkers believe that. That’s the kind of divisive politics that does nothing to move this City forward.,

If people want to politicize someone’s funeral, that’s on them and you can ask them what they think of that. I’ve got a job to do as Mayor. We’ve kept crime low and we’re remaking the relationship between police and community. No number of baseless attacks are going to stop us from getting their together.

Q: Earlier this morning a hearing was held in Staten Island to review petition requests seeking transcripts, instructions and evidence from the grand jury that investigated the death of Eric Garner but decided not to indict the police officer involved in his chokehold death in July. Do you believe those transcripts should be unsealed?

A: For many people there are obviously a lot of unanswered questions. The death of Eric Garner was an unspeakable tragedy. I understand their desire for more information and transparency. But, I’m not going to weigh in on what should ultimately happen with the transcripts. That is for a judge to decide, and I believe it is important to allow the judicial process to play out as it ultimately will.

Q: Some say they haven’t seen police-community relations this bad since the David Dinkins era.

A: We’ve been through a lot as a city over the past few months. But it’s not just here in New York. It’s a conversation we’re having across the country. I think we need to see it through that lens. We are making progress, reduction in stops or example. We will continue the work. Playing the long game, and am confident we are going in the right direction.

Q: There’s a petition circulating suggesting that you resign.

A: I understand that in the middle of an act of senseless violence, humannature causes us to look for someone to blame – some way to make sense of it all. But I don’t think injecting politics into the middle of tragedy is the way forward. I am confident this Administration has the confidence and support of the people of NYC.

Q: The killer said that this was an act of retribution for Garner. Doesn't that make it political right there? Isn't that exactly what people were protesting in New York – the people you spoke to and defended.

A: This was a deranged individual with a history of violence...a gang-member from Baltimore who allegedly shot his ex-girlfriend there before coming to New York to continue his unspeakable acts. Just because he cloaked his act of violence in the words of non-violent protestors does not mean he speaks for those peaceful protesters any more than Timothy McVeigh spoke for those who advocate for smaller government. This was an act of evil, pure and simple.

Q: Are you worried about copy-cats – like the attempted shooting in the Bronx? Should New Yorkers expect this to continue?

A: The people of New York should know that they are safe; that their city and their police force are here to protect them; and that we will work together to ensure that the violence ends. We will double-down on the extraordinary work the NYPD is already doing, and we will stamp out the violence. And we will have our cops' backs.

Q: But aren't cops going to be afraid to go to work now?

A: Anyone who says that underestimates the courage and valor of our police officer here in New York. These men and women put their lives on the line every day, and they aren't going to be deterred from doing their jobs. They don't intimidate easy; they act heroically, and will continue to do so.

Q: There are those who've suggested that your own police security detail should ease up on protecting you. Did you take that as a threat?

A: New York City police officers have been protecting me and my family for decades – including the years before I ever entered public life. They protected me as a resident of New York City – just like they protect millions of families like mine every day. I know these men and women, they are professionals who take their duty seriously and I have immense respect for the job they do.

One-Liners

"If people want to use a solemn occasion like a funeral to make a political statement, that's on them, you need to ask them why they chose to do it."

"Some cops may have turned their backs on me, but I will never turn my backs on the cops nor the people they serve. Anyone else who tells you otherwise isn't being honest."

"I know being Mayor is a tough job, I signed up for it. But. I know our cops have a tougher job and they signed up for it too. Don't let anyone tell you I don't get that."

"Don't take my word for it, look at what we've done together. Crime is lower, we dramatically reduced stop-and-frisk together and we've made big investments in our cops. Let's drop the rhetoric here and talk about the great things we've done together."

"After the Eric Garner I said black lives matter, and I won't take that back. But don't let anyone tell you I don't believe that blue lives matter. You bet they do and we know that our cops are partners in of the new relationship we're forging with the people we in city government all serve."

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Carey, Michael
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Subject: Daily Call
Date: Monday, January 05, 2015 3:04:54 PM

He would like to start talking to you daily. Mornings are usually best on his way to/from the gym.

What is your time like normally in AM?

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

From: Carey, Michael
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: Tonight
Date: Monday, January 05, 2015 6:20:50 PM

Ok

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

----- Original Message -----

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 06:20 PM
To: Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: Tonight

Probably 1030

> On Jan 5, 2015, at 6:15 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> How late??

>

>

> Michael Paul Carey

> City Hall

> New York, New York

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]

> Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 06:14 PM

> To: Carey, Michael

> Subject: Re: Tonight

>

> I'm gonna be at an event tonight and can't talk then - but could talk late night

>

>

>

>> On Jan 5, 2015, at 6:07 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>> He wants to talk on his way home tonight. Around 730.

>>

>>

>> Michael Paul Carey

>> City Hall

>> New York, New York

From: Carey, Michael
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Date: Tuesday, January 06, 2015 9:52:02 AM

Its your fav person – me.
You around later? I have a quick question for you about SOTC.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
Office of Mayor de Blasio
City Hall
New York, New York
212.341.5396

From: Carey, Michael
To: "John Del Cecato"
Subject: RE: <no subject>
Date: Tuesday, January 06, 2015 12:06:33 PM

Oh I don't care about today
He ain't in todays
He is in Fridays.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, January 06, 2015 12:06 PM
To: Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: <no subject>

No - sorry - today

From: <Carey>, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, January 6, 2015 at 12:04 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: <no subject>

On Friday?

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, January 06, 2015 12:04 PM
To: Carey, Michael
Subject: <no subject>

One thing - I have a hard-out at 230pm - got an appointment in midtown at 3pm that I can't be late for

From: Carey, Michael
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: <no subject>
Date: Tuesday, January 06, 2015 8:25:26 PM

He wants to try and call you around 1030 tomorrow. You around?

From: John Del Cecato
To: Howe, Amanda
Subject: FW: [REDACTED] resume
Date: Wednesday, January 07, 2015 10:14:44 AM
Attachments: [REDACTED]
ATT00001.txt

[REDACTED] - just passing along

On 1/7/15, 9:52 AM, [REDACTED] wrote:

>John,
>Attached is my resume for the EVP of the Capital Division at NYC Economic >Development Corp.
>Thanks,
> [REDACTED]
>

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

January 2015

To: New York City Economic Development Corporation

RE: Executive Vice President, Capital Division

I am pleased to submit my resume for the position of Executive Vice President of the Capital Division. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Thank you for your consideration.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: Gunaratna, Mahen
Cc: Ragone, Peter; John, Roxanne; Bray, Jackie; Walzak, Phil; jfdc@akpdmmedia.com
Subject: RE: CMC
Date: Wednesday, January 07, 2015 11:23:24 AM

This is really gross. Thoughts on calling them out?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Wednesday, January 07, 2015 10:17 AM
To: Katz, Rebecca
Subject: CMC

Zoo Officials Reportedly Forbid Mayor de Blasio from Handling Groundhog on Groundhog Day

FOX 5 - Ben Simmoneau - 5:45 am

The mayor will not be holding up the Groundhog at the Staten Island Zoo this year. The New York Post says zoo officials are forbidding the mayor from holding this year's Staten Island Chuck – [Simmoneau: “It was actually Charlotte last year”] – on Groundhog Day. You might remember, as video shows, last year the mayor dropped the groundhog and it died a week later of internal injuries. The zoo says the death was not related to the fall. [Juliet Huddy pretends to cough while saying, “Yeah, right.” A brief moment of silence follows. Simmoneau: “What was that, Juliet?” Huddy: “Nothing.”] This year, nobody will be allowed to hold the animal. Chuck – or Charlotte – whatever the animal's name is – [Huddy: “Chirlaine.” Simmoneau: “Perhaps it's Chirlaine this year.” Huddy: “The C-H's”] – will be inside a special glass box when we find out whether or not he or she sees his or her shadow.

Sent from my iPhone

From: Liz Hegarty
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena
Date: Friday, January 09, 2015 12:21:51 PM

Great, thanks for the flexibility. His day is wide open on Thursday. Is there a time that works well for Penny?

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Friday, January 9, 2015 at 11:19 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Not a problem at all. Next week is great, especially Wednesday and Thursday. Friday morning works, too.

Let me know what's best for John.

Thanks again!

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, January 08, 2015 10:09 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

I'm so sorry but John's day tomorrow has gotten hectic with meetings at City Hall. Can we find a time next week for him to meet with Penny? Apologies for the last minute change of plans.

Thanks,

Liz

From: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 5:53 PM
To: "Graham, Matthew" <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Perfect, confirmed for 10:30 on Friday. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 5:52 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

OK, great. Would he mind visiting here at 10:30?

Thanks!

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 6:46 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Any time before noon on Friday works for John. Thanks for understanding!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 5:44 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

I understand how the shifting schedule goes. Not a problem at all.

Unfortunately, 3PM on Thursday won't work. Penny has meetings from 3PM on.

Friday doesn't happen to work for John, does it?

If it doesn't, please let me know a few times next week that might.

Thanks again,

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 6:32 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

Apologies but John's schedule has shifted for Thursday. Any chance we could do this meeting at 3 PM instead?

Thanks,

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 10:08 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Perfect!
Thanks again.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 11:03 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Great, confirmed for 11:30 on the 8th at your office. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 9:35 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Great!
If John's schedule is flexible, 11:30 would be the best time for Penny. That would avoid any rushing from her previous meeting.
Thanks again!

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 10:31 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Sure, no problem. Can we do 11 AM on the 8th? John's day is fairly flexible so feel free to let me know if doing this later in the afternoon makes things easier on your end. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 9:27 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.
Happy New Year to you, too!
I hope you had a great vacation. Thanks for your response. Would it be possible for John to visit on the 8th? Penny is available from 11AM-4PM. If that doesn't work, the 9th is pretty open, as well.
Thanks again!
Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 10:24 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

Happy New Year! Apologies for my delayed response, I have been out of the office over the holidays.

Can we try for 11 or 3 PM on the 7th? Happy to look into options for the 8th if helpful.

Thanks!

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, December 30, 2014 at 1:41 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Just checking in to see what the best time is for John to visit our office on the 7th or 8th? Both days are fairly open for Penny.

Thanks!

Matt

From: Graham, Matthew
Sent: Thursday, December 18, 2014 12:59 PM
To: 'Liz Hegarty'
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Thanks, Liz!

Yes, both days are fairly open for Penny. We would be very happy for John to visit us! Our offices are on E. 44th St. between 1st and 2nd Ave., on the 27th floor of 2 UN Plaza.

Just let me know when is best for John, and I will put it on Penny's schedule and notify the security desk.

We're looking forward to meeting him.

Thanks again,

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, December 18, 2014 11:55 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

No problem. Happy to have John come by your office. Any chance there's a time on the 7th or 8th that works for Penny?

Thanks,

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Thursday, December 18, 2014 at 10:20 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

I just spoke with Penny, and she is hoping to meet John in person after the New Year, if possible. I apologize for the inconvenience, but could we reschedule?

If so, would you let me know a few times that work well for John? Penny is happy to meet him at AKPD's New York office, our office on 44th, or another location of John's choosing.

Thanks again,

Matt

From: Graham, Matthew
Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 6:37 PM
To: 'Liz Hegarty'
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Thanks, Liz!

Penny will call tomorrow.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 3:06 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Yes, tomorrow at 3:30 is great. John can be reached on his cell [REDACTED] Feel free to let me know if it would be easier if he dials Penny directly. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 at 2:02 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Thanks for getting back to me and for offering those times. Might John be available tomorrow at 3:30?

Best,

Matt

Matt Graham | Special Assistant to the Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: (212) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 3:00 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

Hope all is well. John's schedule is fairly flexible over the next few days. Is there a time that works well for Penny on either Thursday or Friday afternoon?

Many thanks,

Liz

—

Liz Hegarty

AKPD Message and Media
Office: 312-664-7500
Cell: 203-482-6229
lhgart@akpdmedia.com

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 at 1:57 PM
To: "Graham, Matthew" <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hey Matt - sure, that'd be great - adding Liz for my sked

On Dec 17, 2014, at 10:46 AM, Graham, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Hello, Mr. Del Cecato.

I am writing with the hope that we might schedule a call between you and Penny Abeywardena, Commissioner of the Mayor's Office for International Affairs. She is responsible for conveying the Mayor's message to a global audience and would appreciate your expertise. Would you please let me know when there is a good time to speak?

Best regards,
Matt

Matt Graham | Special Assistant to the Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: (212) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Howe, Amanda; Griffith, Chantell
Subject: RE: SOTC Prep
Date: Friday, January 09, 2015 4:14:10 PM

Please assemble

-----Original Appointment-----

From: Carey, Michael

Sent: Tuesday, January 06, 2015 5:15 PM

To: Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; Chao, Raymond; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Howe, Amanda; Griffith, Chantell

Subject: SOTC Prep

When: Friday, January 09, 2015 4:00 PM-5:00 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).

Where: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

From: Carey, Michael
To: John Del Cecato
Date: Friday, January 09, 2015 7:42:46 PM

are u back sunday for this video?

From: Carey, Michael
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re:
Date: Friday, January 09, 2015 7:48:51 PM

awesomeness
keep u posted on time

> On 9 Jan 2015, at 7:46 pm, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:
>
> Yessir - flying back tomorrow night
>
>
>
>> On Jan 9, 2015, at 7:42 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>
>> are u back sunday for this video?
>>
>>

From: John Del Cecato
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Richardson, Jerika; Parikh, Ishanee; Ragone, Peter
Subject: Re: Video questions
Date: Friday, January 09, 2015 8:22:25 PM

Yeah, I will have some ideas on what to ask - sort of leading questions like I do in interview spots - then I kind of play off him. I don't think we need to, or want to, prep him in advance - I'm a friendly questioner! - more my job to elicit the right stuff from him.

I can give you guys an idea of what I'd ask him in advance tho

> On Jan 9, 2015, at 7:57 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> Hi John, great to see you today! For the direct to Mayor video, do you think we should have some starter questions to get the mayor talking about police/ community relations? Could you send your ideas?
>
> Ishanee is ready to assist you

From: John Del Cecato
To: Emma Wolfe
Cc: B; FLONYC; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Hagelqans, Andrea
Subject: Re: Nydn John lurie oped
Date: Saturday, January 10, 2015 8:08:41 AM

Really nice

> On Jan 10, 2015, at 7:05 AM, Emma Wolfe <[REDACTED]> wrote:
>
>
> Honor the good ones
>
> I used to live on E. 3rd St. in Manhattan, across from the Men's Shelter. It could get pretty stinky but I was fond of a lot of these guys.
>
> Tommy the Jacket Head, who wore a jacket over his head and walked in circles mumbling to himself and then blurting out things that could have come from Stephen Hawking or Søren Kierkegaard. There was an enormously fat guy who would blurt out "Armageddon! Armageddon! Hoom!" every 10 minutes or so, but otherwise, didn't move or say anything. A lot of the men there had something incredible that made you kind of love them.
>
> But at one point, around 1980, Rikers Island was overflowing and they released about a third of the inmate population. A lot of them ended up on my block.
>
> Third St. became more like a jail yard. It became dangerous. And the guys who had been released were terrorizing the bums. Stealing from them. Beating them up. And in a few cases murdering them.
>
> I would see stuff going on from my window and call 911 but no one would ever come. So I took to throwing pennies from a big jar to try and break stuff up.
>
> One night at about 3 a.m., I heard something going on outside and stood up on my window ledge to see what was happening. There was a cop, by himself, in a precarious situation.
>
> A guy with a metal pipe over his head was standing in front of the cop. Two other guys were behind the cop and seemed ready to attack. An old bum was lying on the pavement and appeared to have been knocked unconscious by the other three.
>
> The cop was white and everyone else was black. I am not sure that that matters but there you are.
>
> Now if I had been the cop and had a gun, I cannot imagine that I would not have shot the guy with the pipe.
>
> But he didn't.
>
> The cop managed to disarm the guy with the pipe by rushing him and pulling his arm over his shoulder, then handcuffing him almost all in one motion. Then he took out his gun and told the other two to get lost.
>
> It was so insanely brave, that when I got down off of the window sill, I was on the verge of tears.
>
> One cannot expect anyone to act as heroically as this man had — alone, in the middle of the night, with no one to see, no cameras, on a block most officers didn't dare to go on — risking his life to not take another's.
>
> If you joined the force to carry a gun and hang with your buddies, crack nasty jokes and bully kids who hang out at the convenience store until they feel like they have no other recourse than to fight back because these things inexplicably make you feel more manly or powerful, if you band together to turn your back on someone speaking at a funeral, then you are an embarrassment.

>

> Simple as that — you are an embarrassment.

>

> But if you, in any small way, aspire to be this cop on 3rd St., 35 years ago — then, I've got your back. In any way in my power, I've got your back.

>

> If you show this kind of integrity and courage, I dare say the whole city will have your back.

>

> #

>

> Lurie is an American musician, painter, actor, director and producer.

From: Leopold, Elana
To: B
Cc: John Del Cecato; Jon Fromowitz; Hagelgans, Andrea; Williams, Dominic; Howe, Amanda
Subject: Gov Cuomo 2011 budget speech
Date: Saturday, January 10, 2015 12:22:21 PM

Transcribed below

GOVERNOR CUOMO DELIVERS REMARKS ON THE 2011-2012 EXECUTIVE BUDGET

Governor Andrew Cuomo: Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you very much.

First, Bob Megna. We did have a lot of quality time preparing the budget. We do have a lot of snow to shovel. It was not a pleasant process going through the budget preparation. I'm sure it wasn't pleasant for Bob – it wasn't pleasant for me.

During the weeks that we were doing the budget, I was also suffering from a root canal. Periodically, I would go to the dentist's office for a dental procedure as a welcome relief from going through the budget. Very few times in your life that that can happen but it actually happened here.

Let's give Bob Megna and the entire team at the Division of Budget a big round of applause. They worked tremendously hard. They are a hardworking group of professionals and really the people of the state of New York owe them a big thanks.

Lieutenant Governor Bob Duffy, who has been doing a great job, let's give him a round of applause. Pleasure to be with him.

They were recognized but please allow me to do it, again, Comptroller Thomas DiNapoli. Pleasure to be with the comptroller.

The attorney general is en route. Is he here? Attorney generals tend to be tardy. Did you ever notice that? I can tell you that firsthand.

The people also owe the comptroller and the attorney general a big round of applause because they were very cooperative in this budget and they've really done their share to step up to the plate. Thank you. Tom, thank you very much.

Majority Leader Dean Skelos, pleasure to be with you. Speaker Sheldon Silver, pleasure to be with you. Senator John DeFrancisco, pleasure to be with you sir and Assemblyman Danny Farrell. Good to be with you both. Thank you.

I recently got a picture from Danny, picture of Danny and myself and my father from the '70s. I must be 20 something years old. Danny had hair that didn't go up but went out. Danny's hair was wide. I had the picture in my office. It is available for viewing, 1 dollar per viewing. We can do half the deficit when you see how this picture is going to take of. Pleasure to be with you and all the members of the legislature and concerned staff, thank you very much for being here today.

We're here to obviously talk about the 2011-'12 Executive Budget, New York at a crossroads, and we're laying out today I believe is a road to recovery for the state.

This is a different type of budget presentation, as you heard from Bob Megna. This is more a management presentation. This is not just about the numbers. It's about the values. It's about the choices. It's about the cycle that we're now in that must be changed.

Where are we? You know where we are. New York State is functionally bankrupt. I like to use that term because when you think bankruptcy, you think in terms of restructuring and that's where we are as a state. We have to think in terms of restructuring because the state doesn't work on the numbers anymore.

We spend too much money, which is not new, but it's worse, 74 percent increase over the past 10 years in spending.

When you look at what we spent, we spend more than we make, which is never a good formula in life. Over the past 10 years, spending averaged 5.7 percent. We were only bringing in 3.8 percent in tax receipts, so we were spending more money than we were making as a state. We were spending more money than we were making as people. Personal income was growing at 3.7 percent and both far outstripped inflation, which was at 2.4 percent.

The spending rates, which are dictated by current law, permanent law are unsustainable for the state of New York. We have a 10 billion-dollar deficit this year. What's worse we have a 15 billion-dollar deficit next year written into law, 17 billion-dollar deficit the year after, 21 billion-dollar deficit the year after that.

Maybe we spend a lot of money but we get great product for it. We really get our money's worth if only they were true; number 1 in education, number 34 in results; number in spending in Medicaid, number 21 in results; 1.6 billion dollars in economic development and number 50 in terms of result. Government spends too much money and it produces too little for the people.

High cost of government makes us economically uncompetitive. You look at the tax situation of New York, which you know very well, 66 percent above the US average, the worst among states. Property taxes, 3,700 dollars. Medium New York property tax billed 96 percent higher than the US average.

Where does that lead us? We spend too much, we get too little and it makes us economically uncompetitive. That's it in a line and it's not a pretty line.

The situation has gone on for too long. The time to redesign, government is long overdue. Recalibrate spending is long overdue and rebuilding the economy is long overdue. This budget is about transforming our government around a new set of values that face today's economic reality.

Our government will reduce cost for a reward performance and put people first. Remember, all of these, all of these government programs they are about students, they are about patients, they are about taxpayers. It's not about the industry of government. It's not about the bureaucracy of the programs. Government is supposed to serve people that's what this was about and that's what we have to get back to.

This will be about fostering private sector growth and commit to reality-based budgeting stopping the Albany-based budget cycle that sets us up to fail year after year after year.

Budget highlights. Let's talk about Medicaid first. In terms of redesign we spoke about in The State of the State, we have a Medicaid redesign taskforce, which is working extraordinarily well. Their point purpose is to redesign the programs, how do you take these programs, produce better services for the people and reduce the cost to the taxpayer.

The redesign taskforce will assume the government's budget goal that is in this presentation. They've already had over 1,000 ideas collected as they've been going through the state.

For example, what are they going to do? The home healthcare program, which is a program I know very well. I investigated it as attorney general. It's also one of the fastest growing Medicaid programs in the law.

From 2003 to 2009, almost a 90 percent increase in the benefits that go to a recipient; 90 percent. 1 dollar of Medicaid money first goes to what's called a Certified Home Health Agency, a CHHA they call it. The CHHA then takes 26 cents for administrative overhead and contracts with the Licensed Home Care Service Agency called the LHCSA which takes 26 cents of overhead and then contracts with the actual caregiver who is the person who is going to the home to provide the care who gets 48 cents.

When you redesign the programs, find ways to reduce cost and find ways to take the fat out of the system. The Medicaid system was not supposed to be spending more than 50 cents on the dollar for overhead. Medicaid is not about supporting the home healthcare industry. It really isn't. It was about getting care to a person. 48 cents goes to the caregiver to the person.

Redesign it. Find out how to do away with the 52. Save money for the taxpayer and actually give better services for the person. This is a snapshot, but you can do this over and over and over and over again all throughout the Medicaid program.

I want to thank the redesign taskforce, which is taking a lot of time. It's a bunch of great professionals and they're doing a great piece of work and I would like to thank them for it.

This year's Medicaid budget. Last year, state spending on Medicaid was about 14 billion dollars. It will go up to 18 billion dollars. Federal funding was 31. It's going to go down to 26. Local spending will stay about the same. The total will go from a 53 billion-dollar program and change to a 52 billion-dollar program.

The state spending on Medicaid is going up approximately 3.6 billion dollars. The federal money in Medicaid is going down about 5 billion. This is an important point because this is all through the budget. One of the main drivers in this budget is that New York State got about 6 billion dollars of federal funds last year in terms of stimulus. We inhaled it and we injected it into our body and it is now gone.

We have a withdrawal from the federal stimulus money so that 6 billion dollars that was put into the system and then withdrawn is what we're trying to make up in this budget, but state spending goes up 3.6 billion dollars.

Year to year, Medicaid is down 920 million dollars year to year. Year to year, the 982 million-dollar cut is a 2 percent cut to the program.

To put the program in perspective, the growth of Medicaid is about 6.4 percent on average over 10-year period compared to inflation, which has been 2.3 percent. When you add in this negative 2, the 2 percent reduction, the 11-year growth rate of Medicaid is 5.7, still double the rate of inflation.

When you use reality-based budgeting as opposed to Albany-based budgeting, which is where Albany meets end-run in our opinion, the Albany budget institutionally assume an exorbitant growth rate that is disconnected from fiscal reality. This has been going on for many, many years. Permanent law institutionalizes unsustainable spending and growth.

What is the Medicaid rate of growth in the current budget passed last year? Maybe it's a rate of inflation, maybe it's CPI, maybe it's 4, maybe it's 5, maybe it's 6; no. 13.2 percent projected growth in Medicaid. That's what the budget passed last year, said that the Medicaid program was going to grow 13 percent. That's what it informed all the mayors. That's what it informed the county executives. That's what it informed all the groups.

How anyone expected to be able to pay for a 13 percent increase in Medicaid is beyond me, but that's what we said we were going to do and that's what brings us here today.

Permanent law has built in rates and formulas that continually drive up this unsustainable spending. If the economy was running great guns, this would not be an issue. When the economy was running great guns, it wasn't an issue. Spend more, spend more, spend more. The economy was running. In a down economy, this is a death spiral and that's where we are now.

Permanent law rates for Medicaid increases over the past 2 years; 16 percent last year, 14 percent the year before, future years 13 percent and 9. Nothing, my friends, is increasing by this amount, not home values, not salaries, not inflation, not income, not anything. It truly is an unsustainable amount.

More egregious in my opinion, the formulas don't even call for performance for the people. There were not outcome measures. There were no performance measures. It doesn't say were going to pay for programs that are doing well in terms of preventable hospital readmissions or wellness or quality care. It's just more money. It is no factors to promote government actually serving people better. It is in many ways special interest protection program.

Also, the way the budget is structured I believe it misleads the public. In Albany budget cut is to find is anything less than the anticipated growth. If you don't get the 13 percent increase, that's a cut. If you only get a 10 percent increase, that's a cut of 3 percent. By that calculus, Medicaid was cut to 13 percent increase and an additional 2 percent because it's negative 2. By that language, Albany language, it's a 2.8 billion-dollar cut. Year to year, as I told you, the cut is 982 million which is 2 percent decrease.

The deficit then is the difference between state revenue and what you need to pay the 13 percent increase. That's the deficit, so we have a 10 billion-dollar deficit. That's the amount you need to fund Medicaid and education and to fund the other state increases.

If you assume the deficit was the difference between state revenue and the rate of inflation to pick an objective nationally recognized standard, the deficit would have only been 1 billion dollars. It is the cycle of passing these unsustainable increases that set us up to fail year after year.

Growth in Medicaid will be recalibrated to a fair and objective standard. Why? Because we need to do two things this year. We need to close this year's deficit, the 10 billion-dollar deficit, and we need to stop next year's deficit from forming by changing the permanent law.

If we have to go through this and we have to go through this difficult period, let's make sure it's the last time we do it. Let's not go through all the pain we're going to go through this year and then set up a process that only guarantees that we're going to go through it again next year. That's what the Albany budget dance has been year after year and when the lieutenant governor talks about stopping the dance, that's what he's talking about.

The new formula for medication, for example, should be the national healthcare CPI, which is currently 4 percent.

The days of unsustainable spending must stand. The days of money without performance for the people must stand. The days of Albany being dominated by special interest must stand.

Education. Let's change our thinking, putting people first. Think in terms of students, graduation, achievement. Progress for people should be included in the funding. We have 2 competitive incentive grants. One, 250 million-dollar program for the school districts that have the greatest improvement in student achievement.

If it's about the students and not funding a bureaucracy and if you want the students to do better, why don't you fund increases in performance and student achievement? If you're trying to save the schools, do a better job teaching, incentivize those schools that do. Change the culture. Let school districts know those school districts that want to excel, those individuals who want to excel.

You want to get an award, you want to go to a ceremony, you want to be recognized by your peers, this is how you do it. Change the orientation of the program. You don't just sit there and I'll send you a check and I'll send you a check and I'll send you a check. You actually have to do something for the money and we reward achievement. That's the culture that we're in.

We also proposed a 250 million-dollar grant for school districts who have the best management efficiencies and bring down costs, innovative ideas to do that.

Education funding this year will go from 19.8 billion to 19.6 billion in the fiscal year, so it will be a reduction of 246 million dollars in the school year. We'll go from 20.9 billion to 19.3, which is a reduction of 1.5 billion.

Total spending was 52.9 billion dollars on education. The 1.5 billion-dollar reduction state aid represents 7 percent of state aid. When you combined it with the local funding, it represents on average a 2.9 percent net cut to the district.

What will that mean? We believe this is a combination of local management and redesigned operations that can handle the situation and that they will be absolutely no need for layoffs.

For example, number 1, school districts have 1.2 billion dollars in reserves. School districts have 600 million leftover from last year federal funding that they didn't spend. That's 1.8 billion dollars right there. Our entire cut this year is 1.5, so just the reserves and unspent money.

School districts would have a way to pay for the money. Maybe they look at their administrator compensation. When I was AG, we did many cases in this area.

Highest paid school superintendent makes 386,000 dollars. I applied for that job. I failed. I run for governor. This is what irks me because I could have been a school superintendent.

279 school superintendents, more than 40 percent receive salaries and benefits totaling 200,000 dollars or higher. I understand school superintendents have to manage situations, manage a lot of people. I understand that they sometimes have to manage budgets and sometimes the budgets are difficult. Why they get paid more than the governor of the state I really don't understand.

More than 2,000 school administrators receive at least 150,000 dollars in salaries and benefits. If it's about the students, then let's find savings within the bureaucracy.

Also, there are many of these school systems that have a lot of work that they can do cleaning up their own house. We did double dipping cases. We did pension reform cases in many school districts.

If there was a wage freeze for management and teachers, that would have meant to 1.1 billion dollars. Again, our cut is 1.5 billion dollars. We will have a wage freeze for state workers this year as you know. If teachers and management took away freeze in and of itself, that would come very close to managing this cut.

If there was flexibility on their healthcare contributions, 90 percent¹ of new school employees pay less than state employees for family coverage. If school districts require the same employee contract as state employees, it would be about 600 million dollars.

Fifth consolidations and shared services, 676 school districts, over 200 a few within 1,000 pupils. We've been talking about consolidation for a long time, now is the time to do it.

On school aid, like Medicaid, we're going to have to recalibrate the rate of growth. What is the rate of growth in education in the current budget? Is it 4 percent, 5 percent, 6 percent? 13.1. Medicaid was 13.2. What is the current law say the increase going forward? 13 and 11.

Again, by Albany budgeting, a cut is defined as anything less than growth. Education was projected to go up 13 percent. This is a cut. This will be by that language a 2.8 billion-dollar cut. The 2.8 is then part of the 10 billion-dollar deficit which was to fund the 13 percent increase.

Going forward to stop the cycle, we propose that education have an index, be indexed to something like the personal income growth, which would be 4 percent per year. We also on education have to make sure we fulfill our commitment to high-needs districts, which have been historically not adequately funded.

If you do not change the projected growth in Medicaid and education in next year's budget, not this year, next year's budget, we have a 15 billion-dollar gap. By current law, the growth for entire state budget is 12 percent next year. That's the law as written. It says 12 percent more expenditures.

There is no way. This state's economy is going to grow to cover 12 percent unless you know something I don't know or there's a secret pot of money somewhere. It's not going to work to have a budget that says, "Next year's growth is going to go up 12 percent." We're not going to have the revenues that's why we're going to have a 15 billion-dollar deficit. Again, this year let's resolve this problem and let's resolve next year's problem.

State operations. We're very aggressive on reorganization. That is Governor Al Smith. His portrait now hangs in the Red Room. Mentioned in The State of the State, we have a state operations team called SAGE, which is working on novel efficiencies and consolidations.

In the budget, we have a proposal that consolidates 11 state entities into 4. The new entities will be grouped by area. We also believe there's savings in the area of correctional facilities. The population census has declined, 21 percent since 1999, which is about 14,000 people.

In the budget, we have a prison consolidation implementation plan. We are not talking about releasing prisoners. We are talking about consolidating prisons and unused space, not releasing anyone. You have many prison facilities with high levels of vacancy. We want to consolidate the prisons and save money.

We have assumed 3,500 beds that need to be closed. We will appoint the taskforce with the executive and the legislative to make the determinations as to which prisons wear. We hope to have those decisions done one way or the other 30 days after the budget is approved.

Every day you don't make the decisions and you're not going forward obviously is a day that you don't have savings. I think it's fair and right that the legislature be part of it. There are political consequences to these determinations. I understand that and I think it's right that the legislature be part of making the determination.

I also think it's right that we say to the communities that are going to deal with the loss of a prison, "We understand your situation and your problem," and a community that is going to deal with the loss of a prison will receive a 10 million-dollar economic transformation program grant and help from ESDC to find an alternative use for that prison, another business, et cetera.

Same in the juvenile justice system, population has dropped way down from 2006 1,300 to 604 today. We want to reduce the system capacity by more than 30 percent, invest in locally-based alternatives and increase state funding to do it. Once again, we will provide a 10 million-dollar economic transformation program for each community that's impacted by a facility closing.

State operations which will have 1.4 billion dollars total in savings, 100 million from right sizing; SUNY efficiencies, 115 million with no tuition increases in SUNY I am pleased to be able to say; CUNY efficiencies, SUNY hospital efficiencies non-personal service, 485 million; labor management partnership workforce savings, 450 million.

We will work very, very hard to find these savings by working in partnership with labor. All my life, I've experienced a good relationship with labor and with the workforce. We're going to work very hard and be very creative in finding their best ideas to find these savings.

The last resort and the least favorite options of all of this would be layoffs which if we had to get the 450 million dollars through layoffs, it would be 9,800 layoffs. I've already started conversations with Ken Brynien from PEF and Danny Donohue from CSEA.

Local government. Once again, incentivize performance. We're going to have a 75 million-dollar fund to spur consolidations. 10,500 governments have to be reduced. The aid to municipalities program, aim program will be reduced by 2 percent.

When you see the totality of what we're looking at in this situation, 2 percent is obviously a modest reduction. The upstate cities are very important to us. We understand the situation they're in. We call this the Gerry Jennings Protection Program and we're sure he is grateful.

New York City will take a proportionate cut. Obviously, we will work in partnership with Mayor Bloomberg to cooperate wherever possible.

Make no mistake, my friends, on these numbers. New York City is not an inexpensive place. New York State is not an Inexpensive place to live or to operate. We are not going to be able to cut our way out of this long term because the costs are expensive. Medicaid is expensive. Education is expensive. We are inexpensive state. We're going to have to grow our way out.

The economic development agenda is the most important agenda that this state will concentrate on going forward. It is where I'm going to be spending the lion share of my time. We need jobs, we need revenue, that's the way this is actually going to work.

We have a short-term strategy to stabilize the financial ship of state by reducing the costs, stopping this cycle of never-ending deficits but long term, it's jobs, jobs, jobs. Getting business is here and getting business is to stay in getting the revenue up.

We'll take the economic development programs that are now scattered across a number of agencies. They're all going to be funneled through regional development councils, which will be higher driven. Public -private sector partnerships there'll be a single point of contact for all agencies in the area. The lieutenant governor will be chairing those commissions.

Budget recap. State operating funds last year were 87 billion. They were projected in the budget to grow by 11 percent. That would have taken us to 96 billion. That was the 10-year deficit that we have been talking about.

Our proposal goes to 88 billion, which is a 1 percent increase in the state operating funds on an all-funds basis, which primarily adds in the federal funds. It was 136. Last year's budget proposed a 5 percent increase 243, 132 billion from 136. All-fund spending is down 2.7 percent.

Again, annual state spending goes up 899 million, which is roughly 1 percent. Annual all-fund spending will go down by 3.7. State spending goes up because of the loss of federal funds, which I mentioned earlier, which is what put the major hole in this budget. The federal dollars literally fell off a cliff and you can see those numbers; 1.3, 2.9, 5.2, 1.1.

Fairness was very important in this budget to us and we spent a lot of time on allocating the loss. Medicaid year to year is 2 percent. School aid year to year is 2.9 percent. Aid to municipalities, 2 percent. State agency cuts, 10 percent. Cuts to the Comptroller Office of the state of New York, 10 percent. Cuts to the Attorney General's Office of the state of New York, 10 percent.

Only the Office of Court Administration did not participate in finding reductions and we will negatively comment on their budget when we submit it. I once again want to applaud the comptroller and applaud the attorney general for stepping up to the plate and for doing their share.

It was important to us that we could say to local government and school districts all across the state, "I understand that you have a cut and I understand that you're going to have to deal with the 2 percent reduction, but we believe in leading by example and the state's cut is 5 times roughly the cut anyone else out there is taking and I'm proud of that.

If we do this, we will have made dramatic progress. A fair budget and a collusive process, the Medicaid redesign taskforce, the mandate taskforces they're all over the state, it respects the taxpayers, it protects the vulnerable.

It will begin a government redesign that focuses once again on serving the people and reminding government that these programs and this whole labyrinth bureaucracy and the reason all of you are here and I'm here is it was about the people. It was about the people. It wasn't about the providers and the institutions. It's about serving the people.

We will stop unsustainable spending in 2 ways, close this year's deficit and stop next year's deficit from happening. Both are must this year. We will commence real economic growth with a real economic development program and we will reposition New York nationally to grow again.

I believe this the long-term future of New York, letting business take a second look at this state and saying, "You know what? Maybe New York isn't so bad. Maybe New York gets it. Maybe New York is turned around. Maybe they're not the antibusiness state." We need this to work desperately.

We're at the crossroads and there are 2 roads. I believe if we continue doing what we're doing the state goes down in the road to ruin. I think we also have an opportunity to take the road of recovery. It is a time when we're sending out an SOS to save our state and it is up to you.

Let me say this in closing. I know this going to be hard. First of all, change is hard. I love the concept of change. Everybody is in favor of change. You ask people, "Do we need change?" Yes, we need change. Ask people in a relationship. Ask husband and wife, "Do we need change?" Oh, yes. We need a lot of change. That's right, everybody agrees. We need a lot of change.

What they really mean is you need to change. They're doing pretty well where they are. You are the problem and you really need to change and you need to understand that. They like control and they want to stay just the way they are. Everybody thinks they like change. When change actually comes to them, it's shocking and it's frightening and it's anxiety-producing and that's where we are today.

This is change. The situation is forcing and mandating change. We don't want to change that's why we've never changed that's why we're doing the same thing. I understand, but it can't go on because it's unsustainable. You could do this when the economy was running and you were making a lot of money and the money was coming in handover fist, you spend it, fine, but the money is gone and the money is not coming in.

This cycle of inflate increases 14 percent, 16 percent, 12 percent. There's no such number in economic reality. It's not going to happen; 10 billion-dollar deficit, 15 billion-dollar deficit. It's not going to happen. We have to change now. This is hard. This is real change.

We're saying to the school districts out there, "This is a real net 2.9 percent change." They're going to have to find economies of scale and they're going to have to adjust. I can sit here and stand here and say to you, "They've gotten a lot of money over the years. The bureaucracy has grown up. Here are ways to find the savings. They could reduce health benefits. They could reduce wages. They can consolidate," but it's still hard.

I can say on the Medicaid cut it's only 2 percent. Go to talk to families. Go talk to businesses across the state. 99 percent of them would make a deal with you today just give me a 2 percent cut, because in their lives has been far worse. For the Medicaid companies, the 2 percent is going to be hard.

I get that. You're going to hear it. You're going to feel it. This is going to inflame the Albany establishment. The lobbyists are going to be running around the hallways like the Harrison fire. You're going to hear it and they are going to be unhappy and they're going to be all over you and they're going to be complaining and I understand that this hard to take.

I also understand this. The people get it and the people are with you. At the end of the day, it's about the people. At the end of the day, it's not about this town and it's not about this building. It's about the people in your districts. It's about the people who elected you and they get this. They get this because they're living in their own lives and they get what these numbers mean; 12 percent increase, 13 percent increase.

They get it and they get the options. They ran the numbers and they ran the calculus and they readjusted their own lives and they're saying to government now, "You readjust your life. You go to the same calculus with taxpayer money that I went through with my personal money."

The upside is, the opportunity is you can change the trajectory of this state this year. You can do more good for this state in this session than has been done in decades. You cannot just write the wrongs. You can take us to a place we haven't been. You have to pass 2 bills. I want more, but you really only need to pass 2 bills.

You pass ethics reform. Why? To restore your credibility and restore your integrity and say to the people of this state they can trust this body called the legislature once again. That's what ethics reform is really all about, restore the credibility and integrity of the New York State legislature.

Number 2, pass the budget. Pass it on time. Pass it like responsible elected leaders. Pass it without getting ugly. Pass it even though it's hard. Pass it even though the lobbyists are beating you up. Pass it even though it's difficult and say to the people of the state, "We stepped up. 10 billion-dollar deficit it was difficult, we did it and we've done more good for this state in this session than has done in the past 20 years."

Give people that hope. Give people that affirmation. They desperately want to hear it from you. They desperately want to hear it. They don't want to hear more problems, more dysfunction. They believe in this state. They are here. They're with us. They're paying taxes. They want to know it's going to be okay. They want to know that there's a future. They want to know that you can function. They want to know that we can work together. They need to hear it and they're on the edge and we can make all that difference this year.

I put out my hand in partnership to every member of the legislature. Assembly senate, majority, minority, anyone who will work with me, I will work with. Democrat, Republican, independent, liberal, conservative, it doesn't matter where New Yorker is first and this is about serving the people of New York first and that's why I'm here. At the end of the day, they elect us to lead. Let's lead and let's do it together.

Thank you and God bless you.

###

Sent from my iPhone

From: Bill de Blasio
To: Anna Greenberg
Cc: John Del Cecato; FLONYC
Subject: Re: just got q poll on police
Date: Saturday, January 10, 2015 3:34:47 PM

As am I! :)

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

-----Original Message-----

From: Anna Greenberg <agreenberg@gqrr.com>

Date: Sat, 10 Jan 2015 20:20:15

To: <[REDACTED]>

Cc: John Del Cecato<jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Chirlane McCray<FLONYC@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: just got q poll on police

I'm glad we have our own parallel poll in the field.

> On Jan 10, 2015, at 12:50 PM, "Bill de Blasio" <[REDACTED]> wrote:

>

>

> Fyi. And note the entertaining fact that the source is jonathan prince

>

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: Jonathan Prince

> To: Bill de Blasio

> To: Peter Ragone

> To: Nick Baldick

> Subject: just got q poll on police

> Sent: Jan 10, 2015 12:32 PM

>

> This is precise list of questions. (a/d = approve/disapprove)

>

> a/d bdb

> a/d bratton

> a/d farina

> a/d stringer

> a/d andrew

>

> in general, how satisfied?

>

> a/d bdb relations b/w blacks and whites

> a/d bdb relations b/w police and community

> a/d bdb handling public schools

> a/d bdb handling police dept

> a/d bdb handling crime

>

> opinion of rev fav/unfav

> rev mostly positive or mostly negative force in nyc

> rev have too much influence, too little, right amount w/bdb

- > should bdb ban carriages
- > a/d cell phones in schools
- > race relations gen good/gen bad
- > race relations getting better/worse/staying same
- >
- > mlk bday, signif progress toward dream of racial equality or not
- >
- > follow govt/puub affairs most/some/hardly
- >
- > a/d nyc police doing job
- > a/d police in community doing job
- >
- > in general, how serious prob crime in nyc? v serious, s serious, not serious
- > personally worry about being victim of crime
- > police in nyc tougher on whites, tougher on blacks, same
- > police in your community, w/b/same
- > how serious police brutality
- > perosnally wprry about police burtality
- >
- > heard anything about eric garner
- > which statement closer; tragic, no excuse for police action; or tragic, understandable police acted this way
- >
- > a/d grand jury decided not to bring charges
- > a/d fed govt bringing civil rights charges
- >
- > who should investigate - state a/g or local d/a
- >
- > a/d bdb handling protests
- > a/d police handling protests
- >
- > when protesters block traffic but not violent, should allow or clear, even if means arrest
- >
- > relations b/w bdb and police gen good or gen bad
- > who more to blame, police or bdb
- >
- > over next year, relations b/w bdb and police worse/better/stay same
- > over next year, relations b/w bdb and minorities worse/better/stay same
- >
- > opinion of lynch fav/unfav
- > lynch mostly pos/mostly neg
- > has discipline in nypd broken down
- > can bratton restore discipline in nypd
- > should union have role in disciplining officers or only commissioner
- >
- > comments by lynch "blood on hands" appropriate or too extreme
- > a/d officers turning backs
- > believe statements by bdb during campaign and 1st yr show he does/does not support police
- >
- > fewer low-level more fear of safety or protest
- > fewer low-level part of organized or spontaneous
- > if police make fewer low-level more good thing b/c reduce tension or more good thing cause increase crime
- > if police deliberately fewer low level should/should not disciplined
- >
- > demos
- >
- >
- > Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: B; FLONYC
Subject: Re: Must Watch: Bill Maher on NYPD
Date: Saturday, January 10, 2015 5:50:17 PM

If you have not seen:

Race, the Police and the Propaganda

January 10, 2015

Nicholas Kristof

WELCOME visitors to New York City! This has been the best time ever to urinate on a street, sneak onto the subway or run a red light, for the police force has been on a virtual strike.

Police officers may be making a point for contract negotiations. But many also are genuinely frustrated and, along with millions of other Americans, seem sympathetic to an argument that goes like this:

The real threat to young black men isn't white cops. It's other black men. Police officers are numerous in black neighborhoods not because they want to hang out there, but because they're willing to risk their lives to create order on streets where too many residents have kids outside of marriage, or collect government benefits but disdain jobs. Instead of receiving thanks for their efforts, cops have been cursed and attacked. Hate-mongering led by President Obama built a climate of animosity that led to the murder of two of New York's finest. And where are the street protests denouncing those racist murders? Don't blue lives count?

Rudy Giuliani, the former mayor of New York and de facto spokesman for that viewpoint, put it this way in November when he was asked about Ferguson, Mo., on "Meet the Press": "I find it very disappointing that you're not discussing the fact that 93 percent of blacks in America are killed by other blacks. We're talking about the exception here."

The relationship between the police and the mayor in New York has been closely watched recently. Richard Perry / The New York Times

"What about the poor black child that is killed by another black child?" he added. "Why aren't you protesting that?"

After the assassination of the two New York police officers, Giuliani declared: "We've had four months of propaganda, starting with the president, that everybody should hate the police."

That view has gained traction, creating an astonishing impasse in America's largest city. In one week in late December, the number of police citations, summonses and arrests in some categories fell by 90 percent from the same week the previous year.

That's not "a few bad apples." That's the apple basket.

Most of us understand that police officers are often in an impossible position, and we appreciate their courage and good work. When they work.

So let's examine the narrative that Giuliani and others have spread.

Take the argument that police killings are a red herring because the biggest threat to blacks is other blacks. The latter part is true. Where the perpetrator has been identified, 93 percent of murderers of blacks are also black. Then again, it's equally true that 84 percent of murderers of whites are fellow whites.

So?

How would we feel if we were told: When Americans are killed by Muslim terrorists, it's an exception. Get over it.

Some offenses are particularly destructive because they undermine the social system. Terrorism is in that category, and so is police abuse. Unfortunately, there's evidence that such abuse is too common.

In 2012, an African-American detective in the New York City Police Department, Harold Thomas, hobbled from a nightclub to his car (he had been shot a year earlier by a would-be armed robber). Other police officers didn't recognize him and, according to Thomas, slammed his head into his vehicle, threw him to the ground and handcuffed him. He is suing the city.

Thomas, who retired last year after 30 years, admires the police force but says the racial bias is ingrained — caused by a small percentage of officers who “make everyone look bad.”

Reuters interviewed 25 African-American male police officers, some retired, in New York City and said all but one reported having been subjected to unwarranted incidents — from stop-and-frisks to being thrown into prison vans. Five said they had had guns pulled on them.

A 2010 New York State task force report on police-on-police shootings identified 14 officers around the country killed by fellow officers over the previous 15 years in mistaken identity shootings. Ten of the 14 were officers of color.

Then there's a ProPublica investigation that found that young black men are shot dead by police at 21 times the rate of young white men.

It's true that some on the left who are aghast at racial profiling are sometimes prone to career profiling: We should stereotype neither black youths nor white cops. Some extremist protesters turned to the slogan “arms up, shoot back,” or to chants of “What do we want? Dead cops.” That was inexcusable. But, of course, that's not remotely what Obama was saying.

PunditFact reviewed all of Obama's statements and found that he never encouraged hostility toward police; it labeled that Giuliani assertion as “pants on fire.” Good for Obama and other politicians — including Mayor Bill de Blasio — for trying to shine a light on inequality in law enforcement.

“Many of my peers were deeply racist,” Redditt Hudson, a former St. Louis cop, wrote in The Washington Post last month. He described seeing force used unnecessarily, particularly against blacks, such as the time a boy who couldn't walk was punched, handcuffed and dragged by his ankles from his home to a car.

Hudson said that the fundamental need is an end to impunity.

“Cops aren't held accountable for their actions, and they know it,” he wrote. “These officers violate rights with impunity. They know there's a different criminal justice system for civilians and police. Even when officers get caught, they know they'll be investigated by their friends, and put on paid leave."

Race is a nettlesome issue, and I recognize that I'm calling for more diversity and accountability in police forces even as my own institution — the press — doesn't look like America either.

We can all do better. Put yourselves in the shoes of the family of Tamir Rice, the black 12-year-old boy shot dead in November in Cleveland. A 911 call had reported someone carrying a "probably fake" gun, and Tamir was carrying a pellet pistol.

A white police officer, who had previously been judged unprepared for the stresses of the job, shot Tamir. A video released a few days ago shows the boy's 14-year-old sister rushing to her fallen brother — and then tackled by police, handcuffed, and placed in a police car a few feet from her dying brother. The officers stood around and gave him no medical aid.

To those who see no problem in policing, just one question: What if that were your son or daughter?

I invite you to visit my blog, On the Ground. Please also join me on Facebook and Google+, watch my YouTube videos and follow me on Twitter.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Saturday, January 10, 2015 5:47 PM
To: Rebecca Katz <rkkatz@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov>, FLONYC VM <FLONYC@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Must Watch: Bill Maher on NYPD

Me too. Kristof good too

On Jan 10, 2015, at 4:35 PM, Katz, Rebecca <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Definitely. And this is what I am hearing from those Quinn/ Bloomberg corners of the city. They find the behavior here appalling.

The hundred and hundreds of comments are passionate and overwhelmingly supportive.

From: B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Saturday, January 10, 2015 5:32 PM
To: Rebecca Katz <rkkatz@cityhall.nyc.gov>, FLONYC VM <FLONYC@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Must Watch: Bill Maher on NYPD

We saw it last night -- he spoke a lot of truth

From: Katz, Rebecca
Sent: Saturday, January 10, 2015 05:28 PM
To: B; FLONYC; John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Must Watch: Bill Maher on NYPD

Bill Maher: "it's a great time to visit New York, get stoned, and urinate out your double-parked car."

"How dare he [BdB] spread a myth that is only corroborated by every black person ever"

And watch what he says about unions.

1.4 million views since this was posted 16 hours ago:

<https://www.facebook.com/video.php?v=10152662550517297>

From: FLONYC
To: Katz, Rebecca
Cc: John Del Cecato; B
Subject: Re: Must Watch: Bill Maher on NYPD
Date: Saturday, January 10, 2015 6:27:44 PM

Best piece since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's article!

Sent from my iPhone

> On Jan 10, 2015, at 5:50 PM, Katz, Rebecca <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> Race is a nettlesome issue, and I recognize that I'm calling for more diversity and accountability in police forces even as my own institution — the press — doesn't look like America either.

From: Bill de Blasio
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Parikh, Ishanee; FLONYC
Subject: Re: Bratton and O'Neill
Date: Sunday, January 11, 2015 6:32:13 PM

John -- pls get me feedback from the team on the rough cut and/or pls put me on whatever thread you start with them. And Chirlane needs to see this asap pls -- that should always be one of the first steps

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

-----Original Message-----

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sun, 11 Jan 2015 23:14:40
To: <[REDACTED]>
Cc: Ishanee Parikh<iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Bratton and O'Neill

Roger.

Ish - please send the audio file to Peter, Andrea, Emma, Dom, and me.

Editing is scheduled for tomorrow AM

> On Jan 11, 2015, at 4:50 PM, Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]> wrote:

>

>

> I need you to get something around to the comms team and tony/dom asap so they can think about how when to use this. Perfect is the enemy of good here. We have a very dynamic public situation, and if this might help we need to make that decision asap. Let's get the rough cut around to all right now so they can start thinking about it

>

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: John Del Cecato
> To: Bill de Blasio
> Cc: Ishanee Parikh
> Subject: Re: Bratton and O'Neill
> Sent: Jan 11, 2015 4:40 PM

>

> Transcript should be ready shortly.

>

> I reached out to team about editing with Aaron tomorrow AM.

>

> My personal view, as you know, is that it will definitely do go work for us

>

>

>> On Jan 11, 2015, at 3:54 PM, Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]> wrote:

>>

>>

>> And I haven't seen a transcript yet for Chirlane and me, as I requested. Nor have I seen any analysis from the team re: if the video would help and how/when to use it

>>

>>

>> -----Original Message-----

>> From: John Del Cecato

>> To: Bill de Blasio

>> Subject: Re: Bratton and O'Neill

>> Sent: Jan 11, 2015 1:55 PM

>>

>> Yes, for sure

>>

>>

>>

>>> On Jan 11, 2015, at 12:36 PM, Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]> wrote:

>>>

>>>

>>> To say the least, we need their feedback before sending out a video

>>>

>>> Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

>>

>> Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

>

> Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato
To: BdB
Cc: FLONYC
Subject: Re: Deeper thought
Date: Monday, January 12, 2015 8:06:50 AM

Makes sense. I have been talking to Aaron about for a while about the police reform Big Picture. While we initially wanted national focus to be exclusively income inequality, and we didn't ask to be at the center of the policing debate - we are there anyway. Might as well make that part of our national message as well.

And after we talk Big Picture, we should talk tactics. I have no idea why you don't do the Mayor's Radio Show - or littler version of video we shot yesterday.

And we need to chat about the Times story today. It's always frustrating when someone leaks, but this one felt like they were actually trying to hurt us (at least that's how I felt) - rather than the leaker just trying to puff themselves up. That's bothersome.

I've got a couple of meetings with you today, and should be in or around City Hall for the most part - so let's chat when you have a private moment.

> On Jan 12, 2015, at 7:55 AM, Bill de Blasio < wrote:
>
>
> Really want some non-tactical time with you to get back to one of the bigger points we discussed with you and Aaron: how the team is missing both the big picture and opportunities. We are in either a strategy or a rut of me being low-profile and unavailable to the media -- not sure which it is because there is no coherent and sustained conversation in the team about this.
>
> And let's look at the tragedy in Paris, which we have treated lightly while the rest of the world has focused. Some of this is that I don't (unlike my predecessors) always aspire to be the center of attention. But some of this may be due to lack of strategy and a weak team structure. Need time with you on this soon pls.
>
>
>
> Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: Graham, Matthew
To: Liz Hegarty
Subject: Scheduling call today with Commissioner Abeywardena?
Date: Monday, January 12, 2015 10:51:00 AM
Attachments: Abeywardena MBdB Meeting Memo Final.docx

Hi, Liz.

I hope you had a good weekend! Sorry for the delayed reply.

Penny is hoping to have a quick conversation with John about this attached memo. She's hoping to speak with him today or tomorrow morning. Sorry the timeline got moved up just this morning.

I know it's short notice, but would you let me know if there are any times that work well for John?

I appreciate your help with this.

Thanks again!

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Friday, January 09, 2015 12:22 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Great, thanks for the flexibility. His day is wide open on Thursday. Is there a time that works well for Penny?

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Friday, January 9, 2015 at 11:19 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Not a problem at all. Next week is great, especially Wednesday and Thursday. Friday morning works, too.

Let me know what's best for John.

Thanks again!

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, January 08, 2015 10:09 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

I'm so sorry but John's day tomorrow has gotten hectic with meetings at City Hall. Can we find a time next week for him to meet with Penny? Apologies for the last minute change of plans.

Thanks,

Liz

From: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 5:53 PM
To: "Graham, Matthew" <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Perfect, confirmed for 10:30 on Friday. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 5:52 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

OK, great. Would he mind visiting here at 10:30?
Thanks!

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 6:46 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Any time before noon on Friday works for John. Thanks for understanding!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 5:44 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.
I understand how the shifting schedule goes. Not a problem at all.
Unfortunately, 3PM on Thursday won't work. Penny has meetings from 3PM on.
Friday doesn't happen to work for John, does it?
If it doesn't, please let me know a few times next week that might.
Thanks again,
Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 6:32 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

Apologies but John's schedule has shifted for Thursday. Any chance we could do this meeting at 3 PM instead?

Thanks,

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 10:08 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Perfect!
Thanks again.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 11:03 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Great, confirmed for 11:30 on the 8th at your office. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 9:35 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Great!
If John's schedule is flexible, 11:30 would be the best time for Penny. That would avoid any rushing from her previous meeting.
Thanks again!

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 10:31 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Sure, no problem. Can we do 11 AM on the 8th? John's day is fairly flexible so feel free to let me know if doing this later in the afternoon makes things easier on your end. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 9:27 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Happy New Year to you, too!

I hope you had a great vacation. Thanks for your response. Would it be possible for John to visit on the 8th? Penny is available from 11AM-4PM. If that doesn't work, the 9th is pretty open, as well.

Thanks again!

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]

Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 10:24 AM

To: Graham, Matthew

Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

Happy New Year! Apologies for my delayed response, I have been out of the office over the holidays.

Can we try for 11 or 3 PM on the 7th? Happy to look into options for the 8th if helpful.

Thanks!

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Tuesday, December 30, 2014 at 1:41 PM

To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Just checking in to see what the best time is for John to visit our office on the 7th or 8th? Both days are fairly open for Penny.

Thanks!

Matt

From: Graham, Matthew

Sent: Thursday, December 18, 2014 12:59 PM

To: 'Liz Hegarty'

Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Thanks, Liz!

Yes, both days are fairly open for Penny. We would be very happy for John to visit us! Our offices are on E. 44th St. between 1st and 2nd Ave., on the 27th floor of 2 UN Plaza.

Just let me know when is best for John, and I will put it on Penny's schedule and notify the security desk.

We're looking forward to meeting him.
Thanks again,
Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, December 18, 2014 11:55 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

No problem. Happy to have John come by your office. Any chance there's a time on the 7th or 8th that works for Penny?

Thanks,

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Thursday, December 18, 2014 at 10:20 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

I just spoke with Penny, and she is hoping to meet John in person after the New Year, if possible. I apologize for the inconvenience, but could we reschedule?

If so, would you let me know a few times that work well for John? Penny is happy to meet him at AKPD's New York office, our office on 44th, or another location of John's choosing.

Thanks again,
Matt

From: Graham, Matthew
Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 6:37 PM
To: 'Liz Hegarty'
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Thanks, Liz!
Penny will call tomorrow.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 3:06 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Yes, tomorrow at 3:30 is great. John can be reached on his cell: [REDACTED] Feel free to let me know if it would be easier if he dials Penny directly. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 at 2:02 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Thanks for getting back to me and for offering those times. Might John be available tomorrow at 3:30?

Best,
Matt

Matt Graham | Special Assistant to the Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: (212) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 3:00 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

Hope all is well. John's schedule is fairly flexible over the next few days. Is there a time that works well for Penny on either Thursday or Friday afternoon?

Many thanks,

Liz

—

Liz Hegarty

AKPD Message and Media
Office: 312-664-7500
Cell: 203-482-6229
lhgart@akpdmedia.com

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 at 1:57 PM
To: "Graham, Matthew" <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hey Matt - sure, that'd be great - adding Liz for my sked

On Dec 17, 2014, at 10:46 AM, Graham, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Hello, Mr. Del Cecato.

I am writing with the hope that we might schedule a call between you and Penny Abeywardena, Commissioner of the Mayor's Office for International Affairs. She is responsible for conveying the Mayor's message to a global audience and would appreciate your expertise. Would you please let me know when there is a good time to speak?

Best regards,

Matt

Matt Graham | Special Assistant to the Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: (212) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

TO: Mayor Bill de Blasio
FROM: Commissioner Penny Abeywardena, Mayor's Office for International Affairs
RE: International Affairs Update and Strategy

Agenda

- Update YOU on current actions of international affairs office
- Ensure this is consistent with YOUR vision
- Align priorities

Updated Mission

The Mayor's Office for International Affairs is the platform from which the City promotes its goals for greater equality and opportunity, showcases the diversity of New Yorkers, and shares policies and best practices globally.

The office serves as the primary liaison between the City of New York and the diplomatic community, foreign governments, the United Nations, and the U.S. Department of State. As an integral part of the Mayor's Office, the international affairs team works to foster positive relations and to create opportunities for collaboration between the international community and New York City's agencies and local communities.

Changes in Effect (as of 10.1.14)

For the first time, the Mayor's Office for International Affairs is executing the following programs:

- Using diplomatic corps to promote City initiatives
 - Case study: IDNYC launch in partnership with consulates and UN
- Connecting diplomatic corps to local communities
 - Launch of "Connecting Local to Global" series

- Ex. Connected 55 consulates to partner with the Office to Combat Domestic Violence and the Mayor’s Office of Immigrant Affairs
 - Event co-hosted with MOIA, OCDV and New York Women’s Foundation
 - World Cities Summit Mayors Forum
 - Program to reflect PlaNYC 2015
 - Borough tours to accentuate communities (arts, culture) and opportunities for business
- Recruitment and retention of international SMEs
 - First town hall discussion with foreign trade commissioners and chambers of commerce
 - Emphasized NYC’s digital economy as well as our resiliency and sustainability initiatives that promote investment in clean/green tech
 - Developing first working partnership with EDC and other city agencies
 - Identifying opportunities to promote international SMEs in all boroughs
 - Launch of neighborhood tours for international trade representatives to highlight opportunities in a range of sectors (culinary to bioscience)
- Rethinking courtesy visits: a focus on substance and promoting NYC’s equity agenda
 - Duke & Duchess visit spotlighted NYC’s strategies to address mental health issues and promote international business (tech innovation, specifically)
- Engagement of UN for purposes of moving forward NYC’s economic agenda as well as cultural and policy exchange
 - Supporting the completion of the UN Capital Plan and ensuring that DC 5 is approved to move to next phase
 - During UN’s 70th anniversary in 2015, the IA team will launch a parallel campaign, “New Yorkness of the UN”
 - IDNYC registration site on UN campus
 - Economic Impact Analysis of UN and its affiliates
- Agency staffing
 - Restructure of agency, redefining all roles and responsibilities to move away from existing operational, constituent services focus to emphasizing program elements that proactively engage diplomatic community
 - Filling vacancies, specifically in senior leadership (General Counsel & Deputy Commissioner)
- Global Partners- shifting organization from sporadic meetings of sister cities to actively building partnerships with likeminded, progressive cities around the world

- Recruiting new board
- Fundraising goal of $1million within two years
- Seeking dynamic executive director

- Other priorities
 - Listening tour with key constituents: UN, State Department, Consulates, NYC agencies and community organizations
 - Building relationships with NYC agencies, UN and State Department to ensure a collaborative partnership to address diplomatic incidents and security issues
 - Identifying local community cooperatives to create new NYC gifts for delegation visits
 - Creating a Welcome Committee to introduce new diplomats to NYC services and connect them to communities throughout the boroughs

Looking Ahead

All of the above activities reinforce the mission to establish this agency as New York City's global platform to promote YOUR equity agenda and to share policies and best practices with the international community. The priorities for 2015 are:

- Working with First Lady Chirlane McCray and her team to use the international community strategically to advance her priority areas
- Creating a proactive and collaborative office that educates, assists and engages the international community with New York City agencies and communities
- Identifying and establishing partnerships with City agencies and communities
- Utilizing YOUR international travel to build deeper relationships with progressive leaders and to promote the administration's equity agenda

From: Graham, Matthew
To: Liz Hegarty
Subject: RE: Scheduling call today with Commissioner Abeywardena?
Date: Monday, January 12, 2015 11:15:00 AM

Great, Liz!
Penny will call John tomorrow morning on his cell.
I appreciate you getting this scheduled on such short notice.
I look forward to scheduling with you in the future!
Best,
Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2015 11:13 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Scheduling call today with Commissioner Abeywardena?

John can be reached on his cell: [REDACTED]

Feel free to ping me if Penny has any trouble getting through to him. Also, happy to circle back at a later time if it would be helpful for them to meet in person in the next few weeks. Thanks again for coordinating!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 12, 2015 at 10:02 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Scheduling call today with Commissioner Abeywardena?

Yes! That would work well.
What number is best for Penny to call?
Thanks again.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2015 10:58 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Scheduling call today with Commissioner Abeywardena?

Hi Matt,

No problem. Unfortunately John is tied up with meetings at City Hall all day today. Could we try for tomorrow morning at 10 ET?

Thanks,

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 12, 2015 at 9:51 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Scheduling call today with Commissioner Abeywardena?

Hi, Liz.

I hope you had a good weekend! Sorry for the delayed reply.

Penny is hoping to have a quick conversation with John about this attached memo. She's hoping to speak with him today or tomorrow morning. Sorry the timeline got moved up just this morning.

I know it's short notice, but would you let me know if there are any times that work well for John?

I appreciate your help with this.

Thanks again!

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Friday, January 09, 2015 12:22 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Great, thanks for the flexibility. His day is wide open on Thursday. Is there a time that works well for Penny?

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Friday, January 9, 2015 at 11:19 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Not a problem at all. Next week is great, especially Wednesday and Thursday. Friday morning works, too.

Let me know what's best for John.

Thanks again!

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, January 08, 2015 10:09 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

I'm so sorry but John's day tomorrow has gotten hectic with meetings at City Hall. Can we find a time next week for him to meet with Penny? Apologies for the last minute change of plans.

Thanks,

Liz

From: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 5:53 PM
To: "Graham, Matthew" <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Perfect, confirmed for 10:30 on Friday. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 5:52 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

OK, great. Would he mind visiting here at 10:30?
Thanks!

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 6:46 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Any time before noon on Friday works for John. Thanks for understanding!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 5:44 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

I understand how the shifting schedule goes. Not a problem at all.
Unfortunately, 3PM on Thursday won't work. Penny has meetings from 3PM on.
Friday doesn't happen to work for John, does it?
If it doesn't, please let me know a few times next week that might.
Thanks again,
Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 6:32 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

Apologies but John's schedule has shifted for Thursday. Any chance we could do this meeting at 3 PM instead?

Thanks,

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 10:08 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Perfect!
Thanks again.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 11:03 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Great, confirmed for 11:30 on the 8th at your office. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 9:35 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Great!
If John's schedule is flexible, 11:30 would be the best time for Penny. That would avoid any rushing from her previous meeting.
Thanks again!

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 10:31 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Sure, no problem. Can we do 11 AM on the 8th? John's day is fairly flexible so feel free to let me know if doing this later in the afternoon makes things easier on your end. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 5, 2015 at 9:27 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Happy New Year to you, too!

I hope you had a great vacation. Thanks for your response. Would it be possible for John to visit on the 8th? Penny is available from 11AM-4PM. If that doesn't work, the 9th is pretty open, as well.

Thanks again!

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]

Sent: Monday, January 05, 2015 10:24 AM

To: Graham, Matthew

Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

Happy New Year! Apologies for my delayed response, I have been out of the office over the holidays.

Can we try for 11 or 3 PM on the 7th? Happy to look into options for the 8th if helpful.

Thanks!

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Tuesday, December 30, 2014 at 1:41 PM

To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Just checking in to see what the best time is for John to visit our office on the 7th or 8th? Both days are fairly open for Penny.

Thanks!

Matt

From: Graham, Matthew

Sent: Thursday, December 18, 2014 12:59 PM

To: 'Liz Hegarty'

Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Thanks, Liz!

Yes, both days are fairly open for Penny. We would be very happy for John to visit us! Our offices are on E. 44th St. between 1st and 2nd Ave., on the 27th floor of 2 UN Plaza.

Just let me know when is best for John, and I will put it on Penny's schedule and notify the security desk.

We're looking forward to meeting him.
Thanks again,
Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, December 18, 2014 11:55 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

No problem. Happy to have John come by your office. Any chance there's a time on the 7th or 8th that works for Penny?

Thanks,

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Thursday, December 18, 2014 at 10:20 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

I just spoke with Penny, and she is hoping to meet John in person after the New Year, if possible. I apologize for the inconvenience, but could we reschedule?

If so, would you let me know a few times that work well for John? Penny is happy to meet him at AKPD's New York office, our office on 44th, or another location of John's choosing.

Thanks again,
Matt

From: Graham, Matthew
Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 6:37 PM
To: 'Liz Hegarty'
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Thanks, Liz!
Penny will call tomorrow.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 3:06 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Yes, tomorrow at 3:30 is great. John can be reached on his cell: [REDACTED] Feel free to let me know if it would be easier if he dials Penny directly. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 at 2:02 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi, Liz.

Thanks for getting back to me and for offering those times. Might John be available tomorrow at 3:30?

Best,
Matt

Matt Graham | Special Assistant to the Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: (212) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 3:00 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hi Matt,

Hope all is well. John's schedule is fairly flexible over the next few days. Is there a time that works well for Penny on either Thursday or Friday afternoon?

Many thanks,

Liz

—

Liz Hegarty

AKPD Message and Media
Office: 312-664-7500
Cell: 203-482-6229
lhgart@akpdmedia.com

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 at 1:57 PM
To: "Graham, Matthew" <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Re: Speaking with International Affairs Commissioner Abeywardena

Hey Matt - sure, that'd be great - adding Liz for my sked

On Dec 17, 2014, at 10:46 AM, Graham, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Hello, Mr. Del Cecato.

I am writing with the hope that we might schedule a call between you and Penny Abeywardena, Commissioner of the Mayor's Office for International Affairs. She is responsible for conveying the Mayor's message to a global audience and would appreciate your expertise. Would you please let me know when there is a good time to speak?

Best regards,

Matt

Matt Graham | Special Assistant to the Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: (212) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: B
To: Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: FLONYC; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Fw: Charlie Hebdo
Date: Monday, January 12, 2015 12:45:03 PM

Brothers and sisters, this is a pretty damn solid analysis below -- from a longstanding family friend and former US Ambassador to NATO. We really should have considered this imho, and we need to think more expansively and creatively in the future. Discuss at next police discussion and next planning mtg pls

-----Original Message-----

From: Robert Hunter
To: Bill de Blasio
To: Robert Hunter
Cc: Lindsay Scola
Cc: Elana Leopold
Cc: Penny Abeywardena
Subject: RE: Charlie Hebdo
Sent: Jan 11, 2015 9:11 PM

Fair enough.

It struck me, from the political point of view, related in fact to the current difficulties you face in NYC, that your going to Paris (with the Police Commissioner and some appropriate others, including some NYC police and firefighters and other "first responders," including some involved in 9/11 rescues) -- would:

- 1) Remind New Yorkers of a time when all pulled together;
- 2) Remind them of a time when the "first responders" served the City so well and let us not forget what they do for the City and its people every day;
- 3) Dramatize a linkage represented by your person as Mayor of NYC between the "ground zeros" in the two countries -- in fact, as NYC Mayor, your going to Paris, even now, would provide more symbolism of American sympathy -- remember "nous sommes tous Americans" -- than even if Obama went to Paris (on returning, you could speak at the NYC "ground zero" about what you saw and the people whom you met, including the French "first responders");
- 4) Tie you into the "caring" and "leadership" and opposing a "common enemy" -- i.e., showing your "9/11" connection to others' similar suffering (though of a much lesser magnitude); and
- 5) Create a "larger perspective" within which the police (etc.) issues in NYC could be viewed: a step toward bringing all back together again (on both key sides of the police/minorities "divide")

Needless to say, it would also tie in with your pledges to look after Israel's interests. Note the drama this evening of Hollande and Netanyahu at the Grand Synagogue in Paris -- covered extensively on CNN. Best,
Robert

From: Bill de Blasio [<mailto:>
Sent: Sunday, January 11, 2015 6:45 PM
To: Robert Hunter
Cc: Lindsay Scola; Elana Leopold; Penny Abeywardena
Subject: Re: Charlie Hebdo

I'm looping in Penny, who I want to make sure you stay in touch with Robert. I'm not there and can't go right now because of the challenges we face in NYC at the moment, but I do take your point. Much appreciated Sent via BlackBerry by

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael
Cc: "ifdc@akpdmedia.com" (ifdc@akpdmedia.com); Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Chao, Raymond; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Griffith, Chantell
Subject: Re: MBDB: Internal Meeting on Police Strategy
Date: Monday, January 12, 2015 2:13:39 PM

Please gather/dial in

Dial-in Number: [REDACTED] Meeting ID: [REDACTED]

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 12, 2015, at 1:21 PM, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

<meeting.ics>

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter
Subject: Prep for New York Times Ed Meeting
Date: Monday, January 12, 2015 2:28:16 PM

We are delayed

From: Wiley, Maya
To: "John Del Cecato"
Subject: RE: <no subject>
Date: Monday, January 12, 2015 3:56:06 PM

Great.

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2015 3:50 PM
To: Wiley, Maya
Subject: Re: <no subject>

Yes - if the team decides it's worthwhile (they're still debating) - we will definitely run by a couple of cops first

On Jan 12, 2015, at 3:02 PM, Wiley, Maya <MWiley@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Did you have a couple of cops watch this for reactions? Having done my dime store anthropological profiles of the City Hall detail, I can tell you that some sweet people are pretty nuts and it might be good to see if there are any points that we think are great and they react to differently. Just a thought.

But I already flagged for Emma that this could work. She was worried about him talking policing and I think he can't shrink from it nationally. He's the only leader nationally who has emerged as someone who managed Garner well and the I think the PBA overreached.

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2015 2:59 PM
To: Wiley, Maya
Subject: Re: <no subject>

Yes! Agreed. He was totally on point

On Jan 12, 2015, at 2:54 PM, Wiley, Maya <MWiley@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

This is it! This is a speech for the US Conference of Mayors!

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2015 2:00 PM
To: Wiley, Maya
Subject: <no subject>

Please don't forward
<https://vimeo.com/116568990>

password: [REDACTED]

From: John Del Cecato
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: <no subject>
Date: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 12:05:15 PM

My pleasure - thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 at 11:40 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: <no subject>

Hello, John.

Penny said the call went very well, too. Thanks again for working with us. Her email is:

pabeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov

Thanks!

Matt

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 10:35 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: <no subject>

Hey Matt. I had a great call with Penny. Wanted to follow up on the memo - just a couple of quick things. What's the best email address for her?

From: Abeywardena, Penny
To: "John Del Cecato"
Subject: RE: <no subject>
Date: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 12:30:16 PM

John,

It was great to speak with you this morning and thank you for checking out the memo. He should keep it in, what a fantastic quote... perhaps I'll use it on my agency's website!

Looking forward to lunch soon.

Cheers,
Penny

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 12:17 PM
To: Abeywardena, Penny
Subject: <no subject>

Hey Penny. Good to talk to you.

The memo looks great to me.

1. I think you'll get a welcome audience for the efforts to raise awareness/reduce stigma of mental illness/domestic violence by partnering consulates with City Agencies & NEW YORKERS who make up our diverse city.
2. Love the emphasis on the outer boroughs. I really want the country, and the world, to understand just how much our outer boroughs have changed & look as global in their ethnic composition as Manhattan (maybe more so).
3. Here's the quote from Ric Burns, FWIW... I think the boss is going to nix it as the opening of the SOTC - but I still love it (and the series - it's called New York: A Documentary).

... for almost 400 years, New York has been the cauldron of capitalism and democracy in America, and the supreme laboratory of modern life, where the most crucial American experiment of modern times continues to unfold —the exhilarating, often harrowing experiment to see if all the peoples of the world can live together in a single place.

From: Carey, Michael
To: Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\); Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; Leopold, Elana; Wolfe, Emma; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Coney, Javon
Subject: RE: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Meeting
Date: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 5:07:49 PM

All:

This meeting is on hold. Mayor is still a bit out from City Hall.

Michael Paul Carey

Director of Scheduling and Advance

City Hall

-----Original Appointment-----

From:

Sent: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 3:24 AM

To: Carey, Michael; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; Leopold, Elana; Wolfe, Emma; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Coney, Javon

Subject: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Meeting

When: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 5:00 PM-5:30 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).

Where: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

From: Carey, Michael
To: B
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "laufer@kantordavidoff.com"
Subject: RE: Need conf call
Date: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 6:18:42 PM

Will make it happen.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall

-----Original Message-----

From: B
Sent: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 5:51 PM
To: Carey, Michael
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; 'laufer@kantordavidoff.com'
Subject: Need conf call

With john del cecato and larry laufer tmrw. Both cc'ed here. Thanks

From: Gabriel Schnake Mahl
To: Liz Hegarty
Cc: Bruch, Mary
Subject: Re: Sotc planning and housing
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 1:03:36 PM

Thanks

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 14, 2015, at 1:02 PM, Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Thanks, Gabriel. John should be dialing in shortly and Jon Fromowitz from our office will be on the call for the entire time.

From: Gabriel Schnake Mahl <[REDACTED]>
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 at 12:00 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Mary Bruch <MBruch@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Sotc planning and housing

Looping Mary who is wrangling folks for this meeting/call

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 13, 2015, at 6:59 PM, Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Sorry, we just had another scheduling request from the mayor come in for 1:30. John May have to jump off this call a little early.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 13, 2015, at 5:57 PM, "Gabriel Schnake-Mahl" <[REDACTED]> wrote:

Lets do 1pm call. will circulate

On Tue, Jan 13, 2015 at 6:12 PM, Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <[REDACTED]> wrote:

ok lemme see what else works
thanks

On Tue, Jan 13, 2015 at 6:03 PM, Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Sorry, he's tied up tomorrow morning. We can do just about any time after noon.

From: Gabriel Schnake-Mahl
<[REDACTED]>
Date: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 at 4:56 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Fwd: Sotc planning and housing

can john do call tomorrow around 1030am?

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Emma Wolfe <[REDACTED]>
Date: Tue, Jan 13, 2015 at 11:37 AM
Subject: Re: Sotc planning and housing
To: James <[REDACTED]>
Cc: "[REDACTED]" <[REDACTED]> Del
Cecato John <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>,
"jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
<jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>,
"[REDACTED]"
<[REDACTED]> "Andrea Hagelgans"
<[REDACTED]>
Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <[REDACTED]>

Can you circulate a list of the big ticket 2015 goals related to housing and development
And let's do a call today or tomorrow as well

> On Jan 12, 2015, at 6:01 PM, James <[REDACTED]> wrote:

>
> What's the next step here?

>
>

>> On Jan 10, 2015, at 10:59 AM, [REDACTED]
wrote:

>>
>> James added.

>>
>>> On Jan 10, 2015, at 10:29 AM, Emma Wolfe
<[REDACTED]> wrote:

>>>

>>> Looping everybody. Alicia if you want to add James I just don't have his personal email.

>>>

>>>

--

Gabriel Schnake-Mahl

Cell: [REDACTED]

--

Gabriel Schnake-Mahl

Cell: [REDACTED]

--

Gabriel Schnake-Mahl

Cell: [REDACTED]

From: Liz Hegarty
To: Bruch, Mary; [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: Sotc planning and housing
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 1:11:20 PM

Thanks!

From: <Bruch>, Mary <MBruch@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 at 12:03 PM
To: "[REDACTED]" <[REDACTED]> Liz Hegarty
<lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Sotc planning and housing

Emma is heading in to Staten Island room now, give her 2min

----- Original message-----

From: Gabriel Schnake Mahl
Date: Wed, Jan 14, 2015 1:00 PM
To: Liz Hegarty;
Cc: Bruch, Mary;
Subject: Re: Sotc planning and housing

Looping Mary who is wrangling folks for this meeting/call

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 13, 2015, at 6:59 PM, Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Sorry, we just had another scheduling request from the mayor come in for 1:30. John May have to jump off this call a little early.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 13, 2015, at 5:57 PM, "Gabriel Schnake-Mahl" <[REDACTED]> wrote:

Lets do 1pm call. will circulate

On Tue, Jan 13, 2015 at 6:12 PM, Gabriel Schnake-Mahl

<[REDACTED]> wrote:

ok lemme see what else works
thanks

On Tue, Jan 13, 2015 at 6:03 PM, Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
wrote:

Sorry, he's tied up tomorrow morning. We can do just about any time after noon.

From: Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <[REDACTED]>
Date: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 at 4:56 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Fwd: Sotc planning and housing

can john do call tomorrow around 1030am?

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Emma Wolfe <[REDACTED]>
Date: Tue, Jan 13, 2015 at 11:37 AM
Subject: Re: Sotc planning and housing
To: James <[REDACTED]>
Cc: "[REDACTED] Del Cecato John <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "[REDACTED] <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>," [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]> "Andrea Hagelgans <[REDACTED]> Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <[REDACTED]>

Can you circulate a list of the big ticket 2015 goals related to housing and development
And let's do a call today or tomorrow as well

> On Jan 12, 2015, at 6:01 PM, James <[REDACTED]>
wrote:

>
> What's the next step here?

>
>
>> On Jan 10, 2015, at 10:59 AM, [REDACTED] wrote:

>>
>> James added.

>>
>>> On Jan 10, 2015, at 10:29 AM, Emma Wolfe <[REDACTED]> wrote:

>>>
>>> Looping everybody. Alicia if you want to add James I just don't have his personal email.
>>>

>>>

--

Gabriel Schnake-Mahl

Cell: [REDACTED]

--

Gabriel Schnake-Mahl

Cell: [REDACTED]

--

Gabriel Schnake-Mahl

Cell: [REDACTED]

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); "Laurence Laufer"; Coney, Javon; Chao, Raymond
Subject: RE: MBDB: Call with JDC and Laufer
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 1:15:52 PM

We are delayed. JC will let you know when to dial in.

-----Original Appointment-----

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 6:26 PM
To: Carey, Michael; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); 'Laurence Laufer'; Leopold, Elana; Coney, Javon; Chao, Raymond
Subject: MBDB: Call with JDC and Laufer
When: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 1:30 PM-2:00 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).
Where: Dial-in Number: [REDACTED] Meeting ID: [REDACTED]

From: John Del Cecato
To: Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; Coney, Javon; laufer@kantordavidoff.com
Subject: Re: MBDB: Call with JDC and Laufer
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 1:19:24 PM

Okie dokie

From: <Carey>, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 at 1:18 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Leopold, Elana" <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Coney, Javon" <JConey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "laufer@kantordavidoff.com" <laufer@kantordavidoff.com>
Subject: MBDB: Call with JDC and Laufer

All: he is not back at CH and wont want to do this in the car. Keep you posted.

MBDB: Call with JDC and Laufer

Scheduled: Wednesday, 14 Jan 2015 from 1:30 pm to 2:00 pm

Location: Dial-in Number: [REDACTED] Meeting ID: [REDACTED]

Invitees: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com), Chao, Raymond , Leopold, Elana , Coney, Javon , 'Laurence Laufer'

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "laufer@kantordavidoff.com"; Coney, Javon; Chao, Raymond
Subject: MBDB: Call with JDC and Laufer
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 2:06:51 PM

Back at ch- this will happen shortly

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "laufer@kantordavidoff.com"; Coney, Javon; Chao, Raymond
Subject: Re: MBDB: Call with JDC and Laufer
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 2:29:52 PM

Mayor is on

----- Original Message -----

From: Leopold, Elana
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 02:28 PM
To: Carey, Michael; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; 'laufer@kantordavidoff.com' <laufer@kantordavidoff.com>; Coney, Javon; Chao, Raymond
Subject: MBDB: Call with JDC and Laufer

Please dial in now

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
To: Wolfe, Emma; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Center for Youth Employment Support
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 3:22:46 PM
Attachments: Youth Workforce - Dec Memo 8.docx

I propose to announce the Mayor's Fund led initiative "The Center for Youth Employment Support" in the SOTC. The center will be a public private partnership to focus on getting our kids ready for college and jobs. I have met with all the DM's and will be presenting this to the Mayor on Friday. This will be the main thrust of the work of the Mayor's Fund in 2015. Please see attached memo in draft form.

"We seek to announce the Center for Youth Employment Support in the State of the City address and outline the early work and first goals of the Center: providing universal access to a summer job to all Foster and Shelter youth; create a robust year-round program for 10,000 high schoolers that includes soft-skills training, summer jobs and mentorship; enhance training of 1000 current DOE staff in college and career guidance; offer free application to CUNY for all New York City public school students; link every CTE school to a business/Industry partner with the goal of enhancing and updating the curriculum to fulfill employers needs and offering each CTE student a relevant internship or apprenticeship in their chosen field"

I'll reach out to you both to follow-up.
THX G

Gabrielle Fialkoff
Senior Advisor to the Mayor
Director of the Office of Strategic Partnerships
212-341-5084
gfialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov

DECISION MEMO

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

January 5, 2015

FROM: Gabrielle Fialkoff, Senior Advisor to the Mayor, Director of the Office of Strategic Partnerships

SUBJECT: Center for Youth Employment Support

Purpose and Background

As noted in the City's recent Career Pathways report, "Internships, career exposure, and work experience are vitally important for all types of jobseekers." Research confirms that early work experience and exposure offers enormous value for youth and young adults from low-income families.

Programs supported by a variety of City Agencies are loosely connected; and privately funded programs focused on internship, mentorship, and skills training are usually disconnected from public efforts and from each other. New York City's patchwork of college and career readiness programs has functioned with limited coordination between employers, city agencies, community based organizations and the philanthropic community.

Additionally, there have been limited opportunities for employer-led inputs; and even fewer measures of accountability, as initiatives are spread across a variety of agencies.

The supply falls far short of the demand for programs that the City and private funders support to connect low-income youth to employment and skills programs. Nor is the quality of existing programs at the level it should be to truly support our young people.

To address these challenges, the Mayor's Fund proposes to fund and launch, in collaboration with the Mayor's Office of Workforce Development, many City Agency partners, the Fund for Public Schools and several private sector partners – the Center for Youth Employment Support.

The Center will be a public-private partnership with several proposed "sponsoring partners" including The Partnership for NYC, the 5 Borough Alliance of the Chamber of Commerce, the Central Labor Council and the ABNY.

The office will sit within the Mayor's Office of Workforce Development, and the Center's team will actively work to link businesses, district schools, community providers, advocates, funders, and City agencies to better guide youth workforce planning, programs and outcomes.

Time Frame

We would like to begin fundraising and formalizing partnerships with the goal of having the Center announced in January 2015 as part of the Mayor's State of the City address. This timetable is admittedly aggressive, but we believe achievable with support from City Hall and Administration leadership.

Proposed Program

The Mayor's Fund in partnership with the MOWD, DYCD, the DOE, EDC, SBS, DHS, and ACS proposes to launch the Center for Youth Employment Support at the start of New Year. This public-private effort will aim to support college and career readiness – and will be responsible and accountable for changing the trajectory for New York's young-adults.

The Center's mission will be to:

- Build and maximize new and existing partnerships with employers
- Facilitate inter-agency coordination focused on college and career readiness
- Identify key gaps in existing programs and services
- recommend the direction of public and private funding
- Convene thought leaders, funders, employers and City leaders to enhance efforts in this space.

The Center's Goals will be to:

- Coordinate and help to scale our city's public and private programs to provide every city youth and young-adult with access to engaging career exposure, age appropriate summer jobs, quality skills building programs, supportive mentors, and thoughtful guidance towards college and a career.

Early Areas of Focus:

Early work of the Center will follow-up on recommendations stemming from MOWD's Career Pathways report and the Mayor's Fund Youth Workforce Working Group, to:

1. Provide access to paid summer employment and comprehensive job training and support for every young-adult in foster care and the shelter system beginning in summer 2015.

- Give access to a summer job to all Foster and Homeless Youth – 11,000 over 3 years.
- Summer 2015 will double the number to 2000 of paid summer jobs dedicated to NYC vulnerable youth in SYEP, with the goal of providing universal access to a paid summer job to every vulnerable youth within the next three years.
- Additionally, the Center will work with ACS and New Yorkers for Children to expand several programs currently providing young-adults aging out of foster care with intensive training and job support services.

2. Enhance and build upon the City's summer jobs and in-school mentoring programs to offer a robust year-round skills building, summer employment and mentorship program.

- The year-round program would aim to serve 10,000 youth over 3 years.
- The program would also increase the current number of private sector employers in the summer jobs program.
- This model builds upon the successful SYEP Ladders for Leaders program and the DYCD/DOE In-School mentoring program. Ladders for Leaders provide skills training and competitive placement for a summer job with a private sector employer. DYCD/DOE programs provide after-school activities and access to mentors.

3. Expand access to college and career guidance.

- The number of DOE supported guidance counselors continues to lag behind needs; and guidance counselors have had limited access to professional development. This initiative aims to provide enhanced training to 1,000 guidance counselors, teachers and other educators working with high school students on college and career readiness efforts, over the next three years.
- For the first time, there will be no application fee to CUNY for NYC public school students. CUNY is being asked to waive this fee- and if they are unable to, the Mayor's Fund will cover the costs.

4. Expand supports to the city's Career and Technical Education (CTE) schools ensuring that schools are connected to industry and graduates are connected to jobs: (This will be led by The Partnership in coordination with the DOE and is already underway)

- The Center will work with DoE to ensure that every CTE school has at least one meaningful business or industry partner.
- Industry partners will ensure that the curriculum is up-to-date and relevant and that every student is provided with an internship and a path to a job.
- Existing and new partnerships with organizations including the Partnership for NYC will continue drive this effort in coordination with the Center, the DOE and the Fund for Public Schools.

Analysis and Policy Considerations

- Does the City really need a new office to accomplish this?
Virtually everyone consulted on this process (agency reps, funders, non-profit providers, businesses) identified the need for some coordinating entity to oversee the various public and private efforts in this field, as well as the value of an office and a Director, being squarely responsible and accountable for progress in this area.

- How many people will staff the Center?
Likely 2 – 3 but that can grow or shrink with needs.
- Why should the Center be situated within government?
Despite intense interest in college/career readiness from philanthropy and the private sector, realigning public programs and budgets requires a mandate from within City government. Additionally, the public sector is uniquely positioned to convene all the relevant stakeholders behind a coordinated mayoral mandate.
- Why does this effort need private funds at all?
Diverted city tax levy funds could support a small operation, however private funds enable a faster build and launch for the Center; and having private investment in the Center helps provide some level of balance and control as well as demonstrating a meaningful partnership to all involved. Additionally, it is anticipated that after a 3 – 5 year pilot period the Center can be adopted into government if proven useful.
- Where will the Center of Youth Employment Support be situated and who will run the new Center?
The Center will be housed in the Mayor’s Office of Workforce Development, and a Director had not yet been identified though some early names have been suggested by potential partners and supporters.
- Who are the entities that would support this “public/private” initiative?
The Center will be a public/private project charged with overseeing and managing youth workforce efforts being pursued by city agencies, employers, community stakeholders, service providers and philanthropic leaders.

Stakeholder’s consideration:

External stakeholders/Validators:

- Kathy Wylde, NYC Partnership (YES)
- Sister Paulette LoMonaco - Good Shepherd Services (YES)
- Laurie Dien - Pinkerton Foundation (positive feedback)
- Louis Miceli - JobsFirstNYC (positive feedback)
- Bret Halverston - Workforce Funders (positive feedback)
- Pat Jenny – NYCT (scheduled)

Additional Stakeholders to Engage:

Elected Officials:

- NYC Public Advocate Leticia James
- NYC Council Speaker Melissa Mark Viverito
- Borough Presidents

- Chairs of the Council Committees on Workforce Development, Education, Small Business, General Welfare
- Labor:
- Central Labor Council*
 - 1199/SEIU
 - 32 BJ
 - New York Hotel Trades Council
 - United Federation of Teachers
 - *we have proposed inviting the CLC to be a formal partner of the Center (along with the NYC Partnership, the 5 Borough Alliance of the Chamber of Commerce). We are engaging IGA on an early outreach strategy.

Communications Plan

Announce in the State of the City. Comms plan, with or without, SOTC is being developed.

Recommendation

The creation of the Center for Youth Employment Support and its announcement in the State of the City address. Early work and first goals of the Center are: provide universal access to a summer job to all Foster and Shelter youth; create a robust year-round program for 10,000 high schoolers that includes soft-skills training, summer job and mentorship; enhance training of 1000 current DOE staff in college and career guidance; offer free application to CUNY for all New York City public school students; link every CTE school to a business partner with the goal of enhancing and updating the curriculum to fulfill employers needs and offering each CTE student a relevant internship or apprenticeship in their chosen field.

Agencies/Departments required for approval:

Please list all agencies and departments affected the decision and obtain department head signature.

ALL MEMOS MUST HAVE APPROVAL BY THE FOLLOWING OFFICES:

Name: _____ Office FDM Signature: _____

Name: _____ Office Chief of Staff Signature: _____

Name: _____ Office Communications Signature: _____

Name: _____ Office IGA Signature: _____

Name: _____ Office Counsel Signature: _____

Name: _____ Office Law Department Signature: _____

Privileged and Confidential

Name: _____ Office DM Glen _____ Signature: _____

Name: _____ Office DM Buery _____ Signature: _____

Name: _____ Office DM Barrios-Paoli _____ Signature: _____

DRAFT

From: Wolfe, Emma
To: Leopold, Elana; Carey, Michael; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Chao, Raymond
Subject: RE: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Meeting
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 6:14:07 PM

Yep will do and will cc folks on this thread

-----Original Message-----

From: Leopold, Elana
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 6:14 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Chao, Raymond
Subject: Re: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Meeting

Friends-

We are tied up again. The mayor would like to do a brief check in call tonight around 8:45. Emma- can you please send him the most up to date police memo beforehand?

----- Original Message -----

From: Leopold, Elana
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 05:22 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Chao, Raymond
Subject: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Meeting

We expect this meeting to take place around 6pm

From: Michael Carey
To: Williams, Dominic
Cc: Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Leopold, Elana; Ragone, Peter; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Meeting
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 9:19:05 PM

sending around hold one

On 14 Jan 2015, at 9:18 pm, Williams, Dominic <DWilliams@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

So call in now?

From: Michael Carey [<mailto:>
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 09:17 PM
To: Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Leopold, Elana; Ragone, Peter; jfdc@akpdmedia.com <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Meeting

scratch that he wants a call now

On 14 Jan 2015, at 9:14 pm, Wolfe, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Ok
Tomorrow we would be 11 days out from sotc and 12 from budget testimony so I hope we get it resolved

On Jan 14, 2015, at 9:13 PM, Michael Carey < wrote:

i reflagged your email
he said he saw and we can discuss tomorrow

On 14 Jan 2015, at 9:10 pm, Wolfe, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Did we tell him new state of the city

date?

On Jan 14, 2015, at 9:10 PM, Michael Carey

< [REDACTED] > wrote:

hi all

we are not doing a call tonight since we meet tomorrow.

have a super duper night.

MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Meeting

Scheduled: Wednesday, 14
Jan 2015 from 4:00 pm to
4:30 pm

Location: City Hall, The
Mayor's Office

Invitees: Shorris, Anthony ,
Chao, Raymond , Schnake-
Mahl, Gabriel , Williams,
Dominic , Leopold, Elana ,
Wolfe, Emma , Ragone,
Peter ,

"jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
'\(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)' ,
Walzak, Phil

From: Carey, Michael
To: Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Leopold, Elana; Williams, Dominic; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)"
Subject: RE: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Call
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 9:20:44 PM

All he promised me it would be short.

Will let you know when to dial in.

-----Original Appointment-----

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 10:41 AM
To: Carey, Michael; Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Leopold, Elana; Williams, Dominic; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)"
Subject: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Call
When: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 9:30 PM-10:00 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).
Where: Dial-in Number: [REDACTED] Meeting ID: [REDACTED]

From: Carey, Michael
To: Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Leopold, Elana; Williams, Dominic; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)"
Subject: RE: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Call
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 9:26:38 PM

All can you please dial in

-----Original Appointment-----

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 10:41 AM
To: Carey, Michael; Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Leopold, Elana; Williams, Dominic; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' (jfdc@akpdmedia.com)
Subject: MBDB: Internal Police Strategy Call
When: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 9:30 PM-10:00 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).
Where: Dial-in Number: [REDACTED] Meeting ID: [REDACTED]

From: Ragone, Peter
To: B; FLONYC; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: Re: NY Times: "President of New York City Police Union Faces Internal Opposition"
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 11:32:02 PM

Or allow others to deliver it. We could do that and set it up that way in stories...

From: B
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 11:29 PM
To: Ragone, Peter; FLONYC; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: NY Times: "President of New York City Police Union Faces Internal Opposition"

"We're at war with the mayor and what are we getting out of it?" This is the crux of my point from the call earlier -- we want those who attack to feel they can't get anything from it and those who cooperate to see results. That's why we need to slow down and ration things more

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 11:21 PM
To: B; FLONYC
Subject: Fw: NY Times: "President of New York City Police Union Faces Internal Opposition"

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 11:16 PM
To: Ragone, Peter
Subject: NY Times: "President of New York City Police Union Faces Internal Opposition"

President of New York City Police Union Faces Internal Opposition

By AL BAKER and J. DAVID GOODMAN

JAN. 14, 2015

The head of the union for New York City's police lieutenants laid out ideas for repairing a rift with Mayor Bill de Blasio. The leader of the sergeants union planned a trip to Texas to talk to black clergy members and offer suggestions for mending the police-civilian divide.

And Patrick J. Lynch, the fiery president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, found himself beating back an emerging insurgent campaign against his leadership, which erupted into a shouting match at a union luncheon in Queens on Tuesday.

For weeks, leaders of the city's five police unions have stood together, with Mr. Lynch as their public voice, after the killings of two patrol officers in Brooklyn last month. They maintained that show of unity even as officers across the city engaged in an unofficial work slowdown that drove arrests and summonses down and sent a message to the mayor and police management.

But as the gears of the department have cranked back to life, the union leaders, it seems, are no longer on the same page.

Still locked in a stalemate with the mayor, they are finding it more difficult to devise solutions than it was to articulate shared grievances over a perceived lack of support from City Hall.

Mr. de Blasio, for his part, has more vigorously aligned himself with the police, just as Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo, a fellow Democrat, is set to make criminal justice reform and officer safety central themes of his second term in Albany. Mr. Cuomo and his staff met with city police union leaders on Tuesday.

On Wednesday, Mr. de Blasio conceded that City Hall “can do a better job communicating and listening and deepening the understanding of what our officers need.” He also criticized the small number of protesters who in demonstrations last month over police practices had suggested harming officers, calling such comments “quite sick.”

His remarks on Wednesday came as Mr. Lynch, who most directly attacked the mayor after the killings of the officers, found himself lashing out at some within his own ranks during the union lunch, held at the catering hall Antun’s in the Queens Village neighborhood.

“A few agitators bent on their own selfish agendas were simply attempting to use legitimate complaints about City Hall to try to repair their own weakened and damaged credibility,” Mr. Lynch said of the incident, adding he would “not be distracted by sideshows.”

In the same statement, Mr. Lynch, for the first time, said the Police Department was reinstating “quota policies and retaliation against police officers who fail to meet them,” an accusation that appeared designed to distract attention from the strife among his members. William J. Bratton, the police commissioner, said on Monday that the department had no productivity quotas.

Mr. Lynch, 51, is seeking his fifth four-year term as head of the union that represents 23,000 rank-and-file officers.

He faced a similar scene in 2011, when a delegate from a Bronx precinct stood up at a meeting and read a statement criticizing what the delegate characterized as Mr. Lynch’s lack of support for officers indicted after a three-year inquiry by Bronx prosecutors into ticket fixing. The delegate suggested Mr. Lynch consider stepping aside.

Mr. Lynch ran unopposed in that election. So far, no challenger has come forward this time, either.

But a union official, who requested anonymity in order to discuss the challengers’ election plans before they were publicly announced, said a slate of candidates would be announced in the coming days. “We’re the insurgents, I guess, until the time comes when we’re ready to announce,” the official said. “We’re running. It’s happening. Lynch knows it.”

The shouting on Tuesday came after a delegate with more than 20 years on the force, from the 75th Precinct in Brooklyn, challenged Mr. Lynch toward the end of the two-hour gathering, Michael Hernandez, a trustee, said.

“Why are we at war with the mayor?” the delegate asked, as Mr. Hernandez recalled. “Are we getting anything out of it?”

At that point, a shouting match ensued between dozens of supporters and opponents of Mr. Lynch.

Union officials said those who spoke out included Mr. Hernandez and another trustee from the Bronx, Joseph Anthony. Both men are under indictment in the ticket-fixing scandal. Brian Fusco and John Giagrasso, union trustees from Brooklyn, were also involved in the disagreement.

None of the men would confirm if they were formally running against Mr. Lynch.

“These guys are no profiles in courage,” Al O’Leary, a spokesman for the union, said after Tuesday’s meeting of roughly 400 delegates.

Mr. Hernandez said Mr. Lynch had lost touch with street officers. “Patty Lynch is a scripted actor,” he said. “Cops are thirsty for change in leadership.”

As Mr. Lynch contended with discord in his own ranks, the head of the union for city police lieutenants, Louis Turco, sent a three-page letter to the mayor in which he focused on officer safety. He implored the mayor to use his bully pulpit to denounce resisting arrest, which he said was a central element in the deaths of Eric Garner on Staten Island and Michael Brown in Ferguson, Mo. — deaths he said could have been avoided if each had complied with the police.

In his letter, Mr. Turco also urged Mr. de Blasio to aggressively fight spurious legal claims against officers, and to lobby to fix what he called an inequity in disability pensions for a growing number of officers.

Edward D. Mullins, the head of the Sergeants Benevolent Association, has said he would offer his own solutions to the mayor. He said would travel to Dallas on Thursday to speak at a forum on criminal justice and racial reconciliation at the Potter’s House, a 30,000-member church led by Bishop T. D. Jakes.

Mr. Mullins said his goal was to speak about “the N.Y.P.D. as a model” for policing in the country.

Mr. de Blasio struck his most emphatic tones to date on Wednesday. He acknowledged the safety concerns that rank-and-file officers have been expressing, although he made clear he would not abandon the policing reforms he has promoted.

“They have a lot of valid issues that need to be addressed,” Mr. de Blasio said, “and this administration will systemically address these issues.”

Michael M. Grynbaum and Thomas Kaplan contributed reporting.

A version of this article appears in print on January 15, 2015, on page A23 of the New York edition with the headline: Trying to Heal Rifts, Police Now Face an Internal One . Order Reprints | Today's Paper | Subscribe

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Shorris, Anthony; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Griffith, Chantell; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: MBDB: State of the City Prep
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2015 9:26:41 AM

We are a couple min behind. Will let everyone know when they should gather.

-----Original Appointment-----

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2015 6:00 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Shorris, Anthony; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Griffith, Chantell; Leopold, Elana; Williams, Dominic
Subject: MBDB: State of the City Prep
When: Thursday, January 15, 2015 9:30 AM-11:00 AM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).
Where: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Shorris, Anthony; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Griffith, Chantell; Williams, Dominic; Emma Wolfe [REDACTED] Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Subject: RE: MBDB: State of the City Prep
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2015 10:01:06 AM

Please gather

-----Original Appointment-----

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2015 6:00 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Shorris, Anthony; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Griffith, Chantell; Leopold, Elana; Williams, Dominic
Subject: MBDB: State of the City Prep
When: Thursday, January 15, 2015 9:30 AM-11:00 AM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).
Where: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

From: John Del Cecato
To: Shorris, Anthony
Subject: <no subject>
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2015 10:14:13 AM

<https://www.bostonglobe.com/opinion/editorials/2015/01/13/don-back-down-bill-blasio/eBDKYtQClbY193GXoVGFoN/story.html>

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Griffith, Chantell; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Ragone, Peter; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Shorris, Anthony; Walzak, Phil; Williams, Dominic; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: MBDB: Daily Internal Police Strategy Meeting
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2015 12:31:40 PM

Starting now

----- Original Message -----

From: Leopold, Elana
Sent: Thursday, January 15, 2015 12:30 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Griffith, Chantell; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Ragone, Peter; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Shorris, Anthony; Walzak, Phil; Williams, Dominic; Wolfe, Emma Subject: MBDB: Daily Internal Police Strategy Meeting

Please gather- mayor ready to start now

From: Leopold, Elana
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Fw: LBA letter to BDB
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2015 1:10:52 PM
Attachments: Scanned from a Xerox multifunction device001.pdf

From: Adams, Marti
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 03:22 PM
To: Leopold, Elana
Subject: FW: LBA letter to BDB

Highlights from the letter:

Preceding and Following Grand Jury decision, the Mayor "initiated dialogue" with protestors and during this same period, neither the Mayor nor "any representative from [the] administration extended the courtesy of attempting to establish dialogue with me or any of the members of the New York City Police Department."

Proposes steps the Mayor and the Admin "may consider to remedy the estrangement, either real or perceived, that currently exists between the members of the New York City Police Department and City Hall." The recommendations fall into three buckets:

1. Aggressive prosecution of the NYS Penal Law charge of Resisting Arrest
 - "Vocal support" from the administration
 - "I would also suggest lobbying the City Council and the legislators in Albany to garner support for the creation of an enhanced charge of "Aggravated Resisting Arrest."
 - District Attorneys create a tracking system to monitor individuals routinely arrested for resisting arrest or assault in the 2nd degree against police and establish a dedicated unit to prosecute cases involving resisting arrest or assault in the 2nd degree against police
 - Police Department track those same incidents

2. An assurance from the New York City Corporation Council to vigorously defend baseless law suits filed against the City pertaining to allegations of police misconduct.
 - "An assurance from the New York City Corporation Council to aggressively defend baseless law suits filed against the City pertaining to allegations of police misconduct. Currently, and in the past, there exists a perception that the NYC Corporation Council would prefer to settle lawsuits involving members of the Department. "

3. A vested interest by New York City legislators in relation to Tier III Accidental-Disability pension reform.
 - Rectify the "inequality" related to Tier II and Tier II Accidental-Disability Police Pensions.

On the meeting with the five unions: "Many issues were discussed and a fair amount of selective listening took place. No significant results have derived from these talks."

-----Original Message-----

From: Adams, Marti

Sent: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 3:35 PM

To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Wolfe, Emma

Subject: LBA letter to BDB

A rep from LBA just dropped off a letter from Louis Turco to the Mayor. A scan of the letter is attached.

Their rep said that they will send this to reporters "later today." He didn't know when or where it's going, but wanted us to get a copy first.

I'm reviewing this now.

EST. 1899

Lieutenants Benevolent Association

233 Broadway, New York, NY 10279
 Suite 1801 Telephone: (212) 964-7500
 Fax: (212) 964-4240

POLICE DEPARTMENT

President
 LOUIS TURCO
 1st Pct T/F 212 964-7500
1st Vice President
 STEPHEN BIRBIGLIA
 PBQN Citi Field 212 964-7500
2nd Vice President
 LOUIS R. CARABETTA
 D.C. of Trng. 212 964-7500
Treasurer
 KEVIN LEDDY
 PBBX T/F 718 293-2221
Recording Secretary
 DENNIS GANNON
 O.E.M. 718 422-8413
Marshal
 JAMES WOODS
 PBBS 718 287-3730
Inside Sentinel
 KARL PFEFFER
 Intell Div. 646 276-1471
Outside Sentinel
 JOHN BEATTIE
 OCCB 646 610-8567
Executive Committee
 VICTOR SWINTON
 Fug. Enf. Div. 718 330-4920
 EVAN MINOGUE
 Intell Div. 718 765-4335
Directors:
Manhattan South
 DANIEL BROWN
 9th Pct 212 477-7804
Manhattan North
 THOMAS O'NEILL
 32 Pct 212 690-6341
Bronx
 MICHAEL ADLER
 45 Pct 718 822-5448
Brooklyn South
 JOHN DiMARCO
 PBBS 718 287-3255
Brooklyn North
 JOEL MELAMED
 PBBN 718 963-5382
Queens South
 JASON LIZIO
 PBQS A/L 718 276-4368
Queens North
 THOMAS LOEFFEL
 PBQN 718 520-1700
Staten Island
 JOHN PERUFFO 718 815-8608
 PBSI T/F
Housing Bureau
 LAWRENCE HAWKINS
 H.B. BX/QNS 718 292-6497
Transit Bureau
 BRENDAN KELLY
 T.B. MANH 212 258-2869
Retired Members Rep.
 MIKE LIBRETTO 212 964-7500
Attorneys
 KARASYK & MOSCHELLA
 212 233-3800
Disability Counsel
 NICK CIFUNI 212 766-5800
Labor Attorney
 HARRY GREENBERG
 516 570-4343
Insurance Consultant
 IRV MECHANIC 888 669-3800

Honorable William de Blasio
 Mayor, City of New York
 City Hall
 New York, NY 10007

January 12, 2015

Dear Mayor de Blasio:

Immediately preceding and following the Staten Island Grand Jury's decision not to indict Police Officer Daniel Pantaleo in regard with the Eric Garner case, you initiated dialogue with the organizers of the various protest groups as they prepared to disrupt the City with orchestrated acts of civil disobedience. However, during this same time period (even after two (2) Lieutenants were assaulted by "Peaceful Protesters") neither you, nor any representative from your administration extended the courtesy of attempting to establish dialogue with me or any of the members of the New York City Police Department; your employees. Mr. Mayor, this led to the perception of you and your administration aligning yourselves with the protesters.

Mr. Mayor, I would like to propose some steps you and your administration may consider to remedy the estrangement, either real or perceived, that currently exists between the members of the New York City Police Department and City Hall. Your investment into addressing these issues would be a deposit toward regaining the trust and support of the members of the New York City Police Department, increase public and police officer safety, bolster your position as the fiduciary guardian of the City, and rectify an existing pension inequality impacting on the members of the NYPD. The recommendations pertain to:

- Aggressive prosecution of the NYS Penal Law charge of Resisting Arrest.
- An assurance from the New York City Corporation Council to vigorously defend baseless law suits filed against the City pertaining to allegations of police misconduct.
- A vested interest by New York City legislators in relation to Tier III Accidental-Disability pension reform.

In regard with the aggressive prosecution of Resisting Arrest (NYS Penal Law, 205.30: A Misdemeanor); both the Eric Garner case and the case of Michael Brown in Ferguson Missouri essentially stemmed from persons resisting arrest. In an ideal situation, neither man would have resisted the lawful arrest by the police officers involved, avoiding the tragedy impacting on so many people. In its simplest form, policing sometimes involves the employment of negative reinforcement (i.e. verbal reprimand, a written citation, or arresting the person) to prevent or stop people from committing acts that are anti-social or negatively impacting on the orderly operation of society as a whole. Police officers are given the immense responsibility, by the citizens they serve, to correct or mitigate the illegal acts of others; acts declared illegal by society who then pass laws via politicians to address the concerns of the public.

Member of the Superior Officers Council

I propose to you that the charge of Resisting Arrest should be vigorously prosecuted. There must be a complete, earnest and steadfast buy-in by all stakeholders involved to strengthen the deterrent factor attached to an unswerving punitive application for those found guilty of resisting arrest.

This would involve the vocal support of your administration, the members of the City Council, and the commitment of all five District Attorneys to uncompromisingly prosecute persons arrested and found guilty of resisting arrest. I would also suggest lobbying the City Council and the legislators in Albany to garner support for the creation of an enhanced charge of "Aggravated Resisting Arrest". This charge would be modeled to reflect other existing penal law statutes which carry an increased penalty for persons found guilty of the same crime within a specified time frame, i.e. convicted of Resisting Arrest a second time within a 10 year period equates to a class E felony. I also suggest that the District Attorneys create a tracking system to monitor persons who are habitually arrested for either Resisting Arrest and/or Assault 2nd degree on a Police Officer; this would readily identify recidivists who should be targeted for strict prosecution. Lastly, I recommend that the District Attorneys establish a dedicated unit, staffed with experienced prosecutors, in each of their respective boroughs to prosecute cases involving Resisting Arrest or Assault 2nd degree on a Police Officer.

The Police Department itself must also invest in a paradigm shift of not only tracking crimes to protect the public, but to track crimes against its Police Officers. Currently, CompStat measures the seven major crimes impacting on the safety of people and their property. However, there is no measurement tool employed at CompStat in regard with officer safety. I propose that the Department track all Resisting Arrest and Assault 2nd degree incidents and hold the respective Commanding Officers accountable to ensure that they are in direct communication with the District Attorney office involved to provide any assistance required to strengthen the prosecution against persons arrested for injuring, or attempting to injure, a Police Officer making a lawful arrest.

The aggressive prosecution of persons found guilty of resisting arrest, an enhanced charge of "Aggravated Resisting Arrest", the tracking of Resisting Arrest/Assault 2 recidivists by the District Attorneys offices and the Department would promote the safety of the public and the members of law enforcement. It would create an additional deterrent to those blatantly flaunting the legal authority vested in the police by society to arrest persons reasonably suspected of committing a crime. This increased deterrent could manifest into a tool drastically reducing situations where the public and police officers unnecessarily get into physical confrontations, and which could have tragic consequences for all involved.

There are numerous local, state and federal entities existing for persons, who believe they were wrongfully detained or arrested by the Police, to report complaints of Police impropriety; i.e. the Civilian Complaint Review Board, Internal Affairs Bureau, the District Attorney's Office, the newly created NYPD Inspector General, etc. These are outlets people can use to lodge complaints against members of the NYPD, however, by implementing measures to reduce physical resistance by persons being lawfully placed under arrest we can reduce the potential of people and police officers being injured and reduce the possibility of lawsuits being filed against the City.

This leads me to my second recommendation to foster an atmosphere where members of the Department would get a sense of support from City Hall: An assurance from the New York City Corporation Council to aggressively defend baseless law suits filed against the City pertaining to allegations of police misconduct. Currently, and in the past, there exists a perception that the NYC Corporation Council would prefer to settle lawsuits involving members of the Department as opposed to vigorously defending them in a civil trial. This perception again has the unintended consequence of eroding the public trust in the members of the Police Department. These settlements are misinterpreted by the public as the City admitting that their officers are guilty of violating a person's rights; even if the person who filed the civil lawsuit was arrested and convicted of a crime. These settlements also lead to unscrupulous opportunists filing baseless lawsuits against the City draining revenue that could be used for civic improvements; these opportunists view the Corporation Council as an ATM machine.

Mr. Mayor, if you were to amend the current policy, a policy viewed as being condoned by City Hall, of settling a majority of civil lawsuits against police officers as opposed to bringing such suits to trial you would potentially reap numerous benefits. First, it would reinforce to the public that you are cognizant of your role as a primary fiduciary officer responsible to protect the assets of the City. Second, it could curtail scheming individuals from filing baseless lawsuits against the City; this could potentially reduce the filing of lawsuits and lessen the burden on the attorneys at Corporation Council giving them the ability to bring more civil suits to trial. Lastly, and of no less significance, vigorously trying civil suits filed against members of the Department could reduce the number of retaliatory suits filed by persons convicted of a crime. By significantly increasing the number of civil lawsuits filed against the City to a full trial the City could realize a substantial cost savings and reduce the public perception that the City assumes wrongdoing by the member(s) of the Department identified in the law suit.

Finally, Mr. Mayor, I would ask that you show your support for the members of the Department, and their families, by rectifying an existing inequity related to Tier II and Tier III Accidental- Disability Police Pensions. Let me preface this request by stating that I currently do not have any members in the Lieutenants Benevolent Association in the Tier III Police Pension. However, there exists an empiric inequity that needs to be corrected. As has been touted at a majority of the recent Police Academy graduations, more and more Police Officers reside in New York City. These officers take an oath to protect the life and property of the citizens and visitors of New York City. These officers make great personal sacrifice, sometimes the ultimate sacrifice of losing their lives, they forego family functions, they work physically abnormal and prolonged hours, and they put their personal safety aside for the safety of strangers. They dedicate their entirety to the safety and well being of the people of New York City. However, with the creation and implementation of Tier III, a tale of two employee pensions was established.

The underlying concept of an Accidental Disability pension is to ensure that an Officer and his family are able to financially provide for themselves as a result of the officer losing employment due to a disability incurred in the performance of duty. It is an example of a social contract that society will provide for those that have sacrificed their physical/psychological well being to protect others. With the implementation of the Tier III pension, this social contract has been diluted.

Mr. Mayor, recently there has been some dialogue between City Hall, the Department, and representatives of the Police Unions. Many issues were discussed and a fair amount of selective listening took place. No significant results have derived from these talks. I provide the aforementioned recommendations as topics to foster dialogue and promote stronger bonds between the members of the New York City Police Department and the de Blasio administration. These are not a list of all recommendations; the most prominent topic always pertains to the issue of officer safety. If you wish, I am available to discuss these suggestions further.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads 'Louis Turco'.

Louis Turco
President
Lieutenants Benevolent Association

Cc: Melissa Mark-Viverito: City Council Speaker
William J. Bratton: Police Commissioner
James O'Neill: Chief of Department

From: Ragone, Peter
To: B; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: And so what if anything happens with the video I made?
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2015 2:17:00 PM

I think we're in a holding pattern. Let it out at right moment when we deliver something major...

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Thursday, January 15, 2015 01:54 PM
To: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Ragone, Peter
Subject: And so what if anything happens with the video I made?

From: Carey, Michael
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com"; Williams, Dominic; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\); Howe, Amanda; Ko, Eunice; Wiley, Maya; "Jonathan@berlinrosen.com"; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Katz, Rebecca; Wolfe, Emma; John, Roxanne; Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2015 4:29:07 PM

All:

Please note this meeting is taking place a City Hall today at 5:45 PM.

Will provide call in for those that wish to join via phone.

Thankkkkkkkkksssssss

Michael Paul Carey

Director of Scheduling and Advance

City Hall

-----Original Appointment-----

From:

Sent: Friday, January 09, 2015 6:52 AM

To: Carey, Michael; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; 'nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com'; Williams, Dominic; Fuleihan, Dean (OMB); Howe, Amanda; Ko, Eunice; Wiley, Maya; 'Jonathan@berlinrosen.com'; Ragone, Peter; Shorris, Anthony; Katz, Rebecca; Wolfe, Emma; John, Roxanne; Walzak, Phil

Subject: Weekly Planning Meeting

When: Thursday, January 15, 2015 5:45 PM-6:45 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).

Where: City Hall, The Blue Room

From: Michael Carey
To: jfdc@akpdmmedia.com; Shorris, Anthony; Howe, Amanda; Ko, Eunice; nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Wiley, Maya; Wolfe, Emma; Katz, Rebecca; Williams, Dominic; Jonathan@berlinrosen.com; John, Roxanne; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\)
Subject: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2015 5:47:06 PM

all this is starting now in blue room!!

Weekly Planning Meeting

Scheduled: Thursday, 15 Jan 2015 from 5:45 pm to 6:45 pm

Location: City Hall, The Blue Room

Invitees: 'jfdc@akpdmmedia.com' , Shorris, Anthony , Howe, Amanda , Ko, Eunice , 'nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com' , Walzak, Phil , Ragone, Peter , Wiley, Maya , Wolfe, Emma , Katz, Rebecca , Williams, Dominic , 'Jonathan@berlinrosen.com' , John, Roxanne , Fuleihan, Dean (OMB)

From: Abeywardena, Penny
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: <no subject>
Date: Friday, January 16, 2015 7:39:17 PM

Same here!

Penny Abeywardena
Commissioner
Mayor's Office for International Affairs

On Jan 16, 2015, at 7:04 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

He mentioned - that's great - look forward to working closely with you!

On Jan 16, 2015, at 5:12 PM, Abeywardena, Penny
<PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Hi John,

Thank you again for the convo and the feedback on the memo. I ended up having a very productive meeting with the Mayor about how to grow this office.

Looking forward to lunch post state of the city.

Cheers,
Penny

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, January 13, 2015 12:17 PM
To: Abeywardena, Penny
Subject: <no subject>

Hey Penny. Good to talk to you.

The memo looks great to me.

1. I think you'll get a welcome audience for the efforts to raise awareness/reduce stigma of mental illness/domestic violence by partnering consulates with City Agencies & NEW YORKERS who make up our diverse city.
2. Love the emphasis on the outer boroughs. I really want the country, and the world, to understand just how much our outer boroughs have changed & look as global in their ethnic composition as Manhattan (maybe more so).

3. Here's the quote from Ric Burns, FWIW... I think the boss is going to nix it as the opening of the SOTC - but I still love it (and the series - it's called New York: A Documentary).

... for almost 400 years, New York has been the cauldron of capitalism and democracy in America, and the supreme laboratory of modern life, where the most crucial American experiment of modern times continues to unfold —the exhilarating, often harrowing experiment to see if all the peoples of the world can live together in a single place.

From: John Del Cecato
To: B; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: Re: Grynbaum: Obama a Policy Pathbreaker? De Blasio Was There First
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 11:31:25 AM

Agreed - Cuba is silly - but I like it nonetheless... Maybe he's doing some penance?

From: BDB Official <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 at 11:20 AM
To: Rebecca Katz <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Grynbaum: Obama a Policy Pathbreaker? De Blasio Was There First

Bad person he is. But your analysis is absolutely correct. And we should use that to our advantage as we expand our national focus. But what the fuck does the honeymoon have to do with anything?
Talk about a stretch

From: Katz, Rebecca
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 11:12 AM
To: B
Subject: Re: Grynbaum: Obama a Policy Pathbreaker? De Blasio Was There First

Just online. Part of their new "First Draft" that comes out in the mornings.

Grynbaum loves playing up your national role because it plays up HIS role.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 17, 2015, at 10:27 AM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Was this just online? And how strangely positive of him -- he does not evince this understanding anywhere else in his writing

From: Katz, Rebecca
Sent: Friday, January 16, 2015 10:14 AM
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil
Subject: Grynbaum: Obama a Policy Pathbreaker? De Blasio Was There First

Love this narrative:

Obama a Policy Pathbreaker? De Blasio Was There First

It's been a very de Blasio week in Washington.

As the White House rolled out a string of federal initiatives, New Yorkers would be excused for their sense of déjà vu.

On a lot of this stuff, Mayor Bill de Blasio was there first.

Paid sick leave for employees? The mayor signed a bill requiring paid days off for low-wage New York City workers.

Expanded access to broadband? The mayor is creating free Wi-Fi hot spots in low-income neighborhoods like Melrose in the Bronx and Bedford-Stuyvesant in Brooklyn.

Easing travel restrictions to Cuba? Mr. de Blasio and his wife honeymooned in Havana in 1994.

Mr. de Blasio, a Democrat who has a number of President Obama's former aides on his staff, has been intent on promoting his liberal policy platform around the country. And in November, the mayor spent time at the White House with Valerie Jarrett, the president's closest adviser.

Might the mayor and his wife consider renewing their vows in Cuba, given Mr. Obama's easing of the restrictive travel policy.

"Their vows are fine the way they are," a spokeswoman said.

From: John Del Cecato
To: B; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: Re: Grynbaum: Obama a Policy Pathbreaker? De Blasio Was There First
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 11:32:20 AM

Also, RKK had some good ideas for how to land ourselves in the Romney stuff - I'll get with Peter & get this thing moving

From: BDB Official <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 at 11:20 AM
To: Rebecca Katz <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Grynbaum: Obama a Policy Pathbreaker? De Blasio Was There First

Bad person he is. But your analysis is absolutely correct. And we should use that to our advantage as we expand our national focus. But what the fuck does the honeymoon have to do with anything? Talk about a stretch

From: Katz, Rebecca
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 11:12 AM
To: B
Subject: Re: Grynbaum: Obama a Policy Pathbreaker? De Blasio Was There First

Just online. Part of their new "First Draft" that comes out in the mornings.

Grynbaum loves playing up your national role because it plays up HIS role.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 17, 2015, at 10:27 AM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Was this just online? And how strangely positive of him -- he does not evince this understanding anywhere else in his writing

From: Katz, Rebecca
Sent: Friday, January 16, 2015 10:14 AM
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil
Subject: Grynbaum: Obama a Policy Pathbreaker? De Blasio Was There First

Love this narrative:

Obama a Policy Pathbreaker? De Blasio Was There First

It's been a very de Blasio week in Washington.

As the White House rolled out a string of federal initiatives, New Yorkers would be excused for their sense of déjà vu.

On a lot of this stuff, Mayor Bill de Blasio was there first.

Paid sick leave for employees? The mayor signed a bill requiring paid days off for low-wage New York City workers.

Expanded access to broadband? The mayor is creating free Wi-Fi hot spots in low-income neighborhoods like Melrose in the Bronx and Bedford-Stuyvesant in Brooklyn.

Easing travel restrictions to Cuba? Mr. de Blasio and his wife honeymooned in Havana in 1994.

Mr. de Blasio, a Democrat who has a number of President Obama's former aides on his staff, has been intent on promoting his liberal policy platform around the country. And in November, the mayor spent time at the White House with Valerie Jarrett, the president's closest adviser.

Might the mayor and his wife consider renewing their vows in Cuba, given Mr. Obama's easing of the restrictive travel policy.

"Their vows are fine the way they are," a spokeswoman said.

From: John Del Cecato
To: B
Subject: Re: Chirlane
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 11:46:34 AM

LOL!!!

On 1/17/15, 11:45 AM, "B" <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>
>You set the time/energy limits. I have faith in your judgment (I can't >believe I actually managed to type that last sentence...)

>
>
>

>----- Original Message -----

>From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 11:33 AM
>To: B
>Subject: Re: Chirlane

>
>I totally agree - and that will be part of my mission. Just need to make >sure I'm not spreading myself too thin - i.e., national progressive >agenda, City Hall advice, and FLONYC agenda

>
>On 1/17/15, 11:21 AM, "B" <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>
>>

>>We really need your voice in this. Team still doesn't understand what an >>asset Chirlane is and how to maximize her role. And the controversies >>connected to her can be turned to our advantage

>>
>>
>>

>>----- Original Message -----

>>From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
>>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 11:06 AM
>>To: B; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea
>>Cc: FLONYC; John, Roxanne
>>Subject: Re: Chirlane

>>
>>Sounds good

>>

>>On 1/17/15, 10:33 AM, "B" <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>>>

>>>Need you all to meet with or do a call with Chirlane and Roxanne this >>>coming week re: comms support for Chirlane's work going forward. As most >>>of you know (and pls keep this confidential for now), Rebecca is leaving >>>at the end of March. We need a truly shared vision for who will do this >>>work going forward and how. Roxanne will set it up. Thanks

>>>

>>

>

From: John Del Cecato
To: B; Ragone, Peter
Subject: Re: MLK/Paris remarks
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 12:10:41 PM

I'm working on MLK now - will have by 2pm..

The theme is healing/moving forward/remembering our cause while also understanding that police can and will and must be partners in the effort - and that requires mutual respect and collaboration...

On Paris - I'm supposed to talk with Amanda today... Are we definitely going? If so, maybe we tip off a reporter on exactly what we're doing there - meeting with the mayor of Paris, offering our NYPD counter-terrorism tips for protecting the city going forward, standing shoulder-to-shoulder to condemn anti-Semitism... We have to make sure that we don't look like we're stepping in where Obama failed & Kerry thought it was smart to have James Taylor sing

On 1/17/15, 12:04 PM, "B" <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

>Need to see some drafts soon. Who's owning? And want to make sure del >cecato (cc'ed here) is looped. Thanks

From: Ragone, Peter
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: Income inequality
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 3:13:22 PM

Ok, no takers yet.

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 12:12 PM
To: Ragone, Peter
Cc: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Income inequality

YES!

----- Original Message -----

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:32 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Income inequality

Heya,

We've got a tweet out on Romney's statement and I'm in touch w times, politico and others. If they're interested in an on the record interview are you available?

From: John Del Cecato
To: Abeywardena, Penny
Cc: Ragone, Peter
Subject: Re: Paris plans
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 3:44:09 PM

I'll admit that I am not hot on him going to Paris, but if that ship has sailed, then I think this is an excellent agenda.

If we could score a meeting with the PM and President to talk about income inequality, that would be great.

I'm also hoping in the meeting with Hidalgo, he'd be able to share not just sympathy, but some substance on how NYC combats terrorism?

Also, if it's gonna happen, would recommend that we give a news source (probably NYT) a run-down of what we plan to do there - as I'm worried that just flying out there without a curtain-raiser could make us look like we're trying to elevate ourselves in the wake of the Obama absence and the weird John Kerry/James Taylor thing.

On Jan 17, 2015, at 3:36 PM, Abeywardena, Penny
<PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

John/Peter-

The Mayor asked me to reach out to you so that we can explore opportunities in Paris, recognizing he wants the central focus to be the Jewish community. That said, the following activities are being organized:

- meeting with Jewish leaders at Grand Synagogue
- meeting with Mayor Hidalgo followed by a statement to the press at Paris City Hall
- Lay Wreath at Charlie Hebdo and at the Hyper Casher (Kosher supermarket)

Should we make time for the following activities?

- meet with an immigrant rights coalition given that so much of the trending rhetoric in France is a closed society and Le Pen is again gaining traction. Good to promote our pro immigration/open society values.
- meet with the PM Manuel Valls (arguably the most popular politician in France) and President, Francois Hollande both of whom are Socialist Democrats.

Any other ideas?

Thanks,
Penny

From: Ragone, Peter
To: B
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 5:04:59 PM

Ok, John can you call Mayor? I'm at [REDACTED]

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:00 PM
To: Ragone, Peter
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

I'm game but need to talk thru Q and A with you or John or whoever for a few mins

----- Original Message -----

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 04:39 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil
Subject: Fw: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

You avail to do this?

----- Original Message -----

From: Edward-Isaac Doveve [<mailto:isaac@politico.com>]
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 01:06 PM
To: Ragone, Peter
Subject: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

Hey Peter -

Maggie let me know that the mayor is interested in weighing in on Romney's sudden conversion, and since she's sort of in the midst of her transition out, thought that you guys might be amenable to one of the other old NY political reporters here at POLITICO talking to him instead. I'd love to do it - what's the best way to work that out?

Thanks.
Isaac Doveve

Edward-Isaac Doveve
Senior White House reporter
POLITICO
@IsaacDoveve

From: Ragone, Peter
To: Walzak, Phil; B
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 5:17:40 PM

Working on cell for isaac

----- Original Message -----

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:16 PM
To: B; Ragone, Peter
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

I can connect if needed
JFDC - u able to do quick prep w boss?
PR - what's isaac cell?

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:06 PM
To: Ragone, Peter
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

We got this -- focus on [REDACTED] Just need Isaac's cell #. After that, sign off!

----- Original Message -----

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:04 PM
To: B
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

Ok, John can you call Mayor? I'm at [REDACTED]

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:00 PM
To: Ragone, Peter
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

I'm game but need to talk thru Q and A with you or John or whoever for a few mins

----- Original Message -----

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 04:39 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil
Subject: Fw: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

You avail to do this?

----- Original Message -----

From: Edward-Isaac Dovere [<mailto:isaac@politico.com>]

Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 01:06 PM

To: Ragone, Peter

Subject: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

Hey Peter -

Maggie let me know that the mayor is interested in weighing in on Romney's sudden conversion, and since she's sort of in the midst of her transition out, thought that you guys might be amenable to one of the other old NY political reporters here at POLITICO talking to him instead. I'd love to do it - what's the best way to work that out?

Thanks.

Isaac Dovere

Edward-Isaac Dovere

Senior White House reporter

POLITICO

@IsaacDovere

From: Ragone, Peter
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Walzak, Phil; B
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 5:18:35 PM

Ok, you and mayor got this JDC?

----- Original Message -----

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:18 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; B; Ragone, Peter
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

Isaac is [REDACTED]

On 1/17/15, 5:16 PM, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>I can connect if needed
>JFDC - u able to do quick prep w boss?
>PR - what's isaac cell?
>

>----- Original Message -----

>From: B
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:06 PM
>To: Ragone, Peter
>Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
>Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
>

>We got this -- focus on [REDACTED] Just need Isaac's cell #. After that, sign >off!

>----- Original Message -----

>From: Ragone, Peter
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:04 PM
>To: B
>Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
>Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
>

>Ok, John can you call Mayor? I'm at [REDACTED]

>----- Original Message -----

>From: B
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:00 PM
>To: Ragone, Peter
>Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
>Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
>

>I'm game but need to talk thru Q and A with you or John or whoever for a
>few mins

>----- Original Message -----

>From: Ragone, Peter
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 04:39 PM
>To: B
>Cc: Walzak, Phil
>Subject: Fw: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
>
>You avail to do this?
>
>----- Original Message -----
>From: Edward-Isaac Dovere [<mailto:isaac@politico.com>]
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 01:06 PM
>To: Ragone, Peter
>Subject: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
>
>Hey Peter -
>
>Maggie let me know that the mayor is interested in weighing in on >Romney's sudden conversion, and since she's sort of in the midst of her >transition out, thought that you guys might be amenable to one of the >other old NY political reporters here at POLITICO talking to him instead.
>I'd love to do it - what's the best way to work that out?
>
>Thanks.
>Isaac Dovere
>
>
>-----
>Edward-Isaac Dovere
>Senior White House reporter
>POLITICO
>@IsaacDovere

From: Ragone, Peter
To: "isaac@politico.com"
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 5:19:22 PM

Yes... +JDC who will honcho since I'm at my [REDACTED]

----- Original Message -----

From: Edward-Isaac Doveve [<mailto:isaac@politico.com>]
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:18 PM
To: Ragone, Peter
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

[REDACTED] - though can you just give me a five minute heads up for him calling? [REDACTED]

Edward-Isaac Doveve
Senior White House reporter
POLITICO
@IsaacDoveve

> On Jan 17, 2015, at 5:10 PM, Ragone, Peter <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> What's your best #?

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: Ragone, Peter

> Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 01:44 PM

> To: 'isaac@politico.com' <isaac@politico.com>

> Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

>

> Cool! working on it...

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: Edward-Isaac Doveve [<mailto:isaac@politico.com>]

> Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 01:42 PM

> To: Ragone, Peter

> Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

>

> Great - I think we can actually blow this up into a bigger piece that's more than a little confused about how Romney is trying to manage this.

>

>

> ----

> Edward-Isaac Doveve

> Senior White House reporter

> POLITICO

> @IsaacDoveve

>

>> On Jan 17, 2015, at 4:39 PM, Ragone, Peter <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>> Ok, ill try and set it up!

>>

>> ----- Original Message -----

>> From: Edward-Isaac Doveve [<mailto:isaac@politico.com>]

>> Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 01:06 PM
>> To: Ragone, Peter
>> Subject: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
>>
>> Hey Peter -
>>
>> Maggie let me know that the mayor is interested in weighing in on Romney's sudden conversion, and since she's sort of in the midst of her transition out, thought that you guys might be amenable to one of the other old NY political reporters here at POLITICO talking to him instead. I'd love to do it - what's the best way to work that out?
>>
>> Thanks.
>> Isaac Dovere
>>
>>
>> ----
>> Edward-Isaac Dovere
>> Senior White House reporter
>> POLITICO
>> @IsaacDovere

From: B
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 5:20:45 PM

JDC got me. I'm good to go

----- Original Message -----

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:16 PM
To: B; Ragone, Peter
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

I can connect if needed
JFDC - u able to do quick prep w boss?
PR - what's isaac cell?

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:06 PM
To: Ragone, Peter
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

We got this -- focus on [REDACTED] Just need Isaac's cell #. After that, sign off!

----- Original Message -----

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:04 PM
To: B
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

Ok, John can you call Mayor? I'm at [REDACTED]

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:00 PM
To: Ragone, Peter
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

I'm game but need to talk thru Q and A with you or John or whoever for a few mins

----- Original Message -----

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 04:39 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil

Subject: Fw: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

You avail to do this?

----- Original Message -----

From: Edward-Isaac Dovere [<mailto:isaac@politico.com>]

Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 01:06 PM

To: Ragone, Peter

Subject: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

Hey Peter -

Maggie let me know that the mayor is interested in weighing in on Romney's sudden conversion, and since she's sort of in the midst of her transition out, thought that you guys might be amenable to one of the other old NY political reporters here at POLITICO talking to him instead. I'd love to do it - what's the best way to work that out?

Thanks.

Isaac Dovere

Edward-Isaac Dovere

Senior White House reporter

POLITICO

@IsaacDovere

From: B
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 5:21:07 PM

I'm calling him now. All good

----- Original Message -----

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:18 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; B; Ragone, Peter
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

Isaac is [REDACTED]

On 1/17/15, 5:16 PM, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>I can connect if needed
>JFDC - u able to do quick prep w boss?
>PR - what's isaac cell?

>
>----- Original Message -----

>From: B
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:06 PM
>To: Ragone, Peter
>Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
>Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

>
>
>We got this -- focus on [REDACTED] Just need Isaac's cell #. After that, sign >off!

>
>
>----- Original Message -----

>From: Ragone, Peter
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:04 PM
>To: B
>Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
>Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

>
>Ok, John can you call Mayor? I'm at [REDACTED]

>
>----- Original Message -----

>From: B
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:00 PM
>To: Ragone, Peter
>Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
>Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

>
>
>I'm game but need to talk thru Q and A with you or John or whoever for a
>few mins

>
>

>
>----- Original Message -----
>From: Ragone, Peter
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 04:39 PM
>To: B
>Cc: Walzak, Phil
>Subject: Fw: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

>
>You avail to do this?

>
>----- Original Message -----
>From: Edward-Isaac Dovere [<mailto:isaac@politico.com>]
>Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 01:06 PM
>To: Ragone, Peter
>Subject: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

>
>Hey Peter -

>
>Maggie let me know that the mayor is interested in weighing in on >Romney's sudden conversion, and since she's sort of in the midst of her >transition out, thought that you guys might be amenable to one of the >other old NY political reporters here at POLITICO talking to him instead.
>I'd love to do it - what's the best way to work that out?

>
>Thanks.
>Isaac Dovere

>
>
>-----
>Edward-Isaac Dovere
>Senior White House reporter
>POLITICO
>@IsaacDovere

From: Walzak, Phil
To: B; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Ragone, Peter
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
Date: Saturday, January 17, 2015 5:24:43 PM

I can hop on to verify if u haven't called already

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:23 PM
To: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Ragone, Peter
Cc: Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

Mazel tov, John! :)

----- Original Message -----

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:21 PM
To: Ragone, Peter
Cc: Walzak, Phil; B
Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

I'm heading to bat mitvah - Phil ?

> On Jan 17, 2015, at 5:18 PM, Ragone, Peter <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>
> Ok, you and mayor got this JDC?

>
> ----- Original Message -----

> From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
> Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:18 PM
> To: Walzak, Phil; B; Ragone, Peter
> Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

>
> Isaac is [REDACTED]

>
>
>

>> On 1/17/15, 5:16 PM, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>
>> I can connect if needed
>> JFDC - u able to do quick prep w boss?
>> PR - what's isaac cell?

>>
>> ----- Original Message -----

>> From: B
>> Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:06 PM
>> To: Ragone, Peter
>> Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
>> Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney

>>
>>

>> We got this -- focus on [REDACTED] Just need Isaac's cell #. After that, sign >> off!
>>
>>
>> ----- Original Message -----
>> From: Ragone, Peter
>> Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 05:04 PM
>> To: B
>> Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
>> Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
>>
>> Ok, John can you call Mayor? I'm at [REDACTED]
>>
>> ----- Original Message -----
>> From: B
>> Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 02:00 PM
>> To: Ragone, Peter
>> Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
>> Subject: Re: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
>>
>>
>> I'm game but need to talk thru Q and A with you or John or whoever for a
>> few mins
>>
>>
>>
>> ----- Original Message -----
>> From: Ragone, Peter
>> Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 04:39 PM
>> To: B
>> Cc: Walzak, Phil
>> Subject: Fw: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
>>
>> You avail to do this?
>>
>> ----- Original Message -----
>> From: Edward-Isaac Dovere [<mailto:isaac@politico.com>]
>> Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 01:06 PM
>> To: Ragone, Peter
>> Subject: I hear the mayor is looking to talk Romney
>>
>> Hey Peter -
>>
>> Maggie let me know that the mayor is interested in weighing in on >> Romney's sudden conversion, and since she's sort of in the midst of her >> transition out, thought that you guys might be amenable to one of the >> other old NY political reporters here at POLITICO talking to him instead.
>> I'd love to do it - what's the best way to work that out?
>>
>> Thanks.
>> Isaac Dovere
>>
>>
>> -----
>> Edward-Isaac Dovere
>> Senior White House reporter
>> POLITICO
>> @IsaacDovere
>

From: Abeywardena, Penny
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Ragone, Peter
Subject: Re: Paris plans
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 2:17:00 PM

Got it.

Penny Abeywardena
Commissioner
Mayor's Office for International Affairs

On Jan 18, 2015, at 12:47 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Peter's right. Let's save Piketty for a future visit.

From: <Ragone>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 at 11:39 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Abeywardena, Penny" <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Paris plans

That's not really keeping in message but if its not highlightes.

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Sunday, January 18, 2015 08:25 AM
To: Abeywardena, Penny
Cc: Ragone, Peter
Subject: Re: Paris plans

Cool

On Jan 18, 2015, at 11:20 AM, Abeywardena, Penny <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Maybe we can invite him to the lunch? I think the cultural/community center is an impt stop.

Penny Abeywardena
Commissioner
Mayor's Office for International Affairs

On Jan 18, 2015, at 11:16 AM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

What about meeting with this guy at 230?

<http://nymag.com/daily/intelligencer/2014/04/on-tour-with-rock-star-economist-thomas-piketty.html>

On Jan 18, 2015, at 10:46 AM, Ragone, Peter <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I'd keep this and don't think Hollande is necessary. Mayor to Mayor.

If Hollande wanted it, we could meet w him but we have to check in w WH. Its not my first priority. BDB may feel differently.

From: Abeywardena, Penny
Sent: Sunday, January 18, 2015 07:42 AM
To: Ragone, Peter; John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Paris plans

The latest proposal is the following. Should we switch out 230 option to a meeting with PM or Hollande or keep as is?

- 8:30 am: Welcome at the airport by Mr. Patrick Klugman, Deputy Mayor of Paris and the US Embassy
- 10:00 am: Lay Wreathe at Hyper Casher (Kosher Supermarket)
- 10:30 am: Meeting with leaders of the Jewish community and school children at Jewish school "Georges Leven" in the 12th district (or arrondissement)
- 11:00 am : Welcome by Mayor Hidalgo at Paris City Hall, brief visit of the Parisian City Council Assembly Room, followed by a meeting in the Mayor's Office
- 11:30 am: Meeting with the press (Herve Marro, Mayor Hidalgo's Press Advisor is coordinating on this sequence with your press colleagues in NYC)
- 12:00 pm: Head to Charlie Hebdo, Lay Wreathe in front of the building, followed by another Lay Wreathe 100 meter away where the police officer

Ahmed Merbat was shot and killed
- 12:45 pm : Press statement at Place de la République
- 1:15 pm : Lunch at restaurant "Hotel du nord" (located quai de Jemmapes, next to Place de la Republiue)
- 2:30 pm : brief stop at "Le Cent Quatre" a cultural center in a popular neighborhood representative of Paris diversity
- 3:00 pm : en route to the airport

Hidalgo's office thinks meeting the Jewish Community leaders at the school makes more sense than a meeting at the Grande Synagogue. Avi seems fine with this.

Penny Abeywardena
Commissioner
Mayor's Office for International Affairs

On Jan 17, 2015, at 6:12 PM, Ragone, Peter <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Simpler here the better. They just went through their very own 9/11. We should do 3 things, show sympathy, condemn violence, offer our full support.

We have a lot ot offer on dealing w terrorism.

I'd stay far away from any other issues.

I'd stay as close to Hidalgo as possible, they have a real relationship and there's no way it can be viewed credibly as political btwn those two.

The more moving parts you add the more you have a potential for mistakes.

From: Abeywardena, Penny
Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015
12:36 PM
To: John Del Cecato
<jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Ragone,
Peter
Subject: Paris plans

John/Peter-

The Mayor asked me to reach out to you so that we can explore opportunities in Paris, recognizing he wants the central focus to be the Jewish community. That said, the following activities are being organized:

- meeting with Jewish leaders at Grand Synagogue
- meeting with Mayor Hidalgo followed by a statement to the press at Paris City Hall
- Lay Wreath at Charlie Hebdo and at the Hyper Casher (Kosher supermarket)

Should we make time for the following activities?

- meet with an immigrant rights coalition given that so much of the trending rhetoric in France is a closed society and Le Pen is again gaining traction. Good to promote our pro immigration/open society values.
- meet with the PM Manuel Valls (arguably the most popular politician in France) and President, Francois Hollande both of whom are Socialist Democrats.

Any other ideas?

Thanks,
Penny

From: Bill de Blasio
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: FLONYC
Subject: Re: MLK Day Remarks - draft
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 2:37:56 PM

1. Excellent in most ways -- and a few concerns which we'll discuss
 2. Way too long for BAM or NAN -- let discuss if we split it in two or condense
 3. Pls always cc Chirlane on important things like this
- Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T
-

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sun, 18 Jan 2015 18:53:08 +0000
To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Subject: MLK Day Remarks - draft

Phil & I are still tweaking - but here's a sense of where we are right now...

MLK DAY REMARKS 1/18/15 DRAFT

Thank you, XXX, for that introduction.

We gather to commemorate and honor Dr. King during a challenging moment in our city – a time of shared grief...of unthinkable tragedy...but also a time of undeniable progress...and of great resolve.

Today, you've heard so many of the powerful words of Dr. King – calls for justice...for healing...for people to come together and let ourselves be guided not by hate, but by love.

At this moment, we remember that New York City is ONE family – a family that will come together in common cause – dedicated to building bridges of understanding that can and must prevent future tragedies from tearing us apart.

As Mayor, I've sat with the families of Detective Liu and Detective Ramos, and the family of Staten Islander Eric Garner.

While the circumstances of these tragedies were different, the shock and grief and heartbreaking sense of loss expressed by their families were very much the same.

We are a city that mourns the loss of life. A city that expresses the raw emotion that we feel – the anger, the sadness, the sense of injustice – in different ways – some constructive, some destructive.

The tensions seen before and after the terrible bloodshed in Brooklyn are tremors along a deep historic divide between law enforcement and communities of color. We would be remiss to deny it, and reckless to let it go unaddressed.

That's why so many New Yorkers took to the streets to have their voices heard...joining together in a call for change. We recognize peaceful protests as a legitimate way for people in a democracy to make their voices heard -- and we honor that right.

But we also know that the veil of free expression will NEVER excuse the behavior of those who say reprehensible things -- such as those who call for violence against our police. Spewing hatred towards those we entrust to protect us – spewing hatred toward ANYONE -- only undermines the cause of peaceful protesters who want reforms to continue.

As Dr. King said: “Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that.”

We need less shouting, and more constructive dialogue. We need to march forward together – making our city work for every neighborhood...every borough...every child.

Now, at the start of 2014, we set out to do what some said was impossible – to change policies that were creating a divide between police and the communities they serve...at the same time we worked to make EVERY New Yorker safer.

And to that end, we've made great progress. Last year, the men and women of our police force brought crime to a record low. Homicides...a record low. Robberies...a record low. A nearly 5 percent reduction in crime from even last year's historic low.

At the same time, we've begun to reform the WAY we police – ending the overuse of stop-and-frisk -- from nearly 700,000 stops a few years ago, to less than 50,000 in 2014. And of the stops that WERE made, twice as many led to actual arrests.

Some had suggested those two priorities were in conflict. Some offered the people of this city a false choice: that we had to choose between lower crime and more respectful policing. They have been proven wrong, and that is something that we – as one New York family – celebrate.

We proved the naysayers wrong because we knew the truth – that building a better relationship between police and those they serve makes both our people AND our police safer. It allows officers to get better information from neighbors on the real sources of crime. It frees our officers from the burden of making unnecessary stops just to meet a quota. It leads to policing that both protects AND respects.

Because, at the end of the day, we all want the same thing. We want our police officers to target the guns and gangs and illegal drugs. We want them to protect our children from violence, and our streets from disorder. We want officers to respect the innocent, and we want our neighbors to respect the police. We want an end to tragedies that stem from hostile contacts between police and unarmed New Yorkers. We want our police officers to be protected from anyone who would seek to do them harm.

I feel deeply about these issues both as a father...and as a son.

I want my kids to be able to walk in streets made safe by strong, effective policing. I want my kids – and ALL of our kids – to be judged not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.

I want those who protect our safety to be honored, respected, and recognized for the dangerous job they do.

My father wasn't a police officer, but he served in uniform, defending his country in the US Army during World War II. He came back from the Pacific missing half of one of his legs.

I admired him so much because he put everything on the line to protect our freedom. And I saw the price he paid for that service.

That is one reason I have such profound respect for the men and women of the NYPD - - for the sacrifices they make, the risks they take every day, the price they pay in the name of protecting our city. One need look no further than the horrific events in Paris to understand the incredibly dangerous world our officers face each day.

That's why we have done so much to protect our police. When we saw an increase in shootings last spring, we increased police overtime. When we saw problems in the housing authority, we invested in exterior lights, so that officers would have a clearer vision of what was going on. We've invested in new technologies – from GPS tracking of gunshots, to equipping officers with sophisticated smartphones – to help police do their jobs while staying safer in the process.

That's what public safety is all about – policing that protects our neighbors from violence; policing that protects our civil rights; policing that protects our officers from the dangerous world they courageously face each day. We're safer when we work together – and we’re seeing the results – results that matter in each of our lives, every day.

And we will not let the events of the last weeks throw us off that course.

It's been a very difficult time -- there's no denying that. The death of Eric Garner was a tragic loss. As was the death of Michael Brown. And the assassination of Detectives Liu and Ramos was an attack on all that's good about New York. It was an attack on law enforcement, on our city, and on our society itself.

When our hearts are filled with grief...with anger...with confusion and frustration...we must remember Dr. King's legacy – turning towards each other rather than turning on each other. Because that is what a family does.

My grandparents came to this city from Southern Italy 100 years ago. They left their home and came here for a reason. To them – and to countless others – New York was a bright beacon of boundless opportunity. A place where what mattered was how hard you were willing to work and how big you were able to dream -- not where you were born, the cadence of your voice, or the size of your pocketbook.

That's the city – and the sacred promise – that the men and women of the NYPD are entrusted with protecting. And that's the city the people in every community across New York yearn to live in.

It's the promise that we're fighting to realize for every New Yorker – not just by protecting their physical safety, but by addressing their economic insecurity – from Pre-K and after-school, to paid sick leave and living wage...to job creation, environmental protection, and the boldest affordable housing initiative our city has ever undertaken.

We will embrace the change we need, and in the process, witness a new dawn -- not through vitriolic words, or vicious scapegoating, or violent protest – but through conversation and collaboration and a commitment to safety and justice and economic opportunity for every New Yorker.

That's the legacy of Dr. King. It's what I resolve to do each and every day that I'm privileged to serve as your mayor. And it's a mission that we will achieve – slowly, deliberately, with passion and resolve – as ONE New York family – working together.

Thank you very much.

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: Center for Youth Employment Support
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 2:51:25 PM

Thanks all. And just a note that there are 2 new important studies out from U of Chicago and Penn providing evidence based research and numbers of the benefits of summer jobs and skills building for youth in terms of crime reduction and economic cost savings...

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Sunday, January 18, 2015 02:41 PM
To: Wolfe, Emma; Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: Center for Youth Employment Support

Got it -tx

From: <Wolfe>, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 at 2:29 PM
To: "Fialkoff, Gabrielle" <GFialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: Center for Youth Employment Support

thanks gabrielle
+ ah
makingh sure got this note JDC

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 3:22 PM
To: Wolfe, Emma; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Center for Youth Employment Support

I propose to announce the Mayor's Fund led initiative "The Center for Youth Employment Support" in the SOTC. The center will be a public private partnership to focus on getting our kids ready for college and jobs. I have met with all the DM's and will be presenting this to the Mayor on Friday. This will be the main thrust of the work of the Mayor's Fund in 2015. Please see attached memo in draft form.

"We seek to announce the Center for Youth Employment Support in the State of the City address and outline the early work and first goals of the Center: providing universal access to a summer job to all Foster and Shelter youth; create a robust year-round program for 10,000 high schoolers that includes soft-skills training, summer jobs and mentorship; enhance training of 1000 current DOE staff in college and career guidance; offer free application to CUNY for all New York City public school students; link every CTE school to a business/Industry partner with the goal of enhancing and updating the curriculum to fulfill employers needs and offering each CTE student a relevant internship or apprenticeship in their chosen field"

I'll reach out to you both to follow-up.

THX G

Gabrielle Fialkoff
Senior Advisor to the Mayor
Director of the Office of Strategic Partnerships
212-341-5084
gfialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Carey, Michael
To: BdB; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: Gov. Malloy pushing Connecticut's story nationally
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 5:14:57 PM

Will reach out to his office.

Thanks!!

From: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Reply-To: BdB <[REDACTED]>
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 at 2:22 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Gov. Malloy pushing Connecticut's story nationally

Excellent. And Malloy was very energetic in the days after his election about getting together and planning some common efforts on progressive issues. Let's engage him asap. Michael, let's look to do either a double date with him or just him and me having dinner on one of the upcoming friday or saturday nights. Nyc ideal, but I/we don't mind going to Stamford where he lives

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sun, 18 Jan 2015 18:00:19 +0000
To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Gov. Malloy pushing Connecticut's story nationally

Exactly, DWS!

Wasserman Schultz, who was in Connecticut to campaign for Malloy in October, said Malloy first caught her attention in 2012 for how he handled the aftermath of the Newtown school shooting. She said she was also impressed Malloy stuck by his political agenda for the state.

“It just demonstrated that if you are strong and unwavering in your commitment to progressive and Democratic ideas ... you’re going to be rewarded for it,” she said.

Gov. Malloy pushing Connecticut's story nationally

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A rare Democrat who won re-election last year despite pushing an unapologetically liberal agenda, Gov. Dannel P. Malloy is in line for at least a taste of the national spotlight as his party pushes to win back seats in Congress and keep control of the White House in 2016.

Malloy, who will take over as chairman of the national Democratic Governors Association in 2016, will be tapped to campaign for Democrats across the country as part of the Democratic National Committee's national surrogate team during the 2015 and 2016 elections, said Florida Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, the DNC chairwoman.

"It's one thing to talk about it, but Governor Malloy got it done," she said, referring to the passage of the higher minimum wage and other initiatives.

Getting re-elected in a tough election year, "I think shows that he has the wherewithal, but also the leadership to be able to point the way for other governors and other races," she said.

Malloy said in an interview that he is eager to share his experiences, including legislative victories on mandatory paid sick leave, a $10.10 hourly minimum wage, a far-reaching gun-control law and public education reform.

"I think being able to talk about Connecticut in the context of national policy will be good for Connecticut and good for our prospects in Washington,"

Malloy said. “So I think there’s real value to the people of Connecticut to have me play that role, particularly over the next years with the current administration, and if there’s a Democratic administration after that.”

Malloy, who has ruled out running for president, said he believes there’s a “story to tell about good governance” in Connecticut. He is already chairman of the bipartisan New England Governors Association. He will likely speak at the Democratic National Convention, where he’s made prior appearances.

Wasserman Schultz, who was in Connecticut to campaign for Malloy in October, said Malloy first caught her attention in 2012 for how he handled the aftermath of the Newtown school shooting. She said she was also impressed Malloy stuck by his political agenda for the state.

“It just demonstrated that if you are strong and unwavering in your commitment to progressive and Democratic ideas ... you’re going to be rewarded for it,” she said.

Jerry Labriola Jr., chairman of the Connecticut Republican Party, said it’s too early for Malloy to take a “victory lap” on the national stage considering the economic challenges the state faces.

“Clearly Connecticut is underachieving by almost every economic measure and continues to lag the nation as our once great state faces chronic budget deficits, due mainly to his and his party’s failed policies,” Labriola said.

“Granted, he has pushed a virtual conveyor belt of the most liberal legislation in the nation, but I would think his time would be better served trying to get our economy out of the rut that it’s in.”

Democrats suffered heavy losses nationally in the November elections, ceding Senate control to the Republicans and losing additional seats in the GOP-controlled House of Representatives. The GOP also picked up governor’s offices in four Democratic-held states: Arkansas, Massachusetts, Maryland, and Illinois. Overall, the number of Republican governors grew from 29 to 31. The defeats prompted Wasserman Schultz to form a committee to assess the party's performance.

While polling showed Malloy in a dead heat against his Republican rival, businessman Tom Foley, for much of the race, he eventually won by 28,019 votes out of 1.09 million votes cast.

Copyright 2015 The Associated Press. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.

From: Carey, Michael
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: <no subject>
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 6:32:50 PM

Yeah just need to get it formatted for tomorrow

On 1/18/15, 6:31 PM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

>He liked the draft I sent - said a few things needed editing - didn't >specify - I will try to glean what he meant and revise tonight

>

>

>

>> On Jan 18, 2015, at 5:35 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
>>wrote:

>>

>> What is status of remarks for tomorrow?

From: Carey, Michael
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: <no subject>
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 9:03:58 PM

So I need the latest version since I don't really want to be up early to format

On 1/18/15, 6:31 PM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

>He liked the draft I sent - said a few things needed editing - didn't >specify - I will try to glean what he meant and revise tonight
>
>
>
>> On Jan 18, 2015, at 5:35 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
>>wrote:
>>
>> What is status of remarks for tomorrow?

From: John Del Cecato
To: BdB; FLONYC
Cc: PhilWalzak [REDACTED]
Subject: MLK Remarks - BAM and NAN
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 9:20:45 PM
Attachments: MLK DAY REMARKS - BAM.docx
MLK DAY REMARKS -- NAN.docx

Here is an attempt to sort of break into two speeches... Now 40% less material in each... Some of the language is the same, but BAM is a little more on cop safety & NAN is a little more personal...

MLK DAY REMARKS
Brooklyn Academy of Music
1/18/15 DRAFT

Thank you, XXX, for that introduction.

We gather to commemorate and honor Dr. King during a challenging moment in our city – a time of shared grief...of unthinkable tragedy...but also a time of undeniable progress...and of great resolve.

Today, you've heard so many of the powerful words of Dr. King – calls for justice...for healing...for people to come together and let ourselves be guided not by hate, but by love.

At this moment, we remember that New York City is ONE family – a family that will come together in common cause – dedicated to building bridges of understanding that can and must prevent future tragedies from tearing us apart.

As Mayor, I've sat with the families of Detective Liu and Detective Ramos, and the family of Staten Islander Eric Garner.

While the circumstances of these tragedies were different, the shock and grief and heartbreaking sense of loss expressed by their families were very much the same.

We are a city that mourns the loss of life. A city that expresses the raw emotion that we feel – the anger, the sadness, the sense of injustice – in different ways – some constructive, some destructive.

Over the past weeks and months, so many New Yorkers took to the streets to have their voices heard...joining together in a call for change. We recognize peaceful protests as a legitimate way for people in a democracy to make their voices heard -- and we honor that right.

But we also know that the veil of free expression will NEVER excuse the behavior of those who say reprehensible things -- such as those who call for violence against our police. Spewing hatred towards those we entrust to protect us -- spewing hatred toward ANYONE -- only undermines the cause of peaceful protesters who want reforms to continue.

As Dr. King said: "Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that."

We need less shouting, and more constructive dialogue. We need to march forward together -- making our city work for every neighborhood...every borough...every child.

Now, at the start of 2014, we set out to do what some said was impossible -- to change policies that were creating a divide between police and the communities they serve...at the same time we worked to make EVERY New Yorker safer.

And to that end, we've made great progress. Last year, the men and women of our police force brought crime to a record low. Homicides...a record low. Robberies...a record low. A nearly 5 percent reduction in crime from even last year's historic low.

At the same time, we've begun to reform the WAY we police -- ending the overuse of stop-and-frisk -- from nearly 700,000 stops a few years ago, to less than 50,000 in 2014. And of the stops that WERE made, twice as many led to actual arrests.

Some had suggested those two priorities were in conflict. Some offered the people of this city a false choice: that we had to choose between lower crime and more respectful policing. They have been proven wrong, and that is something that we -- as one New York family -- celebrate.

Because, at the end of the day, we all want the same thing. We want our police officers to target the guns and gangs and illegal drugs. We want them to protect our children from violence, and our streets from disorder. We want officers to respect the innocent, and we want our neighbors to respect the police. We want an end to tragedies that stem from hostile contacts between police and unarmed New Yorkers. We want our police officers to be protected from anyone who would seek to do them harm.

That's why we have done so much to protect our police. When we saw an increase in shootings last spring, we increased police overtime. When we saw problems in the housing authority, we invested in exterior lights, so that officers would have a clearer vision of what was going on. We've invested in new technologies -- from GPS tracking of gunshots, to equipping officers with sophisticated smartphones -- to help police do their jobs while staying safer in the process.

That's what public safety is all about – policing that protects our neighbors from violence; policing that protects our civil rights; policing that protects our officers from the dangerous world they courageously face each day. We're safer when we work together – and we're seeing the results – results that matter in each of our lives, every day.

And we will not let the events of the last weeks throw us off that course.

When our hearts are filled with grief...with anger...with confusion and frustration...we must remember Dr. King's legacy – turning towards each other rather than turning on each other. Because that is what a family does.

My grandparents came to this city from Southern Italy 100 years ago. They left their home and came here for a reason. To them – and to countless others – New York was a bright beacon of boundless opportunity. A place where what mattered was how hard you were willing to work and how big you were able to dream -- not where you were born, the cadence of your voice, or the size of your pocketbook.

We will embrace the change we need, and in the process, witness a new dawn -- not through vitriolic words, or vicious scapegoating, or violent protest – but through conversation and collaboration and a commitment to safety and justice and economic opportunity for every New Yorker.

That's the legacy of Dr. King. It's what I resolve to do each and every day that I'm privileged to serve as your mayor. And it's a mission that we will achieve – slowly, deliberately, with passion and resolve – as ONE New York family – working together.

Thank you very much.

MLK DAY REMARKS
National Action Network
1/18/15 DRAFT

Thank you, XXX, for that introduction.

We gather to commemorate and honor Dr. King during a challenging moment in our city – a time of shared grief...of unthinkable tragedy...but also a time of undeniable progress...and of great resolve.

Today, you've heard so many of the powerful words of Dr. King – calls for justice...for healing...for people to come together and let ourselves be guided not by hate, but by love.

At this moment, we remember that New York City is ONE family – a family that will come together in common cause – dedicated to building bridges of understanding that can and must prevent future tragedies from tearing us apart.

As Mayor, I've sat with the families of Detective Liu and Detective Ramos, and the family of Staten Islander Eric Garner.

While the circumstances of these tragedies were different, the shock and grief and heartbreaking sense of loss expressed by their families were very much the same.

We are a city that mourns the loss of life. A city that expresses the raw emotion that we feel – the anger, the sadness, the sense of injustice – in different ways – some constructive, some destructive.

We recognize peaceful protests as a legitimate way for people in a democracy to make their voices heard -- and we honor that right.

But we also know that the veil of free expression will NEVER excuse the behavior of those who say reprehensible things -- such as those who call for violence against our police. Spewing hatred towards those we entrust to protect us – spewing hatred toward ANYONE -- only undermines the cause of peaceful protesters who want reforms to continue.

As Dr. King said: “Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that.”

We need less shouting, and more constructive dialogue. We need to march forward together – making our city work for every neighborhood...every borough...every child. And we've begun that march.

At the start of 2014, we set out to do what some said was impossible – to change policies that were creating a divide between police and the communities they serve...at the same time we worked to make EVERY New Yorker safer.

And to that end, we've made great progress. Last year, the men and women of our police force brought crime to a record low. Homicides...a record low. Robberies...a record low. A nearly 5 percent reduction in crime from even last year's historic low.

At the same time, we've begun to reform the WAY we police – ending the overuse of stop-and-frisk -- from nearly 700,000 stops a few years ago, to less than 50,000 in 2014. And of the stops that WERE made, twice as many led to actual arrests.

Some had suggested those two priorities were in conflict. Some offered the people of this city a false choice: that we had to choose between lower crime and more respectful policing. They have been proven wrong, and that is something that we – as one New York family – celebrate.

Because, at the end of the day, we all want the same thing. We want our police officers to target the guns and gangs and illegal drugs. We want them to protect our children from violence, and our streets from disorder. We want officers to respect the innocent, and we want our neighbors to respect the police. We want an end to tragedies that stem from hostile contacts between police and unarmed New Yorkers. We want our police officers to be protected from anyone who would seek to do them harm.

I feel deeply about these issues both as a father...and as a son.

I want my kids to be able to walk in streets made safe by strong, effective policing. I want my kids – and ALL of our kids – to be judged not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.

I want those who protect our safety to be honored, respected, and recognized for the dangerous job they do.

My father wasn't a police officer, but he served in uniform, defending his country in the US Army during World War II. He came back from the Pacific missing half of one of his legs.

I admired him so much because he put everything on the line to protect our freedom. And I saw the price he paid for that service.

That is one reason I have such profound respect for the men and women of the NYPD - - for the sacrifices they make, the risks they take every day, the price they pay in the name of protecting our city. One needs to look no further than the horrific events in Paris to understand the incredibly dangerous world that our officers face each day.

We're safer when we work together – and we're seeing the results – results that matter in each of our lives, every day.

And we will not let the events of the last weeks throw us off that course.

When our hearts are filled with grief...with anger...with confusion and frustration...we must remember Dr. King's legacy – turning towards each other rather than turning on each other. Because that is what a family does.

We will embrace the change we need, and in the process, witness a new dawn -- not through vitriolic words, or vicious scapegoating, or violent protest – but through conversation and collaboration and a commitment to safety and justice and economic opportunity for every New Yorker.

That's the legacy of Dr. King. It's what I resolve to do each and every day that I'm privileged to serve as your mayor. And it's a mission that we will achieve – slowly, deliberately, with passion and resolve – as ONE New York family – working together.

Thank you very much.

MLK DAY REMARKS
Brooklyn Academy of Music
1/18/15 DRAFT

Thank you, XXX, for that introduction.

We gather to commemorate and honor Dr. King during a challenging moment in our city – a time of shared grief...of unthinkable tragedy...but also a time of undeniable progress...and of great resolve.

Today, you've heard so many of the powerful words of Dr. King – calls for justice...for healing...for people to come together and let ourselves be guided not by hate, but by love.

At this moment, we remember that New York City is ONE family – a family that will come together in common cause – dedicated to building bridges of understanding that can and must prevent future tragedies from tearing us apart.

As Mayor, I've sat with the families of Detective Liu and Detective Ramos, and the family of Staten Islander Eric Garner.

While the circumstances of these tragedies were different, the shock and grief and heartbreaking sense of loss expressed by their families were very much the same.

We are a city that mourns the loss of life. A city that expresses the raw emotion that we feel – the anger, the sadness, the sense of injustice – in different ways – some constructive, some destructive.

Over the past weeks and months, so many New Yorkers took to the streets to have their voices heard...joining together in a call for change. We recognize peaceful protests as a legitimate way for people in a democracy to make their voices heard -- and we honor that right.

But we also know that the veil of free expression will NEVER excuse the behavior of those who say reprehensible things -- such as those who call for violence against our police. Spewing hatred towards those we entrust to protect us – spewing hatred toward ANYONE -- only undermines the cause of peaceful protesters who want reforms to continue.

As Dr. King said: "Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that."

We need less shouting, and more constructive dialogue. We need to march forward together – making our city work for every neighborhood...every borough...every child.

Now, at the start of 2014, we set out to do what some said was impossible – to change policies that were creating a divide between police and the communities they serve...at the same time we worked to make EVERY New Yorker safer.

And to that end, we've made great progress. Last year, the men and women of our police force brought crime to a record low. Homicides...a record low. Robberies...a record low. A nearly 5 percent reduction in crime from even last year's historic low.

At the same time, we've begun to reform the WAY we police – ending the overuse of stop-and-frisk -- from nearly 700,000 stops a few years ago, to less than 50,000 in 2014. And of the stops that WERE made, twice as many led to actual arrests.

Some had suggested those two priorities were in conflict. Some offered the people of this city a false choice: that we had to choose between lower crime and more respectful policing. They have been proven wrong, and that is something that we – as one New York family – celebrate.

Because, at the end of the day, we all want the same thing. We want our police officers to target the guns and gangs and illegal drugs. We want them to protect our children from violence, and our streets from disorder. We want officers to respect the innocent, and we want our neighbors to respect the police. We want an end to tragedies that stem from hostile contacts between police and unarmed New Yorkers. We want our police officers to be protected from anyone who would seek to do them harm.

That's why we have done so much to protect our police. When we saw an increase in shootings last spring, we increased police overtime. When we saw problems in the housing authority, we invested in exterior lights, so that officers would have a clearer vision of what was going on. We've invested in new technologies – from GPS tracking of gunshots, to equipping officers with sophisticated smartphones – to help police do their jobs while staying safer in the process.

That's what public safety is all about – policing that protects our neighbors from violence; policing that protects our civil rights; policing that protects our officers from the dangerous world they courageously face each day. We're safer when we work together – and we're seeing the results – results that matter in each of our lives, every day.

And we will not let the events of the last weeks throw us off that course.

When our hearts are filled with grief...with anger...with confusion and frustration...we must remember Dr. King's legacy – turning towards each other rather than turning on each other. Because that is what a family does.

My grandparents came to this city from Southern Italy 100 years ago. They left their home and came here for a reason. To them – and to countless others – New York was a bright beacon of boundless opportunity. A place where what mattered was how hard you were willing to work and how big you were able to dream -- not where you were born, the cadence of your voice, or the size of your pocketbook.

We will embrace the change we need, and in the process, witness a new dawn -- not through vitriolic words, or vicious scapegoating, or violent protest – but through conversation and collaboration and a commitment to safety and justice and economic opportunity for every New Yorker.

That's the legacy of Dr. King. It's what I resolve to do each and every day that I'm privileged to serve as your mayor. And it's a mission that we will achieve – slowly, deliberately, with passion and resolve – as ONE New York family – working together.

Thank you very much.

MLK DAY REMARKS
National Action Network
1/18/15 DRAFT

Thank you, XXX, for that introduction.

We gather to commemorate and honor Dr. King during a challenging moment in our city – a time of shared grief...of unthinkable tragedy...but also a time of undeniable progress...and of great resolve.

Today, you've heard so many of the powerful words of Dr. King – calls for justice...for healing...for people to come together and let ourselves be guided not by hate, but by love.

At this moment, we remember that New York City is ONE family – a family that will come together in common cause – dedicated to building bridges of understanding that can and must prevent future tragedies from tearing us apart.

As Mayor, I've sat with the families of Detective Liu and Detective Ramos, and the family of Staten Islander Eric Garner.

While the circumstances of these tragedies were different, the shock and grief and heartbreaking sense of loss expressed by their families were very much the same.

We are a city that mourns the loss of life. A city that expresses the raw emotion that we feel – the anger, the sadness, the sense of injustice – in different ways – some constructive, some destructive.

We recognize peaceful protests as a legitimate way for people in a democracy to make their voices heard -- and we honor that right.

But we also know that the veil of free expression will NEVER excuse the behavior of those who say reprehensible things -- such as those who call for violence against our police. Spewing hatred towards those we entrust to protect us – spewing hatred toward ANYONE -- only undermines the cause of peaceful protesters who want reforms to continue.

As Dr. King said: "Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that."

We need less shouting, and more constructive dialogue. We need to march forward together – making our city work for every neighborhood...every borough...every child. And we've begun that march.

At the start of 2014, we set out to do what some said was impossible – to change policies that were creating a divide between police and the communities they serve...at the same time we worked to make EVERY New Yorker safer.

And to that end, we've made great progress. Last year, the men and women of our police force brought crime to a record low. Homicides...a record low. Robberies...a record low. A nearly 5 percent reduction in crime from even last year's historic low.

At the same time, we've begun to reform the WAY we police – ending the overuse of stop-and-frisk -- from nearly 700,000 stops a few years ago, to less than 50,000 in 2014. And of the stops that WERE made, twice as many led to actual arrests.

Some had suggested those two priorities were in conflict. Some offered the people of this city a false choice: that we had to choose between lower crime and more respectful policing. They have been proven wrong, and that is something that we – as one New York family – celebrate.

Because, at the end of the day, we all want the same thing. We want our police officers to target the guns and gangs and illegal drugs. We want them to protect our children from violence, and our streets from disorder. We want officers to respect the innocent, and we want our neighbors to respect the police. We want an end to tragedies that stem from hostile contacts between police and unarmed New Yorkers. We want our police officers to be protected from anyone who would seek to do them harm.

I feel deeply about these issues both as a father...and as a son.

I want my kids to be able to walk in streets made safe by strong, effective policing. I want my kids – and ALL of our kids – to be judged not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.

I want those who protect our safety to be honored, respected, and recognized for the dangerous job they do.

My father wasn't a police officer, but he served in uniform, defending his country in the US Army during World War II. He came back from the Pacific missing half of one of his legs.

I admired him so much because he put everything on the line to protect our freedom. And I saw the price he paid for that service.

That is one reason I have such profound respect for the men and women of the NYPD -- for the sacrifices they make, the risks they take every day, the price they pay in the name of protecting our city. One needs to look no further than the horrific events in Paris to understand the incredibly dangerous world that our officers face each day.

We're safer when we work together – and we're seeing the results – results that matter in each of our lives, every day.

And we will not let the events of the last weeks throw us off that course.

When our hearts are filled with grief...with anger...with confusion and frustration...we must remember Dr. King's legacy – turning towards each other rather than turning on each other. Because that is what a family does.

We will embrace the change we need, and in the process, witness a new dawn -- not through vitriolic words, or vicious scapegoating, or violent protest – but through conversation and collaboration and a commitment to safety and justice and economic opportunity for every New Yorker.

That's the legacy of Dr. King. It's what I resolve to do each and every day that I'm privileged to serve as your mayor. And it's a mission that we will achieve – slowly, deliberately, with passion and resolve – as ONE New York family – working together.

Thank you very much.

From: Carey, Michael
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: First cut at MLK remarks
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 10:24:07 PM

Cool
Thanks.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 at 10:21 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: First cut at MLK remarks

2014 - it's talking about last year - and how we succeeded in bringing crime down

From: <Carey>, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 at 9:41 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: First cut at MLK remarks

Should this paragraph say 2015 or stay as 2014

<!--[if !supportLists]-->• <!--[endif]-->Now, at the start of 2014, we set out to do what some said was impossible – to change policies that were creating a divide between police and the communities they serve...at the same time we worked to make EVERY New Yorker safer.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 at 9:17 PM
To: P RAGONE <[REDACTED]>
Cc: "PhilWalzak" <[REDACTED]> <[REDACTED]> Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: First cut at MLK remarks

Gracias... MBDB dug the remarks, but said they were too long for both events - recommended that we sorta try to make it two speeches.... I reduced each one by 40 percent... Here's what I've got

From: Peter Ragone <[REDACTED]>
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 at 8:57 PM

To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Cc: Phillip Walzak <[REDACTED]> "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Re: First cut at MLK remarks

This is good. Well done

This is a personal email account. If this communication is related to official business please email me at pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov.

On Jan 18, 2015, at 10:56 AM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Here's where we are right now... Boss has this draft - but knows we're still working on it

MLK DAY REMARKS
1/18/15 DRAFT

Thank you, XXX, for that introduction.

We gather to commemorate and honor Dr. King during a challenging moment in our city – a time of shared grief...of unthinkable tragedy...but also a time of undeniable progress...and of great resolve.

Today, you've heard so many of the powerful words of Dr. King – calls for justice...for healing...for people to come together and let ourselves be guided not by hate, but by love.

At this moment, we remember that New York City is ONE family – a family that will come together in common cause – dedicated to building bridges of understanding that can and must prevent future tragedies from tearing us apart.

As Mayor, I've sat with the families of Detective Liu and Detective Ramos, and the family of Staten Islander Eric Garner.

While the circumstances of these tragedies were different, the shock and grief and heartbreaking sense of loss expressed by their families were very much the same.

We are a city that mourns the loss of life. A city that expresses the raw emotion that we feel – the anger, the sadness, the sense of injustice – in different ways – some constructive, some destructive.

The tensions seen before and after the terrible bloodshed in Brooklyn are tremors along a deep historic divide between law enforcement and communities of color. We would be remiss to deny it, and reckless to let it go unaddressed.

That's why so many New Yorkers took to the streets to have their voices heard...joining together in a call for change. We recognize peaceful protests as a legitimate way for people in a democracy to make their voices heard -- and we honor that right.

But we also know that the veil of free expression will NEVER excuse the behavior of those who say reprehensible things -- such as those who call for violence against our police. Spewing hatred towards those we entrust to protect us -- spewing hatred toward ANYONE -- only undermines the cause of peaceful protesters who want reforms to continue.

As Dr. King said: "Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that."

We need less shouting, and more constructive dialogue. We need to march forward together -- making our city work for every neighborhood...every borough...every child.

Now, at the start of 2014, we set out to do what some said was impossible -- to change policies that were creating a divide between police and the communities they serve...at the same time we worked to make EVERY New Yorker safer.

And to that end, we've made great progress. Last year, the men and women of our police force brought crime to a record low. Homicides...a record low. Robberies...a record low. A nearly 5 percent reduction in crime from even last year's historic low.

At the same time, we've begun to reform the WAY we police -- ending the overuse of stop-and-frisk -- from nearly 700,000 stops a few years ago, to less than 50,000 in 2014. And of the stops that WERE made, twice as many led to actual arrests.

Some had suggested those two priorities were in conflict. Some offered the people of this city a false choice: that we had to choose between lower crime and more respectful policing. They have been proven wrong, and that is something that we -- as one New York family -- celebrate.

We proved the naysayers wrong because we knew the truth – that building a better relationship between police and those they serve makes both our people AND our police safer. It allows officers to get better information from neighbors on the real sources of crime. It frees our officers from the burden of making unnecessary stops just to meet a quota. It leads to policing that both protects AND respects.

Because, at the end of the day, we all want the same thing. We want our police officers to target the guns and gangs and illegal drugs. We want them to protect our children from violence, and our streets from disorder. We want officers to respect the innocent, and we want our neighbors to respect the police. We want an end to tragedies that stem from hostile contacts between police and unarmed New Yorkers. We want our police officers to be protected from anyone who would seek to do them harm.

I feel deeply about these issues both as a father...and as a son.

I want my kids to be able to walk in streets made safe by strong, effective policing. I want my kids – and ALL of our kids – to be judged not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.

I want those who protect our safety to be honored, respected, and recognized for the dangerous job they do.

My father wasn't a police officer, but he served in uniform, defending his country in the US Army during World War II. He came back from the Pacific missing half of one of his legs.

I admired him so much because he put everything on the line to protect our freedom. And I saw the price he paid for that service.

That is one reason I have such profound respect for the men and women of the NYPD -- for the sacrifices they make, the risks they take every day, the price they pay in the name of protecting our city. One need look no further than the horrific events in Paris to understand the incredibly dangerous world our officers face each day.

That's why we have done so much to protect our police. When we saw an increase in shootings last spring, we increased police overtime. When we saw problems in the housing authority, we invested in exterior lights, so that officers would have a clearer vision of what was going on. We've invested in new technologies – from GPS tracking of gunshots, to equipping officers with sophisticated smartphones – to help police do their jobs while staying safer in the process.

That's what public safety is all about – policing that protects our neighbors from violence; policing that protects our civil rights; policing that protects our officers from the dangerous world they courageously face each day. We're safer when we work together – and we're seeing the results – results that matter in each of our lives, every day.

And we will not let the events of the last weeks throw us off that course.

It's been a very difficult time -- there's no denying that. The death of Eric Garner was a tragic loss. As was the death of Michael Brown. And the assassination of Detectives Liu and Ramos was an attack on all that's good about New York. It was an attack on law enforcement, on our city, and on our society itself.

When our hearts are filled with grief...with anger...with confusion and frustration...we must remember Dr. King's legacy – turning towards each other rather than turning on each other. Because that is what a family does.

My grandparents came to this city from Southern Italy 100 years ago. They left their home and came here for a reason. To them – and to countless others – New York was a bright beacon of boundless opportunity. A place where what mattered was how hard you were willing to work and how big you were able to dream -- not where you were born, the cadence of your voice, or the size of your pocketbook.

That's the city – and the sacred promise – that the men and women of the NYPD are entrusted with protecting. And that's the city the people in every community across New York yearn to live in.

It's the promise that we're fighting to realize for every New Yorker – not just by protecting their physical safety, but by addressing their economic insecurity – from Pre-K and after-school, to paid sick leave and living wage...to job creation, environmental protection, and the boldest affordable housing initiative our city has ever undertaken.

We will embrace the change we need, and in the process, witness a new dawn -- not through vitriolic words, or vicious scapegoating, or violent protest – but through conversation and collaboration and a commitment to safety and justice and economic opportunity for every New Yorker.

That's the legacy of Dr. King. It's what I resolve to do each and every day that I'm privileged to serve as your mayor. And it's a mission that we will achieve – slowly, deliberately, with passion and resolve – as ONE New York family – working together.

Thank you very much.

From: Phillip Walzak <[REDACTED]>
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 at 11:50 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Peter Ragone <[REDACTED]> "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: First cut at MLK remarks

i think this is pretty good made some edits, below - red are adds or changes; italics are sections i think we can cut out or down significantly have some strikethroughs here and there i also think we should invoke Dr King 1-2 more times in this, to tie it up nicely others should have a look, i think the boss should see this before the game

thanks

Thank you, XXX, for that introduction.

We gather to commemorate and honor Dr. King during a challenging moment in our City – a time of shared grief...of unthinkable tragedy...but also a time of undeniable progress...and of great resolve.

Today, you've heard so many of the powerful words of Dr. King – calls for justice...for healing...for people to come together and let ourselves be guided not by hate, but by love.

At this moment, we remember that New York City is one family – a family that will come together in common cause in light of the new era that we have forged together – dedicated to building bridges of understanding that can and must prevent future tragedies from tearing us apart again.

At the start of 2014, we set out to do what some said was impossible – to change policies that were creating a divide of distrust between police and the communities they serve...at the same time we worked to make EVERY New Yorker safer.

And to that end, we've made great progress. Last year, the men and women of our police force brought crime to a record low. Homicides...a record low. Robberies...a record low. A nearly 5 percent reduction in crime from even last year's historic low.

At the same time, we've begun to reform the WAY we police – ending the overuse of stop-and-frisk -- from nearly 700,000 stops a few years ago, to less than 50,000 in 2014. And of the stops that WERE made, twice as many led to actual arrests.

Some had suggested those two priorities were in conflict. Some offered the people of this city a false choice: that we had to choose between lower crime and more respectful policing. They have been proven wrong, and that is something we – as one New York family – celebrate.

And here's WHY we proved the naysayers wrong. Because we know the truth – that building a better relationship between police and those they serve makes both our people AND our police safer. It allows officers to get better information from neighbors on the real sources of crime. It frees our officers from the burden of making unnecessary stops just to meet a quota. It leads to policing that both protects AND respects.

My father served in the US Army in World War II. He came back from the Pacific missing half of one of his legs.

I admired him so much because he put everything on the line to protect our freedom. And I saw the price he paid for that service.

Over the past weeks, there has been a lot of noise and conjecture, but I want to make one thing absolutely clear: I have a profound respect for the men and women of the NYPD, for the sacrifices they make, the risks they take every day, the price they pay in the name of protecting our city.

Even before tragedy struck the department, I heard firsthand from so many inside the NYPD about the challenges that our officers face in a complicated world. One need look no further than the horrific events in Paris to understand the gravity of the challenges that police officers face each day.

So what are we doing to support the men and women of the NYPD?

To start, we made critical investments to support the everyday efforts of our officers. When we saw an increase in shootings last spring, we increased police overtime. When we saw problems in the housing authority, we invested in exterior lights so that officers would have a clearer vision of what was going on. We've invested in new technologies – from GPS tracking of gunshots, to equipping officers with sophisticated smartphones – to help police do their jobs while staying safer in the process.

That's what public safety is all about – policing that protects our neighbors from violence; policing that protects our civil rights; policing that protects our officers from the dangerous world they courageously face each day. We're safer when we work together – and we're seeing the results – results that matter in each of our lives, every day.

And we will not let the events of the last weeks throw us off that course.

It's been a very difficult time, there's no denying that. The death of Eric Garner was a tragic loss. As was the death of Michael Brown. And the assassination of Detectives Liu and Ramos was an attack on all that's good about New York. It was an attack on law enforcement, on our city, and on our society itself.

And these losses remind us of the need – and of all of our responsibility – to emphasize calm and peace and unity in times of crisis, even if we are saddened or angry or frustrated. Because that is in the spirit of Dr. King – and that ultimately is in the best interest of New York City.

Now, some have suggested that the way the city handled police reform protests was the source of the challenges we face today. That's an understandable assertion, but one that is fundamentally wrong. [different segue]

The tensions seen before and after the terrible bloodshed in Brooklyn are tremors along a deep historic rift of distrust between law enforcement and communities of color. We would be remiss to deny it, and reckless to let it go unaddressed.

And as we recognize protests as a legitimate way for people in a democracy to make their voices heard, as we honor that right, we also know that the veil of free expression will never, EVER excuse the behavior of those rogue protestors who said reprehensible things, with some even calling for violence against our police. That's unacceptable in every way – spewing hatred towards those we entrust to protect us – spewing hatred toward anyone, and undermining the cause of peaceful protesters who want our police reforms to continue. We as a city should not – and will not – turn a blind eye to those who attempt to divide us, rather than unite us.

But if we only focus on the loudest and most corrosive voices in this, or in any discussion, we inhibit our ability to achieve the positive change we all want. We need less shouting, and more constructive dialogue. We need to march forward – making our city work for every neighborhood, every borough, every child.

My grandparents came to this city from Southern Italy 100 years ago. They left their home and came here for a reason. To them – and to countless others – New York was a bright beacon of boundless opportunity. A place where what mattered was how hard you were willing to work and how big you were able to dream -- not where you were born, the cadence of your voice, or the size of your pocketbook.

That's the city – and the sacred promise – that the men and women of the NYPD are entrusted with protecting. And that's the city the people in every community across New York yearn to live in.

It's the promise that we're fighting to realize for every New Yorker – not just by protecting their physical safety, but by addressing their economic insecurity – from Pre-K and after-school, to paid sick leave and living wage...to job creation, environmental protection, and the boldest affordable housing initiative our city has ever undertaken.

We will embrace the change we need, and in the process, witness a new dawn -- not through vitriolic words, or vicious scapegoating, or violent protest – but through conversation and collaboration and a commitment to safety and justice and economic opportunity for every New Yorker.

That's the legacy of Dr. King. It's what I resolve to do each and every day that I'm privileged to serve as your mayor. And it's a mission that we will achieve – slowly, deliberately, with passion and resolve – as ONE New York family – working together.

Thank you very much.

From: Ragone, Peter
To: Carter, Zach \(Law\); Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: Carey, Michael; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Carrion, Marco A.; Walzak, Phil; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Tomorrow - NAN
Date: Sunday, January 18, 2015 11:37:22 PM

Ok, JDC any more changes?

Elana can you get these to him in the am?

----- Original Message -----

From: Carter, Zachary W. (Law) [<mailto:zcarter@law.nyc.gov>]
Sent: Sunday, January 18, 2015 08:23 PM
To: Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Carey, Michael; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Carrion, Marco A.; Walzak, Phil; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Tomorrow - NAN

I suggest changing to the paragraph referring to the Garner family and those immediately following:

"As Mayor, I've sat with the families of Detective Liu and Detective Ramos, who were slain because of the uniforms they wore, proudly protecting us from harm. And I have grieved with those who have suffered when our justice system has failed them, either by taking their liberty or their lives.

These are all human tragedies that afflict real families with loss and grief. Whether the victim of injustice is wearing a uniform or a civilian member of our community, we are moved to act.

Over the past weeks and months, so many New Yorkers took to the streets - black and white, young and old - in overwhelmingly peaceful protest in the great tradition of our democracy. And when our two heroes were murdered while doing their duty, the outpouring of support for the families for the fallen came from every corner of this City.

Yes, there those on both occasions who engaged in acts that were intolerable. Assaults on police officers exhibiting the highest degree of professionalism and restraint were met with outrage by the vast majority of New Yorkers. And those who would disrupt ceremonies for our fallen heroes have heard the loud disapproval of most New Yorkers."

----- Original Message -----

From: Wolfe, Emma [<mailto:EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>]
Sent: Sunday, January 18, 2015 10:40 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Ragone, Peter <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>; Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>; Carrion, Marco A. <mcarrion@cityhall.nyc.gov>; Phillip Walzak; Leopold, Elana <LEopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>; Carter, Zachary W. (Law)
Subject: Re: Tomorrow - NAN

Plus Zach

Zach are these remarks okay given our conversation this evening?

> On Jan 18, 2015, at 10:22 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:
>
> Here are the remarks as drafted - although MBDB calling me to tweak in a > bit:
>
>
> MLK DAY REMARKS

> Brooklyn Academy of Music
> 1/18/15 DRAFT
>
>
> Thank you, XXX, for that introduction.
>
> We gather to commemorate and honor Dr. King during a challenging moment in > our city – a time of shared grief...of unthinkable tragedy...but also a time > of undeniable progress...and of great resolve.
>
> Today, you've heard so many of the powerful words of Dr. King – calls for > justice...for healing...for people to come together and let ourselves be > guided not by hate, but by love.
>
> At this moment, we remember that New York City is ONE family – a family > that will come together in common cause – dedicated to building bridges of > understanding that can and must prevent future tragedies from tearing us > apart.
>
> As Mayor, I've sat with the families of Detective Liu and Detective Ramos, > and the family of Staten Islander Eric Garner.
>
> While the circumstances of these tragedies were different, the shock and > grief and heartbreaking sense of loss expressed by their families were > very much the same.
>
> We are a city that mourns the loss of life. A city that expresses the raw > emotion that we feel – the anger, the sadness, the sense of injustice – in > different ways – some constructive, some destructive.
>
> Over the past weeks and months, so many New Yorkers took to the streets to > have their voices heard...joining together in a call for change. We > recognize peaceful protests as a legitimate way for people in a democracy > to make their voices heard -- and we honor that right.
>
> But we also know that the veil of free expression will NEVER excuse the > behavior of those who say reprehensible things -- such as those who call > for violence against our police. Spewing hatred towards those we entrust > to protect us – spewing hatred toward ANYONE -- only undermines the cause > of peaceful protesters who want reforms to continue.
>
> As Dr. King said: "Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do > that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that."
>
> We need less shouting, and more constructive dialogue. We need to march > forward together – making our city work for every neighborhood...every > borough...every child.
>
> Now, at the start of 2014, we set out to do what some said was impossible > – to change policies that were creating a divide between police and the > communities they serve...at the same time we worked to make EVERY New Yorker > safer.
>
> And to that end, we've made great progress. Last year, the men and women > of our police force brought crime to a record low. Homicides...a record > low. Robberies...a record low. A nearly 5 percent reduction in crime from > even last year's historic low.
>
> At the same time, we've begun to reform the WAY we police – ending the > overuse of stop-and-frisk -- from nearly 700,000 stops a few years ago, to > less than 50,000 in 2014. And of the stops that WERE made, twice as many > led to actual arrests.

>
> Some had suggested those two priorities were in conflict. Some offered > the people of this city a false choice: that we had to choose between > lower crime and more respectful policing. They have been proven wrong, > and that is something that we – as one New York family – celebrate.
>
> Because, at the end of the day, we all want the same thing. We want our > police officers to target the guns and gangs and illegal drugs. We want > them to protect our children from violence, and our streets from disorder.
> We want officers to respect the innocent, and we want our neighbors to > respect the police. We want an end to tragedies that stem from hostile > contacts between police and unarmed New Yorkers. We want our police > officers to be protected from anyone who would seek to do them harm.
>
> That’s why we have done so much to protect our police. When we saw an > increase in shootings last spring, we increased police overtime. When we > saw problems in the housing authority, we invested in exterior lights, so > that officers would have a clearer vision of what was going on. We’ve > invested in new technologies – from GPS tracking of gunshots, to equipping > officers with sophisticated smartphones – to help police do their jobs > while staying safer in the process.
>
> That’s what public safety is all about – policing that protects our > neighbors from violence; policing that protects our civil rights; policing > that protects our officers from the dangerous world they courageously face > each day. We’re safer when we work together – and we’re seeing the > results – results that matter in each of our lives, every day.
>
> And we will not let the events of the last weeks throw us off that course.
>
> When our hearts are filled with grief...with anger...with confusion and > frustration...we must remember Dr. King’s legacy – turning towards each > other rather than turning on each other. Because that is what a family > does.
>
> My grandparents came to this city from Southern Italy 100 years ago. They > left their home and came here for a reason. To them – and to countless > others – New York was a bright beacon of boundless opportunity. A place > where what mattered was how hard you were willing to work and how big you > were able to dream -- not where you were born, the cadence of your voice, > or the size of your pocketbook.
>
> We will embrace the change we need, and in the process, witness a new dawn
> -- not through vitriolic words, or vicious scapegoating, or violent > protest – but through conversation and collaboration and a commitment to > safety and justice and economic opportunity for every New Yorker.
>
> That’s the legacy of Dr. King. It’s what I resolve to do each and every > day that I’m privileged to serve as your mayor. And it’s a mission that > we will achieve – slowly, deliberately, with passion and resolve – as ONE
> New York family – working together.
>
> Thank you very much.
>
>
> —
>
> MLK DAY REMARKS

> National Action Network
> 1/18/15 DRAFT
>
>
> Thank you, XXX, for that introduction.
>
> We gather to commemorate and honor Dr. King during a challenging moment in > our city – a time of shared grief...of unthinkable tragedy...but also a time > of undeniable progress...and of great resolve.
>
> Today, you've heard so many of the powerful words of Dr. King – calls for > justice...for healing...for people to come together and let ourselves be > guided not by hate, but by love.
>
> At this moment, we remember that New York City is ONE family – a family > that will come together in common cause – dedicated to building bridges of > understanding that can and must prevent future tragedies from tearing us > apart.
>
> As Mayor, I've sat with the families of Detective Liu and Detective Ramos, > and the family of Staten Islander Eric Garner.
>
> While the circumstances of these tragedies were different, the shock and > grief and heartbreaking sense of loss expressed by their families were > very much the same.
>
> We are a city that mourns the loss of life. A city that expresses the raw > emotion that we feel – the anger, the sadness, the sense of injustice – in > different ways – some constructive, some destructive.
>
> We recognize peaceful protests as a legitimate way for people in a > democracy to make their voices heard -- and we honor that right.
>
> But we also know that the veil of free expression will NEVER excuse the > behavior of those who say reprehensible things -- such as those who call > for violence against our police. Spewing hatred towards those we entrust > to protect us – spewing hatred toward ANYONE -- only undermines the cause > of peaceful protesters who want reforms to continue.
>
> As Dr. King said: "Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do > that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that."
>
> We need less shouting, and more constructive dialogue. We need to march > forward together – making our city work for every neighborhood...every > borough...every child. And we've begun that march.
>
> At the start of 2014, we set out to do what some said was impossible – to > change policies that were creating a divide between police and the > communities they serve...at the same time we worked to make EVERY New Yorker > safer.
>
> And to that end, we've made great progress. Last year, the men and women > of our police force brought crime to a record low. Homicides...a record > low. Robberies...a record low. A nearly 5 percent reduction in crime from > even last year's historic low.
>
> At the same time, we've begun to reform the WAY we police – ending the > overuse of stop-and-frisk -- from nearly 700,000 stops a few years ago, to > less than 50,000 in 2014. And of the stops that WERE made, twice as many > led to actual arrests.

>
> Some had suggested those two priorities were in conflict. Some offered > the people of this city a false choice: that we had to choose between > lower crime and more respectful policing. They have been proven wrong, > and that is something that we – as one New York family – celebrate.
>
> Because, at the end of the day, we all want the same thing. We want our > police officers to target the guns and gangs and illegal drugs. We want > them to protect our children from violence, and our streets from disorder.
> We want officers to respect the innocent, and we want our neighbors to > respect the police. We want an end to tragedies that stem from hostile > contacts between police and unarmed New Yorkers. We want our police > officers to be protected from anyone who would seek to do them harm.
>
> I feel deeply about these issues both as a father...and as a son.
>
> I want my kids to be able to walk in streets made safe by strong, > effective policing. I want my kids – and ALL of our kids – to be judged > not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.
>
> I want those who protect our safety to be honored, respected, and > recognized for the dangerous job they do.
>
> My father wasn't a police officer, but he served in uniform, defending his > country in the US Army during World War II. He came back from the Pacific > missing half of one of his legs.
>
> I admired him so much because he put everything on the line to protect our > freedom. And I saw the price he paid for that service.
>
> That is one reason I have such profound respect for the men and women of > the NYPD -- for the sacrifices they make, the risks they take every day, > the price they pay in the name of protecting our city. One needs to look > no further than the horrific events in Paris to understand the incredibly > dangerous world that our officers face each day.
>
>
> We're safer when we work together – and we're seeing the results – results > that matter in each of our lives, every day.
>
> And we will not let the events of the last weeks throw us off that course.
>
> When our hearts are filled with grief...with anger...with confusion and > frustration...we must remember Dr. King's legacy – turning towards each > other rather than turning on each other. Because that is what a family > does.
>
> We will embrace the change we need, and in the process, witness a new dawn
> -- not through vitriolic words, or vicious scapegoating, or violent > protest – but through conversation and collaboration and a commitment to > safety and justice and economic opportunity for every New Yorker.
>
> That's the legacy of Dr. King. It's what I resolve to do each and every > day that I'm privileged to serve as your mayor. And it's a mission that > we will achieve – slowly, deliberately, with passion and resolve – as ONE
> New York family – working together.
>
> Thank you very much.
>
>

>
>
>
>
>
>> On 1/18/15, 9:52 PM, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>
>> Think we should send language to zach carter
>>
>> ----- Original Message -----
>> From: Ragone, Peter
>> Sent: Sunday, January 18, 2015 09:50 PM
>> To: Wolfe, Emma; Carey, Michael; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Carrion, Marco
>> A.; Walzak, Phil; Leopold, Elana; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
>> <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
>> Subject: Re: Tomorrow - NAN
>>
>> From JDC
>>
>> You're think we're okay to say, in our remarks, that we sat with the >> family? I mean, that's not about the case - it's just a fact
>>
>> ----- Original Message -----
>> From: Wolfe, Emma
>> Sent: Sunday, January 18, 2015 06:06 PM
>> To: Carey, Michael; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Carrion, Marco A.; Walzak, >> Phil; Ragone, Peter; Leopold, Elana
>> Subject: Tomorrow - NAN
>>
>> Legal advice is that mayor + comptroller need to have limited exposure >> and contact to garner family tomorrow. Folks just need to be careful and >> aware that there's pending lawsuit. We would be careful anyway, but this >> is added reason. Zach says he shouldn't say anything specific about the >> case, and limit the contact with them insofar as that's possible and >> appropriate, if they're there.
>>
>

From: Liz Hegarty
To: John, Roxanne
Subject: Re: Chirlane
Date: Monday, January 19, 2015 11:16:27 AM

No worries, thanks for clarifying.

On 1/19/15, 10:15 AM, "John, Roxanne" <RJohn@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>Sorry error in system, it is 6pm, I will send again.

>

>-----Original Message-----

>From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]

>Sent: Monday, January 19, 2015 11:14 AM

>To: John, Roxanne

>Subject: Re: Chirlane

>

>Hi Roxanne,

>

>Just to confirm<will this meeting will be at 6 AM on Thursday?

>

>Thanks,

>

>Liz

>

><

>Liz Hegarty

>

>Assistant to John Del Cecato

>AKPD Message and Media

>Office: 312-664-7500

>Cell: 203-482-6229

>lhegarty@akpdmedia.com

>

>

>

>

>

>On 1/18/15, 8:43 PM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

>

>>I just remembered I've got SOTC run-through with Alicia and her team

>>from

>>7 to 9pm on Tuesday the 20th

>>

>>Could we do a little earlier in the day?

>>

>>On 1/17/15, 5:08 PM, "John, Roxanne" <RJohn@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>>>

>>>Mbdb and CMC off

>>> holding jan 20th.

>>>

>>>

>>>Sent from my iPhone

>>>

>>>> On Jan 17, 2015, at 5:01 PM, "Hagelgans, Andrea"
>>>><AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>>>
>>>> The 20th would work better for me. Thanks!
>>>>
>>>> ----- Original Message -----
>>>> From: John, Roxanne
>>>> Sent: Saturday, January 17, 2015 04:40 PM
>>>> To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
>>>> Cc: Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; FLONYC; B
>>>> Subject: Re: Chirlane
>>>>
>>>> Can everyone meet January 20th at 6.30 pm or January 22nd at 6pm at >>>>Gracie?
>>>>
>>>> Sent from my iPhone
>>>>
>>>>> On Jan 17, 2015, at 11:06 AM, "John Del Cecato"
>>>>><jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
>>>>>wrote:
>>>>>
>>>>> Sounds good
>>>>>
>>>>>> On 1/17/15, 10:33 AM, "B" <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>>>>>
>>>>>>
>>>>>>> Need you all to meet with or do a call with Chirlane and Roxanne >>>>>>>this coming week re: comms support for Chirlane's work going >>>>>>>forward. As most of you know (and pls keep this confidential for >>>>>>>now), Rebecca is leaving at the end of March. We need a truly >>>>>>>shared vision for who will do this work going forward and how.
>>>>>>>Roxanne will set it up. Thanks
>>>>>>
>>
>

From: Abeywardena, Penny
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Fwd: PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, JANUARY 20, 2015
Date: Monday, January 19, 2015 1:21:27 PM
Attachments: image001.png

It came together nicely...thank you!

Penny Abeywardena
Commissioner
Mayor's Office for International Affairs

Begin forwarded message:

From: Mayor's Press Office <pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: January 19, 2015 at 1:01:28 PM EST
To: Mayor's Press Office <pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, JANUARY 20, 2015

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, JANUARY 20, 2015

All times local:

On Monday night, Mayor Bill de Blasio will depart New York City for Paris, where on Tuesday he will attend a series of events with French officials and Jewish community leaders to honor and commemorate the victims of the terror attacks that occurred there earlier this month.

The Mayor will stand in solidarity with our friends in Paris and across France to send the clear message that together we will fight terrorism and anti-Semitism at every turn, and that crude attempts to intimidate free expression will not succeed.

The Mayor will return to New York City Tuesday night. A schedule of events appears below.

Press Schedule

10:00 AM - Lay Wreath at Hyper Casher with Deputy Mayor Klugman

10:30 AM - Meeting with Leaders of the Jewish Community with Deputy Mayor Klugman
(Closed press.)

11:30 AM - Meeting with Mayor Hidalgo at Parisian City Council Assembly Room
(This meeting will be closed press. There may be a photo spray opportunity.)

12:15 PM - Lay Wreath at Charlie Hebdo with Mayor Hidalgo

12:25 PM - Lay Wreath where Police Officer Ahmed Merbat was Shot and Killed

12:45 PM - Press Statement and Availability with Mayor Hidalgo at Place de la République

2:30 PM - Drop By “Le Cent Quatre” - a cultural center representative of the diversity of Paris

###

From: B
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:37:09 AM

Excellent! Thanks

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 04:33 PM
To: B
Subject: Re: Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015

Laying of wreath, talking with mayor, meeting with locals and officers, everything looks very dignified and compassionate. The message of combatting anti-Semitism and terrorism is getting through. And other than a tiny jab from the Post, nobody saying you overstepped. Very respectful coverage.

Even a little ideological connection with Hidalgo re: early childhood/helping working family. And lots of mentions on how quick and packed the trip is - so no whining that you're somehow living the good life.

On Jan 20, 2015, at 10:19 AM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

What are you seeing? What's working?

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 04:16 PM
To: Wolfe, Emma; Ragone, Peter; B
Subject: Re: Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015

Kudos to the team - the coverage has been flawless

From: <Wolfe>, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 at 10:13 AM
To: "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, BDB Official <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015

It's really really really awesome.

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:12 AM
To: B
Cc: Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Fw: Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015

See all TV leads. Great move for a city and a mayor hidalgo who is a friend. And great TV stories. Great message for our constituencies...

From: Brown, Tashawn
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 07:07 AM
Subject: Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015

Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015

Leading Stories:

5:00 am –

CBS 2 - JFK Bomb Scare; Newark Ebola Scare; Mayor in Paris
NBC 4 - Incident in Cincinnati; ISIS Hostages; Mayor in Paris
FOX 5 - State of the Union; ISIS Hostages; Mayor in Paris
ABC 7 - Mayor in Paris; ISIS Hostages; Incident in Cincinnati
PIX 11 - Newark Ebola Scare; JFK Bomb Scare; NYPD Stats

6:00 am –

CBS 2 - Mayor in Paris; JFK Bomb Scare; Newark Ebola Scare
NBC 4 - Bronx Building Fire; Incident in Cincinnati; ISIS Hostages;
FOX 5 - State of the Union; ISIS Hostages; Mayor in Paris
ABC 7 - ISIS Hostages; Incident in Cincinnati; Mayor in Paris
PIX 11 - Corey Booker Presidential Run; Newark Ebola Scare; JFK Bomb Scare;

Mayor de Blasio in Broadcast:

Mayor de Blasio in Paris to Show Support and Meet with Jewish Community Leaders

ABC 7 - Dray Clark - 5:02 am

Right now, Mayor Bill de Blasio is in Paris to visit the site of the deadly terror attacks earlier this month and pay tribute to the victims. In the last half hour, the mayor started meeting with Jewish community leaders there. Mayor de Blasio will be covering a lot of ground in Paris, making six stops in less than three hours. He says the trip is a message of support to people in Paris, and all across the country of France after they suffered one of the country's worst terrorist attacks ever. Video shows the mayor outside a Jewish center where he is meeting with leaders of the Jewish community. This is the mayor's second stop, after he laid a wreath at the Kosher market where four people were killed during an intense hostage standoff inside the market. The four victims were Jewish. The mayor will also lay a wreath at Charlie Hebdo, where 12 people were shot and killed. The three days of attacks led to a large demonstration of unity among the people of France, and world leaders, who also marched in solidarity with the country. In addition to visiting Charlie Hebdo, the mayor will also lay a wreath where police officer Ahmed Merbat was killed. Certainly, the mayor shares the city's pain of losing an officer in the line of duty after recently losing Detectives Liu and Ramos in Brooklyn. He will also travel to Place de la République to meet with the mayor of Paris, before departing at 4:35 pm, which will be 10:35 am our time. Another issue the mayor plans to address and discuss is growing anti-semitism happening across France. He wants to discuss ways of trying to prevent more attacks.

NBC 4 - Michael Garguilo - 5:02 am

Mayor de Blasio is in Paris preparing to meet with the city's mayor to express solidarity with the city after the deadly terror attacks. In the past hour, the mayor placed flowers outside of the Kosher supermarket where four Jewish hostages were murdered during a siege that took place a week ago. The mayor also met with Jewish community leaders. Later on, the mayor will place flowers at the offices of Charlie Hebdo for the people who were killed in the terror attack.

CBS 2 - Diane Macedo - 5:05 am

Right now, Mayor de Blasio is in Paris as part of a show of solidarity against terrorism and anti-semitism. About half an hour ago, he laid flowers to honor the victims killed in the terror attack at the Charlie Hebdo office, and at the site where an officer was shot and killed responding to the attacks. De Blasio will attend closed-door meetings with French officials and Jewish leaders as well. He returns to New York tonight.

FOX 5 - Ben Simmoneau - 5:08 am

Mayor de Blasio is in Paris this morning to deliver a message from New Yorkers. He is there to show support and remember the 17 victims of the deadly terror attacks. The trip was announced just yesterday, right before he left. A short while ago, he laid a wreath at the Kosher market where people were killed. Later, he is expected to do the same at the offices of Charlie Hebdo, and at the spot where a policewoman [sic] was gunned down. He is also meeting with several French officials, including the mayor of Paris, and Jewish community leaders.

ABC 7 - Dray Clark - 6:02 am

Right now, Mayor de Blasio is in France alongside his Paris counterpart, paying respect to the 17 people who were killed earlier this month in a terrorist attack. ABC-7's Dave Evans is in Paris following the mayor, and just tweeted a photo showing the mayor with Mayor Anne Hidalgo.

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 6:31 am

Right now, Mayor de Blasio is in Paris in a show of solidarity in the wake of the city's terror attacks. The mayor is currently outside the offices of Charlie Hebdo where he will leave flowers at the memorial to honor the people who were massacred in the magazines offices' nearly two weeks ago. Earlier this morning, the mayor laid a floral tribute to the Jewish victims who were murdered at a Kosher supermarket. He also shook hands with the police officers on duty before meeting with Jewish community leaders. [Anchor Darlene Rodriguez: "Michael it was a surprise sort of visit because it really was only announced a very short while before he actually departed.” Anchor Michael Garguilo: “Right, and there’s many things that he’s going to be doing this morning. And it really shows the significance and the solidarity of two cities that have faced terror related challenges -- both Paris and of course New York. And we saw a lot of expressions of sympathy from the people of Paris on 9/11. The mayor, no doubt, wants to return those expressions of solidarity and sympathy to the people of Paris as well.”] The mayor will also meet with the mayor of Paris. [Anchor Darlene Rodriguez: “With Mayor de Blasio’s visit -- the White House was sharply criticized, you might remember, for not sending a high-level person -- the president nor the vice president -- to represent the United States when they had that peaceful march and rally last week. So, this is very significant. Anchor Michael Garguilo: “I want to also point out the woman you see to the mayor’s left there -- I believe that is the Mayor of Paris Anne Hidalgo. Very interesting woman. She is actually the daughter of Spanish immigrants who came after the Spanish Civil War in the late 1930s.”]

ABC 7 - Dave Evans - 6:33 am

ABC-7’s Dave Evans is traveling with the mayor in Paris. The mayor is inside the Hôtel de Ville, which is Paris’s version of City Hall, talking with the mayor of Paris. The mayor will also be going to Charlie Hebdo. The visit is short for the mayor, and he returns later tonight.

PIX 11 - Lisa Mateo - 5:07 am

Mayor de Blasio is in Paris to show support to the city after the recent terror attacks. Just moments ago, the mayor placed flowers at the memorial outside the Kosher market where four hostages were killed. Later today, de Blasio will sit in on two meetings with leaders of the Jewish community and Parisian City Council. Mayor de Blasio will end the afternoon laying wreaths at the offices of Charlie Hebdo and the spot where a police officer was killed. The mayor plans to return to New York City tonight.

PIX 11 - Allison Kaden - 6:08 am

The mayor is meeting with French officials and Jewish leaders. A short time ago, Mayor de Blasio laid a wreath at the Kosher supermarket with the city’s deputy mayor, honoring the people killed there earlier this month. The mayor is also meeting with Jewish leaders and the mayor of Paris later today. The mayor is scheduled to lay a wreath at Charlie Hebdo and also where a police officer was shot and killed. This visit comes after the White House failed to send a high-level official to represent the United States in the anti-terror march. There are several aides traveling with the mayor including his spokesperson who is providing twitter updates. The mayor will return to New York City later tonight.

UNIVISION 41 - Katiria Soto - 6:05 am

TELEMUNDO 47 - Luis Alejandro Medina - 6:09 am

TELEMUNDO 47 - Luis Alejandro Medina - 6:31 am

Mayor de Blasio Attends NAN Martin Luther King, Jr. Day Celebration

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 5:05 am

Before the mayor left the city last night, he attended the Reverend Al Sharpton’s annual Martin Luther King Jr. celebration, and called for more support of the NYPD. He had harsh words for those who attack police. Mayor: "If you're saying something vicious and vile to a police officer, you're not making change. You're not moving us forward. You're holding us back." This was the mayor's first public appearance with Sharpton since a grand jury declined to indict an officer in the death of Eric Garner. Since then, relations between City Hall and the NYPD have been strained. Some officers feel the mayor's relationship with Sharpton is problematic. SBA President Ed Mullins: "I think it raises the question of sincerity. I think that that is something we need to look at again." Mayor de Blasio vowed to continue to seek reforms to bring the police and community closer.

Arrests and Summonses on the Rise Following NYPD Slowdown

PIX 11 - Allison Kaden - 5:05 am

This morning, there is more new evidence that the NYPD's so-called slowdown may be done. The numbers show there are more tickets, summonses, and arrests as the city begins to reverse course. The first hint that NYPD beat cops were making fewer arrests and giving out fewer tickets began in late December. Arrests and summonses dropped after two Brooklyn cops were shot and killed in their patrol car. Mayor de Blasio's reaction to the death strained his relationship with the NYPD even further. Unions denied a work slowdown but Commissioner Bratton acknowledged that there was a slowdown. Now, the numbers are rising in terms of arrests and summonses. Reports show that NYPD officers made 6,910 arrests last week, which is an increase of about 47 percent compared to the previous week. When compared with last year's data the amount of arrests and summonses is still 20 percent lower this year. During the slowdown the city lost millions of dollars in ticket revenue. The New York Times reports that an area of policing that continues to lag is quality of life violations, which is the cornerstone of Commissioner Bratton's broken windows style of policing. His theory is if you keep quality of life violations low then overall crime will also be lower.

FOX 5 - Kerry Drew - 5:38 am

A rise in tickets and arrests could mean the end to an NYPD slowdown. Arrests jumped up by nearly 50 percent this week, and summonses surged by nearly 160 percent during the same time period. Still, records show that police activity is well below what it was a year ago. NYPD Commissioner Bill Bratton did acknowledge that his officers were on a slowdown following the December 20th killings of Officers Wenjian Liu and Rafael Ramos. Some police union officials believe anger and dissatisfaction with Mayor de Blasio has contributed to this slowdown.

[The mayor is not mentioned in the following report:]

ABC 7 - Ken Rosato - 6:05 am

The slowdown at the NYPD has petered out. Last week, activity at the department bounced back after an apparent job action by patrol officers. The new stats show over 6,900 arrests, up 47 percent from the depth of the slowdown, and over 32,000 summonses were written, up 159 percent.

Agency Mentions:

NYPD Officers Buy Replacements For Their Bulletproof Vests

PIX 11 - Lisa Mateo - 5:14 am

Some NYPD cops have decided to spend their own money to buy replacements for their bulletproof vests. According to the New York Post, at least a dozen officers have purchased their own protection to fend off rifle rounds. The city has promised to buy more than 12,000 vests since the Post article was released. Some officers say they can't afford to wait.

City Council to Name Streets for Fallen Officers

ABC 7 - Lisa Colagrossi - 5:31 am

The first big steps will be taken today toward a big honor for two NYPD officers killed in the line of duty a month ago today. Officers at the 84th Precinct are reminded of their fallen brothers every time they walk through the door, where a memorial remains to Officers Ramos and Liu. The site of the fatal shootings – Myrtle and Tompkins Avenues – has been cleared of the thousands of flowers, candles and wreaths. Only two wreaths remain, brought by the Reverend Al Sharpton and the family of Eric Garner yesterday. The Parks Committee of the City Council will be holding a hearing this afternoon to rename two streets after the slain men. The streets tagged for co-naming are Ridgewood Avenue and West 6th Street. Both are in Brooklyn, and within the blocks where the two detectives lived. A lot of consultation went into the decision, and the locations were discussed with the families.

CBS 2 - Diane Macedo - 6:58 am

PIX 11 - Kori Chambers - 6:37 am

UNIVISION 41 - Merijoel Duran - 6:05 am

NYPD Officers Save Dog Trapped on Grand Central Parkway

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:49 am

Some NYPD officers went the extra mile to rescue a dog in a very dangerous situation. Yesterday, someone noticed a pitbull in the middle of four lanes of traffic along the Grand Central Parkway and called 9-1-1. Officers had to block several lanes to safely reach the dog. The dog has a broken leg and is now recovering at Animal Care Control in Manhattan. There is no word on who the owner is or how the dog ended up on the highway.

Local News:

Pope Francis Confirms Visit to New York City

ABC 7 - Michelle Charlesworth - 5:42 am

Get ready for a lot of people, pomp, and circumstance this fall, because Pope Francis is definitely coming to New York City. The pontiff himself confirmed his first U.S. visit in September, which will include stops in Philadelphia, Washington D.C., and New York. The Vatican is sending a planning delegation to the city next month to start hammering out details. The pope is scheduled to address the UN General Assembly, and is expected to visit St. Patrick's Cathedral, but will not attend mass there. New York church officials don't know much else about the visit. This will be the city's first papal visit since Pope Benedict came for three days in April of 2008.

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:47 am
CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 5:35 am
FOX 5 - Kerry Drew - 5:08 am
PIX 11 - Lisa Mateo - 5:14 am
UNIVISION 41 - Merijoel Duran - 6:47 am
TELEMUNDO 47 - Odalys Molina - 6:13 am

City Council to Hear from Tenants on Illegal Rentals Through AirBnB

ABC 7 - Michelle Charlesworth - 5:12 am
Today, the New York City Council will hear from tenants concerned about the rental service AirBnB. Some tenants say the service is used to create illegal hotels that is causing the number of rent-stabilized apartments in the city to dwindle. This comes after Attorney General Eric Schneiderman reported 75 percent of the listings violate zoning laws. AirBnB agrees that illegal rentals are bad for the city, and suggests officials begin taxing AirBnB hosts.

CBS 2 - Diane Macedo - 5:36 am
FOX 5 - Ben Simmoneau - 5:39 am

BAM Hosts City's Largest Martin Luther King, Jr. Day Celebration

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 5:41 am
The Brooklyn Academy of Music hosted their annual Martin Luther King, Jr. Day Celebration yesterday. More than 1,000 people attended. Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams emceed the event, and had a message to look beyond the obvious. Adams, holding up a sign reading "IMPOSSIBLE": "Let's read the first two letters first. I am possible."

Governor Cuomo To Propose Raising Age For Juvenile Offenders

NBC 4 - Michael Garguilo - 5:39 am
Governor Cuomo wants some teenagers taken out of the adult criminal justice system. He is calling for 16 and 17 year olds to be treated as juveniles. The offenders would be trialed in family court for non-violent offenses until they are 18 years old. The juveniles would also be kept away from adult prisoners under the proposal. Right now, New York and North Carolina are the only states that prosecute younger teens as adults. The proposal will be part of tomorrow's State of the State address.

Investigation into Bomb Threat At JFK Airport

NBC 4 - Katherine Creag - 5:06 am
There is an investigation into a bomb scare at JFK Airport. Police are trying to figure out who made the threatening phone call to Delta officials at around 7 pm last night. The anonymous caller said that a pipe bomb was on the plane. The call came in while the plane was still in the air. Once the plane landed at Kennedy Airport, it was immediately evacuated. Passengers onboard were searched but there was no evidence of a bomb on the plane. As a precaution, a Delta flight with the same number was also searched. Passengers were also forced off the plane and had their luggage searched but no bomb was found.

CBS 2 - Janelle Burrell - 5:01 am

ABC 7 - Ken Rosato - 5:34 am
PIX 11 - Kori Chambers - 5:05 am
FOX 5 - Ben Simmoneau - 5:36 am
UNIVISION 41 - Ana Ledo - 6:03 am
TELEMUNDO 47 - Luis Alejandro Medina - 6:06 am

Avonte Oquendo's Mother Attending State Of The Union Address

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:20 am
Senator Chuck Schumer has invited Vanessa Fontaine, the mother of Avonte Oquendo, to the State of the Union address. Avonte Oquendo is the autistic 14-year-old who was found dead after slipping out of his school in Queens.

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 6:07 am
PIX 11 - Sukanya Krishnan - 6:10 am
UNIVISION 41 - Katiria Soto - 6:09 am

Big Weekend Gives Queens Movie Theater New Life

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:50 am
A nearly century old movie theater in Queens may no longer be worried about going out of business. The owner of the Cinemart has the Oscar nominated movie American Sniper to thank for the theater's revival. Warner Bros. gave the Forest Hills theater special permission to show the film over the weekend. The owner says he saw sellout crowds and later told employees that Cinemart will not be closing anytime soon. Cinemart had not shown a first-run movie on the day it was released in years.

Incidents & Accidents:

Breaking: Ten People Injured in High-Rise Fire in the Bronx

ABC 7 - Ken Rosato - 6:16 am
Ten people are injured in the Bronx after an early morning high-rise fire in the Claremont section. The fire broke out at around 4:30 am on Washington Avenue at 169th Street. The fire began on the fourth floor, and the fire department is reporting ten non-life-threatening injuries.

NBC 4 - Michael Garguilo - 6:01 am
Most of the fire has been put out but it has not yet been declared officially under control.

CBS 2 - Jim Smith - 6:13 am
PIX 11 - Sukanya Krishnan - 6:24 am
TELEMUNDO 47 - Luis Alejandro Medina - 6:02 am

Police Search for Suspect in Possible Bias Attack in Brooklyn

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:08 am
Police have released surveillance video of a suspect in a vicious bias attack in Brooklyn. Police say the man hopped out of a SUV and beat a man on the street after making anti-gay remarks. The attack happened on the corner of Metropolitan and Marcy Avenue in Williamsburg last month. Investigators say the suspect punched the victim in the face knocking him to the ground. The victim was treated for cuts, bruises, and a broken nose.

ABC 7 - Michelle Charlesworth - 5:33 am

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 5:34 am

UNIVISION 41 - Merijoel Duran - 6:35 am

TELEMUNDO 47 - Odalys Molina - 6:06 am

Death of Missing Fort Lee Man Ruled A Homicide

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:09 am

The medical examiner has ruled the death of a Fort Lee man found dead in the Bronx as a homicide. The body of Jordan Johnson was found in the trunk of his BMW near East 211th Street last week. The medical examiner says he was choked to death. Meanwhile, police want to speak with the man caught on surveillance video leaving the scene. Investigators believe the man was inside Johnson's car.

Police Searching for Three Suspects in Bronx Home Invasion

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:38 am

Police are searching for the men involved in a home invasion in the Bronx. Investigators say the suspects called their victim ahead of time pretending to be from the buildings department and scheduled an appointment. Police have released surveillance images of two of the three suspects. Police say the men showed up to the apartment with guns. Once inside, the men allegedly tied up the 45-year-old man and took off with a iPhone and more than $1000 in cash.

TELEMUNDO 47 - Odalys Molina - 6:07 am

Police Searching for Teenaged Suspect in Crown Heights Robbery Spree

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 5:34 am

Police in Crown Heights are searching for a 16-year-old suspect on a robbery spree. They say Richard Rodgers has struck at least seven times since September. His latest robbery was reported on January 2nd, when the victim says he snatched cash from her hand.

PIX 11 - Lisa Mateo - 5:14 am

UNIVISION 41 - Katiria Soto - 6:04 am

###

From: B
To: Wolfe, Emma; Ragone, Peter
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Walzak, Phil; Fink, Avi; Abeywardena, Penny; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:38:40 AM

Phil/Penny/Avi/Michael -- great job!! You have been judged by a jury of your peers and they believe you really hit a home run here. Well done! Congrats

From: Wolfe, Emma
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 04:13 PM
To: Ragone, Peter; B
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015

It's really really really awesome.

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:12 AM
To: B
Cc: Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Fw: Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015

See all TV leads. Great move for a city and a mayor hidalgo who is a friend. And great TV stories. Great message for our constituencies...

From: Brown, Tashawn
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 07:07 AM
Subject: Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015

Morning TV News – Tuesday, January 20, 2015

Leading Stories:

5:00 am –

CBS 2 - JFK Bomb Scare; Newark Ebola Scare; Mayor in Paris
NBC 4 - Incident in Cincinnati; ISIS Hostages; Mayor in Paris
FOX 5 - State of the Union; ISIS Hostages; Mayor in Paris
ABC 7 - Mayor in Paris; ISIS Hostages; Incident in Cincinnati
PIX 11 - Newark Ebola Scare; JFK Bomb Scare; NYPD Stats

6:00 am –

CBS 2 - Mayor in Paris; JFK Bomb Scare; Newark Ebola Scare
NBC 4 - Bronx Building Fire; Incident in Cincinnati; ISIS Hostages;
FOX 5 - State of the Union; ISIS Hostages; Mayor in Paris
ABC 7 - ISIS Hostages; Incident in Cincinnati; Mayor in Paris

PIX 11 - Corey Booker Presidential Run; Newark Ebola Scare; JFK Bomb Scare;

Mayor de Blasio in Broadcast:

Mayor de Blasio in Paris to Show Support and Meet with Jewish Community Leaders

ABC 7 - Dray Clark - 5:02 am

Right now, Mayor Bill de Blasio is in Paris to visit the site of the deadly terror attacks earlier this month and pay tribute to the victims. In the last half hour, the mayor started meeting with Jewish community leaders there. Mayor de Blasio will be covering a lot of ground in Paris, making six stops in less than three hours. He says the trip is a message of support to people in Paris, and all across the country of France after they suffered one of the country's worst terrorist attacks ever. Video shows the mayor outside a Jewish center where he is meeting with leaders of the Jewish community. This is the mayor's second stop, after he laid a wreath at the Kosher market where four people were killed during an intense hostage standoff inside the market. The four victims were Jewish. The mayor will also lay a wreath at Charlie Hebdo, where 12 people were shot and killed. The three days of attacks led to a large demonstration of unity among the people of France, and world leaders, who also marched in solidarity with the country. In addition to visiting Charlie Hebdo, the mayor will also lay a wreath where police officer Ahmed Merbat was killed. Certainly, the mayor shares the city's pain of losing an officer in the line of duty after recently losing Detectives Liu and Ramos in Brooklyn. He will also travel to Place de la République to meet with the mayor of Paris, before departing at 4:35 pm, which will be 10:35 am our time. Another issue the mayor plans to address and discuss is growing anti-semitism happening across France. He wants to discuss ways of trying to prevent more attacks.

NBC 4 - Michael Garguilo - 5:02 am

Mayor de Blasio is in Paris preparing to meet with the city's mayor to express solidarity with the city after the deadly terror attacks. In the past hour, the mayor placed flowers outside of the Kosher supermarket where four Jewish hostages were murdered during a siege that took place a week ago. The mayor also met with Jewish community leaders. Later on, the mayor will place flowers at the offices of Charlie Hebdo for the people who were killed in the terror attack.

CBS 2 - Diane Macedo - 5:05 am

Right now, Mayor de Blasio is in Paris as part of a show of solidarity against terrorism and anti-semitism. About half an hour ago, he laid flowers to honor the victims killed in the terror attack at the Charlie Hebdo office, and at the site where an officer was shot and killed responding to the attacks. De Blasio will attend closed-door meetings with French officials and Jewish leaders as well. He returns to New York tonight.

FOX 5 - Ben Simmoneau - 5:08 am

Mayor de Blasio is in Paris this morning to deliver a message from New Yorkers. He is there to show support and remember the 17 victims of the deadly terror attacks. The trip was announced just yesterday, right before he left. A short while ago, he laid a wreath at the Kosher market where people were killed. Later, he is expected to do the same at the offices of Charlie Hebdo, and at the spot where a policewoman [sic] was gunned down. He is also meeting with several French officials, including the mayor of Paris, and Jewish community leaders.

ABC 7 - Dray Clark - 6:02 am

Right now, Mayor de Blasio is in France alongside his Paris counterpart, paying respect to the 17 people who were killed earlier this month in a terrorist attack. ABC-7's Dave Evans is in Paris following the mayor, and just tweeted a photo showing the mayor with Mayor Anne Hidalgo.

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 6:31 am

Right now, Mayor de Blasio is in Paris in a show of solidarity in the wake of the city's terror attacks. The mayor is currently outside the offices of Charlie Hebdo where he will leave flowers at the memorial to honor the people who were massacred in the magazines offices' nearly two weeks ago. Earlier this morning, the mayor laid a floral tribute to the Jewish victims who were murdered at a Kosher supermarket. He also shook hands with the police officers on duty before meeting with Jewish community leaders. [Anchor Darlene Rodriguez: "Michael it was a surprise sort of visit because it really was only announced a very short while before he actually departed." Anchor Michael Garguilo: "Right, and there's many things that he's going to be doing this morning. And it really shows the significance and the solidarity of two cities that have faced terror related challenges -- both Paris and of course New York. And we saw a lot of expressions of sympathy from the people of Paris on 9/11. The mayor, no doubt, wants to return those expressions of solidarity and sympathy to the people of Paris as well."] The mayor will also meet with the mayor of Paris. [Anchor Darlene Rodriguez: "With Mayor de Blasio's visit -- the White House was sharply criticized, you might remember, for not sending a high-level person -- the president nor the vice president -- to represent the United States when they had that peaceful march and rally last week. So, this is very significant. Anchor Michael Garguilo: "I want to also point out the woman you see to the mayor's left there -- I believe that is the Mayor of Paris Anne Hidalgo. Very interesting woman. She is actually the daughter of Spanish immigrants who came after the Spanish Civil War in the late 1930s."]

ABC 7 - Dave Evans - 6:33 am

ABC-7's Dave Evans is traveling with the mayor in Paris. The mayor is inside the Hôtel de Ville, which is Paris's version of City Hall, talking with the mayor of Paris. The mayor will also be going to Charlie Hebdo. The visit is short for the mayor, and he returns later tonight.

PIX 11 - Lisa Mateo - 5:07 am

Mayor de Blasio is in Paris to show support to the city after the recent terror attacks. Just moments ago, the mayor placed flowers at the memorial outside the Kosher market where four hostages were killed. Later today, de Blasio will sit in on two meetings with leaders of the Jewish community and Parisian City Council. Mayor de Blasio will end the afternoon laying wreaths at the offices of Charlie Hebdo and the spot where a police officer was killed. The mayor plans to return to New York City tonight.

PIX 11 - Allison Kaden - 6:08 am

The mayor is meeting with French officials and Jewish leaders. A short time ago, Mayor de Blasio laid a wreath at the Kosher supermarket with the city's deputy mayor, honoring the people killed there earlier this month. The mayor is also meeting with Jewish leaders and the mayor of Paris later today. The mayor is scheduled to lay a wreath at Charlie Hebdo and also where a police officer was shot and killed. This visit comes after the White House failed to send a high-level official to represent the United States in the anti-terror march. There are several aides traveling with the mayor including his spokesperson who is providing twitter updates. The mayor will return to New York City later tonight.

UNIVISION 41 - Katria Soto - 6:05 am

TELEMUNDO 47 - Luis Alejandro Medina - 6:09 am

TELEMUNDO 47 - Luis Alejandro Medina - 6:31 am

Mayor de Blasio Attends NAN Martin Luther King, Jr. Day Celebration

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 5:05 am

Before the mayor left the city last night, he attended the Reverend Al Sharpton's annual Martin Luther King Jr. celebration, and called for more support of the NYPD. He had harsh words for those who attack police. Mayor: "If you're saying something vicious and vile to a police officer, you're not making change. You're not moving us forward. You're holding us back." This was the mayor's first public appearance with Sharpton since a grand jury declined to indict an officer in the death of Eric Garner. Since then, relations between City Hall and the NYPD have been strained. Some officers feel the mayor's relationship with Sharpton is problematic. SBA President Ed Mullins: "I think it raises the question of sincerity. I think that that is something we need to look at again." Mayor de Blasio vowed to continue to seek reforms to bring the police and community closer.

Arrests and Summonses on the Rise Following NYPD Slowdown

PIX 11 - Allison Kaden - 5:05 am

This morning, there is more new evidence that the NYPD's so-called slowdown may be done. The numbers show there are more tickets, summonses, and arrests as the city begins to reverse course. The first hint that NYPD beat cops were making fewer arrests and giving out fewer tickets began in late December. Arrests and summonses dropped after two Brooklyn cops were shot and killed in their patrol car. Mayor de Blasio's reaction to the death strained his relationship with the NYPD even further. Unions denied a work slowdown but Commissioner Bratton acknowledged that there was a slowdown. Now, the numbers are rising in terms of arrests and summonses. Reports show that NYPD officers made 6,910 arrests last week, which is an increase of about 47 percent compared to the previous week. When compared with last year's data the amount of arrests and summonses is still 20 percent lower this year. During the slowdown the city lost millions of dollars in ticket revenue. The New York Times reports that an area of policing that continues to lag is quality of life violations, which is the cornerstone of Commissioner Bratton's broken windows style of policing. His theory is if you keep quality of life violations low then overall crime will also be lower.

FOX 5 - Kerry Drew - 5:38 am

A rise in tickets and arrests could mean the end to an NYPD slowdown. Arrests jumped up by nearly 50 percent this week, and summonses surged by nearly 160 percent during the same time period. Still, records show that police activity is well below what it was a year ago. NYPD Commissioner Bill Bratton did acknowledge that his officers were on a slowdown following the December 20th killings of Officers Wenjian Liu and Rafael Ramos. Some police union officials believe anger and dissatisfaction with Mayor de Blasio has contributed to this slowdown.

[The mayor is not mentioned in the following report:]

ABC 7 - Ken Rosato - 6:05 am

The slowdown at the NYPD has petered out. Last week, activity at the department bounced back after an apparent job action by patrol officers. The new stats show over 6,900 arrests, up 47 percent from the depth of the slowdown, and over 32,000 summonses were written, up 159 percent.

Agency Mentions:

NYPD Officers Buy Replacements For Their Bulletproof Vests

PIX 11 - Lisa Mateo - 5:14 am

Some NYPD cops have decided to spend their own money to buy replacements for their bulletproof vests. According to the New York Post, at least a dozen officers have purchased their own protection to fend off rifle rounds. The city has promised to buy more than 12,000 vests since the Post article was released. Some officers say they can't afford to wait.

City Council to Name Streets for Fallen Officers

ABC 7 - Lisa Colagrossi - 5:31 am

The first big steps will be taken today toward a big honor for two NYPD officers killed in the line of duty a month ago today. Officers at the 84th Precinct are reminded of their fallen brothers every time they walk through the door, where a memorial remains to Officers Ramos and Liu. The site of the fatal shootings – Myrtle and Tompkins Avenues – has been cleared of the thousands of flowers, candles and wreaths. Only two wreaths remain, brought by the Reverend Al Sharpton and the family of Eric Garner yesterday. The Parks Committee of the City Council will be holding a hearing this afternoon to rename two streets after the slain men. The streets tagged for co-naming are Ridgewood Avenue and West 6th Street. Both are in Brooklyn, and within the blocks where the two detectives lived. A lot of consultation went into the decision, and the locations were discussed with the families.

CBS 2 - Diane Macedo - 6:58 am

PIX 11 - Kori Chambers - 6:37 am

UNIVISION 41 - Merijoel Duran - 6:05 am

NYPD Officers Save Dog Trapped on Grand Central Parkway

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:49 am

Some NYPD officers went the extra mile to rescue a dog in a very dangerous situation. Yesterday, someone noticed a pitbull in the middle of four lanes of traffic along the Grand Central Parkway and called 9-1-1. Officers had to block several lanes to safely reach the dog. The dog has a broken leg and is now recovering at Animal Care Control in Manhattan. There is no word on who the owner is or how the dog ended up on the highway.

Local News:

Pope Francis Confirms Visit to New York City

ABC 7 - Michelle Charlesworth - 5:42 am

Get ready for a lot of people, pomp, and circumstance this fall, because Pope Francis is definitely coming to New York City. The pontiff himself confirmed his first U.S. visit in September, which will include stops in Philadelphia, Washington D.C., and New York. The Vatican is sending a planning delegation to the city next month to start hammering out details. The pope is scheduled to address the UN General Assembly, and is expected to visit St. Patrick's Cathedral, but will not attend mass there. New York church officials don't know much else about the visit. This will be the city's first papal visit since Pope Benedict came for three days in April of 2008.

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:47 am

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 5:35 am

FOX 5 - Kerry Drew - 5:08 am
PIX 11 - Lisa Mateo - 5:14 am
UNIVISION 41 - Merijoel Duran - 6:47 am
TELEMUNDO 47 - Odalys Molina - 6:13 am

City Council to Hear from Tenants on Illegal Rentals Through AirBnB

ABC 7 - Michelle Charlesworth - 5:12 am

Today, the New York City Council will hear from tenants concerned about the rental service AirBnB. Some tenants say the service is used to create illegal hotels that is causing the number of rent-stabilized apartments in the city to dwindle. This comes after Attorney General Eric Schneiderman reported 75 percent of the listings violate zoning laws. AirBnB agrees that illegal rentals are bad for the city, and suggests officials begin taxing AirBnB hosts.

CBS 2 - Diane Macedo - 5:36 am
FOX 5 - Ben Simmoneau - 5:39 am

BAM Hosts City's Largest Martin Luther King, Jr. Day Celebration

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 5:41 am

The Brooklyn Academy of Music hosted their annual Martin Luther King, Jr. Day Celebration yesterday. More than 1,000 people attended. Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams emceed the event, and had a message to look beyond the obvious. Adams, holding up a sign reading "IMPOSSIBLE": "Let's read the first two letters first. I am possible."

Governor Cuomo To Propose Raising Age For Juvenile Offenders

NBC 4 - Michael Garguilo - 5:39 am

Governor Cuomo wants some teenagers taken out of the adult criminal justice system. He is calling for 16 and 17 year olds to be treated as juveniles. The offenders would be trialed in family court for non-violent offenses until they are 18 years old. The juveniles would also be kept away from adult prisoners under the proposal. Right now, New York and North Carolina are the only states that prosecute younger teens as adults. The proposal will be part of tomorrow's State of the State address.

Investigation into Bomb Threat At JFK Airport

NBC 4 - Katherine Creag - 5:06 am

There is an investigation into a bomb scare at JFK Airport. Police are trying to figure out who made the threatening phone call to Delta officials at around 7 pm last night. The anonymous caller said that a pipe bomb was on the plane. The call came in while the plane was still in the air. Once the plane landed at Kennedy Airport, it was immediately evacuated. Passengers onboard were searched but there was no evidence of a bomb on the plane. As a precaution, a Delta flight with the same number was also searched. Passengers were also forced off the plane and had their luggage searched but no bomb was found.

CBS 2 - Janelle Burrell - 5:01 am
ABC 7 - Ken Rosato - 5:34 am
PIX 11 - Kori Chambers - 5:05 am
FOX 5 - Ben Simmoneau - 5:36 am
UNIVISION 41 - Ana Ledo - 6:03 am
TELEMUNDO 47 - Luis Alejandro Medina - 6:06 am

Avonte Oquendo's Mother Attending State Of The Union Address

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:20 am

Senator Chuck Schumer has invited Vanessa Fontaine, the mother of Avonte Oquendo, to the State of the Union address. Avonte Oquendo is the autistic 14-year-old who was found dead after slipping out of his school in Queens.

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 6:07 am

PIX 11 - Sukanya Krishnan - 6:10 am

UNIVISION 41 - Katiria Soto - 6:09 am

Big Weekend Gives Queens Movie Theater New Life

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:50 am

A nearly century old movie theater in Queens may no longer be worried about going out of business. The owner of the Cinemart has the Oscar nominated movie American Sniper to thank for the theater's revival. Warner Bros. gave the Forest Hills theater special permission to show the film over the weekend. The owner says he saw sellout crowds and later told employees that Cinemart will not be closing anytime soon. Cinemart had not shown a first-run movie on the day it was released in years.

Incidents & Accidents:

Breaking: Ten People Injured in High-Rise Fire in the Bronx

ABC 7 - Ken Rosato - 6:16 am

Ten people are injured in the Bronx after an early morning high-rise fire in the Claremont section. The fire broke out at around 4:30 am on Washington Avenue at 169th Street. The fire began on the fourth floor, and the fire department is reporting ten non-life-threatening injuries.

NBC 4 - Michael Garguilo - 6:01 am

Most of the fire has been put out but it has not yet been declared officially under control.

CBS 2 - Jim Smith - 6:13 am

PIX 11 - Sukanya Krishnan - 6:24 am

TELEMUNDO 47 - Luis Alejandro Medina - 6:02 am

Police Search for Suspect in Possible Bias Attack in Brooklyn

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:08 am

Police have released surveillance video of a suspect in a vicious bias attack in Brooklyn. Police say the man hopped out of a SUV and beat a man on the street after making anti-gay remarks. The attack happened on the corner of Metropolitan and Marcy Avenue in Williamsburg last month. Investigators say the suspect punched the victim in the face knocking him to the ground. The victim was treated for cuts, bruises, and a broken nose.

ABC 7 - Michelle Charlesworth - 5:33 am

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 5:34 am

UNIVISION 41 - Merijoel Duran - 6:35 am

TELEMUNDO 47 - Odalys Molina - 6:06 am

Death of Missing Fort Lee Man Ruled A Homicide

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:09 am

The medical examiner has ruled the death of a Fort Lee man found dead in the Bronx as a homicide. The body of Jordan Johnson was found in the trunk of his BMW near East 211th Street last week. The medical examiner says he was choked to death. Meanwhile, police want to speak with the man caught on surveillance video leaving the scene. Investigators believe the man was inside Johnson's car.

Police Searching for Three Suspects in Bronx Home Invasion

NBC 4 - Darlene Rodriguez - 5:38 am

Police are searching for the men involved in a home invasion in the Bronx. Investigators say the suspects called their victim ahead of time pretending to be from the buildings department and scheduled an appointment. Police have released surveillance images of two of the three suspects. Police say the men showed up to the apartment with guns. Once inside, the men allegedly tied up the 45-year-old man and took off with a iPhone and more than $1000 in cash.

TELEMUNDO 47 - Odalys Molina - 6:07 am

Police Searching for Teenaged Suspect in Crown Heights Robbery Spree

CBS 2 - Mary Calvi - 5:34 am

Police in Crown Heights are searching for a 16-year-old suspect on a robbery spree. They say Richard Rodgers has struck at least seven times since September. His latest robbery was reported on January 2nd, when the victim says he snatched cash from her hand.

PIX 11 - Lisa Mateo - 5:14 am

UNIVISION 41 - Katiria Soto - 6:04 am

###

From: B
To: Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Fw: DAILY KOS: Will Bill de Blasio teach liberals that liberals with a spine win?
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 6:42:05 PM

An excellent piece. And since it includes the entire quote on Dante from my Staten Island speech, it is a reminder that I should have rapid responded Pat lynch the very same day as his "thrown cops under the bus" remarks. There is a large discussion of rapid response and ways we can dominate the discussion with our bully pulpit that we need to have as a team, starting at our planning mtg this week

From: Klein, Monica
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 04:39 PM
To: B; FLONYC
Subject: DAILY KOS: Will Bill de Blasio teach liberals that liberals with a spine win?

Will Bill de Blasio teach liberals that liberals with a spine win?

DAILY KOS - Egberto Willies - January 18, 2015

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio is the liberal that all liberals should mimic. He is sticking to the liberal values that got him elected by an overwhelming 73 percent of the vote. He refuses to attenuate his stance on social justice even as sects within the New York City Police Department are attempting to coerce him into doing so. He remains the stiff-spine liberal that takes no crap.

De Blasio clearly was never going to be a hero to NYPD's rank-and-file leadership. He campaigned in support of a more inclusive department and to rein in stop-and-frisk policing. The NYPD leadership could not quite frame him as an anti-law-and-order liberal because he broke away and supported certain policing methods many liberals were apprehensive about. He did not want to end stop-and-frisk or "broken windows" policing outright—he wanted to use those policies as tools when necessary. This meant, of course, less racial profiling and much less harassment for the sake of showing police authority.

The NYPD rank-and-file leadership thought they got their moment with de Blasio's comment after police officer Daniel Pantaleo choked Eric Garner to death, which can be read below the fold.

The mayor said the following:

"This is profoundly personal to me. I was at the White House the other day, and the president of the United States turned to me, and he met Dante a few months ago, and he said that Dante reminded him of what he looked like as a teenager. And he said I know you see this crisis through a very personal lens. And I said to him, I did. Because Chirlane and I have had to talk to Dante for years about the dangers that he may face. A good young man, law-abiding young man who would never think to do anything wrong. And yet, because of a history that still hangs over us, the dangers he may face, we've had to literally train him—as families have all over this city for decades—in how to take special care in any encounter he has with the police officers who are there to protect him.

“And that painful sense of contradiction that our young people see first, that our police are here to protect us, and we honor that, and at the same time, there’s a history we have to overcome, because for so many of our young people, there’s a fear. And for so many of our families, there’s a fear. So I’ve had to worry over the years. Chirlane’s had to worry. Is Dante safe each night? There are so many families in this city who feel that each and every night. Is my child safe? And not just from some of the painful realities—crime and violence in some of our neighborhoods—but is safe from the very people they want to have faith in as their protectors.”

Patrick Lynch, the thuggish president of the Patrolmen’s Benevolent Association, used the mayor’s heartfelt statement as a faux declaration of war. He tried to spin the mayor’s statement as an attack on New York City police officers. The reality is that most Americans and New Yorkers, admittedly or not, know policing tends to be race-biased. Lynch was banking on willful ignorance, hoping for subliminal trivialization.

Lynch believed he got the appropriate opening to turn the screws on the mayor when two NYPD officers were assassinated in cold blood. He gave a speech where his inner thug emerged as he accused the mayor of having blood on his hands and threatened anyone who disagreed with his position.

The mayor did not cower. In a subsequent press conference, de Blasio refused to allow reporters to dictate the Lynch-inspired narrative. He appeared on national TV and defended his reasons for demanding change in policing even as he showed his support for the NYPD.

Some progressive journalists did what many progressives do when they are unsure of outcomes—they cower into criticizing a liberal on a limb. Slate’s Leon Neyfakh wrote a piece, “Bill de Blasio’s Bad Bet,” in which he gave so-called law enforcement experts a platform:

“The result of these trends—which are consistent with changes at other big-city police departments around the country, including Los Angeles’ and Chicago’s—is that the racial makeup of New York’s police force is getting close to that of the city’s overall population. This is progress that promises, at least in theory, to improve relations between police and minority communities. But does it also have the potential to make police departments more open to criticism from liberal politicians?”

The de Blasio administration seems to have thought the answer was yes. But law enforcement experts say this is a naive way to think about police culture. The idea that race and ethnicity were going to overpower the loyalty that officers feel toward their department and thus translate into good will for the mayor, they argue, was nothing more than wishful thinking.

“[De Blasio] figured that the demographics were in his favor because it’s not all white cops anymore, I guess,” Joe Giacalone, a NYPD detective sergeant who retired in 2012, told me. “What it comes down to is that most cops are ‘blue’ before they’re anything else. That’s what he failed to take into consideration. He doesn’t understand the police culture, which is an us vs. them mentality.”

Neyfakh shows a lack of understanding of human behavior in his piece. Adapting to a culture to remain employed is much different than being of that culture or accepting of that culture. It is called survival.

De Blasio is playing the long game, betting on what real liberals know. Liberal values are the values most yearn for but are coerced away from. If one keeps one's eyes on the ball and disregards the noise from the weak-minded, ultimately good values win.

It turns out that the NYPD rank and file is not as homogeneous in their response to de Blasio. Lynch's officers rebelled against him in a recent meeting:

"Lynch's union, the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association (PBA), is in turmoil, beset by infighting, according to interviews with more than 40 police officers and union insiders. His support among the rank-and-file is slipping, they said.

On Tuesday, a group of union insiders is set to announce a campaign to unseat him in the upcoming June election, several PBA trustees said. Since being elected in 1999, Lynch, who rose to power on a promise of term limits and reforming a union riven by corruption, has faced scant opposition.

"Pat Lynch has lost the membership," said police veteran and union delegate Sean Guzerian. "The bosses don't respect him, and the cops are tired of him. They look at him as a politician, not a police officer." ...

From there, the unrest grew. Board meetings became more acrimonious, several PBA Trustees said.

"Paddy's become like a dictator," said union delegate Robert Andersen. "It's his way or the highway. And that's the end of it."

Inasmuch as the "liberal press" has not given de Blasio a break or the benefit of the doubt—except for some New York Times editorials that excoriated Lynch and the police unions—a recent Quinnipiac poll has been favorable. It showed that a plurality of New Yorkers can see through the fog.

It is refreshing to watch a liberal that does not compromise values. It is refreshing to see a liberal that bends only when pragmatism dictates it. Most importantly, de Blasio's methods must be instructive to cowering liberals who would compromise their values, compromises that have been proven failures over and over again. The Bill de Blasios of this country must be propped up by us all in the real independent media. After all, the "liberal media" and the traditional mainstream media are busy castigating liberals while they build up failed policies of everyone else.

From: Howe, Amanda
To: "BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov"; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Cc: FLONYC; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Thinking big/not missing the moment
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 6:46:25 PM

Agreed!

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 06:41 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Cc: FLONYC; Howe, Amanda; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Wolfe, Emma Subject: Thinking big/not missing the moment

A reflection:

I was asked in Paris what I thought of Obama missing the rally a week ago Sunday. I said honestly I bet he wished he could get that one back and do it over.

Our job is to see things for what they are, as they're unfolding. To be able to step back enough to see the proverbial forest for the trees. Sometimes that means stopping and breathing, and having no hesitation to re-work even the best laid plans. And it always means focusing on strategy, not tactics.

Someone told Obama to focus on business as usual, on the schedule as written. We have to be able to know when to break our own rules.

From: John Del Cecato
To: BdB
Cc: FLONYC
Subject: Re: Charlie Hebdo
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 7:17:45 PM

I described you that way to a reporter this week - and I actually believed it!

From: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Reply-To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 at 7:13 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Chirlane McCray <FLONYC@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Charlie Hebdo

EXACTLY!!

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Wed, 21 Jan 2015 00:03:41 +0000
To: <[REDACTED]>
Cc: Chirlane McCray <FLONYC@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Charlie Hebdo

Huge props to this person. Very smart, in retrospect. I do think the timing was key. Doing this on 1/12 would not have made sense. But doing it a week later totally worked.

I will strive to follow my own rule, via Wayne Gretsky - don't skate to where the puck is, skate to where it will be

On Jan 20, 2015, at 6:42 PM, Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]> wrote:

See below, which inspired the Paris trip. From an old family friend, and former US Ambassador to NATO. Note his reasoning, especially in the email immediately below. We need to see these kind of possibilities. Our team gets so small, so quickly in internal discussions. But the world is won by big plays, not small plays...

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: "Robert Hunter" <[REDACTED]>
Date: Sun, 11 Jan 2015 21:11:28 -0500

To: <[REDACTED]> 'Robert Hunter' <[REDACTED]>
Cc: 'Lindsay Scola' <L.Scola@cityhall.nyc.gov>; 'Elana Leopold' <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>;
'Penny Abeywardena' <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: Charlie Hebdo

Fair enough.

It struck me, from the political point of view, related in fact to the current difficulties you face in NYC, that your going to Paris (with the Police Commissioner and some appropriate others, including some NYC police and firefighters and other "first responders," including some involved in 9/11 rescues) -- would:

- <!--[if !supportLists]-->1) <!--[endif]-->Remind New Yorkers of a time when all pulled together;
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->2) <!--[endif]-->Remind them of a time when the "first responders" served the City so well and let us not forget what they do for the City and its people every day;
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->3) <!--[endif]-->Dramatize a linkage represented by your person as Mayor of NYC between the "ground zeros" in the two countries – in fact, as NYC Mayor, your going to Paris, even now, would provide more symbolism of American sympathy – remember "nous sommes tous Américains" -- than even if Obama went to Paris (on returning, you could speak at the NYC "ground zero" about what you saw and the people whom you met, including the French "first responders");
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->4) <!--[endif]-->Tie you into the "caring" and "leadership" and opposing a "common enemy" – i.e., showing your "9/11" connection to others' similar suffering (though of a much lesser magnitude); and
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->5) <!--[endif]-->Create a "larger perspective" within which the police (etc.) issues in NYC could be viewed: a step toward bringing all back together again (on both key sides of the police/minorities "divide")

Needless to say, it would also tie in with your pledges to look after Israel's interests. Note the drama this evening of Hollande and Netanyahu at the Grand Synagogue in Paris – covered extensively on CNN.

Best,
Robert

From: Bill de Blasio [[mailto:\[REDACTED\]](mailto:[REDACTED])]
Sent: Sunday, January 11, 2015 6:45 PM
To: Robert Hunter
Cc: Lindsay Scola; Elana Leopold; Penny Abeywardena
Subject: Re: Charlie Hebdo

I'm looping in Penny, who I want to make sure you stay in touch with Robert. I'm not there and can't go right now because of the challenges we face in NYC at the moment, but I do take your point. Much appreciated

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: [REDACTED]
Date: Sun, 11 Jan 2015 18:44:00 +0000
To: Robert Hunter <[REDACTED]> <[REDACTED]>
Cc: 'Lindsay Scola' <LScola@cityhall.nyc.gov>; <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Charlie Hebdo

Bill --

I can't tell from the news report whether you are in Paris, today. If not, you should be; and you should fly over, tonight, and meet with officials of the city., etc.

Take the Police Commissioner with you.

The bond between New York and Paris -- and Americans and the French and everyone else who opposes jihadist terrorism -- can best be emphasized in this way. While there, visit the premises of Charlie Hebdo and the Kosher store.

Best,
Robert

From: B
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: Adams, Marti; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: FOR YOUR APPROVAL: SOTU Response
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:12:04 PM

Amen! Let's do that

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:09 PM
To: B
Cc: Adams, Marti; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: FOR YOUR APPROVAL: SOTU Response

I agree that the statement is a little more in Obama's voice than ours. Truth is, he's moved far more in our direction on income inequality than anyone would have dreamed a year or two ago.

I would try to hit that point - and hit Oxfam as the Mayor says - and sort of define this as the national conversation finally embracing what we have talked about and fought to deliver on. Also, don't forget the call for One Percent to pay their fair share.

On Jan 20, 2015, at 9:43 PM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I also think this speech is transcendent in its own way. This is a much fuller vision for tackling income inequality than we've heard from the president before. I think we should declare the moment. That might actually get noticed and quoted. We should say this is the clearest roadmap yet from the president for fighting inequality. We should speak with urgency. And quote the Oxfam report as a clarion call that the president is offering a real vision in response to

From: Adams, Marti
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 09:12 PM
To: B
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: FOR YOUR APPROVAL: SOTU Response

Sir: please see below an updated version of the SOTU response. This takes into account your feedback.

We would like to ship this out at the conclusion of the President's remarks, but will not move this out without your approval.

Many thanks,
Marti

STATEMENT OF MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO ON PRESIDENT OBAMA'S STATE OF THE UNION ADDRESS

"I commend President Obama for the bold vision he outlined tonight to tackle income inequality, lift up more hardworking families, and reinvest in the middle class. From creating a fairer tax code, to making college more affordable and expanding measures like paid sick leave, the President is committed to doing what it takes to ensure every American has a fair shot. President Obama's common-sense proposals will help rebuild and strengthen the American economy by focusing on growing the middle class and preparing more Americans for 21st Century jobs.

"Here in New York City, we've extended the right to paid sick leave to a million New Yorkers, raised the living wage and expanded it to thousands more workers, and made unprecedented investments in education. These are among the many policies that we've put forward over the past year that will help bridge the inequality gap and help more hardworking New Yorkers get ahead.

"It is high time for more cities across the country to follow on this sensible path toward stronger cities and a stronger middle class. Tonight, I extend my deepest gratitude to President Obama for re-affirming his focus on working families, and I offer him New York City's unflinching support as he implements his middle class agenda nationwide."

###

Marti Adams | First Deputy Press Secretary

Office of Mayor Bill de Blasio | o: (212) 788-9570 | m: (347) 967-7358

twitter: @Marti_Adams

From: Walzak, Phil
To: Adams, Marti; Hagelgans, Andrea; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: RE: FOR YOUR APPROVAL: SOTU Response
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:22:32 PM

Well we now gone from zero drafts to multpls drafts because of this screwed process

MA – id send him both what I just sent and the below, but lets do it now

From: Adams, Marti
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:19 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: RE: FOR YOUR APPROVAL: SOTU Response

Yes, thanks

Any other edits? PW/JDC/PR please let me know if you have thoughts or additional edits.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:18 PM
To: Adams, Marti; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: FOR YOUR APPROVAL: SOTU Response

Typo- believe it should say "one nation"

From: Adams, Marti
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:16 PM
To: 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: RE: FOR YOUR APPROVAL: SOTU Response

Updated once more

STATEMENT OF MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO ON PRESIDENT OBAMA’S STATE OF THE UNION ADDRESS

"Tonight, President Obama laid out his clearest vision yet for how the United States must tackle the greatest challenge of our time: income inequality.

"In today’s global economy, where the majority of wealth is held by one percent of the world’s population, we need a champion of the middle class, the working class and the working poor in the White House more than ever.

"As I’ve said before, we can’t wait to address these issues and we must renew calls for the wealthiest to pay their fair share so that we can all move together as one nation on the path toward greater prosperity.

“I commend the President for doubling down on policies to rebuild and strengthen the American economy and offer him New York City’s unflinching support as he implements his middle class agenda nationwide.”

###

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:11 PM
To: Adams, Marti
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: FOR YOUR APPROVAL: SOTU Response

Much better. Not just middle class though. Also the poor and working class who are working to get into the middle class. That's what child care and paid sick and min wage do. And the call for the Richie Riches to pony up is important.

On Jan 20, 2015, at 10:04 PM, Adams, Marti <MAAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Minus BDB. Better? Ref to study in second sentence.

STATEMENT OF MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO ON PRESIDENT OBAMA’S STATE OF THE UNION ADDRESS

"Tonight, President Obama laid out his clearest vision yet for how the United States must tackle the greatest challenge of our time: income inequality.

“In today’s global economy, where the majority of wealth is held by one percent of the world’s population, we need a champion of the middle class in the White House more than ever.

“As I’ve said before, we can’t wait to address these issues. Cities must act, and follow on the path toward stronger cities and a stronger middle class laid out by President Obama tonight.

“I commend the President for doubling down on policies to rebuild and strengthen the American economy and offer him New York City’s unflinching support as he implements his middle class agenda nationwide.”

###

From: B
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 9:44 PM
To: Adams, Marti

Cc: Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmmedia.com'
Subject: Re: FOR YOUR APPROVAL: SOTU Response

I also think this speech is transcendent in its own way. This is a much fuller vision for tackling income inequality than we've heard from the president before. I think we should declare the moment. That might actually get noticed and quoted. We should say this is the clearest roadmap yet from the president for fighting inequality. We should speak with urgency. And quote the Oxfam report as a clarion call that the president is offering a real vision in response to

From: Adams, Marti
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 09:12 PM
To: B
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: FOR YOUR APPROVAL: SOTU Response

Sir: please see below an updated version of the SOTU response. This takes into account your feedback.

We would like to ship this out at the conclusion of the President's remarks, but will not move this out without your approval.

Many thanks,
Marti

STATEMENT OF MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO ON PRESIDENT OBAMA'S STATE OF THE UNION ADDRESS

"I commend President Obama for the bold vision he outlined tonight to tackle income inequality, lift up more hardworking families, and reinvest in the middle class. From creating a fairer tax code, to making college more affordable and expanding measures like paid sick leave, the President is committed to doing what it takes to ensure every American has a fair shot. President Obama's common-sense proposals will help rebuild and strengthen the American economy by focusing on growing the middle class and preparing more Americans for 21st Century jobs.

"Here in New York City, we've extended the right to paid sick leave to a million New Yorkers, raised the living wage and expanded it to thousands more workers, and made unprecedented investments in education. These are among the many policies that we've put forward over the past year that will help bridge the inequality gap and help more hardworking New Yorkers get ahead.

"It is high time for more cities across the country to follow on this sensible path toward stronger cities and a stronger middle class. Tonight, I extend my deepest gratitude to President Obama for re-affirming his focus on working families, and I offer him New York City’s unflinching support as he implements his middle class agenda nationwide.”

###

Marti Adams | First Deputy Press Secretary

Office of Mayor Bill de Blasio | o: (212) 788-9570 | m: (347) 967-7358

twitter: @Marti_Adams

From: John Del Cecato
To: Walzak, Phil
Cc: Adams, Marti; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: my edits. Anyone else? Need to ship to mayor soon
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2015 10:37:12 PM

Might say face instead of defeat

Oxfam predicts it will be next year that half of wealth controlled by One Percent

But good

On Jan 20, 2015, at 10:21 PM, Walzak, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

STATEMENT OF MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO ON PRESIDENT OBAMA'S STATE OF THE UNION ADDRESS

"Tonight, President Obama laid out his clearest vision yet for how the United States must tackle the greatest challenge of our time - income inequality – and said what Americans across the country have known for some time: the time to act and to defeat this challenge is now. In today's global economy, where the majority of wealth is held by one percent of the world's population, we need more than ever a champion in the White House for the middle class, the working class, and those trapped in vice grip of poverty. As I've said before, we can't wait to address these issues. We must ensure the wealthiest pay their fair share so we can move together as one nation toward greater prosperity. Cities must act, as we have in New York City on values like paid sick leave, immigration reforms, universal pre-kindergarten, and better wages, so together we pursue a path toward stronger cities and greater opportunity laid out by President Obama tonight."

###

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Cohen, Adam
Cc: Leopold, Elana
Subject: BdB Obama Mash-up
Date: Wednesday, January 21, 2015 10:38:36 AM

From WNYC – One Minute Where Obama Sounded Like De Blasio

Wednesday, January 21, 2015 - 09:52 AM

Obviously progressive policies are going to sound similar, but we couldn't help but notice that President Obama echoed some of Mayor de Blasio's first year policies last night.

The president touted paid sick leave, a minimum wage increase, and equal pay. And when we talked about a father's concern over his son facing a threat from law enforcement, we couldn't help but sit up.

<http://www.wnyc.org/story/one-minute-where-obama-sounded-de-blasio/>

--

Rebecca Kirszner Katz
Office of the Mayor
(212) 788-3112
rkkatz@cityhall.nyc.gov
@RebeccaKKatz

From: John Del Cecato
To: John, Roxanne
Cc: Liz Hegarty
Subject: Re: Comms meeting tomorrow
Date: Wednesday, January 21, 2015 9:26:13 PM

*sure

On Jan 21, 2015, at 9:25 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Yes for sire

On Jan 21, 2015, at 9:20 PM, John, Roxanne <RJohn@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Sorry I did see this until now. John can you connect tomorrow morning?

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 21, 2015, at 5:16 PM, "Liz Hegarty" <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

No problem. I'll wait to hear back about timing for tomorrow

Could we do 7 PM tonight?

From: <John>, Roxanne <RJohn@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, January 21, 2015 at 4:11 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Comms meeting tomorrow

Let's me circle back a little later on change in timing. Also does John have time for a quick 1 minute check in around 6.30pm tonight.

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, January 21, 2015 5:08 PM
To: John, Roxanne
Cc: John Del Cecato
Subject: Comms meeting tomorrow

Hi Roxanne,

It looks as though the weekly planning meeting has been moved up to 6:15 tomorrow evening. Any chance there is another time tomorrow that might work to do the comms meeting? Perhaps we could try for 5:30? Happy to find a time on Friday if helpful.

Thanks,

Liz

—

Liz Hegarty

Assistant to John Del Cecato

AKPD Message and Media

Office: 312-664-7500

Cell: 203-482-6229

lhgart@akpdmedia.com

From: B
To: Ragone, Peter; FLONYC
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: Times and Politico on inequality
Date: Wednesday, January 21, 2015 10:33:59 PM

Amen! Thanks for sending

From: Ragone, Peter
Sent: Wednesday, January 21, 2015 10:16 PM
To: B; FLONYC
Subject: Fw: Times and Politico on inequality

Getting there...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Wednesday, January 21, 2015 10:14 PM
To: @Press Office; @IGA; Ragone, Peter
Subject: Times and Politico on inequality

Would bet this Times story is A1 tomorrow. BdB quoted:

http://www.nytimes.com/2015/01/22/business/economy/talk-of-inequality-prods-republicans-to-refocus.html?_r=0

Bill de Blasio, New York's liberal mayor, on Wednesday called middle-class wage stagnation "the dominant issue in our public discourse this year" and into next.

"It's a striking moment when even Mitt Romney is talking about income equality," Mr. de Blasio said, "and there's some irony in that."

Also quoted in Politico:

But New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio—who, among other things, spent eight years as a city councilman himself—said he and other supporters are glad to see Obama embrace this approach.

"I think it's very heartening to a lot of people across the country," de Blasio said. "We all understand the paralysis of Washington, but the president's using the bully pulpit to great effect."

Read more: <http://www.politico.com/story/2015/01/barack-obama-state-of-the-union-states-114481.html#ixzz3PW4oGPY0>

From: Wiley, Maya
To: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Subject: SOTC
Date: Thursday, January 22, 2015 8:50:38 AM
Attachments: Document3.docx

Hey John-

I meant to send some bullets last week in case any of this is helpful for the SOTC. Top lines here, I think are:

To be a 21st Century City, we must be innovative and inclusive.

1. Innovating – fastest and largest free wi-fi network in the world on the streets of every borough AND it has enabled us to commit $10M to help get low income New Yorkers broadband access at home;
2. We've gotten broadband to 7 NYCHA computer centers
3. We are investing in opportunities for more women and minority owned firms engaged in building our city

There is more in the document that my team pulled together, but just wanted to share a sense of the bigger points.

M

Improving the City's MWBE Program

- When it comes to closing the inequality gap in this City, one of our powerful tools is the City's Minority and Women-Owned Business Enterprises Program.
- I'm proud to say this year we elevated the role of this program, are planning further investments and are already seeing the results
- First, I appointed the first-ever City-wide MWBE Director, my counsel Maya Wiley, who brings a long and distinguished resume as a civil rights lawyer and expert in equity-based public policies
- Second, next month we will be commissioning a new City-wide study to determine where the City may be underutilizing women and minority-owned firms. The results of this study will help us ensure we're spending tax dollars in a fair manner in all the communities that make New York great.
- Third, we invested an additional $8.7 million in technical assistance and other improvements to help MWBEs grow through the City's program.
- The improvements are significant – the City has awarded $690 million in prime and subcontracts to certified MWBEs in FY14, a 57% increase from the year before.

Broadband

- LinkNYC:
 - We are bringing free, super high-speed Internet service to neighborhoods across the five boroughs.
 - LinkNYC will replace the City's outdated payphones with the world's largest and fastest public wifi network, with speeds ranging from 100 mbps—twice as fast as the average home connection—to 1 gigabit.
 - The project will be deployed at no cost to taxpayers and will generate $500 million in revenue in the first 12 years, creating resources to support home broadband access for New Yorkers who need it.
 - In 2015, $10M in project revenue will support wireless projects in low-income communities.
- Policy Advocacy: We advocated at the federal and state levels to shape policies related to our broadband goals
 - Time Warner/Comcast:
 - Raised questions concerning the impact of the merger on low-income households, infrastructure deployment and a range of other issues important to New Yorkers.
 - We brought to light questions about the impact of the merger on small business and the City's growing tech sector.
 - Net Neutrality:
 - With colleagues in San Francisco, Portland and Seattle, staked out a strong position in favor of re-classification of broadband as a

- telecommunications service regulated under Title II of the federal Communications Act.
 - The President ultimately adopted a very similar position.
 - E-Rate:
 - Advocated for increase of the E-Rate cap, which was subsequently raised by $1.5B. (May decide not to mention E-Rate given other issues)
- BTF:
 - We convened a Task Force of 15 diverse leaders in the broadband sector. Task Force will inform Administration strategies, with a focus on competition, municipal options and removal of barriers to expanding access and increasing affordability.
 - One of its first projects will be launch of a “Call for Innovations,” soliciting ideas for bringing affordable, sustainable, high-speed broadband to the New Yorkers who need it most.
- NYCHA PCC:
 - Wired 7* Public Computer Centers with broadband and upgraded hardware at two additional sites. In 2015, will send an additional van providing mobile service into the field.
 - (Note: two of initial 7 were wired by DYCD before NYCHA got to them but we can still count them since it was done under this Administration. Per NYCHA done by 1/16/15.)
- Libraries Mifi Project:
 - We brokered a partnership between the public libraries, Google and a range of philanthropic partners that will result in 10,000 personal wifi devices being distributed to participants in library afterschool, ESL and technological literacy programs.
 - The program will serve as a model for other jurisdictions as well as for federal officials.

Gender

- Supporting and implementing policies that represent huge gains for women in NYC—pre-k for all, paid sick leave, living wage, prevailing wage.
- At the UN, the First Lady signed a historic MOU on gender equality in connection with the upcoming Beijing +20 conference
 - City’s partnership with UN women will advance shared goals of ending gender-based violence and promoting gender equality
 - As part of the partnership, the City will participate in public education connected to the 20th anniversary of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action (Beijing +20), a historic set of commitments agreed upon by representatives from 189 nations in 1995.
 - The partnership will also create a platform for advancing the City’s goals related to reducing violence against women. Notably, the City will share best practices for increasing the safety of women and girls and will educate and engage other cities on such issues.

- This year we will appoint new leadership at the Commission on Women's Issues, renewing the body's commitment to improving the lives of women and girls across the City and launching new strategies for meeting these important goals.

HRC

- Allie pulling from the release

From: John Del Cecato
To: Wiley, Maya
Subject: Re: SOTC
Date: Thursday, January 22, 2015 9:29:27 AM

Cool - thanks Maya

On Jan 22, 2015, at 8:51 AM, Wiley, Maya <MWiley@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Hey John-

I meant to send some bullets last week in case any of this is helpful for the SOTC. Top lines here, I think are:

To be a 21st Century City, we must be innovative and inclusive.

- <!--[if !supportLists]-->1. <!--[endif]-->Innovating – fastest and largest free wi-fi network in the world on the streets of every borough AND it has enabled us to commit $10M to help get low income New Yorkers broadband access at home;
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->2. <!--[endif]-->We've gotten broadband to 7 NYCHA computer centers
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->3. <!--[endif]-->We are investing in opportunities for more women and minority owned firms engaged in building our city

There is more in the document that my team pulled together, but just wanted to share a sense of the bigger points.

M

<Document3.docx>

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: John, Roxanne; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; "Liz Hegarty"
Subject: RE: Comms for FLONYC
Date: Thursday, January 22, 2015 10:02:04 AM

Some of us aren't in the planning meeting. Possible to keep it to what it was>?

From: John, Roxanne
Sent: Thursday, January 22, 2015 10:01 AM
To: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'Liz Hegarty'
Subject: Comms for FLONYC
When: Thursday, January 22, 2015 8:00 PM-8:30 PM.
Where: Gracie

Time updated!

Changing this meeting to after tonight's planning meeting.

From: John, Roxanne
To: "John Del Cecato"
Subject: RE: Comms meeting tomorrow
Date: Thursday, January 22, 2015 10:09:01 AM

Best number?

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Thursday, January 22, 2015 10:09 AM
To: John, Roxanne
Subject: Re: Comms meeting tomorrow

Good

On Jan 22, 2015, at 10:06 AM, John, Roxanne <RJohn@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

How is 10.30 for you?

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Wednesday, January 21, 2015 9:26 PM
To: John, Roxanne
Cc: Liz Hegarty
Subject: Re: Comms meeting tomorrow

*sure

On Jan 21, 2015, at 9:25 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Yes for sire

On Jan 21, 2015, at 9:20 PM, John, Roxanne
<RJohn@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Sorry I did see this until now. John can you connect tomorrow morning?

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 21, 2015, at 5:16 PM, "Liz Hegarty" <lhgart@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

No problem. I'll wait to hear back about timing for tomorrow

Could we do 7 PM tonight?

From: <John>, Roxanne
<RJohn@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, January 21, 2015 at 4:11 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Comms meeting tomorrow

Let's me circle back a little later on change in timing. Also does John have time for a quick 1 minute check in around 6.30pm tonight.

From: Liz Hegarty
[<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, January 21, 2015 5:08 PM
To: John, Roxanne
Cc: John Del Cecato
Subject: Comms meeting tomorrow

Hi Roxanne,

It looks as though the weekly planning meeting has been moved up to 6:15 tomorrow evening. Any chance there is another time tomorrow that might work to do the comms meeting? Perhaps we could try for 5:30? Happy to find a time on Friday if helpful.

Thanks,

Liz

—

Liz Hegarty

Assistant to John Del Cecato
AKPD Message and Media
Office: 312-664-7500
Cell: 203-482-6229
lhegarty@akpdmedia.com

From: Carey, Michael
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\); Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Hagelgans, Andrea; Leopold, Elana; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; Patchett, James; Glen, Alicia; Jon Fromowitz
Subject: RE: Prep for State of the City
Date: Saturday, January 24, 2015 2:08:00 PM

All:

This meeting will start closer to 345 PM.

Thanks!!!

-----Original Appointment-----

From:

Sent: Monday, January 19, 2015 4:08 AM

To: Carey, Michael; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Hagelgans, Andrea; Leopold, Elana; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; Patchett, James; Glen, Alicia; Jon Fromowitz

Cc: 'Robinson Rodriguez (DCAS)'

Subject: Prep for State of the City

When: Saturday, January 24, 2015 3:30 PM-5:00 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).

Where: Gracie Mansion, The Peach Room

From: Carey, Michael
To: Chao, Raymond; Patchett, James; "Jon Fromowitz"; Ragone, Peter; Glen, Alicia; Leopold, Elana; Shorris, Anthony; "Jonathan Rosen"; Wolfe, Emma; ""jfdc@akpdmedia.com" \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)"; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: RE: MBDB: SOTC prep
Date: Sunday, January 25, 2015 10:12:41 AM

So we are all aware – this meeting is still scheduled to happen at 12:30 PM. If any changes, I will let you know.

-----Original Appointment-----

From:
Sent: Monday, January 19, 2015 4:08 AM
To: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Patchett, James; 'Jon Fromowitz'; Ragone, Peter; Glen, Alicia; Leopold, Elana; Shorris, Anthony; Jonathan Rosen; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' (jfdc@akpdmedia.com)'; Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: 'Robinson Rodriguez (DCAS)'
Subject: MBDB: SOTC prep
When: Sunday, January 25, 2015 12:30 PM-2:30 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).
Where: Gracie Mansion, The Peach Room

From: B
To: Wolfe, Emma; Ragone, Peter; Sevillia, Max
Cc: FLONYC; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Confidential/Do Not Forward
Date: Sunday, January 25, 2015 11:36:41 PM

This very moving and humbling testimony from the Mayor of Minneapolis explains, better than I ever could, the importance of our efforts to organize mayors around the country as well as our broader national progressive plan. In a word: our audacity is well-placed, and needed.

-----Original Message-----

From: Betsy Hodges
To: Bill de Blasio
Subject: Re: Loved your message!!
Sent: Jan 25, 2015 8:41 PM

Thank you! I am replying from the best email for this - it is my personal one and better suited for the task. I am clear on the no texting tip.

I am also convinced we are kindred. I kept track of your race, and keep track of what you're up to. You have my admirations as well as my relief that the highest profile mayor in the country is flying his progressive flag high and proud. That's one of the things that makes it easier for me here. It helps me know I am not crazy to take on and do the things I am taking on and doing. Full confession, though: when you and I got elected in 2013 there were a number of stories, some local, some national, about the wave of progressive mayors who were elected. You and I were both mentioned in some of those, which was awesome. I have appeared at a fair number of conferences and panels and such around the country where people referred to me as the "Bill de Blasio of Minneapolis". I took it as a compliment - I am proud to be your kindred spirit - but I am sure you understand that I patiently explained to them that you are the Betsy Hodges of New York.

Here's how your work makes it easier for me (and I think others of our ilk):

- 1) Dude, you are leading the way. You're one of the most prominent and visible leaders in the country and the world and as a result you taking on pre-K, wages, immigration, pedestrian deaths, etc. and making them central to your work helps pave the way for me to do the same. I hope there are places where I go first and it helps other Mayors, but you're the mayor of New York and people for sure know when you make the move. I can point out your work to my allies and my detractors and say "this isn't some crazy notion one lady has". I go out on the limb for the "crazy notion" when I need to, but it's nice not to need to sometimes.
- 2) Related to 1, you're out there doing it, making things happen, shining the light on the most important issues of equity and making the case that it matters for everyone. That helps and bolsters me making the case here. It helps people see more easily that it's a movement and not a lone voice. I wake up every day thinking about what I can to create better outcomes for people of color and low income people while I grow the hell out of Minneapolis. I go to bed thinking about it. Everything I do is steeped in those questions, those and how to do city basics well. That's pretty much it. With you out there I know I'm not the only one.
- 3) You do stuff, you do it on a big scale, and you expect and get results for it. You've got guts. I've got guts. Even so, I have learned from you a lot about how to have confidence in the vision and what that looks like day to day. I wasn't raised a man, I have been saddled with some of the great and challenging things about women's enculturation, so having an example of other ways to be a badass mayor is really helpful.

All of that speaks to the clarity of your agenda, your leadership, your clarity of purpose, and your courage. Nice work, my friend.

Please know I don't think you're perfect, I am not imbuing you with superhuman characteristics or anything. I just thought it might be helpful for you to know that what you're doing matters far beyond what you're likely aiming for and that's saying something. It matters to me, and it is helping Minneapolis. Thanks for being so out there on our values.

Finally, I debated on whether to share this with you and decided to go for it. [REDACTED]

Damn right we are going to tell them how to act with the police. You are not the only mayor by far in that situation. That's not a problem with us. In that vein, I offer this piece I wrote after being slimed on TV by a local reporter and the head of my police union: <http://mayorhodges.com/2014/11/13/pointergate/>

My best to you, Bill. I like you back.

b

cell: [REDACTED] best email: [REDACTED]

On Jan 25, 2015, at 3:54 PM, Hodges, Betsy A. <Betsy.Hodges@minneapolismn.gov> wrote:

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Date: January 25, 2015 at 3:49:07 PM CST
To: <betsy.hodges@minneapolismn.gov>
Subject: Loved your message!!
Reply-To: <[REDACTED]>

Betsy, I have no doubt that your opinions are regularly both strong and critical (in the good sense of the word)! I'm looking forward to staying in touch -- this email is the best way to reach me, or call on the cell. -- but best to avoid texting.

I am convinced we are kindred. I was very touched by your comment about our work in nyc making your work there easier -- tell me more about that -- want to understand it better. Keep up the good work, and hope to see you in NYC or at our mtg in Boston. Best, Bill

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Politico: Inside Hillary Clinton's 2016 plan
Date: Monday, January 26, 2015 9:25:12 AM

The most amazing thing about this piece is that they are already messaging against the campaign manager. They are literally proving with their first big story that they learned no lessons from the past. #Philippe

“Here’s the rub: A trio of people with substantial juice will be above campaign manager Robby Mook — with Podesta, who is leaving his West Wing post as counselor next month for a short stay at the Center for American Progress until the campaign formally launches, serving as chairman; family consigliere Cheryl Mills serving as a top adviser, regardless of whether she is on the inside or outside (a possible title: co-chair); and longtime close aide Huma Abedin, the most important non-Clinton in her orbit. (When the White House wants to reach Clinton, Abedin gets the call.) Philippe Reines, one of the longest serving Hillary whisperers, will be another crucial outside adviser.”

Inside Hillary Clinton's 2016 plan

New campaign takes shape, with ‘big-tent mentality’ and ‘good cop’ for press.

By MIKE ALLEN

1/26/15 5:33 AM EST

Not only is she running, but we have a very good idea of what it will look like.

Hillary Clinton is in the final stages of planning a presidential campaign that is likely to launch in early April, and has made decisions on most top posts, according to numerous Democrats in close contact with the Clintons and their aides.

Campaign advisers say the likelihood of a campaign, long at 98 percent (she never really hesitated, according to one person close to her), went to 100 percent right after Christmas, when Clinton approved a preliminary budget and several key hires.

Most of the top slots have been decided, with one notable exception: communications director, a job that is now the subject of intense lobbying and jockeying by some of the biggest names in Democratic politics. One top contender is White House Communications Director Jennifer Palmieri, who is close to likely campaign chairman John Podesta.

Numerous lessons from Clinton's failed '08 campaign are being baked into the 2016 plan, including a determination to improve relations with the press – or, at the very least, to have a “good cop” role to help her get off on a better foot with the journalists who will help shape her image.

Reflecting other lessons learned, the campaign is being planned with more of a “big-tent mentality,” as one adviser put it. And Bill Clinton is being integrated from the start, after feeling isolated from parts of her campaign against Barack Obama.

One component of Hillary Clinton's emerging strategy involves quietly but aggressively courting key endorsers from the left, who could help increase progressives' comfort level and take the wind out of a potential challenge. Two top targets: Robert Reich, the economist and former Labor secretary for her husband, and Rep. John Lewis (D-Ga.), the civil-rights icon. In December, she won public endorsements from Howard Dean and Sen. Al Franken (D-Minn.).

Bill Clinton is already deeply engaged in the campaign, warning that Jeb Bush is a real threat, while New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie is probably just a sideshow.

The former president got a “heads-up” from the camp of President George H.W. Bush a few days before Jeb Bush made his surprise Facebook announcement in December that he would “actively explore” a campaign. The two former presidents have developed a friendly bond, partly because of their work together on earthquake relief for Haiti.

The exact timing of Hillary Clinton's launch is unknown, but close allies expect her to officially enter the 2016 race shortly after the end of this quarter, so that her first fundraising report will be a blockbuster. On March 4, the Clinton Foundation holds its annual gala in New York, with entertainment by Carole King – expected to be one of the Clintons’ final major events before the campaign.

Friends and advisers say she is planning this campaign “her way,” without being buffaloed by outside pressure.

“She is taking her time,” one adviser said. “Part of doing something right is ... taking the time to balance the advice she is getting with her own thoughts. She’s in no rush. People have been putting a red ‘X’ on the calendar for a long time, but that isn’t necessarily happening internally.”

Clinton will enter the Democratic race with a bang – and virtually no opposition to speak of. Sen. Elizabeth Warren, who could mount a serious campaign from the left, has said she won’t run, and is making no behind-the-scenes preparations. Vice President Joe Biden says he might very well run – but mainly wants his name in the mix in case Clinton implodes.

This leaves a trio of long-shots with scant money: Sen. Bernie Sanders (I-Vt.), former Maryland Gov. Martin O’Malley and former Sen. Jim Webb of Virginia.

The potential opposition is so weak that Clinton might wind up not even debating during the primaries, which many Democrats view as a mixed blessing.

The Clinton team knows it can’t campaign with the swagger of presumed nominee, because the air of inevitability was so damaging last time around. That said, some advisers are already privately talking up potential running mates, with Sen. Michael Bennet of Colorado and Sen. Tim Kaine of Virginia dominating the early speculation.

Some advisers expect a push for diversity on the ticket. So the short list also is expected to include HUD Secretary Julián Castro, Labor Secretary Tom Perez, Sen. Cory Booker of New Jersey, and perhaps California Attorney General Kamala Harris, who is running for U.S. Senate.

Despite the internal confidence, Clinton won’t enter without substantial concerns and obstacles, some of which are self-evident to her top advisers and are part of a constant conversation among Democrats during the build-up phase.

The Warren wing can be expected to continue pounding her for fat speaking fees and chummy Wall Street relations, and try to pull her to the left in ways that are unnatural for the Clintons. If she were to lurch left, she would risk appearing insincere or baldly political.

These allies also know the past problems of Clinton Inc. that could resurface: the competing Bill and Hillary camps, the questionable donors, and back-biting when things get tense or go south. Clinton insiders blame a confused and conflicted '08 structure for many of her stumbles in that primary race.

The campaign-in-waiting is working to assuage these concerns by creating a coherent leadership structure, and bridging the Bill and Hillary worlds. “There’s an enormous amount of coordination and communication that goes on with his office,” an adviser said. “Everybody recognizes that it’s important.”

Here’s the rub: A trio of people with substantial juice will be above campaign manager Robby Mook — with Podesta, who is leaving his West Wing post as counselor next month for a short stay at the Center for American Progress until the campaign formally launches, serving as chairman; family consigliere Cheryl Mills serving as a top adviser, regardless of whether she is on the inside or outside (a possible title: co-chair); and longtime close aide Huma Abedin, the most important non-Clinton in her orbit. (When the White House wants to reach Clinton, Abedin gets the call.) Philippe Reines, one of the longest serving Hillary whisperers, will be another crucial outside adviser.

Toss in Bill and Chelsea, and it’s clear why structure is such a stress point.

Tom Nides, who returned to Morgan Stanley after serving as Hillary Clinton’s deputy secretary of state, will have a top role in the campaign — probably involving high-level fundraising. Dennis Cheng, the Clinton’s Foundation’s chief development officer, is expected to move over to the campaign in a top finance post.

Advisers know that Clinton doesn't like or trust the press - and feels that it's mutual. She remains a voracious consumer of news about herself, occasionally complaining about an article's tone or omissions.

But she got largely favorable coverage as secretary of state, and experienced a press corps that she considered more substantive and less sensational. She visited with reporters in the back of her plane on international trips, and discovered they don't bite. So the campaign plans to include a media-friendly communications official, as a counterweight to the instinctive insularity of Hillaryland.

"You do see what works, and address what works the next time around," an adviser said. "The default isn't toward the pit-bull mentality."

In addition to Palmieri, other names that have been in the hopper: Brian Fallon, an alumnus of Sen. Charles Schumer who is now the top spokesman for Attorney General Eric Holder; Mo Elleithee, the DNC communications director; Karen Finney, a former MSNBC host and alumnus of the Clinton White House; and Kiki McLean, a consultant and strategist who has worked at the top of many national campaigns.

Nick Merrill, who worked with Reines at State and is now Clinton's spokesman, is trusted and well-liked and will remain in the inner circle.

Clinton has recruited two of the top brains of the Obama campaign – pollster Joel Benenson and media strategist Jim Margolis, who worked for her husband's campaign in 1992. Now that the architecture of the campaign is clear, the two are helping with the next critical task: developing her message.

Read more: <http://www.politico.com/story/2015/01/hillary-clinton-2016-elections-114586.html#ixzz3PwBBEpCQ>

--

Rebecca Kirsznar Katz
Office of the Mayor
(212) 788-3112
rkatz@cityhall.nyc.gov
@RebeccaKatz

From: John Del Cecato
To: Wiley, Maya
Cc: Reisman, Lisette
Subject: Re: Emails
Date: Monday, January 26, 2015 11:52:28 AM

From: <Wiley>, "Wiley, Maya" <MWiley@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 26, 2015 at 11:47 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: "Reisman, Lisette" <LReisman@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Emails

That'll work. Number?

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 26, 2015, at 11:44 AM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

drat - have an appointment at 3.. Maybe 345? Or anytime after 345

From: <Wiley>, "Wiley, Maya" <MWiley@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 26, 2015 at 11:43 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: "Reisman, Lisette" <LReisman@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Emails

Can you do 3?

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 26, 2015, at 10:33 AM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

How about 2pm today?

From: <Wiley>, "Wiley, Maya" <MWiley@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, January 26, 2015 at 10:00 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: "Reisman, Lisette" <LReisman@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Emails

Hey John-

Hope you're hunkering down for the storm. Let me know if you have two minutes to talk sometime in the next day or two.

M

Maya Wiley, Esq.
Counsel to the Mayor
Office of the Mayor
The City of New York
(212) 341-5083 (o)
(212) 312-0899 (f)
Assistant: Lisette Reisman
lreisman@cityhall.nyc.gov
(212) 341-5088 (o)

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Patchett, James; "Jon Fromowitz"; Ragone, Peter; Glen, Alicia; Shorris, Anthony; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)"; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: RE: SOTC Prep
Date: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 11:22:11 AM

This will start closer to 11:45

-----Original Appointment-----

From: Carey, Michael

Sent: Tuesday, January 27, 2015 12:57 PM

To: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Patchett, James; 'Jon Fromowitz'; Ragone, Peter; Glen, Alicia; Leopold, Elana; Shorris, Anthony; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com)'; Hagelgans, Andrea

Subject: SOTC Prep

When: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 11:30 AM-1:00 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).

Where: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

From: John Del Cecato
To: Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: SOTC Prep
Date: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 11:50:42 AM

I've got a conf call at 1p - but Fromo can stay

On Jan 28, 2015, at 11:48 AM, Leopold, Elana <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

We are further delayed. Will send a note when everyone should gather.

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 11:26 AM
To: Leopold, Elana
Cc: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Patchett, James; Jon Fromowitz; Ragone, Peter; Glen, Alicia; Shorris, Anthony; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: SOTC Prep

Cool. I'm on second floor

On Jan 28, 2015, at 11:22 AM, Leopold, Elana <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

This will start closer to 11:45

-----Original Appointment-----

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Tuesday, January 27, 2015 12:57 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Patchett, James; 'Jon Fromowitz'; Ragone, Peter; Glen, Alicia; Leopold, Elana; Shorris, Anthony; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: SOTC Prep
When: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 11:30 AM-1:00 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).
Where: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

From: Carey, Michael
To: "Jonathan@berlinrosen.com" \(Jonathan@berlinrosen.com\)"; Williams, Dominic; Katz, Rebecca; John, Roxanne; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\); Ragone, Peter; Griffith, Chantell; Chao, Raymond; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Ko, Eunice; Wiley, Maya; "nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com" \(nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com\)"; Leopold, Elana; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)"; Shorris, Anthony; Howe, Amanda
Subject: RE: MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 11:52:58 AM

All:

Heads up that tonight might be moved to a later time. Keep posted.

Michael Paul Carey

Director of Scheduling and Advance

City Hall

-----Original Appointment-----

From:

Sent: Monday, January 19, 2015 6:33 AM

To: Carey, Michael; "Jonathan@berlinrosen.com" (Jonathan@berlinrosen.com); Williams, Dominic; Katz, Rebecca; John, Roxanne; Fuleihan, Dean (OMB); Ragone, Peter; Griffith, Chantell; Chao, Raymond; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Ko, Eunice; Wiley, Maya; "nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com" (nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com); Leopold, Elana; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Shorris, Anthony; Howe, Amanda

Subject: MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting

When: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 6:30 PM-8:00 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).

Where: Gracie Mansion, The Parlor

From: Shorris, Anthony
To: Patchett, James; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Glen, Alicia; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Williams, Dominic; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\)
Subject: RE: We have rec on min wage # for sotc
Date: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 1:05:00 PM

13.13 sounds a lot better

-----Original Message-----

From: Patchett, James
Sent: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 1:03 PM
To: Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Glen, Alicia; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Williams, Dominic; Shorris, Anthony; Fuleihan, Dean (OMB)
Subject: Re: We have rec on min wage # for sotc

Slight revision per discussion with Emma:

Technically, we said 13.13 for living wage last year. Assuming 3% inflation, that would index to $13.52 this year.

For consistency, we would propose $13.52 this year.

----- Original Message -----

From: Wolfe, Emma
Sent: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 10:10 AM
To: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Williams, Dominic; Shorris, Anthony; Fuleihan, Dean (OMB)
Subject: We have rec on min wage # for sotc

13.13 with indexing.

James will provide chart.

Note that would increase over time.

Rationale: ambitious policy that will not hurt job growth and is consistent with our living wage rule.

Why not $15: not realistic to implement right away, not helpful for jobs agenda + biz. But still gets us to $15 over time.

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Patchett, James; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"; Ragone, Peter; Glen, Alicia; Shorris, Anthony; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: SOTC Prep
Date: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 1:05:53 PM

We are now ready. Please gather.

From: Jon Fromowitz
To: Leopold, Elana
Cc: John Del Cecato; Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Glen, Alicia; Shorris, Anthony; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: SOTC Prep
Date: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 1:08:28 PM
Attachments: SOTCwednesday1PM.docx
ATT00001.htm

Took this time to make some edits to the draft, including bringing in a lot more from James' very helpful 1 pager. Can we get this version printed for meeting?

STATE OF THE CITY DRAFT

1/28/15 - 10am

ESTIMATED LENGTH: 45 minutes - NEED TO CUT

Acknowledgements:

(WILL TIP HAT TO CITY COUNCIL, AMONG OTHERS)

OPEN:

For centuries, New York has been seen around the world as a place of boundless possibilities.... where hard work and raw grit are rewarded like nowhere else. It is where, 100 years ago, my grandparents began a new life after leaving the familiarities of their home in Southern Italy. They – like so many others – chose THIS place for a reason.

Those of us who call this city home know that reason well. It's why we put up with crowded subways and noisy streets. It's why people who live here LOVE to live here. Our city hums with purpose; it shines with prospects.

Early 20th century novelist Thomas Wolfe put it beautifully: "In New York the opportunities for learning, and acquiring a culture that shall not come out of the ruins, but belong to life, are probably greater than anywhere else in the world."

ALT:

As the writer John Steinbeck put it: "Once you have lived in New York and made it your home, no place else is good enough."

Opportunity, innovation and a spirit of inclusiveness are coded in New York's DNA.

But the idea that New York is truly a place for everyone – the promise at the core of what makes our city so great and special – is at risk.

It's at risk because the people who LOVE to live here are finding it increasing difficult to AFFORD to live here.

SPANISH VIA GOOGLE TRANSLATE -- NEED TO CHECK

Oportunidad , la innovación y un espíritu de inclusión están codificados en el código genético de Nueva York .

Pero la idea de que Nueva York es realmente un lugar para todo el mundo - la promesa en el núcleo de lo que hace a nuestra ciudad tan grande y especial - está en riesgo.

Es en riesgo debido a las personas que les gusta vivir aquí les resulta difícil aumentar el lujo de vivir aquí.

You can see it the tired eyes of the single mother in Brighton Beach, working two jobs and barely scraping together enough for the most modest of living arrangements to share with her kids.

You can see it in the worn hands of the fast food worker in Eastchester, consumed with worry as the calendar approaches the first of next month.

You can see it in furrowed brow of the senior living in Bayside, as she sweeps her porch to put off thinking about whether she's saved enough to keep her middle-class home, or whether it's time to discuss her adult son's offer to have her move in.

When we talk about taking dead aim at the Tale of Two Cities – when we talk about our vision for creating One New York, rising together – we're talking about the very PROMISE of New York – a city that offers opportunity not just to the lucky few, but to ALL 8.4 million people who call it home.

We're talking about protecting the very IDEA of a place where anything is possible for ANYONE willing to work hard and dream big.

We know where our strength comes from... why we are the global capital of opportunity. We are a city of neighborhoods – five boroughs filled with people from every background – with every single one deserving a shot at one thing: living, working, and raising children in a safe, thriving city, so that hardworking parents are granted the gift that has made our city a shining light for centuries: being able to pass the PROMISE of New York on to the NEXT generation.

But today, too many families are getting priced out of their own city.

Nearly half our city living at or near the poverty level, even while we are home to more millionaires than Los Angeles, Chicago and Houston combined. CHECK

One of the major drivers of the growing inequality we face – and one of its most intense expressions – is the unaffordability of housing.

The math is cold and straightforward:

If you were making $50,000 in the year 2000, chances are you haven't seen any real increase in your wages since then. Most New Yorkers haven't, when you adjust for inflation. But – on average – an apartment that cost you $1,000 a month then likely costs more than $1,700 now. So by staying in the same home, you've gone from spending less than a quarter of your income on housing -- to about 40%. CHECK

So it's no wonder that people feel like they are being priced out.

Now, let's be clear: we face big challenges that are not isolated to New York City. A recent analysis by the New York Times found that the American middle class has been shrinking for almost half a century, and is 20% smaller today than it was in 1967.

But we don't need a study to tell us that this problem is felt more acutely here in New York. We feel it in our own lives... See it on the faces of our neighbors... Even those of our kids.

And if we do not act and act boldly, New York risks becoming little more the world's largest gated community. A sterile, static place where not just PEOPLE – but ideas, innovations, and the profound contributions that have always defined our city -- are priced out.

New York success stories are rarely fairy tales. The most powerful achievements here have been fueled not by simply charm and luck, but by hard work, vision and determination.

Think about the people who have made the most important contributions to our city. How many of them STARTED OUT wealthy?

If unaffordability leads to a New York where struggle with a singular sense of purpose cannot yield great success, then we lose a big part of who we are.

So to that end, we have to ask: could Walt Whitman make it here today? How about Patti Smith? Could Lloyd Blankfein make it from East New York to the helm of Goldman Sachs? Jay-Z -- from the Marcy Houses, to Roc Nation?

What if Joseph Papp – the son of Russian immigrants – had not gotten his shot? Would there be a Public Theater?

What about Jonas Salk – also a son of immigrants – hadn't had his opportunity? Would we still be battling the scourge of polio today?

Would Sonya Sotomayor – the daughter of Puerto Rican-born parents – have made it from the South Bronx to the Supreme Court?

If we as a city fail to face the affordability crisis that we know today, how many stories of THIS generation of young New Yorkers will be denied that triumphant ending?

That is why we must reverse the trend of housing unaffordability... Not just slow the growth of the number of our brothers and sisters who are rent-burdened, but start driving that number DOWN. Building more affordable housing...pushing against the tide on ever-rising rents...creating new affordable neighborhoods for new generations of New Yorkers.

How?

By fighting to drive wages UP, and housing and other living expenses DOWN.

By literally building UP: increasing the density of neighborhoods across five boroughs to help reduce the burden of unaffordability.... that fear faced by so many that their own neighborhoods are becoming too expensive to stay in.

There's precious little room on the ground in this city to build the units we need to make housing more affordable... but there's so much space... so much potential to get to the heart of what's driving inequality in our city.... if we're ALL willing to take the simple step of looking up.

In 2014, we took on many efforts to address the affordability crisis – the most prominent our successful bid to secure quality, universal, full-day Pre-K, and after-school programs for every middle-school child – something bold and meaningful, and something that so many said we couldn't do.

Our mission for 2015 will be every bit as central to the cause of combatting income inequality – fighting to ensure that New Yorkers can afford to live and work and STAY in the city they love.

This is our core mission in 2015, and I'm here to discuss – in detail – how we plan to achieve a vision of a more affordable New York – building affordable housing UP, and building wages UP.

But let us first take just a few moments to reflect on what we accomplished, together, this past year.

2014 was a year of bold action and powerful results. It was also a year that showed that a progressive agenda WOULDN'T result in economic calamity as so many cynics predicted. Quite the opposite, last year, New York saw:

* 94,500 jobs added in 2014 – the highest year-to-date growth rate in the past 20 years.

* 3.5 million private sector jobs – all-time high.

* Unemployment rate down 1% since July – steepest two-month decline since reporting began in 1976.

The economic indicators make clear that the state of our city is strong.

But beneath those numbers...for millions of New Yorkers...we are nowhere near as strong as we must be – those beset by frustration, anxiousness and uncertainty in the face rampant inequality and growing unaffordability. This concern – felt by New Yorkers of every age, every race, and every income bracket – is what drives this Administration to act... and what guides the actions we take.

This year, we've begun to rewrite the Tale of Two Cities by enacting a set of policies aimed at opening the doors of opportunity for EVERYONE who calls this city home.

To that end, we delivered on our promise of universal, full-day pre-K for ALL of New York's children... the first time in our city's history that this has been achieved. 53,000 of our youngest New Yorkers have an even better chance of living their dreams. And, thanks to the help of so many dedicated New Yorkers, none more so than our city's inspiring First Lady, we will complete that process by enrolling over 15,000 more kids this year.

And the First Lady's efforts will continue to include those who haven't yet reached the age for Pre-K – offering a plan to lift up children from age zero to three.

This year, delivered significantly expanding after-school programs across all five boroughs – with XXX New York middle-schoolers in a program today that they weren't one year ago.

We delivered on giving paid sick leave to 500,000 more New Yorkers, and raising and expanding the living wage to many more workers. PAID SICK LEAVE STORY FROM [REDACTED]

And we delivered on ending a broken stop-and-frisk policy, to empower our police officers to go after bad guys, not MANDATE them to stop innocent New Yorkers. It is an approach that has helped the skilled and courageous men and women of the NYPD lead us to an historic drop in crime.

Our work is far from over, but after decades of our city moving in the wrong direction when it came to inequality, we've begun to turn a corner.

At the same time, we've never forgotten our FIRST job – to keep New Yorkers safe, to clean our streets, to help residents get to and from work, to fight to ensure taxpayers get a dollar's worth of city services for a dollar's worth of their taxes.

To that end, we have:

- * Passed a responsible, balanced AND progressive budget;

- * Created and implemented Municipal ID to bring people out of the shadows – which 100,000 New Yorkers have already taken advantage of. By the end of the year, it will be the largest program of its kind in the country.

* Awarded $690 million in prime and subcontracts to certified MWBEs in FY14, a 57% increase from the year before;

* Spurred job creation by investing in projects like Brooklyn Navy Yard and Brooklyn Army Terminal, and the first full-service movie studio to be built on Staten Island;

* Established Vision Zero.

* Since the start of this administration, the Department of Transportation has filled more than half a million potholes. [More than 493,000 in 2014 and more than 15,000 so far this year.]

* Built upon PlaNYC with an historic commitment to reducing greenhouse gases in the fight against climate change and other preventable disasters.

* Settled expired contracts with over 72% of the city's labor force -- signing deals that were not only fair to the workers that contribute so much to making this city function, but also fair to the taxpayers they serve.

* And most important, we kept our people safe – driving crime down to its lowest point ever, with the lowest number of homicides ever, and the lowest number of robberies ever – all while beginning the process of retraining our police force and equipping them with new technology to keep our neighbors safe AND our officers safe.

And we are committed to continue that trend, by equipping the NYPD with the most sophisticated and high-tech tools available – from shot-spotter sound equipment that allows them to pinpoint the source of gunshots; to smartphones that give instant, detailed information on suspects; to bullet-proof vests that help protect them from the dangers they face on the job each day.

And we've used the tools at our disposal to begin to rebuild our middle class – for those in it, and those striving to work their way into it.

We've done that by laying the foundation for lifting our neighborhoods UP – from job creation and health care, to education and environmental protection and transit.

Just a few examples:

To help foster job growth, we've expanded the Tech Talent Pipeline – a catalyst for jobs both in tech and all those jobs connected to tech – by increasing public AND private funding to reach $10M.

We've continued to expand Media/TV/Film – (NEED STATS)...and expanded modern manufacturing (EXAMPLE?)

We've supported small businesses with smarter implementation of inspection process/curbing ticket blitz that held so many back.

And we're providing tax relief for small businesses with a reduction small businesses across our city, including a 50% reduction for small manufacturing firms.

With the First Look program, we've invested in middle-skill job training for up to 30,000 people each year, prioritize good-paying full-time job placements at workforce agencies, and requiring companies doing business with the City to move New Yorkers to the front of the hiring line.

And we've placed a premium on hiring LOCAL workers – such as in East New York, where 200-unit affordable housing project in East New York that tapped the talent pool of workers actually FROM East New York.

We've halted the closure of every Brooklyn hospital that was set to shut its doors – and are poised to add a dozen more community health centers this year. CHECK

We've invested in Healthcare Clusters, anchored by higher education institutions, hospitals, and growing biotech companies – improving our city's health, while seeding the jobs of the innovation economy. The life sciences industry the sector accounted for 13,742 jobs in New York City, paying an average salary of $77,000.

NEED MORE INFO ON #1 IN LIFE SCIENCES GOAL

In the coming year, we'll expand on what we've done to improve education -- continuing to expand Pre-K and after-school; focus on community schools as neighborhood anchors; implementing summer jobs programs like the Mayoral Center for Youth Employment through the Mayor's Fund; investing in Renewal Schools; increasing the CUNY budget to give more New Yorkers the training they need to fill growing number of skilled jobs; and continuing to expand workforce development and job training through programs like Career Pathways.

We are taking bold steps to make our city sustainable for the next generation – retrofitting buildings to protect our environment and create thousands of new jobs – creating incentives for those who participate voluntarily, or issuing mandates if need be; investing in Zero Waste Schools; improving PlaNYC (NEED DETAILS); expanding NYCHA recycling; and opening XXX new parks and open spaces in our neighborhoods.

We are working to innovate our transit system, because building a city for everyone also means improving our transportation infrastructure to make sure EVERY neighborhood has a viable commute to the areas of the city where most jobs exist.

Few neighborhoods have overcome more in recent years than the Rockaways. The resilience of New Yorkers who live there in the face of nature's fury exemplifies all that is good about our city. We owe it to them -- and to so many others -- not to let their opportunities be constricted by geography.

So we're proposing a citywide ferry expansion to be completed by 2017. Ferries will be priced at the same price as a MetroCard and have the potential to unlock 15,000 or more units of housing currently in transit deserts like Red Hook, Soundview, and yes, the Rockaways AND to connect CURRENT residents in neighborhoods like these to good jobs throughout the City. No New Yorker should EVER have to rule out signing a lease or accepting a job offer because of an effectively impossible commute. Ferry expansion will go a long ways towards achieving that goal.

We will expand Bus Rapid Transit -- or BRT (FLAG: NEED DETAILS) -- servicing 400K people -- in places like Utica Ave in Brooklyn, Woodhaven Blvd in Queens... completing 20 routes over the next four years ... dramatically cutting transit time. (BE SPECIFIC)

And a city for everyone recognizes transformational infrastructure projects when it sees them -- the type of projects that fundamentally improve our local economy... and create thousands of jobs in the process.

That's why we need federal support for Penn Station redevelopment and the Gateway project—a new tunnel under the Hudson River. Our current tunnels are crumbling, and this is an essential piece of infrastructure to support our economy and keep our people safe.

All of the steps that we are taking to strengthen neighborhoods mean very little if everyday New Yorkers can't afford to live in them.

In 2012, 55 percent of renters in New York were spending more than 30 percent of their income on housing -- up 11 points in just over a decade. Spending more than 30 percent of income on housing is known as being rent-burdened. It's an apt description: the cost of living in this city is becoming a heavier and heavier burden. A burden on parents AND their adult children...a burden on hopes and aspirations. We cannot and will not let that trend continue.

That's why our absolute highest priority is making housing more affordable.

A lack of affordability is not isolated to a single neighborhood or a single borough. Just the opposite, is felt by nearly every New Yorker these days, one way or another:

Personal story of
Personal story of
Personal story of

Accepting a city where these realities exist runs contrary to the core of our character.

So as your mayor, I am committed to seeing New York City DOUBLE the number of affordable housing units built each year.

That means the highest rate of new affordable housing created in New York in any time since Fiorello LaGuardia held this office CHECK, and at TWICE the rate as any time within the last 25 years.

It also means building more affordable housing units than the 10 next largest American cities combined. CHECK. In fact, under our plan, NYC will build almost 50% more affordable housing EVERY YEAR than America's third largest city—Chicago—built in ALL HOUSING last year.

The plan we announced this past year (HOLD UP ACTUAL PLAN) creates or preserves 200,000 units of affordable housing over the next decade. And we're more than on track to hit that mark... Our goal for 2014 was 16,000 units; the number we got to: 17,300.

But today I am calling on our city to go even further, to not just create more affordable units, but to change the way we -- as a growing city -- think about development, so that keeping New York a city for everyone is at the center of everything we do.

That means continued funding for new affordable housing, but it also means increased protections for existing units (Stuy Town Statute), and – critically – a willingness on everyone's part to look upwards in the name of preventing New Yorkers from being priced out of their own neighborhoods (upzoning).

As long as I am Mayor, when the city re-zones a neighborhood to unlock new housing capacity, we won't merely ENCOURAGE developers to build affordable housing... we will REQUIRE them to.

We are creating a Mandatory Inclusionary Housing program that will apply to ALL major residential re-zonings. It means that for the very first time in New York's history, providing affordable housing will be a CONDITION of residential development.

Want to see this approach in action? Look at Astoria Cove in Queens.

As a result of this Administration's policy, 27% of the units created are guaranteed to be affordable... and to stay that way. The result: nearly 500 new units of affordable housing from one single project, with many, many more to follow, including:

- a. East New York: 7,000 units
- b. Long Island City: 4,000 units
- c. Flushing West: 1,500 units
- d. East Harlem (not yet announced): 3,000 units

CURRENT EXAMPLES/PROPOSALS:

Sunnyside project -- develop 197 acres in one of the city's largest undeveloped areas.

Generational opportunity to create mixed-income housing. Create tens thousands of units of housing and millions of square feet of commercial, community, and cultural uses connected by a network of open spaces.

An example of defying the principle that they aren't making any more land.

Not just driven by need for affordable housing, but also smart urban revitalization that recognizes and embraces ethnic and economic diversity of city.

We call on state government and Amtrak to be partners in this project.

And a proposed project on the South Bronx Waterfront will create a new mixed-use district on the South Bronx waterfront that connects the neighborhood to Port Morris and the Harlem River. Can create 4,000 housing units and 1,500 new jobs.

Our approach also means initiatives to protect those who face the heaviest – and the cruelest – burdens of unaffordability.

Set-asides for struggling New Yorkers, but also:

FIRST RESPONDERS PLACEHOLDER

10K units for seniors on fixed incomes, who have worked hard all their lives, and want to retire here – who deserve to live their golden years with some dignity, especially when they can't meet rising housing costs by working towards a raise.

We also commit to END chronic veterans homelessness by the end of THIS year, and senior homelessness by 20XX. We as a city cannot sit by and allow those who are most vulnerable – and those who have contributed the most -- to be subjected to the harshest of realities. It's not who we are.

And speaking of who we are, New York would not be the cultural capital of the world without contributions from artistic visionaries at one point struggled to get by.

That's why we're committing to 1,500 units of affordable housing for writers, artists, musicians, and those who make New York City culture so vibrant. They help make our city a mecca for tourists; bring joy to everyday New Yorkers; serve as role models to young people who want to pursue natural talents in industries that don't always hold the promise of a big paycheck.

This small commitment could be the difference between whether or not our city fosters the creation of the next On the Road.... Or the next "Remain in Light."

And this year we will increase oversight of accessibility standards in the private market, as well as in city's regulated affordable housing stock, and fight for greater housing subsidies for New Yorkers with disabilities.

And we know that New York's always found room for its people to live above each other, while working and interacting on the streets together. It's a celebration of our diversity – forcing all of us to see all the world's people every time we cross the street, enter a park, exit the subway.

So to make our city more affordable, we will build HOUSING up.

At the same time, we will fight to build WAGES up.

We know the lack of affordability in New York has as much to do with stagnant wages as it does with rising costs. Now, we can't snap our fingers and give every New Yorker a pay increase – but here's something that would have a meaningful impact for so many: Raise. The. Minimum. Wage.

Let me be absolutely clear, this Administration will not rest until the minimum wage is increased to $13.13 an hour – with indexing. (PLACEHOLDER, PENDING DECISION ON THIS ISSUE)

It would create an upward pull on wages for countless hardworking New Yorkers. It would give a sorely needed boost to our brothers and sisters that need it the most. And it would make our city and fundamentally fairer AND more prosperous place.

Indeed, Henry Ford – the noted left-wing "socialist" that he was (!) – wanted all the workers on his assembly line to be able to afford the cars they spent their days manufacturing. He didn't do it to be charitable; he did it because he knew it was good for business. I'd say it worked out pretty well for him.

We will not stop there.

We will also expand local EITC (FLAG: $50-200M, TBD)

Placeholder for paid family leave city employee possible proposal TBD

That's how we'll make New York City more affordable – with more affordable housing options for those who live here, and better wages and benefits for those who work here.

Mayor Ed Koch believed in the best of people, and the best of this city. So from a landscape in the Bronx that was literally smoldering, he announced the boldest plan for affordable housing in New York's history.

Koch and his administration realized that housing policy is about more than zoning and regulation. He saw the transformative power of city government to revitalize whole communities... and the lives of New Yorkers who call them home. His administration stated the mission clearly: "we're creating more than just apartments – we're re-creating neighborhoods."

Critics said it couldn't be done (REQUESTING QUOTE FROM MAHEN, CAN'T FIND BUT SURE RESEACH PROS CAN), but in the end, Koch's plan did more to strengthen our city's many neighborhoods than just about any other public policy in our lifetimes.

In the same way, our plan will be criticized. There will be voices that say it can't be done. But we're committed to doing it – especially as crime is now lower than ever; our schools are getting more investment than ever; and our city is growing faster than ever (CHECK). We will do this because we will have 9 million people by year 2040.

Indeed, where Koch's challenge was transforming housing policy for a shrinking city, ours is in many ways the opposite. We face the challenge of dealing with a city where more and more people want to live. It's a nice problem to have, but it's a major challenge nonetheless.

So as we set out to make our growing city more affordable and equitable, we must not lose sight of WHY our city is a beacon for so many. It's not the cleanest place, nor the most tranquil. We don't have the best weather or many alluring natural landmarks. But we have something special, something unique: an idea at our core – a PROMISE – that ours is a city.... THE city for EVERYONE.

That promise is what allowed my grandmother as a newly emigrated Italian to start a female-owned embroidery business -- Misses Briganti -- here in the year 1910. Our city's promise is the animating force behind great stories that span centuries and generations.

And as we grow – and we will grow – it is imperative that we not let that promise break... that we not be the first generation of New Yorkers to let those stories end abruptly.

It is no easy task, but we won't be derailed. We won't be timid in the face of big challenges. John F. Kennedy put it well: "There are risks and costs to a program of action. But they are far less than the long-range risks and costs of comfortable inaction."

This Administration -- like the people we are so honored to serve – is about action. And when it comes to taking on the affordability crisis that threatens the core of who we are, we will act -- and we will act boldly.

And we will do it because New Yorkers, and their neighborhoods are what keep us from becoming a Gilded City... they are what make us One New York, Rising Together.

Thank you very much.

STILL NEEDED:

- Something on standing up for executive action on immigration
- Shout-out to Sanitation workers
- Our personal stories

On Jan 28, 2015, at 11:47 AM, Leopold, Elana <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

We are further delayed. Will send a note when everyone should gather.

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]

Sent: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 11:26 AM

To: Leopold, Elana

Cc: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Patchett, James; Jon Fromowitz; Ragone, Peter; Glen, Alicia; Shorris, Anthony; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea

Subject: Re: SOTC Prep

Cool. I'm on second floor

On Jan 28, 2015, at 11:22 AM, Leopold, Elana <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

This will start closer to 11:45

-----Original Appointment-----

From: Carey, Michael

Sent: Tuesday, January 27, 2015 12:57 PM

To: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Patchett, James; 'Jon Fromowitz'; Ragone, Peter; Glen, Alicia; Leopold, Elana; Shorris, Anthony; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Hagelgans, Andrea

Subject: SOTC Prep

When: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 11:30 AM-1:00 PM (UTC-05:00) Eastern Time (US & Canada).

Where: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

From: Carey, Michael
To: Williams, Dominic; Jonathan@berlinrosen.com; Howe, Amanda; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Wiley, Maya; Wolfe, Emma; Griffith, Chantell; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\); John, Roxanne
Subject: MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Wednesday, January 28, 2015 7:55:02 PM

all-- mayor and flonyc are about 20 from GM. Please get to Gracie!!

MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting

Scheduled: Wednesday, Jan 28, 2015 from 8:00 PM to 9:30 PM

Location: Gracie Mansion, The Parlor

Invitees: Williams, Dominic , "Jonathan@berlinrosen.com" (Jonathan@berlinrosen.com)' , Ko, Eunice , Howe, Amanda , "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com)' , Shorris, Anthony , Chao, Raymond , "nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com" (nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com)' , Walzak, Phil , Ragone, Peter , Wiley, Maya , Wolfe, Emma , Katz, Rebecca , Griffith, Chantell , Leopold, Elana , Fuleihan, Dean (OMB) , John, Roxanne

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: Capital Playbook -- HILLARY may delay launch until summer -- CHIRLANE rolls out first policy, on mental health
Date: Thursday, January 29, 2015 7:17:43 AM

More accurately, I should say:

Politico is reporting that Hillary may delay a formal launch until July.

Nice hedges.

On Jan 29, 2015, at 6:49 AM, Katz, Rebecca <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Politico is reporting that Hillary is delaying launch until July. See below.

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: "Azi Paybarah, Jimmy Vielkind, and Mike Allen"
<capitalplaybook@capitalnewyork.com>
Date: January 29, 2015 at 6:47:03 AM EST
To: <rkkatz@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Capital Playbook -- HILLARY may delay launch until summer -- CHIRLANE rolls out first policy, on mental health
Reply-To: <capitalplaybook@capitalnewyork.com>

By Azi Paybarah in New York, Jimmy Vielkind in Albany, and Mike Allen in D.C., with Daniel Lippman

EXCLUSIVE, from Politico Playbook: Hillary Clinton, expecting no major challenge for the Democratic nomination, is strongly considering delaying the formal launch of her presidential campaign until July, three months later than originally planned, top Dems tell Playbook. The delay until summer, from the original April target, would give her more time to develop her message, policy and organization, outside the chaos and spotlight of a public campaign.

The danger – and a reason the plan could be scrapped – is that the comparatively leisurely rollout could fuel complaints among nervous Dems that she is treating the nomination fight as a coronation. Polling by both Dems and Republicans shows that one of her biggest vulnerabilities is looking political. So the Clinton camp has enjoyed watching her recede from the headlines in recent weeks as Jeb Bush and Mitt Romney amped up their potential candidacies.

One option that is being considered would be to announce an exploratory committee earlier – perhaps in April, at the beginning of a new fund-raising quarter, when insiders originally expected her to launch her campaign. The actual kickoff would be in July, near the start of the next quarter. By launching at the beginning of a quarter, supporters have the maximum amount of time to generate a blockbuster total for their first report. -- Mike Allen

OFF TO THE RACES — Capital's Jimmy Vielkind and Josefa Velasquez: The number of would-be successors to Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver dropped to four on Wednesday, as Assemblyman Keith Wright aborted his nascent bid and endorsed Assemblyman Carl Heastie. Heastie, who also chairs the Bronx Democratic Committee, is now the only black candidate in the race—a distinction that should carry weight in a Democratic conference where 24 of the 106 members are black and 39 are non-white. Wright's statement said Heastie was “an exceptionally effective legislator” who “leads by building consensus, listening to good ideas and serving all New Yorkers. <http://bit.ly/1EQv60i>

TICK-TOCK -- “SIX DAYS THAT FELLED SHELDON SILVER” — Times' Jesse McKinley, Thomas Kaplan, Susanne Craig and William Rashbaum, with Albany dateline: “...Interviews with more than a dozen legislators indicate that it was a similarly idealistic new wave of Assembly members who helped galvanize opposition to Mr. Silver, prodded a loyal old guard and cleared the way for an election of a new speaker and, they hoped, a new start. ‘It’s a transformational moment,’ said Assemblyman Michael Blake from the Bronx, who was newly elected in November. ‘Once in a political lifetime, once in a generation, you have an opportunity to set a new direction.’ <http://nyti.ms/1EQB1Cj>

-- “What Silver's members liked about him,” by Nahmias, Vielkind and Bakeman: <http://capi.tl/1zYjGIC>

-- “‘Shocked’ law firm places Silver on leave”: <http://capi.tl/1zYenCb>

THE LONG SLOW SLIDE OF ANDREW CUOMO—
Esquire's Charles Pierce: “He’s alienated enough people to disprove the ancient flapdoodle about how, if both sides hate you, you must be doing something right. (This is known among veteran political observers as the Kerrey Effect, or the Lieberman Theorem.) His devotion to his party runs only as deep as his naked self-interest, which is damn close to the surface at all times. His ambition is his only principle, its satiation his only goal. So if the hot breath of Preet Bhahara is making him anxious and fearful, and if Bhahara’s outright mockery makes him uncomfortable, well, that’s something that’s been overdue for quite some time.”

<http://bit.ly/1EQsT4P>

--WSJ, lead of Greater New York section, "Cuomo's Plan on Weather Has Doubters," by Laura Kusisto: "No one can predict the weather, but New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo sure would like to. After [this week's storm] ... Cuomo said the state was developing 'the most sophisticated weather system in the country' to help officials make better decisions. ... Experts cautioned, however, that even the federally funded $23.6 million, 125-station network now under development wouldn't have predicted the path of this week's nor'easter or given officials sufficient advance warning to make decisions any better than current methods." <http://on.wsj.com/1CBI0jc>

TABS -- Post: "AX & YOU SHALL RECEIVE; City rewards armed thug in cop attack" -- News: "MARIAH SCARY; Nanny hits Mimi with $100G suit" -- amNY: "LOSING OUR SHIRTS; Census: NYC apparel manufacturing business way down since 2007" -- El Diario [translated] "More hungry children"

FRONT PAGES -- Times, 2-col. above the fold: "For Speaker, 6 Days Ended 2 Decades Ruling Albany; Seeing Silver Lose His Grip on Power; New Legislators Orchestrated a Change" -- WSJNY, 4-col. above the fold: "The Race for Speaker Begins"

WANT TO KNOW WHAT YOU'RE MISSING? Get a no-risk, two-week free trial to Capital Pro by emailing us at subscribe@capitalnewyork.com.

CHIRLANE'S MENTAL HEALTH ROAD MAP -- Capital's Dan Goldberg: In her first major policy rollout, first lady Chirlane McCray said Wednesday she plans to tackle the "mental health crisis" in New York City, announcing her intention to put forth a plan this summer that will reimagine how city resources and private funds address the issue. McCray has been criticized for playing too public a role in her husband's administration, but both she and Mayor Bill de Blasio have insisted she will continue to be a force in City Hall. Last November, after a Quinnipiac poll found most New Yorkers do not want her playing a major role, de Blasio said McCray "has only just begun." Wednesday's announcement was the first clear sign the administration was making good on that pledge. <http://bit.ly/1wBOZBJ>

WHAT CITY HALL IS READING -- "Sign-Language Interpreter for Mayor de Blasio Is a Web Hit," by Times' Michael M. Grynbaum: "Even amid the grim news of doomsday forecasts and subway closings, New Yorkers who tuned in to Mayor Bill de Blasio's televised storm briefings found themselves distracted by the unusual activity on one side of the screen. That would be Jonathan Lambertson, the mayor's sign-language interpreter, whose arsenal of rapid gesticulations, vigorous frowns and mime-like smiles — a stark contrast to the mayor's sober mien — raced around social media this week, earning equal parts awe and amusement.”

<http://nyti.ms/1K9og6Z>

RE-ENGINEERING NYPD -- Police commissioner Bill Bratton unveils plans to Police Foundation -- NYMag's Chris Smith: “The cops went back to work after a two-week slowdown. Crime has stayed low. Political scandals and meteorological-political nuttiness have filled the news pages. All of which has allowed Bratton to retreat to One Police Plaza and quietly put the finishing touches on his yearlong effort to analyze and reengineer the city's 35,000-member force. Bratton will unveil his plan Thursday morning at a speech to the New York City Police Foundation. ... [S]ome of Bratton's speech will be about organizational wonkery, changes that are unsexy but integral to how the force functions, including revamping a major Bloomberg-era policing strategy.”

--Ending Operation Impact: “‘We're doing away with Operation Impact over the next year,’ Bratton told me in December, when I asked him for a preview of his plan. Impact was a signature program of the Ray Kelly NYPD, deploying rookie cops for street patrols. ‘Impact was designed to deal with the steadily declining strength of the department in the Bloomberg years,’ Bratton said. ‘The department lost 6,000 police officers that nobody noticed. Why? Crime kept going down. They offset some of the loss of officers with overtime, but also by taking a thousand kids every six months and doing exactly what Petraeus did in Iraq, surging.’”
<http://goo.gl/Pos6u3>

MARK-VIVERITO TO PUERTO RICO -- Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito will teach Puerto Rican legislators about participatory budgeting -- Capita's Gloria Pazmino: The Speaker will deliver the keynote address this weekend to the Association of Municipal Legislators of Puerto Rico conference in Caguas, a small city outside of San Juan. Mark-Viverito was among the first Council members to help launch the governing body's participatory budgeting process in 2011, and now hopes to expand on what she's learned with her Puerto Rican counterparts. <http://bit.ly/1ttmhIl>

TRANSPORTATION BEAT -- “Citi Bike plans to expand to the Upper East and West Sides,” by Post's Reuven Fenton and Rebecca Harshbarger: “Bike-share riders may be hitting the streets of the Upper West Side and Upper East Side as early as this spring or summer as part of the company's uptown surge ... Citi Bike's expansion this year will add dozens of stations to the city, and could reach as far as Harlem. Currently, the farthest uptown Citi Bike goes is a station on Broadway between 60th and 61st streets. On the East Side, it doesn't go above 59th Street.”

<http://bit.ly/1Hi9Vcn>

VIDEO – “Flying Drone Captures Stunning Footage of Snow-Covered City”: <http://bit.ly/1Djn9Q7>

HILLARYWATCH -- Times A20, “Hillary Clinton vs. Elizabeth Warren Could Delight Republicans,” by Amy Chozick: “[C]onservatives who are eager to drum up a contentious Democratic primary and who see Ms. Warren ... as best positioned to weaken, and potentially defeat, Mrs. Clinton. On cable television and in private strategy sessions, conservatives are steadily stoking the flames of a movement to recruit Ms. Warren ... Republicans said Ms. Warren would deliver a perfect ‘trifecta’ in diminishing Mrs. Clinton. She attracts young, liberal supporters who view Mrs. Clinton as too centrist. A Warren candidacy would take away a central theme expected of Mrs. Clinton’s campaign — that it is time to elect a female president. And Ms. Warren’s presence in the primary season could push Mrs. Clinton to adopt liberal positions that might turn off independents in a general election.”
<http://nyti.ms/1zFci5F>

--“Hillary Clinton looks to Barack Obama digital alums,” by Politico’s Darren Samuelsohn: “Two of President Barack Obama’s 2012 digital masterminds are among the leading contenders for top technology jobs in Hillary Clinton’s presidential campaign-in-waiting. Teddy Goff, who ran the day-to-day digital shop for Obama, and Andrew Bleeker, an online advertising guru from the president’s reelection effort in Chicago, are the most frequently named candidates for the role of Clinton’s chief digital strategist.”
<http://politi.co/1DjbWPI>

TWEET -- @mckaycoppins:“Hey @HillaryClinton, care to comment on charges that you stole @CarlyFiorina’s book cover and title [Carly’s ‘Tough Choices’ vs. Hillary’s ‘Hard Choices’]?” <http://bit.ly/1CBmEIS>

LIST – “6 Private Clubs That Will Help You Rub Shoulders With Powerful People,” by DNAinfo’s Serena Solomon: “Norwood Club at 241 West 14th St. in Chelsea ... Art Directors Club at 106 West 29th St. in Chelsea ... The Montauk Club at 25 Eighth Ave. in Park Slope ... NeueHouse at 110 E. 25th St. in the Flatiron District ... Magnises at 22 Greenwich Ave. in the West Village ... SoHo House 29-35 Ninth Ave. in the Meatpacking District.” <http://bit.ly/15TXL8e>

MEDIA DAY -- ANDREW SULLIVAN quits blogging – “A Note to My Readers”: “I am saturated in digital life and I want to return to the actual world again. I’m a human being before I am a writer; and a writer before I am a blogger, and although it’s been a joy and a privilege to have helped pioneer a genuinely new form of writing, I yearn for other, older forms. I want to read again, slowly, carefully. I want to absorb a difficult book and walk around in my own thoughts with it for a while. I want to have an idea and let it slowly take shape, rather than be instantly blogged. I want to write long essays that can answer more deeply and subtly the many questions that the Dish years have presented to me. I want to write a book." <http://bit.ly/1CgHRD4>

BEN SMITH in BuzzFeed – “My Life In The Blogosphere”: “[T]he strongest new news outlets and the most nimble elements of the old ones have also co-opted and professionalized the tools and ethos of bloggers — fast, direct publishing; an informal voice; a commitment to transparency. We’ve pulled in some of the adaptable stars of that era. And we believe those people, tools, and values can serve our unchanging commitments to immediate, well-told, fearless, compelling, and independent journalism.”

<http://bzfd.it/1Erpyfc>

JACK SHAFER column for Politico -- “Bloomberg Reorganizes the Godmothership”: “This attempt by Bloomberg to knit a tighter bundle of his various media assets runs counter to the market trend of the past decade to unbundle content by subject area, or when a story can be propelled by social media, unbundled by piece. As an exercise in resorting the Bloomberg news portfolio, the new site is a wonder of drop-downs, content boxes, catchy rubrics, engaging graphics and journalistic variety. In its own way, it reflects Michael Bloomberg’s personal preference for order, rules, guidelines, logic and best-practices, as expressed both while New York’s mayor and as a boss. Working at Bloomberg, where emails between staffers are time-stamped with the hour and minute you arrive, and workers are urged to keep their employee badges on display, sometimes resembles life at a minimum security prison.”

<http://politi.co/1CgHrwn>

--“Mashable, Business Insider Get New Funding,” by WSJ’s Lukas Alpert: “Mashable ... will receive $17 million in a funding round led by Time Warner Investments ... Business Insider ... will receive $25 million from a group of investors led by a unit of German media conglomerate Axel Springer SE that also includes Amazon founder Jeff Bezos Business Insider’s traffic rose 55% to 35.4 million unique views in December from a year earlier ... Mashable’s traffic grew 17% in 2014, with 19.2 million unique views in December ... Both sites also said they intended to go on hiring sprees, adding 100 new employees each in 2015, which would bring staffing at Mashable to about 270 and to around 300 at Business Insider.” <http://on.wsj.com/1ErrhRJ>

BROADWAY BUZZ – “Broadway Legend Joel Grey

Opens Up About His Sexuality," by People's Liz McNeil: "He reached the heights of stage and screen, was married for 24 years and proudly raised two children. But for decades, Joel Grey kept one aspect of himself decidedly out of the spotlight. Now, at 82, the Cabaret Oscar winner talks for the first time in PEOPLE's new issue about his sexuality. 'I don't like labels,' says Grey, 'but if you have to put a label on it, I'm a gay man.'" <http://bit.ly/1A16frn>

REMEMBERING ROBERT S. PIRIE – Times' Sam Roberts: "Robert S Pirie, a combative corporate lawyer when the risky but lucrative field of mergers and acquisitions was emerging and later a prominent investment banker on Wall Street, died on Jan. 15 in Manhattan. He was 80. ... A Harvard-educated bibliophile, Mr. Pirie was also active in Democratic politics and maintained a large and widely noted library of thousands of books, many of them rare copies that have been put on exhibition." <http://nyti.ms/1ER5TTo>

REAL ESTATE -- Renewed push for pro-tenant bill decried by Real Estate Board, by Capital's Ryan Hutchins: "Councilwoman Margaret Chin is renewing her push today for legislation that would allow the city to force landlords of unsafe buildings to set aside money for relocation expenses, something welcomed by tenant advocates but derided by the real estate lobby. The bill, in part, mirrors what the Department of Housing Preservation and Development can already do—that is, go after landlords to recover the cost of relocating tenants when a building is vacated due to hazardous living conditions." <http://bit.ly/1JK4Ua9>

--"Trophy Pierre Hotel penthouse asking price drops from $125M to just $63M," by News' Katherine Clarke: "The owner of a spectacular three-story, 16-room penthouse co-op at the Pierre Hotel has slashed the property's $125 million listing price by almost half, relisting it for a comparatively measly $63 million. That hardly makes it affordable to anyone other than Russian oligarchs and Silicon Valley tech moguls but it's the largest price-cut the market has seen in years and unusual in a booming market, experts said." <http://nydn.us/15XjjBK>

--Cultural institutions record $1.3B in construction spending in 5 years, by Capital's Ryan Hutchins: "New York City's cultural institutions—from zoos to museums to theaters—spent a combined $1.3 billion on construction projects over the last five years, according to a new report by the New York Building Congress. The report finds those organizations added 700,000 square feet of new space across the five boroughs, on top of investments in improving and restoring existing facilities. The bulk of the work came from museums and historic houses." <http://bit.ly/1CAxxEC>

SNEAK PEEK -- Bill Samuels hires Morgan Pehme -- The official announcement, going out later: "Bill Samuels announced today he has hired Morgan Pehme as Executive Director of EffectiveNY to help lead the organization into a new phase of advocacy for policies that will help end the culture of corruption in Albany and restore dignity to state government. Pehme is well known as the former editor-in-chief of City & State. ... Samuels: 'As a columnist and a reporter, Morgan Pehme was at the vanguard of exposing Cuomo's interference in the Moreland Commission and hammering away at the systemic corruption that has made Albany a national embarrassment. In joining forces with EffectiveNY, now he will have the opportunity to advance an agenda to clean up and reform Albany in significant ways. At this critical moment for reform in New York State, I am thrilled that Morgan has decided to bring his wealth of talent and vast network of relationships to EffectiveNY.'"

THE HOME TEAMS -- Capital's Howard Megdal: Knicks 100, Thunder 92: The Sixers lost. A solid opponent came to town. But the tanking got put on hold. Carmelo Anthony had 31 points, and Jason Smith posted a double-double, while the Jahlil Okafor dream dimmed ever so slightly. Okafor had 22 and 17 for Duke, by the way.

--Hawks 113, Nets 102: Six Hawks scored in double figures, while former Hawk Joe Johnson scored 26, but not nearly enough, in a 48-minute demonstration of how far the Hawks have come in three years.

--The Red Bulls made it official: Sacha Kljestan is coming. And not Frank Lampard coming, actually coming.

--Ken Rosenthal asked new MLB commissioner Rob Manfred about the Wilpons, Manfred answered about Sandy Alderson. <http://goo.gl/prFiPw>

--The day ahead: The Knicks go to Indiana. The Canadiens face the Rangers at MSG. The Islanders host the Bruins.

COFFEE BREAK -- "LISTEN: There's No Such Thing as a Brooklyn Accent, Exhibit Says," by DNAinfo's Lisha Arino: "There's no such thing as a Brooklyn accent, a Bronx accent or any other borough-specific accent, according to the organizers of 'Mother Tongues,' an upcoming exhibition at City Lore that focuses on languages in New York City. ... City Lore shared audio clips of three variations on the New York City accent, which will be featured in 'Mother Tongues' but didn't reveal the speakers' backgrounds. Can you guess the cultures that influenced each speaker's accent?" <http://bit.ly/1yPPUnP>

#UpstateAmerica: Parents in Skaneateles have organized a cocktail crawl to raise money for the local school. <http://bit.ly/1yOFIRG>

GOT SOMETHING TO SAY? We're happy to listen...and so are our influential readers! Email us at advertising@capitalnewyork.com and we'll clue you in on messaging options in our newsletters, on CapitalNewYork.com, and in the pages of CAPITAL, our monthly print magazine. We'll craft a program tailored to your voice.

=====

Go to Capital New York for today's edition and our archive >>
<http://www.capitalnewyork.com/playbook>

=====

2015 CapNY, LLC
Capital Playbook
You received this newsletter because you signed up through CapitalNewYork.com.

You can unsubscribe here.

From: Glen, Alicia
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: Patchett, James
Subject: FW: Astoria Cove - time sensitive
Date: Thursday, January 29, 2015 12:10:48 PM

See below

Alicia Glen
Deputy Mayor for Housing & Economic Development
aglen@cityhall.nyc.gov
O: 212-788-0120

-----Original Message-----

From: JOHN YOUNG [<mailto:JYOUNG@planning.nyc.gov>]
Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 11:56 AM
To: PURNIMA KAPUR; Glen, Alicia
Cc: Weisbrod, Carl (Planning); HYE-KYUNG YANG
Subject: RE: Astoria Cove - time sensitive

The Astoria Cove buildings ranged from 6 - 32 stories across the 5 development parcels in the approved site plan. We will provide a package with images shortly.

-----Original Message-----

From: PURNIMA KAPUR
Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 11:40 AM
To: JOHN YOUNG; DEBORAH CARNEY
Subject: FW: Astoria Cove - time sensitive
Importance: High

Can you please forward me this information ASAP

-----Original Message-----

From: Glen, Alicia [<mailto:AGlen@cityhall.nyc.gov>]
Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 10:32 AM
To: CARL WEISBROD; PURNIMA KAPUR
Subject: Astoria Cove - time sensitive

What was the range of heights that were approved as part of the rezoning?
And do we have any renderings?

From: Jon Fromowitz
To: Patchett, James
Cc: Prim, Hayley
Subject: Re: NYC Rent #s for Speech
Date: Thursday, January 29, 2015 7:14:49 PM

On Jan 29, 2015, at 7:10 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

In my experience, things the Comptrollers office says are wrong 100% of the time

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 06:35 PM
To: Prim, Hayley
Cc: Patchett, James
Subject: Re: NYC Rent #s for Speech

Cool cool, thanks

On Jan 29, 2015, at 6:32 PM, Prim, Hayley <HPrim@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I saw that too and talked with HPD about it. They think the source we used is more reliable/accurate. These are the numbers we used for the Housing Plan

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 6:29 PM
To: Patchett, James
Cc: Prim, Hayley
Subject: Re: NYC Rent #s for Speech

FYI (/in case it matters)... The number came from article that was based on this: http://comptroller.nyc.gov/wp-content/uploads/documents/Growing_Gap.pdf

I totally defer to you obviously if there's validity to that analysis (and I think it's a fine cut anyways) but just flagging to see if you had thoughts.

On Jan 29, 2015, at 6:26 PM, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Hah -- very true!

On Jan 29, 2015, at 6:24 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Wait--not a bummer that people's rents haven't gone up more!!

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 06:17 PM
To: Patchett, James
Cc: Prim, Hayley
Subject: Re: NYC Rent #s for Speech

Bummer, but we're probably a little redundant in that section anyways, so we can prob cut and be fine. Thanks for update.

On Jan 29, 2015, at 6:15 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Jon – See below regarding rent growth. (Rents actually grew 20% over the last 10 years.)

From: Prim, Hayley
Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 5:58 PM
To: Patchett, James
Subject: NYC Rent #s for Speech

From 2002 to 2011, median contract rent increased by about 20%.
($957 to $1156 in 2014 real dollars)

From 1991 to 2011, median contract rent increased by 35%
($854 to $1156 in 2014 real dollars)

Data source: NYC Housing and Vacancy Survey

Hayley Prim

Policy Analyst

Deputy Mayor for Housing & Economic Development

(212) 341-5009

From: Patchett, James
To: "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Fw: Job numbers
Date: Thursday, January 29, 2015 7:15:09 PM
Attachments: 10-Yr Market Rate Housing Jobs 160k units 2015.01.v1.pdf

Fyi

----- Original Message -----

From: Fink, Carolee
Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 05:24 PM
To: Braithwaite, Elaine; Velani, Sonam; Patchett, James
Subject: FW: Job numbers

Hi. Please find the gross employment impacts in NYC associated with the construction of 160,000 market rate housing units from FY15-FY24

- We estimate that the construction of 160,000 market rate units over the next ten years will generate a substantial number of new jobs
- our analysis shows that the investment in housing will create approximately 466,000 construction jobs and 15,000 permanent jobs
- this includes over 315,000 direct jobs and an additional 166,000 indirect jobs

HOUSING PLAN:

- We estimate that the construction and preservation of 200,000 affordable units over the next ten years will generate a substantial number of new jobs
- our analysis shows that the investment in housing will create approximately 194,000 construction jobs and 7,100 permanent jobs
- this includes over 132,000 direct jobs and an additional 69,000 indirect jobs

-----Original Message-----

From: Eileen Jones [<mailto:ejones@edc.nyc>]
Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 5:04 PM
To: Fink, Carolee; Michael Moynihan; Benjamin Branham
Cc: Braithwaite, Elaine; Kristina Pecorelli; Eric Gertler
Subject: RE: Job numbers

Carolee,

Attached are the results assuming 16,000 units per year for ten years.

Eileen

Gross Employment Impacts in NYC Associated with Construction of 160,000 Market Rate Housing Units from FY 2015 - FY 2024¹

January 29, 2015

	Unit Type
	Market Rate New Construction
Temporary Employment Impacts from Construction Spending^{2,3}
Direct	300,043
Indirect and Induced	165,864
Total	465,907
Permanent Employment Impacts (Direct Full-time Equivalent Jobs)
Residential ⁴
Building Services	11,400
Property Management	3,800
Total Residential	15,200

Footnotes

¹ Estimates reflect gross employment impacts associated with construction and ongoing maintenance and operations of market rate housing projects. They do not account for short- or long-term displacement of other economic activity and, therefore, may not reflect "net new" jobs created in NYC.

² Employment impacts are estimated based on hard costs derived from McGraw Hill construction data, the assumption that hard costs comprise 80% of total construction costs, and input-output multipliers (RIMS II) from the U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis. The per unit construction cost is assumed to be approximately $486,000, resulting in an estimated aggregate construction cost for all 160,000 units of $77.8 billion (in 2015 dollars).

³ Employment reflects the total number of full- and part-time jobs across the duration of the construction project.

⁴ Per City Hall, over the next 10 years, it is assumed that approximately 160,000 market rate housing units will need to be built. Permanent jobs associated with those units have been estimated using EDC's standard employment density ratio for market rate housing of 10 occupied residential units per job and the following assumptions: long-term maximum occupancy is 95%; 75% of jobs will be associated with building maintenance; and the remaining 25% of jobs will be related to property management.

From: Jon Fromowitz
To: Patchett, James
Subject: Re: Job numbers
Date: Thursday, January 29, 2015 7:16:03 PM

Good stuff, thanks

> On Jan 29, 2015, at 7:15 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> Fyi
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: Fink, Carolee
> Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 05:24 PM
> To: Braithwaite, Elaine; Velani, Sonam; Patchett, James
> Subject: FW: Job numbers
>
> Hi. Please find the gross employment impacts in NYC associated with the construction of 160,000 market rate housing units from FY15-FY24
>
> -We estimate that the construction of 160,000 market rate units over the next ten years will generate a substantial number of new jobs
> -our analysis shows that the investment in housing will create approximately 466,000 construction jobs and 15,000 permanent jobs
> -this includes over 315,000 direct jobs and an additional 166,000 indirect jobs
>
>
> HOUSING PLAN:
> -We estimate that the construction and preservation of 200,000 affordable units over the next ten years will generate a substantial number of new jobs
> -our analysis shows that the investment in housing will create approximately 194,000 construction jobs and 7,100 permanent jobs
> -this includes over 132,000 direct jobs and an additional 69,000 indirect jobs
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Eileen Jones [<mailto:ejones@edc.nyc>]
> Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2015 5:04 PM
> To: Fink, Carolee; Michael Moynihan; Benjamin Branham
> Cc: Braithwaite, Elaine; Kristina Pecorelli; Eric Gertler
> Subject: RE: Job numbers
>
> Carolee,
>
> Attached are the results assuming 16,000 units per year for ten years.
>
> Eileen
>
> <10-Yr Market Rate Housing Jobs_160k units_2015.01.v1.pdf>

From: John Del Cecato
To: John, Roxanne
Subject: FW: Two resumes for CMC?
Date: Friday, January 30, 2015 1:28:48 PM
Attachments: [REDACTED].pdf
Resume.pdf

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Date: Thursday, January 22, 2015 at 8:25 PM

To: Phillip Walzak <[REDACTED]> Peter Ragone <[REDACTED]>

Subject: Two resumes for CMC?

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[Redacted]

[Redacted]

[Redacted]

- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]

[Redacted]

- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]

[Redacted]

- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]

[Redacted]

- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]

[Redacted]

[Redacted]

- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]

[Redacted]

- [Redacted]
- [Redacted]

[Redacted]

[Redacted]

From: Jon Fromowitz
To: John Del Cecato; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Latest SOTC to print for prep
Date: Friday, January 30, 2015 1:57:13 PM
Attachments: SOTCfriday145PM.docx

STATE OF THE CITY DRAFT
1/30/15 – 1:45pm

Acknowledgements

I want to begin by telling you a distinctly New York story.

More than 100 years ago, a young woman named Anna Briganti arrived in our city after emigrating from Grassano, a small town in southern Italy rich in natural beauty, but scarce in opportunities for its people.

Briganti traded picturesque hillsides, and tranquil, open fields...for an apartment on East 17th Street in Manhattan...a redbrick home with very little in the way of comfort or quiet.

But Anna's new home offered her something that her old home did not: profound possibilities to create a better life... for herself...AND for her children.

So, in the year 1910 -- a decade before our country granted women the right to vote -- Anna opened an embroidery company: Misses Briganti... its very name a proud symbol of a woman-owned business.

This woman, Anna Briganti, was my grandmother. I am here because of her. My story is only possible because she chose to come to New York City.

And most of us here -- in this room and across our five boroughs -- can trace our path to New York to a similar story... whether it began last century...or last month...we are here for a REASON.

It's why we pack into crowded subway cars and fumble for bedside earplugs in the middle of the night. It's why those of us who live here -- despite all the logical arguments to the contrary -- LOVE to live here.

Our city shines with a sense of purpose so bright that it is visible across the globe.

Opportunity, innovation, and a spirit of inclusiveness -- those qualities are coded in New York's DNA.

But the idea that New York is truly a place for everyone -- the promise at the core of what makes our city so great and so special -- is at risk.

It is at risk because the people who love to live here are finding it increasingly difficult to AFFORD to live here.

And in a city where about half of our residents speak something other than English as home, let me say it like this:

SPANISH VIA GOOGLE TRANSLATE -- NEED TO CHECK

Oportunidad , la innovación y un espíritu de inclusión están codificados en el código genético de Nueva York .

Pero la idea de que Nueva York es realmente un lugar para todo el mundo - la promesa en el núcleo de lo que hace a nuestra ciudad tan grande y especial - está en riesgo.

Es en riesgo debido a las personas que les gusta vivir aquí les resulta difícil aumentar el lujo de vivir aquí.

You can see the struggle for affordable living each day in New York -- in the tired eyes of the single mother in Coney Island, who's working two jobs and barely scraping together enough for the most modest of living arrangements to share with her kids.

You can see it in the worn hands of the fast food worker in Eastchester, consumed with worry as the calendar approaches the first of next month...the day that rent is due.

You can see it in furrowed brow of the senior living in Bayside, as she sweeps her porch to chase away thoughts of whether she's saved enough to keep her very middle-class home...or whether it's time to consider her adult son's offer to have her move in.

When we talk about taking dead aim at the Tale of Two Cities – when we talk about our vision for creating One New York, rising together – we're talking about the very PROMISE of New York – a city that offers opportunity not just to the lucky few, but to ALL 8.4 million people who call our city home.

In 2014, we achieved so much for our city.

We delivered progressive change in our effort to combat inequality and lift up our families.

Free, full-day Pre-Kindergarten...for EVERY child.

After-school programs opened across all five boroughs.

With the help of the City Council and its distinguished Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito -- paid sick leave for 500,000 more New Yorkers.

An expansion of living wage for many more workers.

Ending the overuse of stop-and-frisk and dramatically reducing arrests for small amounts of marijuana.

At the same time, thanks to our skilled and courageous men and women in uniform, we've not only kept New York City safe – we've made it even safer.

The men and women of the NYPD helped bring our city's crime rate to an ALL-TIME low – with the lowest number of murders, robberies, and burglaries on record.

The FDNY that responded to a record of more than 1.6 MILLION emergency calls.

The Corrections Department took the difficult but critical step of ending punitive segregation for adolescents in New York City jails.

We've fought to keep our streets safe and clean for drivers and pedestrians.

We established Vision Zero -- bringing pedestrian deaths down to a level not seen since 1910.

We faced down 11 winter storms – among the snowiest years our city has ever seen. (MG CHECKING)

And after the salt trucks and snowplows did their critical work...filling nearly a half-MILLION potholes. (JDC - CHANGED IT TO KEEP IT ALL IN 2014)

We built on the great work of the Bloomberg Administration to tackle issues like climate change and the damage inflicted by the severe weather linked to it.

New York City proudly committed itself to "80 by 50" – a dramatic, game-changing 80 percent reduction in greenhouse gases by the year 2050. We are retrofitting not just some, but EVERY public building.

We helped repair the devastation left by Superstorm Sandy – beating our very ambitious goals – with new construction on more than 1,000 new homes, and providing badly-needed reimbursements to more than 2,000 homeowners – with more work to be done.

We balanced our budget in a way that was fair, responsible, and in keeping with our progressive values.

Tentatively settling expired contracts with over 72% of the city's workforce – with deals that are fair to both our city workers AND to taxpayers.

Awarding $690 million in prime and subcontracts to certified minority and women-owned businesses, a 57% increase from the year before.

We took meaningful steps to connect everyday New Yorkers to jobs, health care, and the city's social safety net.

Creating the Tech Talent Pipeline to connect New Yorkers from every borough and background to the jobs of the future.

Helping create 3000 new jobs at Brooklyn Navy Yard and 1800 new jobs at Brooklyn Army Terminal.

Starting a job assistance program in Career Pathways that helps New Yorkers in need find good, permanent jobs.

Halting the closure of community hospitals that were set to shut their doors – and beginning the process adding a dozen more community health centers this year.

Beginning a citywide effort, led by our distinguished First Lady, to identify the gaps in mental health coverage offered in New York.

Creating and implementing Municipal ID – for both citizens and undocumented New Yorkers – with 100,000 New Yorkers already taking advantage of it, and another 100,000 expressing interest.

We opened new doors of opportunity to our young people.

Fostering the creation of more community schools that serve as the anchors for entire neighborhoods.

Implementing year-round jobs programs like the Mayoral Center for Youth Employment through the Mayor's Fund, so that our kids have the opportunity to learn lifelong skills.

Creating brand new PROSE schools – a new, specialized and innovative type of school that allow teachers and principals to set aside rules that hinder innovation.

Investing $150 million in the Renewal Schools Program to identify, help and FIX broken schools so that every child in every neighborhood gets the quality education they deserve.

All of these things have and will continue to strengthen our neighborhoods – making our city a little better each day for so many.

But you can't enjoy the full bounty that New York has to offer if you can't afford to actually LIVE here.

So while the state of our city is strong...the affordability crisis we face threatens to undermine that progress.

Put simply: too many families are getting priced out of their own city.

The math behind our skyrocketing housing costs is cold and straightforward.

In 2012, almost 55 percent of renters in New York were spending more than 30 percent of their income on housing – up 11 points in little more than a decade. Spending more than 30 percent of income on housing is what's known as being “rent-burdened.”

That is an apt description, since the cost of living in this city is becoming a heavier and heavier burden. A burden on parents AND their adult children...a burden on hopes and aspirations.

We cannot and WILL not let that trend continue.

Ask yourself:

In today's New York, would Howard Schultz have made it from the Bay View Houses...to the helm of Starbucks? Jay-Z -- from the Marcy Houses...to Roc Nation? Would Sonya Sotomayor have made it from the Bronxdale Houses...all the way to the Supreme Court?

If we, as a city, fail to face the affordability crisis that we know today...how many stories of THIS generation of young New Yorkers will be denied that triumphant ending?

How will we, in a city where there is only so much land, accomplish this?

We'll do it literally by building UP: increasing the density of neighborhoods across our five boroughs to help reduce the lack of affordable housing stock...battling the fear, faced by so many, that their own neighborhoods are becoming too expensive to stay in.

And we will do everything in our power to keep those who HAVE found an affordable place to live in the homes they have.

To be clear, we are NOT embarking on a mission to build towering skyscrapers in the vast majority of our neighborhoods. We know we have a duty to protect and preserve the culture and character of every neighborhood in every borough.

But the addition of just a few more stories on the buildings we see every day – six to eight story structures, or building on lots that have been vacant for decades -- would mean so many more SUCCESS stories for generations of New Yorkers who'd otherwise be priced out.

Of all the efforts we made in 2014 to address the affordability crisis – the most prominent was our successful bid to secure universal, full-day Pre-K – something bold and meaningful...and something that so many said we couldn't do.

And -- even as we were on our way to winning the funding we needed from Albany - - the naysayers had a SECOND mantra: that we would never find enough SPACE to put the kids and teachers, anyway.

But thanks to the enormous energy of parents, activists, community leaders, elected officials and others of good conscience throughout our city, we proved the cynics wrong on BOTH counts – securing the money, and then – thanks to leaders of public, private, AND religious schools – finding the space to house them.

Our mission for 2015 will be every bit as central to the cause of combatting income inequality as Pre-K was last year – fighting to ensure that New Yorkers can afford to live and work and STAY in the city they love.

That begins with our affordable housing plan, which we haven't just TALKED about – we've written up, in detail. Here it is – right here. (HOLD UP PLAN.)

Just like last year, I'm sure the critics will once again question our ability to IMPLEMENT this plan. But you know what? We're going to fuel that same grassroots effort – from community leaders, to everyday New Yorkers from all walks of life – to DEMAND the results we seek.

And just like those public schools and charter schools and Catholic schools and Orthodox schools opened their doors to four-year-olds seeking Pre-K...we are going to call on every single stakeholder in this city, in every neighborhood, to join our mission of finding the space, the will, AND the money to build and preserve affordable housing.

To start, we have to preserve AND STRENGTHEN our rent regulations, or risk losing hundreds of thousands of units of affordable housing. Likewise, we will aggressively pursue something I'm calling the Stuy Town Statute – an expanded city authority that would do so much to protect tenants... and indeed, whole communities – vastly extending our ability to help communities like Stuy Town stay affordable for the folks who call it home.

Even without that additional authority, this Administration is doing everything we can to make sure that housing units that are affordable today STAY that way.

Sheryl Morse is president of a co-op in Ft. Greene. She needed help with major repairs in her building – home to 159 families. So the city intervened – providing the funds necessary for needed repairs. It's was a small step on the scale of our city, but it certainly didn't feel small to those 159 families. For them, it was a life preserver in powerful waters that threatened to price them out of New York.

Now, make no mistake: we won't be satisfied to simply keep what we've got from getting worse.

That's why -- as your mayor -- I am committed to seeing New York City DOUBLE the number of affordable housing units built in the NEXT ten years, compared to the rate of the last 25 years.

That means building and protecting affordable housing for up to half a million New Yorkers... Or more than the populations of Miami, Atlanta or Kansas City.

The plan we announced this past year creates or preserves 200,000 units of affordable housing over a decade. And we're more than on track to hit that mark... Our goal for 2014 was 16,000 units; the number we got to: 17,300.

This Administration is not anti-development. Just the opposite – we see the creation of more housing as a good thing. Even when new housing isn't designated as affordable, it can help lower rents for neighborhoods by eliminating scarcity. That's why we have a goal of 160,000 market rate units. All told -- when coupled with our plan for affordable housing – it will mean the creation of 660,000 construction jobs and over 22,000 permanent ones.

But let me be absolutely clear on this: As long as I am Mayor, when the city re-zones a neighborhood to unlock new housing capacity, we won't merely ENCOURAGE developers to build affordable housing... we will REQUIRE them to.

This is a fundamentally new and different approach that prioritizes affordability so that development benefits ALL New Yorkers, not just those who can afford luxury condos.

To that end, we are creating a Mandatory Inclusionary Housing program that will apply to ALL major residential re-zonings. It means that for the very first time in New York's history, providing affordable housing will be a CONDITION of residential development. We will drive a hard bargain with developers – making sure that PEOPLE are the guiding force in our affordable housing efforts, not the builders.

Want to see this approach in action? Look at Astoria Cove in Queens.

As a result of this Administration's policy, a quarter of the units created are guaranteed to be affordable... and to stay that way. The result: over 450 new units of affordable housing from one single project.... That's 450 families that no longer have to choose between living in THE city they love, and a city they can afford.... And it's hundreds of kids who will live and learn and grow amidst the iridescence of a city of opportunity.

This mindset – the new rule that affordable housing is priority that is GUARANTEED, not an option for developers to pursue on a whim – will apply to every neighborhood that the city rezones for residential development, as long as I am your mayor.

And there are MANY more projects like this, coming soon to a neighborhood near you:

East New York – Add note on capital investment TK
Long Island City
Flushing West
East Harlem
North Shore Staten Island
Cromwell-Jerome in Bronx
Stapleton/Bay Street Corridor

Each of these projects has potential to make neighborhoods more desirable and affordable. But few proposed projects in any city have the potential to create equitable, sustainable development on the scale of Sunnyside Yards.

There currently sits 167 acres of raw potential in the heart of Queens, in the form of a rail yard – and only a rail yard. But the fact is, those tracks could easily exist underground – allowing us to build affordable housing above them.

It's a plan that respects that green space and common places are prerequisites for a great neighborhood.... That recognizes glass and steel are not what makes a place great... and that luxury condos are not what makes an area desirable. Because the value of our parks is not the views they afford the multi-million dollar condos perched above them, but the joy that New Yorkers from all walks of life get from accessing their serenity and spirit.

Let's call this project what it is: a no brainer for the city of New York. That's why we call on state government and Amtrak and the MTA to be partners in this project. It will mean so much to so many.

Along the same lines, a proposed project on the South Bronx Waterfront would create thousands of new units of affordable housing in an area that has gone neglected for generations.

With a location 20 minutes away from midtown Manhattan on the 2-train, it's a center of opportunity waiting to be born.

And with a $200 million investment, this project shows the city is willing to put its money where its mouth is when it comes to affordable development, driving growth in a part of the city where development has been seen only on the distant horizon of new Manhattan skyscrapers.

And we can't talk about neighborhoods emblematic of the Tale of Two Cities we live without discussing the Rockaways. Battered by years of economic distress even before Sandy's gale force winds hit, there is no place in our city that has persevered through more. We have a plan to jumpstart the process of acquiring underutilized properties that have been in disrepair for years, with the intent of creating new, affordable housing for thousands of Rockaway residents.

And we must remember that providing affordable housing means connecting neighborhoods in the five boroughs to large job centers of our city – and that means transportation.

For years, it has simply been posited that certain neighborhoods in our City are doomed to isolation because of their geography.

Think of what that status quo leads to.

If you live in a neighborhood like Red Hook or Soundview, then a job in Midtown can easily mean an hour or more of commuting, even when the skyline is cruelly visible from your home. You can actually SEE opportunity, but practically speaking, it's out of your reach.

That is the reality for so many New Yorkers today, but it is one that is about to change.

That's because we are proposing a new citywide ferry service to be open for business by 2017. Ferries will be priced at the same price as a MetroCard, so they are as open to everyday New Yorkers as our subways and busses. And beyond connecting current residents of transit deserts to opportunities, it has potential to unlock 15,000 or more units of housing by making these areas a viable commute for those that work in Manhattan.

And we have a plan to expand Bus Rapid Transit – or BRT – servicing 400,000 New Yorkers – in places like Utica Ave in Brooklyn, Woodhaven Blvd in Queens... completing a network of 20 routes over the next four years ... dramatically cutting transit time by 15-25% on existing routes, and connecting New Yorkers in every borough to opportunity.

All of this adds up to a housing plan that recognizes every neighborhood in every borough matters.

Our plan also recognizes that every New Yorker matters, and we will fight for those whose burdens of unaffordability are the heaviest.

So we're proposing 10,000 units for seniors on fixed incomes, who have worked hard all their lives, and want to retire here – who deserve to live their golden years with some dignity, especially when they can't meet rising housing costs by working towards a raise.

Now, New York would not be the cultural capital of the world without contributions from artistic visionaries who at one point struggled to get by.

That's why we're committing to 1,500 units of affordable housing for writers, artists, musicians, and those who make New York City culture so vibrant, as well as 500 dedicated affordable workspaces for artists. Our artistic community helps make our city a mecca for tourists; bring joy to everyday New Yorkers; serve as role models to young people who want to pursue natural talents in industries that don't always hold the promise of a big paycheck.

We're also proposing a program to physically bring first responders closer to the communities they serve by offering a significant incentive to live within New York City: the reduction of a down payment when buying a home to 5% -- instead of the typical 20% -- saving New Yorkers in uniform an average of $75,000 in up front homeowner costs.

For middle-class New York tenants, we will continue to do what we've already done – fighting to keep rents as reasonable as possible. And on that count, we are proud to have made history in 2014 – securing the lowest rent increase in the history of New York City – protecting New Yorkers from every neighborhood in our city from falling victim to the greed of landlords who had won again and again and again.

And we will take unprecedented steps to address the scourge of homelessness in New York.

We commit to END chronic veterans homelessness by the end of THIS year, because no one who risks everything to protect our way of life should be left with nothing when they come home.

Consider this. Our city spends about $3,000 a month to keep a person in a homeless shelter. So it just makes sense to pursue a plan to co-locate shelters with permanent affordable housing, so that those on the streets can have their own home instead of their own cot. It's a simple but creative idea that won't cost anything -- and could potentially save the city money – while helping end the unacceptable and tragic circumstances that thousands face every day.

Now, we know the cause of at least SOME of the dramatic lack of affordable housing in New York – gentrification.

But before we dismiss gentrification as an immutable and unstoppable force, let's understand the tools that we DO have to fight for affordable housing for the New Yorkers that only want to stay in the homes – and the neighborhoods – they love.

First, as I've said, we will work with developers who are willing to build affordable housing at the level that we require. For those developers, we will drive a hard bargain – but we will lead a FAIR bargain – since they will be helping us deliver the more affordable New York we seek.

On the other hand, there will be developers who do NOT wish to work with us – who think affordable housing just isn't worth it to them. Okay. Then you're free to do other things in New York. But don't expect to be treated as you have before – free to build market rate housing while affordable housing goes ignored. It won't happen.

Finally, there are those who not only choose to ignore the new framework, but actually continue to violate the rules already in place. The slumlords -- those who would drive tenants out of the places where they live.

If you break the rules, it's simple: we're going to throw the book at you.

When I was Public Advocate, we published the Worst Landlords Watchlist – calling out those who refused to make simple repairs to the units they controlled. I applaud our current Public Advocate Tish James for continuing this effort.

And then there are those who go even further – refusing to make repairs, or even harassing those living in their buildings – for one reason, and one reason only – to drive those tenants out, so that the buildings in certain neighborhoods – in the middle of a red-hot real estate market -- can be sold or rented to NEW tenants for a far greater price.

For those of us familiar with, and somewhat stung by, the phenomenon of gentrification – these individuals peddle a particularly pernicious product. They are not only driving people from their neighborhoods – they are profiting from it in the most insidious of ways.

For these people – call them Gentrification Predators, or Block-Busters, or what you will – know this: they will feel the full weight of the law.

Let me be even more specific. If you are a tenant who is the victim of this type of harassment – a coercion to leave your apartment simply so the landlord can flip the building to capitalize on rising real estate sales – you won't be left on your own to hold them accountable.

That's why I'm announcing today that ANY New Yorker who finds themselves victims of this effort will enjoy a new right in Housing Court – a free, city-appointed attorney to take up their case against the predatory landlord and seek justice before a judge. You shouldn't have to be rich to enjoy this protection – because why do we even HAVE tenant protection laws if we cannot – or will not – find the way to enforce them?

To sum up, all of the steps on housing I've spoken about – from responsibly building up to hard requirements for affordability on developers – go right at to the heart of our affordability crisis. We know there is no silver bullet to solving this problem, and that housing costs won't fall overnight. But – for first time in a generation – we are acting aggressively in the face of what has become a crisis. The old rules failed too many – the NEW rules will rebuild a city for everyone.

We also know the lack of affordability in New York has as much to do with stagnant wages as it does with rising costs.

Now, we can't snap our fingers and give every New Yorker a pay increase – but our city can take real steps to drive wages up.

It starts by recognizing that small businesses are the most powerful engines in our economy. More than half of New York City jobs are created by small businesses.... And they do so much to strengthen the communities they serve.

We have a four-part plan to make New York the most small business friendly city in American.

First, we want to make it easier for small businesses to start and grow here by reducing the red tape and costs it takes to start a business. The entrepreneurial spirit of everyday people is what built this city – we should not strangle it with red tape.

Second, we want to make sure that when you have a small business, you're not going to be overwhelmed by fines and penalties for minor infractions. Small business owners have enough to worry about.

Third, we're going to cut small businesses taxes to foster growth and new hiring.

And forth, we are going to make access to capital easier, so that the success of businesses is determined by the quality and of the products or services they provide, not by a hasty decision from a bank.

A thriving small business economy will mean higher wages for everyday New Yorkers.

But there's another, equally critical step that must be taken.

So let me be absolutely clear, this Administration will not rest until the minimum wage is increased to $13.13 an hour – with indexing.

It would create an upward pull on wages for countless hardworking New Yorkers. It would give a sorely needed boost to our brothers and sisters that need it the most. And it would make our city and fundamentally fairer AND more prosperous place.

Indeed, Henry Ford – the noted leftwing “socialist” that he was (!) – wanted all the workers on his assembly line to be able to afford the cars they spent their days manufacturing. He didn't do it to be charitable; he did it because he knew it was good for business. I'd say it worked out pretty well for him.

That's how we'll make New York City more affordable – with more affordable housing options for those who live here, and better wages and benefits for those who work here.

Our task – ending the Tale of Two Cities and making re-building an affordable New York -- won't be easy. And there will be critics who say it just can't be done... that our destiny is one as a city for a few, not a city for everyone.

But our city is no stranger to facing big challenges, nor to overcoming them.

Mayor Ed Koch -- from a landscape in the Bronx that was literally smoldering— announced what was, at the time, the boldest plan for affordable housing in New York's history.

Koch saw the transformative power of city government to revitalize whole communities... and the lives of New Yorkers who call them home. His administration stated the mission clearly: “we're creating more than just apartments – we're re-creating neighborhoods.”

And it worked. Because of Koch's efforts, a city that was shrinking when he took office is growing...fast.

So WE face the challenge of dealing with a city where more and more people want to live. It's a nice problem to have, but it's a major challenge nonetheless.
[Optional Joke: “Thanks, Mayor Koch”.]

So as we set out to make our growing city more affordable and equitable, we must not lose sight of WHY our city is a beacon for so many. It's not the cleanest place, nor the most tranquil. We don't have the best weather or many alluring natural landmarks. But we have something special, something unique: an idea at our core – a PROMISE – that ours is a city.... THE city for EVERYONE.

And as we grow – and we will grow – it is imperative that we not let that promise break... that we not be the first generation of New Yorkers to let those stories end abruptly.

It is no easy task, but we won't be derailed. We won't be timid in the face of big challenges. John F. Kennedy put it well: "There are risks and costs to a program of action. But they are far less than the long-range risks and costs of comfortable INACTION."

This Administration -- like the people we are so honored to serve – is about action. And when it comes to taking on the affordability crisis that threatens the core of who we are, we will act -- and we will act boldly.

And we will do it because New Yorkers, and their neighborhoods are what keep us from becoming a Gilded City... they are what make us One New York, Rising Together.

Thank you very much.

From: Jon Fromowitz
To: John Del Cecato; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; Bruch, Mary
Subject: Re: Latest SOTC to print for prep
Date: Friday, January 30, 2015 4:28:20 PM
Attachments: SOTCfriday400PM.docx

On Jan 30, 2015, at 1:56 PM, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

> <SOTCfriday145PM.docx>

STATE OF THE CITY DRAFT
1/30/15 – 4:00 pm

Acknowledgements

I want to begin by telling you a distinctly New York story.

More than 100 years ago, a young woman named Anna Briganti arrived in our city after emigrating from Grassano, a small town in southern Italy rich in natural beauty, but scarce in opportunities for its people.

Briganti traded picturesque hillsides, and tranquil, open fields...for an apartment on East 17th Street in Manhattan...a redbrick home with very little in the way of comfort or quiet.

But Anna's new home offered her something that her old home did not: profound possibilities to create a better life... for herself...AND for her children.

So, in the year 1910 -- a decade before our country granted women the right to vote – Anna opened an embroidery company: Misses Briganti... its very name a proud symbol of a woman-owned business.

This woman, Anna Briganti, was my grandmother. I am here because of her. My story is only possible because she chose to come to New York City.

And most of us here – in this room and across our five boroughs – can trace our path to New York to a similar story... whether it began last century...or last month...we are here for a REASON.

It's why we pack into crowded subway cars and fumble for bedside earplugs in the middle of the night. It's why those of us who live here – despite all the logical arguments to the contrary -- LOVE to live here.

Our city shines with a sense of purpose so bright that it is visible across the globe.

Opportunity, innovation, and a spirit of inclusiveness – those qualities are coded in New York's DNA.

But the idea that New York is truly a place for everyone – the promise at the core of what makes our city so great and so special – is at risk.

It is at risk because the people who love to live here are finding it increasingly difficult to AFFORD to live here.

And in a city where about half of our residents speak something other than English as home, let me say it like this:

SPANISH VIA GOOGLE TRANSLATE -- NEED TO CHECK

Oportunidad , la innovación y un espíritu de inclusión están codificados en el código genético de Nueva York .

Pero la idea de que Nueva York es realmente un lugar para todo el mundo - la promesa en el núcleo de lo que hace a nuestra ciudad tan grande y especial - está en riesgo.

Es en riesgo debido a las personas que les gusta vivir aquí les resulta difícil aumentar el lujo de vivir aquí.

You can see the struggle for affordable living each day in New York -- in the tired eyes of the single mother in Coney Island, who's working two jobs and barely scraping together enough for the most modest of living arrangements to share with her kids.

You can see it in the worn hands of the fast food worker in Eastchester, consumed with worry as the calendar approaches the first of next month...the day that rent is due.

You can see it in furrowed brow of the senior living in Bayside, as she sweeps her porch to chase away thoughts of whether she's saved enough to keep her very middle-class home...or whether it's time to consider her adult son's offer to have her move in.

When we talk about taking dead aim at the Tale of Two Cities – when we talk about our vision for creating One New York, rising together – we're talking about the very PROMISE of New York – a city that offers opportunity not just to the lucky few, but to ALL 8.4 million people who call our city home.

In 2014, we achieved so much for our city.

We delivered progressive change in our effort to combat inequality and lift up our families.

Free, full-day Pre-Kindergarten...for EVERY child.

After-school programs opened across all five boroughs.

With the help of the City Council and its distinguished Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito -- paid sick leave for 500,000 more New Yorkers.

An expansion of living wage for many more workers.

Ending the overuse of stop-and-frisk and dramatically reducing arrests for small amounts of marijuana.

At the same time, thanks to our skilled and courageous men and women in uniform, we've not only kept New York City safe – we've made it even safer.

The men and women of the NYPD helped bring our city's crime rate to an ALL-TIME low – with the lowest number of murders, robberies, and burglaries on record.

The FDNY that responded to a record of more than 1.6 MILLION emergency calls.

The Corrections Department took the difficult but critical step of ending punitive segregation for adolescents in New York City jails.

We've fought to keep our streets safe and clean for drivers and pedestrians.

We established Vision Zero -- bringing pedestrian deaths down to a level not seen since 1910.

We faced down 11 winter storms – among the snowiest years our city has ever seen.

And after the salt trucks and snowplows did their critical work...filling nearly a half-MILLION potholes.

We took dead aim at climate change and the damage inflicted by the severe weather linked to it.

New York City proudly committed itself to “80 by 50” – a dramatic, game-changing 80 percent reduction in greenhouse gases by the year 2050. We are retrofitting not just some, but EVERY public building.

We helped repair the devastation left by Superstorm Sandy – beating our very ambitious goals – with new construction on more than 1,000 new homes, and providing badly-needed reimbursements to more than 2,000 homeowners – with more work to be done.

We balanced our budget in a way that was fair, responsible, and in keeping with our progressive values.

Tentatively settling expired contracts with over 72% of the city's workforce – with deals that are fair to both our city workers AND to taxpayers.

Awarding $690 million in prime and subcontracts to certified minority and women-owned businesses, a 57% increase from the year before.

We took meaningful steps to connect everyday New Yorkers to jobs, health care, and the city's social safety net.

Creating the Tech Talent Pipeline to connect New Yorkers from every borough and background to the jobs of the future.

Helping create 3000 new jobs at Brooklyn Navy Yard and 1800 new jobs at Brooklyn Army Terminal.

Starting a job assistance program in Career Pathways that helps New Yorkers in need find good, permanent jobs.

Halting the closure of community hospitals that were set to shut their doors – and beginning the process adding a dozen more community health centers this year.

Beginning a citywide effort, led by our distinguished First Lady, to identify the gaps in mental health coverage offered in New York.

Creating and implementing Municipal ID – for both citizens and undocumented New Yorkers – with 100,000 New Yorkers already taking advantage of it, and another 100,000 expressing interest.

We opened new doors of opportunity to our young people.

Fostering the creation of more community schools that serve as the anchors for entire neighborhoods.

Implementing year-round jobs programs like the Mayoral Center for Youth Employment through the Mayor's Fund, so that our kids have the opportunity to learn lifelong skills.

Creating brand new PROSE schools – a new, specialized and innovative type of school that allow teachers and principals to set aside rules that hinder innovation.

Investing $150 million in the Renewal Schools Program to identify, help and FIX broken schools so that every child in every neighborhood gets the quality education they deserve.

All of these things have and will continue to strengthen our neighborhoods – making our city a little better each day for so many.

But you can't enjoy the full bounty that New York has to offer if you can't afford to actually LIVE here.

So while the state of our city is strong...the affordability crisis we face threatens to undermine that progress.

Put simply: too many families are getting priced out of their own city.

The math behind our skyrocketing housing costs is cold and straightforward.

In 2012, almost 55 percent of renters in New York were spending more than 30 percent of their income on housing – up 11 points in little more than a decade. Spending more than 30 percent of income on housing is what's known as being “rent-burdened.”

That is an apt description, since the cost of living in this city is becoming a heavier and heavier burden. A burden on parents AND their adult children...a burden on hopes and aspirations.

We cannot and WILL not let that trend continue.

Ask yourself:

In today's New York, would Howard Schultz have made it from the Bay View Houses...to the helm of Starbucks? Jay-Z -- from the Marcy Houses...to Roc Nation? Would Sonya Sotomayor have made it from the Bronxdale Houses...all the way to the Supreme Court?

If we, as a city, fail to face the affordability crisis that we know today...how many stories of THIS generation of young New Yorkers will be denied that triumphant ending?

How will we, in a city where there is only so much land, accomplish this?

First, we will do everything in our power to keep those who HAVE found an affordable place to live in the homes they have.

And we'll create MORE affordable housing by literally building UP: increasing the density of neighborhoods across our five boroughs to help reduce the lack of affordable housing stock...battling the fear, faced by so many, that their own neighborhoods are becoming too expensive to stay in.

To be clear, we are NOT embarking on a mission to build towering skyscrapers on every block. We know we have a duty to protect and preserve the culture and character of every neighborhood in every borough.

But the addition of just a few more stories on the buildings we see every day – six to eight story structures, or building on lots that have been vacant for decades -- would mean so many more SUCCESS stories for generations of New Yorkers who'd otherwise be priced out.

Of all the efforts we made in 2014 to address the affordability crisis – the most prominent was our successful bid to secure universal, full-day Pre-K – something bold and meaningful...and something that so many said we couldn't do.

And -- even as we were on our way to winning the funding we needed from Albany - - the naysayers had a SECOND mantra: that we would never find enough SPACE to put the kids and teachers, anyway.

But thanks to the enormous energy of parents, activists, community leaders, elected officials and others of good conscience throughout our city, we proved the cynics wrong on BOTH counts – securing the money, and then – thanks to leaders of public, private, AND religious schools – finding the space to house them.

Our mission for 2015 will be every bit as central to the cause of combatting income inequality as Pre-K was last year – fighting to ensure that New Yorkers can afford to live and work and STAY in the city they love.

That begins with our affordable housing plan, which we haven't just TALKED about – we've written up, in detail. Here it is – right here. (HOLD UP PLAN.)

Just like last year, I'm sure the critics will once again question our ability to IMPLEMENT this plan. But you know what? We're going to fuel that same grassroots effort – from community leaders, to everyday New Yorkers from all walks of life – to DEMAND the results we seek.

And just like those public schools and charter schools and Catholic schools and Orthodox schools opened their doors to four-year-olds seeking Pre-K...we are going to call on every single stakeholder in this city, in every neighborhood, to join our mission of finding the space, the will, AND the money to build and preserve affordable housing.

To start, we have to preserve AND STRENGTHEN our rent regulations, or risk losing hundreds of thousands of units of affordable housing. Likewise, we will aggressively pursue something I'm calling the Stuy Town Statute – an expanded city authority that would do so much to protect tenants... and indeed, whole communities – vastly extending our ability to help communities like Stuy Town stay affordable for the folks who call it home.

Even without that additional authority, this Administration is doing everything we can to make sure that housing units that are affordable today STAY that way.

Sheryl Morse is president of a co-op in Ft. Greene. She needed help with major repairs in her building – home to 159 families. So the city intervened – providing the funds necessary for needed repairs. It's was a small step on the scale of our city, but it certainly didn't feel small to those 159 families. For them, it was a life preserver in powerful waters that threatened to price them out of New York.

Now, make no mistake: we won't be satisfied to simply keep what we've got from getting worse.

That's why -- as your mayor -- I am committed to seeing New York City DOUBLE the number of affordable housing units built in the NEXT ten years, compared to the rate of the last 25 years.

That means building and protecting affordable housing for up to half a million New Yorkers... Or more than the populations of Miami, Atlanta or Kansas City.

The work of Bloomberg Administration on this issue – creating and preserving 165,000 units of affordable housing during his term – was impressive and admirable.

We the plan we announced this past year goes even further to create or preserve 200,000 units of affordable housing over a decade. And we're more than on track to hit that mark... Our goal for 2014 was 16,000 units; the number we got to: 17,300.

This Administration is not anti-development. Just the opposite – we see the creation of more housing as a good thing. Even when new housing isn't designated as affordable, it can help lower rents for neighborhoods by eliminating scarcity. That's why we have a goal of 160,000 market rate units. All told -- when coupled with our plan for affordable housing – it will mean the creation of 660,000 construction jobs and over 22,000 permanent ones.

But let me be absolutely clear on this: As long as I am Mayor, when the city re-zones a neighborhood to unlock new housing capacity, we won't merely ENCOURAGE developers to build affordable housing... we will REQUIRE them to.

This is a fundamentally new and different approach that prioritizes affordability so that development benefits ALL New Yorkers, not just those who can afford luxury condos.

To that end, we are creating a Mandatory Inclusionary Housing program that will apply to ALL major residential re-zonings. It means that for the very first time in New York's history, providing affordable housing will be a CONDITION of residential development. We will drive a hard bargain with developers – making sure that PEOPLE are the guiding force in our affordable housing efforts, not the builders.

Want to see this approach in action? Look at Astoria Cove in Queens.

As a result of this Administration's policy, a quarter of the units created are guaranteed to be affordable... and to stay that way. The result: over 450 new units of affordable housing from one single project.... That's 450 families that no longer have to choose between living in THE city they love, and a city they can afford.... And it's hundreds of kids who will live and learn and grow amidst the iridescence of a city of opportunity.

This mindset – the new rule that affordable housing is priority that is GUARANTEED, not an option for developers to pursue on a whim – will apply to every neighborhood that the city rezones for residential development, as long as I am your mayor.

And there are MANY more re-zonings like this, coming soon to a neighborhood near you:

East New York
Long Island City
Flushing West
East Harlem
North Shore Staten Island
Cromwell-Jerome in Bronx
Stapleton/Bay Street Corridor

Each of these projects has potential to make neighborhoods more desirable and affordable. But few proposed re-zonings in any city have the potential to create equitable, sustainable development on the scale of Sunnyside Yards.

There currently sits 167 acres of potential in the heart of Queens, in the form of a rail yard – and only a rail yard. But the fact is, those tracks could easily exist underground – allowing us to build housing – much of it affordable -- above them.

As we work with the community to create a plan that recognizes green space and common places are prerequisites for a great neighborhood.... That recognizes glass and steel cannot by themselves make a place great... and that luxury condos are not what makes an area desirable. Because the value of our parks is not the views they afford the multi-million dollar condos perched above them, but the joy that New Yorkers from all walks of life get from accessing their serenity and spirit.

Let's call this project what it is: a no brainer for the city of New York. That's why we call on Amtrak and the MTA to be partners in this project. It will mean so much to so many.

Along the same lines, a proposed project on the South Bronx Waterfront would create thousands of new units of affordable housing in an area that has gone neglected for generations.

With a location 20 minutes away from midtown Manhattan on the 2-train, it's a center of opportunity waiting to be born.

And with a $200 million investment, this project shows the city is willing to put its money where its mouth is when it comes to affordable development, driving growth in a part of the city where development has been seen only on the distant horizon of new Manhattan skyscrapers.

And we can't talk about neighborhoods emblematic of the Tale of Two Cities we live without discussing the Rockaways. Battered by years of economic distress even before Sandy's gale force winds hit, there is no place in our city that has persevered through more. We have a plan to jumpstart the process of acquiring underutilized properties that have been in disrepair for years, with the intent of creating new, affordable housing for thousands of Rockaway residents... and basic commercial development that grants people the simple comfort that comes from dinner out and a movie in your own neighborhood.

And we must remember that providing affordable housing means connecting neighborhoods in the five boroughs to large job centers of our city – and that means transportation.

For years, it has simply been posited that certain neighborhoods in our City are doomed to isolation because of their geography.

Think of what that status quo leads to.

If you live in a neighborhood like Red Hook or Soundview, then a job in Midtown can easily mean an hour or more of commuting, even when the skyline is cruelly visible from your home. You can actually SEE opportunity, but practically speaking, it's out of your reach.

That is the reality for so many New Yorkers today, but it is one that is about to change.

That's because we are proposing a new citywide ferry service to be open for business by 2017. Ferries will be priced at the same price as a MetroCard, so they are as open to everyday New Yorkers as our subways and busses. And beyond connecting current residents of transit deserts to opportunities, it has potential to unlock 15,000 or more units of housing by making these areas a viable commute for those that work in Manhattan.

And we have a plan to expand Bus Rapid Transit – or BRT – servicing 400,000 New Yorkers – in places like Utica Ave in Brooklyn, Woodhaven Blvd in Queens... completing a network of 20 routes over the next four years ... dramatically cutting transit time by 15-25% on existing routes, and connecting New Yorkers in every borough to opportunity. All of this adds up to a housing plan that recognizes every neighborhood in every borough matters.

Our plan also recognizes that every New Yorker matters, and we will fight for those whose burdens of unaffordability are the heaviest.

So we're proposing 10,000 units for seniors on fixed incomes, who have worked hard all their lives, and want to retire here – who deserve to live their golden years with some dignity, especially when they can't meet rising housing costs by working towards a raise.

Now, New York would not be the cultural capital of the world without contributions from artistic visionaries who at one point struggled to get by.

That's why we're committing to 1,500 units of affordable housing for artists, musicians, and those who make New York City culture so vibrant, as well as 500 dedicated affordable workspaces for artists. Our artistic community helps make our city a mecca for tourists; bring joy to everyday New Yorkers; serve as role models to young people who want to pursue natural talents in industries that don't always hold the promise of a big paycheck.

We're also proposing a program to physically bring first responders closer to the communities they serve by offering a significant incentive to live within New York City: the reduction of a down payment when buying a home to 5% -- instead of the typical 20% -- saving New Yorkers in uniform an average of $75,000 in up front homeowner costs.

For middle-class New York tenants, we will continue to do what we've already done – fighting to keep rents as reasonable as possible. And on that count, we are proud to have made history in 2014 – securing the lowest rent increase in the history of New York City – protecting New Yorkers from every neighborhood in our city from falling victim to the greed of landlords who had won again and again and again.

And we will take unprecedented steps to address the scourge of homelessness in New York.

We commit to END chronic veterans homelessness by the end of THIS year, because no one who risks everything to protect our way of life should be left with nothing when they come home.

Consider this. Our city spends about $3,000 a month to keep a person in a homeless shelter. So it just makes sense to pursue a plan to co-locate shelters with permanent affordable housing, so that those on the streets can have their own home instead of their own cot. It's a simple but creative idea that won't cost anything -- and could potentially save the city money -- while helping end the unacceptable and tragic circumstances that thousands face every day.

Now, we know the cause of at least SOME of the dramatic lack of affordable housing in New York -- gentrification.

But before we dismiss gentrification as an immutable and unstoppable force, let's understand the tools that we DO have to fight for affordable housing for the New Yorkers that only want to stay in the homes -- and the neighborhoods -- they love.

First, as I've said, we will work with developers who are willing to build affordable housing at the level that we require. For those developers, we will drive a hard bargain -- but we will lead a FAIR bargain -- since they will be helping us deliver the more affordable New York we seek.

On the other hand, there will be developers who do NOT wish to work with us -- who think affordable housing just isn't worth it to them. Okay. Then you're free to do other things in New York. But don't expect to be treated as you have before -- free to build market rate housing while affordable housing goes ignored. It won't happen.

Finally, there are those who not only choose to ignore the new framework, but actually continue to violate the rules already in place. The slumlords -- those who would drive tenants out of the places where they live.

If you break the rules, it's simple: we're going to throw the book at you.

When I was Public Advocate, we published the Worst Landlords Watchlist -- calling out those who refused to make simple repairs to the units they controlled. I applaud our current Public Advocate Tish James for continuing this effort.

And then there are those who go even further -- refusing to make repairs, or even harassing those living in their buildings -- for one reason, and one reason only -- to drive those tenants out, so that the buildings in certain neighborhoods -- in the middle of a red-hot real estate market -- can be sold or rented to NEW tenants for a far greater price.

For those of us familiar with, and somewhat stung by, the phenomenon of gentrification -- these individuals peddle a particularly pernicious product. They are not only driving people from their neighborhoods -- they are profiting from it in the most insidious of ways.

For these people – call them Gentrification Predators, or Block-Busters, or what you will – know this: they will feel the full weight of the law.

Let me be even more specific. If you are a tenant who is the victim of this type of harassment – a coercion to leave your apartment simply so the landlord can flip the building to capitalize on rising real estate sales – you won't be left on your own to hold them accountable.

That's why I'm announcing today that ANY New Yorker who finds themselves victims of this effort will enjoy a new right in Housing Court – a free, city-appointed attorney to take up their case against the predatory landlord and seek justice before a judge. You shouldn't have to be rich to enjoy this protection – because why do we even HAVE tenant protection laws if we cannot – or will not – find the way to enforce them?

To sum up, all of the steps on housing I've spoken about – from responsibly building up to hard requirements for affordability on developers – go right at to the heart of our affordability crisis. We know there is no silver bullet to solving this problem, and that housing costs won't fall overnight. But – for first time in a generation – we are acting aggressively in the face of what has become a crisis. The old rules failed too many – the NEW rules will rebuild a city for everyone.

We also know the lack of affordability in New York has as much to do with stagnant wages as it does with rising costs.

Now, we can't snap our fingers and give every New Yorker a pay increase – but our city can take real steps to drive wages up.

It starts by recognizing that small businesses are the most powerful engines in our economy. More than half of New York City jobs are created by small businesses.... And they do so much to strengthen the communities they serve.

We have a four-part plan to make New York the most small business friendly city in American.

First, we want to make it easier for small businesses to start and grow here by reducing the red tape and costs it takes to start a business. The entrepreneurial spirit of everyday people is what built this city – we should not strangle it with red tape.

Second, we want to make sure that when you have a small business, you're not going to be overwhelmed by fines and penalties for minor infractions. Small business owners have enough to worry about.

Third, we're going to cut small businesses taxes to foster growth and new hiring.

And forth, we are going to make access to capital easier, so that the success of businesses is determined by the quality and of the products or services they provide, not by a hasty decision from a bank.

A thriving small business economy will mean higher wages for everyday New Yorkers.

But there's another, equally critical step that must be taken.

So let me be absolutely clear, as I've said before, this Administration will do all it can to fight for the minimum wage in New York City to increase to $13.50 in 2016 and then increase AGAIN to $15 by 2019.

This would create an upward pull on wages for countless hardworking New Yorkers. It would give a sorely needed boost to our brothers and sisters that need it the most. And it would make our city and fundamentally fairer AND more prosperous place.

Indeed, Henry Ford – the noted leftwing “socialist” that he was (!) – wanted all the workers on his assembly line to be able to afford the cars they spent their days manufacturing. He didn't do it to be charitable; he did it because he knew it was good for business. I'd say it worked out pretty well for him.

That's how we'll make New York City more affordable – with more affordable housing options for those who live here, and better wages and benefits for those who work here.

Our task – ending the Tale of Two Cities and making re-building an affordable New York -- won't be easy. And there will be critics who say it just can't be done... that our destiny is one as a city for a few, not a city for everyone.

But our city is no stranger to facing big challenges, nor to overcoming them.

Mayor Ed Koch -- from a landscape in the Bronx that was literally smoldering— announced what was, at the time, the boldest plan for affordable housing in New York's history.

Koch saw the transformative power of city government to revitalize whole communities... and the lives of New Yorkers who call them home. His administration stated the mission clearly: “we're creating more than just apartments – we're re-creating neighborhoods.”

And it worked. Because of Koch's efforts, a city that was shrinking when he took office is growing...fast.

So WE face the challenge of dealing with a city where more and more people want to live. It's a nice problem to have, but it's a major challenge nonetheless.
[Optional Joke: "Thanks, Mayor Koch".]

So as we set out to make our growing city more affordable and equitable, we must not lose sight of WHY our city is a beacon for so many. It's not the cleanest place, nor the most tranquil. We don't have the best weather or many alluring natural landmarks. But we have something special, something unique: an idea at our core – a PROMISE – that ours is a city.... THE city for EVERYONE.

And as we grow – and we will grow – it is imperative that we not let that promise break... that we not be the first generation of New Yorkers to let those stories end abruptly.

It is no easy task, but we won't be derailed. We won't be timid in the face of big challenges. John F. Kennedy put it well: "There are risks and costs to a program of action. But they are far less than the long-range risks and costs of comfortable INACTION."

This Administration -- like the people we are so honored to serve – is about action. And when it comes to taking on the affordability crisis that threatens the core of who we are, we will act -- and we will act boldly.

And we will do it because New Yorkers, and their neighborhoods are what keep us from becoming a Gilded City... they are what make us One New York, Rising Together.

Thank you very much.

From: Bruch, Mary
To: Jon Fromowitz
Subject: RE: Latest SOTC to print for prep
Date: Friday, January 30, 2015 4:31:00 PM

Thanks! And nice meeting you. I assume you'll be living here/Gracie through Tuesday morning. Welcome to the neighborhood! Let us know if you need anything.

-----Original Message-----

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Friday, January 30, 2015 4:23 PM
To: John Del Cecato; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; Bruch, Mary
Subject: Re: Latest SOTC to print for prep

On Jan 30, 2015, at 1:56 PM, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

> <SOTCfriday145PM.docx>

From: Wolfe, Emma
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Patchett, James; Glen, Alicia; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\)
Subject: Re: Where did we end up?
Date: Friday, January 30, 2015 6:52:28 PM

Cool

> On Jan 30, 2015, at 6:52 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

>

> Albany is charge of protecting tenants from block busters. But for decades, they have failed to do so. My message to them is: either protect the victims tenant harassment, or pay for every single one of those tenants to have a lawyer represent them in housing court.

>

> For my part, I control rezonings. And I know that when rezonings occur, there are those landlords who will look for a fresh opportunity to game the system. My message to tenants is those areas: if you can't afford a lawyer to challenge harassment, then the city will provide one to you.

>

>

>

>> On Jan 30, 2015, at 6:40 PM, Wolfe, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>> Cool

>>

>> ----- Original Message -----

>> From: Patchett, James

>> Sent: Friday, January 30, 2015 06:39 PM

>> To: Wolfe, Emma; Glen, Alicia; Fuleihan, Dean (OMB); 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

>> Subject: Re: Where did we end up?

>>

>> A little hard to explain over email. But basically targeted to the rezoning areas + calling on Albany to either fix rent laws or fund a citywide program.

>>

>>

>> ----- Original Message -----

>> From: Wolfe, Emma

>> Sent: Friday, January 30, 2015 06:38 PM

>> To: Glen, Alicia; Fuleihan, Dean (OMB); Patchett, James; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

>> Subject: Where did we end up?

>>

>>

From: Patchett, James
To: [REDACTED]; Hagelgans, Andrea; Glen, Alicia; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Shorris, Anthony; Ragone, Peter; Bruch, Mary; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Williams, Dominic; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"; Griffith, Chantell; Seignious, Sandy; Valle, Rosita
Subject: Re: SOTC Conference Call
Date: Sunday, February 01, 2015 12:04:33 PM

Doesn't make sense to me anymore. They were originally supposed to meet with him at 2.

I'd suggest we hold off. But honestly not sure what the next step is.

From: Emma Wolfe [mailto:[REDACTED]]
Sent: Sunday, February 01, 2015 11:50 AM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Glen, Alicia; jfdc@akpdmedia.com <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Shorris, Anthony; Ragone, Peter; Patchett, James; Bruch, Mary; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Williams, Dominic; jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>; Griffith, Chantell; Seignious, Sandy; Valle, Rosita
Subject: SOTC Conference Call

Just want to make sure I understand sequencing. John and Jon are doing a sotc meeting with bdb 12-2. We are doing our conference call while that is happening?

SOTC Conference Call

Scheduled: Sunday, Feb 1, 2015 from 12:30 PM to 1:30 PM

Location: Dial: ([REDACTED]), Meeting ID: [REDACTED]

Invitees: Hagelgans, Andrea , Glen, Alicia , jfdc@akpdmedia.com , Shorris, Anthony , Ragone, Peter , Patchett, James , Bruch, Mary , Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel , Williams, Dominic , jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com , Griffith, Chantell , Seignious, Sandy , Valle, Rosita

From: Wiley, Maya
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: SOTC
Date: Sunday, February 01, 2015 2:35:07 PM

There's always a way to shorten. We spent more money with more minority and women owned businesses- 57 percent more than the year before.

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 1, 2015, at 12:34 PM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Is there a way to simplify/shorten this? Can I take out "certified?"
Condense "prime and subcontracts?"

We awarded $690 million in prime and subcontracts to certified minority and women-owned businesses, a 57% increase from the year before.

From: Shorris, Anthony
To: Patchett, James
Cc: Glen, Alicia; Hagelgans, Andrea; Bruch, Mary; jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Williams, Dominic; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; Seignious, Sandy; Valle, Rosita; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Griffith, Chantell; Blumm, Kate; Norvell, Wiley
Subject: Re: Updated: SOTC Conference Call
Date: Sunday, February 01, 2015 2:57:59 PM

I am in snow prep with BDB now -- Dom has my proxy as always.

Anthony E. Shorris
First Deputy Mayor
City of New York
City Hall
New York, NY 10007
212-788-3191

> On Feb 1, 2015, at 2:46 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> This dial-in now working Ok.
>
> Dial: (██████████), Meeting ID: ██████████

From: B
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Pls review section of speech re: chirlane with me again. Thanks
Date: Monday, February 02, 2015 8:41:26 AM

From: Wiley, Maya
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: MWBE sentence
Date: Monday, February 02, 2015 6:06:45 PM

Thanks!

Sent from my iPhone

> On Feb 2, 2015, at 6:01 PM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

>

> Still in there !

>

>

> We awarded $690 million in contracts to minority and > women-owned businesses, a 57% increase from the year before.

>

>

>

>> On 2/2/15, 5:31 PM, "Wiley, Maya" <MWiley@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>> Hi-

>>

>> Just checking if it's still in. If not, I'll have to prep for advocates >> disappointment. :)

>>

>> Maya

>>

>> Sent from my iPhone

>

> <default.xml>

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?
Date: Monday, February 02, 2015 6:36:52 PM

This is our announcement.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:27 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Can we say something that puts this in the "look back" section - like we initiated the creation of the CYE?

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:45 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Sorry: the name is Center for Youth Employment (no support)

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:44 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

We are creating the Center for Youth Employment Support, a public private partnership to enlist the support of NY's employers to give our kids lifelong skills through year-round jobs programs.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:36 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren
Subject: Fw: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Pls review

From: Andrea Hagelgans [<mailto:> ]
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 04:35 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Date: February 2, 2015 at 3:37:23 PM EST

To: Andrea Hagelgans <[REDACTED]>

Subject: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

We created the Mayoral Center for Youth Employment through the Mayor's Fund, to give our kids lifelong skills through a year-long jobs program.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Bloch, Darren
Cc: "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: RE: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?
Date: Monday, February 02, 2015 6:52:26 PM

Ok

As long as Chirlane is ok with that

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 6:52 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Bloch, Darren
Cc: 'jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

If its only look back then we'll announce later. And I'll adjust cmc remarks for wed.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:46 PM
To: 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Chirlane wants to amplify on Wed

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 6:46 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Hmm... The only place for the CYE would be the look-back to 2014 section - so are you sure you want to announce it in this speech? It's unlikely to make any of the news reports, which will be largely about housing

From: <Fialkoff>, Gabrielle <GFialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2015 at 6:36 PM
To: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Bloch, Darren" <DBloch@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

This is our announcement.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:27 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Can we say something that puts this in the "look back" section - like we initiated the creation of the CYE?

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:45 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Sorry: the name is Center for Youth Employment (no support)

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:44 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

We are creating the Center for Youth Employment Support, a public private partnership to enlist the support of NY's employers to give our kids lifelong skills through year-round jobs programs.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:36 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren
Subject: Fw: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Pls review

From: Andrea Hagelgans [<mailto:> ].
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 04:35 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: February 2, 2015 at 3:37:23 PM EST
To: Andrea Hagelgans < >
Subject: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

We created the Mayoral Center for Youth Employment through the Mayor's Fund, to give our kids lifelong skills through a year-long jobs program.

From: John Del Cecato
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?
Date: Monday, February 02, 2015 6:52:52 PM

Gotcha...I think we can keep it in the section on education accomplishments from 2014 - will just be a bit of an outlier when it comes to tense (are creating versus have created) - shouldn't be a big problem

From: <Fialkoff>, Gabrielle <GFialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2015 at 6:48 PM
To: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Bloch, Darren" <DBloch@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

And we can use for funders and employers, would show initiative importance to bdb...any other way to word it?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:46 PM
To: 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Chirlane wants to amplify on Wed

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 6:46 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Hmm... The only place for the CYE would be the look-back to 2014 section - so are you sure you want to announce it in this speech? It's unlikely to make any of the news reports, which will be largely about housing

From: <Fialkoff>, Gabrielle <GFialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2015 at 6:36 PM
To: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Bloch, Darren" <DBloch@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

This is our announcement.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:27 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Can we say something that puts this in the "look back" section - like we initiated the creation of the CYE?

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:45 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Sorry: the name is Center for Youth Employment (no support)

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:44 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

We are creating the Center for Youth Employment Support, a public private partnership to enlist the support of NY's employers to give our kids lifelong skills through year-round jobs programs.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:36 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren
Subject: Fw: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Pls review

From: Andrea Hagelgans [mailto:████████████████████]
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 04:35 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: February 2, 2015 at 3:37:23 PM EST
To: Andrea Hagelgans <████████████████████>
Subject: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

We created the Mayoral Center for Youth Employment through the Mayor's Fund, to give our kids lifelong skills through a year-long jobs program.

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren
Cc: "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?
Date: Monday, February 02, 2015 6:54:05 PM

I will report back in a few

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:53 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Either way - it's up to you... My only concern from CMC perspective would be that it gets lost in the speech tomorrow - but just let me know what you prefer

From: <Fialkoff>, Gabrielle <GFialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2015 at 6:51 PM
To: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Bloch, Darren" <DBloch@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

If its only look back then we'll announce later. And I'll adjust cmc remarks for wed.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:46 PM
To: 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Chirlane wants to amplify on Wed

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 6:46 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Hmm... The only place for the CYE would be the look-back to 2014 section - so are you sure you want to announce it in this speech? It's unlikely to make any of the news reports, which will be largely about housing

From: <Fialkoff>, Gabrielle <GFialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2015 at 6:36 PM
To: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Bloch, Darren"

<DBloch@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Re: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

This is our announcement.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea

Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:27 PM

To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Can we say something that puts this in the "look back" section - like we initiated the creation of the CYE?

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle

Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:45 PM

To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'

Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Sorry: the name is Center for Youth Employment (no support)

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle

Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:44 PM

To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'

Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

We are creating the Center for Youth Employment Support, a public private partnership to enlist the support of NY's employers to give our kids lifelong skills through year-round jobs programs.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea

Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:36 PM

To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren

Subject: Fw: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Pls review

From: Andrea Hagelgans [<mailto:> [REDACTED]]

Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 04:35 PM

To: Hagelgans, Andrea

Subject: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Date: February 2, 2015 at 3:37:23 PM EST

To: Andrea Hagelgans <[REDACTED]>

Subject: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

We created the Mayoral Center for Youth Employment through the Mayor's Fund, to give our kids lifelong skills through a year-long jobs program.

From: John Del Cecato
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz; Hanser, Leora
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?
Date: Monday, February 02, 2015 7:16:44 PM

No prob

From: <Fialkoff>, Gabrielle <GFialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2015 at 6:59 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Bloch, Darren" <DBloch@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>, "Hanser, Leora" <LHanser@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Ok let's take it out. We'll talk to cmc. Thanks so much.

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:53 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Either way - it's up to you... My only concern from CMC perspective would be that it gets lost in the speech tomorrow - but just let me know what you prefer

From: <Fialkoff>, Gabrielle <GFialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2015 at 6:51 PM
To: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Bloch, Darren" <DBloch@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

If its only look back then we'll announce later. And I'll adjust cmc remarks for wed.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:46 PM
To: 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Chirlane wants to amplify on Wed

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 6:46 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren
Cc: Jon Fromowitz

Subject: Re: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Hmm... The only place for the CYE would be the look-back to 2014 section - so are you sure you want to announce it in this speech? It's unlikely to make any of the news reports, which will be largely about housing

From: <Fialkoff>, Gabrielle <GFialkoff@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2015 at 6:36 PM
To: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Bloch, Darren" <DBloch@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

This is our announcement.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 06:27 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Can we say something that puts this in the "look back" section - like we initiated the creation of the CYE?

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:45 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Sorry: the name is Center for Youth Employment (no support)

From: Fialkoff, Gabrielle
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:44 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Bloch, Darren; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

We are creating the Center for Youth Employment Support, a public private partnership to enlist the support of NY's employers to give our kids lifelong skills through year-round jobs programs.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 4:36 PM
To: Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Bloch, Darren
Subject: Fw: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Pls review

From: Andrea Hagelgans [<mailto:> [REDACTED]]
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 04:35 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Fwd: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Date: February 2, 2015 at 3:37:23 PM EST

To: Andrea Hagelgans <[REDACTED]>

Subject: Can you double-check this with Gabrielle?

We created the Mayoral Center for Youth Employment through the Mayor's Fund, to give our kids lifelong skills through a year-long jobs program.

From: Coney, Javon
To: Leopold, Elana; Carey, Michael
Cc: Bennett, Rob; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; Singleton, Jessica; Howe, Amanda; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: Visuals- we will do around 3:00pm
Date: Monday, February 02, 2015 9:01:27 PM

Mayor walking through

From: Coney, Javon
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 08:56 PM
To: Leopold, Elana; Carey, Michael
Cc: Bennett, Rob; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; Singleton, Jessica; Howe, Amanda; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; 'jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com' <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Visuals- we will do around 3:00pm

Block out

From: Coney, Javon
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 08:41 PM
To: Leopold, Elana; Carey, Michael
Cc: Bennett, Rob; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; Singleton, Jessica; Howe, Amanda; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; 'jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com' <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Visuals- we will do around 3:00pm

Mayor is en route to Baruch. Will be there in about 15 min

From: Leopold, Elana
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 05:56 PM
To: Carey, Michael
Cc: Bennett, Rob; Hagelgans, Andrea; Ragone, Peter; Singleton, Jessica; Howe, Amanda; Coney, Javon; John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Visuals- we will do around 3:00pm

Ok- so 9pm at Baruch

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 2, 2015, at 5:53 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Sure

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

On Feb 2, 2015, at 5:52 PM, Leopold, Elana <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

MPC- is that possible?

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 2, 2015, at 5:51 PM, Bennett, Rob
<RobBennett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I'm at venue now. Would be great to do here if poss.

On Feb 2, 2015, at 5:50 PM, "Leopold, Elana"
<ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Ok- we will do this at 9pm at Gracie

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 2, 2015, at 5:34 PM, Leopold, Elana <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>
wrote:

As discussed- need to do a walkthrough at some point w visuals

When will you all be ready?
Mayor obviously prefers tonight if we can make work.

Let me know what is realistic

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015
2:21 PM
To: Leopold, Elana; Bennett, Rob;
Ragone, Peter; Singleton, Jessica
Cc: Carey, Michael
Subject: RE: Visuals- we will do around 3:00pm

-
-

Proposed Run of Show with slides

(Stage Set-up):

- Podium flanked
by two screens
- Full flags

(including boro flags) behind podium

-Additional banners TBD (MPC making decision today, will relay directly to DCAS)

Entrance - Setting the tone
Tactic: 2014 Accomplishments
Photos cycling on screens at front of stage
Playlist.

Timeline video plays.

State of the City Welcome Screen

State of the City name screen -
- Mitchel Wallerstein
Welcome -- President of Baruch College

State of the City name screen
– Officer Lauren Leggio
National Anthem - NYPD officer Lauren Leggio (she sang at the graduation)

State of the City name screen -
Frederick Trapp
Pledge of Allegiance – Sanitation Worker Frederick Trapp (Staten Island resident, 15 years with DSNY)

State of the City name screen
– Officer Lauren Leggio
National Anthem - NYPD officer Lauren Leggio (she sang at the graduation)

State of the City name screen
- Reverend Gabriel Salguero
Invocation - Reverend Gabriel Salguero (Latino constituency)

State of the City name screen
Introduction - Tenant Sheryl Morse

Tactic: one of the tenants helped in 2014 to demonstrate immediacy and urgency of affordable housing plan for every day New Yorkers

State of the City name screen “Mayor Bill de Blasio”

From: Leopold, Elana
Sent: Monday, February 02, 2015 2:08 PM
To: Bennett, Rob; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Singleton, Jessica
Cc: Carey, Michael
Subject: Visuals- we will do around 3:00pm

From: Bill de Blasio
To: John Del Cecato; Jon Fromowitz
Cc: FLONYC; Ragone, Peter; Hagelqans, Andrea
Subject: Fw: SCRIPTURE ON HOUSING: "My people will abide in a peaceful habitation, in secure dwellings, and in quiet resting places." Isaiah 32:18
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 8:15:31 AM

Note within this prayer a key point: people gathering to build housing for their neighbors. His reference to Habitat for Humanity is actually brilliant, and points us in a direction. We are building our communities together. We are keeping this a city for everyone. There's a really important idea here we can work with going forward

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: Peter Heltzel [REDACTED] >
Date: Tue, 3 Feb 2015 06:31:10 -0500
To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Cc: Chirlane McCray <[REDACTED]>
Subject: SCRIPTURE ON HOUSING: "My people will abide in a peaceful habitation, in secure dwellings, and in quiet resting places." Isaiah 32:18

As the Hebrew prophet Isaiah proclaims: "My people will abide in a peaceful habitation, in secure dwellings, and in quiet resting places" (Isaiah 32:18).

God has created us all in the divine image. As children of God, fearfully and wonderfully made, we are a delight to God. In God's gracious love, we can count on divine provision for the journey ahead, "And my God will meet all your needs according to the riches of his glory in Christ Jesus." (Philippians 4:19).

PRAYER: God, May your Spirit rest upon Mayor de Blasio as he delivers his first State of #OurCity address. Give him the presence of peace, quiet confidence, and lion-hearted courage as he stands before your people and claims the victories of his first year in Office, including Universal Pre-K, Paid Sick and Living Wages. Now in the spirit of Jimmy Carter and Habitat for Humanity, may all New Yorkers rise up and unify to build affordable homes in every borough. Give us the strength in the struggle to fight for every New Yorker to have a Living Wage, an Affordable Home and warm hearth where they can return to love and be loved. O God, Give Mayor de Blasio power, projection and pizzazz as he preaches a vision taking care of our homes, neighborhoods, boroughs and beloved city. In your Holy Name I prayer. AMEN

From: John Del Cecato
To: Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Council
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 8:29:10 AM
Attachments: [default\[5\].xml](#)

I'm not sure exactly what you mean. Can you draft a line that covers what you want? I think this is the section in question:

If they cannot do that, then we call on the State to provide the funding to help tenants...help THEMSELVES – by providing free legal services to victims of landlord neglect or harassment.

And even while we're calling on Albany to step up, the City will do ITS part.

So today, I'm announcing that in ANY of the areas in which the city rezones, if we find evidence that tenants are being harassed, we will supply those tenants with legal representation, at no cost, to take their case to Housing Court...to seek justice before a judge.

Protecting our tenants – through whatever means necessary – isn't just the moral thing to do. It's a critical step in making New York City a more affordable place for EVERYONE.

On 2/3/15, 8:08 AM, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>Can u add this in
>
>----- Original Message -----
>From: Wolfe, Emma
>Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 05:36 AM
>To: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
>Subject: Council
>
>Can we put in a note about their historic role funding the legal services >in the speech? Am trying to stem a political issue over there. Bdb has to >decide up or down whether to keep in but Speaker may ask him.

From: John Del Cecato
To: Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Council
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 8:34:50 AM

roger

On 2/3/15, 8:32 AM, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>Could only work in these 2 places:

>

>Protecting

>our tenants – through whatever means necessary – isn't just the moral >thing to >do. INSERT: The council knows this - they have a long history of support >for legal services. It's a critical step in making New >York City a more affordable place for EVERYONE.

>

>OR INSERT HERE: "And we should thank the city council for their historic >support of legal services for tenants."

>

>----- Original Message -----

>From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]

>Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 08:29 AM

>To: Wolfe, Emma

>Subject: Re: Council

>

>I'm not sure exactly what you mean. Can you draft a line that covers what >you want? I think this is the section in question:

>

>

>If they >cannot do that, then we call on the State to provide the funding to help >tenants...help THEMSELVES – by providing free legal services to victims of >landlord neglect or harassment.

>

>And even >while we're calling on Albany to step up, the City will do ITS part.

>

>So today, I'm >announcing that in ANY of the areas in which the city rezones, if we find >evidence that tenants are being harassed, we will supply those tenants >with >legal representation, at no cost, to take their case to Housing Court...to >seek >justice before a judge.

>

>Protecting

>our tenants – through whatever means necessary – isn't just the moral

>thing to >do. It's a critical step in making New

>York City a more affordable place for EVERYONE.

>

>

>

>On 2/3/15, 8:08 AM, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

>>Can u add this in

>>
>>----- Original Message -----
>>From: Wolfe, Emma
>>Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 05:36 AM
>>To: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
>>Subject: Council
>>
>>Can we put in a note about their historic role funding the legal services >>in the speech? Am trying to stem a political issue over there. Bdb has to >>decide up or down whether to keep in but Speaker may ask him.
>

From: Emma Wolfe
To: [REDACTED]
Cc: John Del Cecato; James; Jon Fromowitz; Thomas, Reggie
Subject: Re: Checking per MBDB
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 8:43:33 AM

She did not mention that to me, Reggie can you run the traps ASAP and negotiate her back

On Feb 3, 2015, at 8:39 AM, [REDACTED] wrote:

I really do prefer Stapleton/bay street but apparently the councilwoman (is that right Emma?) wanted the other name.
It is also not really true that we are zoning all of downtown.

On Feb 3, 2015, at 8:25 AM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

And what are we calling the area of SI that will be rezoned? Last draft said "Downtown SI", a phrase I've never heard before. Can we make sure we're getting that wording right pls

From: Mahen Gunaratna
To: Walzak, Phil; Andrea Hagelgans; PhilWalzak [REDACTED]
Cc: John Del Cecato
Subject: Final Speech - 9:15 a.m. version
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 9:28:50 AM
Attachments: SOTCTuesday915AM.docx

Please see attached

STATE OF THE CITY DRAFT
2/3/15 – 915 AM

Thank you, Sheryl Morse, for that warm introduction.

Thank you to Mitchel Wallerstein for hosting us.

Thank you to Officer Leggio, and to Frederick Trapp of the DSNY.

And thank you Reverend Gabriel Salguero.

Thank you to my fellow elected officials in attendance: City Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito, Public Advocate Letitia James, City Comptroller Scott Stringer. Thank you to the Borough Presidents, District Attorneys, Members of Congress, the City Council, and the State Legislature who have joined us. And thank you to Mayor David Dinkins for being here.

Thank you to my fellow New Yorkers!

And of course thank you to the First Lady.

I want to begin by telling you a distinctly New York story.

More than a hundred years ago, a young woman named Anna Briganti arrived in our city after emigrating from Grassano, a small town in southern Italy rich in natural beauty, but scarce in opportunities for its people.

Anna traded picturesque hillsides, and small town familiarity... for an apartment at 205 East 17th Street in Manhattan, just a short walk from here...a place lacking the tranquil comforts of her childhood...a neighborhood where few spoke her native language.

But Anna's NEW home offered her something that her OLD one did not: profound possibilities to create a better life... for herself...AND for her children.

So, in the year 1910 -- a decade before our country granted women the right to vote -- Anna opened an embroidery company: The Misses Briganti... its very name a proud symbol of single women -- the "Miss-ES" referring to her sister, and her mother, and herself -- three women who started the business, together.

Anna Briganti was my grandmother. I am here because of her.

My grandmother's story – like most New York success stories – was not a fairy tale. She did not stumble upon success through luck or charm; she forged it with hard work and raw grit.

And she lived in a place that rewarded those things in unique and powerful ways.

For generations, New York has been a city that unleashed human potential.

A place offering opportunity for EVERYONE, no matter how your life's story began; opportunity for innovators and visionaries to write new chapters in our history; and for parents and grandparents to write brighter ones for the next generation.

And here's the hard truth: all of that is at risk today.

It's at risk because so many who LIVE in New York struggle to AFFORD to be here.

And, since only half of New Yorkers speak only English at home, let me say that a different way:

Por generaciones [he-ne-rah-see-oh-nes], Nueva York ha sido una ciudad que le da rienda [ree-en-dah] suelta [soo-el-tah] al potencial humano.

Pero aquí está la dura verdad: todo eso está hoy en riesgo [ree-es-goh].

Está en riesgo [ree-es-goh] porque a muchas personas que viven aquí les cuesta [qwes-tah] demasiado PÓDER quedarse [kay-dar-say] aquí. Nosotros queremos cambiár eso.

You can see it all over New York -- in the eyes of the single mother in Coney Island, working two jobs and barely scraping together enough for a modest apartment to share with her kids.

You can see it in the worn hands of the fast food worker in Washington Heights, consumed with worry as the calendar approaches the first of the month...the day the rent is due.

You can see it in the furrowed brow of the senior in Rosebank on Staten Island, as she sweeps her porch to chase away thoughts of whether she's saved enough to stay in her small house in the only neighborhood she's ever called home.

If we do not act -- and act BOLDLY -- New York risks taking on the qualities of a gated community... A place defined by exclusivity, rather than opportunity. And we cannot let that happen.

Over the past two years, I've spoken about the need to take dead aim at the Tale of Two Cities, and about our vision for creating One New York, rising together...a city where EVERYONE has a shot at the middle class.

And while we have so much more work to do, 2014 was a year of great progress in our effort to address inequality and lift up our families.

Some examples:

We achieved full-day Pre-K for more than 50,000 of our kids.

We nearly doubled enrollment in after-school programs for middle school kids in all five boroughs.

By executive order, we expanded living wage coverage to 18,000 workers.

With the help of the City Council – and the strong leadership of my partner in government, Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito – we secured paid sick leave for 500,000 more New Yorkers.

We ended the overuse of stop-and-frisk, reducing stops by over 75%. And since we instituted our new marijuana policy, arrests are down almost 65%.

At the same time, thanks to our courageous men and women in uniform, we've not only kept New York City safe – we've made it even safer.

Our NYPD officers helped bring the city's crime rate to an ALL-TIME low – with the smallest number of murders, robberies, and burglaries on record.

The FDNY responded to a record 1.6 MILLION emergency calls...always at the ready when New Yorkers needed help.

The Correction Department made sweeping reforms, including an end to punitive segregation for adolescents in city jails.

Also in 2014, we fought to keep our streets safe and clean for pedestrians, cyclists, and drivers alike.

We established Vision Zero -- bringing pedestrian deaths down to a level not seen since 1910.

We handled one of the snowiest winters our city has ever seen, with 11 winter storms in 2014.

And after our sanitation workers did an extraordinary job clearing our streets...our Department of Transportation workers filled nearly a half-MILLION potholes.

In 2014, we took on climate change and the damage inflicted by the extreme weather linked to it.

We built on the strong environmental record of the Bloomberg Administration by committing to “80 by 50” – a dramatic, game-changing 80 percent reduction in greenhouse gases in our city by the year 2050. And we will be retrofitting not just some, but EVERY public building with significant energy usage by 2025.

We helped repair the devastation wrought by Superstorm Sandy – beating even our ambitious goals – with construction starting on more than 1,000 homes; and badly needed reimbursements provided to more than 2,000 homeowners.

And today, I want to make perfectly clear that EVERY reimbursement check will be in the hands of those who need them by the end of THIS year. From Staten Island to Canarsie to the Rockaways, families hit by the storm have been through so much. This Administration will FINISH the job of helping them rebuild.

In 2014, we balanced our budget in a way that was honest, responsible, and in keeping with our progressive values.

We came to contract agreements with over 71% of the city’s workforce, up from ZERO the year before – signing deals that are fair to both our city workers AND to our taxpayers.

We awarded $690 million in contracts to minority and women-owned businesses, a 57% increase from the year before.

And we connected more New Yorkers to jobs, health care, and our social safety net.

We created the Tech Talent Pipeline to link New Yorkers from every borough and background to a booming tech industry that now employs nearly 300,000 people, and is growing every day in our city.

We invested capital in new economic hubs to create 3,000 new jobs in the Brooklyn Navy Yard and 1,000 new jobs at the Brooklyn Army Terminal that will be there for years to come.

We announced our plan to redesign our workforce development system to arm up to 30,000 New Yorkers a year with the skills for 21st century jobs.

We ended the fear of communities being left without critical care services when their hospitals closed without warning – and began the process of opening half a dozen new community health clinics.

We ended a ticket blitz on our small businesses, and are on track to save them $5 million in petty fines -- money they can put towards growing and hiring.

With the help of the City Council, we created IDNYC– for both citizens AND undocumented New Yorkers. Let’s be clear: Relegating ANY New Yorker to life in the shadows is not who we are as a city. And I’m happy to report that -- less than a month after this program’s inception -- more than 180,000 New Yorkers have ALREADY made an appointment to get their ID.

And we began a major new effort – now led by our inspiring First Lady -- to address the gaps in mental health coverage in New York City. This issue is personal to Chirlane and me, and to so many families who’ve watched loved ones fall through the cracks of an inadequate system. I can’t think of a smarter, stronger, more compassionate person to lead our effort to change that than our First Lady. Let’s thank her!

We opened new doors of opportunity for our young people.

We’ve begun to create 128 community schools – schools that serve the whole child...offering everything from vision tests and mental health screenings...to family counseling and tutoring.

We created 62 PROSE schools – a fresh, new model where teachers and principals work together to set aside D-O-E and union rules that hinder innovation...so we can better serve our kids.

And we invested in Renewal Schools...to FIX 94 struggling schools...because EVERY child in every neighborhood deserves a quality education.

All of these things will make our neighborhoods stronger – and make life in our city better for so many.

But you can’t tap into the opportunities that New York has to offer if you can’t afford to actually LIVE here.

So I will say this:

While the state of our city is strong, we face a profound challenge. If we fail to be a city for EVERYONE, we risk losing what makes New York...NEW YORK.

And nothing more clearly expresses the inequality gap...the OPPORTUNITY gap...than the soaring cost of housing.

The math is pretty straightforward.

In 2014, 56 percent of rental households in New York were spending more than 30 percent of their income on housing – up 10 points in a little more than a decade.

Now spending more than 30 percent of your income on housing means you're officially "rent-burdened." That's an apt description, since the cost of living is becoming a heavier and heavier burden -- not just on wallets, but on hopes and aspirations, as well.

So how did we end up here?

Part of the problem is that the city has for decades let developers write their own rules when it came to building housing. SOMETIMES projects included affordable housing...but far too often, they did NOT.

As the city expanded, our growth was guided primarily by the developers' bottom lines.

That meant a bias towards luxury housing – units that fetched top dollar, but were entirely out of reach for most New Yorkers...multi-million dollar homes that drove up rents in the neighborhoods they occupied – all without a corresponding menu of AFFORDABLE new options.

This Administration is taking a fundamentally different approach – one that not only RECOGNIZES the need for more affordable housing...but DEMANDS it.

How will we do this?

First, we're writing new rules... ones that MANDATE affordable housing as a condition of development in areas re-zoned for residential use.

Second, we'll do everything in our power to KEEP those who already have affordable housing IN THEIR HOMES.

And third -- since we only have so much land -- we'll create more affordable housing by literally building UP... adding density to appropriate parts of our city.

Let me explain what that means.

We are NOT embarking on a mission to build towering skyscrapers where they don't belong. We have a duty to protect and preserve the culture and character of our neighborhoods, and we WILL DO SO.

And as we invest in more affordable housing, we will also work with communities to preserve the fabric of neighborhoods and invest in things that great neighborhoods need -- from parks and schools...to shops and restaurants.

Now, there are some places in our city that have not yet been developed or zoned for housing, but could be. And by taking steps like adding residential buildings to former manufacturing sites -- or adding some six to eight story buildings in appropriate places -- we could make a fundamental difference in neighborhoods' affordability. That means families staying and thriving in the neighborhoods they love, instead of being priced out.

Will this be difficult? Of course. But let me remind you of a difficult challenge we overcame just LAST year.

Of all the efforts we made in 2014 to address income inequality, the most prominent was our successful bid to secure universal, full-day Pre-K -- something bold and meaningful...and something that so many pundits said we couldn't achieve.

The naysayers said we would never find the funding... or the space... to give all our kids a chance.

Well, thanks to the tremendous energy of parents, activists, community leaders, elected officials and good everyday people throughout the city, we proved the cynics WRONG.

And when it comes to affordable housing, we will prove them wrong again.

In fact, we're ALREADY doing so...ALREADY making real progress towards a more affordable New York.

Here's how:

First, our Rent Guidelines Board passed the smallest rent increase EVER last year -- helping protect tenants from being squeezed by their landlords.

Second, we are following through on a plan to build and preserve affordable housing on an unprecedented scale. We've committed to the construction of 80,000 new units of affordable housing by 2024.

Let me put that in perspective: it means building new affordable units at TWICE the average annual rate of the past 25 years.

When you add that to the 120,000 units that our plan preserves, it means affordable housing for a half MILLION New Yorkers...more than the entire population of the city of Miami. Take THAT, Miami!

This is what our housing plan does. It's real. Those here...can pick up a copy. And anyone can read it online at NYC.gov.

And we're ALREADY putting this plan into action. Our goal for 2014 was to create and preserve 16,000 units. We beat that goal -- achieving 17,300 affordable units last year alone.

Third, because it's been projected that New York City will be home to nine MILLION people by 2040, we're pursuing EVERY kind of housing.

Increasing the overall supply of housing is critical to serving New Yorkers at all income levels -- and to assuring we can accommodate the workforce who will continue to grow our economy.

So we plan for the construction of 160,000 market rate units as well.

All told, our plan will create hundreds of thousands of construction jobs -- and over 20,000 permanent jobs.

Fourth, we're cutting red tape to speed up our progress.

To expedite the right kind of development, we must expedite the development process.

What we need, and what we will have, is fundamental reform at the Department of Buildings. This agency must better serve its customers -- including thousands of small businesses that drive our economy. We'll speed up inspections and cut bureaucracy, so that more jobs can be created and more housing can be built.

Fifth -- for the first time in New York City history, we are creating a Mandatory Inclusionary Zoning requirement that will apply to ALL major residential re-zonings.

This is a big one. Listen to this.

In EVERY major rezoning development, we will REQUIRE developers to include affordable housing. Not as an option. As a precondition.

Want to see this approach in action? Look at Astoria Cove in Queens. As a result of this Administration's framework -- and the City Council's tough negotiations -- 465 units of affordable housing will be created at this site alone.

That's 465 families who no longer have to choose between living in the city they call home, or finding another city they CAN afford. It means that hundreds of kids will live and learn and grow in OUR city.

Astoria Cove is a site in which previous City re-zoning policy wouldn't have required ANY units of affordable housing. ZERO. That was, in fact, the original plan.

So if you want to see the difference that our approach is already making – it's the difference between 465...and zero...on one site alone.

And there are many MORE re-zonings like this coming soon to neighborhoods across the five boroughs – from East New York to Long Island City; from Flushing West to East Harlem; from downtown Staten Island to the Jerome Avenue Corridor in the Bronx.

Each of these efforts will make our neighborhoods stronger and more affordable.

And here's one that will be a game-changer when it comes to keeping our city affordable for thousands of New York families: Sunnyside Yards.

Right now, there are 200 acres of land in the heart of Queens, land that exists in the form of a rail yard – and ONLY a rail yard. But the fact is, those tracks could easily exist underground – allowing us to build housing – much of it affordable -- above them.

At Sunnyside Yards, we'll work with the community and local elected officials to create a plan that incorporates what diverse and dynamic neighborhoods need -- access to transportation, parks, schools, retail stores, and job opportunities.

Our approach is not entirely novel. Developments that prioritize affordability and livability HAVE been built before -- from Starrett City to Co-Op City to Stuy Town.

And these developments created affordability on a grand scale.

Stuy Town, when it opened in 1947 provided our city with 11,250 affordable apartments... a community where trees and parks, and shops dotted a landscape from which residents could actually see the sky.

We're bringing that same kind of scale -- and a real sense of urgency -- to Sunnyside Yards...and setting the same exact goal of 11,250 affordable units, as part of a neighborhood that anyone would be proud to call home.

And in contrast to the recent history of Stuy Town, we're going to make sure that affordable housing at Sunnyside Yards STAYS that way.

To paraphrase one of my former employers, it takes a village to build a neighborhood. So we look forward to partnering with Amtrak and the MTA in this extraordinary effort at Sunnyside Yards.

Another transformative opportunity lies in the Lower Concourse neighborhood on the waterfront in the South Bronx, a section of our city that was for so long synonymous with urban decay.

But the South Bronx is coming back strong, and waterfront development will be a big step forward.

When we look at this project, we don't think about what USED to define the Bronx; we think about all that WILL define the Bronx in the future.

With a $200 million capital investment, we can stimulate the development of 4,000 new units of housing – much of it affordable -- and provide the parks, schools, and commercial development that support a growing, thriving population.

We look forward to partnering with Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito and our colleagues in government to make an investment that will bring hope and opportunity to a place with enormous potential.

And speaking of potential, let's talk about the Rockaways.

Battered by years of economic distress even before Sandy's gale force winds struck, there's no place in our city that has persevered through more.

Our plan will jumpstart the process of acquiring underutilized properties in the Rockaways – areas blighted or vacant for decades – as we look to create new, affordable housing for thousands there.

We must also remember that transportation is central to the mission of providing affordable housing and services -- connecting neighborhoods in the five boroughs to New York's largest job centers.

For years, the conventional wisdom has been that certain neighborhoods are doomed to isolation because of their geography.

Today, if you live in one of those neighborhoods – the Rockaways or Red Hook or Soundview, among others -- a job in Manhattan can easily mean an hour or more of commuting, even when the skyline is visible from your home. You can actually SEE opportunity, but practically speaking, it's very far away.

We are going to change that.

Today, we announce that we're launching a new citywide ferry service to be open for business in 2017. New ferry rides will be priced the same as a MetroCard fare, so ferries will be as affordable to everyday New Yorkers as our subways and buses. so residents of the Rockaways and Red Hook and Soundview will now be closer to the opportunities they need.

And beyond connecting residents to jobs in Manhattan, our new citywide ferry system will spur the development of new commercial corridors throughout the outer boroughs.

We will also expand Bus Rapid Transit – or B-R-T – serving 400,000 New Yorkers along key thoroughfares like Utica Avenue in Brooklyn, and Woodhaven Boulevard in Queens... completing a network of 20 routes over the next four years. B-R-T will cut transit time on existing routes by 15-25%. That means New Yorkers spending less time in transit and more time living their lives.

That's the KIND of housing that we'll build.

Let's talk about some of the PEOPLE we're fighting to help.

First, our veterans. We commit to ENDING chronic veterans homelessness by the end of this year. Those who fight to protect our freedom abroad should NEVER be left without a home.

Second, our seniors. We're providing 10,000 units of affordable housing for – New Yorkers who have worked hard all of their lives, and deserve to retire in dignity. Women and men who live on fixed incomes have little recourse when housing costs go up. They need our help, and they will get it.

Third, artists. We know that New York is the city it is today in part because of the contributions from generations of artistic visionaries who at one point struggled to make ends meet.

So we'll provide 1500 units of affordable live/work housing for the artists and musicians who make New York culture so vibrant.... as well as 500 dedicated affordable workspaces for the cultural community.

These folks bring joy to everyday New Yorkers; and inspire young people to pursue their natural talents in professions that often don't promise a big paycheck. They also help make our city a mecca for tourists, and are one of the reasons why a record number of people -- 56.4 MILLION -- visited New York last year.

But whether or not you're a veteran, a senior, or an artist, you've likely felt the pinch of skyrocketing housing costs in our city.

That's due in part to a phenomenon that everybody sees, everybody feels – but nobody wants to really talk about: gentrification.

Ask 8.4 million New Yorkers what they think about gentrification, and you'll get 8.4 million opinions.

Clearly, there's good and there's bad.

First, the good.

After two decades of steadily declining crime, people are excited to come to New York...about investing in our city.

With that influx of people and resources comes jobs and amenities...more activity...safer streets.

The PROBLEM comes when we reach the tipping point...when New Yorkers get PRICED OUT of their own neighborhoods.

In the past, we've been told: sorry – there's nothing you can do about that. You can either have a safe and clean neighborhood – OR you can have one you can afford. Not both.

Well, as my grandmother might say, that's "una cavolata!"

We CAN act, and we MUST.

You see, New York City's last twenty years has had its share of bad actors.

First, there are the slumlords – the folks who refuse to make repairs...letting housing decay...making apartments uninhabitable.

Then, there are predatory landlords – the people who take advantage of a red-hot real estate market – employing ugly tactics to push out moderate-income tenants to make room for wealthier ones.

These predatory landlords harass tenants by, say, intermittently turning off the heat or hot water, or by refusing to address simple matters of safety or sanitation.

That doesn't just violate the law; it violates our values as New Yorkers.

And we have tools to address these things.

When I was Public Advocate, we published the Worst Landlords Watchlist – targeting those who refused to make simple repairs to the units they controlled.

It helped spur change, with hundreds of buildings coming off the list after making needed improvements...and thousands of tenants getting the repairs they needed. I applaud Public Advocate Tish James for energetically continuing this effort.

And there's MORE we can do.

Albany has responsibility for enforcing our rent laws, but too often that doesn't happen. We need Albany to step up and enforce the laws aggressively. NOW.

Every day in this city, people are losing their homes unfairly. Albany cannot wait -- we need help right now.

And we need stronger rent regulations that reflect today's New York.

To preserve our city as a place for everyone, we need to do more than ever to protect the one million rent-regulated apartments in New York. For so many, it's the only way they make ends meet...and the only path to the middle class.

If Albany truly believes in opportunity for all, they will strengthen our rent laws in 2015.

If they cannot do that, then we call on the State to provide the funding to help tenants...help THEMSELVES – by providing free legal services to victims of landlord neglect or harassment.

And even while we're calling on Albany to step up, the City will do ITS part.

So today, I'm announcing that in ANY of the areas in which the city rezones, if we find evidence that tenants are being harassed, we will supply those tenants with legal representation, at no cost, to take their case to Housing Court...to seek justice before a judge.

Protecting our tenants – through whatever means necessary – isn't just the moral thing to do. It's a critical step in making New York City a more affordable place for EVERYONE. And we should thank the City Council for their historic support of legal services for tenants.

All of the steps on housing that I've spoken about today – from responsibly building UP; to placing new demands on developers; to providing affordable housing to New Yorkers who need it most; to targeting predatory landlords – it's all part of our new rules for helping people find a home they can afford.

Today we've focused on the NUMBER ONE expense in the lives of most New Yorkers. Reducing the expense of housing is absolutely critical to addressing the Tale of Two Cities. But we'll also fight on the other end of the equation.

Because nothing does more to address income equality than actually raising people's incomes.

There's one critical step that could do so much good. RAISING THE MINIMUM WAGE.

Now Albany's shown some promising signs on this subject -- but for it to be more than just talk -- and to have a real impact on the lives of those living in New York City -- we need more.

The current minimum wage proposal simply doesn't do enough to help New York City. That's why WE will fight to raise New York City's minimum wage to more than $13 per hour in 2016... while indexing the minimum wage, which would bring us to a projected $15 per hour by 2019.

Why is indexing so important? Because it means that hardworking New Yorkers won't have to wait on new action from Albany just to keep pace with inflation.

It's difficult to overstate the positive impact this would have on working New Yorkers. Even for those that earn more than minimum right now, this action would create an upward pull on wages... an upward pull on opportunity.... and an upward pull on our economy.

Indeed, Henry Ford -- the noted leftwing "socialist" that he was -- wanted the workers on his assembly line to be able to afford to PURCHASE the cars they worked to BUILD. So he gave them a living wage.

I assure you, he didn't do it to be charitable; he did it because he knew it was good for business. I'd say it worked out pretty well for old Henry.

Creating more affordable housing; raising wages and benefits; strengthening our neighborhoods by better connecting them to jobs and opportunity -- THAT is how we'll take on the Tale of Two Cities.

It won't be easy. And we know there will be critics who say it just can't be done... that our destiny is to be a city for The Privileged Few...not a city for all.

But New York is no stranger to facing big challenges -- and the many doubting Thomases -- and knows how to overcome them. In fact, we revel in proving them wrong.

Thirty years ago, in his 1985 State of the City Address, Mayor Ed Koch announced what was an UNPRECEDENTED plan for affordable housing.

He understood the transformative power of city government to revitalize whole communities. His administration stated the clearly: QUOTE “we’re creating more than just apartments – we’re re-creating neighborhoods.” END QUOTE

There were those who said it couldn’t be done. Historian Jonathan Soffer wrote of Koch’s plan: QUOTE “It was an extremely risky move. Some experts said at first that Koch's goal was 'inspirational rather than realistic.’” END QUOTE

Well, let me just say, I can relate. I’ve heard very similar criticisms.

But we know now that Koch’s plan WAS realistic... in fact, it worked. And it had a transcendent impact on our city.

A city that was struggling and shrinking when Koch took office...turned around.

And so today, WE face the challenge of a city in which more and more people want to live. It’s a nice problem to have in one way, but it’s a major challenge nonetheless.

We will not lose sight of WHY our city is a beacon for so many. It’s not the cleanest place, nor the most tranquil. We don’t have the best weather or many alluring natural landmarks. But we have something special, something unique: an idea at our core – a PROMISE – that ours is a city...for EVERYONE.

We are charged in our time with the sacred duty of keeping that promise... and we will not sit idle in the face of crisis.

John F. Kennedy put it well. He said: "There are risks and costs to a program of action. But they are far less than the long-range risks and costs of comfortable INACTION."

Like the people this great city, our Administration is about action.

And we’ll continue to lead a City government that reflects all that is great about the New Yorkers we are so honored to serve.

Your energy invigorates us.

Your compassion inspires us.

Your resolve compels us to move forward.

And, so – my fellow New Yorkers -- let’s get to work. NOW.

Thank you very much. God bless you all.

From: John Del Cecato
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil
Cc: Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Need to print speech
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 9:28:53 AM
Attachments: SOTCTuesday915AM.docx

attached

On 2/3/15, 9:23 AM, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>Jdc- pls send final asap

STATE OF THE CITY DRAFT
2/3/15 – 915 AM

Thank you, Sheryl Morse, for that warm introduction.

Thank you to Mitchel Wallerstein for hosting us.

Thank you to Officer Leggio, and to Frederick Trapp of the DSNY.

And thank you Reverend Gabriel Salguero.

Thank you to my fellow elected officials in attendance: City Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito, Public Advocate Letitia James, City Comptroller Scott Stringer. Thank you to the Borough Presidents, District Attorneys, Members of Congress, the City Council, and the State Legislature who have joined us. And thank you to Mayor David Dinkins for being here.

Thank you to my fellow New Yorkers!

And of course thank you to the First Lady.

I want to begin by telling you a distinctly New York story.

More than a hundred years ago, a young woman named Anna Briganti arrived in our city after emigrating from Grassano, a small town in southern Italy rich in natural beauty, but scarce in opportunities for its people.

Anna traded picturesque hillsides, and small town familiarity... for an apartment at 205 East 17th Street in Manhattan, just a short walk from here...a place lacking the tranquil comforts of her childhood...a neighborhood where few spoke her native language.

But Anna's NEW home offered her something that her OLD one did not: profound possibilities to create a better life... for herself...AND for her children.

So, in the year 1910 -- a decade before our country granted women the right to vote -- Anna opened an embroidery company: The Misses Briganti... its very name a proud symbol of single women -- the "Miss-ES" referring to her sister, and her mother, and herself -- three women who started the business, together.

Anna Briganti was my grandmother. I am here because of her.

My grandmother's story – like most New York success stories – was not a fairy tale. She did not stumble upon success through luck or charm; she forged it with hard work and raw grit.

And she lived in a place that rewarded those things in unique and powerful ways.

For generations, New York has been a city that unleashed human potential.

A place offering opportunity for EVERYONE, no matter how your life's story began; opportunity for innovators and visionaries to write new chapters in our history; and for parents and grandparents to write brighter ones for the next generation.

And here's the hard truth: all of that is at risk today.

It's at risk because so many who LIVE in New York struggle to AFFORD to be here.

And, since only half of New Yorkers speak only English at home, let me say that a different way:

Por generaciones [he-ne-rah-see-oh-nes], Nueva York ha sido una ciudad que le da rienda [ree-en-dah] suelta [soo-el-tah] al potencial humano.

Pero aquí está la dura verdad: todo eso está hoy en riesgo [ree-es-goh].

Está en riesgo [ree-es-goh] porque a muchas personas que viven aquí les cuesta [qwes-tah] demasiado PÓDER quedarse [kay-dar-say] aquí. Nosotros queremos cambiár eso.

You can see it all over New York -- in the eyes of the single mother in Coney Island, working two jobs and barely scraping together enough for a modest apartment to share with her kids.

You can see it in the worn hands of the fast food worker in Washington Heights, consumed with worry as the calendar approaches the first of the month...the day the rent is due.

You can see it in the furrowed brow of the senior in Rosebank on Staten Island, as she sweeps her porch to chase away thoughts of whether she's saved enough to stay in her small house in the only neighborhood she's ever called home.

If we do not act -- and act BOLDLY -- New York risks taking on the qualities of a gated community... A place defined by exclusivity, rather than opportunity. And we cannot let that happen.

Over the past two years, I've spoken about the need to take dead aim at the Tale of Two Cities, and about our vision for creating One New York, rising together...a city where EVERYONE has a shot at the middle class.

And while we have so much more work to do, 2014 was a year of great progress in our effort to address inequality and lift up our families.

Some examples:

We achieved full-day Pre-K for more than 50,000 of our kids.

We nearly doubled enrollment in after-school programs for middle school kids in all five boroughs.

By executive order, we expanded living wage coverage to 18,000 workers.

With the help of the City Council – and the strong leadership of my partner in government, Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito – we secured paid sick leave for 500,000 more New Yorkers.

We ended the overuse of stop-and-frisk, reducing stops by over 75%. And since we instituted our new marijuana policy, arrests are down almost 65%.

At the same time, thanks to our courageous men and women in uniform, we've not only kept New York City safe – we've made it even safer.

Our NYPD officers helped bring the city's crime rate to an ALL-TIME low – with the smallest number of murders, robberies, and burglaries on record.

The FDNY responded to a record 1.6 MILLION emergency calls...always at the ready when New Yorkers needed help.

The Correction Department made sweeping reforms, including an end to punitive segregation for adolescents in city jails.

Also in 2014, we fought to keep our streets safe and clean for pedestrians, cyclists, and drivers alike.

We established Vision Zero -- bringing pedestrian deaths down to a level not seen since 1910.

We handled one of the snowiest winters our city has ever seen, with 11 winter storms in 2014.

And after our sanitation workers did an extraordinary job clearing our streets...our Department of Transportation workers filled nearly a half-MILLION potholes.

In 2014, we took on climate change and the damage inflicted by the extreme weather linked to it.

We built on the strong environmental record of the Bloomberg Administration by committing to “80 by 50” – a dramatic, game-changing 80 percent reduction in greenhouse gases in our city by the year 2050. And we will be retrofitting not just some, but EVERY public building with significant energy usage by 2025.

We helped repair the devastation wrought by Superstorm Sandy – beating even our ambitious goals – with construction starting on more than 1,000 homes; and badly needed reimbursements provided to more than 2,000 homeowners.

And today, I want to make perfectly clear that EVERY reimbursement check will be in the hands of those who need them by the end of THIS year. From Staten Island to Canarsie to the Rockaways, families hit by the storm have been through so much. This Administration will FINISH the job of helping them rebuild.

In 2014, we balanced our budget in a way that was honest, responsible, and in keeping with our progressive values.

We came to contract agreements with over 71% of the city’s workforce, up from ZERO the year before – signing deals that are fair to both our city workers AND to our taxpayers.

We awarded $690 million in contracts to minority and women-owned businesses, a 57% increase from the year before.

And we connected more New Yorkers to jobs, health care, and our social safety net.

We created the Tech Talent Pipeline to link New Yorkers from every borough and background to a booming tech industry that now employs nearly 300,000 people, and is growing every day in our city.

We invested capital in new economic hubs to create 3,000 new jobs in the Brooklyn Navy Yard and 1,000 new jobs at the Brooklyn Army Terminal that will be there for years to come.

We announced our plan to redesign our workforce development system to arm up to 30,000 New Yorkers a year with the skills for 21st century jobs.

We ended the fear of communities being left without critical care services when their hospitals closed without warning – and began the process of opening half a dozen new community health clinics.

We ended a ticket blitz on our small businesses, and are on track to save them $5 million in petty fines -- money they can put towards growing and hiring.

With the help of the City Council, we created IDNYC– for both citizens AND undocumented New Yorkers. Let’s be clear: Relegating ANY New Yorker to life in the shadows is not who we are as a city. And I’m happy to report that -- less than a month after this program’s inception -- more than 180,000 New Yorkers have ALREADY made an appointment to get their ID.

And we began a major new effort – now led by our inspiring First Lady -- to address the gaps in mental health coverage in New York City. This issue is personal to Chirlane and me, and to so many families who’ve watched loved ones fall through the cracks of an inadequate system. I can’t think of a smarter, stronger, more compassionate person to lead our effort to change that than our First Lady. Let’s thank her!

We opened new doors of opportunity for our young people.

We’ve begun to create 128 community schools – schools that serve the whole child...offering everything from vision tests and mental health screenings...to family counseling and tutoring.

We created 62 PROSE schools – a fresh, new model where teachers and principals work together to set aside D-O-E and union rules that hinder innovation...so we can better serve our kids.

And we invested in Renewal Schools...to FIX 94 struggling schools...because EVERY child in every neighborhood deserves a quality education.

All of these things will make our neighborhoods stronger – and make life in our city better for so many.

But you can’t tap into the opportunities that New York has to offer if you can’t afford to actually LIVE here.

So I will say this:

While the state of our city is strong, we face a profound challenge. If we fail to be a city for EVERYONE, we risk losing what makes New York...NEW YORK.

And nothing more clearly expresses the inequality gap...the OPPORTUNITY gap...than the soaring cost of housing.

The math is pretty straightforward.

In 2014, 56 percent of rental households in New York were spending more than 30 percent of their income on housing – up 10 points in a little more than a decade.

Now spending more than 30 percent of your income on housing means you're officially "rent-burdened." That's an apt description, since the cost of living is becoming a heavier and heavier burden -- not just on wallets, but on hopes and aspirations, as well.

So how did we end up here?

Part of the problem is that the city has for decades let developers write their own rules when it came to building housing. SOMETIMES projects included affordable housing...but far too often, they did NOT.

As the city expanded, our growth was guided primarily by the developers' bottom lines.

That meant a bias towards luxury housing – units that fetched top dollar, but were entirely out of reach for most New Yorkers...multi-million dollar homes that drove up rents in the neighborhoods they occupied – all without a corresponding menu of AFFORDABLE new options.

This Administration is taking a fundamentally different approach – one that not only RECOGNIZES the need for more affordable housing...but DEMANDS it.

How will we do this?

First, we're writing new rules... ones that MANDATE affordable housing as a condition of development in areas re-zoned for residential use.

Second, we'll do everything in our power to KEEP those who already have affordable housing IN THEIR HOMES.

And third -- since we only have so much land -- we'll create more affordable housing by literally building UP... adding density to appropriate parts of our city.

Let me explain what that means.

We are NOT embarking on a mission to build towering skyscrapers where they don't belong. We have a duty to protect and preserve the culture and character of our neighborhoods, and we WILL DO SO.

And as we invest in more affordable housing, we will also work with communities to preserve the fabric of neighborhoods and invest in things that great neighborhoods need -- from parks and schools...to shops and restaurants.

Now, there are some places in our city that have not yet been developed or zoned for housing, but could be. And by taking steps like adding residential buildings to former manufacturing sites -- or adding some six to eight story buildings in appropriate places -- we could make a fundamental difference in neighborhoods' affordability. That means families staying and thriving in the neighborhoods they love, instead of being priced out.

Will this be difficult? Of course. But let me remind you of a difficult challenge we overcame just LAST year.

Of all the efforts we made in 2014 to address income inequality, the most prominent was our successful bid to secure universal, full-day Pre-K -- something bold and meaningful...and something that so many pundits said we couldn't achieve.

The naysayers said we would never find the funding... or the space... to give all our kids a chance.

Well, thanks to the tremendous energy of parents, activists, community leaders, elected officials and good everyday people throughout the city, we proved the cynics WRONG.

And when it comes to affordable housing, we will prove them wrong again.

In fact, we're ALREADY doing so...ALREADY making real progress towards a more affordable New York.

Here's how:

First, our Rent Guidelines Board passed the smallest rent increase EVER last year -- helping protect tenants from being squeezed by their landlords.

Second, we are following through on a plan to build and preserve affordable housing on an unprecedented scale. We've committed to the construction of 80,000 new units of affordable housing by 2024.

Let me put that in perspective: it means building new affordable units at TWICE the average annual rate of the past 25 years.

When you add that to the 120,000 units that our plan preserves, it means affordable housing for a half MILLION New Yorkers...more than the entire population of the city of Miami. Take THAT, Miami!

This is what our housing plan does. It's real. Those here...can pick up a copy. And anyone can read it online at NYC.gov.

And we're ALREADY putting this plan into action. Our goal for 2014 was to create and preserve 16,000 units. We beat that goal -- achieving 17,300 affordable units last year alone.

Third, because it's been projected that New York City will be home to nine MILLION people by 2040, we're pursuing EVERY kind of housing.

Increasing the overall supply of housing is critical to serving New Yorkers at all income levels -- and to assuring we can accommodate the workforce who will continue to grow our economy.

So we plan for the construction of 160,000 market rate units as well.

All told, our plan will create hundreds of thousands of construction jobs -- and over 20,000 permanent jobs.

Fourth, we're cutting red tape to speed up our progress.

To expedite the right kind of development, we must expedite the development process.

What we need, and what we will have, is fundamental reform at the Department of Buildings. This agency must better serve its customers -- including thousands of small businesses that drive our economy. We'll speed up inspections and cut bureaucracy, so that more jobs can be created and more housing can be built.

Fifth -- for the first time in New York City history, we are creating a Mandatory Inclusionary Zoning requirement that will apply to ALL major residential re-zonings.

This is a big one. Listen to this.

In EVERY major rezoning development, we will REQUIRE developers to include affordable housing. Not as an option. As a precondition.

Want to see this approach in action? Look at Astoria Cove in Queens. As a result of this Administration's framework -- and the City Council's tough negotiations -- 465 units of affordable housing will be created at this site alone.

That's 465 families who no longer have to choose between living in the city they call home, or finding another city they CAN afford. It means that hundreds of kids will live and learn and grow in OUR city.

Astoria Cove is a site in which previous City re-zoning policy wouldn't have required ANY units of affordable housing. ZERO. That was, in fact, the original plan.

So if you want to see the difference that our approach is already making – it's the difference between 465...and zero...on one site alone.

And there are many MORE re-zonings like this coming soon to neighborhoods across the five boroughs – from East New York to Long Island City; from Flushing West to East Harlem; from downtown Staten Island to the Jerome Avenue Corridor in the Bronx.

Each of these efforts will make our neighborhoods stronger and more affordable.

And here's one that will be a game-changer when it comes to keeping our city affordable for thousands of New York families: Sunnyside Yards.

Right now, there are 200 acres of land in the heart of Queens, land that exists in the form of a rail yard – and ONLY a rail yard. But the fact is, those tracks could easily exist underground – allowing us to build housing – much of it affordable -- above them.

At Sunnyside Yards, we'll work with the community and local elected officials to create a plan that incorporates what diverse and dynamic neighborhoods need -- access to transportation, parks, schools, retail stores, and job opportunities.

Our approach is not entirely novel. Developments that prioritize affordability and livability HAVE been built before -- from Starrett City to Co-Op City to Stuy Town.

And these developments created affordability on a grand scale.

Stuy Town, when it opened in 1947 provided our city with 11,250 affordable apartments... a community where trees and parks, and shops dotted a landscape from which residents could actually see the sky.

We're bringing that same kind of scale -- and a real sense of urgency -- to Sunnyside Yards...and setting the same exact goal of 11,250 affordable units, as part of a neighborhood that anyone would be proud to call home.

And in contrast to the recent history of Stuy Town, we're going to make sure that affordable housing at Sunnyside Yards STAYS that way.

To paraphrase one of my former employers, it takes a village to build a neighborhood. So we look forward to partnering with Amtrak and the MTA in this extraordinary effort at Sunnyside Yards.

Another transformative opportunity lies in the Lower Concourse neighborhood on the waterfront in the South Bronx, a section of our city that was for so long synonymous with urban decay.

But the South Bronx is coming back strong, and waterfront development will be a big step forward.

When we look at this project, we don't think about what USED to define the Bronx; we think about all that WILL define the Bronx in the future.

With a $200 million capital investment, we can stimulate the development of 4,000 new units of housing – much of it affordable -- and provide the parks, schools, and commercial development that support a growing, thriving population.

We look forward to partnering with Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito and our colleagues in government to make an investment that will bring hope and opportunity to a place with enormous potential.

And speaking of potential, let's talk about the Rockaways.

Battered by years of economic distress even before Sandy's gale force winds struck, there's no place in our city that has persevered through more.

Our plan will jumpstart the process of acquiring underutilized properties in the Rockaways – areas blighted or vacant for decades – as we look to create new, affordable housing for thousands there.

We must also remember that transportation is central to the mission of providing affordable housing and services -- connecting neighborhoods in the five boroughs to New York's largest job centers.

For years, the conventional wisdom has been that certain neighborhoods are doomed to isolation because of their geography.

Today, if you live in one of those neighborhoods – the Rockaways or Red Hook or Soundview, among others -- a job in Manhattan can easily mean an hour or more of commuting, even when the skyline is visible from your home. You can actually SEE opportunity, but practically speaking, it's very far away.

We are going to change that.

Today, we announce that we're launching a new citywide ferry service to be open for business in 2017. New ferry rides will be priced the same as a MetroCard fare, so ferries will be as affordable to everyday New Yorkers as our subways and buses. so residents of the Rockaways and Red Hook and Soundview will now be closer to the opportunities they need.

And beyond connecting residents to jobs in Manhattan, our new citywide ferry system will spur the development of new commercial corridors throughout the outer boroughs.

We will also expand Bus Rapid Transit – or B-R-T – serving 400,000 New Yorkers along key thoroughfares like Utica Avenue in Brooklyn, and Woodhaven Boulevard in Queens... completing a network of 20 routes over the next four years. B-R-T will cut transit time on existing routes by 15-25%. That means New Yorkers spending less time in transit and more time living their lives.

That's the KIND of housing that we'll build.

Let's talk about some of the PEOPLE we're fighting to help.

First, our veterans. We commit to ENDING chronic veterans homelessness by the end of this year. Those who fight to protect our freedom abroad should NEVER be left without a home.

Second, our seniors. We're providing 10,000 units of affordable housing for – New Yorkers who have worked hard all of their lives, and deserve to retire in dignity. Women and men who live on fixed incomes have little recourse when housing costs go up. They need our help, and they will get it.

Third, artists. We know that New York is the city it is today in part because of the contributions from generations of artistic visionaries who at one point struggled to make ends meet.

So we'll provide 1500 units of affordable live/work housing for the artists and musicians who make New York culture so vibrant.... as well as 500 dedicated affordable workspaces for the cultural community.

These folks bring joy to everyday New Yorkers; and inspire young people to pursue their natural talents in professions that often don't promise a big paycheck. They also help make our city a mecca for tourists, and are one of the reasons why a record number of people -- 56.4 MILLION -- visited New York last year.

But whether or not you're a veteran, a senior, or an artist, you've likely felt the pinch of skyrocketing housing costs in our city.

That's due in part to a phenomenon that everybody sees, everybody feels – but nobody wants to really talk about: gentrification.

Ask 8.4 million New Yorkers what they think about gentrification, and you'll get 8.4 million opinions.

Clearly, there's good and there's bad.

First, the good.

After two decades of steadily declining crime, people are excited to come to New York...about investing in our city.

With that influx of people and resources comes jobs and amenities...more activity...safer streets.

The PROBLEM comes when we reach the tipping point...when New Yorkers get PRICED OUT of their own neighborhoods.

In the past, we've been told: sorry – there's nothing you can do about that. You can either have a safe and clean neighborhood – OR you can have one you can afford. Not both.

Well, as my grandmother might say, that's "una cavolata!"

We CAN act, and we MUST.

You see, New York City's last twenty years has had its share of bad actors.

First, there are the slumlords – the folks who refuse to make repairs...letting housing decay...making apartments uninhabitable.

Then, there are predatory landlords – the people who take advantage of a red-hot real estate market – employing ugly tactics to push out moderate-income tenants to make room for wealthier ones.

These predatory landlords harass tenants by, say, intermittently turning off the heat or hot water, or by refusing to address simple matters of safety or sanitation.

That doesn't just violate the law; it violates our values as New Yorkers.

And we have tools to address these things.

When I was Public Advocate, we published the Worst Landlords Watchlist – targeting those who refused to make simple repairs to the units they controlled.

It helped spur change, with hundreds of buildings coming off the list after making needed improvements...and thousands of tenants getting the repairs they needed. I applaud Public Advocate Tish James for energetically continuing this effort.

And there's MORE we can do.

Albany has responsibility for enforcing our rent laws, but too often that doesn't happen. We need Albany to step up and enforce the laws aggressively. NOW.

Every day in this city, people are losing their homes unfairly. Albany cannot wait -- we need help right now.

And we need stronger rent regulations that reflect today's New York.

To preserve our city as a place for everyone, we need to do more than ever to protect the one million rent-regulated apartments in New York. For so many, it's the only way they make ends meet...and the only path to the middle class.

If Albany truly believes in opportunity for all, they will strengthen our rent laws in 2015.

If they cannot do that, then we call on the State to provide the funding to help tenants...help THEMSELVES – by providing free legal services to victims of landlord neglect or harassment.

And even while we're calling on Albany to step up, the City will do ITS part.

So today, I'm announcing that in ANY of the areas in which the city rezones, if we find evidence that tenants are being harassed, we will supply those tenants with legal representation, at no cost, to take their case to Housing Court...to seek justice before a judge.

Protecting our tenants – through whatever means necessary – isn't just the moral thing to do. It's a critical step in making New York City a more affordable place for EVERYONE. And we should thank the City Council for their historic support of legal services for tenants.

All of the steps on housing that I've spoken about today – from responsibly building UP; to placing new demands on developers; to providing affordable housing to New Yorkers who need it most; to targeting predatory landlords – it's all part of our new rules for helping people find a home they can afford.

Today we've focused on the NUMBER ONE expense in the lives of most New Yorkers. Reducing the expense of housing is absolutely critical to addressing the Tale of Two Cities. But we'll also fight on the other end of the equation.

Because nothing does more to address income equality than actually raising people's incomes.

There's one critical step that could do so much good. RAISING THE MINIMUM WAGE.

Now Albany's shown some promising signs on this subject -- but for it to be more than just talk -- and to have a real impact on the lives of those living in New York City -- we need more.

The current minimum wage proposal simply doesn't do enough to help New York City. That's why WE will fight to raise New York City's minimum wage to more than $13 per hour in 2016... while indexing the minimum wage, which would bring us to a projected $15 per hour by 2019.

Why is indexing so important? Because it means that hardworking New Yorkers won't have to wait on new action from Albany just to keep pace with inflation.

It's difficult to overstate the positive impact this would have on working New Yorkers. Even for those that earn more than minimum right now, this action would create an upward pull on wages... an upward pull on opportunity.... and an upward pull on our economy.

Indeed, Henry Ford -- the noted leftwing "socialist" that he was -- wanted the workers on his assembly line to be able to afford to PURCHASE the cars they worked to BUILD. So he gave them a living wage.

I assure you, he didn't do it to be charitable; he did it because he knew it was good for business. I'd say it worked out pretty well for old Henry.

Creating more affordable housing; raising wages and benefits; strengthening our neighborhoods by better connecting them to jobs and opportunity -- THAT is how we'll take on the Tale of Two Cities.

It won't be easy. And we know there will be critics who say it just can't be done... that our destiny is to be a city for The Privileged Few...not a city for all.

But New York is no stranger to facing big challenges -- and the many doubting Thomases -- and knows how to overcome them. In fact, we revel in proving them wrong.

Thirty years ago, in his 1985 State of the City Address, Mayor Ed Koch announced what was an UNPRECEDENTED plan for affordable housing.

He understood the transformative power of city government to revitalize whole communities. His administration stated the clearly: QUOTE “we’re creating more than just apartments – we’re re-creating neighborhoods.” END QUOTE

There were those who said it couldn’t be done. Historian Jonathan Soffer wrote of Koch’s plan: QUOTE “It was an extremely risky move. Some experts said at first that Koch's goal was 'inspirational rather than realistic.’” END QUOTE

Well, let me just say, I can relate. I’ve heard very similar criticisms.

But we know now that Koch’s plan WAS realistic... in fact, it worked. And it had a transcendent impact on our city.

A city that was struggling and shrinking when Koch took office...turned around.

And so today, WE face the challenge of a city in which more and more people want to live. It’s a nice problem to have in one way, but it’s a major challenge nonetheless.

We will not lose sight of WHY our city is a beacon for so many. It’s not the cleanest place, nor the most tranquil. We don’t have the best weather or many alluring natural landmarks. But we have something special, something unique: an idea at our core – a PROMISE – that ours is a city...for EVERYONE.

We are charged in our time with the sacred duty of keeping that promise... and we will not sit idle in the face of crisis.

John F. Kennedy put it well. He said: "There are risks and costs to a program of action. But they are far less than the long-range risks and costs of comfortable INACTION."

Like the people this great city, our Administration is about action.

And we’ll continue to lead a City government that reflects all that is great about the New Yorkers we are so honored to serve.

Your energy invigorates us.

Your compassion inspires us.

Your resolve compels us to move forward.

And, so – my fellow New Yorkers -- let’s get to work. NOW.

Thank you very much. God bless you all.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: Need to print speech
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 9:29:00 AM

Just sent it to you guys from my gmail.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 9:23 AM
To: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Walzak, Phil
Cc: Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Need to print speech

Jdc- pls send final asap

From: John Del Cecato
To: Walzak, Phil
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Need to print speech
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 9:33:42 AM

Well - nothing is ever done until it's done - but shit, the events in 90 min - so do what you need to do. Only thing he may mess with is Albany confrontation stuff towards end. Depends on how feisty he's feeling at Game Time

> On Feb 3, 2015, at 9:29 AM, Walzak, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> will this be changed? can we pull excerpts from this to distro to press on embargo?
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 9:29 AM
> To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil
> Cc: Gunaratna, Mahen
> Subject: Re: Need to print speech
>
> attached
>
> On 2/3/15, 9:23 AM, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>
> wrote:
>
>> Jdc- pls send final asap
>

From: Walzak, Phil
To: Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; "John Del Cecato"; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: WE WANT TO INCLUDE THESE 2 LINES IN THE EXCERPTS
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 9:41:22 AM
Importance: High

they are abt Albany: rent regs and min wage....We can still include yes?

We need our state government to honor its responsibility to the people of our city by protecting and strengthening rent regulations. If that doesn't happen, our city risks losing more than a million units of affordable housing. "

"Today we've focused on the number one expense in the lives of most New Yorkers. Reducing that expense is absolutely critical to addressing the Tale of Two Cities. But we'll also fight on the other end of the equation. Because nothing does more to address income equality than actually raising people's incomes...That's why we will fight to raise New York City's minimum wage to more than $13 in 2016...indexing the minimum wage, which will bring us to $15 per hour by 2019."

Phillip Walzak
Press Secretary
Office of New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio
O: 212-788-2958
C: 917-455-8420
pwalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov
twitter: @ptwalzak

From: Ragone, Peter
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Wolfe, Emma; Glen, Alicia; Shorris, Anthony; Adams, Marti
Cc: Blumm, Kate; Norvell, Wiley; Patchett, James; Williams, Dominic; Gunaratna, Mahen; Klein, Monica; Levin, Christina; Parikh, Ishanee
Subject: Re: HERE IS THE LATEST SOOC RLS
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:13:34 AM

Ok

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:10 AM
To: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Wolfe, Emma; Glen, Alicia; Shorris, Anthony; Adams, Marti
Cc: Blumm, Kate; Norvell, Wiley; Patchett, James; Williams, Dominic; Gunaratna, Mahen; Klein, Monica; Levin, Christina; Parikh, Ishanee
Subject: HERE IS THE LATEST SOOC RLS

we want to give this to reporters on embargo at 10:30 am, then blast on record as speech begins reflects 9:15 am draft of speech

STATE OF THE CITY: MAYOR DE BLASIO PUTS AFFORDABLE HOUSING AT CENTER OF 2015 AGENDA TO FIGHT INEQUALITY

NEW YORK—In his second State of the City address, Mayor Bill de Blasio announced affordable housing would be the next front in his administration’s fight to lift up families and confront economic inequality. With housing the most significant cost facing New York City families, the Mayor laid out a sweeping set of programs to build a new generation of affordable housing, protect New Yorkers facing displacement from rising rents and harassment, and put in place the groundwork for denser, economically diverse communities with affordable homes for New Yorkers of all means.

“While the state of our city is strong, we face a profound challenge. If we fail to be a city for everyone, we risk losing what makes New York, New York. And nothing more clearly expresses the inequality gap—the opportunity gap—than the soaring cost of housing,” said Mayor de Blasio in his remarks.

From targeted new programs for populations like veterans and seniors, to specific neighborhoods being studied for growth and rezoning, to new resources protecting tenants from the consequences of gentrification, the State of the City put into practice key elements of the Housing New York plan to build and preserve 200,000 affordable homes in the coming decade.

Highlights of those initiatives include:

Building the Next Generation of Affordable Housing

-

Six Neighborhoods Now Slated for Mandatory Affordable Housing Requirements

In the first six neighborhoods now being studied for more residential capacity—East New York, Long Island City, Jerome Avenue Corridor, Flushing West, and newly announced Stapleton and East Harlem—a Mandatory Inclusionary Housing policy will require all new housing built under rezoning to include affordable units. The first rezoning will enter the formal land use process this spring.

Bring More Affordable Housing and Better Infrastructure to the Southwest Bronx

The City will invest $200 million in affordable housing, new infrastructure and job creation initiatives to the Lower Concourse area of the Southwest Bronx, which will include the construction of a new public open space, roads, local infrastructure upgrades, and remediation to spur development of up to 4,000 units of affordable housing. The design phase of the program will launch in the coming fiscal year.

Seize the Opportunity for Affordable Housing and Stronger Communities at the Sunnyside Yards

The City will work with communities in Queens to develop a new vision for the Sunnyside Yards in-keeping with the area's working- and middle-class DNA. Development of the yards' 200 acres represents a once-in-a-generation opportunity to build thousands of new affordable homes, knit together neighborhoods and meet vital needs facing western Queens for new open space, transportation and schools. The City will engage local stakeholders, the State, MTA and Amtrak to launch a feasibility study this month to determine the costs and infrastructure needs required to redevelop the rail yards.

Protecting New Yorkers from Displacement and Homelessness

-

Free Legal Defense for Tenants in All Rezoned Areas

A new $36 million commitment will provide free legal representation in housing court to all tenants in rezoned neighborhoods facing harassment, building neglect or eviction proceedings. Approximately 90 percent of tenants enter housing court without a lawyer. The new funding will triple the City's investment in these free legal services for tenants. Coupled with City efforts to protect and strengthen rent regulation in Albany, the City will aggressively protect the existing affordable housing in changing neighborhoods.

End Homelessness Among Veterans

Through new programs, new outreach and a new priority for veterans in specific housing programs, the City will end homelessness in 2015 for the approximately 1,000 veterans living in shelters and on New York City streets.

Help Seniors Live Independently

With half of seniors 'housing-burdened,' the City will undertake a major construction and preservation effort for 10,000 units of senior housing, supported by a $400 million capital investment as well as Section 8 vouchers. The first projects, many under a new Senior Affordable Rental Apartments (SARA) program, will begin during the current fiscal year.

Keep New York City Affordable for Artists and Makers

To help low-income artists thrive in New York City, the Department of Cultural Affairs will invest $30 million in 1,500 affordable live/work spaces for artists in the coming decade, working with cultural partners, housing agencies and the philanthropic community. The City will also convert underutilized City-owned assets into 500 affordable workspaces, creating new cultural hubs for communities to share in performances and arts education.

Supporting Growth with Better Infrastructure

-

Launch a Five-Borough Ferry System

To make sure there is new transportation to accommodate growth, the City will launch a new Citywide Ferry Service that will knit together existing East River routes with new landings and services to Astoria, the Rockaways, South Brooklyn, Soundview and the Lower East Side. Pegged to the cost of a Metrocard, service will launch in 2017 and will be supported by City operating support and a $55 million capital commitment. Further expansion to Stapleton and Coney Island will constitute a second phase of expansion, pending additional funding.

Implement 13 New Bus Rapid Transit Routes

To connect growing neighborhoods and improve commutes for hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers, the City will develop and implement 13 new Bus Rapid Transit routes through 2017. Improved service, off-board fare collection, dedicated bus lanes and reduced travel times will speed commutes on Woodhaven Boulevard, Utica Avenue, Flushing-to-Jamaica, and 86th Street during the next immediate wave of expansion. The City will partner with the MTA, New York State, and US Department of Transportation to secure multi-level support for the Select Bus Service program, starting with a $295 million commitment from the City.

In his remarks, Mayor de Blasio called New Yorkers to come together to build and preserve the next generation of affordable housing as part of a broader agenda to confront income inequality. Below are excerpts of his address, as prepared for delivery:

“If we do not act—and act boldly—New York risks taking on the qualities of a gated community. A place defined by exclusivity, rather than opportunity. And we cannot let that happen.”

“This Administration is taking a fundamentally different approach—one that not only recognizes the need for more affordable housing, but demands it. How will we do this? First, we’re writing new rules, ones that mandate affordable housing as a condition of development in areas rezoned for residential use. Second, we’ll do everything in our power to keep those who already have affordable housing in their homes. And third—since we only have so much land—we’ll create more affordable housing by literally building up: adding density to appropriate parts of our city.”

“For the first time in New York City history, we are creating a Mandatory Inclusionary Zoning requirement that will apply to all major residential re-zonings. In every major rezoning development, we will require developers to include affordable housing--not as an option--as a precondition.”

“We need stronger rent regulations that reflect today's New York. To preserve our city as a place for everyone, we need to do more than ever to protect the one million rent-regulated apartments in New York. For so many, it's the only way they make ends meet and the only path to the middle class.”

“For years, the conventional wisdom has been that certain neighborhoods are doomed to isolation because of their geography. We are going to change that. Today, we announce that we’re launching a new citywide ferry service to be open for business in 2017. New ferry rides will be priced the same as a MetroCard fare, so ferries will be as affordable to everyday New Yorkers as our subways and buses, so residents of the Rockaways and Red Hook and Soundview will now be closer to the opportunities they need.”

“Today we’ve focused on the number one expense in the lives of most New Yorkers. Reducing that expense is absolutely critical to addressing the Tale of Two Cities. But we’ll also fight on the other end of the equation. Because nothing does more to address income equality than actually raising people’s incomes...That’s why we will fight to raise New York City’s minimum wage to more than $13 in 2016, while indexing the minimum wage, which will bring us to $15 per hour by 2019.”

“Creating more affordable housing; raising wages and benefits; strengthening our neighborhoods by better connecting them to jobs and opportunity—that is how we’ll take on the Tale of Two Cities.”

###

From: Walzak, Phil
To: Glen, Alicia; Shorris, Anthony; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Wolfe, Emma; Adams, Marti
Cc: Blumm, Kate; Norvell, Wiley; Patchett, James; Williams, Dominic; Gunaratna, Mahen; Klein, Monica; Levin, Christina; Parikh, Ishanee
Subject: RE: HERE IS THE LATEST SOOC RLS
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:15:18 AM

can do thanks

From: Glen, Alicia
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:15 AM
To: Shorris, Anthony; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma; Adams, Marti
Cc: Blumm, Kate; Norvell, Wiley; Patchett, James; Williams, Dominic; Gunaratna, Mahen; Klein, Monica; Levin, Christina; Parikh, Ishanee
Subject: Re: HERE IS THE LATEST SOOC RLS

I would take the State out of it since they have technically no jurisdiction. It is Amtrak, MTA, us and private owners.

From: Shorris, Anthony
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:13 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Wolfe, Emma; Glen, Alicia; Adams, Marti
Cc: Blumm, Kate; Norvell, Wiley; Patchett, James; Williams, Dominic; Gunaratna, Mahen; Klein, Monica; Levin, Christina; Parikh, Ishanee
Subject: RE: HERE IS THE LATEST SOOC RLS

This sentence does not need to mention the State – it's the MTA that matters as far as I know – Alicia? James?

"The City will engage local stakeholders, the State, MTA and Amtrak to launch a feasibility study this month to determine the costs and infrastructure needs required to redevelop the rail yards."

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:11 AM
To: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'John Del Cecato'; Wolfe, Emma; Glen, Alicia; Shorris, Anthony; Adams, Marti
Cc: Blumm, Kate; Norvell, Wiley; Patchett, James; Williams, Dominic; Gunaratna, Mahen; Klein, Monica; Levin, Christina; Parikh, Ishanee
Subject: HERE IS THE LATEST SOOC RLS
Importance: High

we want to give this to reporters on embargo at 10:30 am, then blast on record as speech begins reflects 9:15 am draft of speech

STATE OF THE CITY: MAYOR DE BLASIO PUTS AFFORDABLE HOUSING AT CENTER OF 2015 AGENDA TO FIGHT INEQUALITY

NEW YORK—In his second State of the City address, Mayor Bill de Blasio announced affordable housing would be the next front in his administration’s fight to lift up families and confront economic inequality. With housing the most significant cost facing New York City families, the Mayor laid out a sweeping set of programs to build a new generation of affordable housing, protect New Yorkers facing displacement from rising rents and harassment, and put in place the groundwork for denser, economically diverse communities with affordable homes for New Yorkers of all means.

“While the state of our city is strong, we face a profound challenge. If we fail to be a city for everyone, we risk losing what makes New York, New York. And nothing more clearly expresses the inequality gap—the opportunity gap—than the soaring cost of housing,” said Mayor de Blasio in his remarks.

From targeted new programs for populations like veterans and seniors, to specific neighborhoods being studied for growth and rezoning, to new resources protecting tenants from the consequences of gentrification, the State of the City put into practice key elements of the Housing New York plan to build and preserve 200,000 affordable homes in the coming decade.

Highlights of those initiatives include:

Building the Next Generation of Affordable Housing

-

Six Neighborhoods Now Slated for Mandatory Affordable Housing Requirements

In the first six neighborhoods now being studied for more residential capacity—East New York, Long Island City, Jerome Avenue Corridor, Flushing West, and newly announced Stapleton and East Harlem—a Mandatory Inclusionary Housing policy will require all new housing built under rezoning to include affordable units. The first rezoning will enter the formal land use process this spring.

Bring More Affordable Housing and Better Infrastructure to the Southwest Bronx

The City will invest $200 million in affordable housing, new infrastructure and job creation initiatives to the Lower Concourse area of the Southwest Bronx, which will include the construction of a new public open space, roads, local infrastructure upgrades, and remediation to spur development of up to 4,000 units of affordable housing. The design phase of the program will launch in the coming fiscal year.

Seize the Opportunity for Affordable Housing and Stronger Communities at the Sunnyside Yards

The City will work with communities in Queens to develop a new vision for the Sunnyside Yards in-keeping with the area's working- and middle-class DNA. Development of the yards' 200 acres represents a once-in-a-generation opportunity to build thousands of new affordable homes, knit together neighborhoods and meet vital needs facing western Queens for new open space, transportation and schools. The City will engage local stakeholders, the State, MTA and Amtrak to launch a feasibility study this month to determine the costs and infrastructure needs required to redevelop the rail yards.

Protecting New Yorkers from Displacement and Homelessness

-

Free Legal Defense for Tenants in All Rezoned Areas

A new $36 million commitment will provide free legal representation in housing court to all tenants in rezoned neighborhoods facing harassment, building neglect or eviction proceedings. Approximately 90 percent of tenants enter housing court without a lawyer. The new funding will triple the City's investment in these free legal services for tenants. Coupled with City efforts to protect and strengthen rent regulation in Albany, the City will aggressively protect the existing affordable housing in changing neighborhoods.

End Homelessness Among Veterans

Through new programs, new outreach and a new priority for veterans in specific housing programs, the City will end homelessness in 2015 for the approximately 1,000 veterans living in shelters and on New York City streets.

Help Seniors Live Independently

With half of seniors 'housing-burdened,' the City will undertake a major construction and preservation effort for 10,000 units of senior housing, supported by a $400 million capital investment as well as Section 8 vouchers. The first projects, many under a new Senior Affordable Rental Apartments (SARA) program, will begin during the current fiscal year.

Keep New York City Affordable for Artists and Makers

To help low-income artists thrive in New York City, the Department of Cultural Affairs will invest $30 million in 1,500 affordable live/work spaces for artists in the coming decade, working with cultural partners, housing agencies and the philanthropic community. The City will also convert underutilized City-owned assets into 500 affordable workspaces, creating new cultural hubs for communities to share in performances and arts education.

Supporting Growth with Better Infrastructure

-

Launch a Five-Borough Ferry System

To make sure there is new transportation to accommodate growth, the City will launch a new Citywide Ferry Service that will knit together existing East River routes with new landings and services to Astoria, the Rockaways, South Brooklyn, Soundview and the Lower East Side. Pegged to the cost of a Metrocard, service will launch in 2017 and will be supported by City operating support and a $55 million capital commitment. Further expansion to Stapleton and Coney Island will constitute a second phase of expansion, pending additional funding.

Implement 13 New Bus Rapid Transit Routes

To connect growing neighborhoods and improve commutes for hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers, the City will develop and implement 13 new Bus Rapid Transit routes through 2017. Improved service, off-board fare collection, dedicated bus lanes and reduced travel times will speed commutes on Woodhaven Boulevard, Utica Avenue, Flushing-to-Jamaica, and 86th Street during the next immediate wave of expansion. The City will partner with the MTA, New York State, and US Department of Transportation to secure multi-level support for the Select Bus Service program, starting with a $295 million commitment from the City.

In his remarks, Mayor de Blasio called New Yorkers to come together to build and preserve the next generation of affordable housing as part of a broader agenda to confront income inequality. Below are excerpts of his address, as prepared for delivery:

“If we do not act—and act boldly—New York risks taking on the qualities of a gated community. A place defined by exclusivity, rather than opportunity. And we cannot let that happen.”

“This Administration is taking a fundamentally different approach—one that not only recognizes the need for more affordable housing, but demands it. How will we do this? First, we’re writing new rules, ones that mandate affordable housing as a condition of development in areas rezoned for residential use. Second, we’ll do everything in our power to keep those who already have affordable housing in their homes. And third—since we only have so much land—we’ll create more affordable housing by literally building up: adding density to appropriate parts of our city.”

“For the first time in New York City history, we are creating a Mandatory Inclusionary Zoning requirement that will apply to all major residential re-zonings. In every major rezoning development, we will require developers to include affordable housing--not as an option--as a precondition.”

“We need stronger rent regulations that reflect today's New York. To preserve our city as a place for everyone, we need to do more than ever to protect the one million rent-regulated apartments in New York. For so many, it's the only way they make ends meet and the only path to the middle class.”

“For years, the conventional wisdom has been that certain neighborhoods are doomed to isolation because of their geography. We are going to change that. Today, we announce that we’re launching a new citywide ferry service to be open for business in 2017. New ferry rides will be priced the same as a MetroCard fare, so ferries will be as affordable to everyday New Yorkers as our subways and buses, so residents of the Rockaways and Red Hook and Soundview will now be closer to the opportunities they need.”

“Today we’ve focused on the number one expense in the lives of most New Yorkers. Reducing that expense is absolutely critical to addressing the Tale of Two Cities. But we’ll also fight on the other end of the equation. Because nothing does more to address income equality than actually raising people’s incomes...That’s why we will fight to raise New York City’s minimum wage to more than $13 in 2016, while indexing the minimum wage, which will bring us to $15 per hour by 2019.”

“Creating more affordable housing; raising wages and benefits; strengthening our neighborhoods by better connecting them to jobs and opportunity—that is how we’ll take on the Tale of Two Cities.”

###

From: Emma Wolfe
To: Glen, Alicia
Cc: BdB; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com; Patchett, James
Subject: Re: As of 8:35am
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:17:44 AM

all's well that ends well!

On Tue, Feb 3, 2015 at 10:13 AM, Glen, Alicia <AGlen@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I am fine bc that is exactly what we told him. High density near LIC and lower density near Sunnyside Gardens.

He is being deeply disingenuous. Shocker!

From: Bill de Blasio [mailto: [REDACTED]]
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:10 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Emma Wolfe < [REDACTED] > Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>; Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James
Subject: Re: As of 8:35am

On with van bramer now. He has a fair and helpful suggestion. Add language on Sunnyside like (my words): "Now 200 acres is a lot of land. And some parts of this area can easily handle larger buildings and others can't as well. So we'll work closely with elected officials and community leaders to determine what makes sense."

He also urges that we add to our litany of historic examples of livable, affordable developments the Big 6 towers in Woodside (it's actually 7 towers of 18 stories each, built by Local 6). Says this will communicate the idea of Queens-friendly housing for working and middle class people, and it is a development that worked.

Jimmy says these amendments will help him a lot, and he can be reasonably positive about it. I'm fine with those amendments. Add them NOW in unless there is a huge objection

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Tue, 3 Feb 2015 13:37:11 +0000
To: Bill de Blasio < [REDACTED] >
Cc: Emma Wolfe < [REDACTED] > Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: As of 8:35am

Changed balloon juice to an (acceptable) Italian term - and I cleared with Monica.

Downtown Staten Island is definitely a "thing." Confirming, though.

Added a hat-tip to Council on legal services funding, per Emma.

====

STATE OF THE CITY DRAFT
2/3/15 – 835 AM

Thank you, Sheryl Morse, for that warm introduction.

Thank you to Mitchel Wallerstein for hosting us.

Thank you to Officer Leggio, and to Frederick Trapp of the DSNY.

And thank you Reverend Gabriel Salguero.

It's a pleasure to be here with our city officials: First Deputy Mayor Shorris, Deputy Mayors Glen, Barrios-Paoli, and Buery, and commissioners, community members and leaders, and our elected officials, including Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito.

And of course thank you to the First Lady.

I want to begin by telling you a distinctly New York story.

More than a hundred years ago, a young woman named Anna Briganti arrived in our city after emigrating from Grassano, a small town in southern Italy rich in natural beauty, but scarce in opportunities for its people.

Anna traded picturesque hillsides, and small town familiarity... for an apartment at 205 East 17th Street in Manhattan, just a short walk from here...a place lacking the tranquil comforts of her childhood...a neighborhood where few spoke her native language.

But Anna's NEW home offered her something that her OLD one did not: profound possibilities to create a better life... for herself...AND for her children.

So, in the year 1910 -- a decade before our country granted women the right to vote -- Anna opened an embroidery company: The Misses Briganti... its very name a proud symbol of single women -- the "Miss-ES" referring to her sister, and her mother, and herself -- three women who started the business, together.

Anna Briganti was my grandmother. I am here because of her.

My grandmother's story -- like most New York success stories -- was not a fairy tale. She did not stumble upon success through luck or charm; she forged it with hard work and raw grit.

And she lived in a place that rewarded those things in unique and powerful ways.

For generations, New York has been a city that unleashed human potential.

A place offering opportunity for EVERYONE, no matter how your life's story began; opportunity for innovators and visionaries to write new chapters in our history; and for parents and grandparents to write brighter ones for the next generation.

And here's the hard truth: all of that is at risk today.

It's at risk because so many who LIVE in New York struggle to AFFORD to be here.

And, since only half of New Yorkers speak only English at home, let me say that a different way:

Por generaciones [he-ne-rah-see-oh-nes], Nueva York ha sido una ciudad que le da rienda [ree-en-dah] suelta [soo-el-tah] al potencial humano.

Pero aquí está la dura verdad: todo eso está hoy en riesgo [ree-es-goh].

Está en riesgo [ree-es-goh] porque a muchas personas que viven aquí les cuesta [qwes-tah] demasiado PÓDER quedarse [kay-dar-say] aquí. Nosotros queremos cambiár eso.

You can see it all over New York -- in the eyes of the single mother in Coney Island, working two jobs and barely scraping together enough for a modest apartment to share with her kids.

You can see it in the worn hands of the fast food worker in Washington Heights, consumed with worry as the calendar approaches the first of the month...the day the rent is due.

You can see it in the furrowed brow of the senior in Rosebank on Staten Island, as she sweeps her porch to chase away thoughts of whether she's saved enough to stay in her small house in the only neighborhood she's ever called home.

If we do not act -- and act BOLDLY -- New York risks taking on the qualities of a gated community... A place defined by exclusivity, rather than opportunity. And we cannot let that happen.

Over the past two years, I've spoken about the need to take dead aim at the Tale of Two Cities, and about our vision for creating One New York, rising together...a city where EVERYONE has a shot at the middle class.

And while we have so much more work to do, 2014 was a year of great progress in our effort to address inequality and lift up our families.

Some examples:

We achieved full-day Pre-K for more than 50,000 of our kids.

We nearly doubled enrollment in after-school programs for middle school kids in all five boroughs.

By executive order, we expanded living wage coverage to 18,000 workers.

With the help of the City Council – and the strong leadership of my partner in government, Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito – we secured paid sick leave for 500,000 more New Yorkers.

We ended the overuse of stop-and-frisk, reducing stops by over 75%. And since we instituted our new marijuana policy, arrests are almost down almost 65%.

At the same time, thanks to our courageous men and women in uniform, we've not only kept New York City safe – we've made it even safer.

Our NYPD officers helped bring the city's crime rate to an ALL-TIME low – with the smallest number of murders, robberies, and burglaries on record.

The FDNY responded to a record 1.6 MILLION emergency calls...always at the ready when New Yorkers needed help.

The Correction Department made sweeping reforms, including an end to punitive segregation for adolescents in city jails.

Also in 2014, we fought to keep our streets safe and clean for pedestrians, cyclists, and drivers alike.

We established Vision Zero -- bringing pedestrian deaths down to a level not seen since 1910.

We handled one of the snowiest winters our city has ever seen, with 11 winter storms in 2014.

And after our sanitation workers did an extraordinary job clearing our streets...our Department of Transportation workers filled nearly a half-MILLION potholes.

In 2014, we took on climate change and the damage inflicted by the extreme weather linked to it.

We built on the strong environmental record of the Bloomberg Administration by committing to “80 by 50” – a dramatic, game-changing 80 percent reduction in greenhouse gases in our city by the year 2050. And we will be retrofitting not just some, but EVERY public building with significant energy usage by 2025.

We helped repair the devastation wrought by Superstorm Sandy – beating even our ambitious goals – with construction starting on more than 1,000 homes; and badly needed reimbursements provided to more than 2,000 homeowners.

And today, I want to make perfectly clear that EVERY reimbursement check will be in the hands of those who need them by the end of THIS year. From Staten Island to Canarsie to the Rockaways, families hit by the storm have been through so much. This Administration will FINISH the job of helping them rebuild.

In 2014, we balanced our budget in a way that was honest, responsible, and in keeping with our progressive values.

We came to contract agreements with over 71% of the city’s workforce, up from ZERO the year before – signing deals that are fair to both our city workers AND to our taxpayers.

We awarded $690 million in contracts to minority and women-owned businesses, a 57% increase from the year before.

And we connected more New Yorkers to jobs, health care, and our social safety net.

We created the Tech Talent Pipeline to link New Yorkers from every borough and background to a booming tech industry that now employs nearly 300,000 people, and is growing every day in our city.

We invested capital in new economic hubs to create 3,000 new jobs in the Brooklyn Navy Yard and 1,000 new jobs at the Brooklyn Army Terminal that will be there for years to come.

We announced our plan to redesign our workforce development system to arm up to 30,000 New Yorkers a year with the skills for 21st century jobs.

We ended the fear of communities being left without critical care services when their hospitals closed without warning – and began the process of opening half a dozen new community health clinics.

We ended a ticket blitz on our small businesses, and are on track to save them $5 million in petty fines -- money they can put towards growing and hiring.

With the help of the City Council, we created IDNYC– for both citizens AND undocumented New Yorkers. Let’s be clear: Relegating ANY New Yorker to life in the shadows is not who we are as a city. And I’m happy to report that -- less than a month after this program’s inception -- more than 180,000 New Yorkers have ALREADY made an appointment to get their ID.

And we began a major new effort – now led by our inspiring First Lady -- to address the gaps in mental health coverage in New York City. This issue is personal to Chirlane and me, and to so many families who’ve watched loved ones fall through the cracks of an inadequate system. I can’t think of a smarter, stronger, more compassionate person to lead our effort to change that than our First Lady. Let’s thank her!

We opened new doors of opportunity for our young people.

We’ve begun to create 128 community schools – schools that serve the whole child...offering everything from vision tests and mental health screenings...to family counseling and tutoring.

We created 62 PROSE schools – a fresh, new model where teachers and principals work together to set aside D-O-E and union rules that hinder innovation...so we can better serve our kids.

And we invested in Renewal Schools...to FIX 94 struggling schools...because EVERY child in every neighborhood deserves a quality education.

All of these things will make our neighborhoods stronger – and make life in our city better for so many.

But you can't tap into the opportunities that New York has to offer if you can't afford to actually LIVE here.

So I will say this:

While the state of our city is strong, we face a profound challenge. If we fail to be a city for EVERYONE, we risk losing what makes New York...NEW YORK.

And nothing more clearly expresses the inequality gap...the OPPORTUNITY gap...than the soaring cost of housing.

The math is pretty straightforward.

In 2014, 56 percent of rental households in New York were spending more than 30 percent of their income on housing – up 10 points in a little more than a decade.

Now spending more than 30 percent of your income on housing means you're officially "rent-burdened." That's an apt description, since the cost of living is becoming a heavier and heavier burden - not just on wallets, but on hopes and aspirations, as well.

So how did we end up here?

Part of the problem is that the city has for decades let developers write their own rules when it came to building housing. SOMETIMES projects included affordable housing...but far too often, they did NOT.

As the city expanded, our growth was guided primarily by the developers' bottom lines.

That meant a bias towards luxury housing – units that fetched top dollar, but were entirely out of reach for most New Yorkers...multi-million dollar homes that drove up rents in the neighborhoods they occupied – all without a corresponding menu of AFFORDABLE new options.

This Administration is taking a fundamentally different approach – one that not only RECOGNIZES the need for more affordable housing...but DEMANDS it.

How will we do this?

First, we're writing new rules... ones that MANDATE affordable housing as a condition of development in areas re-zoned for residential use.

Second, we'll do everything in our power to KEEP those who already have affordable housing IN THEIR HOMES.

And third -- since we only have so much land -- we'll create more affordable housing by literally building UP... adding density to appropriate parts of our city.

Let me explain what that means.

We are NOT embarking on a mission to build towering skyscrapers where they don't belong. We have a duty to protect and preserve the culture and character of our neighborhoods, and we WILL DO SO.

And as we invest in more affordable housing, we will also work with communities to preserve the fabric of neighborhoods and invest in things that great neighborhoods need -- from parks and schools...to shops and restaurants.

Now, there are some places in our city that have not yet been developed or zoned for housing, but could be. And by taking steps like adding residential buildings to former manufacturing sites -- or adding some six to eight story buildings in appropriate places — we could make a fundamental difference in neighborhoods' affordability. That means families staying and thriving in the neighborhoods they love, instead of being priced out.

Will this be difficult? Of course. But let me remind you of a difficult challenge we overcame just LAST year.

Of all the efforts we made in 2014 to address income inequality, the most prominent was our successful bid to secure universal, full-day Pre-K – something bold and meaningful...and something that so many pundits said we couldn't achieve.

The naysayers said we would never find the funding... or the space... to give all our kids a chance.

Well, thanks to the tremendous energy of parents, activists, community leaders, elected officials and good everyday people throughout the city, we proved the cynics WRONG.

And when it comes to affordable housing, we will prove them wrong again.

In fact, we're ALREADY doing so...ALREADY making real progress towards a more affordable New York.

Here's how:

First, our Rent Guidelines Board passed the smallest rent increase EVER last year – helping protect tenants from being squeezed by their landlords.

Second, we are following through on a plan to build and preserve affordable housing on an unprecedented scale. We've committed to the construction of 80,000 new units of affordable housing by 2024.

Let me put that in perspective: it means building new affordable units at TWICE the average annual rate of the past 25 years.

When you add that to the 120,000 units that our plan preserves, it means affordable housing for a half MILLION New Yorkers...more than the entire population of the city of Miami. Take THAT, Miami!

This is what our housing plan does. It's real. Those here...can pick up a copy. And anyone can read it online at NYC.gov.

And we're ALREADY putting this plan into action. Our goal for 2014 was to create and preserve 16,000 units. We beat that goal -- achieving 17,300 affordable units last year alone.

Third, because it's been projected that New York City will be home to nine MILLION people by 2040, we're pursuing EVERY kind of housing.

Increasing the overall supply of housing is critical to serving New Yorkers at all income levels -- and to assuring we can accommodate the workforce who will continue to grow our economy.

So we plan for the construction of 160,000 market rate units as well.

All told, our plan will create hundreds of thousands of construction jobs -- and over 20,000 permanent jobs.

Fourth, we're cutting red tape to speed up our progress.

To expedite the right kind of development, we must expedite the development process.

What we need, and what we will have, is fundamental reform at the Department of Buildings. This agency must better serve its customers -- including thousands of small businesses that drive our economy. We'll speed up inspections and cut bureaucracy, so that more jobs can be created and more housing can be built.

Fifth -- for the first time in New York City history, we are creating a Mandatory Inclusionary Zoning requirement that will apply to ALL major residential re-zonings.

This is a big one. Listen to this.

In EVERY major rezoning development, we will REQUIRE developers to include affordable housing. Not as an option. As a precondition.

Want to see this approach in action? Look at Astoria Cove in Queens. As a result of this Administration's framework -- and the City Council's tough negotiations -- 465 units of affordable housing will be created this site alone.

That's 465 families who no longer have to choose between living in the city they call home, or finding another city they CAN afford. It means that hundreds of kids will live and learn and grow in OUR city.

Astoria Cove is a site in which previous City re-zoning policy wouldn't have required ANY units of affordable housing. ZERO. That was, in fact, the original plan.

So if you want to see the difference that our approach is already making -- it's the difference between 465...and zero...on one site alone.

And there are many MORE re-zonings like this coming soon to neighborhoods across the five boroughs -- from East New York to Long Island City; from Flushing West to East Harlem; from downtown Staten Island to the Jerome Avenue Corridor in the Bronx.

Each of these efforts will make our neighborhoods stronger and more affordable.

And here's one that will be a game-changer when it comes to keeping our city affordable for thousands of New York families: Sunnyside Yards.

Right now, there are 200 acres of land in the heart of Queens, land that exists in the form of a rail yard – and ONLY a rail yard. But the fact is, those tracks could easily exist underground – allowing us to build housing – much of it affordable -- above them.

At Sunnyside Yards, we'll work with the community and local elected officials to create a plan that incorporates what diverse and dynamic neighborhoods need -- access to transportation, parks, schools, retail stores, and job opportunities.

Our approach is not entirely novel. Developments that prioritize affordability and livability HAVE been built before -- from Starrett City to Co-Op City to Stuy Town.

And these developments created affordability on a grand scale.

Stuy Town, when it opened in 1947 provided our city with 11,250 affordable apartments... a community where trees and parks, and shops dotted a landscape from which residents could actually see the sky.

We're bringing that same kind of scale -- and a real sense of urgency -- to Sunnyside Yards...and setting the same exact goal of 11,250 affordable units, as part of a neighborhood that anyone would be proud to call home.

And in contrast to the recent history of Stuy Town, we're going to make sure that affordable housing at Sunnyside Yards STAYS that way.

To paraphrase one of my former employers, it takes a village to build a neighborhood. So we look forward to partnering with Amtrak and the MTA in this extraordinary effort at Sunnyside Yards.

Another transformative opportunity lies in the Lower Concourse neighborhood on the waterfront in the South Bronx, a section of our city that was for so long synonymous with urban decay.

But the South Bronx is coming back strong, and waterfront development will be a big step forward.

When we look at this project, we don't think about what USED to define the Bronx; we think about all that WILL define the Bronx in the future.

With a $200 million capital investment, we can stimulate the development of 4,000 new units of housing – much of it affordable -- and provide the parks, schools, and commercial development that support a growing, thriving population.

We look forward to partnering with Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito and our colleagues in government to make an investment that will bring hope and opportunity to a place with enormous potential.

And speaking of potential, let's talk about the Rockaways.

Battered by years of economic distress even before Sandy's gale force winds struck, there's no place in our city that has persevered through more.

Our plan will jumpstart the process of acquiring underutilized properties in the Rockaways – areas blighted or vacant for decades – as we look to create new, affordable housing for thousands there.

We must also remember that transportation is central to the mission of providing affordable housing and services -- connecting neighborhoods in the five boroughs to New York's largest job centers.

For years, the conventional wisdom has been that certain neighborhoods are doomed to isolation because of their geography.

Today, if you live in one of those neighborhoods – the Rockaways or Red Hook or Soundview, among others -- a job in Manhattan can easily mean an hour or more of commuting, even when the skyline is visible from your home. You can actually SEE opportunity, but practically speaking, it's very far away.

We are going to change that.

Today, we announce that we're launching a new citywide ferry service to be open for business in 2017.

New ferry rides will be priced the same as a MetroCard fare, so ferries will be as affordable to everyday New Yorkers as our subways and buses. so residents of the Rockaways and Red Hook and Soundview will now be closer to the opportunities they need.

And beyond connecting residents to jobs in Manhattan, our new citywide ferry system will spur the development of new commercial corridors throughout the outer boroughs.

We will also expand Bus Rapid Transit – or B-R-T – serving 400,000 New Yorkers along key thoroughfares like Utica Avenue in Brooklyn, and Woodhaven Boulevard in Queens... completing a network of 20 routes over the next four years. B-R-T will cut transit time on existing routes by 15-25%. That means New Yorkers spending less time in transit and more time living their lives.

That’s the KIND of housing that we’ll build.

Let’s talk about some of the PEOPLE we’re fighting to help.

First, our veterans. We commit to ENDING chronic veterans homelessness by the end of this year. Those who fight to protect our freedom abroad should NEVER be left without a home.

Second, our seniors. We’re providing 10,000 units of affordable housing for – New Yorkers who have worked hard all of their lives, and deserve to retire in dignity. Women and men who live on fixed incomes have little recourse when housing costs go up. They need our help, and they will get it.

Third, artists. We know that New York is the city it is today in part because of the contributions from generations of artistic visionaries who at one point struggled to make ends meet.

So we’ll provide 1500 units of affordable live/work housing for the artists and musicians who make New York culture so vibrant.... as well as 500 dedicated affordable workspaces for the cultural community.

These folks bring joy to everyday New Yorkers; and inspire young people to pursue their natural talents in professions that often don’t promise a big paycheck. They also help make our city a mecca for tourists, and are one of the reasons why a record number of people -- 56.4 MILLION -- visited New York last year.

But whether or not you're a veteran, a senior, or an artist, you've likely felt the pinch of skyrocketing housing costs in our city.

That's due in part to a phenomenon that everybody sees, everybody feels – but nobody wants to really talk about: gentrification.

Ask 8.4 million New Yorkers what they think about gentrification, and you'll get 8.4 million opinions.

Clearly, there's good and there's bad.

First, the good.

After two decades of steadily declining crime, people are excited to come to New York...about investing in our city.

With that influx of people and resources comes jobs and amenities...more activity...safer streets.

The PROBLEM comes when we reach the tipping point...when New Yorkers get PRICED OUT of their own neighborhoods.

In the past, we've been told: sorry – there's nothing you can do about that. You can either have a safe and clean neighborhood – OR you can have one you can afford. Not both.

Well, as my grandmother might say, that's una cavolata!"

We CAN act, and we MUST.

You see, New York City's last twenty years has had its share of bad actors.

First, there are the slumlords – the folks who refuse to make repairs...letting housing decay...making apartments uninhabitable.

Then, there are predatory landlords – the people who take advantage of a red-hot real estate market – employing ugly tactics to push out moderate-income tenants to make room for wealthier ones.

These predatory landlords harass tenants by, say, intermittently turning off the heat or hot water, or by refusing to address simple matters of safety or sanitation.

That doesn't just violate the law; it violates our values as New Yorkers.

And we have tools to address these things.

When I was Public Advocate, we published the Worst Landlords Watchlist – targeting those who refused to make simple repairs to the units they controlled.

It helped spur change, with hundreds of buildings coming off the list after making needed improvements...and thousands of tenants getting the repairs they needed. I applaud Public Advocate Tish James for energetically continuing this effort.

And there's MORE we can do.

Albany has responsibility for enforcing our rent laws, but too often that doesn't happen. We need Albany to step up and enforce the laws aggressively. NOW.

Every day in this city, people are losing their homes unfairly. Albany cannot wait -- we need help right now.

And we need stronger rent regulations that reflect today's New York.

To preserve our city as a place for everyone, we need to do more than ever to protect the one million rent-regulated apartments in New York. For so many, it's the only way they make ends meet...and the only path to the middle class.

If Albany truly believes in opportunity for all, they will strengthen our rent laws in 2015.

If they cannot do that, then we call on the State to provide the funding to help tenants...help THEMSELVES – by providing free legal services to victims of landlord neglect or harassment.

And even while we're calling on Albany to step up, the City will do ITS part.

So today, I'm announcing that in ANY of the areas in which the city rezones, if we find evidence that tenants are being harassed, we will supply those tenants with legal representation, at no cost, to take their case to Housing Court...to seek justice before a judge.

Protecting our tenants – through whatever means necessary – isn't just the moral thing to do. It's a critical step in making New York City a more affordable place for EVERYONE. And we should thank the City Council for their historic support of legal services for tenants.

All of the steps on housing that I've spoken about today – from responsibly building UP; to placing new demands on developers; to providing affordable housing to New Yorkers who need it most; to targeting predatory landlords – it's all part of our new rules for helping people find a home they can afford.

Today we've focused on the NUMBER ONE expense in the lives of most New Yorkers. Reducing the expense of housing is absolutely critical to addressing the Tale of Two Cities. But we'll also fight on the other end of the equation.

Because nothing does more to address income equality than actually raising people's incomes.

There's one critical step that could do so much good. RAISING THE MINIMUM WAGE.

Now Albany's shown some promising signs on this subject – but for it to be more than just talk -- and to have a real impact on the lives of those living in New York City – we need more.

The current minimum wage proposal simply doesn't do enough to help New York City. That's why WE will fight to raise New York City's minimum wage to more than $13 per hour in 2016... while indexing the minimum wage, which would bring us to a projected $15 per hour by 2019.

Why is indexing so important? Because it means that hardworking New Yorkers won't have to wait on new action from Albany just to keep pace with inflation.

It's difficult to overstate the positive impact this would have on working New Yorkers. Even for those that earn more than minimum right now, this action would create an upward pull on wages... an upward pull on opportunity.... and an upward pull on our economy.

Indeed, Henry Ford – the noted leftwing “socialist” that he was – wanted the workers on his assembly line to be able to afford to PURCHASE the cars they worked to BUILD. So he gave them a living wage.

I assure you, he didn't do it to be charitable; he did it because he knew it was good for business. I'd say it worked out pretty well for old Henry.

Creating more affordable housing; raising wages and benefits; strengthening our neighborhoods by better connecting them to jobs and opportunity – THAT is how we'll take on the Tale of Two Cities.

It won't be easy. And we know there will be critics who say it just can't be done... that our destiny is to be a city for The Privileged Few...not a city for all.

But New York is no stranger to facing big challenges -- and the many doubting Thomases -- and knows how to overcome them. In fact, we revel in proving them wrong.

Thirty years ago, in his 1985 State of the City Address, Mayor Ed Koch announced what was an UNPRECEDENTED plan for affordable housing.

He understood the transformative power of city government to revitalize whole communities. His administration stated the clearly: QUOTE “we’re creating more than just apartments – we’re re-creating neighborhoods.” END QUOTE

There were those who said it couldn’t be done. Historian Jonathan Soffer wrote of Koch’s plan: QUOTE “It was an extremely risky move. Some experts said at first that Koch's goal was 'inspirational rather than realistic.’” END QUOTE

Well, let me just say, I can relate. I’ve heard very similar criticisms.

But we know now that Koch’s plan WAS realistic... in fact, it worked. And it had a transcendent impact on our city.

A city that was struggling and shrinking when Koch took office...turned around.

And so today, WE face the challenge of a city in which more and more people want to live. It’s a nice problem to have in one way, but it’s a major challenge nonetheless.

We will not lose sight of WHY our city is a beacon for so many. It’s not the cleanest place, nor the most tranquil. We don’t have the best weather or many alluring natural landmarks. But we have something special, something unique: an idea at our core – a PROMISE – that ours is a city...for EVERYONE.

We are charged in our time with the sacred duty of keeping that promise... and we will not sit idle in the face of crisis.

John F. Kennedy put it well. He said: "There are risks and costs to a program of action. But they are far less than the long-range risks and costs of comfortable INACTION."

Like the people this great city, our Administration is about action.

And we'll continue to lead a City government that reflects all that is great about the New Yorkers we are so honored to serve.

Your energy invigorates us.

Your compassion inspires us.

Your resolve compels us to move forward.

And, so – my fellow New Yorkers -- let's get to work. NOW.

Thank you very much. God bless you all.

From: John Del Cecato
To: Walzak, Phil
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Need to print speech
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:37:36 AM

Comin

> On Feb 3, 2015, at 10:33 AM, Walzak, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> are we getting another version of this? or is this it?
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 9:29 AM
> To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil
> Cc: Gunaratna, Mahen
> Subject: Re: Need to print speech
>
> attached
>
> On 2/3/15, 9:23 AM, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>
> wrote:
>
>> Jdc- pls send final asap
>

From: Carey, Michael
To: Leopold, Elana; @EO; Advance; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; John Del Cecato; "Jon Fromowitz"; Hagelgans, Andrea; Canfield, Elyn
Subject: RE: SOTC SOP
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:45:19 AM

+ Elyn

Michael P. Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

From: Leopold, Elana
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:43 AM
To: @EO; Advance; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; John Del Cecato; 'Jon Fromowitz'; Hagelgans, Andrea Subject: SOTC SOP

Still at Gracie

Sent from my iPhone

From: John Del Cecato
To: Leopold, Elana
Cc: @EQ; Advance; Walzak, Phil; Ragone, Peter; Jon Fromowitz; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: SOTC SOP
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:46:13 AM

Phew. Announcer just told people to take seats

> On Feb 3, 2015, at 10:45 AM, Leopold, Elana <ELEopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> I feel like we prob have a couple more min
>
> Jk- on our way
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
>> On Feb 3, 2015, at 10:44 AM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:
>>
>> get going!
>>
>>
>>
>>> On Feb 3, 2015, at 10:43 AM, Leopold, Elana <ELEopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>>
>>> Still at Gracie
>>>
>>> Sent from my iPhone

From: Jon Fromowitz
To: Patchett, James
Cc: Norvell, Wiley
Subject: Re: As of 8:35am
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 11:52:27 AM

Vsn I sent to Wiley phil and Andrea at 1025 is what was in the binder. Of course, he tweaked some stuff with a pen first, so it won't be exact.

On Feb 3, 2015, at 11:44 AM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

From--please make sure Wiley has final final version

From: Patchett, James
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:30 AM
To: 'jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com' <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>;
<[REDACTED]> <[REDACTED]>
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; <[REDACTED]>
<[REDACTED]> Glen, Alicia
Subject: Re: As of 8:35am

Ok here

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 10:24 AM
To: BdB
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Emma Wolfe <[REDACTED]>
Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James
Subject: Re: As of 8:35am

Are folks good with this construct (new parts highlighted):

Right now, there are 200 acres of land in the heart of Queens, land that exists in the form of a rail yard – and ONLY a rail yard. But the fact is, those tracks could easily exist underground – allowing us to build housing – much of it affordable -- above them.

At Sunnyside Yards, we'll work with the community and local elected officials to create a plan that incorporates what diverse and dynamic neighborhoods need -- access to transportation, parks, schools, retail stores, and job opportunities.

Now 200 acres is a lot of land. We know some parts of this site can easily handle larger buildings... and others can't. So we'll work closely with elected officials and community leaders to determine what makes sense.

Our approach is not entirely novel. Developments that prioritize affordability and livability HAVE been built before -- from Starrett City to Co-Op City to Stuy Town, to the Big 6 towers in Woodside, Queens.

And these developments created affordability on a grand scale.

On Feb 3, 2015, at 10:10 AM, Bill de Blasio
<[REDACTED]> wrote:

On with van bramer now. He has a fair and helpful suggestion. Add language on Sunnyside like (my words): "Now 200 acres is a lot of land. And some parts of this area can easily handle larger buildings and others can't as well. So we'll work closely with elected officials and community leaders to determine what makes sense."

He also urges that we add to our litany of historic examples of livable, affordable developments the Big 6 towers in Woodside (it's actually 7 towers of 18 stories each, built by Local 6). Says this will communicate the idea of Queens-friendly housing for working and middle class people, and it is a development that worked.

Jimmy says these amendments will help him a lot, and he can be reasonably positive about it. I'm fine with those amendments. Add them NOW in unless there is a huge objection

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Tue, 3 Feb 2015 13:37:11 +0000
To: Bill de Blasio<[REDACTED]>
Cc: Emma Wolfe<[REDACTED]> Jon
Fromowitz<jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: As of 8:35am

Changed balloon juice to an (acceptable) Italian term - and I cleared with Monica.

Downtown Staten Island is definitely a "thing." Confirming, though.

Added a hat-tip to Council on legal services funding, per Emma.

====

STATE OF THE CITY DRAFT
2/3/15 – 835 AM

Thank you, Sheryl Morse, for that warm introduction.

Thank you to Mitchel Wallerstein for hosting us.

Thank you to Officer Leggio, and to Frederick Trapp of the DSNY.

And thank you Reverend Gabriel Salguero.

It's a pleasure to be here with our city officials: First Deputy Mayor Shorris, Deputy Mayors Glen, Barrios-Paoli, and Buery, and commissioners, community members and leaders, and our elected officials, including Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito.

And of course thank you to the First Lady.

I want to begin by telling you a distinctly New York story.

More than a hundred years ago, a young woman named Anna Briganti arrived in our city after emigrating from Grassano, a small town in southern Italy rich in natural beauty, but scarce in opportunities for its people.

Anna traded picturesque hillsides, and small town familiarity... for an apartment at 205 East 17th Street in Manhattan, just a short walk from here...a place lacking the tranquil comforts of her childhood...a neighborhood where few spoke her native language.

But Anna's NEW home offered her something that her OLD one did not: profound possibilities to create a better life... for herself...AND for her children.

So, in the year 1910 -- a decade before our country granted women the right to vote -- Anna opened an embroidery company: The Misses Briganti... its very name a proud symbol of single women -- the "Miss-ES" referring to her sister, and her mother, and herself -- three women who started the business, together.

Anna Briganti was my grandmother. I am here because of her.

My grandmother's story -- like most New York success stories -- was not a fairy tale. She did not stumble upon success through luck or charm; she forged it with hard work and raw grit.

And she lived in a place that rewarded those things in unique and powerful ways.

For generations, New York has been a city that unleashed human potential.

A place offering opportunity for EVERYONE, no matter how your life's story began; opportunity for innovators and visionaries to write new chapters in our history; and for parents and grandparents to write brighter ones for the next generation.

And here's the hard truth: all of that is at risk today.

It's at risk because so many who LIVE in New York struggle to AFFORD to be here.

And, since only half of New Yorkers speak only English at home, let me say that a different way:

Por generaciones [he-ne-rah-see-oh-nes], Nueva York ha sido una ciudad que le da rienda [ree-en-dah] suelta [soo-el-tah] al potencial humano.

Pero aquí está la dura verdad: todo eso está hoy en riesgo [ree-es-goh].

Está en riesgo [ree-es-goh] porque a muchas personas que viven aquí les cuesta [qwes-tah] demasiado PÓDER quedarse [kay-dar-say] aquí. Nosotros queremos cambiár eso.

You can see it all over New York -- in the eyes of the single mother in Coney Island, working two jobs and barely scraping together enough for a modest apartment to share with her kids.

You can see it in the worn hands of the fast food worker in Washington Heights, consumed with worry as the calendar approaches the first of the month...the day the rent is due.

You can see it in the furrowed brow of the senior in Rosebank on Staten Island, as she sweeps her porch to chase away thoughts of whether she's saved enough to stay in her small house in the only neighborhood she's ever called home.

If we do not act -- and act BOLDLY -- New York risks taking on the qualities of a gated community... A place defined by exclusivity, rather than opportunity. And we cannot let that happen.

Over the past two years, I've spoken about the need to take dead aim at the Tale of Two Cities, and about our vision for creating One New York, rising together...a city where EVERYONE has a shot at the middle class.

And while we have so much more work to do, 2014 was a year of great progress in our effort to address inequality and lift up our families.

Some examples:

We achieved full-day Pre-K for more than 50,000 of our kids.

We nearly doubled enrollment in after-school programs for middle school kids in all five boroughs.

By executive order, we expanded living wage coverage to 18,000 workers.

With the help of the City Council – and the strong leadership of my partner in government, Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito – we secured paid sick leave for 500,000 more New Yorkers.

We ended the overuse of stop-and-frisk, reducing stops by over 75%. And since we instituted our new marijuana policy, arrests are almost down almost 65%.

At the same time, thanks to our courageous men and women in uniform, we've not only kept New York City safe – we've made it even safer.

Our NYPD officers helped bring the city's crime rate to an ALL-TIME low – with the smallest number of murders, robberies, and burglaries on record.

The FDNY responded to a record 1.6 MILLION emergency calls...always at the ready when New Yorkers needed help.

The Correction Department made sweeping reforms, including an end to punitive segregation for adolescents in city jails.

Also in 2014, we fought to keep our streets safe and clean for pedestrians, cyclists, and drivers alike.

We established Vision Zero -- bringing pedestrian deaths down to a level not seen since 1910.

We handled one of the snowiest winters our city has ever seen, with 11 winter storms in 2014.

And after our sanitation workers did an extraordinary job clearing our streets...our Department of Transportation workers filled nearly a half-MILLION potholes.

In 2014, we took on climate change and the damage inflicted by the extreme weather linked to it.

We built on the strong environmental record of the Bloomberg Administration by committing to "80 by 50" – a dramatic, game-changing 80 percent reduction in greenhouse gases in our city by the year 2050. And we will be retrofitting not just some, but EVERY public building with significant energy usage by 2025.

We helped repair the devastation wrought by Superstorm Sandy – beating even our ambitious goals – with construction starting on more than 1,000 homes; and badly needed reimbursements provided to more than 2,000 homeowners.

And today, I want to make perfectly clear that EVERY reimbursement check will be in the hands of those who need them by the end of THIS year. From Staten Island to Canarsie to the Rockaways, families hit by the storm have been through so much. This Administration will FINISH the job of helping them rebuild.

In 2014, we balanced our budget in a way that was honest, responsible, and in keeping with our progressive values.

We came to contract agreements with over 71% of the city's workforce, up from ZERO the year before – signing deals that are fair to both our city workers AND to our taxpayers.

We awarded $690 million in contracts to minority and women-owned businesses, a 57% increase from the year before.

And we connected more New Yorkers to jobs, health care, and our social safety net.

We created the Tech Talent Pipeline to link New Yorkers from every borough and background to a booming tech industry that now employs nearly 300,000 people, and is growing every day in our city.

We invested capital in new economic hubs to create 3,000 new jobs in the Brooklyn Navy Yard and 1,000 new jobs at the Brooklyn Army Terminal that will be there for years to come.

We announced our plan to redesign our workforce development system to arm up to 30,000 New Yorkers a year with the skills for 21st century jobs.

We ended the fear of communities being left without critical care services when their hospitals closed without warning – and began the process of opening half a dozen new community health clinics.

We ended a ticket blitz on our small businesses, and are on track to save them $5 million in petty fines -- money they can put towards growing and hiring.

With the help of the City Council, we created IDNYC– for both citizens AND undocumented New Yorkers. Let’s be clear: Relegating ANY New Yorker to life in the shadows is not who we are as a city. And I’m happy to report that -- less than a month after this program’s inception -- more than 180,000 New Yorkers have ALREADY made an appointment to get their ID.

And we began a major new effort – now led by our inspiring First Lady -- to address the gaps in mental health coverage in New York City. This issue is personal to Chirlane and me, and to so many families who’ve watched loved ones fall through the cracks of an inadequate system. I can’t think of a smarter, stronger, more compassionate person to lead our effort to change that than our First Lady. Let’s thank her!

We opened new doors of opportunity for our young people.

We’ve begun to create 128 community schools – schools that serve the whole child...offering everything from vision tests and mental health screenings...to family counseling and tutoring.

We created 62 PROSE schools – a fresh, new model where teachers and principals work together to set aside D-O-E and union rules that hinder innovation...so we can better serve our kids.

And we invested in Renewal Schools...to FIX 94 struggling schools...because EVERY child in every neighborhood deserves a quality education.

All of these things will make our neighborhoods stronger – and make life in our city better for so many.

But you can’t tap into the opportunities that New York has to offer if you can’t afford to actually LIVE here.

So I will say this:

While the state of our city is strong, we face a profound challenge.

If we fail to be a city for EVERYONE, we risk losing what makes New York...NEW YORK.

And nothing more clearly expresses the inequality gap...the OPPORTUNITY gap...than the soaring cost of housing.

The math is pretty straightforward.

In 2014, 56 percent of rental households in New York were spending more than 30 percent of their income on housing – up 10 points in a little more than a decade.

Now spending more than 30 percent of your income on housing means you're officially "rent-burdened." That's an apt description, since the cost of living is becoming a heavier and heavier burden -- not just on wallets, but on hopes and aspirations, as well.

So how did we end up here?

Part of the problem is that the city has for decades let developers write their own rules when it came to building housing. SOMETIMES projects included affordable housing...but far too often, they did NOT.

As the city expanded, our growth was guided primarily by the developers' bottom lines.

That meant a bias towards luxury housing – units that fetched top dollar, but were entirely out of reach for most New Yorkers...multi-million dollar homes that drove up rents in the neighborhoods they occupied – all without a corresponding menu of AFFORDABLE new options.

This Administration is taking a fundamentally different approach – one that not only RECOGNIZES the need for more affordable housing...but DEMANDS it.

How will we do this?

First, we're writing new rules... ones that MANDATE affordable housing as a condition of development in areas re-zoned for residential use.

Second, we'll do everything in our power to KEEP those who already have affordable housing IN THEIR HOMES.

And third -- since we only have so much land -- we'll create more affordable housing by literally building UP... adding density to appropriate parts of our city.

Let me explain what that means.

We are NOT embarking on a mission to build towering skyscrapers where they don't belong. We have a duty to protect and preserve the culture and character of our neighborhoods, and we WILL DO SO.

And as we invest in more affordable housing, we will also work with communities to preserve the fabric of neighborhoods and invest in things that great neighborhoods need -- from parks and schools...to shops and restaurants.

Now, there are some places in our city that have not yet been developed or zoned for housing, but could be. And by taking steps like adding residential buildings to former manufacturing sites -- or adding some six to eight story buildings in appropriate places -- we could make a fundamental difference in neighborhoods' affordability. That means families staying and thriving in the neighborhoods they love, instead of being priced out.

Will this be difficult? Of course. But let me remind you of a difficult challenge we overcame just LAST year.

Of all the efforts we made in 2014 to address income inequality, the most prominent was our successful bid to secure universal, full-day Pre-K -- something bold and meaningful...and something that so many pundits said we couldn't achieve.

The naysayers said we would never find the funding... or the space... to give all our kids a chance.

Well, thanks to the tremendous energy of parents, activists, community leaders, elected officials and good everyday people throughout the city, we proved the cynics WRONG.

And when it comes to affordable housing, we will prove them wrong again.

In fact, we're ALREADY doing so...ALREADY making real progress towards a more affordable New York.

Here's how:

First, our Rent Guidelines Board passed the smallest rent increase EVER last year – helping protect tenants from being squeezed by their landlords.

Second, we are following through on a plan to build and preserve affordable housing on an unprecedented scale. We've committed to the construction of 80,000 new units of affordable housing by 2024.

Let me put that in perspective: it means building new affordable units at TWICE the average annual rate of the past 25 years.

When you add that to the 120,000 units that our plan preserves, it means affordable housing for a half MILLION New Yorkers...more than the entire population of the city of Miami. Take THAT, Miami!

This is what our housing plan does. It's real. Those here...can pick up a copy. And anyone can read it online at NYC.gov.

And we're ALREADY putting this plan into action. Our goal for 2014 was to create and preserve 16,000 units. We beat that goal -- achieving 17,300 affordable units last year alone.

Third, because it's been projected that New York City will be home to nine MILLION people by 2040, we're pursuing EVERY kind of housing.

Increasing the overall supply of housing is critical to serving New Yorkers at all income levels -- and to assuring we can accommodate the workforce who will continue to grow our economy.

So we plan for the construction of 160,000 market rate units as well.

All told, our plan will create hundreds of thousands of construction jobs – and over 20,000 permanent jobs.

Fourth, we're cutting red tape to speed up our progress.

To expedite the right kind of development, we must expedite the development process.

What we need, and what we will have, is fundamental reform at the Department of Buildings. This agency must better serve its customers – including thousands of small businesses that drive our economy. We'll speed up inspections and cut bureaucracy, so that more jobs can be created and more housing can be built.

Fifth -- for the first time in New York City history, we are creating a Mandatory Inclusionary Zoning requirement that will apply to ALL major residential re-zonings.

This is a big one. Listen to this.

In EVERY major rezoning development, we will REQUIRE developers to include affordable housing. Not as an option. As a precondition.

Want to see this approach in action? Look at Astoria Cove in Queens. As a result of this Administration's framework -- and the City Council's tough negotiations -- 465 units of affordable housing will be created this site alone.

That's 465 families who no longer have to choose between living in the city they call home, or finding another city they CAN afford. It means that hundreds of kids will live and learn and grow in OUR city.

Astoria Cove is a site in which previous City re-zoning policy wouldn't have required ANY units of affordable housing. ZERO. That was, in fact, the original plan.

So if you want to see the difference that our approach is already making – it's the difference between 465...and zero...on one site alone.

And there are many MORE re-zonings like this coming soon to neighborhoods across the five boroughs – from East New York to Long Island City; from Flushing West to East Harlem; from downtown Staten Island to the Jerome Avenue Corridor in the Bronx.

Each of these efforts will make our neighborhoods stronger and more affordable.

And here's one that will be a game-changer when it comes to keeping our city affordable for thousands of New York families: Sunnyside Yards.

Right now, there are 200 acres of land in the heart of Queens, land that exists in the form of a rail yard – and ONLY a rail yard. But the fact is, those tracks could easily exist underground – allowing us to build housing – much of it affordable -- above them.

At Sunnyside Yards, we'll work with the community and local elected officials to create a plan that incorporates what diverse and dynamic neighborhoods need -- access to transportation, parks, schools, retail stores, and job opportunities.

Our approach is not entirely novel. Developments that prioritize affordability and livability HAVE been built before -- from Starrett City to Co-Op City to Stuy Town.

And these developments created affordability on a grand scale.

Stuy Town, when it opened in 1947 provided our city with 11,250 affordable apartments... a community where trees and parks, and shops dotted a landscape from which residents could actually see the sky.

We're bringing that same kind of scale -- and a real sense of urgency -- to Sunnyside Yards...and setting the same exact goal of 11,250 affordable units, as part of a neighborhood that anyone would be proud to call home.

And in contrast to the recent history of Stuy Town, we're going to make sure that affordable housing at Sunnyside Yards STAYS that way.

To paraphrase one of my former employers, it takes a village to build a neighborhood. So we look forward to partnering with Amtrak and the MTA in this extraordinary effort at Sunnyside Yards.

Another transformative opportunity lies in the Lower Concourse neighborhood on the waterfront in the South Bronx, a section of our city that was for so long synonymous with urban decay.

But the South Bronx is coming back strong, and waterfront development will be a big step forward.

When we look at this project, we don't think about what USED to define the Bronx; we think about all that WILL define the Bronx in the future.

With a $200 million capital investment, we can stimulate the development of 4,000 new units of housing – much of it affordable -- and provide the parks, schools, and commercial development that support a growing, thriving population.

We look forward to partnering with Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito and our colleagues in government to make an investment that will bring hope and opportunity to a place with enormous potential.

And speaking of potential, let's talk about the Rockaways.

Battered by years of economic distress even before Sandy's gale force winds struck, there's no place in our city that has persevered through more.

Our plan will jumpstart the process of acquiring underutilized properties in the Rockaways – areas blighted or vacant for decades – as we look to create new, affordable housing for thousands there.

We must also remember that transportation is central to the mission of providing affordable housing and services -- connecting neighborhoods in the five boroughs to New York's largest job centers.

For years, the conventional wisdom has been that certain neighborhoods are doomed to isolation because of their geography.

Today, if you live in one of those neighborhoods – the Rockaways or Red Hook or Soundview, among others -- a job in Manhattan can easily mean an hour or more of commuting, even when the skyline is visible from your home. You can actually SEE opportunity, but practically speaking, it's very far away.

We are going to change that.

Today, we announce that we're launching a new citywide ferry service to be open for business in 2017. New ferry rides will be priced the same as a MetroCard fare, so ferries will be as affordable to everyday New Yorkers as our subways and buses. so residents of the Rockaways and Red Hook and Soundview will now be closer to the opportunities they need.

And beyond connecting residents to jobs in Manhattan, our new citywide ferry system will spur the development of new commercial corridors throughout the outer boroughs.

We will also expand Bus Rapid Transit – or B-R-T – serving 400,000 New Yorkers along key thoroughfares like Utica Avenue in Brooklyn, and Woodhaven Boulevard in Queens... completing a network of 20 routes over the next four years. B-R-T will cut transit time on existing routes by 15-25%. That means New Yorkers spending less time in transit and more time living their lives.

That's the KIND of housing that we'll build.

Let's talk about some of the PEOPLE we're fighting to help.

First, our veterans. We commit to ENDING chronic veterans homelessness by the end of this year. Those who fight to protect our freedom abroad should NEVER be left without a home.

Second, our seniors. We're providing 10,000 units of affordable housing for – New Yorkers who have worked hard all of their lives, and deserve to retire in dignity. Women and men who live on fixed incomes have little recourse when housing costs go up. They need our help, and they will get it.

Third, artists. We know that New York is the city it is today in part because of the contributions from generations of artistic visionaries who at one point struggled to make ends meet.

So we'll provide 1500 units of affordable live/work housing for the artists and musicians who make New York culture so vibrant.... as well as 500 dedicated affordable workspaces for the cultural community.

These folks bring joy to everyday New Yorkers; and inspire young people to pursue their natural talents in professions that often don't promise a big paycheck. They also help make our city a mecca for tourists, and are one of the reasons why a record number of people -- 56.4 MILLION -- visited New York last year.

But whether or not you're a veteran, a senior, or an artist, you've likely felt the pinch of skyrocketing housing costs in our city.

That's due in part to a phenomenon that everybody sees, everybody feels – but nobody wants to really talk about: gentrification.

Ask 8.4 million New Yorkers what they think about gentrification, and you'll get 8.4 million opinions.

Clearly, there's good and there's bad.

First, the good.

After two decades of steadily declining crime, people are excited to come to New York...about investing in our city.

With that influx of people and resources comes jobs and amenities...more activity...safer streets.

The PROBLEM comes when we reach the tipping point...when New Yorkers get PRICED OUT of their own neighborhoods.

In the past, we've been told: sorry – there's nothing you can do about that. You can either have a safe and clean neighborhood –

OR you can have one you can afford. Not both.

Well, as my grandmother might say, that's una cavolata!"

We CAN act, and we MUST.

You see, New York City's last twenty years has had its share of bad actors.

First, there are the slumlords – the folks who refuse to make repairs...letting housing decay...making apartments uninhabitable.

Then, there are predatory landlords – the people who take advantage of a red-hot real estate market – employing ugly tactics to push out moderate-income tenants to make room for wealthier ones.

These predatory landlords harass tenants by, say, intermittently turning off the heat or hot water, or by refusing to address simple matters of safety or sanitation.

That doesn't just violate the law; it violates our values as New Yorkers.

And we have tools to address these things.

When I was Public Advocate, we published the Worst Landlords Watchlist – targeting those who refused to make simple repairs to the units they controlled.

It helped spur change, with hundreds of buildings coming off the list after making needed improvements...and thousands of tenants getting the repairs they needed. I applaud Public Advocate Tish James for energetically continuing this effort.

And there's MORE we can do.

Albany has responsibility for enforcing our rent laws, but too often that doesn't happen. We need Albany to step up and enforce the laws aggressively. NOW.

Every day in this city, people are losing their homes unfairly. Albany cannot wait -- we need help right now.

And we need stronger rent regulations that reflect today's New York.

To preserve our city as a place for everyone, we need to do more than ever to protect the one million rent-regulated apartments in New York. For so many, it's the only way they make ends meet... and the only path to the middle class.

If Albany truly believes in opportunity for all, they will strengthen our rent laws in 2015.

If they cannot do that, then we call on the State to provide the funding to help tenants...help THEMSELVES – by providing free legal services to victims of landlord neglect or harassment.

And even while we're calling on Albany to step up, the City will do ITS part.

So today, I'm announcing that in ANY of the areas in which the city rezones, if we find evidence that tenants are being harassed, we will supply those tenants with legal representation, at no cost, to take their case to Housing Court...to seek justice before a judge.

Protecting our tenants – through whatever means necessary – isn't just the moral thing to do. It's a critical step in making New York City a more affordable place for EVERYONE. And we should thank the City Council for their historic support of legal services for tenants.

All of the steps on housing that I've spoken about today – from responsibly building UP; to placing new demands on developers; to providing affordable housing to New Yorkers who need it most; to targeting predatory landlords – it's all part of our new rules for helping people find a home they can afford.

Today we've focused on the NUMBER ONE expense in the lives of most New Yorkers. Reducing the expense of housing is absolutely critical to addressing the Tale of Two Cities. But we'll also fight on the other end of the equation.

Because nothing does more to address income equality than actually raising people's incomes.

There's one critical step that could do so much good. RAISING THE MINIMUM WAGE.

Now Albany's shown some promising signs on this subject – but for it to be more than just talk -- and to have a real impact on the lives of those living in New York City – we need more.

The current minimum wage proposal simply doesn't do enough to help New York City. That's why WE will fight to raise New York City's minimum wage to more than $13 per hour in 2016... while indexing the minimum wage, which would bring us to a projected $15 per hour by 2019.

Why is indexing so important? Because it means that hardworking New Yorkers won't have to wait on new action from Albany just to keep pace with inflation.

It's difficult to overstate the positive impact this would have on working New Yorkers. Even for those that earn more than minimum right now, this action would create an upward pull on wages... an upward pull on opportunity.... and an upward pull on our economy.

Indeed, Henry Ford – the noted leftwing “socialist” that he was – wanted the workers on his assembly line to be able to afford to PURCHASE the cars they worked to BUILD. So he gave them a living wage.

I assure you, he didn't do it to be charitable; he did it because he knew it was good for business. I'd say it worked out pretty well for old Henry.

Creating more affordable housing; raising wages and benefits; strengthening our neighborhoods by better connecting them to jobs and opportunity – THAT is how we'll take on the Tale of Two Cities.

It won't be easy. And we know there will be critics who say it just can't be done... that our destiny is to be a city for The Privileged Few...not a city for all.

But New York is no stranger to facing big challenges -- and the many doubting Thomases -- and knows how to overcome them. In fact, we revel in proving them wrong.

Thirty years ago, in his 1985 State of the City Address, Mayor Ed Koch announced what was an UNPRECEDENTED plan for affordable housing.

He understood the transformative power of city government to revitalize whole communities. His administration stated the clearly: QUOTE "we're creating more than just apartments -- we're re-creating neighborhoods." END QUOTE

There were those who said it couldn't be done. Historian Jonathan Soffer wrote of Koch's plan: QUOTE "It was an extremely risky move. Some experts said at first that Koch's goal was 'inspirational rather than realistic.'" END QUOTE

Well, let me just say, I can relate. I've heard very similar criticisms.

But we know now that Koch's plan WAS realistic... in fact, it worked. And it had a transcendent impact on our city.

A city that was struggling and shrinking when Koch took office... turned around.

And so today, WE face the challenge of a city in which more and more people want to live. It's a nice problem to have in one way, but it's a major challenge nonetheless.

We will not lose sight of WHY our city is a beacon for so many. It's not the cleanest place, nor the most tranquil. We don't have the best weather or many alluring natural landmarks. But we have something special, something unique: an idea at our core -- a PROMISE -- that ours is a city...for EVERYONE.

We are charged in our time with the sacred duty of keeping that promise... and we will not sit idle in the face of crisis.

John F. Kennedy put it well. He said: "There are risks and costs to a program of action. But they are far less than the long-range risks and costs of comfortable INACTION."

Like the people this great city, our Administration is about action.

And we'll continue to lead a City government that reflects all that is great about the New Yorkers we are so honored to serve.

Your energy invigorates us.

Your compassion inspires us.

Your resolve compels us to move forward.

And, so – my fellow New Yorkers -- let's get to work. NOW.

Thank you very much. God bless you all.

From: Parikh, Ishanee
To: Miller, Harold; Feliciano, Elba; Viguers, Jonathan; DeLoach, Michael; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: Spitalnick, Amy \(OMB\); Klein, Monica; Adams, Marti
Subject: Heads up
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 12:12:55 PM

As soon as this ends we are directing photogs through aisle youre in to get on to get ropeline pics.

Amy monica marti guiding.

Just wanted yall to be prepped for stampede.

From: John Del Cecato
To: Patchett, James
Cc: Wolfe, Emma; [REDACTED] Jon Fromowitz; P RAGONE; [REDACTED] Glen, Alicia; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Re: Applause
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 2:29:18 PM

Ha! Thanks to all of you guys for making this speech what it is

> On Feb 3, 2015, at 1:45 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> Congrats to everyone.
>
> Guess we'll need to save "Gentrification Predators" for 2016!
>
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: Wolfe, Emma
> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 01:32 PM
> To: 'Anthony Shorris' <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>;
> jfdc@akpdmedia.com <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; P RAGONE; Andrea Hagelgans
> <[REDACTED]> Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James
> Cc: Williams, Dominic
> Subject: RE: Applause
>
> KUDOS!
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Anthony Shorris [[mailto:\[REDACTED\]](mailto:[REDACTED])]
> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 1:08 PM
> To: Jon Fromowitz; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; P RAGONE; Andrea Hagelgans; Wolfe, Emma; Glen,
> Alicia; Patchett, James
> Cc: Williams, Dominic
> Subject: Applause
>
> I think you all did a wonderful job on this SOC. While I may be cursing your names for the rest of > the year given all the work we now have to do to live up to all this, that's my problem. The speech was > focused, thoughtful, bold, and comprehensive on a very complex topic. And he seemed comfortable > delivering it (any more comfortable and we'd have needed a hook to get him off stage!). Some great > progressive policies -- the reason we all came here -- and we had some fun making it all up along the > way too.
>
> Many thanks to all. Now go have a drink.
>
>

From: Wolfe, Emma
To: Glen, Alicia
Cc: jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Patchett, James; [REDACTED] jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com; P RAGONE; [REDACTED] Williams, Dominic
Subject: Re: Applause
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 5:19:41 PM

Hahahaha

> On Feb 3, 2015, at 5:16 PM, Glen, Alicia <AGlen@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> I'm surprised it took that long for him to do it after I called him yesterday!

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]

> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 05:04 PM

> To: Patchett, James

> Cc: Wolfe, Emma; [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz
<jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>; P RAGONE; [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]> Glen,
Alicia; Williams, Dominic

> Subject: Re: Applause

>

> Guys - the heat is off in my apartment building today - no joke. #GentrificationPredators

>

>

>

>> On Feb 3, 2015, at 1:45 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>> Congrats to everyone.

>>

>> Guess we'll need to save "Gentrification Predators" for 2016!

>>

>>

>> ----- Original Message -----

>> From: Wolfe, Emma

>> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 01:32 PM

>> To: 'Anthony Shorris' <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>;
'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; P RAGONE; Andrea Hagelgans
<[REDACTED]> Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James

>> Cc: Williams, Dominic

>> Subject: RE: Applause

>>

>> KUDOS!

>>

>> -----Original Message-----

>> From: Anthony Shorris [[mailto:\[REDACTED\]](mailto:[REDACTED])]

>> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 1:08 PM

>> To: Jon Fromowitz; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; P RAGONE; Andrea Hagelgans; Wolfe, Emma; Glen,
Alicia; Patchett, James

>> Cc: Williams, Dominic

>> Subject: Applause

>>

>> I think you all did a wonderful job on this SOC. While I may be cursing your names for the rest of the year given all the work we now have to do to live up to all this, that's my problem. The speech was focused, thoughtful, bold, and comprehensive on a very complex topic. And he seemed comfortable delivering it (any more comfortable and we'd have needed a hook to get him off stage!). Some great progressive policies -- the reason we all came here -- and we had some fun making it all up along the way too.

>>

>> Many thanks to all. Now go have a drink.

>>

>>

From: Peter Ragone
To: Glen, Alicia
Cc: jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Patchett, James; Wolfe, Emma; [REDACTED] jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com; [REDACTED] Williams, Dominic
Subject: Re: Applause
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 5:20:17 PM

Great work all!

This is a personal email account. If this communication is related to official business please email me at pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov.

> On Feb 3, 2015, at 5:16 PM, Glen, Alicia <AGlen@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> I'm surprised it took that long for him to do it after I called him yesterday!

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]

> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 05:04 PM

> To: Patchett, James

> Cc: Wolfe, Emma; [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz
<jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>; P RAGONE; [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]> Glen,
Alicia; Williams, Dominic

> Subject: Re: Applause

>

> Guys - the heat is off in my apartment building today - no joke. #GentrificationPredators

>

>

>

>> On Feb 3, 2015, at 1:45 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>> Congrats to everyone.

>>

>> Guess we'll need to save "Gentrification Predators" for 2016!

>>

>>

>> ----- Original Message -----

>> From: Wolfe, Emma

>> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 01:32 PM

>> To: 'Anthony Shorris' <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>;
'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; P RAGONE; Andrea Hagelgans
<[REDACTED]> Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James

>> Cc: Williams, Dominic

>> Subject: RE: Applause

>>

>> KUDOS!

>>

>> -----Original Message-----

>> From: Anthony Shorris [[mailto:\[REDACTED\]](mailto:[REDACTED])]

>> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 1:08 PM

>> To: Jon Fromowitz; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; P RAGONE; Andrea Hagelgans; Wolfe, Emma; Glen,
Alicia; Patchett, James

>> Cc: Williams, Dominic

>> Subject: Applause

>>

>> I think you all did a wonderful job on this SOC. While I may be cursing your names for the rest of the year given all the work we now have to do to live up to all this, that's my problem. The speech was focused, thoughtful, bold, and comprehensive on a very complex topic. And he seemed comfortable delivering it (any more comfortable and we'd have needed a hook to get him off stage!). Some great progressive policies -- the reason we all came here -- and we had some fun making it all up along the way too.

>>

>> Many thanks to all. Now go have a drink.

>>

>>

From: John Del Cecato
To: Glen, Alicia
Cc: Patchett, James; Wolfe, Emma; [REDACTED] Jon Fromowitz; P RAGONE; [REDACTED]
Williams, Dominic
Subject: Re: Applause
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 5:44:36 PM

Ha!

> On Feb 3, 2015, at 5:16 PM, Glen, Alicia <AGlen@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> I'm surprised it took that long for him to do it after I called him yesterday!
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 05:04 PM
> To: Patchett, James
> Cc: Wolfe, Emma; [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz
<jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>; P RAGONE; [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]> Glen,
Alicia; Williams, Dominic
> Subject: Re: Applause
>
> Guys - the heat is off in my apartment building today - no joke. #GentrificationPredators
>
>
>
>> On Feb 3, 2015, at 1:45 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>
>> Congrats to everyone.
>>
>> Guess we'll need to save "Gentrification Predators" for 2016!
>>
>>
>> ----- Original Message -----
>> From: Wolfe, Emma
>> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 01:32 PM
>> To: 'Anthony Shorris' <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>;
'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; P RAGONE; Andrea Hagelgans
<[REDACTED]> Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James
>> Cc: Williams, Dominic
>> Subject: RE: Applause
>>
>> KUDOS!
>>
>> -----Original Message-----
>> From: Anthony Shorris [[mailto:\[REDACTED\]](mailto:[REDACTED])]
>> Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 1:08 PM
>> To: Jon Fromowitz; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; P RAGONE; Andrea Hagelgans; Wolfe, Emma; Glen,
Alicia; Patchett, James
>> Cc: Williams, Dominic
>> Subject: Applause
>>
>> I think you all did a wonderful job on this SOC. While I may be cursing your names for the rest of the year given all the work we now have to do to live up to all this, that's my problem. The speech was focused, thoughtful, bold, and comprehensive on a very complex topic. And he seemed comfortable delivering it (any more comfortable and we'd have needed a hook to get him off stage!). Some great progressive policies -- the reason we all came here -- and we had some fun making it all up along the way too.

>>

>> Many thanks to all. Now go have a drink.

>>

>>

From: Walzak, Phil
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Norvell, Wiley; Blumm, Kate
Subject: Great ending too
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 8:03:15 PM

Editorial: Bill de Blasio's Big Plans for New York
NY TIMES - Editorial

<http://www.nytimes.com/2015/02/04/opinion/bill-de-blasios-big-plans-for-new-york.html>

Give Mayor Bill de Blasio time and he can toss out a lot of numbers. It's what he did in his State of the City Address on Tuesday: nearly half-a-million potholes filled in 2014, a plan to cut greenhouse gases by 80 percent by 2050, a 65 percent drop in marijuana arrests, 1.6 million calls answered by the New York Fire Department.

But the most important number in the speech was 200,000. That is how many affordable housing units he says the city will build (80,000) or preserve (120,000) over the next decade.

Mr. de Blasio is entering the monumental phase of his mayoralty, taking the lofty yet vague theme that guided his campaign — ending inequality — and promising to make it concrete, literally. He laid out a vision of a denser but more affordable city, via a construction binge that would somehow solve the apparent paradox of New York: a city so appealing that nobody can afford to live in it. Mr. de Blasio's speech was a ringing defense of the interests of what he called "our people," the individuals and families who live in constant worry about the day the rent comes due or the lease is up.

The speech was broad-brush, as it had to be, but it offered an abundance of intriguing proposals. It called for rezoning in six neighborhoods — East Harlem, East New York, a stretch of Jerome Avenue in the Bronx, Long Island City, the western part of Flushing and Stapleton on Staten Island — where new construction will have to include some mandatory percentage of housing priced below market rates, so that people within a range of (modest) income levels can afford it. Mr. de Blasio also promised that the city would set aside money for free legal representation for tenants in rezoned areas who have to fight abusive landlords in housing court.

Perhaps the most vaulting ambition is a plan to build big at Sunnyside Yards, the convergence of railroad lines in Queens that would yield 200 acres for development if a roof were built over it. Mr. de Blasio's aides say a study on how to do that will soon begin in earnest. The mayor also announced plans for expanded five-borough ferry service and more express buses, a recognition that all this new housing will surely strain existing transportation.

In one sense, the de Blasio strategy is Bloombergism with a twist, given that the former mayor also committed himself to affordable housing, rezoned vast stretches of the city and turned his three terms into a glorious era for developers. But while Michael Bloomberg was a businessman who dreamed of things like football stadiums, Mr. de Blasio says he is focused on affordable housing and will fight harder for it — taking on reluctant developers, predatory landlords and skeptical neighbors.

His goal is to persuade New Yorkers that only by building more, and building higher, will the city be able to hold onto its working and middle classes. While he acknowledged that the city needs more of all kinds of housing — his plan envisions 160,000 new market-rate units, including luxury apartments — his speech, and heart, were clearly aimed at working-class neighborhoods like the Rockaways and the South Bronx, and ordinary New Yorkers like the city workers who had a role in Tuesday's ceremony.

Mr. de Blasio deserves credit for accomplishing some big things in his first year, notably the prekindergarten expansion, and he gives every indication of focusing just as intensely and productively on housing in the years to come. But it almost goes without saying that his ability to focus on one big thing will inevitably be tested.

Running the city is like living in a batting cage, with high heat coming from all directions. Mr. de Blasio skated lightly over and around nonhousing challenges on Tuesday. He made no mention of last year's bitter struggle with the Police Department, or the spike in shootings and homicides in January that runs counter to the crime statistics he cites so proudly and often.

There was very little talk of street homelessness, though he did mention a renewed effort to house homeless veterans. Also left unsaid was how he was going to enlist state government in fulfilling his ambitions. Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who seems to love cutting the mayor down to size, wasted no time in declaring on Tuesday that the Sunnyside Yards plan was unworkable, because the state has other plans for the property.

Mr. de Blasio shouldn't fold, or accept the way things are, just because the governor says no. He should think big and fight on.

###

From: Blumm, Kate
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Norvell, Wiley
Subject: Re: Great ending too
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 8:04:53 PM

Win!!!

Original Message
From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Tuesday, February 3, 2015 8:03 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Norvell, Wiley; Blumm, Kate
Subject: Great ending too

Editorial: Bill de Blasio's Big Plans for New York
NY TIMES - Editorial
<http://www.nytimes.com/2015/02/04/opinion/bill-de-blasios-big-plans-for-new-york.html>

Give Mayor Bill de Blasio time and he can toss out a lot of numbers. It's what he did in his State of the City Address on Tuesday: nearly half-a-million potholes filled in 2014, a plan to cut greenhouse gases by 80 percent by 2050, a 65 percent drop in marijuana arrests, 1.6 million calls answered by the New York Fire Department.

But the most important number in the speech was 200,000. That is how many affordable housing units he says the city will build (80,000) or preserve (120,000) over the next decade.

Mr. de Blasio is entering the monumental phase of his mayoralty, taking the lofty yet vague theme that guided his campaign — ending inequality — and promising to make it concrete, literally. He laid out a vision of a denser but more affordable city, via a construction binge that would somehow solve the apparent paradox of New York: a city so appealing that nobody can afford to live in it. Mr. de Blasio's speech was a ringing defense of the interests of what he called "our people," the individuals and families who live in constant worry about the day the rent comes due or the lease is up.

The speech was broad-brush, as it had to be, but it offered an abundance of intriguing proposals. It called for rezoning in six neighborhoods — East Harlem, East New York, a stretch of Jerome Avenue in the Bronx, Long Island City, the western part of Flushing and Stapleton on Staten Island — where new construction will have to include some mandatory percentage of housing priced below market rates, so that people within a range of (modest) income levels can afford it. Mr. de Blasio also promised that the city would set aside money for free legal representation for tenants in rezoned areas who have to fight abusive landlords in housing court.

Perhaps the most vaulting ambition is a plan to build big at Sunnyside Yards, the convergence of railroad lines in Queens that would yield 200 acres for development if a roof were built over it. Mr. de Blasio's aides say a study on how to do that will soon begin in earnest. The mayor also announced plans for expanded five-borough ferry service and more express buses, a recognition that all this new housing will surely strain existing transportation.

In one sense, the de Blasio strategy is Bloombergism with a twist, given that the former mayor also committed himself to affordable housing, rezoned vast stretches of the city and turned his three terms into a glorious era for developers. But while Michael Bloomberg was a businessman who dreamed of things like football stadiums, Mr. de Blasio says he is focused on affordable housing and will fight harder for it — taking on reluctant developers, predatory landlords and skeptical neighbors.

His goal is to persuade New Yorkers that only by building more, and building higher, will the city be able to hold onto its working and middle classes. While he acknowledged that the city needs more of all kinds of housing — his plan envisions 160,000 new market-rate units, including luxury apartments —

his speech, and heart, were clearly aimed at working-class neighborhoods like the Rockaways and the South Bronx, and ordinary New Yorkers like the city workers who had a role in Tuesday's ceremony.

Mr. de Blasio deserves credit for accomplishing some big things in his first year, notably the prekindergarten expansion, and he gives every indication of focusing just as intensely and productively on housing in the years to come. But it almost goes without saying that his ability to focus on one big thing will inevitably be tested.

Running the city is like living in a batting cage, with high heat coming from all directions. Mr. de Blasio skated lightly over and around nonhousing challenges on Tuesday. He made no mention of last year's bitter struggle with the Police Department, or the spike in shootings and homicides in January that runs counter to the crime statistics he cites so proudly and often.

There was very little talk of street homelessness, though he did mention a renewed effort to house homeless veterans. Also left unsaid was how he was going to enlist state government in fulfilling his ambitions. Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who seems to love cutting the mayor down to size, wasted no time in declaring on Tuesday that the Sunnyside Yards plan was unworkable, because the state has other plans for the property.

Mr. de Blasio shouldn't fold, or accept the way things are, just because the governor says no. He should think big and fight on.

###

From: Shorris, Anthony
To: Walzak, Phil
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; jfdc@akpdmmedia.com; Williams, Dominic; Norvell, Wiley; Blumm, Kate
Subject: Re: Great ending too
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 8:09:05 PM

Last line should be our motto for the rest of the next term (or two).

Great job by the whole team.

Anthony E. Shorris
First Deputy Mayor
City of New York
City Hall
New York, NY 10007
212-788-3191

> On Feb 3, 2015, at 8:03 PM, Walzak, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

>

>

>

> Editorial: Bill de Blasio's Big Plans for New York

> NY TIMES - Editorial

> <http://www.nytimes.com/2015/02/04/opinion/bill-de-blasios-big-plans-for-new-york.html>

>

> Give Mayor Bill de Blasio time and he can toss out a lot of numbers. It's what he did in his State of the City Address on Tuesday: nearly half-a-million potholes filled in 2014, a plan to cut greenhouse gases by 80 percent by 2050, a 65 percent drop in marijuana arrests, 1.6 million calls answered by the New York Fire Department.

>

> But the most important number in the speech was 200,000. That is how many affordable housing units he says the city will build (80,000) or preserve (120,000) over the next decade.

>

> Mr. de Blasio is entering the monumental phase of his mayoralty, taking the lofty yet vague theme that guided his campaign — ending inequality — and promising to make it concrete, literally. He laid out a vision of a denser but more affordable city, via a construction binge that would somehow solve the apparent paradox of New York: a city so appealing that nobody can afford to live in it. Mr. de Blasio's speech was a ringing defense of the interests of what he called "our people," the individuals and families who live in constant worry about the day the rent comes due or the lease is up.

>

> The speech was broad-brush, as it had to be, but it offered an abundance of intriguing proposals. It called for rezoning in six neighborhoods — East Harlem, East New York, a stretch of Jerome Avenue in the Bronx, Long Island City, the western part of Flushing and Stapleton on Staten Island — where new construction will have to include some mandatory percentage of housing priced below market rates, so that people within a range of (modest) income levels can afford it. Mr. de Blasio also promised that the city would set aside money for free legal representation for tenants in rezoned areas who have to fight abusive landlords in housing court.

>

> Perhaps the most vaulting ambition is a plan to build big at Sunnyside Yards, the convergence of railroad lines in Queens that would yield 200 acres for development if a roof were built over it. Mr. de Blasio's aides say a study on how to do that will soon begin in earnest. The mayor also announced plans for expanded five-borough ferry service and more express buses, a recognition that all this new housing will surely strain existing transportation.

>

> In one sense, the de Blasio strategy is Bloombergism with a twist, given that the former mayor also committed himself to affordable housing, rezoned vast stretches of the city and turned his three terms into a glorious era for developers. But while Michael Bloomberg was a businessman who dreamed of things like football stadiums, Mr. de Blasio says he is focused on affordable housing and will fight harder for it — taking on reluctant developers, predatory landlords and skeptical neighbors.

>

> His goal is to persuade New Yorkers that only by building more, and building higher, will the city be able to hold onto its working and middle classes. While he acknowledged that the city needs more of all kinds of housing — his plan envisions 160,000 new market-rate units, including luxury apartments — his speech, and heart, were clearly aimed at working-class neighborhoods like the Rockaways and the South Bronx, and ordinary New Yorkers like the city workers who had a role in Tuesday's ceremony.

>

> Mr. de Blasio deserves credit for accomplishing some big things in his first year, notably the prekindergarten expansion, and he gives every indication of focusing just as intensely and productively on housing in the years to come. But it almost goes without saying that his ability to focus on one big thing will inevitably be tested.

>

> Running the city is like living in a batting cage, with high heat coming from all directions. Mr. de Blasio skated lightly over and around nonhousing challenges on Tuesday. He made no mention of last year's bitter struggle with the Police Department, or the spike in shootings and homicides in January that runs counter to the crime statistics he cites so proudly and often.

>

> There was very little talk of street homelessness, though he did mention a renewed effort to house homeless veterans. Also left unsaid was how he was going to enlist state government in fulfilling his ambitions. Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who seems to love cutting the mayor down to size, wasted no time in declaring on Tuesday that the Sunnyside Yards plan was unworkable, because the state has other plans for the property.

>

> Mr. de Blasio shouldn't fold, or accept the way things are, just because the governor says no. He should think big and fight on.

>

> ###

>

From: Norvell, Wiley
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Blumm, Kate
Subject: Re: Great ending too
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 8:45:55 PM

Good ole¹ Lawrence!!

On 2/3/15, 8:03 PM, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

>

>Editorial: Bill de Blasio¹s Big Plans for New York

>NY TIMES - Editorial

><http://www.nytimes.com/2015/02/04/opinion/bill-de-blasios-big-plans-for-ne> >w-york.html

>

>Give Mayor Bill de Blasio time and he can toss out a lot of numbers. It¹s >what he did in his State of the City Address on Tuesday: nearly >half-a-million potholes filled in 2014, a plan to cut greenhouse gases by >80 percent by 2050, a 65 percent drop in marijuana arrests, 1.6 million >calls answered by the New York Fire Department.

>

>But the most important number in the speech was 200,000. That is how many >affordable housing units he says the city will build (80,000) or preserve

>(120,000) over the next decade.

>

>Mr. de Blasio is entering the monumental phase of his mayoralty, taking >the lofty yet vague theme that guided his campaign < ending inequality < >and promising to make it concrete, literally. He laid out a vision of a >denser but more affordable city, via a construction binge that would >somehow solve the apparent paradox of New York: a city so appealing that >nobody can afford to live in it. Mr. de Blasio¹s speech was a ringing >defense of the interests of what he called ³our people,² the individuals >and families who live in constant worry about the day the rent comes due >or the lease is up.

>

>The speech was broad-brush, as it had to be, but it offered an abundance >of intriguing proposals. It called for rezoning in six neighborhoods <

>East Harlem, East New York, a stretch of Jerome Avenue in the Bronx, Long >Island City, the western part of Flushing and Stapleton on Staten Island

>< where new construction will have to include some mandatory percentage >of housing priced below market rates, so that people within a range of >(modest) income levels can afford it. Mr. de Blasio also promised that >the city would set aside money for free legal representation for tenants >in rezoned areas who have to fight abusive landlords in housing court.

>

>Perhaps the most vaulting ambition is a plan to build big at Sunnyside

>Yards, the convergence of railroad lines in Queens that would yield 200 >acres for development if a roof were built over it. Mr. de Blasio¹s aides >say a study on how to do that will soon begin in earnest. The mayor also >announced plans for expanded five-borough ferry service and more express >buses, a recognition that all this new housing will surely strain >existing transportation.

>

>In one sense, the de Blasio strategy is Bloombergism with a twist, given >that the former mayor also committed himself to affordable housing, >rezoned vast stretches of the city and turned his three terms into a >glorious era for developers. But while Michael Bloomberg was a >businessman who dreamed of things like football stadiums, Mr. de Blasio >says he is focused on affordable housing and will fight harder for it < >taking on reluctant developers, predatory landlords and skeptical >neighbors.

>

>His goal is to persuade New Yorkers that only by building more, and >building higher, will the city be able to hold onto its working and >middle classes. While he acknowledged that the city needs more of all >kinds of housing < his plan envisions 160,000 new market-rate units, >including luxury apartments < his speech, and heart, were clearly aimed >at working-class neighborhoods like the Rockaways and the South Bronx, >and ordinary New Yorkers like the city workers who had a role in >Tuesday's ceremony.

>

>Mr. de Blasio deserves credit for accomplishing some big things in his >first year, notably the prekindergarten expansion, and he gives every >indication of focusing just as intensely and productively on housing in >the years to come. But it almost goes without saying that his ability to >focus on one big thing will inevitably be tested.

>

>Running the city is like living in a batting cage, with high heat coming >from all directions. Mr. de Blasio skated lightly over and around >nonhousing challenges on Tuesday. He made no mention of last year's >bitter struggle with the Police Department, or the spike in shootings and >homicides in January that runs counter to the crime statistics he cites >so proudly and often.

>

>There was very little talk of street homelessness, though he did mention >a renewed effort to house homeless veterans. Also left unsaid was how he >was going to enlist state government in fulfilling his ambitions. Gov.
>Andrew Cuomo, who seems to love cutting the mayor down to size, wasted no >time in declaring on Tuesday that the Sunnyside Yards plan was >unworkable, because the state has other plans for the property.

>

>Mr. de Blasio shouldn't fold, or accept the way things are, just because >the governor says no. He should think big and fight on.

>

>###

>

From: Glen, Alicia
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Norvell, Wiley; Blumm, Kate
Subject: Re: Great ending too
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 8:55:22 PM

Shazamm

----- Original Message -----

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 08:03 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Norvell, Wiley; Blumm, Kate
Subject: Great ending too

Editorial: Bill de Blasio's Big Plans for New York
NY TIMES - Editorial

<http://www.nytimes.com/2015/02/04/opinion/bill-de-blasios-big-plans-for-new-york.html>

Give Mayor Bill de Blasio time and he can toss out a lot of numbers. It's what he did in his State of the City Address on Tuesday: nearly half-a-million potholes filled in 2014, a plan to cut greenhouse gases by 80 percent by 2050, a 65 percent drop in marijuana arrests, 1.6 million calls answered by the New York Fire Department.

But the most important number in the speech was 200,000. That is how many affordable housing units he says the city will build (80,000) or preserve (120,000) over the next decade.

Mr. de Blasio is entering the monumental phase of his mayoralty, taking the lofty yet vague theme that guided his campaign — ending inequality — and promising to make it concrete, literally. He laid out a vision of a denser but more affordable city, via a construction binge that would somehow solve the apparent paradox of New York: a city so appealing that nobody can afford to live in it. Mr. de Blasio's speech was a ringing defense of the interests of what he called "our people," the individuals and families who live in constant worry about the day the rent comes due or the lease is up.

The speech was broad-brush, as it had to be, but it offered an abundance of intriguing proposals. It called for rezoning in six neighborhoods — East Harlem, East New York, a stretch of Jerome Avenue in the Bronx, Long Island City, the western part of Flushing and Stapleton on Staten Island — where new construction will have to include some mandatory percentage of housing priced below market rates, so that people within a range of (modest) income levels can afford it. Mr. de Blasio also promised that the city would set aside money for free legal representation for tenants in rezoned areas who have to fight abusive landlords in housing court.

Perhaps the most vaulting ambition is a plan to build big at Sunnyside Yards, the convergence of railroad lines in Queens that would yield 200 acres for development if a roof were built over it. Mr. de Blasio's aides say a study on how to do that will soon begin in earnest. The mayor also announced plans for expanded five-borough ferry service and more express buses, a recognition that all this new housing will surely strain existing transportation.

In one sense, the de Blasio strategy is Bloombergism with a twist, given that the former mayor also committed himself to affordable housing, rezoned vast stretches of the city and turned his three terms into a glorious era for developers. But while Michael Bloomberg was a businessman who dreamed of things like football stadiums, Mr. de Blasio says he is focused on affordable housing and will fight harder for it — taking on reluctant developers, predatory landlords and skeptical neighbors.

His goal is to persuade New Yorkers that only by building more, and building higher, will the city be able to hold onto its working and middle classes. While he acknowledged that the city needs more of all kinds of housing — his plan envisions 160,000 new market-rate units, including luxury apartments — his speech, and heart, were clearly aimed at working-class neighborhoods like the Rockaways and the South Bronx, and ordinary New Yorkers like the city workers who had a role in Tuesday's ceremony.

Mr. de Blasio deserves credit for accomplishing some big things in his first year, notably the prekindergarten expansion, and he gives every indication of focusing just as intensely and productively on housing in the years to come. But it almost goes without saying that his ability to focus on one big thing will inevitably be tested.

Running the city is like living in a batting cage, with high heat coming from all directions. Mr. de Blasio skated lightly over and around nonhousing challenges on Tuesday. He made no mention of last year's bitter struggle with the Police Department, or the spike in shootings and homicides in January that runs counter to the crime statistics he cites so proudly and often.

There was very little talk of street homelessness, though he did mention a renewed effort to house homeless veterans. Also left unsaid was how he was going to enlist state government in fulfilling his ambitions. Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who seems to love cutting the mayor down to size, wasted no time in declaring on Tuesday that the Sunnyside Yards plan was unworkable, because the state has other plans for the property.

Mr. de Blasio shouldn't fold, or accept the way things are, just because the governor says no. He should think big and fight on.

###

From: Glen, Alicia
To: Shorris, Anthony; Walzak, Phil
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmmedia.com"; Williams, Dominic; Norvell, Wiley; Blumm, Kate
Subject: Re: Great ending too
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 8:56:05 PM

Commend Wiley for prepping and guiding me through the Ed Board this afternoon!!!!!!!

----- Original Message -----

From: Shorris, Anthony
Sent: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 08:09 PM
To: Walzak, Phil
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; Wolfe, Emma; jfdc@akpdmmedia.com <jfdc@akpdmmedia.com>; Williams, Dominic; Norvell, Wiley; Blumm, Kate
Subject: Re: Great ending too

Last line should be our motto for the rest of the next term (or two).

Great job by the whole team.

Anthony E. Shorris
First Deputy Mayor
City of New York
City Hall
New York, NY 10007
212-788-3191

> On Feb 3, 2015, at 8:03 PM, Walzak, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
>
>
> Editorial: Bill de Blasio's Big Plans for New York
> NY TIMES - Editorial
> <http://www.nytimes.com/2015/02/04/opinion/bill-de-blasios-big-plans-for-new-york.html>
>
> Give Mayor Bill de Blasio time and he can toss out a lot of numbers. It's what he did in his State of the City Address on Tuesday: nearly half-a-million potholes filled in 2014, a plan to cut greenhouse gases by 80 percent by 2050, a 65 percent drop in marijuana arrests, 1.6 million calls answered by the New York Fire Department.
>
> But the most important number in the speech was 200,000. That is how many affordable housing units he says the city will build (80,000) or preserve (120,000) over the next decade.
>
> Mr. de Blasio is entering the monumental phase of his mayoralty, taking the lofty yet vague theme that guided his campaign — ending inequality — and promising to make it concrete, literally. He laid out a vision of a denser but more affordable city, via a construction binge that would somehow solve the apparent paradox of New York: a city so appealing that nobody can afford to live in it. Mr. de Blasio's speech was a ringing defense of the interests of what he called "our people," the individuals and families who live in constant worry about the day the rent comes due or the lease is up.
>
> The speech was broad-brush, as it had to be, but it offered an abundance of intriguing proposals. It called for rezoning in six neighborhoods — East Harlem, East New York, a stretch of Jerome Avenue in the Bronx, Long Island City, the western part of Flushing and Stapleton on Staten Island — where new construction will have to include some mandatory percentage of housing priced below market rates, so that people within a range of (modest) income levels can afford it. Mr. de Blasio also promised that the city would set aside money for free legal representation for tenants in rezoned areas who have to fight abusive landlords in housing court.

>

> Perhaps the most vaulting ambition is a plan to build big at Sunnyside Yards, the convergence of railroad lines in Queens that would yield 200 acres for development if a roof were built over it. Mr. de Blasio's aides say a study on how to do that will soon begin in earnest. The mayor also announced plans for expanded five-borough ferry service and more express buses, a recognition that all this new housing will surely strain existing transportation.

>

> In one sense, the de Blasio strategy is Bloombergism with a twist, given that the former mayor also committed himself to affordable housing, rezoned vast stretches of the city and turned his three terms into a glorious era for developers. But while Michael Bloomberg was a businessman who dreamed of things like football stadiums, Mr. de Blasio says he is focused on affordable housing and will fight harder for it — taking on reluctant developers, predatory landlords and skeptical neighbors.

>

> His goal is to persuade New Yorkers that only by building more, and building higher, will the city be able to hold onto its working and middle classes. While he acknowledged that the city needs more of all kinds of housing — his plan envisions 160,000 new market-rate units, including luxury apartments — his speech, and heart, were clearly aimed at working-class neighborhoods like the Rockaways and the South Bronx, and ordinary New Yorkers like the city workers who had a role in Tuesday's ceremony.

>

> Mr. de Blasio deserves credit for accomplishing some big things in his first year, notably the prekindergarten expansion, and he gives every indication of focusing just as intensely and productively on housing in the years to come. But it almost goes without saying that his ability to focus on one big thing will inevitably be tested.

>

> Running the city is like living in a batting cage, with high heat coming from all directions. Mr. de Blasio skated lightly over and around nonhousing challenges on Tuesday. He made no mention of last year's bitter struggle with the Police Department, or the spike in shootings and homicides in January that runs counter to the crime statistics he cites so proudly and often.

>

> There was very little talk of street homelessness, though he did mention a renewed effort to house homeless veterans. Also left unsaid was how he was going to enlist state government in fulfilling his ambitions. Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who seems to love cutting the mayor down to size, wasted no time in declaring on Tuesday that the Sunnyside Yards plan was unworkable, because the state has other plans for the property.

>

> Mr. de Blasio shouldn't fold, or accept the way things are, just because the governor says no. He should think big and fight on.

>

> ###

>

From: Wolfe, Emma
To: Shorris, Anthony
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Ragone, Peter; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Williams, Dominic; Norvell, Wiley; Blumm, Kate
Subject: Re: Great ending too
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 9:36:24 PM

Rock on

> On Feb 3, 2015, at 8:09 PM, Shorris, Anthony <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> Last line should be our motto for the rest of the next term (or two).

>

> Great job by the whole team.

>

>

>

> Anthony E. Shorris

> First Deputy Mayor

> City of New York

> City Hall

> New York, NY 10007

> 212-788-3191

>

>

>> On Feb 3, 2015, at 8:03 PM, Walzak, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>>

>>

>> Editorial: Bill de Blasio's Big Plans for New York

>> NY TIMES - Editorial

>> <http://www.nytimes.com/2015/02/04/opinion/bill-de-blasios-big-plans-for-new-york.html>

>>

>> Give Mayor Bill de Blasio time and he can toss out a lot of numbers. It's what he did in his State of the City Address on Tuesday: nearly half-a-million potholes filled in 2014, a plan to cut greenhouse gases by 80 percent by 2050, a 65 percent drop in marijuana arrests, 1.6 million calls answered by the New York Fire Department.

>>

>> But the most important number in the speech was 200,000. That is how many affordable housing units he says the city will build (80,000) or preserve (120,000) over the next decade.

>>

>> Mr. de Blasio is entering the monumental phase of his mayoralty, taking the lofty yet vague theme that guided his campaign — ending inequality — and promising to make it concrete, literally. He laid out a vision of a denser but more affordable city, via a construction binge that would somehow solve the apparent paradox of New York: a city so appealing that nobody can afford to live in it. Mr. de Blasio's speech was a ringing defense of the interests of what he called "our people," the individuals and families who live in constant worry about the day the rent comes due or the lease is up.

>>

>> The speech was broad-brush, as it had to be, but it offered an abundance of intriguing proposals. It called for rezoning in six neighborhoods — East Harlem, East New York, a stretch of Jerome Avenue in the Bronx, Long Island City, the western part of Flushing and Stapleton on Staten Island — where new construction will have to include some mandatory percentage of housing priced below market rates, so that people within a range of (modest) income levels can afford it. Mr. de Blasio also promised that the city would set aside money for free legal representation for tenants in rezoned areas who have to fight abusive landlords in housing court.

>>

>> Perhaps the most vaulting ambition is a plan to build big at Sunnyside Yards, the convergence of railroad lines in Queens that would yield 200 acres for development if a roof were built over it. Mr. de Blasio's aides say a study on how to do that will soon begin in earnest. The mayor also announced plans for expanded five-borough ferry service and more express buses, a recognition that all this new housing will surely strain existing transportation.

>>

>> In one sense, the de Blasio strategy is Bloombergism with a twist, given that the former mayor also committed himself to affordable housing, rezoned vast stretches of the city and turned his three terms into a glorious era for developers. But while Michael Bloomberg was a businessman who dreamed of things like football stadiums, Mr. de Blasio says he is focused on affordable housing and will fight harder for it — taking on reluctant developers, predatory landlords and skeptical neighbors.

>>

>> His goal is to persuade New Yorkers that only by building more, and building higher, will the city be able to hold onto its working and middle classes. While he acknowledged that the city needs more of all kinds of housing — his plan envisions 160,000 new market-rate units, including luxury apartments — his speech, and heart, were clearly aimed at working-class neighborhoods like the Rockaways and the South Bronx, and ordinary New Yorkers like the city workers who had a role in Tuesday's ceremony.

>>

>> Mr. de Blasio deserves credit for accomplishing some big things in his first year, notably the prekindergarten expansion, and he gives every indication of focusing just as intensely and productively on housing in the years to come. But it almost goes without saying that his ability to focus on one big thing will inevitably be tested.

>>

>> Running the city is like living in a batting cage, with high heat coming from all directions. Mr. de Blasio skated lightly over and around nonhousing challenges on Tuesday. He made no mention of last year's bitter struggle with the Police Department, or the spike in shootings and homicides in January that runs counter to the crime statistics he cites so proudly and often.

>>

>> There was very little talk of street homelessness, though he did mention a renewed effort to house homeless veterans. Also left unsaid was how he was going to enlist state government in fulfilling his ambitions. Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who seems to love cutting the mayor down to size, wasted no time in declaring on Tuesday that the Sunnyside Yards plan was unworkable, because the state has other plans for the property.

>>

>> Mr. de Blasio shouldn't fold, or accept the way things are, just because the governor says no. He should think big and fight on.

>>

>> ###

>>

From: John Del Cecato
To: Wiley, Maya
Subject: Re: Inspiring
Date: Tuesday, February 03, 2015 11:29:02 PM

Aw - thanks Maya - really appreciate it - that means a lot to me!

On 2/3/15, 11:05 PM, "Wiley, Maya" <MWiley@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>You did a really great job. Lots of folks were really inspired. Including >me.

>

>Sent from my iPhone

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Dodge, Ryan; Bray, Jackie
Subject: CMC remarks on Mental Health
Date: Wednesday, February 04, 2015 3:29:03 PM

First Lady Chirlane Mccray Delivers Remarks at the 'From Punishment to Public Health' (P2Ph) 2015 Conference in Brooklyn

January 28, 2015

Remarks as Prepared for Delivery

Thank you, Eric. The people of Brooklyn are lucky to have you for a Borough President—and our family is lucky to have you as a friend.

And thank you NYC Council Member Andrew Cohen, Chair of the Mental Health Committee.

I know that Bill was proud to be an early member of Team Andrew, and I can't think of a better person to lead this important committee. I look forward to working with Andrew on our shared priorities in the years to come.

Speaking of shared priorities, I'm grateful to two people who have been so generous with their time and expertise, both of whom are with us today: Dr. Mary Bassett, Commissioner of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene; and Dr. Gary Belkin, her Executive Deputy Commissioner for Mental Hygiene.

And, I thank everyone who helped put this conference together, especially Jeff Coots and Alice Cini.

As soon as I learned about this gathering, I knew it was the right opportunity for me to announce a new initiative that is close to my heart.

It's difficult for me to pinpoint the exact moment when mental illness first touched my life, but it's likely that I was quite young.

Both my mother, a daughter of immigrants, and my father, a World War II veteran, struggled with depression—although neither one of them would have called it that. They were hardworking, committed parents. And to their enormous credit, even when they experienced periods of intense sadness, they tried their best to give their children all we needed.

When I left Massachusetts in 1977 for New York City, I had no idea how I would adjust to big-city life. But I started working in the publishing industry, with magazines, and I loved it.

Every day I was surrounded by words, and I got to help create the glossy publications I had hungrily devoured in doctor's offices back home. And my co-workers? Well, they were everything I imagined New Yorkers to be: smart, confident, and in complete control of their sophisticated lives.

Or at least that's how it seemed. One day, after I had just started a new job, I asked about the person who used to hold the position. And that led to one of those, "What did I say wrong?" moments.

People were visibly flustered. They were unable to find the precise words to describe what had happened. In whispers, they talked about an "abrupt personality change" and a "breakdown."

And that's all anyone would say before quickly changing the subject.

Which of course made me even more curious. But, I did not want to be impolite or make anyone feel uncomfortable.

So I let the conversation drop—because the message I was getting was clear. The way a sophisticated New Yorker handles this kind of thing is to not talk about it. Pretend it isn't there. Get on with your life.

Well, I have big news for all of you today. We're about to send New Yorkers a different kind of message.

Today, I am proud to announce that the Mayor's Fund to Advance New York City is making a long-term commitment to the ongoing effort to build a better mental health system.

The Mayor's Fund—which I lead as Board Chair—will work with DOHMH and the Fund for Public Health to create a roadmap for a more inclusive mental health system.

We are approaching this work through a "public health" lens.

That means we will not focus only on specific high-need illnesses and their impact on individuals.

We're going to take a bird's-eye view and look at the range of conditions that affect entire communities.

The roadmap will be structured around two key objectives:

First, we will describe the burden of mental illness on New Yorkers.

That means we will present information on the prevalence of common conditions like depression, anxiety and addiction.

And just how common are these diseases? The numbers are eye-opening. In any given year, it is estimated that 7 percent of adults in the United States are affected by depression; 18 percent are affected by anxiety; and 8.2 percent of Americans 12 or older are affected by a substance abuse disorder.

In our roadmap, we will also describe the economic, social and personal costs of these conditions.

And we will map the disparity in services that exists between groups and neighborhoods.

Because we know that many communities do not have access to good resources, and as a result their burden is greater.

Our second objective is to outline a plan. We will lay out a series of actions that address the needs and disparities we identify.

This is not going to be one of those reports that takes forever to complete, only to languish on a dusty shelf.

We will release the roadmap this summer. And soon after, the Mayor's Fund will commit resources to pursue its findings.

At the same time, DOHMH will work with its fellow agencies and City Hall to make sure that what we learn is incorporated into City policies and programs.

We are creating this roadmap because even as science has made advances in treatment options and therapy has grown more acceptable, too many of our policies and programs still address mental illness in a less-than-helpful way.

And that's because too many of us aren't yet ready to face up to the presence of mental illness in our lives. We ignore it. We sweep it under the rug. We cross the street.

But no matter how hard we try to avoid it, the truly shocking reality is that our city and nation are experiencing a mental health crisis.

As the statistics make clear, the pain of depression and anxiety is everywhere. We can see it in our family members, our friends, and our co-workers.

I have to tell you that my way of thinking about all this changed dramatically when our daughter, Chiara, revealed to us that she was struggling with depression, anxiety, and substance abuse.

I felt everything you'd expect a mother to feel. Love for her, first and foremost. But also guilt, fear, and a great deal of uncertainty.

It was quite a task for us to find affordable mental health professionals and a program to meet Chiara's needs. The needs of our daughter, who is no longer a child and not quite an adult. A young woman who has become an edgy biracial activist.

I'm proud to say that Chiara is kicking butt at recovery—and she's working really hard to help other young people dealing with similar challenges.

So after everything I've experienced and after seeing one of the people I love most in the world suffer so much, I find myself talking every day about the mental health crisis facing our city. Talking to Bill. To my colleagues. To anyone who will listen.

Our family is lucky—we lead a comfortable life. And yet it was really hard for us to get our daughter appropriate help. So can you imagine what it must be like for the 46 percent of New Yorkers living at or near the poverty line? What is it like for a woman who speaks only Spanish? An African American father living in Brownsville? A grandmother raising her grandchild? Or someone who was formerly incarcerated?

All of these questions lead to a larger one: What can we do as a city to make sure that everyone has access to the mental health services they need?

I've devoted a lot of time over the last year to exploring that question.

I was inspired by a visit I made to the Manhattan Family Justice Center.

As some of you may know, the centers are a one-stop resource for the victims of domestic violence. They're places where one can access a wide array of services—including counseling. And all of the City's four centers are supported by the Mayor's Fund.

When I was at the Manhattan Center, I spent some time talking to the counselors. Three things quickly became clear. First, they are doing amazing work. Second, they need more help. And third, we need more culturally-appropriate counselors.

Despite everyone's best efforts, the demand for mental health services is simply exceeding our capacity.

Following that visit, I reached out to Commissioner Bassett. I wanted to find out what her team was doing around mental health, if there were alternative models we could be employing, and how I could help.

She was happy to hear from me, and eager to let me know that DOHMH and a diverse team of stakeholders were indeed thinking about how to create a network of services—a network that would be wide enough to encompass all five boroughs... and strong enough to support everyone who needs help, even those dealing with the weightiest challenges.

So last week, I had the chance to see a program that would fit right into this network.

At the invitation of Dr. Belkin, I visited the Family Resource Center of the Southern Bronx.

Although their names are similar, Family Resource Centers are much different than Family Justice Centers.

Family Resource Centers provide support to the parents and caregivers of young people who have—or are at risk of developing—emotional and behavioral challenges.

If that description sounds a little generic, the help they provide is not.

What blew me away is that the Resource Centers are staffed by people who can truly relate to what their clients are going through—and that's because they've been there.

Every Family Advocate has personal, first-hand experience raising a child with special needs, and connecting them to effective programs and services.

They have already navigated through the frustration. They have already shed the tears.

The pain of seeing their child suffer—and the joy of making things right—is just a memory away. They “get it” in a way that can't be taught. And this allows them to connect to their clients in the deepest way.

I'm thinking now about a conversation I had with Darleen, her son Darryl, and their Family Advocate, Michelle.

Darryl was one of those kids you can't help but like. He had big, round, soft brown eyes and was rocking these amazing tie-dyed pants.

What brought Darleen and Darryl to the center was his struggle to manage his anger.

At the center, Darryl was able to talk through his frustrations in a safe, non-judgmental environment. He also learned coping techniques—things he can do to calm himself. Two of his favorites are cooking and drawing.

While we were talking, he passed around his phone so we could see a photo of his recent artwork, and it was really good. I know Darryl has a bright future ahead of him.

And so does his mom. Darleen and Michelle, her Family Advocate, talked like old friends—people who have been through a lot together.

There are a total of nine Family Resource Centers throughout the five boroughs, serving almost 3,000 people annually. And while that's great, everyone agrees—it's not nearly enough!

That's why I am so excited to announce the roadmap that will guide us toward a more inclusive mental health system.

This administration is not going to walk on by and pretend the mental health crisis doesn't exist. We're going to make a plan.

And then, we're going to back that plan up with people and programs.

I hope you will consider partnering with us. If you like where we're headed, will you please raise your hands?

That's wonderful! Because we cannot do this work alone.

With your partnership, we can create that network I was talking about—one that is as big and inclusive as the city we love.

With your expertise, we can make sure the network reflects our very best thinking.

And with your energy, we can create a healthier—and happier—New York.

Thank you!

pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 788-2958

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B; John Del Cecato
Subject: Politico: David Brock resigns from Hillary Clinton PAC
Date: Monday, February 09, 2015 7:53:43 PM

David Brock resigns from Hillary Clinton PAC

By Kenneth P. Vogel

2/9/15 2:42 PM EST

David Brock on Monday abruptly resigned from the board of the super PAC Priorities USA Action, revealing rifts that threaten the big-money juggernaut being built to support Hillary Clinton's expected presidential campaign.

In a resignation letter obtained by POLITICO, Brock, a close Clinton ally, accused Priorities officials of planting "an orchestrated political hit job" against his own pro-Clinton groups, American Bridge and Media Matters.

Those groups – along with another pro-Clinton group, the super PAC Ready for Hillary – had their fundraising practices called into question last week by a New York Times report. It pointed out that veteran Democratic fundraiser Mary Pat Bonner got a 12.5 percent commission on funds she raised for Brock's groups, and a smaller percentage commission on cash she raised for Ready for Hillary.

In his letter to the co-chairs of Priorities' board – former Michigan Gov. Jennifer Granholm and former Obama campaign manager Jim Messina – Brock alleged that "current and former Priorities officials were behind this specious and malicious attack on the integrity of these critical organizations."

The letter – and Brock's resignation – offer a rare glimpse into a network of groups upon which Democrats are relying to keep the White House and stave off increasingly robust big-money efforts on the right. The public airing of dirty laundry comes as sources say Priorities is struggling to live up to the hopes of some Clinton allies, who had argued it should aim to raise as much as $500 million to eviscerate prospective Clinton rivals in the primary and general elections.

Brock, who spent his early career in Washington as a self-described "right-wing hit man" before experiencing a political awakening and emerging as the leader of an empire of hard-hitting liberal attack groups, contends in his letter that Priorities is trying to damage his groups' fundraising efforts, "while presumably enhancing Priorities' own. Frankly, this is the kind of dirty trick I've witnessed in the right-wing and would not tolerate then. Our Democratic Presidential nominee deserves better than people who would risk the next election – and our country's future – for their own personal agendas."

Brock did not respond to requests for comment about the letter, his group's relationship with Bonner or with the other big-money groups boosting Clinton.

Craig Smith, a senior advisor to Ready for Hillary, said his group is still working with Bonner, as well as with Priorities and Brock's groups. "We have worked with them for almost two years. We continue to work with them. We all do very different things, so there's not a lot of overlap."

Asked if he thought rivals on the left were circulating negative information on Bonner, he said “I would hope not. Not that I’m aware of.”

Priorities spokesman Peter Kauffmann denied that Priorities had anything to do with the Times story, which also noted that his group paid fundraising commission on at least $2 million worth of checks, including from California tech billionaire Irwin Jacobs. Sources say Jacobs was upset by the revelations.

Kauffmann said Priorities is no longer paying fundraising commissions, and that it maintains close working relationships with the other groups boosting Clinton.

“Priorities USA Action and allied organizations demonstrated a clear ability to work together effectively in 2012 and we look to replicate that success again in 2016,” he said.

Still, Priorities and Ready for Hillary do to some extent compete with one another – and with Brock’s outfits – for big checks from wealthy Clinton backers. At one point, Priorities’ allies tried to force Ready for Hillary to shut down. But the groups – along with Brock’s – eventually entered into a sometimes uneasy alliance to lay the groundwork for the former Secretary of State to run for president in 2016. Together, the groups formed an unprecedented shadow campaign that combined to raise millions in 2014. American Bridge’s Correct the Record Project defends Clinton against political attacks, while Ready for Hillary builds files of voter and small donors, and Priorities cultivates relationships with major donors.

The idea was both to build an infrastructure that would allow Clinton to hit the ground running if and when she declared her candidacy for the Democratic nomination and also to project a financial show of force that would overwhelm any prospective rival in the primary or general elections.

The in-fighting is an ominous sign. It calls to mind the squabbles that helped sink Clinton’s 2008 presidential campaign. It, too, was regarded as an unrivaled cash juggernaut, but feuding among cliques of supporters stymied efforts to launch a planned big-money outside effort in time to neutralize a surprisingly robust insurgent primary challenge from Barack Obama.

This time around, her allies tried to preempt the sectarianism by cross-pollinating the various groups to keep everyone on the same page and minimize competition. Granholm is on the boards of both Priorities and Ready for Hillary, while Brock joined the board of Priorities, and longtime Clintonite James Carville has been paid by American Bridge for assistance with fundraising and strategic advice.

But there also are more groups competing for big checks from rich Clinton backers than there were in 2008.

In his resignation letter, Brock asserted a “serious breach of trust between organizations that are supposed to work together toward common ends has created an untenable situation that leaves me no choice but to resign my position.”

<http://www.politico.com/story/2015/02/david-brock-resigns-priorities-usa-action-115028.html?ml=po>

From: Jonathan Rosen
To: Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Shorris, Anthony; Katz, Rebecca; Carey, Michael; John, Roxanne; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Wiley, Maya; Griffith, Chantell; Howe, Amanda; Leopold, Elana; Walzak, Phil; Darlington, Mandy \(OMB\); Williams, Dominic; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\)
Subject: Re: MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Wednesday, February 11, 2015 7:11:34 PM

Same

Sent from my iPhone

> On Feb 11, 2015, at 7:09 PM, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> Same here me and Phil
>
>
>
>> On Feb 11, 2015, at 7:08 PM, Shorris, Anthony <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>
>> On the way there -- traffic -- there in 5-10 minutes.
>>
>>
>>
>> Anthony E. Shorris
>> First Deputy Mayor
>> City of New York
>> City Hall
>> New York, NY 10007
>> 212-788-3191
>>
>>
>>> On Feb 11, 2015, at 7:07 PM, Katz, Rebecca <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>>
>>> Mayor and First Lady are here. Where is everyone?
>>>
>>> Sent from my iPhone
>>>
>>>> On Feb 10, 2015, at 6:19 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> <meeting.ics>

From: Wiley, Maya
To: Leopold, Elana
Cc: Wolfe, Emma; Shorris, Anthony; Katz, Rebecca; Carey, Michael; John, Roxanne; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Griffith, Chantell; Howe, Amanda; Walzak, Phil; "Jonathan@berlinrosen.com" (Jonathan@berlinrosen.com); Darlington, Mandy \(OMB\); Williams, Dominic; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\)
Subject: Re: MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Wednesday, February 11, 2015 8:06:00 PM

Ok. Almost there.

Sent from my iPhone

> On Feb 11, 2015, at 7:56 PM, "Leopold, Elana" <ELEopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> Didn't start till 7:30. We haven't even started our formal agenda.

>

> Sent from my iPhone

>

>> On Feb 11, 2015, at 7:55 PM, Wiley, Maya <MWiley@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>> Had a meeting and on my way. Is it still worth coming?

>>

>> Sent from my iPhone

>>

>>> On Feb 11, 2015, at 7:09 PM, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>>

>>> Same here me and Phil

>>>

>>>

>>>

>>>> On Feb 11, 2015, at 7:08 PM, Shorris, Anthony <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>>>

>>>> On the way there -- traffic -- there in 5-10 minutes.

>>>>

>>>>

>>>>

>>>> Anthony E. Shorris

>>>> First Deputy Mayor

>>>> City of New York

>>>> City Hall

>>>> New York, NY 10007

>>>> 212-788-3191

>>>>

>>>>

>>>>> On Feb 11, 2015, at 7:07 PM, Katz, Rebecca <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>>>>

>>>>> Mayor and First Lady are here. Where is everyone?

>>>>>

>>>>> Sent from my iPhone

>>>>>

>>>>>> On Feb 10, 2015, at 6:19 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>>>>>

>>>>>>

>>>>>>

>>>>>> <meeting.ics>

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B; FLONYC; Ragone, Peter; Walzak, Phil; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelqans, Andrea
Subject: The Nation: Why Did a 'Liberal' Critique of Bill de Blasio Distort His Record?
Date: Thursday, February 12, 2015 10:30:46 AM

From the man writing the E-Book. Good stuff.

Why Did a 'Liberal' Critique of Bill de Blasio Distort His Record?

Noam Scheiber says the mayor should focus more on economic populism—but neglects to mention his big wins for New Yorkers.

Eric Alterman

February 11, 2015 | This article appeared in the March 2-9, 2015 edition of The Nation.

One undeniable success of the right's decades-long campaign against the so-called liberal media can be seen in the eagerness of so many journalists to adopt conservatives' terms of debate in order to pre-empt accusations of liberal bias. Rather incredibly, this happens when allegedly liberal reporters profess to be defending liberalism from its enemies—enemies who often turn out to be (you guessed it) liberals.

Today's Exhibit A is "De Blasio's Flawed Vision of Liberalism," a critique of New York Mayor Bill de Blasio by reporter Noam Scheiber, written for the January 25 edition of The New York Times's "Sunday Review." According to Scheiber, a veteran of the Marty Peretz—era New Republic, de Blasio's 2013 landslide victory "fused two distinct strands of progressivism." These were "economic populism," which appeals to almost everyone, and "identity group' liberalism," which appeals to black and Latino voters "as blacks and Latinos, not on the basis of economic interests they shared with whites." According to Scheiber, "The problem for Mr. de Blasio is that only the first approach has widespread appeal."

Now, had Scheiber made this argument honestly, I would be cheering him on. The argument that liberals must prioritize economics over identity politics at a national level runs through nearly every page of my history of postwar American liberalism (The Cause, 2012) and has been a frequent theme of this column. Instead, he chooses to distort de Blasio's record to fit the contours of his ideology.

Take, for example, Scheiber's complaint about what he calls the mayor's "ham-handed showdowns with Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo." I had to reread this sentence to make sure it was as dishonest as it initially appeared. Alas, another way to describe de Blasio's "ham-handed showdown" with the governor—who, together with the State Legislature, controls most of the purse strings for the city—would be "the successful effort to secure $300 million worth of state funding in order to provide universal pre-K education to every four-year-old in New York City." Were Scheiber reading the same paper's editorial page, he would have seen this achievement described as "a milestone of education reform" for a "small city's worth of children" and their families. A more impressive example of economic liberalism at work is difficult to imagine. And yet, amazingly, Scheiber does not even mention it.

Nor does he mention, just for starters, de Blasio's successful efforts to allocate additional funding for after-school programs for all New York schoolchildren, his expansion of sick-leave and family-leave policies, his raising of living-wage requirements for companies doing business with the city, his successful demands for additional affordable housing from developers, or his fights in Albany to allow the city to raise the minimum wage to what would be the highest in the nation. True, de Blasio was caught off guard when Cuomo stabbed him in the back on the issue of charter school expansions and was forced to beat a humiliating retreat. But charter schools educate only 6 percent of the city's 1.1 million public schoolchildren. Additional funding for them may be important to the hedge fund managers who bankroll political campaigns, along with a few right-wing editorial pages and pundits, but like de Blasio, most New Yorkers are far more concerned about the school system that serves the other 94 percent.

As for the identity politics component of de Blasio's agenda, well, it would be nice to live in a place where progressives were not divided across lines of race, ethnicity, gender and sexuality. Unfortunately that is not the world—and certainly not the New York—that reality has delivered. Scheiber mocks de Blasio's commitment to end predecessor Michael Bloomberg's "stop and frisk" policies. He does not note that the courts eventually declared these to be unconstitutional, nor the fact that of the more than 2 million such stops that the NYPD made between 2008 and 2012, according to statistics compiled by the New York Civil Liberties Union, nearly 90 percent of those victimized were innocent and fewer than 10 percent happened to be white.

It's a shame that ending this oppressive and ineffective policy was not a higher priority for white voters, but it turns out that they are a minority of New York City Democratic primary voters these days. In the meantime, one can be pretty damn sure that the issue mattered a great deal to black and Latino voters, who are about nine times as likely to be stopped and frisked as their white counterparts. Would de Blasio be mayor today had he not been the only major candidate in the race to promise to end the practice outright? History does not play "what if," but his victory undoubtedly had a great deal to do with this bold position.

Scheiber quotes opinion polls dated nearly three years before the next election as if they matter, but of course what matters are actual votes cast. De Blasio is betting that by delivering on his campaign promises in the areas of both economic inequality and social justice, he can assure himself not only re-election but the ability to transform the way New York City government operates on behalf of the vast majority of its citizens—the ones Bloomberg all but ignored while tending to the needs of Russian oligarchs and Goldman Sachs CEOs. "Get to the basics of what we came here to do, say it squarely, say it in a definitive manner, and then organize people consistently to act on it": that's the "paradigm shift" de Blasio has in mind, as he explains in my new e-book/paperback-on-demand, Inequality and One City: Bill de Blasio and the New York Experiment, Year One (available at thenation.com/ebooks on February 16). It's a shame that so many journalists—even "liberal" journalists—feel a need to deny his accomplishments in order to distort that truth.

--

Rebecca Kirszner Katz
Office of the Mayor
(212) 788-3112

rkkatz@cityhall.nyc.gov
@RebeccaKKatz

From: Carey, Michael
To: "Jon Fromowitz"
Subject: RE: MBDB: Internal Prep for ABNY Breakfast
Date: Thursday, February 12, 2015 12:21:21 PM

Correct
In person.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall

From: Jon Fromowitz [mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Thursday, February 12, 2015 12:03 PM
To: Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: MBDB: Internal Prep for ABNY Breakfast

Am I interpreting correctly that this is now an in person thing instead of a call? I am out of town, but I'm sure jdc could fill me in after....

On Feb 12, 2015, at 11:41 AM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

<mime-attachment.ics>

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"; Chao, Raymond; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Hagelgans, Andrea; Patchett, James; Fink, Carolee; Glen, Alicia; Miranda, Josephine; Bennett, Rob
Subject: MBDB: Internal Prep for ABNY Breakfast
Date: Thursday, February 12, 2015 6:08:39 PM

Prep will start in 10 min

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
To: Sevillia, Max; Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]); Carey, Michael; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Chow, Eugene
Subject: MBDB at USCM on Saturday
Date: Thursday, February 12, 2015 6:34:13 PM

On Saturday, from 11:45 AM – 12:00 PM, MBDB will be the final speaker during the opening remarks at USCM. John, do you want to work with our speechwriting team to put these together? Roughly 10 minutes of remarks.

For awareness, he will then do one on ones with 2-3 other mayors before leaving for Albany.

--

Opening Remarks & Commissioner's Welcome

Introduction: Kevin Johnson, Mayor of Sacramento, USCM President

Guest: Adam Silver, NBA Commissioner

Commissioner Silver will welcome the nation's Mayors and discuss the current health and well-being of the league. He will also discuss the need for municipal cooperation for the NBA and the role that Mayors can play within that dynamic.

From: Chow, Eugene
To: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Parikh, Ishanee; @EQ; Walters, Alexis; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Remarks: USCM NBA Session
Date: Friday, February 13, 2015 6:37:03 PM
Attachments: 2-14-2015USCM WINTER SESSION.doc

Brief remarks for tomorrow's USCM NBA session with Commissioner Silver. Let me know if you have any comments/suggestions.

Thanks,
Eugene

Eugene K. Chow
Speechwriter
Mayor's Office
o: 212-341-5096
e: echow@cityhall.nyc.gov

OPEN PRESS

MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO,
USCM WINTER MEETING
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2015

REMARKS:

- Thank you Mayor [Kevin] Johnson
 - Our very own NBA star
 - Glad he's suiting up for our team
- Begin by thanking NBA Commissioner Adam Silver
- Yesterday, Commissioner Silver and I unveiled refurbished basketball court at City School in Hell's Kitchen
- Part of NBA FIT Friday, NBA Cares

- Over 2,500 volunteers hosted basketball clinics at 100 schools
- And packed 160,000 pounds of food with City harvest
- NBA on track to engage 1 million NYC kids in basketball activities by end of All-Star festivities
 - Committed to refurbishing 2 public school courts in each borough
- Powerful example of NBA's commitment to uplifting communities
 - Potent force within cities
- Been incredible partner, look forward to working together more in future

[SPACE]

- Mayors, NBA share many same goals:
 - Strengthening education, bolstering families, educating our youth, promoting health, fitness
- NBA Cares raised over $240M for charity, completed over 3 million community service hours
 - And built over 900 community hubs where kids, families can live, learn, or play
- Many opportunities to work together to address needs of most vulnerable in community
- Now a critical time...
 - More recognizing inequality is challenge of our time

- President Obama spoke powerfully about inequality in State of the Union
 - But can't wait on federal government to act
 - Can't continue on path that sees some prosper, while others get left behind
- In light of federal gridlock, Cities increasingly taking lead, drive national agenda
 - NBA can be powerful partner
- NBA legend Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said, "Inclusion should be the keynote of American life"
- Look forward to working with all of you to build even more inclusive society

5

###

From: Chow, Eugene
To: John Del Cecato; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Parikh, Ishanee; @EO; Walters, Alexis; Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: Remarks: USCM NBA Session
Date: Friday, February 13, 2015 7:13:20 PM
Attachments: 2-14-2015USCM WINTER SESSION 7PM.doc

Revised substantially based on further guidance.

Also much less "power" in this one 😊

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Friday, February 13, 2015 7:06 PM
To: Chow, Eugene; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Parikh, Ishanee; @EO; Walters, Alexis; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Is know we're trying to keep this stuff in the boss' voice, but can we cut down on the use of the word "powerful" ? :)

Possible add - if it's not too much of a stretch: referencing the pick-up games on West Fourth Street... Could make a joke about how the All-Stars could get a run for their money there... Could also reference an after-school program like Basketball Stars of New York - teaching our kids teamwork, competition, staying healthy - all while giving working parents peace of mind

From: <Chow>, Eugene <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Friday, February 13, 2015 at 6:37 PM
To: "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel" <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Ishanee Parikh <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walters, Alexis" <AWalters@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Brief remarks for tomorrow's USCM NBA session with Commissioner Silver. Let me know if you have any comments/suggestions.

Thanks,
Eugene

Eugene K. Chow
Speechwriter
Mayor's Office

o: 212-341-5096

e: echow@cityhall.nyc.gov

OPEN PRESS

MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO,
USCM WINTER MEETING
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2015

REMARKS:

- Thank you Mayor [Kevin] Johnson
 - Our very own NBA star
 - Glad he's suiting up for our team
- Begin by thanking NBA Commissioner Adam Silver
- Yesterday, Commissioner Silver and I unveiled refurbished basketball court at City School in Hell's Kitchen
- Part of NBA FIT Friday, NBA Cares

2

- Over 2,500 volunteers hosted basketball clinics at 100 schools
- And packed 160,000 pounds of food with City harvest
- NBA on track to engage 1 million NYC kids in basketball activities by end of All-Star festivities
- Clear example of NBA's commitment to uplifting communities
 - Potent force within cities
- Been incredible partner, look forward to working together more in future

[SPACE]

- Mayors, NBA share many same goals:

3

- Strengthening education, bolstering families, educating our youth, promoting health, fitness
- Many opportunities to work together, help most vulnerable
- Now a critical time...
- Growing chorus recognizes inequality challenge of our time
- President Obama spoke forcefully about inequality in State of the Union
 - But can't wait on federal government to act
 - Can't continue on path that sees some prosper, while others get left behind

4

- Need greater collective action to drive national dialogue even further
 - 2016 election looming, major opportunity to frame debate
- Latest data on inequality drive home seriousness of problem
- In US, top 0.1% hold 22% of nation's wealth
 - About same as bottom 90%

[Source: Emmanuel Saez, UC-Berkeley]

- Trends that are harmful to families, harmful to nation
- Cities must take lead in pushing back – and many already are:

5

- Raising minimum wage, passing paid sick leave, Muni IDs, Pre-K
- This is why Cities of Opportunity Task Force Work so important
 - Each local victory drives national movement, pushes recalcitrant Congress to act
- Great progress, but can do even more
- Moving forward, 2 areas in desperate need of voice of Mayors
- 1) Transportation
- Next month Cities of Opportunity Task Force convening in Boston
 - Transportation will be added as key organizing area

- Federal Highway Trust Fund dries up in May – critical source of mass transit, highway, bridge funding
- Conservatives clamoring for reduced spending, but Trust Fund essential for cities
- And specially for low-income families – much more dependent on mass transit
- Current federal commitments not enough to maintain, enhance system
- Must organize, pressure Congress
- Need real authorization with strong funding, particularly for public transit
- But to succeed, must work together
- 2) Immigration reform

- Mayors on front lines with millions of immigrants living in cities
- Began organizing last December with Immigration Summit in New York City
 - Left with concrete action plan to engage aggressively
 - Created War Room to coordinate
- Supporting President Obama's Executive Action, working to ensure successful implementation
- Last month, over 30 Mayors filed joint amicus brief
 - Supporting Executive Action against conservative challenge
 - Added strong unified municipal voice, absent until now

- Only start, organizing Day of Action to push further

[SPACE]

- Right now, clear history on our side – people recognize need to make investments to move country forward
- As Mayors have ability to spark discussion
- Together, can create broader, more urgent movement not seen in decades
- NBA legend Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said, “Inclusion should be the keynote of American life”
- Know all working to expand opportunities, ensure ALL are included in our economy, future

9

###

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
To: Chow, Eugene; John Del Cecato; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Parikh, Ishanee; @EO; Walters, Alexis; Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: Remarks: USCM NBA Session
Date: Friday, February 13, 2015 7:21:19 PM

Thanks, Eugene.

Would put recap of immigration work before transportation – and should also preview affordable housing for Boston meeting.

From: Chow, Eugene
Sent: Friday, February 13, 2015 7:13 PM
To: John Del Cecato; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Parikh, Ishanee; @EO; Walters, Alexis; Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Revised substantially based on further guidance.

Also much less “power” in this one 😊

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Friday, February 13, 2015 7:06 PM
To: Chow, Eugene; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Parikh, Ishanee; @EO; Walters, Alexis; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Is know we’re trying to keep this stuff in the boss’ voice, but can we cut down on the use of the word “powerful” ? :)

Possible add - if it’s not too much of a stretch: referencing the pick-up games on West Fourth Street... Could make a joke about how the All-Stars could get a run for their money there... Could also reference an after-school program like Basketball Stars of New York - teaching our kids teamwork, competition, staying healthy - all while giving working parents peace of mind

From: <Chow>, Eugene <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Friday, February 13, 2015 at 6:37 PM
To: "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel" <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Ishanee Parikh <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walters, Alexis" <AWalters@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Brief remarks for tomorrow’s USCM NBA session with Commissioner Silver. Let me know if you have any comments/suggestions.

Thanks,
Eugene

Eugene K. Chow
Speechwriter
Mayor's Office
o: 212-341-5096
e: echow@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Chow, Eugene
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Parikh, Ishanee; @EO; Walters, Alexis; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: Remarks: USCM NBA Session
Date: Friday, February 13, 2015 10:21:38 PM

Gotcha. Will add.

----- Reply message -----

From: "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
To: "Chow, Eugene" <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel" <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Parikh, Ishanee" <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walters, Alexis" <AWalters@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Remarks: USCM NBA Session
Date: Fri, Feb 13, 2015 10:13 PM

I wasn't suggesting new news on affordable housing - just a repeat of what we said in SOTC.

On Feb 13, 2015, at 10:04 PM, Chow, Eugene <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Per emma and max we should stay away from affordable housing as we can't safely mention it without getting ahead of Thursday's announcement with the a.g.

----- Reply message -----

From: "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
To: "Chow, Eugene" <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel" <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Parikh, Ishanee" <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walters, Alexis" <AWalters@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Remarks: USCM NBA Session
Date: Fri, Feb 13, 2015 9:11 PM

1. Not sure that the NBA is really known for valuing education. Aren't they the league that tries to get kids to drop out of college & sign up for the pros early? :)

2. Agree with Gabriel about immigration before transit
3. Can we link transit to our affordable housing drive in NYC without veering off-message with this group?
4. Especially > specially

From: <Chow>, Eugene <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Friday, February 13, 2015 at 7:13 PM

To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel" <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAadams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Ishanee Parikh <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walters, Alexis" <AWalters@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: RE: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Revised substantially based on further guidance.

Also much less "power" in this one ☺

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]

Sent: Friday, February 13, 2015 7:06 PM

To: Chow, Eugene; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Parikh, Ishanee; @EO; Walters, Alexis; Walzak, Phil

Subject: Re: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Is know we're trying to keep this stuff in the boss' voice, but can we cut down on the use of the word "powerful" ? :)

Possible add - if it's not too much of a stretch: referencing the pick-up games on West Fourth Street... Could make a joke about how the All-Stars could get a run for their money there... Could also reference an after-school program like Basketball Stars of New York - teaching our kids teamwork, competition, staying healthy - all while giving working parents peace of mind

From: <Chow>, Eugene <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Friday, February 13, 2015 at 6:37 PM

To: "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel" <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAadams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Ishanee Parikh <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walters, Alexis" <AWalters@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Brief remarks for tomorrow's USCM NBA session with Commissioner Silver. Let me know if you have any comments/suggestions.

Thanks,
Eugene

Eugene K. Chow
Speechwriter
Mayor's Office
o: 212-341-5096
e: echow@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: John Del Cecato
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Subject: Re: Remarks: USCM NBA Session
Date: Saturday, February 14, 2015 11:47:15 AM

No prob!

On Feb 14, 2015, at 9:39 AM, Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
<GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

John – thanks for your input on this.

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Friday, February 13, 2015 10:13 PM
To: Chow, Eugene
Cc: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Parikh, Ishanee; @EO; Walters, Alexis; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

I wasn't suggesting new news on affordable housing - just a repeat of what we said in SOTC.

On Feb 13, 2015, at 10:04 PM, Chow, Eugene <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Per emma and max we should stay away from affordable housing as we can't safely mention it without getting ahead of Thursday's announcement with the a.g.

----- Reply message -----

From: "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
To: "Chow, Eugene" <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel" <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAadams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Parikh, Ishanee" <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walters, Alexis" <AWalters@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Remarks: USCM NBA Session
Date: Fri, Feb 13, 2015 9:11 PM

1. Not sure that the NBA is really known for valuing education. Aren't they the league that tries to get kids to drop out of college & sign up for the pros early? :)

2. Agree with Gabriel about immigration before transit
3. Can we link transit to our affordable housing drive in NYC without veering off-message with this group?
4. Especially > specially

From: <Chow>, Eugene <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Friday, February 13, 2015 at 7:13 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel" <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAadams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Ishanee Parikh <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walters, Alexis" <AWalters@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Revised substantially based on further guidance.

Also much less "power" in this one 😊

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Friday, February 13, 2015 7:06 PM
To: Chow, Eugene; Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Parikh, Ishanee; @EO; Walters, Alexis; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Is know we're trying to keep this stuff in the boss' voice, but can we cut down on the use of the word "powerful" ? :)

Possible add - if it's not too much of a stretch: referencing the pick-up games on West Fourth Street... Could make a joke about how the All-Stars could get a run for their money there... Could also reference an after-school program like Basketball Stars of New York - teaching our kids teamwork, competition, staying healthy - all while giving working parents peace of mind

From: <Chow>, Eugene <EChow@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Friday, February 13, 2015 at 6:37 PM
To: "Ragone, Peter" <pragone@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel" <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley"

<WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti"
<MAAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Ishanee Parikh <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>,
"@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walters, Alexis"
<AWalters@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Remarks: USCM NBA Session

Brief remarks for tomorrow's USCM NBA session with Commissioner Silver. Let me know if you have any comments/suggestions.

Thanks,
Eugene

Eugene K. Chow
Speechwriter
Mayor's Office
o: 212-341-5096
e: echow@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: John Del Cecato
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Liz Hegarty; Miranda, Josephine; Wolfe, Emma; DeLoach, Michael; Patchett, James; Glen, Alicia; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Fink, Carolee; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: Mtg cancelled
Date: Tuesday, February 17, 2015 4:54:23 PM

roger

On 2/17/15, 4:44 PM, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>Too many of us are in (unrelated) meeting with Mayor
>
>Pls email me your thoughts (thanks, Alicia!)
>I will try to have us meet in AM if possible.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: "John Del Cecato"
Subject: RE: here is the ABNY frame JFDC and I worked up this pm, FYI
Date: Wednesday, February 18, 2015 4:49:59 PM

Looks good

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Wednesday, February 18, 2015 4:49 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: 'John Del Cecato'
Subject: here is the ABNY frame JFDC and I worked up this pm, FYI

Outline for ABNY speech

FRAME:

When we tackle an issue like the Tale of Two Cities, we're talking about affordability. Right now, too many New Yorkers are getting priced out of their own city. It's the affordability crisis, stupid.

There are two sides to that equation: solving problems that crush the pocketbook, and finding ways to bolster the family pocketbook. They are bookends.

The greatest crush on the family pocketbook is housing, so finding more affordable places for families to live is the key solution to this side of the equation; on the other side of the equation, there are ways to help family pocketbooks grow (higher wages; better benefits; more jobs in growth sectors, expanded opportunities in high wage sectors, more programs to ease the squeeze that so many families feel).

LOOK-BACK:

In State of the City, we talked about our affordable housing plan – the boldest ever undertaken in our city. We did this because housing costs are the greatest crush on the family pocketback, and the great cause on the expenditure side of the affordability crisis. The solution is constructing more affordable housing; protecting the affordable housing we currently have; strengthening rent laws, so more places are made affordable; and improving tenant protections by going after predatory landlords.

FORWARD-LOOKING:

In order to continue the narrative arc from SOTC, we should focus on two things.

1) call to action/join the fight to increase affordable housing by enlisting private sector help, support and guidance for the plan (ABNY);

2) Begin to lay out the focus on the growing the pocketbook side of the equation. This entails raising the minimum wage and other wages. Generating jobs that give people a path to getting into – and staying in – the middle-class. Growing sectors that have forward-looking growth potential and working with small businesses to grow and create jobs in every borough. For New York City to be a city for everyone, we need to tackle the affordability crisis. Here's why raising minimum wage is important (upward pressure on wages). Here's how we'll generate jobs (projects A, B, and C as examples). Here's what we're doing to lift up our small businesses.

CALL TO ACTION/LION'S DEN:

If it's ready – we could mention the mansion tax.

If it's not ready – we urge ABNY and business leaders throughout the city to not just embrace our plan on housing and wages, but to be our partner in fighting Albany to get what we need – to join the fight with us:

- Tenant protections
- Strengthening rent laws
- Raise the minimum wage
- Expand EITC (if it's ready)

This is not a punitive call or a lecture. Rather this is shared call to action that recognizes we all do better when we all do better, and there is an important role for the business and insider community to play. These people can make the difference - and in doing so they will also reap rewards, both for NYC and their own respective worlds.

PEOPLE TO HIGHLIGHT:

Business that is already raising wages/increasing benefits.

Small business that is growing because owner has affordable housing.

Business that wants to continue recruiting best & brightest – but worries that too many young people won't come to NYC because they can't raise a family here.

Small business/start-up founded by someone who comes from an unlikely place – maybe NYCHA/CUNY?

###

Phillip Walzak
Press Secretary
Office of New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio
O: 212-788-2958
C: 917-455-8420
pwalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov
twitter: @ptwalzak

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: John Del Cecato; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Tweet from Dylan Byers (@DylanByers)
Date: Wednesday, February 18, 2015 7:57:22 PM

Dylan Byers (@DylanByers)

2/18/15, 7:45 PM

RT @costareports: scoop: Scott Walker in NYC tonight to attend private dinner with supply-siders wpo.st/VFE50

Download the official Twitter app here

Sent from my iPhone

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: "John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)"; Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: ABNY
Date: Friday, February 20, 2015 2:24:07 PM

Also, Alicia's team has requested to review any materials at least 24 hours in advance. Just to keep in mind 😊

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Friday, February 20, 2015 2:23 PM
To: John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Walzak, Phil
Subject: ABNY

Hi!

I need to put together the Mayor's briefing memo before Sunday. I'll just do an overview of what we discussed/agreed to in last meeting and if you have an updated outline I can insert it.

In terms of information, what additional information do you need on tech talent pipeline, Hunts Point, etc? I'm happy to get materials from the teams for you

Thanks

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B; John Del Cecato; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Tweet from Perry Bacon Jr. (@perrybaconjr)
Date: Friday, February 20, 2015 4:47:45 PM

Perry Bacon Jr. (@perrybaconjr)

2/20/15, 4:43 PM

Asked if Obama loves America, Walker tells @WisVoter " I don't really know."

Download the official Twitter app here

Sent from my iPhone

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Fwd: Updated Daily News Op-Ed
Date: Friday, February 20, 2015 7:57:30 PM

Fyi

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: FLONYC <FLONYC@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: February 20, 2015 at 7:46:32 PM EST
To: "Dodge, Ryan" <RDodge@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "Katz, Rebecca" <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "John, Roxanne" <RJohn@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Bray, Jackie" <JBray@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Updated Daily News Op-Ed

Round Two

Shattering the Stigma of Mental Illness

"I'm sorry, but the doctor isn't taking new patients right now."

It took me a moment to grasp what the receptionist was telling me. After hours of internet research, innumerable phone calls, and frustrating discussions with some rather indifferent professionals, the psychiatrist we had identified as a good fit for Chiara wouldn't be able to help us.

My first impulse, after hanging up, was to put my head on the table and leave it there until the world started making sense again, but there was no time for that. My daughter needed help.

Our search had begun weeks earlier, when Chiara, who was 18 years old at the time, bravely revealed to Bill and me that she was suffering from anxiety, depression, and addiction.

I felt everything you'd expect a mother to feel: love, sadness, fear, and a great deal of uncertainty. Our child was in terrible pain, but because it originated in her brain and not another part of her body, there wasn't an established series of steps to follow. We had to trust the recommendations of people we didn't really know and make some major decisions on our own.

Our family got lucky. We eventually found the right doctors and program for Chiara, and I'm happy to report that she is kicking butt at recovery.

But even after our crisis ended, I couldn't forget how scared and helpless I felt during those first frantic weeks. So I continued my research, wanting to understand how people manage in these situations, especially those who don't have the same advantages as us.

The more I learned, the harder it was to avoid a troubling conclusion: Our mental health system is broken. And as a result, we are facing a national crisis of momentous proportions.

Just look at the numbers. All told, 25 percent of American adults – one in four – deal with mental illness in a given year. That means it's pretty much impossible to go through life without you or someone you love being touched by mental illness.

Tragically, our current system doesn't even begin to address the problem. A remarkable 61 percent of New York State adults who need mental health services aren't getting them. And it's not just adults who are suffering – 35 percent of New York's children are also going without the mental health services they need.

The situation is even worse for people of color and those who are living in poverty. Here in New York City, research by our Health Department indicates that African Americans who are experiencing serious psychological distress are significantly less likely than their white counterparts to have received treatment in the past year—30 percent compared to 48 percent. And numerous studies have found that the stresses of low economic status are often a catalyst for mental ill health.

The first step to solving the crisis is to simply acknowledge that it exists. We must start talking about mental illness. With a real public conversation and by providing appropriate services, we can shatter the stigma.

Over the next few months, I will visit New Yorkers in all five boroughs. My goal is to hear some of the stories behind those troubling statistics. I will meet with teenagers, mothers, people without a home, people in jail, senior citizens, and veterans. I am also going to sit down with service providers and advocates. From them, I will learn what is working – and what needs fixing.

But we're not just acknowledging the crisis – the de Blasio Administration is also engaging in a serious policy discussion around these issues. The stories I hear will inform the plan we are developing to build a more inclusive mental health system. This effort will be led by the Mayor's Fund to Advance New York City, which I oversee as Chair; the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene; and the Fund for Public Health.

When I say a "more inclusive" system, I mean one that meets – and treats – people where they live. A system that addresses the most pervasive and burdensome conditions. A system that promotes the most effective treatments. A system featuring caregivers who understand the language and culture of the people they serve.

The good news is that the building blocks of this system already exist. I'm thinking about the Family Resource Center that I recently visited in the Bronx, where advocates with experience raising a child with special needs are sharing hard-won knowledge with their neighbors.

I'm also thinking about all of the public servants I've met, from line staff to commissioners, who are convinced that there has never been a better time than now to fix a problem that has been building for generations.

And I'm thinking about everyone who helped Chiara regain her equilibrium. She has built a support network that has grown to include not just doctors and therapists, but an entire community of people who are helping each other walk the long and winding path toward recovery. With their help, Chiara is stronger than ever.

As I said, our family was lucky. But luck should have nothing to do with it. I believe that together we can create a mental health system that meets the needs of all New Yorkers.

On Feb 19, 2015, at 12:20 PM, "Dodge, Ryan"
<RDodge@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Hello. Attached is an updated version of the Daily News op-ed. It has been reviewed by Team FLONYC and Dr. Belkin. Let me know if you need anything else. Thanks.

Ryan

<Daily News Mental Health Op-Ed 2-19 1PM.docx>

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Tweet from Oliver Willis (@owillis)
Date: Friday, February 20, 2015 7:59:47 PM

Oliver Willis (@owillis)

2/20/15, 7:53 PM

Scott Walker Meets With Birther Conspiracy Theorist Ahead Of Presidential Campaign. wp.me/pNl4D-14D

Download the official Twitter app here

Sent from my iPhone

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: John Del Cecato; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Tweet from Zaid Jilani (@ZaidJilani)
Date: Friday, February 20, 2015 10:43:35 PM

Zaid Jilani (@ZaidJilani)

2/20/15, 8:25 PM

What Scott Walker said at that event Giuliani was at was arguably worse
pic.twitter.com/B9Bo1oTG8f

Download the official Twitter app here

Sent from my iPhone

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Hagelgans, Andrea; Patchett, James; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com";
Fink, Carolee; Wolfe, Emma; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Chao, Raymond; Glen, Alicia
Subject: MBDB: Prep for ABNY Remarks
Date: Monday, February 23, 2015 1:54:42 PM

We are running behind- this meeting will start at 3:45

From: Liz Hegarty
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Request for lunch with Penny
Date: Monday, February 23, 2015 3:03:10 PM

Hi Matt,

Sorry, it seems like my email from last week did not go through.

John could make 3/3, 3/6 or just about any day the week of 3/9. Let me know when might work best for Penny and we'll add to the calendar.

Thanks!

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Friday, February 20, 2015 at 10:05 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Request for lunch with Penny

Hi, Liz.

I'm writing to see if we might be able to schedule a time for Penny and John to meet over lunch.

Penny's lunchtimes are pretty much open starting on the 26th (not 3/4, 3/13) so would you let me know a couple days that work well for John?

Thanks again!

Matt

Matt Graham | Special Assistant to the Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: (212) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Subject: FW: ABNY outline
Date: Monday, February 23, 2015 3:34:03 PM
Attachments: ABNYMonday9am-MGfactcheckedits.docx

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Monday, February 23, 2015 3:33 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; Patchett, James; Shorris, Anthony; Glen, Alicia; Walzak, Phil; Fink, Carolee
Subject: RE: ABNY outline

Some of these economic stats are inaccurate – see attached edits.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, February 23, 2015 9:31 AM
To: Wolfe, Emma; Patchett, James; Shorris, Anthony; Glen, Alicia; Walzak, Phil; Fink, Carolee
Cc: Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: ABNY outline

Attached is an updated outline/ start of a first draft that John has put together.

There are a few placeholders for initiatives we want to highlight. James/ Mahen, I'll coordinate with you on additions. Of course, feel free to send me suggestions and I'll coordinate with JDC.

Thanks

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

ABNY OUTLINE
2/23/15 – 9:00 AM

Acknowledgements

17 months ago, I was honored to address an event hosted by this distinguished organization -- just about a month before the 2013 mayoral election. \(correct, but fyi that BdB also made an unannounced visit at ABNY in April 2014\)

At that time, there were some pundits who wondered exactly how ABNY would receive me.

After all, my campaign was built around progressive change – about taking aim at inequality and helping rebuild our middle class. Surely – the cynics argued – progressive ideas would be met with crickets -- or even worse – when presented to those who've dedicate their lives to growing businesses and the economy.

But knowing this organization, and many of the individuals who comprised the audience that day, I wasn't the least bit worried.

That day, I said, QUOTE: “We cannot resign ourselves to the mindset that says rising inequality is a necessary byproduct of urban success.” No one booed or hissed or left the room. Instead, that call was met with resounding agreement.

Because this organization.... the people here today... realize that rising inequality isn't just a problem for those of modest means – and isn't just a threat to those barely hanging on to their place in the middle class. ABNY understands that inequality is a crisis that impacts all of us, including those who have enjoyed great personal success.

If New York can't be a city of open opportunity for all – regardless of the circumstances of your birth – we not only lose a part of who we are, we risk losing our place as a global center of innovation, diversity, and progress.

That is why we refuse to accept the false choices that that for too long defined how some viewed our city:

That sustained economic growth is fated to only help SOME, while leaving many behind;

That more development inevitably means everyday New Yorkers will be priced out;

That New York can't be both a growing city AND a city of opportunity for all.

We know that kind of shortsighted thinking doesn't have to define our future.

A progressive agenda – one that seeks to reduce the cost of living for working families, as well as boost their wages – isn't in conflict with a thriving economy. In fact, it can and MUST be the foundation for a lasting, growing economy.

Take a look at 2014.

Last year, New York saw:

~~94,500~~95,900 jobs added in 2014 – the highest year-to-date growth rate in the past 20 years; (94,500 is the 2013, not 2014, stat: still verifying the year-to-date part)

~~3.5 million~~More than four million private sector jobs – an all-time high;

Unemployment rate down 1.5% since July – steepest two-month decline since reporting began in 1976; (this doesn't make sense – why are we talking about a two-month decline if we're referring to a time period of July 2014 to present? Recommend rephrasing)

The expansion of an entertainment industry that produced a record number of television series and over ~~230~~240 films right here in New York last year;

And the continued growth of a booming tech sector that now employs nearly 300,000 people.

Our city is growing, both in terms of our economy and the number of people who want to call New York home. By 2040, we will be a city of 9 million people.

So we remain focused on a critical challenge: growing our economy in a way that is broad-based and guided by expanding opportunity to every New Yorker – because the best and brightest come from every neighborhood in every borough; if families can't afford to stay in the city, we are all denied the contributions offered by those untold success stories.

Now, there are two sides to the affordability equation: finding more affordable places for families to live; and helping their pocketbooks (higher wages; better benefits; more programs to ease the squeeze that so many families feel).

In State of the City, we talked about our affordable housing plan: the boldest ever undertaken in our city. (we can go further here – it's the boldest municipal affordable housing program in U.S. history...)

Formatted: Indent: Left: 1", First line: 0"

Our housing plan means:

200,000 new units of affordable housing created or preserved over a decade;

Protecting and strengthening rent regulations in to protect the affordable housing we currently have;

Requiring affordable housing as a condition of new development;

New ideas for development that envision affordability on a grand scale;

A commitment to the things besides affordable housing that make neighborhoods livable: good schools, parks and other open spaces, new commercial development.

Cutting red tape at the Department of Buildings;

And unprecedented tenant protections against predatory landlords.

Making housing in New York more affordable is essential to keeping ours a city of opportunity and innovation.

That's why I'm calling on everyone here today to be partners in battling the affordability crisis. You've given so much to this city – and now your city needs you again – by our side – as we fight for what we need from Albany. Your vision...your energy...your ambition for lifting New York City to new heights – we need to show our state, and our country, that we embark on this journey together.

But housing is only one side of the affordability equation.

That is why we're also working to grow our economy... to expand new job opportunities, and drive up wages in our city.

This Administration is fighting for smart, inclusive, five-borough economic growth... growth that benefits ALL New Yorkers, not just those at the top.

That means:

Raising the minimum wage. ($13 per hour in 2016... while indexing the minimum wage, which would bring us to a projected $15 per hour by 2019);

Generating jobs that give New Yorkers a path to getting into – and staying in – the middle-class;

Working with small businesses to grow and create jobs in every borough;

And making sure we are utilizing homegrown talent by ensuring that New Yorkers have the skills they need to thrive in emerging industries.

I want to speak at some length about some of the specific initiatives we are undertaking on this front:

Below largely placeholder – waiting on comms for specific initiatives:

We created the Tech Talent Pipeline to support the growth of New York’s technology sector and train New Yorkers to be those companies’ premier hiring choice. This program will not only enable the next great tech innovations to come from New York, but ensure they are driven by New Yorkers from every background and every borough.

We are going forward with a plan to redesign our workforce development system to arm up to 30,000 New Yorkers a year with the skills for 21st century jobs. FROM SOTC – SOMETHING MORE SPECIFIC WE CAN SAY??

MORE TK FROM COMMS

We invested in new economic hubs to create 3,000 new jobs in the Brooklyn Navy Yard and 1,000 new jobs at the Brooklyn Army Terminal. These are PERMANENT jobs in areas of the city that for so long sat unused. They exemplify smart, inclusive growth.

Today I want to announce a new proposed project based on that same philosophy.

Hunts Point in the Bronx has significant underused land despite sitting at a key transportation artery near the RFK Bridge.

So we envision Hunts Point as the site of a new, large-scale food distribution center. It would promote local entrepreneurship and job growth in the South Bronx, an area of our city with so much potential.

This site is large, occupying 329 acres. Our vision would be for a commercial development that that would accommodate over 115 businesses and support or create almost 9,000 jobs.

Coupled with plans for new, affordable housing development on the South Bronx waterfront, this plan shows that when we talk about growth in every neighborhood and every borough, we mean it.

To be sure, we’ll need the partnerships in the business community to make this kind of development happen. But knowing the people I do in this room, I am so confident that visions like the proposal Hunts Point will soon become transformative realities throughout our city.

Some projects will require other partnerships, as well. In coming months, we're going to talk about big infrastructure projects that will necessitate federal help.

But there is so much we can do on our own as a city, if we – this Administration, the people in this room and everyday New Yorkers across our City – all work together.

PERSONAL SMALL BUSINESS/ ABNY STORY HERE.

The imagination, enthusiasm, and grit of the people who call this city home are so wonderfully exemplified in this room. But we must not forget how much of your success has grown from the fertile ground of a city of opportunity – and that your continued success requires that every child of New York has the same shot at chasing her dreams as you did.

So today, let's recommit to making our city a place of opportunity and innovation, not one of cloistered opulence.

We owe it to the next generation -- and to one another – to do what generations of New Yorkers have done: leave our city more open, inclusive, and inspiring than we found it.

It's a big job, but the stories of the people in this room demonstrate that it is a task well worth undertaking. And we will do it together.

Thank you!

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Hagelgans, Andrea; Patchett, James; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com";
Fink, Carolee; Wolfe, Emma; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Chao, Raymond; Glen, Alicia; DeLoach, Michael
Subject: MBDB: Prep for ABNY Remarks
Date: Monday, February 23, 2015 4:03:19 PM

This will happen at 4:30

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: Outline
Date: Monday, February 23, 2015 4:14:49 PM

That was from yesterday :)

From: John Del Cecato [jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Monday, February 23, 2015 3:34 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: Outline

Nothing updated since 9am today

On 2/22/15, 4:18 PM, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>Hi!
>Is there an updated outline? Alicia and her team want to review today if >possible. Thanks

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: [REDACTED]
Date: Monday, February 23, 2015 4:19:11 PM

PW forwarded to me. All good

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Monday, February 23, 2015 03:33 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: [REDACTED]

Yes - just got it this PM

From: <Hagelgans>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, February 23, 2015 at 2:23 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: [REDACTED]

Do you have her resume?

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Hagelgans, Andrea; Patchett, James; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com";
Fink, Carolee; Wolfe, Emma; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Chao, Raymond; Glen, Alicia; DeLoach, Michael
Subject: MBDB: Prep for ABNY Remarks
Date: Monday, February 23, 2015 4:39:10 PM

Please join us in the mayors office

From: Stephanie Yazgi
To: John Del Cecato; Emma Wolfe; Neal Kwatra; Aaron Pickrell; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Subject: COO BOSTON attendance and updates from FedAffairs
Date: Tuesday, February 24, 2015 8:35:43 AM

There are only 13 mayors registered for COO in Boston right now.

Real time updates here:

<https://secure.usmayors.org/registration/other/cotf15/admin/citymonitor.asp>

MAX UPDATES BELOW:

- Use this time to diversify and build COO coalition and identify and recruit leaders
IM CALLING THE STAFF TO BOTH OKLAHOMA CITY AND INDIANAPOLIS MAYORS TODAY.
- Invite Secretary Fox and Elizabeth Warren to participate in key programming
(STATUS ON BOTH?) WARREN INVITED. WILL CHECK WITH BOATON RE FOXX.
- Maximize dialog between mayors (without staff or experts? MBdB charge?)
- Clear framework for discussions and organizing on MBdB priority issues with clear asks for mayors- FORMAT OF ALL EVENTS MAYOR IS INVOLVED IN?
- MBdB organizing with 5 firebrand progressive mayors (carried interest or raise the wage?????) ANY THOUGHTS AS TO WHO WE SHOULD PULL INTO THIS? WE THOUGHT LANDRIEU COULD BE KEY PARTNER GENERALLY
(NOT ON THIS PARTICULAR ISSUES NECESSARILY). MEETING YESTERDAY GOT CANCELED LAST MINUTE.
- Potentially feature progressive taxation best practices panel? HAVE YOU ALL HAD A CHANCE TO DO ANY RESEARCH ON THIS? NOT YET
- Attendance (Boston bottomlining) CAN WE GET UPDATES DAILY? I WILL SHARE LINK WITH REAL TIME UPDATES.

From: Carey, Michael
To: Howe, Amanda; nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com; Jonathan@berlinrosen.com; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\); Wolfe, Emma; Williams, Dominic; John, Roxanne; Ragone, Peter; Ko, Eunice; Katz, Rebecca; Thornton, Demetrius; Darlington, Mandy \(OMB\); lhegarty@akpdmedia.com; Chao, Raymond; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Griffith, Chantell; Leopold, Elana; Walzak, Phil; Shorris, Anthony; Wiley, Maya
Subject: MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Tuesday, February 24, 2015 3:25:25 PM

All:

tonight's meeting is cancelled.

Thanks!!

MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting

Scheduled: Tuesday, Feb 24, 2015 from 7:00 PM to 8:30 PM

Location: Gracie Mansion, The Parlor

Invitees: Howe, Amanda , "nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com" (nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com)' , "Jonathan@berlinrosen.com" (Jonathan@berlinrosen.com)' , Fuleihan, Dean (OMB) , Wolfe, Emma , Williams, Dominic , John, Roxanne , Ragone, Peter , Ko, Eunice , Katz, Rebecca , Thornton, Demetrius , Darlington, Mandy (OMB) , 'Liz Hegarty' , Chao, Raymond , "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com)' , Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel , Griffith, Chantell , Leopold, Elana , Walzak, Phil , Shorris, Anthony , Wiley, Maya

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

From: John Del Cecato
To: Wiley, Maya
Subject: [REDACTED]
Date: Tuesday, February 24, 2015 8:37:43 PM
Attachments: [REDACTED] resume 2-13-15.docx
[REDACTED].pdf

In case you're looking for a smart, aggressive attorney somewhere in your orbit - told me friend I would get his resume to you..

[REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

From: Wiley, Maya
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: [REDACTED]
Date: Tuesday, February 24, 2015 8:38:32 PM

Thanks!

Sent from my iPhone

> On Feb 24, 2015, at 8:37 PM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:
>
> In case you're looking for a smart, aggressive attorney somewhere in your orbit - told me friend I would get his resume to you..
>
> <[REDACTED] resume 2-13-15.docx>
> [REDACTED]

From: B
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Fw: Meyerson: The Revolt of the Cities
Date: Tuesday, February 24, 2015 9:27:19 PM

From: Klein, Monica
Sent: Sunday, February 22, 2015 11:45 AM
To: B
Subject: Meyerson: The Revolt of the Cities

The Revolt of the Cities

AMERICAN PROSPECT - Harold Meyerson - April 22, 2014

Pittsburgh is the perfect urban laboratory," says Bill Peduto, the city's new mayor. "We're small enough to be able to do things and large enough for people to take notice." More than its size, however, it's Pittsburgh's new government—Peduto and the five like-minded progressives who now constitute a majority on its city council—that is turning the city into a laboratory of democracy. In his first hundred days as mayor, Peduto has sought funding to establish universal pre-K education and partnered with a Swedish sustainable-technology fund to build four major developments with low carbon footprints and abundant affordable housing. Even before he became mayor, while still a council member, he steered to passage ordinances that mandated prevailing wages for employees on any project that received city funding and required local hiring for the jobs in the Pittsburgh Penguins' new arena. He authored the city's responsible-banking law, which directed government funds to those banks that lent in poor neighborhoods and away from those that didn't.

Pittsburgh is a much cleaner city today than it was when it housed some of the world's largest steel mills. But, like postindustrial America generally, it is also a much more economically divided city. When steel dominated the economy, the companies' profits and the union's contracts made Pittsburgh—like Detroit, Cleveland, and Chicago—a city with a thriving working class. Today, with the mills long gone, Pittsburgh has what Gabe Morgan, who heads the local union of janitorial and building maintenance workers, calls an "eds and meds" economy. Carnegie Mellon, the University of Pittsburgh, and its medical center are among the region's largest employers, generating thousands of well-paid professional positions and a far greater number of low-wage service-sector jobs.

Peduto, who is 49 years old, sees improving the lot of Pittsburgh's new working class as his primary charge. In his city hall office, surrounded by such artifacts as a radio cabinet from the years when the city became home to the world's first radio station, the new mayor outlined the task before him. "My grandfather, Sam Zarroli, came over in 1921 from Abruzzo," he said. "He only had a second-grade education, but he was active in the Steel Workers Organizing Committee in its early years, and he made a good life for himself and his family. My challenge in today's economy is how to get good jobs for people with no PhDs but with a good work ethic and GEDs. How do I get them the same kind of opportunities my grandfather had? All the mayors elected last year are asking this question."

They are indeed. The mayoral and council class of 2013 is one of the most progressive cohorts of elected officials in recent American history. In one major city after another, newly elected officials are planning to raise the minimum wage or enact ordinances boosting wages in developments that have received city assistance. They are drafting legislation to require inner-city hiring on major projects and foster unionization in hotels, stores, and trucking. They are seeking the funds to establish universal pre-K and other programs for infants and toddlers. They are sketching the layout of new transit lines that will bring jobs and denser development to neighborhoods both poor and middle-class and reduce traffic and pollution in the bargain. They are—if they haven't done so already—prohibiting their police from cooperating with federal immigration authorities in the deportation of undocumented immigrants not convicted of felonies and requiring their police to have video or audio records of their encounters with the public. They are, in short, enacting at the municipal level many of the major policy changes that progressives have found themselves unable to enact at the federal and state levels. They also may be charting a new course for American liberalism.

New York's Mayor Bill de Blasio has dominated the national press corps' coverage of the new urban liberalism. His battles to establish citywide pre-K (successful but not funded, as he wished, by a dedicated tax on the wealthy), expand paid sick days (also successful), raise the minimum wage (blocked by the governor and legislature), and reform the police department's stop-and-frisk policy (by dropping an appeal of a court order) have been extensively chronicled. But de Blasio is just one of a host of mayors elected last year who campaigned and now govern with similar populist agendas. The list also includes Pittsburgh's Peduto, Minneapolis's Betsy Hodges, Seattle's Ed Murray, Boston's Martin Walsh, Santa Fe's Javier Gonzales, and many more.

"We all ran on similar platforms," Peduto says. "There wasn't communication among us. It just emerged organically that way. We all faced the reality of growing disparities. The population beneath the poverty line is increasing everywhere. A lot of us were underdogs, populists, reformers, and the public was ready for us."

This isn't the first time that America's cities have collectively shifted their political identities. As political journalist Samuel Lubell documented in his 1951 study The Future of American Politics—most particularly his chapter "Revolt of the City"—the New Deal coalition was prefigured by the change in urban voting patterns during the 1920s. Since the end of the Civil War, the cities of the industrial Midwest and the West Coast had tilted Republican. In 1920, GOP presidential nominee Warren Harding carried the nation's 12 largest cities by a margin of 1.54 million votes. In 1928, however, Democratic presidential nominee Al Smith carried the same 12 cities by a margin of 210,000 votes. Smith was a Catholic—the only Catholic presidential nominee until John Kennedy ran in 1960—whose speech and manner stamped him unmistakably as a product of New York's Lower East Side. His candidacy brought to the polls for the first time millions of Southern and Eastern European immigrants—predominantly Catholic, Jewish, and Eastern Orthodox—who had transformed the composition of American cities during the preceding 40 years but who had never before voted in large numbers. Four years later, they voted in still greater numbers, sending Franklin Roosevelt to the White House and cementing the nation's major cities in the Democratic column for decades to come. At the municipal level, cities long controlled by Republican machines shifted either to control by Democratic machines or by progressive reformers like New York's Fiorello La Guardia.

This pattern of demographic transformation is now repeating itself. New coalitions and the presidential campaigns of Barack Obama have brought millions of Latino, Asian, and African immigrants and the millennials to the polls, remaking the politics of cities in the process.

Even as the wave of non-European immigrants since the mid-1980s has reshaped the United States—whose white share of the population was down to 63 percent in 2012—it has reshaped its cities even more. In New York, which was 53 percent white in the 1980 census, the white share of its population dropped to 37 percent in the 2010 census. During the same 30 years, Los Angeles saw the white share of its population drop from 48 percent to 29 percent, Houston from 53 percent to 26 percent, Phoenix from 78 percent to 47 percent, San Diego from 69 percent to 45 percent, Dallas from 57 percent to 29 percent, Columbus from 76 percent to 59 percent, Boston from 68 percent to 47 percent, Seattle from 79 percent to 66 percent, and Denver from 67 percent to 52 percent.

It's not just the racial makeup of cities that is changing; it's also their generational profile: Cities have seen a marked increase in their share of 20-somethings. These changes in demographics have coincided with the change in economics. With both manufacturing and unions in steep decline, major cities have come to be characterized by levels of economic inequality—reinforced by levels of racial inequality—the nation has not experienced since before the New Deal.

In America, politics follow demographics: Voters of color and millennial voters stand well to the left of their white and older counterparts in their support for government intervention to counter the market's inequities and for Democratic candidates generally. The voting habits of major cities reflect these transformations. For example, Barack Obama's share of the vote in the 2012 presidential election outpaced Walter Mondale's share of the vote in the 1984 presidential election by 10.5 percent nationally, but the difference was far greater in cities. Obama outperformed Mondale by 20 percentage points in New York City, by 26 points in Los Angeles, 20 in San Diego, 24 in Dallas, 27 in Columbus, 22 in Seattle, and 24 in Denver.

At the level of municipal politics, the change is even starker. Twenty years ago, half of America's dozen largest cities had Republican mayors. Today, only San Diego is governed by a Republican, and he was elected in a low-turnout special election held to replace disgraced Democrat Bob Filner. Indeed, of the nation's 30 largest cities, just four (San Diego, Indianapolis, Fort Worth, and Oklahoma City) have Republican mayors, and even they have to swim with the urban tides. Mayor Greg Ballard of Indianapolis supported increased federal aid to mass transit and opposed his state's ban on same-sex marriage.

Not every Democratic mayor is progressive, as the record of Chicago's Rahm Emanuel makes clear. Demographic recomposition has proved a necessary but insufficient prerequisite for urban political change. The newcomers to America's cities also have had to come together as an effective political force. With few exceptions, the cities that have elected left-populist governments have first reconfigured their power structures by building coalitions dedicated to greater economic and racial equity. Aided in some instances by liberal foundations, these coalitions consist chiefly of unions, community-based organizations in low-income minority neighborhoods, immigrants' rights groups, affordable-housing advocates, environmental organizations, and networks of liberal churches, synagogues, and mosques.

The unions that have been key to the formation of these new coalitions—it's labor, after all, that has the capacity to provide the lion's share of funding for these ventures—generally aren't the municipal employee locals that have a bargaining relationship with elected officials that can limit their freedom of political action. They tend, rather, to be unions of private-sector workers—janitors, hotel housekeepers, hospital orderlies, supermarket clerks. Their members and potential members are often overwhelmingly minority and substantially immigrant. Indeed, the growing importance of these unions coincides with the growth of immigrants' rights groups in most major cities. Their constituencies stand to gain the most from city policies that raise wages, create affordable housing, and establish community-based policing.

The new urban coalitions develop common strategies, register voters, regularly canvass their respective communities, groom candidates, research issues, propose policies, lobby elected officials, run their candidates' campaigns, and walk precincts. New York's Working Families Party—the organization that defined the issues and mobilized the constituencies for the campaigns that elected de Blasio and a progressive near majority on the city council—has proceeded furthest down the path to becoming a permanent social democratic and green political force. But many of the cities that went left last year have coalitions that have begun their own way down this path as well.

Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Phoenix, and Seattle are among the cities that have incubated new labor-community coalitions over the past decade. In Pittsburgh, the coalition--named Pittsburgh United--began to take shape during the revitalization of the city's affiliate of SEIU's Local 32BJ, the East Coast regional local of janitorial and building-service workers. Along with Pittsburgh's union of hotel workers, 32BJ supported the city's main African American community organization's campaign to make inner-city hiring a condition for the city council's approval of the new Pittsburgh Penguins sports arena. In turn, the community group backed the unions' effort to persuade the council to enact an ordinance guaranteeing the jobs of fast-food and other franchise workers in city-owned facilities even if the franchise changed hands. These campaigns divided the city's unions—the building trades wanted to construct the arena regardless of who was hired to work inside it—but united the minority communities and the service-sector unions. In time, the alliance grew to include liberal clergy and groups devoted to cleaning Pittsburgh's air and water, particularly in working-class communities.

Initially, the coalition's sole council ally was Peduto, but that was soon to change. A group of young professionals who'd come together on John Kerry's 2004 presidential campaign set out to elect other progressives to the city council. "We didn't know the old ways of campaigning," says Matthew Merriman-Preston, the political consultant who has managed Peduto's campaigns and those of every other progressive council member for the past decade, "so we made it up as we went along. We had people on the ground talking to their neighbors year after year."

In 2009, Natalia Rudiak, a Pittsburgh native who had studied at the London School of Economics and done economic-development work in Africa, decided to run for council in a district she describes as "the most socially conservative in the city." In a city whose politics long had been dominated by middle-aged and elderly men, Rudiak, then 29 years old, wasn't taken seriously by the Democratic establishment. But Rudiak came with multiple ties to union leaders (her father ran a public-employees local) and had spent time on campaigns with Merriman-Preston. Peduto's prevailing-wage bill was pending in the council during her campaign, and she stumped for it everywhere she spoke. In return, 32BJ flooded her district with precinct walkers, as did environmental and feminist groups. Shortly after her upset victory, the council passed the bill.

Rudiak's victory was just one of several that reshaped the council between 2007 and 2013. Neither Rudiak nor Peduto received endorsements from the city's Democratic Party organizations, but the machine wasn't delivering city service as it once had. “It had kept the trains running on time and the streets plowed,” Rudiak says, “but with the growing financial constraints on the city, particularly after the 2008 crash, it couldn’t keep doing even those things.” In the city’s older working-class neighborhoods, the new alliance and its candidates proved to be better ward heelers than the machine.

Minneapolis is a city with a richer history of progressive activism than Pittsburgh. In 1948, Mayor Hubert Humphrey presented that year’s Democratic National Convention with its first civil-rights platform plank. For decades, Minnesota came closer to an American version of Scandinavian social democracy than any other state.

In recent decades, however, both the city’s and state’s demographics and economy have been transformed. The white share of the city’s population declined from 86 percent in the 1980 census to 64 percent in 2010. Minneapolis is home to the largest Somali community of any city except Mogadishu and the largest Hmong community outside Laos. “We’re ahead of any other state in equitable income and health—if you’re white,” says Dan McGrath, who heads TakeAction Minnesota, a progressive political organization of 45,000 members, which, like New York’s Working Families Party, functions chiefly as an electoral organization. “Minnesota’s way down the list when you include people of color. Four out of ten Minneapolis residents are people of color. We won’t have an economy 30 years from now if only half our minority students graduate high school.”

Nearly a decade ago, several local progressive organizations, including the one established by Paul Wellstone, decided to merge into a single group, TakeAction Minnesota. At the same time, the city’s SEIU-affiliated janitorial union and its chief affordable housing organization, ISAIAH, entered a period of rapid growth. The groups, along with the city’s ACORN chapter, which was the main community-based organization in the African American community (and which has since reconstituted itself as Neighborhoods Organizing for Change), and CTUL, an organization of worker centers serving the Latino immigrant community, began meeting together regularly. In 2011, when the national SEIU decided to fund local coalitions in 17 cities across the country, the one in Minneapolis was the only such alliance to prove both effective and enduring—in part because its member groups had already forged such tight bonds.

“We’re grounded in a common experience and analysis,” McGrath says. “Our problem is not just Republicans. Our problem is the extraordinary imbalance of wealth, unbridled corporate power, and structural racism.” The commonality of perspectives was augmented by the integration of the groups’ members and staffs—attending retreats together, merging their efforts on various campaigns. “The groups had to acknowledge that none of them could get anything done just by themselves,” says George Goehl, the executive director of National People’s Action, a network of community organizations with which TakeAction Minnesota is affiliated. “They now have so deep a collaboration that when you go to one of their meetings, you can’t tell who works for whom.”

With the power of their combined numbers, the groups in the alliance—named Minnesotans for a Fair Economy—have waged a joint campaign to pressure Target, the locally based retail giant, to stop asking job applicants if they’ve been convicted of a felony, to cease the wage and hour violations inflicted on their largely immigrant janitorial workforce, and to hire local residents for maintenance jobs at the company’s new headquarters. Target agreed to drop the question about felonies and to adopt a local hiring policy; talks continue about the unionization of their janitors. The alliance waged a successful long-shot campaign against a 2012 ballot measure that would have required state voters to provide photo IDs at their polling places. And last year, the alliance provided the staff and precinct walkers to put one of their own—Council Member Betsy Hodges, who had been the executive director of one of the two groups that merged to form TakeAction Minnesota—into the Minneapolis mayor’s office.

Hodges, who is 44 and describes herself as a “sociologist by training,” was the council’s acknowledged authority on budget and funding matters. She ran on the issue of reducing the city’s racial disparities. “I said the same thing in every room I spoke in,” she told me when we met in her office in the cavernous city hall. “I said, ‘In Minneapolis, we have the biggest racial gaps of any city by any measure. It is a moral imperative that we end that, but it’s also an economic imperative.’” Hodges talked explicitly about white people, people of color, and racial disparities—terms that most campaign consultants would urge their clients to shun—and defeated her opponent, the chair of the state’s Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party, by an 18-point margin.

“A whole lot of white people thought the issue she was addressing was our principal challenge,” McGrath says. “That’s remarkable.” It’s a testament to Minneapolis’s enduring egalitarianism, but it’s also a consequence of the door-knocking and issue campaigns of the city’s liberal coalition. “There’s been a lot of political space created by progressive strategic organizing here in the city,” Hodges says. “It was hugely helpful to me as a candidate, but it will be even more helpful to me as a mayor. We have to make sure that everyone is at the table as we work on growing the city, and having people organized really facilitates that.”

The projects on which Hodges has embarked include a “cradle to kindergarten” program of infant health care and universal pre-K. As a council member, she initiated a pilot program to provide “body cams” for police officers to monitor their encounters with the public; she now wants to mandate the cameras for the entire department. She’s also seeking to route proposed transit lines to better connect minority communities to neighborhoods with jobs.

No city government may be more at odds with its governor and legislature than that of Phoenix. In 2010, Arizona enacted SB 1070, which encouraged police to stop and frisk Latinos and if they lacked documentation, to hand them over to federal agents for deportation. In response, the New York-based Four Freedoms Fund financed a massive voter-registration campaign in Phoenix’s Latino communities. The backlash against SB 1070 also fueled the successful efforts of an alliance of Latino and immigrant organizations and unions to elect Greg Stanton mayor in 2011. Stanton campaigned for union rights and marriage equality and against SB 1070. Five of the city council’s other eight members—three of whom are now Latinos—share Stanton’s politics. The council has directed Phoenix police not to hand over detainees to immigration agents for deportation and instructed the city’s lobbyist in Washington to support immigration reform.

Seattle’s leftward movement commenced when local unions of janitorial, health-care, supermarket, and warehouse workers formed a labor-community-environment alliance to win a living-wage ordinance. The regional tech boom has brought thousands of young professionals to the city, who have proved supportive of the coalition’s campaigns. “They’re open to human rights and environmental issues, of course,” says David West, who heads the alliance, “but they’re also not tax-averse and are strongly in favor of raising the minimum wage.” Going into last year’s city elections, Seattle already had a law for paid sick leave and one of the highest municipal minimum wages in the nation. A successful SEIU–led campaign to raise the hourly minimum to $15 in the small suburban community of SeaTac, adjoining Seattle’s airport, made raising the city’s own minimum to $15 the major issue in November’s mayoral campaign. Both candidates supported the raise, and the issue also swept a Trotskyist candidate onto the city council. The city’s new mayor, Ed Murray, who was chiefly known for his successful effort as a state legislator to legalize same-sex marriage, is negotiating the specifics of the raise.

Seattle’s pro-labor liberalism has trumped what many might view as its infatuation with all things techie. The city council capped the number of business licenses for such car services as Uber and Lyft after a campaign that cast the issue as a contest between outside investors and local Ethiopian-immigrant cab drivers. Last year, Murray’s predecessor blocked the construction of a Whole Foods market because of the chain’s anti-union stance.

The city’s ability to thwart the coming of a Whole Foods illustrates the often-circuitous ways in which municipalities are able to leverage their power to win the social outcomes they seek. Seattle was able to block Whole Foods by exercising its power over streets, since building the new market would have required the elimination of an existing alley.

“Even when they’re fiscally constrained, cities can set their own rules,” Pittsburgh’s Peduto says. By leveraging their power over contractors and developers who’ve received city assistance—or who may merely need city approval to close off an alley—municipal progressives are following the lead of the Los Angeles Alliance for a New Economy (LAANE), the group that pioneered the practice of requiring living wages and community hiring. Such measures are intended to accomplish indirectly and, at times, ingeniously what the federal government could accomplish directly, say, by raising the minimum wage, rewriting labor law, establishing stronger environmental safeguards, or legalizing undocumented immigrants. In the absence of such national legislation, cities are doing what they can.

The fiscal constraints to which Peduto alluded, though, are real. New York’s de Blasio had to secure the funding that establishes pre-K education in his city from the state—a revenue stream the city doesn’t control. Governor Andrew Cuomo, a Democrat, and Republican state senators blocked de Blasio and his city council allies from setting a municipal minimum wage in New York City, though living expenses there are far greater than they are in the rest of the state. A number of states have enacted laws forbidding their cities from raising wages or passing living-wage ordinances.

Shortly after November’s city elections, President Obama invited 16 of the newly elected progressive mayors to a meeting at the White House. Peduto, Hodges, Murray, and de Blasio were among those who attended. Obama talked about his proposal for universal pre-K, which was languishing in Congress. At the federal level, it would obviously take some time to get such a measure enacted, Obama continued, or he could find 20 innovative mayors and get it done tomorrow. Provided they can scrape up the dollars.

Even within those limitations, it’s in blue states and cities—certainly not in Congress—that Obama’s agenda is being enacted. While increasing the minimum wage remains stymied on Capitol Hill, legislatures in Democratic states are hiking it to the level that Obama proposed, while cities have either increased theirs even more (Washington, D.C., raised its minimum to $11.50) or are considering it (San Francisco, like Seattle, to $15). While congressional Republicans resist legislation to combat global warming, cities are demanding strict energy--efficiency standards in their new buildings. While Republicans oppose legalizing undocumented immigrants, cities are ordering their police departments, in effect, to minimize deportations.

What's happening in cities can be described as Obama's agenda trickling down to the jurisdictions where it has enough political support to be enacted—but it's also the incubation of policies and practices that will trickle up. With considerable creativity and limited power, the new urban regimes are seeking to diminish the inequality so apparent in cities and so pervasive nationwide. They are mapping the future of liberalism until the day when the national government can bring it to scale.

From: Wiley, Maya
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: [REDACTED]
Date: Tuesday, February 24, 2015 9:30:00 PM

Thanks. Will circulate.

Sent from my iPhone

> On Feb 24, 2015, at 8:37 PM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:
>
> In case you're looking for a smart, aggressive attorney somewhere in your orbit - told me friend I would get his resume to you..
>
> <[REDACTED] resume 2-13-15.docx>
> [REDACTED]

From: John Del Cecato
To: Wiley, Maya
Subject: Re: [REDACTED]
Date: Tuesday, February 24, 2015 10:20:21 PM

Yes - [REDACTED]

On 2/24/15, 10:05 PM, "Wiley, Maya" <MWiley@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>Can you talk for 2 min?

>

>Sent from my iPhone

>

>> On Feb 24, 2015, at 8:37 PM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

>>wrote:

>>

>> In case you're looking for a smart, aggressive attorney somewhere in >>your orbit - told me friend I would get his resume to you..

>>

>> <[REDACTED] resume 2-13-15.docx>

>> [REDACTED]

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Sun-Times: Forced into runoff against Garcia, hoarse Rahm says "We have a little bit further to go"
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 7:34:26 AM

Yup -- > The mayor's vote totals were way down in virtually every black ward. In the West Side's 28th Ward, Emanuel got 40 percent of the vote, down from 60 percent four years ago. The story was the same in the 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 17th, 20th, 21st, 24th, 29th and 34th Wards.

Most of the incumbent African-American aldermen publicly endorsed Emanuel, and many of them got financial help from the $2 million super PAC created to re-elect the mayor and bolster his City Council majority. But it was not enough to prevent a sizeable protest vote.

Forced into runoff against Garcia, hoarse Rahm says 'We have a little bit further to go'

Posted: 02/24/2015, 07:44pm | Fran Spielman

For Rahm Emanuel, Tuesday's mayoral election was the political equivalent of Groundhog Day: six more weeks of campaigning.

With 97 percent of the precincts counted, Emanuel had 45.3 percent to 33.9 percent for his top challenger Jesus "Chuy" Garcia. That's 4.5 percent short of the 50 percent-plus-one vote that the mayor needs to avoid an April 7 runoff against Garcia. Millionaire businessman Willie Wilson was running third with 10.5 percent, followed by Ald. Bob Fioretti (2nd) with 7.4 percent and William "Dock" Walls with 2.7 percent.

The 34 percent turnout — down from 42.5 percent four years ago — should have benefited the incumbent with the $15 million war chest and the most sophisticated get-out-the-vote operation. But it was not enough to spare Emanuel from the political embarrassment of a runoff and a grueling Round 2.

Despite an 11th-hour in-person endorsement from President Barack Obama that Emanuel turned into a closing campaign commercial, Wilson got just enough of the African-American vote to deny the mayor a second term outright.

Garcia also appeared to be doing considerably better than final polling suggested.

Emanuel addressed his supporters shortly before 9:30 p.m. and tried to put the best possible face on an embarrassing situation.

"Thank you, Chicago. We've come a long way, and we have a little bit further to go," Emanuel said.

"To those who voted for us, I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart. For those who voted for someone else, I hope to earn your support."

Still hoarse from a severe cold that hit him in the final days of the campaign, Emanuel congratulated Garcia for a "good race" and called him a "good man" with whom he looks forward to debating the issues in the weeks ahead. Then, he braced his supporters for the grueling, six-week spring ahead.

“To those who are gathered here tonight and throughout the city, you have worked hard. I want you to take a moment to celebrate what we have accomplished over the last four years. Take stock in it, and let us double down because, tomorrow morning, I’ll be seeing you at the L stops as I have every morning,” the mayor said.

“We will get back out there talking to our friends and families and neighbors as they make a critical choice about who has the strength, who has the leadership, who has the ideas to move this great city forward so we can secure the future of this great city for our children.”

A triumphant Garcia followed the mayor to the podium, to the chants of “Chuy, Chuy.”

“So, nobody thought we’d be here tonight. They wrote us off. They said we didn’t have a chance. They said we didn’t have any money while they spent millions attacking us. Well, we’re still standing. We’re still running and we’re gonna win,” Garcia said.

“Today, we the people have spoken. Not the people with the money and the power and the connections. Not the giant corporations. The big-money special interests. The hedge funds and Hollywood celebrities who poured tens of millions of dollars into the mayor’s campaign. They all had their say. They’ve had their say for too long. But today, the rest of us had something to say.”

Garcia said he had just gotten off the phone with Chicago Teachers Union President Karen Lewis, who “sends her love” and said, “Tell them this is about the new democracy.”

Lewis persuaded Garcia to run in her place after she was diagnosed with brain cancer.

Then, Garcia framed the race ahead as a classic battle between the haves and have-nots.

“We’ve got six weeks of hard work ahead of us and believe me, these big-money interests are going to throw everything they got at us. They run this town and they’re not gonna give up easy. But we’re gonna fight and we’re gonna work hard and we’re gonna win. We’re gonna keep this city together,” he said.

Garcia’s campaign manager, Andrew Sharp, added, “There’s a real hunger for change in Chicago. There are tens of thousands of voters in Chicago who came out today and voted for change. The city is not working for ordinary people,” Sharp said.

Asked how Garcia could be outspent 12-to-1 and still force a runoff, Sharp said, “In the words of the Beatles, ‘Money can’t buy you love.’”

If there was any doubt Emanuel’s decision to close a record,50 public schools had alienated black voters, it was erased by the ward-by-ward vote totals.

The mayor’s vote totals were way down in virtually every black ward. In the West Side’s 28th Ward, Emanuel got 40 percent of the vote, down from 60 percent four years ago. The story was the same in the 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th,9th, 17th, 20th, 21st, 24th, 29th and 34th Wards.

Most of the incumbent African-American aldermen publicly endorsed Emanuel, and many of them got financial help from the $2 million super PAC created to re-elect the mayor and bolster his City Council majority. But it was not enough to prevent a sizeable protest vote.

Emanuel's political beating was capped off by the fact that one incumbent alderman was defeated outright and nine others backed by the mayor's super PAC were forced into runoffs. Even Patrick Daley Thompson, the nephew of Emanuel's political mentor, was forced into a runoff in spite of support from Chicago Forward.

During an animated impromptu press conference, Frank Avila Jr., an attorney for Willie Wilson, claimed credit for the mayoral runoff.

"Without Willie Wilson in the race, Rahm Emanuel . . . would have been re-elected tonight," Avila shouted. "Willie Wilson took it to Rahm Emanuel at his base with African-Americans and said Rahm was lying. At least a portion of those African-Americans listened to us."

Even in the 13th Ward, where powerful House Speaker Michael Madigan is the ward committeeman who worked hard for Emanuel, the mayor got just 50.9 percent to 36.7 percent for Garcia. In the 19th Ward, another one of the handful of strong Democratic ward organizations, Emanuel got just 41.3 percent to 36.4 percent for Garcia.

Trying to win more than 50 percent of the vote against four challengers is a tall order. It was particularly challenging for a polarizing figure such as Rahm Emanuel.

As the campaign drew to a close, Emanuel campaign advisers were realistic about the needle they were trying to thread.

"He got 55 percent of the vote the last time with the wind at his back," said David Axelrod, Emanuel's friend of 30 years who worked together with the mayor in the Obama White House.

Even the room Emanuel booked on election night — symbolically located at Plumber's Union Hall — lacked the energy of the mayor's big night in 2011.

A subdued, sparse crowd milled about more than an hour after most polls closed as John Cougar's "Jack and Diane" played in the background, with the words "oh yeah, life goes on," holding a special irony.

Members of Local 1, made up of hospitality, restaurant and cafeteria workers, made up the bulk of what was an underwhelming crowd at the close of polls inside of Rahm Emanuel campaign headquarters.

Kenneth Williams, a 33-year union member who works as a Bell Captain at the Doubletree Hotel on Ohio, said he thinks Emanuel is the only candidate who will be willing to fight Republican Gov. Bruce Rauner's proposed budget cuts. "He's pretty much powerful enough, got the gumption enough, to stand up to the governor because I feel he's going to do some unreasonable things to the city," Williams said. "He's already talking about cuts in CTA. [Rauner] seems to be coming after unions."

Before the results were official, one supporter Ed Alexander, who lives in South Shore, still was holding out hope for 51 percent for Emanuel.

"I've seen a lot of the services that he's provided to a lot of the communities that I frequent," Alexander said. One is Engelwood area. I've seen a lot of things he's brought to that area that are needed. Like child care service. And he's also brought a legal assistance program there."

Dudley Ade Locke, a retired educator and school administrator, said he thinks Emanuel has gotten a “raw rap” on how he’s handled schools. “Schools are underperforming,” Locke said. “They need to be closed.”

Like the election night party of fellow multimillionaire Rauner, the campaign for Wilson offered a cash bar to supporters who gathered in a Swissotel ballroom.

Though the potency was anything but certain, at $16 per well drink the price was certainly stiff.

As early totals trickled in, Wilson fielded a steady stream of interviews and relaxed in a 31st floor hotel room.

Regardless of the outcome, he said one thing is certain: “Win, lose or draw — I’m in politics to stay.”

Four years ago, Emanuel captured 58 percent of the black vote, 49 percent of the lakefront, one-third of the Hispanic vote and 49 percent of the white vote overall.

This time, the closest thing Emanuel had to a political base was the lakefront. There, he was hoping to reach the high-50s. If he did that, got half the black vote, hit the mid 50s among white voters and took a 35 percent bite out of Garcia’s Hispanic base, the mayor’s forces believed Emanuel could have avoided a run-off.

But the backlash against Emanuel’s decision to close a record 50 public schools apparently made holding half the African-American vote a tall order, in spite of Obama’s verbal and physical embrace.

Wilson spent more than $2 million of his personal fortune, much of it in television advertising and full-page newspaper ads that ran in the closing days of the campaign.

By drawing a protest vote in the double-digits, Wilson made it impossible for Emanuel to reach the magic, 50 percent-plus-one. Garcia’s vow to deliver on Emanuel’s broken promise to hire 1,000 additional police officers obviously resonated and denied Emanuel even more votes.

A year ago, the mayor’s race was shaping up to be a far different story.

A Chicago Sun-Times poll showed Emanuel’s approval rating at 29 percent and just 8 percent among blacks.

But as vulnerable as Emanuel appeared to be, County Board President Toni Preckwinkle, the mayoral challenger that City Hall feared most, took a pass on the race, and so did other big-name challengers.

That prompted Chicago Teachers Union President Karen Lewis to step up to the plate. She had already gotten the best of Emanuel during the 2012 teachers strike instigated by the mayor’s bullying missteps. She had the guts to take him on again.

What would have been a colorful, but divisive, campaign came to a crashing halt in November. Lewis was diagnosed with brain cancer. After emergency surgery to remove a malignant brain tumor, she bowed out and worked behind the scenes to persuade Garcia to pick up the mantle.

With a late start and a lower profile, Garcia was only able to raise $1.3 million. Emanuel raked in $15 million and outspent his No. 2 challenger more than 12-to-1.

Emanuel's legendary fundraising was helped enormously by a longshot mayoral hopeful who donated $100,000 to himself, but ultimately decided not to run. That lifted state-imposed caps on campaign contributions and allowed Emanuel to go back to the same deep-pocket donors who had already maxed out.

During campaign debates, the nexus between Emanuel's heavy-hitting donors and the mayor's public appearances and official actions took center stage.

Fioretti pounced when asked about a Chicago Tribune investigation that concluded that half of Emanuel's top 100 donors have received City Hall benefits ranging from contracts and permits to appointments and personal endorsements.

"$30 million, then all of these board appointments and look at those top 103 [donors]. Sixty of 'em received some kind of contract, some kind of benefit. If that's not pay-to-play, I don't know what is," Fioretti said then.

Emanuel countered that the millions he's raised has not stopped him from standing up to big business.

During a pre-election interview with the Chicago Sun-Times, Emanuel said there is no quid pro quo or pay to play.

"I've taken on supporters. Their support for me is not about this permit or this license or this zoning. This is about creating stability, managing the challenges the city faces and doing it with a sense of strength and leadership," Emanuel said.

"They're not getting anything. They don't support what I've done on the minimum wage. They don't support how I've cracked down on the housing piece and how I changed the way we do affordable housing. Did I not say to all the corporations that buy the skyboxes, 'You're not getting your little loophole anymore on the amusement tax?'"

Asked why he needs $15 million to get re-elected when his two strongest challengers didn't run, Emanuel said, "Like I did for President Clinton and President Obama, I want people to know what we've done and what I'm going to do. I think that's what campaigns are about."

The mayor used the money to blanket the airwaves with slick campaign commercials to rehabilitate his image, particularly with African-American voters angered by the school closings, charter openings, rampant shootings and by Emanuel's top-down management style. When Garcia went negative, Emanuel retaliated.

The ads featured African-Americans and emphasized the biggest moves Emanuel made to undercut the progressive base of his strongest challengers: raising Chicago's minimum wage to $13 an hour by 2019 and offering free City Colleges tuition to CPS students who maintain a "B" average.

The mayor also got an 11th-hour boost from the $2 million super PAC created to re-elect Emanuel and strengthen his City Council majority.

Barred by law from coordinating with the Emanuel campaign, Chicago Forward made a $450,000 commercial and cable television buy on the mayor's behalf and spent another $35,000 on robo-calls for Emanuel as the campaign drew to a close.

Chicago Forward's 30-second spot described Emanuel as "a mayor as strong as Chicago," then trashed Garcia for casting a 1980s vote for the "biggest property tax increase in city history" and for claiming an "illegal" homeowners exemption on "two houses at the same time to avoid paying over $8,000 in taxes."

The ad concluded with a kicker: "Chuy Garcia: Out for himself. Not us."

Garcia was livid. He said the $8,500 in back taxes he owed the county was for a tax break he did not request and had no idea still applied to his parents' Southwest Side home when he inherited the property after his mother died.

He defended his 1980s City Council vote — for a property tax increase that was actually the second-largest in Chicago history — as an effort to stave off 11,000 layoffs, including 5,000 police officers.

Garcia noted that Emanuel has been "on TV since Thanksgiving and it's the least successful Rahm-com ever."

Becky Carroll, the longtime mayoral ally now serving as chairman and CEO of "Chicago Forward," didn't buy Garcia's argument that his "tough vote" for an $80 million property tax hike staved off thousands of layoffs.

"No one was ever prepared to lay off 11,000 workers. Mayor Harold Washington's own staff admitted privately that the cuts were only a bluff and they would never have been carried out," Carroll said.

"Garcia is willing to do and say anything to distance himself from the fact that he voted for the largest property tax hike in city history, just as he was willing to do anything to pass it."

Emanuel himself proposed a five-year, $250 million property tax increase to shore up two of four city employee pension funds before substituting a 56 percent increase in the monthly tax tacked on to telephone bills at the behest of former Gov. Pat Quinn.

All of those issues and more are certain to be replayed in a grueling Round 2.

Among those in the crowd at Emanuel's party was the iconic Ronnie "Woo-Woo," who was wearing his trademark Cubs uniform.

After Emanuel's remarks concluded, he turned and said: "So they gotta do all this again?"

Contributing: Natasha Korecki, Lauren FitzPatrick, Brian Slodysko, Diana Novak Jones

<http://chicago.suntimes.com/chicago-politics/7/71/392817/emanuel-headed-toward-runoff-early-returns>

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Subject: FW: ABNY announcements
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 11:30:57 AM
Attachments: ABNY announcements.docx

From: Fink, Carolee
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 11:30 AM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: ABNY announcements

Hi. Some background for speechwriters. When do you expect to get the next draft?

STEM Institutes

Goal:

- Incorporate high quality STEM programs in full-time curriculum

Background:

- Individual schools have created innovative STEM programs and initiatives, but there is no way to share these programs across the system or give all schools guidance on how to incorporate STEM
- This is particularly challenging for girls and minorities underrepresented in STEM fields

Announcement:

- For the first time, DOE will be hosting 3 STEM institutes for teachers citywide, across grade levels, to share practices and work directly with experienced STEM partner organizations (Solar One, Engineering is Elementary, Bootstrap, LEGO and others)
 - First institute in April (April 7-9 at Stuyvesant HS). Up to 300 teachers will participate
 - Second institute will be this summer; third will be spring of 2016
- Through this program, DOE will partner with non-profits, universities and corporations who have the expertise and capacity in STEM to support our teachers and students
- Funded in partnership with GE, which will also provide overall guidance and input into program
- Institutes will help DOE create tools (e.g., STEM Framework, Handbook for Professional Learning, etc.) to support schools in developing STEM programs and help build a mission and vision for STEM education in NYC, a key priority for the Chancellor
- Institutes will reach 600 – 800 teachers from 200 – 300 schools with 100K-150K students over the next 2 years.
- Overall, the work will impact all students and schools by helping schools understand and develop high quality STEM programs

Industry Partnerships:

- Goal is to align the city's economic development strategy with our Workforce Development programs, and make long-term investments in the skills and training to create upward income mobility in the sectors we are supporting through our capital, incentive and land-use policies.
- We will form partnerships with industry to ensure our workforce system is equipping people with the skills businesses need and improve quality of low-wage occupations
- Focus on six sectors:
 - health care and technology- high growth, higher wage
 - Industrial manufacturing and construction – offer relatively high income while not requiring high educational attainment
 - Retail and food service – robust job growth, but low wage, few benefits and limited stability

Quality Home Care Workforce Program – example of industry partnership

Goal:

- Raise quality of home health aide (HHA) jobs, as well as improve retention and the quality of patient care, by improving the quality of training for new HHAs

Background:

- Approximately 1 in 7 low-wage workers is a home care worker
- The NYS Department of Labor estimated the number of HHA jobs to grow by 48% between 2010 and 2020 in New York City, with close to 5,000 openings a year
- Training, supervision, and scheduling practices often create a poor working environment and low income
- Annual turnover for HHAs is 25-50% in New York City, and often aides don't make it past the first couple months.
- Hours can be insufficient and variable, and communication around scheduling can be a challenge.

Announcement:

- Through SBS and New York Alliance for Careers in Healthcare, in partnership with Paraprofessional Healthcare Institute and 1199SEIU Training and Employment Funds, we are launching the Quality Home Care Workforce Pilot
- Program supports the City's Career Pathways strategy of building the skills employers seek and improving job quality for low income workers.
- Program will improve training, supervision, and scheduling practices, as well as offer financial counseling, which will lead to higher quality jobs, higher quality service, and more efficient operations
- Over the next six months:
 - 240 unemployed individuals will be trained as Home Health Aides using an enhanced curriculum that was industry informed
 - Another 240 individuals will be trained by CUNY using this same curriculum and committed employer partners
 - 240 current Home Health Aides will receive financial literacy counseling
 - Approximately 1,000 currently employed Home Health Aides will benefit from agency supervisory and scheduling training, depending on the size of the participating home care employers
- As a result, in Year 1 of the pilot program, 720 individuals will be impacted directly through training, with over a thousand low income workers impacted through supervisory and scheduling training.

Hunts Point:

Goal:

- Reposition Hunts Point as a modern, resilient food distribution center that promotes local entrepreneurship and job growth in the South Bronx

Background:

- Hunts Point is one of the largest food distribution centers in the world, occupying 329 acres, housing more than 115 firms, and directly employing over 8,000 people
- Opportunity to leverage city-owned assets to strengthen existing businesses and attract new entrepreneurs

Announcement

- Investing $150mm for infrastructure and other market improvements
- Investment is in addition to the $25mm announced at the end of last year for critical infrastructure
- Combined, these investments are more than what the City invested in last 12 years ($169mm)
- Investments will improve existing facilities, reposition portions of the peninsula for job-intensive food uses, better link regional growers and producers with New York City consumers and target job-dense businesses like value-add processors
- Will create over 400 jobs while making the Food Distribution Center more sustainable and resilient, lowering operating costs for all businesses and improving multi-model access

Industrial Initiatives:

Goal

- Encourage public and private investments in the industrial sector to catalyze innovation, support businesses, and train our workforce for 21st century jobs.

Background

- The industrial sector employs 540,000 people across NYC (15.7% of total workforce, 10.7% of Gross City Product)
- Median Wage: $56k; Average wage: $73k

The industrial sector offers opportunities for a diverse workforce

- Approximately 50% of industrial sector jobs are available to individuals who do not have college degrees
- Median wage for non-college educated workers is $30k (50% higher than wages in other low-skilled sectors such as accommodation, food services, and retail)
- Over 300,000 jobs in outer boroughs, primarily in Industrial Business Zones

NYC is well positioned for Manufacturing 2.0

- BLS projections show industrial jobs will grow by 3-7% over the next 10 years in NYC
- $50 billion of goods production expected to return to U.S. by 2020
- NYC growth sectors in high-end goods/services
 - Food manufacturing, fabrication, digital production
 - Small tech-driven firms with links to traditional NYC industries
 - Bright talent pool – over 12,000 graduates per year in engineering, design, architecture, etc.

Announcements:

- Innovative Manufacturing Centers
 - Develop a network of specialized technology facilities and programs to equip NYC residents and businesses:
 - Technologies for digital manufacturing, fabrication, and robotics.
 - R&D facilities for researchers (e.g. Samsung Smart Things Innovations Lab)
 - Workspace for start-ups (e.g. WeWork)
 - Fabrication lab with extension services for mature manufacturers (e.g. TechShop)
 - Training and certification program (e.g. National Institute for Metalworking credentialing)
 - Classrooms and events space for community engagement (e.g. Make @NYPL)

- Industrial Business Solutions Providers
 - Relaunch a NYC branded network of Industrial Business Solutions Providers (IBSPs) to be the City's direct link to industrial businesses.
 - Ensure increased and consistent funding for IBSP network ($2.5M per year)
 - Create stronger communication, marketing, and feedback pathways between businesses and the City
 - Deliver customized support for business strategy, process improvement, technology upgrades, financial management, and space efficiency

- Industrial / Manufacturing Industry Partnership
 - Help train New Yorkers to fill jobs in the modern industrial ecosystem.
 - Convene service providers, business leaders, and other stakeholders to understand the needs of the industrial sector and develop adequate training programs.
 - Create four Industrial and Transportation Career Centers (ITCCs) in select Industrial Business Zones with high job density.
 - Target skills training and job placement in sub-sectors such as construction, manufacturing, transportation, utilities, and wholesale distribution.

From: John Del Cecato
To: John, Roxanne
Subject: <no subject>
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 11:54:19 AM

Hey, can you give me a buzz when you get a minute? [REDACTED]

From: Liz Hegarty
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: 3/6 lunch location
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 12:15:04 PM

Perfect, thank you!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 at 10:16 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: 3/6 lunch location

Great!

Thanks Liz.

Yes, Penny will be there at 12:30. She's looking forward to meeting with John.

Let me know if something comes up in the meantime.

Thanks again!

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 11:01 AM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: 3/6 lunch location

Hi Matt,

The Smith sounds great. Does 12:30 still work?

Thanks!

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, February 24, 2015 at 6:00 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: 3/6 lunch location

Hi, Liz.

I just spoke with Penny about her lunch with John, and she suggested The Smith at 956 2nd Ave (at 51st St). Would that work well for John? If not, I'm happy to find another place.

Thanks again,

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, February 23, 2015 10:44 AM

To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Request for lunch with Penny

Hi Matt,

Sorry, it seems like my email from last week did not go through.

John could make 3/3, 3/6 or just about any day the week of 3/9. Let me know when might work best for Penny and we'll add to the calendar.

Thanks!

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Friday, February 20, 2015 at 10:05 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Request for lunch with Penny

Hi, Liz.

I'm writing to see if we might be able to schedule a time for Penny and John to meet over lunch.

Penny's lunchtimes are pretty much open starting on the 26th (not 3/4, 3/13) so would you let me know a couple days that work well for John?

Thanks again!

Matt

Matt Graham | Special Assistant to the Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: (212) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Fw: TTP Queens Follow Up for ABNY
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 3:27:50 PM
Attachments: image001.png

From: Fink, Carolee
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 03:24 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: FW: TTP Queens Follow Up for ABNY

More for speech. We are expanding our college internships to Queens!

From: Bershadszkaya, Eleonora
Sent: Monday, February 23, 2015 8:03 PM
To: Fink, Carolee; Velani, Sonam
Cc: Titus, Kristen (SBS)
Subject: TTP Queens Follow Up for ABNY

Hi,

Here is more info. on the TTP Queens College Internship Program based on my discussion with Kristen (copied in case I am missing or mischaracterizing anything here).

Queens Program Overview

- TTP partnership with Queens College will provide (i) pre-professional programming (details TBD based on participant needs assessment) and (ii) paid technology internships with local employers. Private sector partners TBD and training service provider TBD.
- Program will serve between 75 and 100 upper level students (juniors/seniors focused on tech), total across 3 cohorts.
- TTP will provide funding directly to Queens College, which will select and administer program through a third-party provider.
- TIMING: TTP is working with Queens College to finalize contract ASAP and will determine whether March 5th completion is possible by cob tomorrow.

Geographic Angle

- TTP is focused on partnering with educational institutions to source and cultivate tech talent in all five boroughs.
- Queens will be the third borough to forge a strong partnership between City and CUNY for tech talent efforts, following Brooklyn Tech Triangle (CUNY in Brooklyn) and Microsoft + Infor tech training commitments (CUNY in Manhattan).
- The long-term goal is to reach CUNY/higher ed institutions in Staten Island and the Bronx, however there are no concrete partnerships with these institutions underway at this time.

Thanks!
Eleonora

Eleonora Bershadskaya

Policy Advisor

Office of the Deputy Mayor for Housing & Economic Development

EBershadskaya@cityhall.nyc.gov

O: (212) 341-5032

C: (347) 604-2071

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Subject: FW: Remarks: DC37 Black History
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 4:30:23 PM
Attachments: 2-26-2015 DC37 Black History Month.doc

Please let me know your thoughts. Thanks!!

From: Chow, Eugene
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 3:12 PM
To: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Walzak, Phil; Adams, Marti; Cohen, Adam; @EO; Walters, Alexis
Subject: Remarks: DC37 Black History

Remarks for Friday's DC37 Black History event attached.

Let me know if you have any edits/suggestions.

Thanks,
Eugene

Eugene K. Chow
Speechwriter
Mayor's Office
o: 212-341-5096
e: echow@cityhall.nyc.gov

OPEN PRESS

MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO,
DC37 BLACK HISTORY MONTH CELEBRATION
THURSDAY, FEBUARY 26, 2015

REMARKS:

- Thank you, Henry [Garrido (gah-REE-doh)]
- And congratulations on becoming Executive Director
 - Passionate leader, cares deeply about mission of DC37
 - Unions in his DNA – mom was active member of needle trades union
 - Henry has said “I am doing what I was born to do”

- Have worked with Henry, dedication shows

[SPACE]

- Great to celebrate Black History Month with you
- Histories of Civil Rights Movement, Labor Movement, very much intertwined
- Dr. Martin Luther King called them “the two most dynamic movements that reshaped the nation.”
- Rings true; DC37’s impact on city is undeniable
- City’s largest union for public employees, with over 120,000 members

- You are...
 - Paramedics, engineers,
 - Nurse's aides, librarians
 - Social workers, urban park rangers
 - School crossing guards
 - Office, clerical workers
- Work across spectrum; members help make City great
 - You are glue that holds City together

[SPACE]

- Proud to say new era of labor relations
 - based on respect, real dialogue

- At start of Administration, no unions had contract; now nearly 75% signed
 - DC37 one of earliest
- Proud of that record...
 - ...But it stands in contrast to troubling trend nationwide
- Unions, collective bargaining powers coming under attack in states like Kansas, Nevada, Wyoming, California
 - Trying to erode generations of hard-won gains
- Attack on unions is attack on middle class
- As nation, should focus on lifting up – not tearing down – middle class

- Something my Administration strives for every day
 - Hope NYC can be good example of what is possible through mutual respect, cooperation

[SPACE]

- From Day 1, made fighting inequality top priority
- Successes: Universal Pre-K, expanded living wage, paid sick leave
- This year, taking fight even further
- Affordable housing #1 focus – reducing largest burden for many New Yorkers
- Goal: build, preserve 200,000 affordable units over next decade

6

- Have kindred spirit in Henry [Garrido]
 - Studied to be architect, wanted to build affordable housing
- In meantime, will push forward with Housing Plan
 - Bold, ambitious plan
 - But must be steadfast, unwavering
 - Something DC37 knows about
- Your history built on boldness, dogged pursuit of fairness
- Black History Month good opportunity to reflect on shared struggle for equality
 - ...To celebrate battles won

- ...Recommit to ongoing fight
- Dr. King said, “Our struggle is for genuine equality, which means economic equality”
 - Powerfully recognized economic inequality at heart of injustice
- In NYC, carrying on progressive legacy – taking dead aim at inequality
- Using every tool at our disposal to uplift millions, but can’t do it alone
 - Need your support
- Together, can change dynamic of city for generations to come

###

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: "John Del Cecato"
Subject: RE: Remarks: DC37 Black History
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 4:49:49 PM

That would be TRANSCENDENT!

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 4:35 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: Remarks: DC37 Black History

i'm fine with this - although we should deeply and powerfully try to reduce the use of the words deeply and powerfully

From: <Hagelgans>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 at 4:30 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: FW: Remarks: DC37 Black History

Please let me know your thoughts. Thanks!!

From: Chow, Eugene
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 3:12 PM
To: Ragone, Peter; Hagelgans, Andrea; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Norvell, Wiley; Walzak, Phil; Adams, Marti; Cohen, Adam; @EO; Walters, Alexis
Subject: Remarks: DC37 Black History

Remarks for Friday's DC37 Black History event attached.

Let me know if you have any edits/suggestions.

Thanks,
Eugene

Eugene K. Chow
Speechwriter
Mayor's Office
o: 212-341-5096
e: echow@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Subject: FW: FINAL: Officer Byrne Memorial
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 4:54:41 PM
Attachments: 2_26_15 Officer Byrne Memorial347PM.doc

Any concerns here as well?
We will acknowledge the PC

From: Walters, Alexis
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 4:45 PM
To: Richardson, Jerika
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: FW: FINAL: Officer Byrne Memorial

Hi Jerika,

These are good right, nothing else to add? Should anyone get acknowledged?

From: Chow, Eugene
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 4:38 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Coney, Javon; Leopold, Elana; Walters, Alexis; Cohen, Adam
Subject: FINAL: Officer Byrne Memorial

Attached.

Eugene K. Chow
Speechwriter
Mayor's Office
o: 212-341-5096
e: echow@cityhall.nyc.gov

OPEN PRESS

MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO,
OFFICER BRYNE MEMORIAL
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 2015

REMARKS:

- Thank you Lt. [Tony] Giorgio
[GEORGE-ee-oh]
- Gather to honor life of a hero: Officer
Eddie Byrne [BURN]
- 27 years ago today, at this very location, made ultimate sacrifice in line of duty
 - Protecting witness from drug dealers
 - Murdered for wearing NYPD badge, uniform

2

- Only 22 years old
- Walked path of courage, service
- Followed footsteps of father, retired NYPD officer, 22-year veteran
- Incredible family – all raised with belief in helping others
 - All 4 sons entered law enforcement, criminal justice
 - Including Larry Byrne, NYPD Deputy Commissioner for Legal Matters

[SPACE]

- Tragic loss of Officer Byrne shook city, nation
 - Attack on all of us, our core values

3

- Honor his life by coming together to stop violence, make streets safer
- Nearly 3 decades later, city has come long way
- Almost 1,900 murders in 1988 [year Officer Byrne died]
- 2014 record year: 332 murders, lowest since 1963, when reliable records started being kept
- Streets safer than ever – allowed economy to flourish, neighborhoods to rejuvenate, record number of tourists
- Extraordinary gains possible because valor, professionalism, sacrifice of NYPD, their families

4

- NYPD finest department in world, results speak for themselves
- Getting where we are today not easy – today, painful reminder a dangerous job
- We must protect protectors
 - As Mayor, feel keen responsibility
- Have seen NYPD up close – dangers officers face, sacrifices they make
- Speak at swearing-ins, graduations, promotions
 - Meet young people embarking on career of service, and family – some with generations in NYPD
- Have been at scenes of remarkable heroism

- Sadly, have visited injured officers in hospital
- Worst of all, comforted grieving families of officers killed – attended funerals
- Will never forget time with Liu, Ramos families – or their loss
- Duty to protect officers weighs heavily on my mind
- With Commissioner Bratton, have made backing police highest priority
- In process of replacing all bullet-resistant vests over 5 years old
 - Investing $11.5 million over next two years

6

- Value priceless: since 1978, vests saved lives of 87 NYPD officers
- Adding over $350 million for enhanced training, new technology, greater safety
- Including new smartphones for every patrol officer, tablets every patrol car
 - Latest information at fingertips
- Additional training for every officer
 - Keep safe, be more effective
- And working to bring police-community closer together
- Investments not only keep officers safe...

- ...give peace of mind to families, loved ones waiting anxiously at home

[SPACE]

- On behalf of all New Yorkers thank men, women of NYPD for courage, sacrifice, hard-work
- Your efforts have made difference for so many New Yorkers
- Their dreams made possible – lives uninterrupted – because of safety you provided...
- Because officers like Eddie Byrne gave what President Lincoln called the “last full measure of devotion” [Source: Gettysburg Address]

8

- With dedicated men and women of NYPD, know NYC will remain safest big city in nation
- And NYPD will remain world's greatest police department

###

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: FINAL: Officer Byrne Memorial
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 6:06:57 PM

I hear ya. But cop was killed by drug dealers so think it may not be right audience.

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 05:03 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: FINAL: Officer Byrne Memorial

I want to continue to press the point that radically reducing SQF & reducing small-time pot arrests free officers to go after the REAL bad guys... it helps bring police & communities closer together, so they work as partners & not adversaries... that's not just a happy coincidence with last year's record low crime/record low murders - i would argue it's WHY crime is continuing to go down past the point that many said it could ever go

From: <Hagelgans>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 at 4:54 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: FW: FINAL: Officer Byrne Memorial

Any concerns here as well?
We will acknowledge the PC

From: Walters, Alexis
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 4:45 PM
To: Richardson, Jerika
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: FW: FINAL: Officer Byrne Memorial

Hi Jerika,

These are good right, nothing else to add? Should anyone get acknowledged?

From: Chow, Eugene
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 4:38 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Coney, Javon; Leopold, Elana; Walters, Alexis; Cohen, Adam
Subject: FINAL: Officer Byrne Memorial

Attached.

Eugene K. Chow
Speechwriter
Mayor's Office
o: 212-341-5096

e: echow@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Berger, Henry
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: quick question
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 7:05:08 PM

I missed that – my brain freeze. Happens here

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 at 6:29 PM
To: Henry Berger <hberger@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: quick question

Also - sorry I called you "Harry". Brain fart!

On Feb 25, 2015, at 6:10 PM, Berger, Henry <HBerger@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I'm around
Tried to call

██████████

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 5:33 PM
To: Berger, Henry
Subject: quick question

Do you have a moment? (Actually, that wasn't the question!)

██████████

John F. Del Cecato
Partner/Creative Director
AKPD Message and Media
915 Broadway, Suite 1301
New York, NY 10010
212-529-5775 (office)
212-529-0545 (fax)
917 685 4819 (mobile)

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; John Del Cecato; Wolfe, Emma; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Warren
Date: Thursday, February 26, 2015 6:45:06 PM

Senator Warren gave this speech yesterday on the middle class. Already has 1.4 million hits.

Much better written than spoken, but definitely worth 5 min to watch:

<https://www.facebook.com/video.php?v=423362941159538&pnref=story>

From: Singleton, Jessica
To: Katz, Rebecca; Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato; Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: ABNY and facebook
Date: Thursday, February 26, 2015 7:02:45 PM

Srsly.

Great call. Data says our fb video is killlllling it these days.

From: Katz, Rebecca
Sent: Thursday, February 26, 2015 6:59 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato; Singleton, Jessica; Walzak, Phil
Subject: ABNY and facebook

We should totally put the best part of next week's speech in video on Facebook.

1.4 million hits aint no joke:

<https://www.facebook.com/video.php?v=423362941159538&pnref=story>

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: Walzak, Phil; John Del Cecato; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Tweet from Judd Legum (@JuddLegum)
Date: Thursday, February 26, 2015 8:03:58 PM

Judd Legum (@JuddLegum)

2/26/15, 8:02 PM

Walker tells CNN he does not regret comparing union members to ISIS. Says they are both "difficult situations" twitter.com/stevebruskCNN/...

Download the official Twitter app here

Sent from my iPhone

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Subject: FW: Updated ABNY outline
Date: Friday, February 27, 2015 9:28:45 AM
Attachments: ABNYWednesday9PM-MGfactcheck.docx

Sending you Mahen's fact check. Also, lots of concern from the group on these two lines. They either want struck or toned down. Let's discuss

"If you're in the business of selling multimillion dollar homes to foreign billionaires, or manufacturing yachts or Faberge eggs, then a raise in the minimum wage probably won't help you. But given the stock market's record rebound, business is probably awful good for you these days."

And change the film/TV line to:

The expansion of an entertainment industry that produced a record 46 unique television series in recent months and over 240 films right here in New York last year;

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Friday, February 27, 2015 9:25 AM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: Updated ABNY outline

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 26, 2015, at 11:07 PM, Gunaratna, Mahen <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Fact check edits attached

From: Mahen Gunaratna [REDACTED]
Sent: Thursday, February 26, 2015 11:06 PM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: FW: Updated ABNY outline

On Thu, Feb 26, 2015 at 11:05 PM, Gunaratna, Mahen
<MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Thursday, February 26, 2015 10:37 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Shorris, Anthony
Cc: Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Fink, Carolee; Gunaratna, Mahen; Wolfe, Emma Subject: Re: Updated ABNY outline

Sunday, by phone

From: Walzak, Phil

Sent: Thursday, February 26, 2015 10:36 PM
To: Shorris, Anthony; Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Fink, Carolee; Gunaratna, Mahen; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Updated ABNY outline

When is the next prep session on ABNY?

These are good flags -- we need to adjudicate the broad approach, and measure the individual pieces, as a full working group

From: Shorris, Anthony
Sent: Thursday, February 26, 2015 10:26 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Fink, Carolee; Gunaratna, Mahen; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Updated ABNY outline

It should be eliminated or substantially revised. It's just pandering for a crowd that's not even in the room, being provocative without reward.

Anthony E. Shorris
First Deputy Mayor
City of New York
City Hall
New York, NY 10007
212-788-3191

On Feb 26, 2015, at 9:25 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea
<AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I already told John that the "Faberge egg" reference felt Reagan era to me!
We've highlighted that graph as one to discuss.

From: Shorris, Anthony
Sent: Thursday, February 26, 2015 9:24 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Glen, Alicia; Patchett, James; Fink, Carolee; Gunaratna, Mahen; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Updated ABNY outline

This may be heard as a bit divisive by a lot of people in that room.

"If you're in the business of selling multimillion dollar homes to foreign billionaires, or manufacturing yachts or Faberge eggs, then a raise in the minimum wage probably won't help you. But given the stock market's record rebound, business is probably awful good for you these days."

Anthony E. Shorris
First Deputy Mayor
City of New York
City Hall
New York, NY 10007
212-788-3191

On Feb 26, 2015, at 4:25 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea
<AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Here is an updated ABNY outline for review. Next prep is on Sunday by phone. You should have received a calendar notice.

Send me your edits and I'll consolidate with JDC

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

<ABNYWednesday9PM.docx>

<ABNYWednesday9PM-MGfactcheck.docx>

ABNY OUTLINE
2/25/15 – 6:00 PM

Acknowledgements

17 months ago, I was honored to address an event hosted by this distinguished organization -- just about a month before the 2013 mayoral election.

At that time, there were some pundits who wondered exactly how ABNY would receive me.

After all, my campaign was built around progressive change – about taking aim at inequality and helping rebuild our middle class. Surely – the cynics argued – progressive ideas would be met with the sound of crickets -- or perhaps worse – when presented to those who've dedicated their lives to growing businesses and the economy.

But knowing this organization, and many of the individuals who comprised the audience that day, I wasn't the least bit worried.

That day, I said, QUOTE: “We cannot resign ourselves to the mindset that says rising inequality is a necessary byproduct of urban success.” No one booed or hissed or left the room. Instead, that call was met with resounding agreement.

That's because this organization understands – as do I – that rising inequality isn't just a problem for those of modest means....not just a threat to those barely hanging on to their place in the middle class. We understand that inequality is a crisis that impacts all of us -- including those who have enjoyed great personal success.

If New York can't be a city of genuine opportunity for all – regardless of the circumstances of your birth – we not only lose a part of who we are...we risk losing our place as a global center of innovation, diversity, and progress.

That is why we refuse to accept the false choices that that for too long defined how some viewed our city:

That sustained economic growth is fated to only help SOME, while leaving many behind;

That more development inevitably means everyday New Yorkers will be priced out;

That New York can't be both a growing city AND a city of opportunity for all.

We know that shortsighted thinking doesn't have to define our future.

A progressive agenda – one that seeks to reduce the cost of living for working families, as well as boost their wages – isn't in conflict with a thriving economy. In fact, it can and MUST be the foundation for a lasting, growing economy.

Take a look at 2014.

Last year, New York saw:

95,900 jobs added in 2014 – ~~the highest year-to-date growth rate in the past 20 years;~~

More than four million private sector jobs – an all-time high;

An unemployment rate down two whole points in less than a year – steepest decline since reporting began in 1976; ~~(this is inaccurate – NYC unemployment rate in Dec 2013 was 8% and, by December 2014, it was 6.3%)~~

The expansion of an entertainment industry that produced a record 40 unique television series and over 240 films right here in New York last year;

And the continued growth of a booming tech sector that now employs nearly 300,000 people.

Our city is growing, both in terms of our economy and the number of people who want to call New York home. By 2040, we will be a city of 9 million people.

So we remain focused on a critical challenge: growing our economy in a way that is broad-based and guided by expanding opportunity to every New Yorker – because the best and brightest come from every neighborhood in every borough. And if families can't afford to stay in the city, we are ALL denied the contributions made by those unrealized success stories.

Now, there are two sides to the affordability equation: finding more affordable places for families to live; and helping grow New Yorkers' pocketbooks (higher wages; better benefits; more programs to ease the squeeze that so many families feel).

In the State of the City, we talked about our affordable housing plan: the boldest municipal affordable housing plan in U.S. history.

Our housing plan means:

For the first time ever, a REQUIREMENT of affordable housing as a CONDITION of new development;

Protecting and strengthening rent regulations in to protect the make sure units that are currently affordable STAY that way;

This adds up to 200,000 new units of affordable housing created or preserved over a decade, with units ~~created and preserved~~built at ~~more than~~ double the average annual rate ~~of any time in of~~ the last 25 years.

And we're committed to the things besides affordable housing that make neighborhoods livable: good schools, parks, playgrounds and other open spaces, new commercial development.

Finally, we're taking unprecedented steps to crack down on predatory landlords who want only to make a quick buck at the expense of their tenants' well-being... and our city's affordability.

Making housing in New York more affordable is essential to keeping ours a city of opportunity and innovation.

So make no mistake, this administration will vigorously execute our affordable housing plan as long as I am Mayor.

But housing is only one side of the affordability equation.

That is why we're also working to grow our economy...to expand new job opportunities, and drive wages in our city UP.

This Administration is fighting for smart, inclusive, five-borough economic growth... growth that benefits ALL New Yorkers, not just those at the top.

The partnership of the people in this room is critical to making New York a stronger, fairer city for all who call it home. It is also critical to keeping New Yorker a growing city defined by openness and innovation -- in other words, a special place to start or grow a business.

Our City will do its part -- first, by investing in our people so that businesses don't need to look far to find the most skilled, best qualified workers in the world.

Specifically:

We're starting early with more than 53K students enrolled in pre-K last year, and another 15K this year (we need to match what we said in Albany budget testimony, which was "approximately 70,000 children in year two")... Nearly doubling the number of middle school students in afterschool programs to keep them safe and learning – and giving working parents peace of mind during those hours between the end of the school day and the workday.

We're on the cutting edge – with the Tech Talent Pipeline to support the growth of New York's technology sector and train New Yorkers to be those companies' premier hiring choice. This program will not only enable the next great tech innovations to come from New York, but ensure they are driven by New Yorkers from every background and every borough.

We're thinking big – by moving forward with a plan to redesign our workforce development system to arm up to 30,000 New Yorkers a year with the skills for 21st century jobs. FROM SOTC – SOMETHING MORE SPECIFIC WE CAN SAY??

And we're looking to the future: the DOE will incorporate high-quality Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math or STEM programs into the full-time curriculum. The City will be hosting 3 STEM institutes for teachers citywide, across grade levels, to share practices and work directly with experienced STEM partner organizations (Solar One, Engineering is Elementary, Bootstrap, LEGO and others). The first institute will be in April at Stuyvesant HS; up to 300 NYC public school teachers will participate.

And the City will also do its part by making significant investments in our city's infrastructure, so that businesses have the physical prerequisites for growth. This City gets how important infrastructure is to economic growth, and we're putting our money where our my-mouth is:

We invested in new economic hubs to create 3,000 new jobs in the Brooklyn Navy Yard and 1,000 new jobs at the Brooklyn Army Terminal. These are PERMANENT jobs in areas of the city that for so long sat unused. They exemplify smart, inclusive growth, in developing places that had sat largely unused for decades.

Today I want to announce a new proposed reinvestment project based on that same philosophy.

Hunts Point is a critical food distribution hub in the Bronx near the RFK Bridge. This site is large, occupying 329 acres and supporting 115 individual businesses private wholesalers that employ over 8,000 people.

The buildings that currently sit in this space are crumbling. If we do nothing, facilities at this site will eventually be forced to shut down, thousands of jobs will be lost, and our city's infrastructure will be dealt a major blow.

Our plan would invest $169 million over 12 years to revitalize the site so that it grows rather than decays.

These investments will repair existing facilities, reposition portions of the peninsula for job-intensive food uses, and better link regional growers and producers with New York City consumers. They will also preserve thousands of jobs in the South Bronx, and create hundreds more new ones.

Our plan would fortify a vital aspect of our infrastructure – our food supply – in a way that is sustainable, improving New York’s resilience in the face of natural disasters like Super-Storm Sandy.

It would strengthen our city’s critical partnership with upstate communities, farms and businesses, recognizing that rooftop farms in Greenpoint can’t feed EVERY New Yorker.

And coupled with plans for new, affordable housing development on the South Bronx waterfront, this plan shows that when we talk about growth in every neighborhood and every borough, we mean it.

This is just one example of the type of infrastructure improvements we will be undertaking. Some projects will require partnerships, as well. In coming months, we’re going to talk about big infrastructure projects that will necessitate federal help.

But I want get back to talking about the partnership that this city seeks to strengthen with you.

I’ve talked about how New York City will do OUR part to tackle our inequality crisis, I want to call on you do YOURS.

If New York City because a fundamentally unaffordable place... one where the best and brightest can’t afford to stay... no one will suffer more than the business community.

That’s one reason why so many business leaders I talk to favor raising the minimum wage.

| Now, there are SOME people who say that a more than-$13 minimum wage in New York City is a “non-starter.” But let me tell you what’s REALLY a non-starter: for New York to sit idle and watch our city become a place where only the super-rich can afford to live.

Raising the minimum wage won’t make everyone in the city wealthier overnight, but it would have a powerful upward pull on wages across the city, including for those who make more than the minimum. This means more money for New Yorkers to spend, growing local businesses, and our city economy.

If you're in the business of selling multimillion dollar homes to foreign billionaires, or manufacturing yachts or Faberge eggs, then a raise in the minimum wage probably won't help you. But given the stock market's record rebound, business is probably awful good for you these days.

On the other hand, if your business relies on consumer spending in New York City, this should be something you fight for.

So I'm calling on all of you here today to fight – FIGHT – for Albany to raise the City minimum wage to over $13 an hour.... and to locally index it so that it rises to a projected $15 by 2019.

Let those of us in this room – and millions of new Yorkers across our city – speak to Albany with one voice. We don't want a symbolic gesture. We won't accept half a loaf. We need a higher, indexed minimum wage, and we need it now!

And we can't talk about keeping New York open and affordable without talking about housing, which is why I am calling on all of you to be allies as we push for our affordable housing plan, both in our city and in Albany.

That means forcefully advocating for strengthening our rent regulations that keep people from being priced out of our city.... And for keeping MTA fares low because transit fare increases are tantamount to an enormously regressive tax increase.

(don't believe this last line accurately reflects BdB's position; he's not fully against a transit fare increase; he simply believes that riders can't bear the burden for MTA's shortfall on their own – state and federal govt need to step up)

This partnership also means dealing head on with some of the negative consequences of gentrification. The business community has self-interested incentive to condemn anyone who games the system to get rich off of making neighborhoods less affordable.

These people – be they predatory landlords or unscrupulous real estate operations – would mortgage the future of our city for small short-term profits. We need your help to stop them from getting away with it.

Our work to tackle our inequality crisis and keep New York an open innovative place won't be easy, but there is so much we can do on our own as a city, if we – this Administration, the people in this room and everyday New Yorkers across our City – all work together.

PERSONAL SMALL BUSINESS/ ABNY STORY HERE.

The imagination, enthusiasm, and grit of the people who call this city home are so wonderfully exemplified in this room. But we must not forget how much of your success has grown from the fertile ground of a city of opportunity – and that your continued success requires that every child of New York has the same shot at chasing her dreams as you did.

So today, let's recommit to making our city a place of opportunity and innovation, not one of cloistered opulence.

We owe it to the next generation -- and to one another – to do what generations of New Yorkers have done: leave our city more open, inclusive, and inspiring than we found it.

It's a big job, but the stories of the people in this room demonstrate that it is a task well worth undertaking. And we will do it together.

Thank you!

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Subject: FW: YMI
Date: Friday, February 27, 2015 9:34:01 AM

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Friday, February 27, 2015 9:34 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Confer, Alexis; Richardson, Jerika; Kadushin, Peter; Norvell, Wiley
Subject: YMI

Type of tactic to consider for the future with Mayor and YMI or after-school participants:

Noah McQueen is part of "My Brother's Keeper," a White House program aimed at young men of color.

His teen years have been rough, and include several arrests and a short period of incarceration. But last week, he was at the White House. The 18-year-old sat down for a StoryCorps interview with President Obama, who wanted to know more about Noah's life.

"Growing up, I didn't have a stable household, so I believe I attended eight or nine middle schools throughout the course of two or three years," McQueen says.

McQueen says his dad lives down the street from him, but he doesn't really have a relationship with him.

"Well, that's one of the things we have in common," Obama says. "As I get older, I start reflecting on how that affected me. How do you think that affected you?"

"You kind of learn right and wrong on your own terms," McQueen says. "I got into fights. And fighting, or getting put out of school is, you know, normal. So that's how really the trouble started for me being in the juvenile system. I was on the run."

"I'm sure you can relate. I feel like as a black man, just me coming on the train over here, I know how we're perceived. I know how people look at us."

- Noah McQueen

"You were on the run, how so?" Obama asks.

"From the law," McQueen laughs.

"Yeah, what had you done?" Obama says.

"I believe it was, what's it called?" McQueen says.

"What do you mean you believe?" Obama says. "It was something. You know what it was."

"It was violation of house arrest," McQueen admits.

"So you had gotten in repeated trouble," Obama says. "And what happened?"

"I went to a Christian retreat," McQueen says.

"Did you say to yourself, 'Man, I need to find something different and go to a Christian retreat?'" Obama says.

"Oh no sir, I didn't want to go at all," McQueen says. "My mom forced me."

"OK, so mama intervened. 'Lord, please help my knucklehead son, Noah, straighten out,'" Obama says. "Are you skeptical when you get there?"

McQueen says his problems were different from the other kids.

"Like, their problems were, a guy complaining about his mom not buying him the chips he want, or different things like that," he says. "And then, I'm talking about that my friend was killed the week before, so..."

"What happened that softened you up a little bit?" Obama says.

"It wasn't until I decided to do better for myself, that I had to be held accountable for my actions, so I'm not the same person," McQueen says. "I'm not the same creature. Everything about me, and my being is different."

"Obviously you've straightened yourself out. You're sitting here in the White House, hanging out with the president," Obama says. "So when people are seeing you in this new light, did you feel pressure to revert back to the way you had acted before?"

President Barack Obama participates in a "My Brother's Keeper" StoryCorps interview with Noah McQueen in the Roosevelt Room of the White House on Feb. 20.

Chuck Kennedy/The White House

"Definitely, there's always pressure, even now," McQueen says. "I'm sure you can relate. I feel like as a black man, just me coming on the train over here, I know how we're perceived. I know how people look at us. Every time we step into the room, we have to be on top of your game.

"People will say, 'You are the success story,' " McQueen adds. "It's hard to always make the right decision, and it's hard to always be the leader."

"Well, look, listen. At the age of 18, I didn't know what I was going to be doing with my life," Obama says. "And you shouldn't feel like you can't make mistakes at this point. You're 18 years old, I promise you you're gonna make some more as you go along.

"But one of the things you've discovered is that you have this strength inside yourself," he adds. "And if you stay true to that voice that clearly knows what's right and what's wrong, sometimes you're going to mess up, but you can steer back and keep going."

Obama then asks McQueen to look ahead 10 years from now, and think about what he would like to be doing.

"I just decided recently I want to do education because I do want to work with kids," McQueen says. "You know, to see the beginnings, and to see where I was, to see the exact same kid doing the exact same thing. And it's like, we owe it to everyone and ourselves to come back and change that. And that's like our civic duty, I believe."

"Yeah, and Noah, I just want to say how proud I am of you, man," Obama says. "It's not an easy thing to do what you've done. And I think you give others a lot of confidence and a sense of what's possible for them. And that makes me real proud. I know you're going to do great things."

NPR's policy is to not make internal edits to interviews with sitting presidents. But as with all StoryCorps conversations, and just as when President George W. Bush recorded in 2008, this one has been edited for length.

Audio produced for Morning Edition by Michael Garofalo and John White.

StoryCorps is a national nonprofit that gives people the chance to interview friends and loved ones about their lives. These conversations are archived at the American Folklife Center at the Library of Congress, allowing participants to leave a legacy for future generations. Learn more, including how to interview someone in your life, at StoryCorps.org.

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965

ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: B
To: Katz, Rebecca
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: Possible Wilmore Qs
Date: Monday, March 02, 2015 6:50:14 AM

Damn good questions! You should sub for Larry whenever he can't do the show

From: Katz, Rebecca
Sent: Sunday, March 01, 2015 03:24 PM
To: B
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Possible Wilmore Qs

Tried to bring out my inner-Wilmore. Here's a start:

Race

- <!--[if !supportLists]-->1. <!--[endif]-->Knowing what you know now, would you have still made that tv ad with Dante?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->2. <!--[endif]-->Would you still say Black Lives Matter?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->3. <!--[endif]-->Would you still have been BFFs with Sharpton?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->4. <!--[endif]-->Would you admit hiring Shaprtton's person maybe not the best idea for your administration?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->5. <!--[endif]-->I saw you all buddy-buddy with one of the guys saying you have blood on your hands,...did you ever just want to say, "fuck you?"
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->6. <!--[endif]-->They went after your wife pretty bad. If you could punch one of these guys – would it be the head of the police union or Rupert Murdoch?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->7. <!--[endif]-->Do you sometimes wish your children were white so their lives would be easier?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->8. <!--[endif]-->Dante has a whole security team. Do you really still think he's not safe?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->9. <!--[endif]-->Do you think the attacks on your wife have been racist?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->10.<!--[endif]-->What was going through your mind when the police turned their backs on you?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->11.<!--[endif]-->What's it like being a white man raising children of color?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->12.<!--[endif]-->Have you smoked pot at Gracie? Any arrests we don't know about?

Politics

- <!--[if !supportLists]-->1. <!--[endif]-->Do you think Hillary Clinton will be President?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->2. <!--[endif]-->Who do you think her toughest challenger will be?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->3. <!--[endif]-->What do you think her toughest challenge will be?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->4. <!--[endif]-->Does she have your backing? Why or why not?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->5. <!--[endif]-->Would you vote for her or Warren?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->6. <!--[endif]-->Who do you think will focus the most on income inequality?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->7. <!--[endif]-->Do you think Obama's been a good president?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->8. <!--[endif]-->Has he kept his word to the American people?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->9. <!--[endif]-->Do you think Hillary would be a better president than him?
- <!--[if !supportLists]-->10. <!--[endif]-->Do you think you are blacker than Bill Clinton?

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B
Cc: Wolfe, Emma; Walzak, Phil; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Cuomo...and Inner Circle
Date: Monday, March 02, 2015 10:11:05 AM

What are your thoughts on a video for Inner Circle featuring you and the Gov to the tune of “Anything you can do, I can do better?”

Would be a few short clips of both of you in your office doing random things – think bouncing a ball on a paddle, dribbling a soccer ball, balancing a spoon on your nose, etc (we can make it more dignified). Would have the editing feel of the Buscemi video from last year with the song in the background.

This could be a fun little thing that goes a long way.

Team is for. Thoughts?

--

Rebecca Kirschner Katz
Office of the Mayor
(212) 788-3112
rkkatz@cityhall.nyc.gov
@RebeccaKKatz

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Howe, Amanda; "ifdc@akpdmedia.com"; Wolfe, Emma Subject: Selma
Date: Monday, March 02, 2015 12:07:50 PM

Mayor is now thinking we should maybe reconsider since so many people are attending
He would like to have a discussion with this group at or before the planning meeting

From: John Del Cecato
To: Katz, Rebecca; Carey, Michael; Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; John, Roxanne
Subject: Re: Night of Too Many Stars
Date: Tuesday, March 03, 2015 2:15:01 PM

agree

From: <Katz>, Rebecca Katz <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, March 3, 2015 at 2:05 PM
To: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "John, Roxanne" <RJohn@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: FW: Night of Too Many Stars

We should 100% do this. For many reasons

From: Hillary Kun [<mailto:hkun@thedailyshow.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, March 03, 2015 1:48 PM
To: Katz, Rebecca
Subject: Night of Too Many Stars

Hi Rebecca,

Are you familiar with Robert Smigel's autism education benefit, Night of Too Many Stars? I have also been working on that, and we taped a big show at the Beacon Theatre just this past Saturday night. You may have read some of the press about it – the show was hilarious, and also touching. There is a second part to the show, and that is a celebrity phone bank that will air LIVE on Comedy Central this Sunday night from 8 – 10pm. Jon Stewart is host, and it will take place in the Daily Show studio.

Here's a link to Night of Too Many Stars on the Comedy Central web site.

<http://www.cc.com/shows/night-of-too-many-stars>

I was talking to Robert Smigel last night, and he asked me if I could reach out to the Mayor to see if he might want to briefly drop by the phone bank. We'd figure out something fun to do with him. Some of the other people who will be there include Larry David, Martin Short, Larry Wilmore, John Oliver, the ladies from Broad City, Susan Sarandon, Uzo Aduba, and several of the Daily Show correspondents, plus many more.

Robert and his wife have a 17-year-old son who has fairly severe autism, hence his drive to put this show together every other year.

The show is always a tremendous amount of fun, and it raises money for autism education programs nationwide.

Let me know if he can make it.

Thanks!

Best,
Hillary

Hillary Kun
Co-Executive Producer
The Daily Show with Jon Stewart
(212) 468-1760
hkun@thedailyshow.com

From: Patchett, James
To: "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"; Fink, Carolee
Subject: Wages
Date: Tuesday, March 03, 2015 3:33:54 PM

*The most recent study here is a 2013 Chicago Fed study (summary attached) which finds that increasing the federal minimum wage by $1.75 would generate about $48 billion in increased spending / consumption by those benefiting from the wage hike.

From: Patchett, James
To: "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: Fink, Carolee; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: FW: CUNY STEM?
Date: Tuesday, March 03, 2015 6:24:38 PM

CUNY STEM info below. Pull what you think is helpful.

-----Original Message-----

From: King, Martha
Sent: Tuesday, March 03, 2015 6:23 PM
To: Patchett, James; Williams, Dominic
Cc: Fink, Carolee
Subject: RE: CUNY STEM?

See below and let me know if you need anything else.

I'd like to run this by OMB as well but for the sake of time I am sending to you now. Should OMB find any errors in the numbers below I will let you know. I am hopeful they will not.

DRAFT CUNY STEM BULLETS FOR ABNY - 3/3/15

- CUNY is an unparalleled resource and partner in our agenda to tackle income inequality from every angle and it links our efforts to prepare every young person for college and a career and of building an economy in which every New Yorker can maintain stable employment and earn a family-supporting wage.
- CUNY is a stop in the educational trajectory for 75% of students graduating from our city's schools and for so many New Yorker it is the foundation of their career pathway.
- Recognizing this centrality, the Administration has committed to increasing our investment in and engagement with CUNY.
- We have committed to adding close to 100 M through 2017, probably the largest increase made by any Mayor in recent decades. (19 M in 2015, 29 M in 2016, 51 M in 2017)
- This investment will first and foremost boost the chances that community college students persist and graduate.
- But we have a special interest in ensuring that CUNY gives students exceptional preparation and opportunities for jobs in the science, technology, engineering and math or STEM industries. This includes preparation for a booming tech industry that now employs nearly 300,000 people, and is growing every day in our city.
- To that end first we are supporting an ambitious expansion of the ASAP program. This program has been found to nearly double graduation rates while lowering the overall cost per degree. It is a national model, but a small one, and we are bringing it to scale to serve 20% of incoming community college students by fall 2017. This will give an additional 10,000 students the opportunity to participate in this very successful program.
- Our support has allowed the program to welcome many more STEM students. At least 30% of its participants will be STEM majors at the height of its expansion.
- We also worked with CUNY to created STEM Research Fellowships for 250 students annually and an annual STEM Apprenticeship program for 300 students. Both intensive programs will increase persistence in these disciplines and give students relevant real world experience en route to their careers.
- The rest of the City's new investments will support additional academic advisors and intersessions better supporting CUNY students on a timely path to graduation. We continue to develop plans with CUNY to offer better educational and workforce opportunities for New Yorkers and to strengthen the system as a linchpin in the Administration's plan to confront inequality.

-----Original Message-----

From: Patchett, James
Sent: Tuesday, March 03, 2015 3:29 PM

To: King, Martha; Williams, Dominic
Cc: Fink, Carolee
Subject: CUNY STEM?

Martha--Can you send us some bullets on this? Mayor wants for ABNY speech (which we're finalizing this evening).

Thanks!

From: John Del Cecato
To: BdB
Cc: Aaron Pickrell; Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Suzie Buffett
Date: Tuesday, March 03, 2015 7:58:11 PM

Roger that - very good

> On Mar 3, 2015, at 7:55 PM, Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]> wrote:
>
>
> Saw JB Milliken (CUNY chancellor) at event tonight -- he's ex-Univ of Nebraska pres. He says he > could set up mtgs/dinner with Suzie (who is huge donor to early childhood education). We should try for > a mtg with Warren as well. Does sound like to 2 night trip potentially. Let's discuss. Also I should reach > out to appropriate mayors before going to their towns
>
>
>
>
> Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\); Jon Fromowitz \(jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com\)
Subject: RE: Updated speech?
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 3:43:57 PM

Fromo just sent

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 3:44 PM
To: John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Jon Fromowitz (jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com)
Cc: Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Updated speech?

Hi team,

Want to be sure we have updated copy soon so that we can incorporate any additional fact checks and get the visuals coordinated.

Also, teams getting restless to review.

There an ETA?

Thanks!

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: B
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Leopold, Elana; Wolfe, Emma; Carrion, Marco A.; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: EID readout
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:15:51 PM

Well done!! And would appreciate full readout. And thank Wiley and Steve for me!

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 05:02 PM
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Leopold, Elana; Wolfe, Emma; Carrion, Marco A.; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: EID readout

Mayor, First Lady

Eid announcement has made national and local news, including CNN, New York Times, MSNBC, Education Week, Reuters, Huffington Post, etc. Our advance rollout via twitter, thanks to Wiley and Steve, ensured we made the morning broadcast news with “breaking news.” We can get you a full readout of coverage, but overall tremendously positive event and positioned New York’s leadership.

Here’s a great photo from the NYT:

The 6 a.m. tweet (<https://twitter.com/BilldeBlasio/status/573075877677961216>) has now been retweeted more than 2,400 times.

The follow-up tweet from this afternoon (<https://twitter.com/BilldeBlasio/status/573164722368999424>) has been retweeted more than 900 times.

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Jon Fromowitz
To: Patchett, James
Cc: Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Fact-Check - Four-fold increase
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:19:15 PM

Cool, changed

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:18 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Katy would know best. It's good. It also fits better with tripling the number of workers.

James Patchett
Chief of Staff
Deputy Mayor for Housing & Economic Development
JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov
O: 212-788-3128
C: 917-847-5275

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:09 PM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen
Cc: Patchett, James
Subject: Re: Fact-Check - Four-fold increase

James told me four fold so just want to get his take to make sure we're on the same page. James -- thoughts?

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:06 PM, Gunaratna, Mahen <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Can you change this part?

From: Gaul-Stigge, Katy
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:01 PM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen; Patchett, James
Subject: Re: Fact-Check - Four-fold increase

We have said triple previously, which I feel more comfortable with.
The source is the report and the promises we've made there.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 03:52 PM

To: Gaul-Stigge, Katy
Subject: Fact-Check - Four-fold increase

Katy,

Is the part in yellow correct? Do you have sourcing?

Thanks,

Mahen

--

*For too long, our City has focused a half a billion dollar training and workforce development budget on initiatives that led to temporary, low paying jobs that offered only superficial opportunity. Over the past few years, less than 10% of our workforce development investment has gone into skills training. We're increasing that, FOUR-FOLD.

We're moving forward with a plan to redesign our Career Pathways system to arm up to 30,000 New Yorkers annually with the skills they need for quality, stable jobs of today and tomorrow. That's more than TRIPLE the number of New Yorkers who currently receive this type of training.

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis

Mayor's Press Office | City Hall

mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: Jon Fromowitz \(jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com\); John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Cc: Gunaratna, Mahen; Patchett, James; Blumm, Kate
Subject: speech
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:20:32 PM

Alicia said- Change Costco to Aetna

On page 5 – we will partner with modern manufacturing companies... (currently not happening)

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Patchett, James
To: "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: I have some more small edits
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 6:08:13 PM

Where'd you go?

----- Original Message -----

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 06:01 PM
To: Patchett, James
Subject: Re: I have some more small edits

COW

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:57 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

> Where are you?

From: Caputo, Steven
To: Patchett, James
Cc: Caputo, Steven; jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Housing budget
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 6:22:03 PM

It is 11 years to 10 years.

On Mar 4, 2015 6:16 PM, "Patchett, James" <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
Steve--Is your 55% comparing apples to apples (10 yrs v 10 yrs)?

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 06:15 PM
To: Caputo, Steven
Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Housing budget

Is this accurate/optimal?

We're more effectively leveraging private capital with our enormous $8.2 billion investment – over 50% more than what it had been – to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers.

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:44 PM, Caputo, Steven <SCaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

“More than double what it had been” isn’t accurate in this context. It’s accurate to say that the Mayor’s 2015 budget doubled HPD’s 5-year budget compared to what was previously budgeted for those same years by the Bloomberg Administration. However, the $8.2 billion City Capital budget for Housing New York is 55% more (not double) than the total City Capital budget for the Bloomberg-Era New Housing Marketplace Plan.

Also, we expect our leverage ratio to be somewhat lower than the New Housing Marketplace Plan (3x vs 2.48x) because we are financing more costly units (deeper affordability; more new construction).

So back to the drawing board.

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:22 PM
To: Patchett, James
Cc: Caputo, Steven; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Housing budget

Yes, this is better. Thanks

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:21 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

How about this?

We're more effectively leveraging private capital with our enormous $8.2 billion investment -- more than double what it had been -- to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers.

James Patchett

Chief of Staff

Deputy Mayor for Housing & Economic Development

JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov

O: 212-788-3128

C: 917-847-5275

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]

Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:06 PM

To: Caputo, Steven

Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen

Subject: Re: Housing budget

Thanks. So would this be an accurate characterization:

We're more effectively leveraging an enormous $8.2 billion capital investment -- more than double what it had been -- and significant land assets to produce more units for a wider array of New Yorkers.

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:00 PM, Caputo, Steven

<SCaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Hi John,

Here are the facts on the Housing New York budget:

- The Mayor's 2015 budget (e.g. the five-year plan) more than doubled HPD's annual capital budget
- The total projected City Capital over ten years will be $8.2 billion (FY15 to FY25)
- This City Capital will leverage private sources on a 3 to 1 basis
- Total development costs for preserving and creating 200,000 units will be $41.4 billion

Let me know if you have questions.

Steve

Steven Caputo

New York City Mayor's Office

scaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov

(o) 212-788-3019

(m) 347-224-8807

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: Leopold, Elana
Subject: Pls send updated speech
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 6:26:34 PM

We'll need to make copies asap.

From: Jon Fromowitz
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Pls send updated speech
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 6:29:25 PM
Attachments: ABNYWednesday630PM.docx
ATT00001.txt

You should have, but reattached here in case last one didn't come through

ABNY SPEECH
3/4/15 - 6:30PM

Acknowledgements

17 months ago, I was honored to address an event hosted by this organization -- just about a month before the 2013 mayoral election.

At that time, there were some pundits who wondered exactly how ABNY would receive me.

After all, my campaign was built around progressive change – about taking aim at inequality and helping rebuild our middle class. Surely – the cynics argued – progressive ideas would be met with the sound of crickets – or perhaps worse – when presented to those who have dedicated their lives to growing businesses and the economy.

But knowing this organization, and many of the individuals who comprised the audience that day, I wasn't the least bit worried.

That day, I said, QUOTE: “We cannot resign ourselves to the mindset that says rising inequality is a necessary byproduct of urban success.” No one booed or hissed or left the room. Instead, that call was met with resounding agreement.

That's because ABNY understands – as do I – that rising inequality isn't just a problem for those of modest means... not just a threat to those barely hanging on to their place in the middle class. You and I understand that inequality is a crisis that impacts ALL of us -- including those who have enjoyed great personal success.

If New York cannot be a city of genuine opportunity for ALL – regardless of the circumstances of their birth – then we not only lose a part of who we are – we risk losing our place as a global center of innovation, diversity, and progress.

That is why we REFUSE to accept the false choices that for too long have defined the way that some have viewed our city:

That sustained economic growth is fated to only help SOME, while leaving so many behind;

That more development inevitably means that everyday New Yorkers will be priced out;

That New York cannot be both a growing city AND a city of opportunity for all.

We know that sort of myopic thinking should not, and will not, define our future.

A progressive agenda – one that seeks to reduce the cost of living for working families, as well as boost their wages – is not in conflict with fostering a thriving economy. In fact, it can and MUST be the foundation for a sustainable, growing economy.

We've just begun to implement our agenda, but if 2014 is any indication, policies promoting fairness and equality are doing anything but precluding economic growth.

Just take a look at the good news from last year.

Last year, New York saw:

95,900 jobs added;

More than four million private sector jobs – an all-time high;

An unemployment rate down nearly two points in less than a year – with the third quarter experiencing the largest three-month drop in unemployment on record;

The expansion of an entertainment industry that produced a record 46 television series and over 240 films right here in New York;

And the continued growth of a booming tech sector that now employs nearly 300,000 people.

Our city is growing, both in terms of our economy, and the number of people who want to call New York home. By 2040, we will be a city of 9 million people.

And so we remain focused on a critical challenge: growing our economy in a way that is broad-based and guided by expanding opportunity for every New Yorker. We know that the best and brightest come from every neighborhood in every borough – and those with the grit and determination to succeed come from all walks of life. So if families can't afford to stay in our city, then we are ALL denied the contributions offered by those unrealized success stories.

Now, there are two sides to the affordability equation: finding more affordable places for families to live; and helping grow New Yorkers' incomes -- through higher wages, better benefits, and more steps to reduce the squeeze that so many of our families feel.

In the State of the City, I talked about my Administration's affordable housing plan: the boldest municipal affordable housing plan in U.S. history.

Our housing plan means:

For the first time ever, a REQUIREMENT of affordable housing as a CONDITION of new development resulting from rezoning;

Fighting to protect and strengthen rent regulations to ensure that housing units that are currently affordable will STAY that way;

And dedicating $36 million to protecting tenants from harassment and cracking down on predatory landlords – the minority of landlords who want only to make a quick buck at the expense of their tenants' well-being...at the expense of our city's affordability.

We're more effectively leveraging private capital with our enormous $8.2 billion investment – over 50% more than what it had been – to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers.

All of that adds up to 200,000 units of affordable housing created or preserved over a decade...units built at DOUBLE the average annual rate of the last 25 years.

Additionally, we're catalyzing 160,000 new market rate units to help housing supply keep up with a growing population.

And as we re-zone to add more housing capacity, we are committed to making concurrent investments in infrastructure, so that communities don't have to wait years for new schools, parks, playgrounds and other open spaces. These are hallmarks of responsible development... and priorities to this Administration.

Making housing in New York more affordable is critical to keeping this a city of opportunity and innovation.

But housing is only one side of the affordability equation.

That is why we are also working to GROW our economy...to expand new job opportunities, and drive wages in our city UP.

This Administration is fighting for smart, inclusive, five-borough economic growth... growth that benefits ALL New Yorkers -- NOT just those at the top.

The partnership of the people in this room is critical to making New York a stronger, fairer city for ALL who call it home. It is critical to keeping New Yorker a city defined by openness and innovation -- a special place to start or grow a business.

Our city will do ITS part -- first, by investing in our people, so that businesses don't need to look far and wide to find the most skilled, best qualified workers in the world.

Specifically:

We're starting early with more than 53,000 students enrolled in pre-K LAST year – this year it will be available to EVERY family that wants it.

And we are more than DOUBLING the number of middle school students in afterschool, to keep them safe and on task, giving working parents peace of mind during those critical hours between the end of the school day and the end of the work day.

And our commitment to making New York a place where EVERYONE is prepared for opportunity goes much further.

We are making a $29 million investment to expand academic intervention and STEM at CUNY community colleges, because an education granting the knowhow needed for 21st century jobs ought to be available to EVERYONE in New York City.

For too long, our City has focused a half a billion dollar training and workforce development budget on initiatives that led to temporary, low paying jobs that offered only superficial opportunity. Over the past few years, less than 10% of our workforce development investment has gone into skills training. We're increasing that amount, THREE-FOLD.

We're moving forward with a plan to redesign our Career Pathways system to arm up to 30,000 New Yorkers annually with the skills they need for quality, stable jobs of today and tomorrow. That's more than TRIPLE the number of New Yorkers who currently receive this type of training.

We're working with companies across many industries – from health care to construction – and we recognize that each industry has different needs. In some industries, we need to make sure that new jobs mean better wages and benefits for workers. Other industries -- like technology -- are growing rapidly, but are in need of space...and especially talent.

That's why we created the Tech Talent Pipeline: to support the growth of New York's booming technology sector, AND training New Yorkers to be those companies' premier new hires. 3,000 New Yorkers will benefit from our action THIS year. Not sometime in the distant future -- THIS YEAR.

Another example: modern manufacturing.... New businesses that utilize technology and the ingenuity of New Yorkers from every borough to quickly turn exciting ideas into tangible products, regardless of their scale. It means using technologies like 3-D printers that are revolutionizing production so that great ideas can come to life right here, right now in New York City. It's a SECTOR that offers opportunities for a diverse workforce, and is critical to our future.

We'll partner with modern manufacturing companies to make sure that our training initiatives are offering New Yorkers the skills needed in this industry. We're also securing commitments from businesses to HIRE New Yorkers who complete this training.

The City will also do its part by making significant investments in the built environment so that businesses have the physical prerequisites for growth. New York City understands how important infrastructure is to economic growth, and that is why we are putting our money where our mouth is.

We're investing in City-owned assets so that innovative businesses can grow.

Brooklyn Navy Yard is a $140 million redevelopment project that will transform a previously underutilized warehouse space into a modern manufacturing facility that will create 3,000 good jobs. Because of our investment, a cold, empty space is becoming a hub of opportunity, filled with exciting, creative businesses.... And with job training opportunities ON SITE to ensure new opportunities here are open to EVERY New Yorker.

We're taking what works at the Navy Yard – capital investment, job training, and a bold approach and applying it to the Brooklyn Army Terminal, where we're opening half a million square feet for modern manufacturing businesses. This means 1,000 new jobs.... PERMANENT jobs representing smart, inclusive growth, in space that was unused for decades.

Today, I want to announce a new project based upon that same philosophy – Hunts Point, a key food distribution hub in the South Bronx.

Our plan will invest $150 million over 12 years to revitalize Hunts Point -- fortifying a vital aspect of our infrastructure – our food supply.

It will modernize the buildings and infrastructure that are currently there, and open up new space for small businesses. More than that, it's a bold vision and a major financial commitment that will make the site resilient and sustainable, improving New York's readiness for natural disasters like Superstorm Sandy.

It's hard to overstate how important this facility is for our city. It occupies 329 acres and supports 115 private wholesalers that employ over 8,000 people. These are good, decent-paying jobs for New Yorkers at every education level. Our plan protects those jobs and positions the site to create many more jobs for New Yorkers in the future.

And it will include dedicated space to better link food grown and produced in Upstate New York, strengthening our city's critical partnership with Upstate communities, farms, and businesses. I know there are many great rooftop farms in Greenpoint... but we all understand that they can't provide enough food for EVERY New Yorker. Strengthening our Upstate partnerships is CRITICAL.

This is just one example of the type of infrastructure improvements we will be undertaking. Some projects will require partnerships. In the coming months, we're going to unveil large infrastructure projects that will necessitate federal help.

But we can do so much on our own. In fact, we're fostering the growth of whole new INDUSTRIES. We're doing so in ways that offer opportunities to all New Yorkers, and opportunities for employers to tap into our world-class workforce.

We've talked about technology and modern manufacturing, but we're also making substantial strategic investments in other growth sectors like health care, and we'll be making announcements on these investments soon.

Now, I've talked about how New York City will do OUR part to tackle our inequality crisis, I also want to call on YOU – the business leaders gathered in this room – to do YOURS.

Let's face it. If New York City becomes an inequitable and unaffordable place... one where the hardest working and most ambitious -- who come from every borough -- cannot afford to stay... no one will suffer more than the business community.

New York success stories are rarely fairy tales. If New Yorkers cannot forge success here through hard work and gumption, we will feel a profound drag on our economy... AND on our character.

The City is making investments to ensure that doesn't happen. We're not just talking about that goal; we're dedicating our OWN balance sheet to it.

All told, this Administration will invest billions upon billions into growing our economy. And, one way or another, all of the business leaders in this room will benefit from that investment. Many of you will benefit magnificently... and not just from OUR investment, but from the investment of time, energy, and sweat given by New Yorkers working towards new skills and better careers.

The partnerships between New York City and the business community matter a great deal to me.

So look, I'm holding up my end of the bargain...and then some. And we all know hard working, everyday New Yorkers are holding up THEIR end.

I need you to hold up YOURS.

I pledge to you that as long as I'm Mayor, New York City will take responsibility for developing the best possible workers, fortifying our infrastructure, improving our transit system through citywide ferries and expanded bus rapid transit, reducing unnecessary red tape and regulations that deter innovation, and jump-starting growth for businesses...for whole SECTORS of our economy.

I need YOU to take responsibility for providing the great people of this city with the opportunities... the wages... and the chances for advancement...that they need and deserve.

That means hiring New Yorkers from EVERY neighborhood.

We are training our people so that they are the best equipped – anywhere – for the jobs of today and tomorrow. Give them the chance to put their skills... their drive and determination... to work for YOUR company.

It also means raising wages at YOUR company. Higher wages mean more money in consumers' pockets...more money to grow businesses... to grow the city's economy.

This is something I've been talking to many business leaders about.

And keep in mind – companies like The Gap...like Aetna...and like New York City's own Shake Shack...have ALREADY raised their wages above the national minimum wage.

They are not doing it to be charitable. They are doing it because they know that higher wages mean more productive workers...and stronger local economies. And I'd say business for THOSE folks... is going pretty well.

And it's not just big businesses. UncommonGoods is an innovative retailer based out of the Brooklyn Army Terminal. Its CEO and Founder, David Bolotsky, is an outspoken advocate for raising workers' wages, and pays even seasonal workers well above the minimum wage. He puts it pretty plainly when he writes QUOTE "We see higher productivity and lower turnover when employees are fairly compensated." END QUOTE

Also, let's not forget about all of the studies that show how increasing workers' wages has a powerful upward pull on whole economies because of increased consumer spending.

So to that point, I am calling on major investors and lenders to use their significant influence to invest their resources in ways that promote and grow companies that pay good wages.

These are people who have any a huge impact on our city's economy – and they should use it for the good of the people of our city... and for the good of our economy. But this is more than micro, or macroeconomics.

When you think about what you pay your employees – ALL of your employees -- think about the difference that a little more cash means for people striving to do better. Think of the all the great success stories in this room that wouldn't have even been POSSIBLE if that struggle – a struggle with a singular sense of purpose – hadn't paid off. That idea...that promise...is at risk today. To the business leaders here today, I want you to remember that every day.... the same way that I do as Mayor.

Our work to tackle the inequality crisis...and keep New York an open innovative place...won't be easy. But there is so much we can do on our own as a city, if we – this Administration, the people in this room, and everyday New Yorkers across our City – all work TOGETHER.

The imagination, enthusiasm, and determination of the people who call this city home – those qualities are shared by so many in this room.

But we must not forget how much of your success has grown from the fertile ground of a city of opportunity – THIS City of Opportunity -- and that your CONTINUED success requires that every child of New York – every ONE -- has the same shot at chasing HER dreams as YOU did.

So today, let's recommit to making our city a place not of exclusive opulence...but of opportunity and innovation.

We owe it to the next generation -- and to one another – to do what generations of New Yorkers have done: to leave our city more open, more inclusive, and more bountiful in opportunity than that one that we called home.

It's a big job, but the stories – big and small – of those here, and those in every corner of New York -- demonstrate that it is a task well worth undertaking.

And we will do it...together.

Thank you!

On Mar 4, 2015, at 6:26 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

> We'll need to make copies asap.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Pls send updated speech
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 6:33:19 PM

Elana, should jon be on the call?

----- Original Message -----

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 06:29 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Pls send updated speech

You should have, but reattached here in case last one didn't come through

From: Caputo, Steven
To: "Jon Fromowitz"
Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: RE: Housing budget
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 7:21:10 PM

I'm double checking with HPD and will get back to you.

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 7:21 PM
To: Caputo, Steven
Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Housing budget

Is that kosher with everyone?

On Mar 4, 2015, at 7:19 PM, Caputo, Steven <SCaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

OK. I think we may be able to say that we "more than doubled" the budget based on a comparison of the projected ten-year HNY budget of $8.2 billion and the ten-year capital budget of $2.9 billion adopted by the Bloomberg Administration in 2013:

"We more than doubled the City's budget for affordable housing with our enormous $8.2 billion commitment and will leverage up to $40 billion in total investment to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers."

See page 91 for the ten-year capital budget figures passed in 2013 by the prior administration.

http://www.nyc.gov/html/omb/downloads/pdf/typ5_13.pdf

From: Patchett, James
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 6:17 PM
To: 'jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com'; Caputo, Steven
Cc: Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Housing budget

Steve--Is your 55% comparing apples to apples (10 yrs v 10 yrs)?

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 06:15 PM
To: Caputo, Steven
Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Housing budget

Is this accurate/optimal?

We're more effectively leveraging private capital with our enormous $8.2 billion investment – over 50% more than what it had been – to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers.

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:44 PM, Caputo, Steven <SCaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

“More than double what it had been” isn't accurate in this context. It's accurate to say that the Mayor's 2015 budget doubled HPD's 5-year budget compared to what was previously budgeted for those same years by the Bloomberg Administration. However, the $8.2 billion City Capital budget for Housing New York is 55% more (not double) than the total City Capital budget for the Bloomberg-Era New Housing Marketplace Plan.

Also, we expect our leverage ratio to be somewhat lower than the New Housing Marketplace Plan (3x vs 2.48x) because we are financing more costly units (deeper affordability; more new construction).

So back to the drawing board.

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]

Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:22 PM

To: Patchett, James

Cc: Caputo, Steven; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen

Subject: Re: Housing budget

Yes, this is better. Thanks

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:21 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

How about this?

We're more effectively leveraging private capital with our enormous $8.2 billion investment -- more than double what it had been – to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers.

James Patchett

Chief of Staff

Deputy Mayor for Housing & Economic Development

JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov

O: 212-788-3128

C: 917-847-5275

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]

Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:06 PM

To: Caputo, Steven

Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen

Subject: Re: Housing budget

Thanks. So would this be an accurate characterization:

We're more effectively leveraging an enormous $8.2 billion capital investment -- more than double what it had been -- and significant land assets to produce more units for a wider array of New Yorkers.

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:00 PM, Caputo, Steven <SCaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Hi John,

Here are the facts on the Housing New York budget:

- The Mayor's 2015 budget (e.g. the five-year plan) more than doubled HPD's annual capital budget
- The total projected City Capital over ten years will be $8.2 billion (FY15 to FY25)
- This City Capital will leverage private sources on a 3 to 1 basis
- Total development costs for preserving and creating 200,000 units will be $41.4 billion

Let me know if you have questions.

Steve

Steven Caputo

New York City Mayor's Office

scaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov

(o) 212-788-3019

(m) 347-224-8807

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: "Jon Fromowitz"
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato
Subject: RE: He's got substantive changes
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 8:14:17 PM

Oh, yeah, I can pull the exact numbers...

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 8:14 PM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: He's got substantive changes

I mean like 53K in pre-k vs 70k. Does that make sense?

On Mar 4, 2015, at 8:12 PM, Gunaratna, Mahen <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Not quite following what you mean exactly.

We're currently in our first full academic year of BdB's mayoralty. Do you mean using past tense vs. present tense?

We've always hewed to the "nearly doubling" language when discussing after school...

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 8:10 PM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: He's got substantive changes

Mahen, I think this is a last year vs. this year thing. What would be the equivalent way of talking about after school when compared to pre-k?

On Mar 4, 2015, at 8:02 PM, Gunaratna, Mahen
<MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Should be "nearly doubling". Let's rephrase to:

"And we are nearly doubling enrollment in after-school programs for middle school students, to keep them safe and on task, giving working parents peace of mind during those critical hours between the end of the school day and the end of the work day."

I will double-check with DYCD, but he's used the "doubling" phrasing before.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 7:58 PM
To: Jon Fromowitz
Cc: John Del Cecato; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: RE: He's got substantive changes

Please check this-- he keeps saying not right. The "doubling" is giving him pause

And we are more than DOUBLING the number of middle school students in afterschool, to keep them safe and on task, giving working parents peace of mind during those critical hours between the end of the school day and the end of the work day.

From: Jon Fromowitz [jfromowitz@akpdmmedia.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 7:50 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: John Del Cecato; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: He's got substantive changes

Jdc is on a flight, so will just be me. I will get to work trimming down last three pages now and will have a revised draft in an hour. What do you mean by "frontal"?

On Mar 4, 2015, at 7:48 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea
<AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Big picture -- last 3 pages he says are very redundant, needs to be fixed. He also is concerned about how frontal it is

Likely going to need to have us on the phone in about an hour

From: Patchett, James
To: [REDACTED] "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: [REDACTED] "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: Latest ABNY
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 9:01:42 PM

Are we discussing speech or Q+A?

----- Original Message -----

From: [REDACTED] [[mailto:\[REDACTED\]](mailto:[REDACTED])]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 09:00 PM
To: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Andrea Hagelgans <[REDACTED]> John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Mahen Gunaratna <[REDACTED]> Patchett, James
Subject: Re: Latest ABNY

This call will happen to soon

Sent from my iPhone

> On Mar 4, 2015, at 6:26 PM, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com> wrote:
>
> Incorporates a bunch of final small and mostly non-substantive edits folks have been giving me...
> <ABNYWednesday630PM.docx>

From: Jon Fromowitz
To: [REDACTED]
Cc: Andrea Hagelgans; John Del Cecato; Mahen Gunaratna; Patchett, James
Subject: Re: Latest ABNY
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 9:04:17 PM
Attachments: ABNYWednesday900PM.docx
ATT00001.txt

Here is a new draft. Cuts a whole page from what had been the previous three to remove redundancy, as well as addressing his other edits Andrea has been feeding us.

ABNY SPEECH
3/4/15 - 9:00PM

Acknowledgements

17 months ago, I was honored to address an event hosted by this organization -- just about a month before the 2013 mayoral election.

At that time, there were some pundits who wondered exactly how ABNY would receive me.

After all, my campaign was built around progressive change – about taking aim at inequality and helping rebuild our middle class. Surely – the cynics argued – progressive ideas would be met with the sound of crickets – or perhaps worse – when presented to those who have dedicated their lives to growing businesses and the economy.

But knowing this organization, and many of the individuals who comprised the audience that day, I wasn't the least bit worried.

That day, I said, QUOTE: “We cannot resign ourselves to the mindset that says rising inequality is a necessary byproduct of urban success.” No one booed or hissed or left the room. Instead, that call was met with resounding agreement.

That's because ABNY understands – as do I – that rising inequality isn't just a problem for those of modest means... not just a threat to those barely hanging on to their place in the middle class. You and I understand that inequality is a crisis that impacts ALL of us -- including those who have enjoyed great personal success.

If New York cannot be a city of genuine opportunity for ALL – regardless of the circumstances of their birth – then we not only lose a part of who we are – we risk losing our place as a global center of innovation, diversity, and progress.

That is why we REFUSE to accept the false choices that for too long have defined the way that some have viewed our city:

That sustained economic growth is fated to only help SOME, while leaving so many behind;

That more development inevitably means that everyday New Yorkers will be priced out;

That New York cannot be both a growing city AND a city of opportunity for all.

We know that sort of myopic thinking should not, and will not, define our future.

A progressive agenda – one that seeks to reduce the cost of living for working families, as well as boost their wages – is not in conflict with fostering a thriving economy. In fact, it can and MUST be the foundation for a sustainable, growing economy.

We've just begun to implement our agenda, but if 2014 is any indication, policies promoting fairness and equality are doing anything but precluding economic growth.

Just take a look at the good news from last year.

Last year, New York saw:

95,900 jobs added;

More than four million private sector jobs – an all-time high;

An unemployment rate down nearly two points in less than a year – with the third quarter experiencing the largest three-month drop in unemployment on record;

The expansion of an entertainment industry that produced a record 46 television series and over 240 films right here in New York;

And the continued growth of a booming tech sector that now employs nearly 300,000 people.

Our city is growing, both in terms of our economy, and the number of people who want to call New York home. By 2040, we will be a city of 9 million people.

And so we remain focused on a critical challenge: growing our economy in a way that is broad-based and guided by expanding opportunity for every New Yorker. We know that the best and brightest come from every neighborhood in every borough – and those with the grit and determination to succeed come from all walks of life. So if families can't afford to stay in our city, then we are ALL denied the contributions offered by those unrealized success stories.

Now, there are two sides to the affordability equation: finding more affordable places for families to live; and helping grow New Yorkers' incomes -- through higher wages, better benefits, and more steps to reduce the squeeze that so many of our families feel.

In the State of the City, I talked about my Administration's affordable housing plan: the boldest municipal affordable housing plan in U.S. history.

Our housing plan means:

For the first time ever, a REQUIREMENT of affordable housing as a CONDITION of new development resulting from rezoning;

Fighting to protect and strengthen rent regulations to ensure that housing units that are currently affordable will STAY that way;

And dedicating $36 million to protecting tenants from harassment and cracking down on predatory landlords – the minority of landlords who want only to make a quick buck at the expense of their tenants' well-being...at the expense of our city's affordability.

We more than doubled the 10-year capital budget for affordable housing with our enormous $7.2 billion commitment and will leverage an additional $32 billion in private investment to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers.

All of that adds up to 200,000 units of affordable housing created or preserved over a decade...units built at DOUBLE the average annual rate of the last 25 years.

Additionally, we're catalyzing 160,000 new market rate units to help housing supply keep up with a growing population.

And as we re-zone to add more housing capacity, we are committed to making concurrent investments in infrastructure, so that communities don't have to wait years for new schools, parks, playgrounds and other open spaces. These are hallmarks of responsible development... and priorities to this Administration.

Making housing in New York more affordable is critical to keeping this a city of opportunity and innovation.

But housing is only one side of the affordability equation.

That is why we are also working to GROW our economy...to expand new job opportunities, and drive wages in our city UP.

This Administration is fighting for smart, inclusive, five-borough economic growth... growth that benefits ALL New Yorkers -- NOT just those at the top.

The partnership of the people in this room is critical to making New York a stronger, fairer city for ALL who call it home. It is critical to keeping New Yorker a city defined by openness and innovation -- a special place to start or grow a business.

Our city will do ITS part -- first, by investing in our people, so that businesses don't need to look far and wide to find the most skilled, best qualified workers in the world.

Specifically:

We're starting early with more than 53,000 students enrolled in pre-K LAST year – this year it will be available to EVERY family that wants it.

And we are nearly DOUBLING the number of middle school students in afterschool, to keep them safe and on task, giving working parents peace of mind during those critical hours between the end of the school day and the end of the workday.

And our commitment to making New York a place where EVERYONE is prepared for opportunity goes much further.

We are making a $29 million investment to expand academic intervention and STEM at CUNY community colleges, because an education granting the knowhow needed for 21st century jobs ought to be available to EVERYONE in New York City.

For too long, our City has focused a half a billion dollar training and workforce development budget on initiatives that led to temporary, low paying jobs that offered only superficial opportunity. Over the past few years, less than 10% of our workforce development investment has gone into skills training. We're increasing that amount, THREE-FOLD.

We're moving forward with a plan to redesign our Career Pathways system to arm up to 30,000 New Yorkers annually with the skills they need for quality, stable jobs of today and tomorrow. That's more than TRIPLE the number of New Yorkers who currently receive this type of training.

We're working with companies across many industries – from health care to construction – and we recognize that each industry has different needs. In some industries, we need to make sure that new jobs mean better wages and benefits for workers. Other industries -- like technology -- are growing rapidly, but are in need of space...and especially talent.

That's why we created the Tech Talent Pipeline: to support the growth of New York's booming technology sector, AND training New Yorkers to be those companies' premier new hires. 3,000 New Yorkers will benefit from our action THIS year. Not sometime in the distant future -- THIS YEAR.

Another example: modern manufacturing.... New businesses that utilize technology and the ingenuity of New Yorkers from every borough to quickly turn exciting ideas into tangible products, regardless of their scale.

It means using technologies like 3-D printers that are revolutionizing production so that great ideas can come to life right here, right now in New York City. It's a SECTOR that offers opportunities for a diverse workforce, and is critical to our future.

We'll partner with modern manufacturing companies to make sure that our training initiatives are offering New Yorkers the skills needed in this industry. We're also securing commitments from businesses to HIRE New Yorkers who complete this training.

The City will also do its part by making significant investments in the built environment so that businesses have the physical prerequisites for growth. New York City understands how important infrastructure is to economic growth, and that is why we are putting our money where our mouth is.

We're investing in City-owned assets so that innovative businesses can grow.

Brooklyn Navy Yard is a $140 million redevelopment project that will transform a previously underutilized warehouse space into a modern manufacturing facility that will create 3,000 good jobs. Because of our investment, a cold, empty space is becoming a hub of opportunity, filled with exciting, creative businesses.... And with job training opportunities ON SITE to ensure new opportunities here are open to EVERY New Yorker.

We're taking what works at the Navy Yard – capital investment, job training, and a bold approach and applying it to the Brooklyn Army Terminal, where we're opening half a million square feet for modern manufacturing businesses. This means 1,000 new jobs.... PERMANENT jobs representing smart, inclusive growth, in space that was unused for decades.

Today, I want to announce a new project based upon that same philosophy – Hunts Point, a key food distribution hub in the South Bronx.

Our plan will invest $150 million over 12 years to revitalize Hunts Point -- fortifying a vital aspect of our infrastructure – our food supply.

It will modernize the buildings and infrastructure that are currently there, and open up new space for small businesses. More than that, it's a bold vision and a major financial commitment that will make the site resilient and sustainable, improving New York's readiness for natural disasters like Superstorm Sandy.

It's hard to overstate how important this facility is for our city. It occupies 329 acres and supports 115 private wholesalers that employ over 8,000 people. These are good, decent-paying jobs for New Yorkers at every education level. Our plan protects those jobs and positions the site to create many more jobs for New Yorkers in the future.

And it will include dedicated space to better link food grown and produced in Upstate New York, strengthening our city's critical partnership with Upstate communities, farms, and businesses. I know there are many great rooftop farms in Greenpoint... but we all understand that they can't provide enough food for EVERY New Yorker. Strengthening our Upstate partnerships is CRITICAL.

This is just one example of the type of infrastructure improvements we will be undertaking. Some projects will require partnerships. In the coming months, we're going to unveil large infrastructure projects that will necessitate federal help.

But we can do so much on our own. In fact, we're fostering the growth of whole new INDUSTRIES. We're doing so in ways that offer opportunities to all New Yorkers, and opportunities for employers to tap into our world-class workforce.

We've talked about technology and modern manufacturing, but we're also making substantial strategic investments in other growth sectors like health care, and we'll be making announcements on these investments soon.

Now, I've talked about how New York City will do OUR part to tackle our inequality crisis, I also want to call on YOU – the business leaders gathered in this room – to DO YOURS.

Let's face it. If New York City becomes an inequitable and unaffordable place... one where the hardest working and most ambitious -- who come from every borough -- cannot afford to stay... no one will suffer more than the business community. You don't just benefit from a world-class workforce -- it's a requisite for the growth and profits for your company.

The City is making investments to ensure the affordability crisis doesn't chase future private sector success stories out of New York City.

We're not just talking about that goal; we're dedicating our own balance sheet to it.

I pledge to you that as long as I'm Mayor, New York City will take responsibility for developing the best possible workers, fortifying our infrastructure, improving our transit system through citywide ferries and expanded bus rapid transit, reducing unnecessary red tape and regulations that deter innovation, and jump-starting growth for businesses.

I'm holding up my end of the bargain...and then some.

But I need YOU to take responsibility for providing the great people of this city with the opportunities... the wages... and the chances for advancement...that they need and deserve.

That means hiring New Yorkers from EVERY neighborhood. Give them the chance to put their skills... their drive and determination... to work for YOUR company.

It also means raising wages at your company.

Companies like The Gap...like Aetna...and like New York City's own Shake Shack...have ALREADY raised their wages above the national minimum wage.

They are not doing it to be charitable. They are doing it because they know that higher wages mean more productive workers...AND stronger local economies. Indeed, studies that show how increasing workers' wages has a powerful upward pull on whole economies because of increased consumer spending.

And it's not just big businesses that are taking the lead on higher wages. UncommonGoods is an innovative retailer based out of the Brooklyn Army Terminal. Its CEO and Founder, David Bolotsky, is an outspoken advocate for raising workers' wages, and pays even seasonal workers well above the minimum wage. He puts it pretty plainly QUOTE "We see higher productivity and lower turnover when employees are fairly compensated."

I am also calling on major investors and lenders to use their influence to invest their resources in ways that promote and grow companies that pay good wages. These are people who have a very real impact on our city's economy – and they MUST use their power to benefit the people of our city - middle class, working class, and poor families alike.

Think of the all the success stories in this room that wouldn't have been POSSIBLE if that struggle – a struggle with a singular sense of purpose – hadn't paid off. That idea...that promise... one that has paid huge dividends for so many here today... is at risk. And so we must take action.

Our work to tackle the inequality crisis...and keep New York an open, innovative place...won't be easy. But there is so much we can do on our own as a city, if we – this Administration, the people in this room, and everyday New Yorkers across our City – all work TOGETHER.

So today, let's recommit to making our city a place not of exclusive opulence...but of opportunity and innovation.

It's a big job, but the stories – big and small – of those here, and those in every corner of New York -- demonstrate that it is a task well worth undertaking.

And we will do it...together.

Thank you!

On Mar 4, 2015, at 9:00 PM, [REDACTED] wrote:

> This call will happen to soon

>

> Sent from my iPhone

>

>> On Mar 4, 2015, at 6:26 PM, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

>>

>> Incorporates a bunch of final small and mostly non-substantive edits folks have been giving me†

>> <ABNYWednesday630PM.docx>

From: John Del Cecato
To: [REDACTED]
Cc: Jon Fromowitz; Andrea Hagelgans; Mahen Gunaratna; Patchett, James
Subject: Re: Latest ABNY
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 9:14:39 PM

I'll be landing in 20

> On Mar 4, 2015, at 9:00 PM, '[REDACTED]' <[REDACTED]> wrote:
>
> This call will happen to soon
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
>> On Mar 4, 2015, at 6:26 PM, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com> wrote:
>>
>> Incorporates a bunch of final small and mostly non-substantive edits folks have been giving me...
>> <ABNYWednesday630PM.docx>

From: Patchett, James
To: Gunaratna, Mahen; Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: 13 or 13.30
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 10:51:30 PM

Yes agree (though technically our number is 13.30).

----- Original Message -----

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 10:50 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Patchett, James
Cc: 'jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com' <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: 13 or 13.30

Our public posture is "more than $13/hour by 2016" and then indexing to bring us to a projected $15/hour by 2019.

If we're going to specify for folks in the room, recommend that we say "more than $13/hour" and leave it at that. That way, we're aligning with what he's said previously.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 10:47 PM
To: Patchett, James; Gunaratna, Mahen
Cc: 'jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: 13 or 13.30

He plans to challenge folks in room to rapidly increase wages to our proposed minimum wage. That is 13.30, right?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Jon Fromowitz
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato
Subject: RE: He's got substantive changes
Date: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 11:19:17 PM

Let's lift from this (six weeks ago):

<http://www1.nyc.gov/office-of-the-mayor/news/034-15/enrollment-middle-school-afterschool-hits-121-percent-city-awards-49-new-programs-at>

From: Jon Fromowitz [jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 8:13 PM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: He's got substantive changes

I mean like 53K in pre-k vs 70k. Does that make sense?

On Mar 4, 2015, at 8:12 PM, Gunaratna, Mahen <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Not quite following what you mean exactly.

We're currently in our first full academic year of BdB's mayoralty. Do you mean using past tense vs. present tense?

We've always hewed to the "nearly doubling" language when discussing after school...

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 8:10 PM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: He's got substantive changes

Mahen, I think this is a last year vs. this year thing. What would be the equivalent way of talking about after school when compared to pre-k?

On Mar 4, 2015, at 8:02 PM, Gunaratna, Mahen <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Should be "nearly doubling". Let's rephrase to:

"And we are nearly doubling enrollment in after-school programs for middle school students, to keep them safe and on task, giving working parents peace of mind during those critical hours between the end of the school day and the end of the work day."

I will double-check with DYCD, but he's used the "doubling" phrasing before.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 7:58 PM
To: Jon Fromowitz
Cc: John Del Cecato; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: RE: He's got substantive changes

Please check this-- he keeps saying not right. The "doubling" is giving him pause

And we are more than DOUBLING the number of middle school students in afterschool, to keep them safe and on task, giving working parents peace of mind during those critical hours between the end of the school day and the end of the work day.

From: Jon Fromowitz [jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 7:50 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: John Del Cecato; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: He's got substantive changes

Jdc is on a flight, so will just be me. I will get to work trimming down last three pages now and will have a revised draft in an hour. What do you mean by "frontal"?

On Mar 4, 2015, at 7:48 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea
<AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Big picture -- last 3 pages he says are very redundant, needs to be fixed. He also is concerned about how frontal it is

Likely going to need to have us on the phone in about an hour

From: Grybauskas, Stefan
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: [REDACTED]; [REDACTED] "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: En route
Date: Thursday, March 05, 2015 8:17:18 AM

What's your eta? I am waiting for Mayor outside now on 5th ave

Stefan Grybauskas
Associate Director of Advance
Office of the Mayor
City of New York
C: 347-515-5875

----- Original Message -----

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, March 05, 2015 08:05 AM
To: Grybauskas, Stefan
Cc: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]> [REDACTED]
<[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: En route

Will do tx

> On Mar 5, 2015, at 8:02 AM, Grybauskas, Stefan <SGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> Call me when you are here

>

> [REDACTED]

>

>

> Stefan Grybauskas
> Associate Director of Advance
> Office of the Mayor
> City of New York
> C: 347-515-5875

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: [REDACTED] [[mailto:\[REDACTED\]](mailto:[REDACTED])]
> Sent: Thursday, March 05, 2015 08:00 AM
> To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
> Cc: Michael Carey <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>;
> Grybauskas, Stefan
> Subject: Re: En route

>

> Okie

>

> Stefan is there

>

> He can help assist

>

> Sent from my iPhone

>

>> On Mar 5, 2015, at 7:56 AM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

>>

>> Pick and I should arrive by 810a. Then hopefully someone with juice can sneak us backstage
>>
>>

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Caputo, Steven; "Jon Fromowitz"
Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Eva Trimble
Subject: RE: Housing budget
Date: Thursday, March 05, 2015 9:01:06 AM

Sally Goldenberg @SallyGold 27s

.@BilldeBlasio says NYC has doubled its 10-year capital budget to build affordable housing.

From: Caputo, Steven
Sent: Thursday, March 05, 2015 7:04 AM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen; 'Jon Fromowitz'
Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Eva Trimble
Subject: Re: Housing budget

Let's simplify this to track more closely to the way we've discussed budget in the past and the numbers that the Mayor is used to. The nuances between Mayoral Capital and total City Capital, as well as leverage vs total spending are what's confusing.

"We more than doubled the 10-year capital budget for affordable housing to $8 billion and will leverage private dollars for a total investment of over $40 billion to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers."

Steven Caputo Jr

Senior Advisor
Deputy Mayor for Housing & Economic Development
scaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov
O: 212-788-3019
C: 347-224-8807

From: <Gunaratna>, Mahen Gunaratna <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Thursday, March 5, 2015 at 12:54 AM
To: "Steven A. Caputo" <scaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com" <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: James Patchett <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Elaine Braithwaite <EBraithwaite@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: Housing budget

Mayor wants to double-check that we're right on the $32 billion figure.

Steven, are you 100% good with using this?

From: Caputo, Steven
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 8:00 PM
To: 'Jon Fromowitz'
Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: RE: Housing budget

HPD corrected the numbers based on the Mayoral capital figures from the January Plan and a clarification on leverage. They are good with the statement below.

“We more than doubled the 10-year capital budget for affordable housing with our enormous $7.2 billion commitment and will leverage an additional $32 billion in private investment to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers.”

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 7:21 PM
To: Caputo, Steven
Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Housing budget

Is that kosher with everyone?

On Mar 4, 2015, at 7:19 PM, Caputo, Steven <SCaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

OK. I think we may be able to say that we “more than doubled” the budget based on a comparison of the projected ten-year HNY budget of $8.2 billion and the ten-year capital budget of $2.9 billion adopted by the Bloomberg Administration in 2013:

“We more than doubled the City’s budget for affordable housing with our enormous $8.2 billion commitment and will leverage up to $40 billion in total investment to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers.”

See page 91 for the ten-year capital budget figures passed in 2013 by the prior administration.

http://www.nyc.gov/html/omb/downloads/pdf/typ5_13.pdf

From: Patchett, James
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 6:17 PM
To: 'jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com'; Caputo, Steven
Cc: Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Housing budget

Steve--Is your 55% comparing apples to apples (10 yrs v 10 yrs)?

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 06:15 PM
To: Caputo, Steven
Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Housing budget

Is this accurate/optimal?

We're more effectively leveraging private capital with our enormous $8.2 billion investment – over 50% more than what it had been – to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers.

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:44 PM, Caputo, Steven <SCaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

“More than double what it had been” isn't accurate in this context. It's accurate to say that the Mayor's 2015 budget doubled HPD's 5-year budget compared to what was previously budgeted for those same years by the Bloomberg Administration. However, the $8.2 billion City Capital budget for Housing New York is 55% more (not double) than the total City Capital budget for the Bloomberg-Era New Housing Marketplace Plan.

Also, we expect our leverage ratio to be somewhat lower than the New Housing Marketplace Plan (3x vs 2.48x) because we are financing more costly units (deeper affordability; more new construction).

So back to the drawing board.

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:22 PM
To: Patchett, James
Cc: Caputo, Steven; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: Housing budget

Yes, this is better. Thanks

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:21 PM, Patchett, James <JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

How about this?

We're more effectively leveraging private capital with our enormous $8.2 billion investment -- more than double what it had been – to produce more units for a broader range of New Yorkers.

James Patchett

Chief of Staff

Deputy Mayor for Housing & Economic Development

JPatchett@cityhall.nyc.gov

O: 212-788-3128

C: 917-847-5275

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]

Sent: Wednesday, March 04, 2015 5:06 PM

To: Caputo, Steven

Cc: Patchett, James; Braithwaite, Elaine; Gunaratna, Mahen

Subject: Re: Housing budget

Thanks. So would this be an accurate characterization:

We're more effectively leveraging an enormous $8.2 billion capital investment -- more than double what it had been -- and significant land assets to produce more units for a wider array of New Yorkers.

On Mar 4, 2015, at 5:00 PM, Caputo, Steven

<SCaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Hi John,

Here are the facts on the Housing New York budget:

- The Mayor's 2015 budget (e.g. the five-year plan) more than doubled HPD's annual capital budget
- The total projected City Capital over ten years will be $8.2 billion (FY15 to FY25)
- This City Capital will leverage private sources on a 3 to 1 basis
- Total development costs for preserving and creating 200,000 units will be $41.4 billion

Let me know if you have questions.

Steve

Steven Caputo

New York City Mayor's Office

scaputo@cityhall.nyc.gov

(o) 212-788-3019

(m) 347-224-8807

From: Liz Hegarty
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Confirming lunch tomorrow
Date: Friday, March 06, 2015 12:36:55 PM

Hi Matt,

John just arrived at the restaurant. Do you happen to know if Penny is there yet? Just want to make sure they aren't missing each other. To confirm it's the Smith located at 956 2nd Ave (at 51st St), correct?

Thanks!

Liz

From: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Thursday, March 5, 2015 at 1:35 PM
To: "Graham, Matthew" <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Confirming lunch tomorrow

Great, thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Thursday, March 5, 2015 at 1:33 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Confirming lunch tomorrow

Hi, Liz.

Yes, tomorrow at 12:30 works very well for Penny. She's looking forward to it!

Thanks for confirming.

Best,

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, March 05, 2015 2:22 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Confirming lunch tomorrow

Hi Matt,

Just checking in to confirm lunch tomorrow at 12:30 at The Smith. Feel free to let me know if we need to adjust timing at all.

Thanks!

Liz

—

Liz Hegarty

AKPD Message and Media

Office: 312-664-7500

Cell: 203-482-6229

lhgart@akpdmedia.com

From: Wright, Jessica
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: You are invited to a reception celebrating the Commission on the Status of Women
Date: Friday, March 06, 2015 7:35:56 PM

The Mayor and
First Lady of the City of New York

with UN WOMEN

invite you to an intimate reception in celebration of the

COMMISSION ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN

and to honor

BEIJING+20
CAMPAIGN

Monday, March 9, 2015

6:00 PM - 8:00 PM

Gracie Mansion
East End Avenue
and 88th Street, Manhattan

The Mayor and First Lady of the City of New York
with UN Women
invite you to an intimate reception in celebration of the Commission on the Status of Women
and to honor

Beijing+20 Campaign
Monday, March 9, 2015
6:00 PM - 8:00 PM
Gracie Mansion
East End Avenue and 88th Street, Manhattan

Space is limited.

Please RSVP to event@cityhall.nyc.gov or 212-788-2569 by Monday, March 2, 2015

This invite is not transferrable.

From: The Office of Mayor de Blasio
To: "Liz Hegarty"
Subject: RE: RSVP to 3/9 reception
Date: Monday, March 09, 2015 10:44:47 AM

Thank you, Liz! I will add him to the list. Please send me his contact information for our records.

Best wishes,
Karen

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, March 09, 2015 10:42 AM
To: The Office of Mayor de Blasio
Subject: Re: RSVP to 3/9 reception

Hi Karen,

He was forwarded the invitation from Jessica Wright. Hope that helps!

Thanks,

Liz

From: The Office of Mayor de Blasio <Event@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, March 9, 2015 at 7:20 AM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: RSVP to 3/9 reception

Hello Liz:

I cannot find John's name on the guest list. To whom was the original invitation sent?

Thank you,
Karen Rich

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Sunday, March 08, 2015 1:04 PM
To: The Office of Mayor de Blasio
Subject: RSVP to 3/9 reception

Hello,

John Del Cecato will be attending the reception in celebration of the Commission on the Status of Women Monday evening.

Thanks,

Liz

—

Liz Hegarty

Assistant to John Del Cecato
AKPD Message and Media
Office: 312-664-7500
Cell: 203-482-6229
lhgartv@akpdmedia.com

From: Bill de Blasio
To: John Del Cecato; Jon Fromowitz
Cc: Leopold, Elana
Subject: Fw: Hi, Katrina. Good time to call? Thanks - Bill
Date: Monday, March 09, 2015 11:37:42 AM

Pls make me call her

-----Original Message-----

From: Katrina Vanden Heuvel
To: Bill de Blasio
Subject: Re: Hi, Katrina. Good time to call? Thanks - Bill
Sent: Mar 9, 2015 11:31 AM

Bill, regrets we missed last week. Might 1:30 work or even better anytime between 4:30 and 6 ?
On Mar 9, 2015, at 11:15 AM, Bill de Blasio <[\[REDACTED\]](#)> wrote:

>
>
> Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato
To: BdB
Cc: Aaron Pickrell; Jon Fromowitz; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Updated call list - Gracie Confab
Date: Monday, March 09, 2015 9:46:26 PM

Will do.

On Mar 9, 2015, at 9:22 PM, Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]> wrote:

Need to finish these calls in next 72 hours. Pls make sure we have time scheduled

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Mon, 9 Mar 2015 23:09:08 +0000
To: [REDACTED] Aaron Pickrell <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Updated call list - Gracie Confab

Right on.. Damn, you killed it today...

From: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Reply-To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Date: Monday, March 9, 2015 at 5:23 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Updated call list - Gracie Confab

Grijalva is an enthusiastic yes! Pls follow up with Amy Emrick, his COS

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Fri, 6 Mar 2015 12:34:56 +0000
To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]> Michael Carey <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Updated call list - Gracie Confab

Cut/pasted & attached...

Sherrod Brown
U.S. Senator from Ohio

Cell Phone: [REDACTED] Main Phone: [REDACTED]
Assistant:

Notes: Senator from OH since 2006, after serving 14 years in the House. Brown is the senior Senator from OH and a staunch advocate for banking reform. Currently he is the ranking member on the Senate Banking Committee. Sen. Brown has always focused on populist issues as an elected official and has made a priority of revitalizing the manufacturing sector in Ohio and across the country.

Former Governor Strickland announced on 2/26 that he will challenge Sen. Portman and try and join Brown in the Senate

Richard Trumka

President of AFL-CIO

Cell Phone: [REDACTED] Main Phone: [REDACTED]
Assistant:

Notes: In 2014, he described Elizabeth Warren as the prototype of the person we need to be President of the United States. Trumka has not been shy about pushing progressive issues and highlighting income inequality. He is currently fighting efforts in WI, MO and a few other states that are being pushed towards becoming right to work states.

Senator Elizabeth Warren

Massachusetts

Cell Phone: [REDACTED] Main Phone: [REDACTED]
Assistant:

Notes: Progressive Senator from MA. Strong advocate for banking reform. She will be speaking at the Mayor's conference in Boston later in March

Keith Ellison

Congressman– Co-Chair of U.S. House Progressive Caucus

Personal Line: [REDACTED] Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Scheduler's Email- ellison.scheduler@mail.house.gov

Assistant:

Notes: MN Congressman (Minneapolis) since 2007. Ellison is the first Muslim to be elected to US Congress. Ellison has been a consistent voice talking about income inequality and raising the minimum wage. He recently commended Wal-Mart for their pledge to raise the minimum wage for their employees.

The congressman has walked picket lines protesting what he considered Wal-Mart's poor pay and working conditions. But Friday he offered praise for a company that often ranks at the bottom of surveys.

"I want to commend Wal-Mart," Ellison said. "Wal-Mart is ahead of the federal government. There is a recognition that we can't get by in a two-tier economy."

Ellison said he and others pushing higher wages will use Wal-Mart's action as a way to compel more retailers to act. That includes Target, which is headquartered in his congressional district.

Raul Grijalva (Gra-hall-va)

Congressman– Co-Chair of U.S. House Progressive
Caucus

Personal Line: Scheduler's Email: cristina.villa@mail.house.gov

Main Phone: [REDACTED] (scheduler would prefer to have us call her and she will schedule call

Notes: AZ Congressman (Tuscon) since 2003. Grijalva serves as the ranking member of the House Natural Resources Committee. He recently called for an inquiry into big oil paying for academic research that is often cited by climate change deniers.

Grijalva sent requests to seven universities asking for detailed records on the funding sources for affiliated researchers who have opposed the scientific consensus on man-made global warming. Grijalva cited concerns over possible conflicts of interest involving scientists who have sought to influence the public debate on climate.

Robert Reich

Chancellor's Professor of Public Policy at the University of California at Berkeley and Senior Fellow at the Blum Center for Developing Economies

Personal Line:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Secondary Phone:

Email: rboles@berkeley.edu

Assistant: phone and email for his assistant rebecca boles

Notes: Sec of Labor for Clinton, political economist, professor, author, and political commentator. His recent movie – Inequality for All – is now available on DVD.

Reich recently wrote about the trend of companies hiring workers as independent contractors – like Uber and FedEx – who don't have to provide benefits, etc for their workers.

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/robert-reich/why-were-all-becoming-independent-contractors_b_6731760.html

Katrina vanden Heuval

The Nation Magazine

Personal Line:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Secondary Phone:

Email: kat@thenation.com

Assistant: Kelsea Norris – asst – [REDACTED]

Notes: Editor, publisher, and part owner of Liberal magazine, The Nation. Frequently writes on international relations

She recently wrote about how Obama's SOTU speech was the progressive voters that Americans wanted and that she was pleased he was willing to fight for progressive issues and not focus on compromise like he did early in his term http://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/katrina-vanden-heuvel-the-progressive-president-voters-wanted/2015/01/26/33fd24e4-a5a3-11e4-a06b-9df2002b86a0_story.html

Ted Strickland

Former Governor of Ohio and current candidate for U.S. Senate

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: Strickland announced he was running for U.S. Senate against Rob Portman on 2/25. In his announcement he said

Today, we are producing, building, creating and discovering more than ever before, and yet, for the middle-class, getting ahead has never been harder. I believe that if you're willing to work hard every day and play by the rules, you shouldn't go to bed worrying about tomorrow. To save the American Dream, we need to go back to the basics. We need to create living-wage jobs and invest in the kind of infrastructure projects that benefit our communities. We need to make college more accessible and affordable so that our young people can get an education, get a job, and start saving to buy a home, support their families and retire with a sense of dignity and security. We need to make smart choices on fair trade that reward the worker instead of the wealthy.

Al Gore

Former Vice President

Personal Line:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes:

Tom Harkin

Former US Senator from Iowa and Chair of the Harkin Institute at Drake University

Cell Phone:

Main Phone:

Assistant:

Notes: You will be speaking at the Harkin Institute in April. Harkin was a national progressive leader while in the Senate and still has immense influence in Iowa.

Congressman John Lewis
US Congressman from Georgia

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant: David.Bowman@mail.house.gov

Notes: Senior Chief Deputy Whip of Democratic Caucus. Former civil rights leader and chair of the SNCC in civil rights era

Senator Tammy Baldwin
US Senator from Wisconsin

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: First openly gay woman in the Senate.

Jon Stewart
Host of the Daily Show

Cell Phone:

Main Phone:

Assistant:

Notes: Recently announced he was leaving the Daily Show.

Maria Elana Durazo
Former President, LA County Federation of Labor

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: VP at Unite Here. Previously a labor leader in Los Angeles, listed as most valuable Local Labor Leader in 2014 by The Nation

Deepak Bhargava

Executive Director of Campaign Community for Change

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Email: bhargava@communitychange.org

Notes: Works with CCC to organize low income people to build social movements. Deepak has been very involved with the immigration fight

Janet Murguia

President of the National Council of La Raza

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: CEO of largest Hispanic rights organization in country since 2005, Dep CM to Al Gore in 2000. Murguia met with President Obama on Wednesday, Feb 25 to talk about the immigration executive order

Nick Hanauer

Entrepreneur and Philanthropist

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: 30 years of experience across a broad range of industries including manufacturing, retailing, e-commerce, digital media and advertising, software, aerospace, health care, and finance

Mark Ruffalo

Actor, Anti-fracking activist

Cell Phone:

Main Phone:

Assistant:

Notes: One of the first major celebrities to advocate against “fracking”

Abigail Disney

Progressive Scholar and Filmmaker

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes:

Tom Steyer

NextGen

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: Investor, philanthropist and advanced energy advocate. He is also the President of NextGen Climate, an organization that acts politically to prevent climate disaster and preserve American prosperity.

Jonathan Soros

Senior Fellow at The Roosevelt Institute

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: Cofounder of Friends of Democracy Super Pac, supporting candidates who endorse campaign finance reform.

Howard Dean

Former Governor of VT, Former DNC Chair, Co-founder
Democracy for America

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: Noted for his 50 state strategy at DNC. First major candidate to implement internet grassroots fundraising.

Toni Morrison

Nobel Laureate, Author

Cell Phone:

Main Phone:

Assistant:

Notes: Writes on the “black experience.” On faculty at Princeton. Awarded Presidential Medal of Freedom by Obama.

Van Jones

Environmental Activist, Civil Rights Champion

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: Founded four non-profits, including Rebuild the Dream ad Color of Change. Served Obama administration as Advisor for Green Jobs

Dannel Malloy

Governor of Connecticut

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: MBDB spoke to him and he is going to try and attend. Staff to follow up

Re-elected in 2014 in a close election. In 2016, he will be the head of the Democratic Governor’s Association. In a story about his visti to DC over the weekend, below was written –

Malloy also expressed his disdain for “Democrat-lite” candidates.

“When Democrats run as Republicans, we lose,” he said.

From: Stephanie Yazgi
To: John Del Cecato; Fink, Avi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Progressive Taxation
Date: Tuesday, March 10, 2015 3:42:54 PM
Attachments: Progressive Taxation.docx

Folks:

Attached here is memo Mahen put together on progressive taxation. His purpose was to create a research doc which we could use to craft a briefing to help MBdB facilitate a discussion with mayors around some of these options/ endeavors and their interest, thoughts, and feedback.

I plan to work with Gabriel on this, but any input from JDC to help us meet your vision and goals would be very helpful.
When we meet together on Friday at City Hall, we can discuss and I can work by COB Friday to have a first draft for review so we are comfortable with shared vision and talk points well in advance of when MBdB is supposed to facilitate.

Is that an ok plan?

Any notes JDC want to share now?

Need anything further from Mahen to add?

Thanks, all.
Stephanie

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Mahen Gunaratna <[REDACTED]>
Date: Tue, Mar 10, 2015 at 3:34 PM
Subject: Progressive Taxation
To: Stephanie Yazgi <[REDACTED]>

Steph,

Gabe passed along your progressive taxation doc. Thought I'd add to it in case helpful - see attached.

Let me know if you need anything else. I took out the financial transactions tax section because BdB is on-record as opposing it...then again he could be convinced otherwise.

-Mahen

Progressive Taxation

Policy: Fair Share Taxation

Description: “Corporations and the wealthy are failing to pay their fair share of taxes... We can create a fairer tax system to ensure that corporations and the wealthy pay their fair share, and make it easier for families to regain the security they’ve lost.” Americans for Tax Fairness, [“A Fair Tax System”]

Details: We can crack down on corporate tax dodging by restricting corporation inversions (registering Americans companies as foreign corporations and eliminating offshore loopholes and special tax breaks. To ensure the wealthy pays their fair share, we can start by strengthening the estate tax.

Resources: Americans for Tax Fairness; AFL-CIO Corporate Watch, “Avoiding Their Fair Share of Taxes”

Policy: Bad Business Fee

Description: “When workers have a voice in the process to determine wages and conditions, our democracy thrives. Expanding workers’ ability to negotiate – either directly with their employers or through a Bad Business Fee – gets us closer to wresting some control back from the corporate 1% and on the path toward healing our ailing economy.” Jobs with Justice, [“Low Wages are Bad Business”]

Details: “Allow a government to levy significant fines on a company that is paying excessively low wages and relying on taxpayers to foot the bill. Companies would be incentivized to work with and respond to their employees requests for fair wages and adequate benefits directly. Otherwise they would pay for parallel social services through a fee that workers and community members have input over. In other words, a bad actor in our economy is held accountable to either provide a good job or supply income or subsidies for existing and unemployed workers.” Jobs with Justice, [“Low Wages are Bad Business”]

Resources: Jobs with Justice, “Low Wages are Bad Business”

Policy: Pied-à-terre tax

Description: Non-NYC residents avoid paying personal income taxes and benefit from large property tax exemptions, yet they continue to utilize city services and infrastructure. Instituting a pied-à-terre tax on wealthy, non-residential owners of NYC properties would bring much needed balance and fairness to our city’s tax system.

Details: Instituting a property tax surcharge on expensive apartments and homes (over $5 million) that are owned by non-city residents. The annual surcharge, ranging from .5% to 4% would raise $665 million a year in revenue. Crain’s NY Business, “Manhattan Democrats to introduce pied-à-terre tax bill”, [9/22/2014]

Resources: Fiscal Policy Institute, “FPI proposes a tax on the most expensive NYC pied-a terre residential units”, 9/22/2014

Policy: Millionaire’s tax

Description: Requiring those who have benefitted from our economic system – individuals making more than $1 million annually – to pay their fair share of taxes through a modest increase.

Details: Current millionaire’s tax in New York State is scheduled to expire at the end of 2017.

Resources:

Policy: Mansion tax

Description: A 1% levy on all homes and apartment sales over $1 million.

Details: New York State’s mansion tax was first instituted in 1989 by the NYS Legislature and Governor Mario Cuomo. The NYS Division of Budget estimated that the tax generated $259 million for the state in fiscal year 2012-2013.

Resources: WSJ, “City Eyes Mansion-Tax Boost to Assist Affordable Housing”, 11/18/2014; NY Post, “Mansion Tax Produces Geysers of Revenue for New York”, 3/20/2014]

Policy: Luxury tax

Description: Tax or surcharge on luxury (or non-essential) goods such as boats, private planes, etc.

Details:

Resources: Economy Watch, “Luxury Tax in the United States of America \(U.S.A.\)”

Policy: Endowments tax

Description: Certain large-scale institutions have put their tax-free status into question by operating more like hedge funds than non-profit institutions. An endowments tax would ensure that interest is fairly taxed for the public good.

Details: Massachusetts legislation proposed a 2.5% annual tax on any amount of an endowment exceeding $1 billion. Senator Chuck Grassley (R-IA) has been supportive of requiring large endowment to make 5% annual payouts.

Resources: WSJ, “College Endowment Tax is Studied”, 5/9/2008; NY Post, “Colleges getting away with huge tax-free endowments”, 9/28/2014

From: John Del Cecato
To: Stephanie Yazgi; Fink, Avi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Wolfe, Emma Subject: Re: Progressive Taxation
Date: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 9:00:16 AM

I dig - good stuff

From: Stephanie Yazgi <[REDACTED]>
Date: Tuesday, March 10, 2015 at 3:42 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Fink, Avi" <AFink@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <gschnakemahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Emma Mw <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Progressive Taxation

Folks:

Attached here is memo Mahen put together on progressive taxation. His purpose was to create a research doc which we could use to craft a briefing to help MBdB facilitate a discussion with mayors around some of these options/ endeavors and their interest, thoughts, and feedback.

I plan to work with Gabriel on this, but any input from JDC to help us meet your vision and goals would be very helpful.

When we meet together on Friday at City Hall, we can discuss and I can work by COB Friday to have a first draft for review so we are comfortable with shared vision and talk points well in advance of when MBdB is supposed to facilitate.

Is that an ok plan?

Any notes JDC want to share now?

Need anything further from Mahen to add?

Thanks, all.
Stephanie

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Mahen Gunaratna <[REDACTED]>
Date: Tue, Mar 10, 2015 at 3:34 PM
Subject: Progressive Taxation
To: Stephanie Yazgi <[REDACTED]>

Steph,

Gabe passed along your progressive taxation doc. Thought I'd add to it in case helpful - see attached.

Let me know if you need anything else. I took out the financial transactions tax section because BdB is on-record as opposing it...then again he could be convinced otherwise.

-Mahen

From: Fink, Avi
To: "Stephanie Yazgi"; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Neal Kwatra; John Del Cecato; lhegarty@akpdmedia.com; [REDACTED]
Subject: RE: Presser at Cities of Opportunity Boston
Date: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 11:53:53 AM

Yes I'm sending around updated memo before 2pm.

From: Stephanie Yazgi [mailto:[REDACTED]]
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 11:53 AM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Neal Kwatra; John Del Cecato; Fink, Avi; lhegarty@akpdmedia.com; [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: Presser at Cities of Opportunity Boston

Sorry to have missed this. Any notes?

On Wed, Mar 11, 2015 at 10:12 AM, Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
<GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
Let's do quickly at 10:15 AM

[REDACTED] #

From: Neal Kwatra [mailto:[REDACTED]]
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 9:56 AM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: John Del Cecato; Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]) Fink, Avi; lhegarty@akpdmedia.com; [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: Presser at Cities of Opportunity Boston

sure, i'm free now til 1030 and then from 1130-1215

On Wed, Mar 11, 2015 at 9:51 AM, Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
<GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
Folks available this am to jump on call to start discussing press plan for COO?
We're trying to lock Sen Warren in to join with mayors for presser on the 23rd. JDC / Neal - want to get your thoughts/guidance/ideas.

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
To: "Neal Kwatra"; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED]); Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]); Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi; Sevillia, Max
Subject: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits
Date: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 1:13:40 PM
Attachments: COO Boston Memo.docx

SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

7:00pm – 8:30pm Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)
Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

8:30pm – 9:30 pm Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation roundtable
Location TBD

*Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS, John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler, April)

MONDAY, MARCH 23

Cities of Opportunity Task Force Meeting

Omni Parker House Hotel

7:30 a.m. – 8:30 a.m. Breakfast Available

8:30 a.m. - 10:45 a.m. Working Session
STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City
Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston
Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

TRANSPORTATION (MBDB will lean into this and facilitate discussion)

Goals: Give path to Mayors to push for Re-Authorization, Frame Issue Around Access to Opportunity

1. Full Funding For Transportation Bill is important for Cities

- MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS
 - US Government expert lays out impact of reauthorization to Mayors
 - We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. We are getting Assistant Secretary in his place regardless and possibly Sec of Labor to discuss jobs that come with reauthorization
2. Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorizing
 - We recommend letter we will get signatures on that we will send to House and Senate leaders Boehner and Reid and do press on.
 3. Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
 - Engaging Building Trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort
 - Engaging Contractors for same
 - Engaging Clergy and Organizations of Faith to join lobbying efforts
 4. MBDB will ask every Mayor in room to each develop lists of members of the house and Senate they can effectively lobby, especially Republicans
 5. MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
 - MBDB to highlight our 5 boro ferry plan and Bus Rapid Transit investments from State of the City address
 - MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials

HOUSING (to be led by Mayor Walsh)

Goal: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

10:45am - 11:45am

Remarks and Dialogue
SENATOR ELIZABETH WARREN

11:45pm – 12:05pm

Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:15pm – 1:15pm

Press Conference – MBDB, Sen. Warren, Secretary Foxx/Sec Perez and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

NOTE: IF WE DON'T HAVE SECRETARY FOXX WE WILL TRY AND HAVE SECRETARY OF LABOR FOR THIS

1:30pm – 2:30pm

Working Luncheon

Goals: Effectively debrief with Mayors on presser and action items moving forward

3:00pm

Adjourn

SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

7:00pm – 8:30pm

Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)
Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

8:30pm – 9:30 pm

Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation roundtable
Location TBD

Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler April)

MONDAY, MARCH 23

Cities of Opportunity Task Force Meeting

Omni Parker House Hotel

7:30 a.m. – 8:30 a.m.

Breakfast Available

8:30 a.m. - 10:45 a.m.

Working Session

STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City
Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston
Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

TRANSPORTATION (MBDB will lean into this and facilitate discussion)

Goals: Give path to Mayors to push for Re-Authorization, Frame Issue Around Access to Opportunity

1. Full Funding For Transportation Bill is important for Cities

- MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS
- US Government expert lays out impact of reauthorization to Mayors

- We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. We are getting Assistant Secretary in his place regardless and possibly Sec of Labor to discuss jobs that come with reauthorization
2. Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorizing
 - We recommend letter we will get signatures on that we will send to House and Senate leaders Boehner and Reid and do press on.
 3. Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
 - Engaging Building Trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort
 - Engaging Contractors for same
 - Engaging Clergy and Organizations of Faith to join lobbying efforts
 4. MBDB will ask every Mayor in room to each develop lists of members of the house and Senate they can effectively lobby, especially Republicans
 5. MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
 - MBDB to highlight our 5 boro ferry plan and Bus Rapid Transit investments from State of the City address
 - MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials

HOUSING (to be led by Mayor Walsh)

Goal: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

10:45am - 11:45am

Remarks and Dialogue
SENATOR ELIZABETH WARREN

11:45pm – 12:05pm

Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:15pm – 1:15pm

Press Conference – MBDB, Sen. Warren, Secretary Foxx./Sec Perez and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

NOTE: IF WE DON'T HAVE SECRETARY FOXX WE WILL TRY AND HAVE SECRETARY OF LABOR FOR THIS

1:30pm – 2:30pm

Working Luncheon

Goals: Effectively debrief with Mayors on presser and action items moving forward

3:00pm

Adjourn

From: Stephanie Yazgi
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Fink, Avi; John Del Cecato
Subject: PROGRESSIVE TAXATION memo
Date: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 2:35:42 PM
Attachments: Progressive Taxation v2.docx

Folks:

CPD (center for popular democracy, my old employer) is putting together scoping memo for OSF (open society foundation) to help them figure out if they should invest in progressive taxation efforts. They conducted over 20 interviews with city council members as members of local progress to put together. I just spoke with the person heading this up and asked him if he could help us on a mini lit review, sent him some of what I and Mahen put together, and he said he could get me something by Friday at 4PM since we are working on parallel tracks and timelines (they are friends ;)

In the interviews they asked about political, policy challenge memos to elected official's attempts at progressive municipal revenue generation/ taxes. He will likely however not include too much of that in what he sends to me initially though there is likely some room to work with them more long term on this and space for MBdB to occupy leadership once again.

Also got some other background research they are putting together which is in draft form and cannot be shared but might help us in our attempt to redo this memo that Mahen worked on.

I'm only sending you v2 of the memo that I have edited a bit- still needs a lot of work- but did this in the spirit of sharing and being on same page.

If we are going to have folks internally work more on this memo I'd like to be part of that conversation. I have included in v2 here the various points that Mahen CHANGED that need to be RE INTEGRATED in order for us to structure the ORGANIZING CONVERSATION accurately. (If JDC agrees).

Let me know what y'all think.
Thanks,
Stephanie

Progressive Taxation

DETAILS SHOULD INCLUDE BACKGROUND AND EXAMPLES
NEXT ITERATION OF THIS SHOULD INCLUDE EXAMPLES AS SEPARATE SECTION
WE SHOULD ALSO BEGIN LISTING EXPERTS AND ELECTEDS INVOLVED

NEW FORMAT FOR ALL:

TYPE:
DESCRIPTION:
REASONING:
EXAMPLES:
EXPERTS:
RESOURCES:

Policy: Fair Share Taxation

Description: "Corporations and the wealthy are failing to pay their fair share of taxes...We can create a fairer tax system to ensure that corporations and the wealthy pay their fair share, and make it easier for families to regain the security they've lost." Americans for Tax Fairness, "[A Fair Tax System"]

Details: We can crack down on corporate tax dodging by restricting corporation inversions (registering Americans companies as foreign corporations and eliminating offshore loopholes and special tax breaks. To ensure the wealthy pays their fair share, we can start by strengthening the estate tax.

Resources: Americans for Tax Fairness; AFL-CIO Corporate Watch, "Avoiding Their Fair Share of Taxes"

Policy: Bad Business Fee

Description: "When workers have a voice in the process to determine wages and conditions, our democracy thrives. Expanding workers' ability to negotiate – either directly with their employers or through a Bad Business Fee – gets us closer to wresting some control back from the corporate 1% and on the path toward healing our ailing economy." Jobs with Justice, "[Low Wages are Bad Business"]

Details: "Allow a government to levy significant fines on a company that is paying excessively low wages and relying on taxpayers to foot the bill. Companies would be incentivized to work with and respond to their employees requests for fair wages and adequate benefits directly. Otherwise they would pay for parallel social services through a fee that workers and community members have input over. In other words, a bad actor in our economy is held accountable to either provide a good job or supply income or subsidies for existing and unemployed workers." Jobs with Justice, "[Low Wages are Bad Business"]

Resources: Jobs with Justice, "Low Wages are Bad Business"

Policy: Pied-à-terre tax

Description: Non-NYC residents avoid paying personal income taxes and benefit from large property tax exemptions, yet they continue to utilize city services and infrastructure. Instituting a pied-à-terre tax on wealthy, non-residential owners of NYC properties would bring much needed balance and fairness to our city's tax system.

Details: Instituting a property tax surcharge on expensive apartments and homes (over $5 million) that are owned by non-city residents. The annual surcharge, ranging from .5% to 4% would raise $665 million a year in revenue. Crain's NY Business, "Manhattan Democrats to introduce pied-à-terre tax bill", [9/22/2014]

Resources: Fiscal Policy Institute, "FPI proposes a tax on the most expensive NYC pied-a terre residential units", 9/22/2014

Policy: Millionaire's tax

Description: Requiring those who have benefitted from our economic system – individuals making more than $1 million annually – to pay their fair share of taxes through a modest increase.

Details: Current millionaire's tax in New York State is scheduled to expire at the end of 2017.

Resources:

Policy: Financial Transaction Tax

Description:

Details: Not doable on city level (we aren't expected to do anything) federal government needs to do it Dave Camp is heading up tax reform for republicans. Conservative but stock transfer tax and endowment taxation. He is doing it because it's a revenue neutral approach for lowering income tax on millionaires, but shows that there are ideas that are being considered by bi partisan partners.

Resources:

Policy: Mansion tax

Description: A 1% levy on all homes and apartment sales over $1 million.

Details: New York State's mansion tax was first instituted in 1989 by the NYS Legislature and Governor Mario Cuomo. The NYS Division of Budget estimated that the tax generated $259 million for the state in fiscal year 2012-2013.

Resources: WSJ, "City Eyes Mansion-Tax Boost to Assist Affordable Housing", 11/18/2014; NY Post, "Mansion Tax Produces
Geyser of Revenue for New York", 3/20/2014]

Policy: Luxury tax

Description: Tax or surcharge on luxury (or non-essential) goods such as boats, private planes, etc.

Details:

Resources: Economy Watch, "Luxury Tax in the United States of America \(U.S.A.\)"

Policy: Endowments tax

Description: Certain large-scale institutions have put their tax-free status into question by operating more like hedge funds than non-profit institutions. An endowments tax would ensure that interest is fairly taxed for the public good.

Details: Massachusetts legislation proposed a 2.5% annual tax on any amount of an endowment exceeding $1 billion.
Senator Chuck Grassley (R-IA) has been supportive of requiring large endowment to make 5% annual payouts.

Resources: WSJ, "College Endowment Tax is Studied", 5/9/2008; NY Post, "Colleges getting away with huge tax-free endowments", 9/28/2014

MORE RESEARCH:

https://cdn.americanprogress.org/wp-content/uploads/2014/01/COW_05RaiseNeededRevenue.pdf

<https://cdn.americanprogress.org/wp-content/uploads/2012/12/CAPTaxPlanReportFINAL-b.pdf>

MORE INFO GATHERED BY CPD (draft form; do not share):

FAIR-SHARE REVENUE OPTIONS WOULD ENSURE HEDGE FUNDS DON'T DODGE TAXES AND FULLY FUND OUR PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM

Fair-share taxes and fees targeting hedge funds, billionaires, high-income LLCs and tax-dodging big corporations can raise between $3.1 and $4.2 billion dollars per year — more than enough to pay for complete compliance with the Campaign for Fiscal Equitss ("CFE") decision, ensuring fair funding for all public schools.

Lawmakers should move forward with enough of the fair-share revenue options outlined in this report to ensure that this year's state budget includes $2.2 billion in new school aid to comply with CFE and pay down Gap Elimination Adjustment arrears.

CLOSE HEDGE FUND TAX LOOPHOLES

- Repatriate New York State Share of Tax Revenue Lost to Federal Carried Interest Loophole: $100 million
- Tax Nonresident Hedge Fund Management Fees: $50 million
- Eliminate the Carried Interest Exemption under New York City's Unincorporated Business Tax: $200 million

These initiatives close the "carried interest loophole" that lets hedge funds making billions in profits pay less in taxes than small businesses in our local communities, and assure that hedge fund managers working in New York but living elsewhere pay their fair share of taxes.

INSIST ON MINIMUM FAIR-SHARE TAXES FROM HEDGE FUNDS AND BIG CORPORATIONS

- Restore the Capital Base Alternative Tax ("Corporate Minimum Tax") to the Corporate Franchise Tax: $500-$700 million
- Update LLC filing fees (applies to LLCs & non-LLC partnerships): $500 million

- Repeal the Financial Services Investment Tax Credit: $30 million

These initiatives assure that high-income LLCs, Wall Street and big businesses pay their fair share, while protecting local small businesses in our communities.

ENSURE THE SUPER-RICH PAY THEIR FAIR SHARE

- New top brackets on Personal Income Tax (PIT) 11% at $10M: up to $1.7 billion
- Close the Pied-a-terre Tax Abatement Loophole: $250-$900 million
- Helicopter Commuter Tax: $10 million

These initiatives ensure that billionaires and multi-millionaires pay their fair share of taxes, and close property tax loopholes benefitting the absentee owners of luxury Manhattan condominiums.

HEDGE FUNDS AND HEDGE FUND MANAGERS AREN'T PAYING THEIR FAIR SHARE IN TAXES

Hedge funds and hedge fund managers use a number of specific loopholes in federal, state and local law to avoid taxes in New York.

Problem: Hedge funds use the “carried interest” loophole to avoid fair taxation.

By defining a large portion of their massive income as “carried interest,” hedge fund managers avoid fair-share taxes at the federal, state and local level in New York

Federal legislation to close the “carried interest” loophole is estimated to generate $17 billion dollars over ten years, an average of $1.7 billion per year.^[6]

When a hedge fund manager invests capital provided by a limited partner, they typically take a share of the profits from that investment as a fee. That share is known as “carried interest.” This income should be subject to taxation, the same as any other income – but it isn’t.

Lost revenue under the loophole is largely the result of taxing personal income derived from carried interest at the difference between the federal capital gains rate and the top individual income tax rate — that difference is 19.6 percentage points. Essentially, this is performance compensation – just like tips for a waiter or waitresses are performance compensation. But while a waitress is obliged to pay full income tax on this money, a hedge fund manager isn’t.

A new 19.6 percent surtax on carried interest, if adopted by all the states, would generate $1.7 billion per year. Each one percent of surtax would generate $89.5 million per annum nationwide. The Fiscal Policy Institute estimated in 2008 that 44% of the earnings of private equity occurred in New York City.^[7]

If we assume that holds true today, then a 2.5 percent surtax applied to hedge fund income that is not being taxed appropriately at the federal level would generate $100 million per year for New York, repatriating lost revenue for use to fund schools and essential public services here.

Problem: Non-resident hedge fund managers are dodging New York State income taxes on much of their income

The 2010 Executive Budget proposal proposed to “expand the nonresident personal income tax to include income received from hedge fund management fees.” Currently, only a small portion of such income is taxed as compensation, with the remainder deemed tax-free capital gains. This proposal would result in equal treatment of this income for residents and nonresidents, and raise at least $50 million per year.

Problem: The “carried interest” loophole allows hedge funds to avoid many New York City business taxes

The City taxes a portion of the fees received by managing partners in private equity and hedge funds under its business tax system but exempts a portion known as “carried interest” from taxation.

When a fund manager invests capital provided by a limited partner, they typically take a share of the profits from that investment. That share is known as “carried interest,” and avoids City taxes.

Eliminating this loophole would put the taxation of private equity and hedge funds on the same footing as that of thousands of smaller businesses.

The New York City Independent Budget Office has estimated that eliminating the carried interest exemption from the New York City Unincorporated Business Tax would yield $200 million a year.^[8]

Problem: Hedge funds and luxury real estate developers use “LLCs” (limited liability corporations) to solicit huge investments, shield investors and limit taxation.

Some LLCs have huge amounts of New York State gross income — but they don’t pay their fair share in taxes and fees, unlike the small-to-medium sized businesses that anchor most communities.

From 2003 to 2006, New York instituted a fair-share LLC fee structure, which was later replaced with a flat-fee structure that allows hedge funds and speculative investment pools to avoid their fair share of the cost of public goods.

Since some LLCs have massive gross income, it would be fitting to apply roughly the same minimum taxes for other corporations (i.e. the 9A corporate tax) to the LLC fee structure.

The current 9A structure includes a fixed-dollar minimum corporate tax for businesses with gross income of $500M-$1B at $100,000, and for those with gross income > $1 B, the fixed dollar minimum tax is $200,000.

For 2015, DOB projects that the current LLC fee structure will generate $88 million. According to analysis by the Fiscal Policy Institute, a fair-share fee structure is projected to generate approximately $600 million, or roughly $500 million more than the existing fee structure.

Problem: Cuomo eliminated the corporate minimum tax

The business tax “reform” package enacted by Governor Cuomo in 2014 will cost the state $440 million or more annually in reduced taxes when fully phased in.

Cuomo’s changes eliminated the capital base alternative tax (“corporate minimum tax”), which could result in some very large corporations paying a miniscule amount of tax relative to the volume of business they conduct in New York – possibly including hedge funds.

It should be restored and the cap increased to $25 million, to make sure big corporations doing business in New York pay at least some taxes.

Problem: Multi-millionaires and billionaires with huge yearly personal incomes are paying a smaller share of their income in state and local taxes than the middle class.

New York’s current “temporary” top income tax bracket is 8.82% for incomes of $2 million and over – and it is set to expire in 2017.

In 2010, there were about 3800 households filing taxes in New York with incomes at or over $10 million per year

A new 11% tax rate for this group would generate $1.7 billion per year in fair-share revenue for schools and services. Less than half (47%) of those affected are full-year New York State residents – many are hedge fund managers with homes all around the world

Instituting these new top rates would put the combined New York City and New York State top rate very close to the combined rate for California and San Francisco, leaving Silicon Valley wealth and hedge fund/Wall Street wealth comparably taxed.

Problem: Wall Street trading firms making billions in profit and getting taxpayer subsidies

Right now, investments in buildings and equipment used by broker/dealers are eligible for an investment tax credit. The credit is complex, subject to extensive recapture and concentrated among relatively few taxpayers, providing benefits to an extremely affluent and limited segment of the financial services industry.

For the last year for which data is available only 28 filers used this credit.^[9]

This reform was recommended by the Solomon/McCall Tax Reform and Fairness Commission and was also proposed by Governor Cuomo in January 2014.^[10]

Problem: Luxury Manhattan apartment owners from out of state or overseas that don’t live in their multi-million-dollar condos but still get special tax breaks

This reform gives pied-a-terre owners a choice: live full-time in your apartments and get tax breaks, or don’t live in them full-time and give up the breaks.

If each of the roughly 90,000 absentee-owner units in New York City were assigned a very modest average market value of $1.5 million each and a current tax assessment that – with 421a benefits, phase-in caps and improper assessments – equals about one-quarter of the real market value of the unit.^[11]

With these assumptions, a 1.1 per cent tax rate on true market value would produce more than $900 million in new city revenues annually.

The Fiscal Policy Institute, using a similar analysis, has recommended that New York City introduce a graduated 4 percent tax based on comparable sales for all absentee-owner units with a market value of more than $5 million; that proposal, which would concentrate the tax burden on units worth more than $25 million, would bring in an estimated $250 million in new revenue every year.^[12]

The state STAR program recently instituted a similar ban on tax breaks for second homes.

FAIR-SHARE REVENUE OPTIONS WOULD ENSURE HEDGE FUNDS DON’T DODGE TAXES AND FULLY FUND OUR PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM

Fair-share taxes and fees targeting hedge funds, billionaires, high-income LLCs and tax-dodging big corporations can raise between $3.1 and $4.2 billion dollars per year — more than enough to pay for complete compliance with the Campaign for Fiscal Equitss (“CFE”) decision, ensuring fair funding for all public schools.

Lawmakers should move forward with enough of the fair-share revenue options outlined in this report to ensure that this year’s state budget includes $2.2 billion in new school aid to comply with CFE and pay down Gap Elimination Adjustment arrears.

CLOSE HEDGE FUND TAX LOOPHOLES

- Repatriate New York State Share of Tax Revenue Lost to Federal Carried Interest Loophole: $100 million
- Tax Nonresident Hedge Fund Management Fees: $50 million
- Eliminate the Carried Interest Exemption under New York City’s Unincorporated Business Tax: $200 million

These initiatives close the “carried interest loophole” that lets hedge funds making billions in profits pay less in taxes than small businesses in our local communities, and assure that hedge fund managers working in New York but living elsewhere pay their fair share of taxes.

INSIST ON MINIMUM FAIR-SHARE TAXES FROM HEDGE FUNDS AND BIG CORPORATIONS

- Restore the Capital Base Alternative Tax (“Corporate Minimum Tax”) to the Corporate Franchise Tax: $500-$700 million
- Update LLC filing fees (applies to LLCs & non-LLC partnerships): $500 million
- Repeal the Financial Services Investment Tax Credit: $30 million

These initiatives assure that high-income LLCs, Wall Street and big businesses pay their fair share, while protecting local small businesses in our communities.

ENSURE THE SUPER-RICH PAY THEIR FAIR SHARE

- New top brackets on Personal Income Tax (PIT) 11% at $10M: up to $1.7 billion

- Close the Pied-a-terre Tax Abatement Loophole: $250-$900 million
- Helicopter Commuter Tax: $10 million

These initiatives ensure that billionaires and multi-millionaires pay their fair share of taxes, and close property tax loopholes benefitting the absentee owners of luxury Manhattan condominiums.

From: Sevillia, Max
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; "Neal Kwatra"; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell; Stephanie Yazgi; Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits
Date: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 3:30:24 PM
Attachments: Boston INTERNAL Annotated Agenda.docx

Per my conversation with Gabe and Avi, here is an edited agenda. Main changes include,

- Assumes that Sec Perez is attending, since we are extending an invite to him.
- Based on previous feedback from MBDB, recognizes that we can't engage a Secretary, a DOT Under-Secretary, and Sen. Warren, and dive into meaningful conversation about transportation and housing all in one morning. Instead, I propose we welcome outside speakers and address transportation in the am, then break for lunch and the press conference, and in the pm come back for the housing discussion.
- On transportation, we want the outcome to be that we support GROWING THE FUNDING PIE. This is a message that we need to push equally as hard with Ds and Rs to succeed.

I also enclosed the Commitment to Action additions and the most current list of participants.

Please send me your edits and suggestions asap so that I can engage Boston on our vision for the Summit.

Thanks,

Max

Cities of Opportunity Boston Summit

March 22, 2015

SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

7:00pm – 8:30pm

Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)

Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

Remarks:

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston

Host

Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City

Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

8:30pm – 9:30 pm
roundtable

Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation

Location TBD

Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler April)

March 23, 2015

Omni Parker House Hotel

8:00 AM – 8:45AM

Working breakfast

Mayor Walsh introduces Secretary Perez
Remarks by Secretary Perez (invited)
Open it up for Q&A

8:45 AM – 8:50 AM

Opening remarks

Mayor Walsh to do opening remarks, and welcome mayors to Boston

8:50 AM – 10:00 AM

Federal Transportation

- Mayor de Blasio introduces DOT representative
 - MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX (THOROUGH NYCDOT) TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS
 - MDB'S SUITE OF SBS PROJECTS AS REFERENCED IN STATE OF THE CITY
- USDOT speaks about urgent need to pass long-term (6-year) transportation bill with increased funding. USDOT to touch on local impact of federal transportation funding, transportation as a ladder of opportunity to social and economic empowerment, and the need to increase the federal commitment to address local and regional needs. Discuss in terms of inequality.

- We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. If Foxx can't make it, we will have a proxy (likely Undersecretary) in his place.
- Open it up for Q&A
- War Room of Mayors: What we mayors can do TO GROW THE PIE– Strategic discussion about how to best involve mayors to pressure Congress to act.
 - FLAT FUNDING WOULD BE A DISASTER FOR NYC AND OTHER MUNICIPALITIES. 6 YEAR FLAT REAUTHORIZATION IS INADEQUATE TO MEET CITY NEEDS (WOULD MEAN 13 YEARS TO ALMOST NO FUNDING GROWTH WHILE DEMANDS ON THE SYSTEM HAVE GROWN)
 - MBDB will be prepare to discuss strategy to support Democrats who want more money so that Caucus adopts that position, and need to seek bipartisanship/consensus for Republican Congressional leadership to act.
 - Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorization
 - Local days of action – call on Members of Congress to grow the pie and a long term reauthorization - generate local press
 - Easy to start by organizing letter to House and Senate and amplify with press.
 - Create opportunities for mayors to give Congressional testimony
 - Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
 - Engaging building trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort
 - Engaging contractors for same
 - Engaging clergy and faith-based organizations to join lobbying efforts
 - Coordinate efforts with other stakeholder organizations currently lobbying in support of the reauthorization, where messages align – other local leaders organizations, health and business community, etc.

Notes: USDOT official will underscore Mayor de Blasio's message that cities matter and mayor's voices are critical on this pressing issue for the nation. They will also talk about the Administration's GROW AMERICA transportation reauthorization proposal, his Ladders of Opportunity approach, and the , Mayors Challenge for Safer People, Safer Streets,, and local hire initiative that they're promoting.

Goals: USDOT about opportunities to use transportation investment as a tool to address inequality and engage mayors on the importance and urgency of reauthorizing the transportation bill with increased federal funding. To activate and organize mayors to influence Congress to support the transportation interests of municipalities by growing the pie.

10:00 AM – 10:45 AM

Transportation – Access to Opportunity

Mayor de Blasio to lead structured discussion around affordability and transportation– Mayors are prepped to be called on.

1. MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
 - MBDB to highlight our Select Bus Service investments and 5 borough ferry plan and from State of the City address
 - MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials
 - Mayor Becker of Salt Lake City ; may mention transit investments in his city and broad need for transportation options for cities across the country, from his experience as NLC President.
 - 1-2 others TBD
 - Open up for discussion

Mayor de Blasio closes

Goals: To create a sense of shared commitment to focusing local efforts on ways to address inequality and affordability through transportation improvements. Mayors will learn from each other’s experiences about learn about innovative strategies that create access to opportunity, for example NYC Select Bus Service strategic investments.

10:45 AM – 11:45 AM

Remarks and Dialogue

Mayor Walsh introduces THE HONORABLE ELIZABETH WARREN

Senator Warren makes remarks

Mayor Walsh Opens it up to Q&A

11:45 AM – 12:30 PM

Lunch

Optional time for one-on-one meetings

11:45pm – 12:05pm Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:30 PM – 1:30 PM

Press Conference

MBDB, and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

Goals: To add the important voice of mayors to the national debate around Transportation Reauthorization, and more specifically to build momentum around the critical position that Congress must GROW THE PIE to meet urgent municipal needs.

1:30 PM – 3 PM

Affordable Housing –Strategies and Resources for Ensuring Access and Equity

Mayor Walsh to lead structured discussion about keeping and building affordable housing – Mayors are prepped to be called on.

- Mayor XX; may mention YY
- Open up for discussion

Mayor de Walsh closes and announces adjournment

Note: We need to find a role for Mayor Warren who chairs USCM's Housing Task Force

Goals: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

3 PM
Adjourn

I've included these in a draft Commitment to Action with housing and transportation added.

Transportation:

- Safe Streets for All: Commit to adopt a comprehensive policy that safeguards lives of pedestrians and bicyclists through improvements such as safety investments on the ground, enforcement policies, traffic safety education, and legislative action.
- Access to Opportunity: Improve access to jobs, schools, and community resources through supporting public transit connections in communities with limited transportation options, including low income communities, seniors, youth, and communities of color. In addition, support workforce development opportunities in these communities to create a pipeline to good transportation jobs via partnerships.

Housing:

- Make affordable housing policies work for all city residents: Work to broaden the range of residents who benefit from affordable housing programs to include both the lowest-income residents and middle-income workers who increasingly struggle to afford residing in our cities. For example, in conjunction with finance partners such as local and state housing finance agencies, cities can develop finance programs or mechanisms that allow for a broader range (both lower income and middle-income workers) to have access to city-supported affordable housing.
- Supportive housing: Cities should commit to creating more supportive housing for people with disabilities and histories of homelessness. Partnerships with States to fund supportive services and exploring whether Medicaid costs currently borne by the State can be reduced by investing in supportive housing. Cities can also work with their local housing authority to make a greater commitment of Section 8 vouchers available, upon turnover, to homeless families. Another locally-controlled initiative to improve housing affordability.

In support of the above efforts, we also agree to work together to achieve federal action on:

- Nationwide minimum wage increase: Support increasing the federal minimum wage.

- Funding Commitments for early childhood education: Advocate for existing federal programs that support early childhood education.
- Nationwide universal pre-kindergarten: Support expanded access to high-quality early childhood education for children across the nation.
- Broadband advocacy and initiative: Advocate for federal programs and initiatives that bolster technological innovation, and accelerate and diversify the workforce pipeline in technology for low-income individuals and people of color.
- Housing — Local leadership and flexibility: Support increasing flexibility for local governments/mayors to target resources to meet the most pressing needs. This includes supporting LIHTC income averaging to meet needs of families often left out of traditional federal housing supports, like very low income and middle income families.
- Local Affordable Housing Trust Fund: Support increasing dedicated funding for the National Housing Trust Fund to directly provide communities with critical funds to build, preserve, and rehabilitate housing for those residents most in need.
- Federal housing support for our residents: Support federal funding for affordable housing in our cities, including funding for public housing authorities, Section 8 and McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Grants.
- Transportation – Local Vision, Local Accountability: Support federal grant programs and policy changes that give cities and regions direct access to federal funding along with increased accountability. Decisions about transportation investments should be informed by those that know their areas the best, local leaders.
- National Transportation Investments: Advocate for growing federal transportation investments that connect people to jobs and opportunity, including increased public transportation funding in federal appropriations and surface transportation reauthorization. Invest in transit, specifically, with a focus on underserved communities.
- Safeguarding Lives/Nationwide Vision Zero: Support dedicated federal funding for Vision Zero improvements that provides resources directly to cities so they can efficiently implement needed safety improvements.

Here is the latest list of registered mayors:

Name	City, State
JAVIER GONZALES	Santa Fe, NM
SETTI WARREN	Newton, MA
ED PAWLOWSKI	Allentown , PA
PAUL SOGLIN	Madison, WI
STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE	Baltimore, MD
JORGE ELORZA	Providence, RI

NAN WHALEY	Dayton, OH
T.M. FRANKLIN COWNIE	Des Moines, IA
MICHAEL BRENNAN	Portland, ME
BILL FINCH	Bridgeport, CT
EDWARD MURRAY	Seattle, WA
CARLO DEMARIA	Everett, MA
DANIEL RIVERA	Lawrence, MA
KEVIN DUMAS	Attleboro, MA
BILL CARPENTER	Brockton , MA
JOSEPH SULLIVAN	Braintree, MA
STEVE ADLER	Austin, TX
BILL DE BLASIO	New York, NY
MITCHELL LANDRIEU	New Orleans, LA
DONNA HOLADAY	Newburyport, MA
RALPH BECKER	Salt Lake City, UT
MARILYN STRICKLAND	Tacoma, WA
MARTI WALSH	Boston, MA

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 1:14 PM
To: 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED]) Stephanie Yazgi
([REDACTED]) Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi; Sevilla, Max
Subject: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

7:00pm – 8:30pm

Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)
Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

8:30pm – 9:30 pm

Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation roundtable

Location TBD

Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS, John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler, April)

MONDAY, MARCH 23

Cities of Opportunity Task Force Meeting

Omni Parker House Hotel

7:30 a.m. – 8:30 a.m.

Breakfast Available

8:30 a.m. - 10:45 a.m.

Working Session

STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City
Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston
Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

TRANSPORTATION (MBDB will lean into this and facilitate discussion)

Goals: Give path to Mayors to push for Re-Authorization, Frame Issue Around Access to Opportunity

1. Full Funding For Transportation Bill is important for Cities
 - MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS
 - US Government expert lays out impact of reauthorization to Mayors
 - We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. We are getting Assistant Secretary in his place regardless and possibly Sec of Labor to discuss jobs that come with reauthorization
2. Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorizing
 - We recommend letter we will get signatures on that we will send to House and Senate leaders Boehner and Reid and do press on.

3. Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
 - Engaging Building Trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort
 - Engaging Contractors for same
 - Engaging Clergy and Organizations of Faith to join lobbying efforts
4. MBDB will ask every Mayor in room to each develop lists of members of the house and Senate they can effectively lobby, especially Republicans
5. MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
 - MBDB to highlight our 5 boro ferry plan and Bus Rapid Transit investments from State of the City address
 - MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials

HOUSING (to be led by Mayor Walsh)

Goal: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

10:45am - 11:45am

Remarks and Dialogue
SENATOR ELIZABETH WARREN

11:45pm – 12:05pm

Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:15pm – 1:15pm

Press Conference – MBDB, Sen. Warren, Secretary Foxx/Sec Perez and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

NOTE: IF WE DON'T HAVE SECRETARY FOXX WE WILL TRY AND HAVE SECRETARY OF LABOR FOR THIS

1:30pm – 2:30pm

Working Luncheon

Goals: Effectively debrief with Mayors on presser and action items moving forward

3:00pm

Adjourn

Cities of Opportunity Boston Summit

March 22, 2015

SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

7:00pm – 8:30pm

Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)

Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

Remarks:

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston

Host

Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City

Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

8:30pm – 9:30 pm

Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation

roundtable

Location TBD

Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler April)

March 23, 2015

Omni Parker House Hotel

8:00 AM – 8:45AM

Working breakfast

Mayor Walsh introduces Secretary Perez

Remarks by Secretary Perez (invited)

Open it up for Q&A

8:45 AM – 8:50 AM

Opening remarks

Mayor Walsh to do opening remarks, and welcome mayors to Boston

8:50 AM – 10:00 AM

Federal Transportation

- Mayor de Blasio introduces DOT representative
 - MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX (THOROUGH NYCDOT) TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS
 - MDB’S SUITE OF SBS PROJECTS AS REFERENCED IN STATE OF THE CITY
- USDOT speaks about urgent need to pass long-term (6-year) transportation bill with increased funding. USDOT to touch on local impact of federal transportation funding, transportation as a ladder of opportunity to social and economic empowerment, and the need to increase the federal commitment to address local and regional needs. Discuss in terms of inequality.
 - We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. If Foxx can’t make it, we will have a proxy (likely Undersecretary) in his place.
- Open it up for Q&A
- War Room of Mayors: What we mayors can do TO GROW THE PIE– Strategic discussion about how to best involve mayors to pressure Congress to act.
 - FLAT FUNDING WOULD BE A DISASTER FOR NYC AND OTHER MUNICIPALITIES. 6 YEAR FLAT REAUTHORIZATION IS INADEQUATE TO MEET CITY NEEDS (WOULD MEAN 13 YEARS TO ALMOST NO FUNDING GROWTH WHILE DEMANDS ON THE SYSTEM HAVE GROWN)
 - MBDB will be prepare to discuss strategy to support Democrats who want more money so that Caucus adopts that position, and need to seek bipartisan/consensus for Republican Congressional leadership to act.
 - Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorization
 - Local days of action – call on Members of Congress to grow the pie and a long term reauthorization - generate local press
 - Easy to start by organizing letter to House and Senate and amplify with press.
 - Create opportunities for mayors to give Congressional testimony
 - Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
 - Engaging building trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort

- Engaging contractors for same
- Engaging clergy and faith-based organizations to join lobbying efforts
- Coordinate efforts with other stakeholder organizations currently lobbying in support of the reauthorization, where messages align – other local leaders organizations, health and business community, etc.

Notes: USDOT official will underscore Mayor de Blasio’s message that cities matter and mayor’s voices are critical on this pressing issue for the nation. They will also talk about the Administration’s GROW AMERICA transportation reauthorization proposal, his Ladders of Opportunity approach, and the , Mayors Challenge for Safer People, Safer Streets,, and local hire initiative that they’re promoting.

Goals: USDOT about opportunities to use transportation investment as a tool to address inequality and engage mayors on the importance and urgency of reauthorizing the transportation bill with increased federal funding. To activate and organize mayors to influence Congress to support the transportation interests of municipalities by growing the pie.

10:00 AM – 10:45 AM

Transportation – Access to Opportunity

Mayor de Blasio to lead structured discussion around affordability and transportation– Mayors are prepped to be called on.

- MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
- MBDB to highlight our Select Bus Service investments and 5 borough ferry plan and from State of the City address
- MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials
 - Mayor Becker of Salt Lake City ; may mention transit investments in his city and broad need for transportation options for cities across the country, from his experience as NLC President.
 - 1-2 others TBD
 - Open up for discussion

Mayor de Blasio closes

Goals: To create a sense of shared commitment to focusing local efforts on ways to address inequality and affordability through transportation improvements. Mayors will learn from each other’s experiences about learn about innovative strategies that create access to opportunity, for example NYC Select Bus Service strategic investments.

10:45 AM – 11:45 AM

Remarks and Dialogue

Mayor Walsh introduces THE HONORABLE ELIZABETH WARREN
Senator Warren makes remarks

Mayor Walsh Opens it up to Q&A

11:45 AM – 12:30 PM

Lunch

Optional time for one-on-one meetings

11:45pm – 12:05pm

Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:30 PM – 1:30 PM

Press Conference

MBDB, and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

Goals: To add the important voice of mayors to the national debate around Transportation Reauthorization, and more specifically to build momentum around the critical position that Congress must GROW THE PIE to meet urgent municipal needs.

1:30 PM – 3 PM

Affordable Housing –Strategies and Resources for Ensuring Access and Equity

Mayor Walsh to lead structured discussion about keeping and building affordable housing – Mayors are prepped to be called on.

- Mayor XX; may mention YY
- Open up for discussion

Mayor de Walsh closes and announces adjournment

Note: We need to find a role for Mayor Warren who chairs USCM's Housing Task Force

Goals: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

3 PM

Adjourn

I've included these in a draft Commitment to Action with housing and transportation added.

Transportation:

- Safe Streets for All: Commit to adopt a comprehensive policy that safeguards lives of pedestrians and bicyclists through improvements such as safety investments on the ground, enforcement policies, traffic safety education, and legislative action.

- Access to Opportunity: Improve access to jobs, schools, and community resources through supporting public transit connections in communities with limited transportation options, including low income communities, seniors, youth, and communities of color. In addition, support workforce development opportunities in these communities to create a pipeline to good transportation jobs via partnerships.

Housing:

- Make affordable housing policies work for all city residents: Work to broaden the range of residents who benefit from affordable housing programs to include both the lowest-income residents and middle-income workers who increasingly struggle to afford residing in our cities. For example, in conjunction with finance partners such as local and state housing finance agencies, cities can develop finance programs or mechanisms that allow for a broader range (both lower income and middle-income workers) to have access to city-supported affordable housing.
- Supportive housing: Cities should commit to creating more supportive housing for people with disabilities and histories of homelessness. Partnerships with States to fund supportive services and exploring whether Medicaid costs currently borne by the State can be reduced by investing in supportive housing. Cities can also work with their local housing authority to make a greater commitment of Section 8 vouchers available, upon turnover, to homeless families. Another locally-controlled initiative to improve housing affordability.

In support of the above efforts, we also agree to work together to achieve federal action on:

- Nationwide minimum wage increase: Support increasing the federal minimum wage.
- Funding Commitments for early childhood education: Advocate for existing federal programs that support early childhood education.
- Nationwide universal pre-kindergarten: Support expanded access to high-quality early childhood education for children across the nation.
- Broadband advocacy and initiative: Advocate for federal programs and initiatives that bolster technological innovation, and accelerate and diversify the workforce pipeline in technology for low-income individuals and people of color.
- Housing — Local leadership and flexibility: Support increasing flexibility for local governments/mayors to target resources to meet the most pressing needs. This includes supporting LIHTC income averaging to meet needs of families often left out of traditional federal housing supports, like very low income and middle income families.
- Local Affordable Housing Trust Fund: Support increasing dedicated funding for the National Housing Trust Fund to directly provide communities with critical funds to build, preserve, and rehabilitate housing for those residents most in need.
- Federal housing support for our residents: Support federal funding for affordable housing in our cities, including funding for public housing authorities, Section 8 and McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Grants.
- Transportation – Local Vision, Local Accountability: Support federal grant programs and policy changes that give cities and regions direct access to federal funding along with increased accountability. Decisions about transportation

Cities of Opportunity Boston Summit _ Annotated Agenda

- investments should be informed by those that know their areas the best, local leaders.
- National Transportation Investments: Advocate for growing federal transportation investments that connect people to jobs and opportunity, including increased public transportation funding in federal appropriations and surface transportation reauthorization. Invest in transit, specifically, with a focus on underserved communities.
 - Safeguarding Lives/Nationwide Vision Zero: Support dedicated federal funding for Vision Zero improvements that provides resources directly to cities so they can efficiently implement needed safety improvements.

Here is the latest list of registered mayors:

Name	City, State
JAVIER GONZALES	Santa Fe, NM
SETTI WARREN	Newton, MA
ED PAWLOWSKI	Allentown , PA
PAUL SOGLIN	Madison, WI
STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE	Baltimore, MD
JORGE ELORZA	Providence, RI
NAN WHALEY	Dayton, OH
T.M. FRANKLIN COWNIE	Des Moines, IA
MICHAEL BRENNAN	Portland, ME
BILL FINCH	Bridgeport, CT
EDWARD MURRAY	Seattle, WA
CARLO DEMARIA	Everett, MA
DANIEL RIVERA	Lawrence, MA
KEVIN DUMAS	Attleboro, MA
BILL CARPENTER	Brockton , MA
JOSEPH SULLIVAN	Braintree, MA

Cities of Opportunity Boston Summit _ Annotated Agenda

STEVE ADLER	Austin, TX
BILL DE BLASIO	New York, NY
MITCHELL LANDRIEU	New Orleans, LA
DONNA HOLADAY	Newburyport, MA
RALPH BECKER	Salt Lake City, UT
MARILYN STRICKLAND	Tacoma, WA
MARTI WALSH	Boston, MA

From: Sevillia, Max
To: Fink, Avi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; "Neal Kwatra"; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED]); Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]); Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits
Date: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 4:30:00 PM

Excellent points.

- 1) We have not found an action goal for housing that is as clear as that for Transportation. We suggest we use this 1 ½ hr conversation on housing to bring attention to the need for affordable housing around the country, and build a sense of momentum around the work that some mayors are doing to turn address the problem. NYC’s housing plan and initiatives are great examples to share, and other cities also have best practices. This said, we are waiting to hear from Boston about their goals. Just know, there is a lot of push and support from many participating cities re housing needs.
- 2) The Commitment to action is probably not going to be the right vehicle for identifying organizing activities. We could replicate the Count On Me document we prepared for the Immigration Summit. On the other hand, the Commitment to action has been critical to determining the four corners of the work we do as a Task Force, so that we have clear goals in mind. We suggest that we expand the Commitment to Action under the radar and without bringing too much attention to it, unlike last time.

From: Fink, Avi
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 4:15 PM
To: Sevillia, Max; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED]); Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]); Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

Agree with these edits with just 2 concerns.

- 1) Want to make sure we have executable and clear plan for the housing portion of the work group – our goal as stated is for MBDB to share with other mayors all we’ve been doing on affordable housing – investments, rezonings, tenant protection – but no real organizing or action goal. Will Boston supply that goal and share it with us if they are taking lead on this portion?
- 2) Commitment to action – want to make sure that our action items aren’t just adding things/names to this list, but that we pump up and highlight the organizing efforts we can run metrics and progress on regarding transpo – sign on letter to congress, unions and contractors who’ve taken action talking to their congressmembers, etc – stating the obvious this doesn’t preclude us from expanding our commitment to action, but that should not be our product.

From: Sevilla, Max
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 3:30 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED])
Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]) Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

Per my conversation with Gabe and Avi, here is an edited agenda. Main changes include,

- Assumes that Sec Perez is attending, since we are extending an invite to him.
- Based on previous feedback from MBDB, recognizes that we can't engage a Secretary, a DOT Under-Secretary, and Sen. Warren, and dive into meaningful conversation about transportation and housing all in one morning. Instead, I propose we welcome outside speakers and address transportation in the am, then break for lunch and the press conference, and in the pm come back for the housing discussion.
- On transportation, we want the outcome to be that we support GROWING THE FUNDING PIE. This is a message that we need to push equally as hard with Ds and Rs to succeed.

I also enclosed the Commitment to Action additions and the most current list of participants.

Please send me your edits and suggestions asap so that I can engage Boston on our vision for the Summit.

Thanks,

Max

Cities of Opportunity Boston Summit

-
March 22, 2015

-
SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

7:00pm – 8:30pm

Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)

Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

Remarks:

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston

Host

Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City

Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

8:30pm – 9:30 pm
roundtable

Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation

Location TBD

Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler April)

March 23, 2015

Omni Parker House Hotel

8:00 AM – 8:45AM

Working breakfast

Mayor Walsh introduces Secretary Perez

Remarks by Secretary Perez (invited)

Open it up for Q&A

8:45 AM – 8:50 AM

Opening remarks

Mayor Walsh to do opening remarks, and welcome mayors to Boston

8:50 AM – 10:00 AM

Federal Transportation

- Mayor de Blasio introduces DOT representative
 - MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX (THOROUGH NYCDOT) TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS
 - MDB'S SUITE OF SBS PROJECTS AS REFERENCED IN STATE OF THE CITY
- USDOT speaks about urgent need to pass long-term (6-year) transportation bill with increased funding. USDOT to touch on local impact of federal transportation funding, transportation as a ladder of opportunity to social and economic empowerment, and the need to increase the federal commitment to address local and regional needs. Discuss in terms of inequality.

- We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. If Foxx can't make it, we will have a proxy (likely Undersecretary) in his place.
- Open it up for Q&A
- War Room of Mayors: What we mayors can do TO GROW THE PIE– Strategic discussion about how to best involve mayors to pressure Congress to act.
 - FLAT FUNDING WOULD BE A DISASTER FOR NYC AND OTHER MUNICIPALITIES. 6 YEAR FLAT REAUTHORIZATION IS INADEQUATE TO MEET CITY NEEDS (WOULD MEAN 13 YEARS TO ALMOST NO FUNDING GROWTH WHILE DEMANDS ON THE SYSTEM HAVE GROWN)
 - MBDB will be prepare to discuss strategy to support Democrats who want more money so that Caucus adopts that position, and need to seek bipartisanship/consensus for Republican Congressional leadership to act.
 - Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorization
 - Local days of action – call on Members of Congress to grow the pie and a long term reauthorization - generate local press
 - Easy to start by organizing letter to House and Senate and amplify with press.
 - Create opportunities for mayors to give Congressional testimony
 - Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
 - Engaging building trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort
 - Engaging contractors for same
 - Engaging clergy and faith-based organizations to join lobbying efforts
 - Coordinate efforts with other stakeholder organizations currently lobbying in support of the reauthorization, where messages align – other local leaders organizations, health and business community, etc.

Notes: USDOT official will underscore Mayor de Blasio's message that cities matter and mayor's voices are critical on this pressing issue for the nation. They will also talk about the Administration's GROW AMERICA transportation reauthorization proposal, his Ladders of Opportunity approach, and the , Mayors Challenge for Safer People, Safer Streets,, and local hire initiative that they're promoting.

Goals: USDOT about opportunities to use transportation investment as a tool to address inequality and engage mayors on the importance and urgency of reauthorizing the transportation bill with increased federal funding. To activate and organize mayors to influence Congress to support the transportation interests of municipalities by growing the pie.

10:00 AM – 10:45 AM

Transportation – Access to Opportunity

Mayor de Blasio to lead structured discussion around affordability and transportation–
Mayors are prepped to be called on.

1. MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
 - MBDB to highlight our Select Bus Service investments and 5 borough ferry plan and from State of the City address
 - MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials
 - Mayor Becker of Salt Lake City ; may mention transit investments in his city and broad need for transportation options for cities across the country, from his experience as NLC President.
 - 1-2 others TBD
 - Open up for discussion

Mayor de Blasio closes

Goals: To create a sense of shared commitment to focusing local efforts on ways to address inequality and affordability through transportation improvements. Mayors will learn from each other’s experiences about learn about innovative strategies that create access to opportunity, for example NYC Select Bus Service strategic investments.

10:45 AM – 11:45 AM

Remarks and Dialogue

Mayor Walsh introduces THE HONORABLE ELIZABETH WARREN

Senator Warren makes remarks

Mayor Walsh Opens it up to Q&A

11:45 AM – 12:30 PM

Lunch

Optional time for one-on-one meetings

11:45pm – 12:05pm Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:30 PM – 1:30 PM

Press Conference

MBDB, and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

Goals: To add the important voice of mayors to the national debate around Transportation Reauthorization, and more specifically to build momentum around the critical position that Congress must GROW THE PIE to meet urgent municipal needs.

1:30 PM – 3 PM

Affordable Housing –Strategies and Resources for Ensuring Access and Equity

Mayor Walsh to lead structured discussion about keeping and building affordable housing –
Mayors are prepped to be called on.

- Mayor XX; may mention YY
Open up for discussion

•

Mayor de Walsh closes and announces adjournment

Note: We need to find a role for Mayor Warren who chairs USCM's Housing Task Force

Goals: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

3 PM
Adjourn

I've included these in a draft Commitment to Action with housing and transportation added.

Transportation:

- Safe Streets for All: Commit to adopt a comprehensive policy that safeguards lives of pedestrians and bicyclists through improvements such as safety investments on the ground, enforcement policies, traffic safety education, and legislative action.
- Access to Opportunity: Improve access to jobs, schools, and community resources through supporting public transit connections in communities with limited transportation options, including low income communities, seniors, youth, and communities of color. In addition, support workforce development opportunities in these communities to create a pipeline to good transportation jobs via partnerships.

-

Housing:

- Make affordable housing policies work for all city residents: Work to broaden the range of residents who benefit from affordable housing programs to include both the lowest-income residents and middle-income workers who increasingly struggle to afford residing in our cities. For example, in conjunction with finance partners such as local and state housing finance agencies, cities can develop finance programs or mechanisms that allow for a broader range (both lower income and middle-income workers) to have access to city-supported affordable housing.
- Supportive housing: Cities should commit to creating more supportive housing for people with disabilities and histories of homelessness. Partnerships with States to fund supportive services and exploring whether Medicaid costs currently borne by the State can be reduced by investing in supportive housing. Cities can also work with their local housing authority to make a greater commitment of Section 8 vouchers available, upon turnover, to homeless families. Another locally-controlled initiative to improve housing affordability.

In support of the above efforts, we also agree to work together to achieve federal action on:

- Nationwide minimum wage increase: Support increasing the federal minimum wage.
- Funding Commitments for early childhood education: Advocate for existing federal programs that support early childhood education.
- Nationwide universal pre-kindergarten: Support expanded access to high-quality early childhood education for children across the nation.
- Broadband advocacy and initiative: Advocate for federal programs and initiatives that bolster technological innovation, and accelerate and diversify the workforce pipeline in technology for low-income individuals and people of color.
- Housing — Local leadership and flexibility: Support increasing flexibility for local governments/mayors to target resources to meet the most pressing needs. This includes supporting LIHTC income averaging to meet needs of families often left out of traditional federal housing supports, like very low income and middle income families.
- Local Affordable Housing Trust Fund: Support increasing dedicated funding for the National Housing Trust Fund to directly provide communities with critical funds to build, preserve, and rehabilitate housing for those residents most in need.
- Federal housing support for our residents: Support federal funding for affordable housing in our cities, including funding for public housing authorities, Section 8 and McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Grants.
- Transportation – Local Vision, Local Accountability: Support federal grant programs and policy changes that give cities and regions direct access to federal funding along with increased accountability. Decisions about transportation investments should be informed by those that know their areas the best, local leaders.
- National Transportation Investments: Advocate for growing federal transportation investments that connect people to jobs and opportunity, including increased public transportation funding in federal appropriations and surface transportation reauthorization. Invest in transit, specifically, with a focus on underserved communities.
- Safeguarding Lives/Nationwide Vision Zero: Support dedicated federal funding for Vision Zero improvements that provides resources directly to cities so they can efficiently implement needed safety improvements.

Here is the latest list of registered mayors:

Name	City, State
JAVIER GONZALES	Santa Fe, NM
SETTI WARREN	Newton, MA
ED PAWLOWSKI	Allentown , PA
PAUL SOGLIN	Madison, WI

STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE	Baltimore, MD
JORGE ELORZA	Providence, RI
NAN WHALEY	Dayton, OH
T.M. FRANKLIN COWNIE	Des Moines, IA
MICHAEL BRENNAN	Portland, ME
BILL FINCH	Bridgeport, CT
EDWARD MURRAY	Seattle, WA
CARLO DEMARIA	Everett, MA
DANIEL RIVERA	Lawrence, MA
KEVIN DUMAS	Attleboro, MA
BILL CARPENTER	Brockton , MA
JOSEPH SULLIVAN	Braintree, MA
STEVE ADLER	Austin, TX
BILL DE BLASIO	New York, NY
MITCHELL LANDRIEU	New Orleans, LA
DONNA HOLADAY	Newburyport, MA
RALPH BECKER	Salt Lake City, UT
MARILYN STRICKLAND	Tacoma, WA
MARTI WALSH	Boston, MA

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 1:14 PM
To: 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED]) Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]) Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi; Sevilla, Max
Subject: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

7:00pm – 8:30pm

Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)
Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

8:30pm – 9:30 pm

Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation roundtable
Location TBD

Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS, John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler, April)

MONDAY, MARCH 23

Cities of Opportunity Task Force Meeting

Omni Parker House Hotel

7:30 a.m. – 8:30 a.m.

Breakfast Available

8:30 a.m. - 10:45 a.m.

Working Session

STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City
Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston
Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

TRANSPORTATION (MBDB will lean into this and facilitate discussion)

Goals: Give path to Mayors to push for Re-Authorization, Frame Issue Around Access to Opportunity

1. Full Funding For Transportation Bill is important for Cities
 - MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS
 - US Government expert lays out impact of reauthorization to Mayors
 - We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. We are getting Assistant Secretary in his place regardless and possibly Sec of Labor to discuss jobs that come with reauthorization

2. Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorizing
 - We recommend letter we will get signatures on that we will send to House and Senate leaders Boehner and Reid and do press on.
3. Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
 - Engaging Building Trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort
 - Engaging Contractors for same
 - Engaging Clergy and Organizations of Faith to join lobbying efforts
4. MBDB will ask every Mayor in room to each develop lists of members of the house and Senate they can effectively lobby, especially Republicans
5. MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
 - MBDB to highlight our 5 boro ferry plan and Bus Rapid Transit investments from State of the City address
 - MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials

HOUSING (to be led by Mayor Walsh)

Goal: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

10:45am - 11:45am

Remarks and Dialogue
SENATOR ELIZABETH WARREN

11:45pm – 12:05pm

Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:15pm – 1:15pm

Press Conference – MBDB, Sen. Warren, Secretary Foxx/Sec Perez and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

NOTE: IF WE DON'T HAVE SECRETARY FOXX WE WILL TRY AND HAVE SECRETARY OF LABOR FOR THIS

1:30pm – 2:30pm

Working Luncheon

Goals: Effectively debrief with Mayors on presser and action items moving forward

3:00pm

Adjourn

From: Sevillia, Max
To: Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; "Neal Kwatra"; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell
[\[REDACTED\]](#) Stephanie Yazgi ([\[REDACTED\]](#))
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits
Date: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 4:41:00 PM

Georgia will talk to Polly about it. And we would be happy to edit the call sheet to reflect this ask of Foxx.

From: Wolfe, Emma
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 4:39 PM
To: Sevillia, Max; Fink, Avi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell
[\[REDACTED\]](#) Stephanie Yazgi ([\[REDACTED\]](#))
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

Foxx should help us get a secretary / star from white house to help them move their agenda on transportation if he himself can't come. That's the angle polly should work and that mayor may want to work directly with foxx to make personal appeal. Imo.

From: Sevillia, Max
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 4:36 PM
To: Fink, Avi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell
[\[REDACTED\]](#) Stephanie Yazgi ([\[REDACTED\]](#)) Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

FYI, Sec. Perez is not available to attend the Summit. Instead, DOL is offering that the Deputy Secretary participate. Maybe we ask him to join us on Sunday?

Do we want to reach out to Sec. Castro? Or Sen. Sanders or Schumer? Other ideas?

From: Fink, Avi
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 4:15 PM
To: Sevillia, Max; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell
[\[REDACTED\]](#) Stephanie Yazgi ([\[REDACTED\]](#)) Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

Agree with these edits with just 2 concerns.

- 1) Want to make sure we have executable and clear plan for the housing portion of the work group – our goal as stated is for MBDB to share with other mayors all we've been doing on affordable housing – investments, rezonings, tenant protection – but no real organizing or action goal. Will Boston supply that goal and share it with us if they are taking lead on this portion?
- 2) Commitment to action – want to make sure that our action items aren't just adding things/names to this list, but that we pump up and highlight the organizing efforts we can run metrics and progress on regarding transpo – sign on letter to congress, unions and contractors who've taken action talking to their congressmembers, etc – stating the obvious this doesn't preclude us from expanding our commitment to action, but that should not be our product.

From: Sevilla, Max
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 3:30 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED])
Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]) Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

Per my conversation with Gabe and Avi, here is an edited agenda. Main changes include,

- Assumes that Sec Perez is attending, since we are extending an invite to him.
- Based on previous feedback from MBDB, recognizes that we can't engage a Secretary, a DOT Under-Secretary, and Sen. Warren, and dive into meaningful conversation about transportation and housing all in one morning. Instead, I propose we welcome outside speakers and address transportation in the am, then break for lunch and the press conference, and in the pm come back for the housing discussion.
- On transportation, we want the outcome to be that we support GROWING THE FUNDING PIE. This is a message that we need to push equally as hard with Ds and Rs to succeed.

I also enclosed the Commitment to Action additions and the most current list of participants.

Please send me your edits and suggestions asap so that I can engage Boston on our vision for the Summit.

Thanks,

Max

Cities of Opportunity Boston Summit

March 22, 2015

SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

7:00pm – 8:30pm

Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)

Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

Remarks:

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston

Host

Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City
Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

8:30pm – 9:30 pm
roundtable

Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation

Location TBD

Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler April)

-

March 23, 2015

Omni Parker House Hotel

8:00 AM – 8:45AM

Working breakfast

Mayor Walsh introduces Secretary Perez

Remarks by Secretary Perez (invited)

Open it up for Q&A

8:45 AM – 8:50 AM

Opening remarks

Mayor Walsh to do opening remarks, and welcome mayors to Boston

8:50 AM – 10:00 AM

Federal Transportation

- Mayor de Blasio introduces DOT representative
 - MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX (THOROUGH NYCDOT) TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS

• MDB'S SUITE OF SBS PROJECTS AS REFERENCED IN STATE OF THE CITY

- USDOT speaks about urgent need to pass long-term (6-year) transportation bill with increased funding. USDOT to touch on local impact of federal transportation funding, transportation as a ladder of opportunity to social and economic empowerment, and the need to increase the federal commitment to address local and regional needs. Discuss in terms of inequality.
 - We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. If Foxx can't make it, we will have a proxy (likely Undersecretary) in his place.
- Open it up for Q&A
- War Room of Mayors: What we mayors can do TO GROW THE PIE– Strategic discussion about how to best involve mayors to pressure Congress to act.
 - FLAT FUNDING WOULD BE A DISASTER FOR NYC AND OTHER MUNICIPALITIES. 6 YEAR FLAT REAUTHORIZATION IS INADEQUATE TO MEET CITY NEEDS (WOULD MEAN 13 YEARS TO ALMOST NO FUNDING GROWTH WHILE DEMANDS ON THE SYSTEM HAVE GROWN)
 - MBDB will be prepare to discuss strategy to support Democrats who want more money so that Caucus adopts that position, and need to seek bipartisanship/consensus for Republican Congressional leadership to act.
 - Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorization
 - Local days of action – call on Members of Congress to grow the pie and a long term reauthorization - generate local press
 - Easy to start by organizing letter to House and Senate and amplify with press.
 - Create opportunities for mayors to give Congressional testimony
 - Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
 - Engaging building trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort
 - Engaging contractors for same
 - Engaging clergy and faith-based organizations to join lobbying efforts
 - Coordinate efforts with other stakeholder organizations currently lobbying in support of the reauthorization, where messages align – other local leaders organizations, health and business community, etc.

Notes: USDOT official will underscore Mayor de Blasio's message that cities matter and mayor's voices are critical on this pressing issue for the nation. They will also talk about the Administration's GROW AMERICA transportation reauthorization proposal, his Ladders of Opportunity approach, and the , Mayors Challenge for Safer People, Safer Streets,, and local hire initiative that they're promoting.

Goals: USDOT about opportunities to use transportation investment as a tool to address inequality and engage mayors on the importance and urgency of reauthorizing the transportation bill with increased federal funding. To activate and organize mayors to influence Congress to support the transportation interests of municipalities by growing the pie.

10:00 AM – 10:45 AM

Transportation – Access to Opportunity

Mayor de Blasio to lead structured discussion around affordability and transportation– Mayors are prepped to be called on.

1. MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
 - MBDB to highlight our Select Bus Service investments and 5 borough ferry plan and from State of the City address
 - MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials
 - Mayor Becker of Salt Lake City ; may mention transit investments in his city and broad need for transportation options for cities across the country, from his experience as NLC President.
 - 1-2 others TBD
 - Open up for discussion

Mayor de Blasio closes

Goals: To create a sense of shared commitment to focusing local efforts on ways to address inequality and affordability through transportation improvements. Mayors will learn from each other’s experiences about learn about innovative strategies that create access to opportunity, for example NYC Select Bus Service strategic investments.

10:45 AM – 11:45 AM

Remarks and Dialogue

Mayor Walsh introduces THE HONORABLE ELIZABETH WARREN

Senator Warren makes remarks

Mayor Walsh Opens it up to Q&A

11:45 AM – 12:30 PM

Lunch

Optional time for one-on-one meetings

11:45pm – 12:05pm Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:30 PM – 1:30 PM

Press Conference

MBDB, and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

Goals: To add the important voice of mayors to the national debate around Transportation Reauthorization, and more specifically to build momentum around the critical position that Congress must GROW THE PIE to meet urgent municipal needs.

1:30 PM – 3 PM

Affordable Housing –Strategies and Resources for Ensuring Access and Equity

Mayor Walsh to lead structured discussion about keeping and building affordable housing – Mayors are prepped to be called on.

- Mayor XX; may mention YY
- Open up for discussion

Mayor de Walsh closes and announces adjournment

Note: We need to find a role for Mayor Warren who chairs USCM’s Housing Task Force

Goals: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

3 PM
Adjourn

I’ve included these in a draft Commitment to Action with housing and transportation added.

Transportation:

- Safe Streets for All: Commit to adopt a comprehensive policy that safeguards lives of pedestrians and bicyclists through improvements such as safety investments on the ground, enforcement policies, traffic safety education, and legislative action.
- Access to Opportunity: Improve access to jobs, schools, and community resources through supporting public transit connections in communities with limited transportation options, including low income communities, seniors, youth, and communities of color. In addition, support workforce development opportunities in these communities to create a pipeline to good transportation jobs via partnerships.

-

Housing:

- Make affordable housing policies work for all city residents: Work to broaden the range of residents who benefit from affordable housing programs to include both the lowest-income residents and middle-income workers who increasingly struggle to afford residing in our cities. For example, in conjunction with finance partners such as local and state housing finance agencies, cities can develop finance programs or mechanisms that allow for a broader range (both lower income and middle-income workers) to have access to city-supported affordable housing.
- Supportive housing: Cities should commit to creating more supportive housing for people with disabilities and histories of homelessness. Partnerships with States to fund supportive services and exploring whether Medicaid costs currently borne by the State can be reduced by investing in supportive housing. Cities can also work with their local housing authority to make a greater commitment of Section 8 vouchers available, upon turnover, to homeless families. Another locally-controlled initiative to improve housing affordability.

In support of the above efforts, we also agree to work together to achieve federal action on:

- Nationwide minimum wage increase: Support increasing the federal minimum wage.
- Funding Commitments for early childhood education: Advocate for existing federal programs that support early childhood education.
- Nationwide universal pre-kindergarten: Support expanded access to high-quality early childhood education for children across the nation.
- Broadband advocacy and initiative: Advocate for federal programs and initiatives that bolster technological innovation, and accelerate and diversify the workforce pipeline in technology for low-income individuals and people of color.
- Housing — Local leadership and flexibility: Support increasing flexibility for local governments/mayors to target resources to meet the most pressing needs. This includes supporting LIHTC income averaging to meet needs of families often left out of traditional federal housing supports, like very low income and middle income families.
- Local Affordable Housing Trust Fund: Support increasing dedicated funding for the National Housing Trust Fund to directly provide communities with critical funds to build, preserve, and rehabilitate housing for those residents most in need.
- Federal housing support for our residents: Support federal funding for affordable housing in our cities, including funding for public housing authorities, Section 8 and McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Grants.
- Transportation – Local Vision, Local Accountability: Support federal grant programs and policy changes that give cities and regions direct access to federal funding along with increased accountability. Decisions about transportation investments should be informed by those that know their areas the best, local leaders.
- National Transportation Investments: Advocate for growing federal transportation investments that connect people to jobs and opportunity, including increased public transportation funding in federal appropriations and surface transportation reauthorization. Invest in transit, specifically, with a focus on underserved communities.
- Safeguarding Lives/Nationwide Vision Zero: Support dedicated federal funding for Vision Zero improvements that provides resources directly to cities so they can efficiently implement needed safety improvements.

Here is the latest list of registered mayors:

Name	City, State
JAVIER GONZALES	Santa Fe, NM
SETTI WARREN	Newton, MA

ED PAWLOWSKI	Allentown , PA
PAUL SOGLIN	Madison, WI
STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE	Baltimore, MD
JORGE ELORZA	Providence, RI
NAN WHALEY	Dayton, OH
T.M. FRANKLIN COWNIE	Des Moines, IA
MICHAEL BRENNAN	Portland, ME
BILL FINCH	Bridgeport, CT
EDWARD MURRAY	Seattle, WA
CARLO DEMARIA	Everett, MA
DANIEL RIVERA	Lawrence, MA
KEVIN DUMAS	Attleboro, MA
BILL CARPENTER	Brockton , MA
JOSEPH SULLIVAN	Braintree, MA
STEVE ADLER	Austin, TX
BILL DE BLASIO	New York, NY
MITCHELL LANDRIEU	New Orleans, LA
DONNA HOLADAY	Newburyport, MA
RALPH BECKER	Salt Lake City, UT
MARILYN STRICKLAND	Tacoma, WA
MARTI WALSH	Boston, MA

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel

Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 1:14 PM

To: 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED]) Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]) Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi; Sevilla, Max

Subject: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

7:00pm – 8:30pm Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)
Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

8:30pm – 9:30 pm Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation roundtable
Location TBD

Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS, John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler, April)

MONDAY, MARCH 23

Cities of Opportunity Task Force Meeting

Omni Parker House Hotel

7:30 a.m. – 8:30 a.m. Breakfast Available

8:30 a.m. - 10:45 a.m. Working Session
STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City
Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston
Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

TRANSPORTATION (MBDB will lean into this and facilitate discussion)

Goals: Give path to Mayors to push for Re-Authorization, Frame Issue Around Access to Opportunity

1. Full Funding For Transportation Bill is important for Cities
 - MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS
 - US Government expert lays out impact of reauthorization to Mayors

- We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. We are getting Assistant Secretary in his place regardless and possibly Sec of Labor to discuss jobs that come with reauthorization
2. Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorizing
 - We recommend letter we will get signatures on that we will send to House and Senate leaders Boehner and Reid and do press on.
 3. Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
 - Engaging Building Trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort
 - Engaging Contractors for same
 - Engaging Clergy and Organizations of Faith to join lobbying efforts
 4. MBDB will ask every Mayor in room to each develop lists of members of the house and Senate they can effectively lobby, especially Republicans
 5. MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
 - MBDB to highlight our 5 boro ferry plan and Bus Rapid Transit investments from State of the City address
 - MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials

HOUSING (to be led by Mayor Walsh)

Goal: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

10:45am - 11:45am

Remarks and Dialogue
SENATOR ELIZABETH WARREN

11:45pm – 12:05pm

Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:15pm – 1:15pm

Press Conference – MBDB, Sen. Warren, Secretary Foxx/Sec Perez and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

NOTE: IF WE DON'T HAVE SECRETARY FOXX WE WILL TRY AND HAVE SECRETARY OF LABOR FOR THIS

1:30pm – 2:30pm

Working Luncheon

Goals: Effectively debrief with Mayors on presser and action items moving forward

3:00pm

Adjourn

From: Ko, Eunice
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: John, Roxanne
Subject: Re: Toni Morrison
Date: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 8:46:25 PM

No problem!

----- Original Message -----

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 08:38 PM
To: Ko, Eunice
Cc: John, Roxanne
Subject: Re: Toni Morrison

Tx

> On Mar 11, 2015, at 8:29 PM, Ko, Eunice <Eko@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> I gave Elana Toni's assistant's email address. Elana said she passed to JDC.

>

> I don't have a cell number for Toni.

>

> Her assistant's name is Rene R. Boatman <boatman@princeton.edu> and her phone number is [REDACTED]

>

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: John, Roxanne
> Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 8:24 PM
> To: John Del Cecato; Ko, Eunice > Subject: Toni Morrison

>

> Eunice can you send hrcnumber ASAP

>

> Sent from my iPhone

From: Bill de Blasio
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Aaron Pickrell; Jon Fromowitz; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Collaborating
Date: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 10:53:34 PM

And let's do some other events with him to keep building momentum

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Date: Thu, 12 Mar 2015 02:52:21 +0000

To: <[REDACTED]>

Cc: Aaron Pickrell <[REDACTED]> Jon

Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>; Elana

Leopold <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: Collaborating

You got it. And no one is more bummed than me. This guy speaks the TRUTH.

On Mar 11, 2015, at 10:46 PM, Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]> wrote:

Pls make sure I respond to him
Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: "Robert B. REICH" <rreich@berkeley.edu>

Date: Wed, 11 Mar 2015 18:04:27 -0700

To: <[REDACTED]>

Subject: Collaborating

Dear Mr. Mayor,

So sorry I can't join you April 2. Couldn't move my 810-person undergraduate class.

But let's stay in touch and come up with other ways to collaborate.

My biggest concern right now is the Democratic presidential race won't feature the kind of primary contest that excites the base and informs the public about widening inequality of income and wealth and of political power. Such a primary would be good for the country and also good for Hillary. But EW seems dead set against running, and I don't see anyone else on the horizon.

In any event, would enjoy talking with you about any and all of this -- and will let you know when I'm next in the City, in hopes we might have a chance to connect.

Perian sends a big hello.

Bob Reich

From: Blumm, Kate
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Carey, Michael
Subject: RE: Housing sermon
Date: Thursday, March 12, 2015 2:05:08 PM

I'll send you points to hit. BIG anti-displacement narrative here.

-----Original Message-----

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 2:03 PM
To: 'jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com'
Cc: Blumm, Kate; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: Housing sermon

Yes, believe so. I have not actually ever seen him do a sermon

Mpc - is there a sermon format?

----- Original Message -----

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 01:45 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Blumm, Kate; John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Housing sermon

Yeah, can start on that tomorrow. Need a little more info first tho: What are the points we want to hit on those issues? Should this be more of an outline than we usually do for major speeches? Length?

On Mar 12, 2015, at 1:33 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

> Hi,
> We need a stump housing sermon for east new york. JDC told me you could assist. It would talk about housing displacement /tenant issues, zoning.
>
> Could you work on a draft for sat?
>
> Thank you!

From: Sevillia, Max
To: Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; "Neal Kwatra"; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell
[\[REDACTED\]](#) Stephanie Yazgi ([\[REDACTED\]](#))
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits
Date: Thursday, March 12, 2015 3:06:39 PM

Boston agreed with our suggestions. A few points of clarification:

- Staff will engage Mayor Walsh to make outreach calls to colleagues asking them to attend the Summit.
- They had a suggestion re press conference location (I will send under separate cover).
- If MBdB not attending Sunday panel, then they may cancel it. Mayor Walsh may choose to bring this up with MBdB. Note that this is something they worked on with Citi, who is considering awarding us a grant to help run the Task Force.
- Senior staff is engaging Mayor Walsh re Sunday night small group meeting. She suggested that MBdB mention it the next time they speak too.
- Boston is working with Sen Warren on topic of her address. They favored our suggestion that she speak about a progressive urban agenda that focuses on inequality. Also, she is in the Senate Finance committee, with jurisdiction over transportation and housing matters.
- FYI, Boston has not gotten Sen. Warren to agree to participate in the press conference.

From: Wolfe, Emma
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 4:39 PM
To: Sevillia, Max; Fink, Avi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell
[\[REDACTED\]](#) Stephanie Yazgi ([\[REDACTED\]](#))
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

Foxx should help us get a secretary / star from white house to help them move their agenda on transportation if he himself can't come. That's the angle polly should work and that mayor may want to work directly with foxx to make personal appeal. Imo.

From: Sevillia, Max
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 4:36 PM
To: Fink, Avi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell
[\[REDACTED\]](#) Stephanie Yazgi ([\[REDACTED\]](#)) Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

FYI, Sec. Perez is not available to attend the Summit. Instead, DOL is offering that the Deputy Secretary participate. Maybe we ask him to join us on Sunday?

Do we want to reach out to Sec. Castro? Or Sen. Sanders or Schumer? Other ideas?

From: Fink, Avi
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 4:15 PM
To: Sevilla, Max; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell
([REDACTED]) Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]) Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

Agree with these edits with just 2 concerns.

- 1) Want to make sure we have executable and clear plan for the housing portion of the work group – our goal as stated is for MBDB to share with other mayors all we've been doing on affordable housing – investments, rezonings, tenant protection – but no real organizing or action goal. Will Boston supply that goal and share it with us if they are taking lead on this portion?
- 2) Commitment to action – want to make sure that our action items aren't just adding things/names to this list, but that we pump up and highlight the organizing efforts we can run metrics and progress on regarding transpo – sign on letter to congress, unions and contractors who've taken action talking to their congressmembers, etc – stating the obvious this doesn't preclude us from expanding our commitment to action, but that should not be our product.

From: Sevilla, Max
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 3:30 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED])
Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED]) Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi
Cc: Gann, Georgia; McIntyre, Geraldine
Subject: RE: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

Per my conversation with Gabe and Avi, here is an edited agenda. Main changes include,

- Assumes that Sec Perez is attending, since we are extending an invite to him.
- Based on previous feedback from MBDB, recognizes that we can't engage a Secretary, a DOT Under-Secretary, and Sen. Warren, and dive into meaningful conversation about transportation and housing all in one morning. Instead, I propose we welcome outside speakers and address transportation in the am, then break for lunch and the press conference, and in the pm come back for the housing discussion.
- On transportation, we want the outcome to be that we support GROWING THE FUNDING PIE. This is a message that we need to push equally as hard with Ds and Rs to succeed.

I also enclosed the Commitment to Action additions and the most current list of participants.

Please send me your edits and suggestions asap so that I can engage Boston on our vision for the Summit.

Thanks,

Max

Cities of Opportunity Boston Summit

March 22, 2015

SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

7:00pm – 8:30pm

Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)

Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

Remarks:

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston

Host

Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City

Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

8:30pm – 9:30 pm
roundtable

Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation

Location TBD

Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler April)

March 23, 2015

Omni Parker House Hotel

8:00 AM – 8:45AM

Working breakfast

Mayor Walsh introduces Secretary Perez

Remarks by Secretary Perez (invited)

Open it up for Q&A

8:45 AM – 8:50 AM

Opening remarks

Mayor Walsh to do opening remarks, and welcome mayors to Boston

8:50 AM – 10:00 AM

Federal Transportation

- Mayor de Blasio introduces DOT representative
 - MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX (THOROUGH NYCDOT) TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS
 - MDB’S SUITE OF SBS PROJECTS AS REFERENCED IN STATE OF THE CITY
- USDOT speaks about urgent need to pass long-term (6-year) transportation bill with increased funding. USDOT to touch on local impact of federal transportation funding, transportation as a ladder of opportunity to social and economic empowerment, and the need to increase the federal commitment to address local and regional needs. Discuss in terms of inequality.
 - We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. If Foxx can’t make it, we will have a proxy (likely Undersecretary) in his place.
- Open it up for Q&A
- War Room of Mayors: What we mayors can do TO GROW THE PIE– Strategic discussion about how to best involve mayors to pressure Congress to act.
 - FLAT FUNDING WOULD BE A DISASTER FOR NYC AND OTHER MUNICIPALITIES. 6 YEAR FLAT REAUTHORIZATION IS INADEQUATE TO MEET CITY NEEDS (WOULD MEAN 13 YEARS TO ALMOST NO FUNDING GROWTH WHILE DEMANDS ON THE SYSTEM HAVE GROWN)
 - MBDB will be prepare to discuss strategy to support Democrats who want more money so that Caucus adopts that position, and need to seek bipartisanship/consensus for Republican Congressional leadership to act.
 - Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorization
 - Local days of action – call on Members of Congress to grow the pie and a long term reauthorization - generate local press
 - Easy to start by organizing letter to House and Senate and amplify with press.
 - Create opportunities for mayors to give Congressional testimony

- Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
- Engaging building trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort
- Engaging contractors for same
- Engaging clergy and faith-based organizations to join lobbying efforts
- Coordinate efforts with other stakeholder organizations currently lobbying in support of the reauthorization, where messages align – other local leaders organizations, health and business community, etc.

Notes: USDOT official will underscore Mayor de Blasio’s message that cities matter and mayor’s voices are critical on this pressing issue for the nation. They will also talk about the Administration’s GROW AMERICA transportation reauthorization proposal, his Ladders of Opportunity approach, and the , Mayors Challenge for Safer People, Safer Streets,, and local hire initiative that they’re promoting.

Goals: USDOT about opportunities to use transportation investment as a tool to address inequality and engage mayors on the importance and urgency of reauthorizing the transportation bill with increased federal funding. To activate and organize mayors to influence Congress to support the transportation interests of municipalities by growing the pie.

10:00 AM – 10:45 AM

Transportation – Access to Opportunity

Mayor de Blasio to lead structured discussion around affordability and transportation– Mayors are prepped to be called on.

1. MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
 - MBDB to highlight our Select Bus Service investments and 5 borough ferry plan and from State of the City address
 - MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials
 - Mayor Becker of Salt Lake City ; may mention transit investments in his city and broad need for transportation options for cities across the country, from his experience as NLC President.
 - 1-2 others TBD
 - Open up for discussion

Mayor de Blasio closes

Goals: To create a sense of shared commitment to focusing local efforts on ways to address inequality and affordability through transportation improvements. Mayors will learn from each other’s experiences about learn about innovative strategies that create access to opportunity, for example NYC Select Bus Service strategic investments.

10:45 AM – 11:45 AM

Remarks and Dialogue

Mayor Walsh introduces THE HONORABLE ELIZABETH WARREN

Senator Warren makes remarks
Mayor Walsh Opens it up to Q&A

11:45 AM – 12:30 PM

Lunch

Optional time for one-on-one meetings

11:45pm – 12:05pm Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:30 PM – 1:30 PM

Press Conference

MBDB, and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

Goals: To add the important voice of mayors to the national debate around Transportation Reauthorization, and more specifically to build momentum around the critical position that Congress must GROW THE PIE to meet urgent municipal needs.

1:30 PM – 3 PM

Affordable Housing –Strategies and Resources for Ensuring Access and Equity

Mayor Walsh to lead structured discussion about keeping and building affordable housing – Mayors are prepped to be called on.

- Mayor XX; may mention YY
- Open up for discussion

Mayor de Walsh closes and announces adjournment

Note: We need to find a role for Mayor Warren who chairs USCM’s Housing Task Force

Goals: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

3 PM

Adjourn

I’ve included these in a draft Commitment to Action with housing and transportation added.

Transportation:

- Safe Streets for All: Commit to adopt a comprehensive policy that safeguards lives of pedestrians and bicyclists through improvements such as safety investments on the ground, enforcement policies, traffic safety education, and legislative action.
- Access to Opportunity: Improve access to jobs, schools, and community resources through supporting public transit connections in communities with limited transportation options, including low income communities, seniors, youth, and communities of color. In addition, support workforce development opportunities in these communities to create a pipeline to good transportation jobs via partnerships.

Housing:

- Make affordable housing policies work for all city residents: Work to broaden the range of residents who benefit from affordable housing programs to include both the lowest-income residents and middle-income workers who increasingly struggle to afford residing in our cities. For example, in conjunction with finance partners such as local and state housing finance agencies, cities can develop finance programs or mechanisms that allow for a broader range (both lower income and middle-income workers) to have access to city-supported affordable housing.
- Supportive housing: Cities should commit to creating more supportive housing for people with disabilities and histories of homelessness. Partnerships with States to fund supportive services and exploring whether Medicaid costs currently borne by the State can be reduced by investing in supportive housing. Cities can also work with their local housing authority to make a greater commitment of Section 8 vouchers available, upon turnover, to homeless families. Another locally-controlled initiative to improve housing affordability.

In support of the above efforts, we also agree to work together to achieve federal action on:

- Nationwide minimum wage increase: Support increasing the federal minimum wage.
- Funding Commitments for early childhood education: Advocate for existing federal programs that support early childhood education.
- Nationwide universal pre-kindergarten: Support expanded access to high-quality early childhood education for children across the nation.
- Broadband advocacy and initiative: Advocate for federal programs and initiatives that bolster technological innovation, and accelerate and diversify the workforce pipeline in technology for low-income individuals and people of color.
- Housing — Local leadership and flexibility: Support increasing flexibility for local governments/mayors to target resources to meet the most pressing needs. This includes supporting LIHTC income averaging to meet needs of families often left out of traditional federal housing supports, like very low income and middle income families.
- Local Affordable Housing Trust Fund: Support increasing dedicated funding for the National Housing Trust Fund to directly provide communities with critical funds to build, preserve, and rehabilitate housing for those residents most in need.
- Federal housing support for our residents: Support federal funding for affordable housing in our cities, including funding for public housing authorities, Section 8 and McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Grants.
- Transportation – Local Vision, Local Accountability: Support federal grant programs and policy changes that give cities and regions direct access to federal funding along with increased accountability. Decisions about transportation investments should be informed by those that know their areas the best, local leaders.

- National Transportation Investments: Advocate for growing federal transportation investments that connect people to jobs and opportunity, including increased public transportation funding in federal appropriations and surface transportation reauthorization. Invest in transit, specifically, with a focus on underserved communities.
- Safeguarding Lives/Nationwide Vision Zero: Support dedicated federal funding for Vision Zero improvements that provides resources directly to cities so they can efficiently implement needed safety improvements.

Here is the latest list of registered mayors:

Name	City, State
JAVIER GONZALES	Santa Fe, NM
SETTI WARREN	Newton, MA
ED PAWLOWSKI	Allentown , PA
PAUL SOGLIN	Madison, WI
STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE	Baltimore, MD
JORGE ELORZA	Providence, RI
NAN WHALEY	Dayton, OH
T.M. FRANKLIN COWNIE	Des Moines, IA
MICHAEL BRENNAN	Portland, ME
BILL FINCH	Bridgeport, CT
EDWARD MURRAY	Seattle, WA
CARLO DEMARIA	Everett, MA
DANIEL RIVERA	Lawrence, MA
KEVIN DUMAS	Attleboro, MA
BILL CARPENTER	Brockton , MA
JOSEPH SULLIVAN	Braintree, MA
STEVE ADLER	Austin, TX
BILL DE BLASIO	New York, NY

MITCHELL LANDRIEU	New Orleans, LA
DONNA HOLADAY	Newburyport, MA
RALPH BECKER	Salt Lake City, UT
MARILYN STRICKLAND	Tacoma, WA
MARTI WALSH	Boston, MA

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Sent: Wednesday, March 11, 2015 1:14 PM
To: 'Neal Kwatra'; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED] Stephanie Yazgi ([REDACTED] Wolfe, Emma; Fink, Avi; Sevilla, Max
Subject: Boston COO Memo - pls review, send edits

SUNDAY, MARCH 22

Note: MBDB will arrive in Boston during the day and have personal time with family

- 7:00pm – 8:30pm Dinner (All Cities of Opportunities Summit Attendees)
Campus Center, University of Massachusetts

- 8:30pm – 9:30 pm Progressive mayors pull aside / progressive taxation roundtable
Location TBD

Goals: establish record and build foundation with like-minded mayors, promote menu of action items on taxation that can be spent transpo/housing. SY/GSM working on substance with JDC guidance.

ATTENDEES:

- Walsh – Tentative
- Murray – Likely (Chris, CoS)
- Cownie – ?
- Adler – Confirmed (Barbara, Executive Assistant)
- Becker – Unlikely
- Hodges – Confirmed (CoS, John Styles)
- Landrieu – Confirmed (Scheduler, April)

MONDAY, MARCH 23

Cities of Opportunity Task Force Meeting
Omni Parker House Hotel

- 7:30 a.m. – 8:30 a.m. Breakfast Available

- 8:30 a.m. - 10:45 a.m. Working Session
STEPHANIE RAWLINGS-BLAKE, Mayor of Baltimore

BILL de BLASIO, Mayor of New York City
Chair, Cities of Opportunity Task Force

MARTIN J. WALSH, Mayor of Boston
Vice Chair, Cities of Opportunities Task Force

TOM COCHRAN, CEO and Executive Director

TRANSPORTATION (MBDB will lean into this and facilitate discussion)

Goals: Give path to Mayors to push for Re-Authorization, Frame Issue Around Access to Opportunity

1. Full Funding For Transportation Bill is important for Cities
 - MBDB has big transportation projects in the Tri State Area that are important for NYC
 - MAX TO SUPPLY EXAMPLES – JDC SUGGESTS LOOKING AT GATEWAY PROJECT AS SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT, KWATRA FLAG THIS HAS ALBANY IMPLICATIONS
 - US Government expert lays out impact of reauthorization to Mayors
 - We hope to have Secretary Foxx but will be game-time decision because of his health. We are getting Assistant Secretary in his place regardless and possibly Sec of Labor to discuss jobs that come with reauthorization
2. Propose joint action by mayors to collectively lobby congress on reauthorizing
 - We recommend letter we will get signatures on that we will send to House and Senate leaders Boehner and Reid and do press on.
3. Share organizing tool-kit with mayors
 - Engaging Building Trades locally and nationally to joint lobbying effort
 - Engaging Contractors for same
 - Engaging Clergy and Organizations of Faith to join lobbying efforts
4. MBDB will ask every Mayor in room to each develop lists of members of the house and Senate they can effectively lobby, especially Republicans
5. MBDB to argue to other mayors that affordability cannot be tackled by focusing on housing alone – transportation that connects middle and working class people from home to jobs is crucial
 - MBDB to highlight our 5 boro ferry plan and Bus Rapid Transit investments from State of the City address
 - MBDB to highlight work 2-3 other Mayors are doing with similar type projects, Federal affairs working on research for these materials

HOUSING (to be led by Mayor Walsh)

Goal: Mayor to share with other Mayors the affordable housing work we are doing in NYC and the traps we are learning to avoid

- The investment requirement in budgets to preserve and build more affordable housing
- The sensitivity of re-zonings in local neighborhoods
- The importance of calling out gentrification and investing in legal aid and tenant protection

10:45am - 11:45am

Remarks and Dialogue
SENATOR ELIZABETH WARREN

11:45pm – 12:05pm

Pull-aside with Sen. Warren

12:15pm – 1:15pm

Press Conference – MBDB, Sen. Warren, Secretary
Foxx/Sec Perez and Mayors calling for reauthorization and discussing joint organizing efforts

NOTE: IF WE DON'T HAVE SECRETARY
FOXX WE WILL TRY AND HAVE SECRETARY OF LABOR FOR THIS

1:30pm – 2:30pm

Working Luncheon

Goals: Effectively debrief with Mayors on presser and action items moving forward

3:00pm

Adjourn

From: John Del Cecato
To: Jon Fromowitz
Cc: Blumm, Kate; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: Housing sermon
Date: Thursday, March 12, 2015 7:18:07 PM

Predatory landlords pushing people out, right?

> On Mar 12, 2015, at 7:16 PM, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

>

> minus MPC

>

> Flagging that I need details on this to get started. Format is fine (I have recent outlines to work off of) but need to know more about what we want to say. By displacement, we mean people getting priced out?

>

>> On Mar 12, 2015, at 3:11 PM, Blumm, Kate <KBlumm@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>> Are we at St. Rita's for this?

>>

>> -----Original Message-----

>> From: Carey, Michael

>> Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 2:19 PM

>> To: Hagelgans, Andrea

>> Cc: jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com; Blumm, Kate; jfdc@akpdmedia.com

>> Subject: Re: Housing sermon

>>

>> Same as he does his remarks every day. Outline bullets.

>>

>>

>> Michael Paul Carey

>> City Hall

>> New York, New York

>>

>>> On Mar 12, 2015, at 2:02 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>>

>>> Yes, believe so. I have not actually ever seen him do a sermon

>>>

>>> Mpc - is there a sermon format?

>>>

>>> ----- Original Message -----

>>> From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]

>>> Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 01:45 PM

>>> To: Hagelgans, Andrea

>>> Cc: Blumm, Kate; John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

>>> Subject: Re: Housing sermon

>>>

>>> Yeah, can start on that tomorrow. Need a little more info first tho: What are the points we want to hit on those issues? Should this be more of an outline than we usually do for major speeches? Length?

>>>

>>>> On Mar 12, 2015, at 1:33 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>>>

>>>> Hi,

>>>> We need a stump housing sermon for east new york. JDC told me you could assist. It would talk about housing displacement /tenant issues, zoning.

>>>>
>>>> Could you work on a draft for sat?
>>>>
>>>> Thank you!
>

From: Blumm, Kate
To: Jon Fromowitz; Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: Housing sermon
Date: Thursday, March 12, 2015 7:22:38 PM

I sent primary points before, did it not arrive? Stand by.

Original Message

From: Jon Fromowitz
Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 7:16 PM
To: Blumm, Kate; Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: Housing sermon

minus MPC

Flagging that I need details on this to get started. Format is fine (I have recent outlines to work off of) but need to know more about what we want to say. By displacement, we mean people getting priced out?

On Mar 12, 2015, at 3:11 PM, Blumm, Kate <KBlumm@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

> Are we at St. Rita's for this?

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: Carey, Michael

> Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 2:19 PM

> To: Hagelgans, Andrea

> Cc: jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com; Blumm, Kate; jfdc@akpdmedia.com

> Subject: Re: Housing sermon

>

> Same as he does his remarks every day. Outline bullets.

>

>

> Michael Paul Carey

> City Hall

> New York, New York

>

>> On Mar 12, 2015, at 2:02 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>> Yes, believe so. I have not actually ever seen him do a sermon

>>

>> Mpc - is there a sermon format?

>>

>> ----- Original Message -----

>> From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]

>> Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 01:45 PM

>> To: Hagelgans, Andrea

>> Cc: Blumm, Kate; John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

>> Subject: Re: Housing sermon

>>

>> Yeah, can start on that tomorrow. Need a little more info first tho: What are the points we want to hit on those issues? Should this be more of an outline than we usually do for major speeches? Length?

>>

>>> On Mar 12, 2015, at 1:33 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>>

>>> Hi,

>>> We need a stump housing sermon for east new york. JDC told me you could assist. It would talk about housing displacement /tenant issues, zoning.

>>>

>>> Could you work on a draft for sat?

>>>

>>> Thank you!

>>

From: Blumm, Kate
To: "Jon Fromowitz"; "John Del Cecato"
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Fw: sermon talkers
Date: Thursday, March 12, 2015 7:26:39 PM
Attachments: TPs on Housing and Neighborhood Planning \(Feb 27 2015\).docx
Neighborhood Study Area One Pagers 2 27 15.pdf

See attached for high-level talkers on rezonings we're using and backgrounders on all rezoning areas (inc ENY which is all you need of course). Let's talk tomorrow about ENY in particular and drill down on anti-displacement (tenant protections from harassment, strengthening rent laws, mandatory inclusionary zoning-- I can translate all). Talk at 9am?

Talking Points on Housing and Neighborhood Planning

For general use and for agency budget testimony*

- Creating and preserving 200,000 units of affordable housing is a centerpiece of Mayor de Blasio's effort to confront economic inequality.
- Achieving this goal will require a new way of thinking about neighborhood needs and working across government silos to ensure we are helping to equitably grow neighborhoods and create new economic opportunity. . .not just increase residential density
- [Our agency] is part of a team looking holistically not just at additional housing capacity, but the full host of infrastructure and City services to support neighborhoods. . .and will be coming to the table with capital investments to support this growth [as you have heard today]
- THIS is the responsible way to account for new density in our communities.
- Close partnership with these communities is essential to these neighborhood planning efforts. We share a commitment with local stakeholders to protect the people and places that form the fabric of their neighborhoods, even as the City must evolve to accommodate a growing population and tackle the housing crisis that burdens so many families.
- This is the opportunity for neighborhoods to write their own future, through a public, open, ground-up planning process, instead of having developers or market forces write it for them. This is our opportunity for a real public response to the forces of gentrification.
- This type of holistic, ground-up, interagency planning is occurring in six neighborhoods across the city.
- We look forward to continuing engagement with neighborhoods and developing neighborhood plans that allow all New Yorkers at every rung of the economic ladder to live, work, and raise a family.

* Note that IGA will work with each agency to tailor additional messages that are agency-specific

Bay St Corridor, Downtown Staten Island

The Bay Street Corridor neighborhood study envisions a new mixed-use district on the North Shore of Staten Island, within walking distance of the ferry. Working in close partnerships with local residents, businesses and community groups, the City seeks to strengthen the borough's emerging downtown neighborhood by providing a wider range of retail and services while expanding affordable housing options for a range of income groups and populations including seniors and young adults.

Location: Bay St from Sands Street to Victory Blvd

Neighborhoods: Tompkinsville, Stapleton, near St. George and larger Downtown SI area

Transit: Staten Island Rail Road; express bus

Size: 14 blocks, 0.6 miles

Last rezoned: 1961

Existing Zoning: M1-1

Proposed Zoning: TBD

Timeline: Q4 2016 certification

Stakeholders:

Borough President: James Oddo

City Council: Debi Rose (49)

Community Board: 1

Senate: Diane Savino (23);

Assembly: Matthew Titone (61)

Background

The proposed Neighborhood Plan builds upon the recommendation of the North Shore 2030 report to create a vibrant downtown environment providing stronger connections to the NY Harbor. It will leverage nearly $1 billion in public and private investments already underway in St. George and along the Stapleton Waterfront to support the surrounding neighborhoods. The large development projects at the NY Wheel, Empire Outlets shopping mall, the former Coast Guard site, the new Staten Island Supreme Court building and Stapleton Waterfront are setting the stage for the long-desired 24/7 "downtown" lifestyle desired by many Islanders. Recent new developments are already changing the trajectory of the area and include self-storage, office, auto-part sales, schools, a gym, and affordable housing.

City Investment: TBD. Investments in street improvements, shoreline improvements or potential flood protection, school capacity, waterfront access and recreation are needed.

East Harlem Neighborhood Study

The East Harlem neighborhood study seeks to engage local residents, businesses, and community groups and address the neighborhood's needs comprehensively, including replacing obsolete zoning to promote mixed-income housing, commercial and community facilities; improving infrastructure and City services, and promoting community wellness, workforce development, and economic opportunity. In tandem, the City will aggressively renew public investments in affordable housing; rehabilitate and preserve existing non-subsidized housing; and protect tenants against harassment and displacement.

Location: East 96th Street to East 141st Street, from Fifth Avenue to the East River and Harlem River.

Neighborhoods: East Harlem

Transit: 4,5,6 and express bus service; Metro-North train station at 125th and Park. Future 2nd avenue subway in the 2020s.

Last rezoned: Portions rezoned in 2002;

Existing Zoning: Mix of M, R and C

Proposed Zoning: TBD

Timeline: Q4 2017 certification (under review)

Stakeholders:

- Borough President: Gale Brewer
- City Council: Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito (8); Inez Dickens (9)
- Community Board: 11
- Senate: Jose M. Serrano (29); Bill Perkins (30)
- Assembly: Robert J. Rodriguez (68); Keith Wright (70)
- Community Organizations: Civitas and other local organizations

Background

The East Harlem study will look at all of Community District 11, with the exception of Randall's Island. The East Harlem Neighborhood Study builds upon previous work of community stakeholders, primarily Community Board 11 and Civitas, who focused on development opportunities along Park Avenue. The current study area will take a broader and more integrated look at the neighborhood. It will identify enhancements that will facilitate pedestrian mobility and enliven the public realm. The City is already working with DOT, the MTA, CB 11, and the New Harlem East Merchants Association to design public realm improvements in the area around the Park Avenue / 125th Street transit hub. A major component of the study will be a Neighborhood Health Initiative in partnership with the Fund for Public Health in New York, the New York Academy of Medicine, Mount Sinai Hospital, and the Department of City Planning to focus on East Harlem.

City Investment: TBD

East Harlem CD 11

East New York

The East New York neighborhood study is a comprehensive effort to promote affordable housing and economic development and introduce new community resources to foster a more equitable and livable East New York, Cypress Hills and Ocean Hill. Zoning changes will direct growth along transit corridors while preserving the residential character of interior blocks. All residential development will be required to include housing that is affordable to existing residents. The plan will also seek to aggressively preserve existing affordable housing and protect existing residents against harassment and displacement.

Location: Fulton Street, Euclid Avenue, Conduit Boulevard, Pitkin Avenue and Sheffield Avenue. Broadway, Van Sinderen Avenue, East New York Avenue and Sackman Street.

Neighborhoods: East New York, Cypress Hill, and Ocean Hill. Near Broadway Junction transit area.

Transit: J/Z line along Fulton; A/C line along Pitkin.

Size: 191 blocks, 308 acres

Last rezoned: 1961

Existing Zoning: R5, R6, C8, M1

Proposed Zoning: R5B, R6A, R7A, R7D, R8A, C4, MX

Timeline: May 2015 certification

Stakeholders:

- Borough President Eric Adams
- City Council: Rafael Espinal (37); Inez Barron (42)
- Community Board: 5
- Senate: John L. Sampson (19); Martin Malavé Dilan (18)
- Assembly: Latrice Walker (55); Erik Dilan (54)
- Community Organizations: Cypress Hills LDC, LDC of East New York, Arts East New York, United Community Centers, East New York Restoration Corporation, Highland Park Community Development Corporation, and YMCA of North Brooklyn.

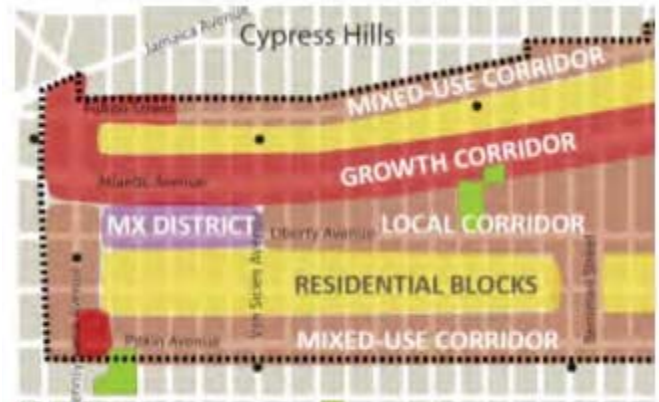

Background:

East New York experienced significant population decline in the 1970s and 80s, falling from 66,000 people in 1960, to a low of 40,000 people in 1980. The population is currently at 48,000 people, and it can be expected that by 2030, the Plan would foster a return to the 1960 population levels. The East New York Neighborhood Study is informed by the planning work and stakeholder engagement that occurred over a two-year period as part of the US HUD funded Sustainable East New York plan.

City Investment: $85 million in the ten-year capital plan for streets, parks, etc. [Internal use only].

Full Study Area

Detail

Flushing West

The Flushing West neighborhood study is examining a 10-block area of underutilized sites in the western portion of downtown Flushing, adjacent to the Flushing Creek waterfront. The study builds upon locally developed plans and envisions creating over a thousand new units of housing, tens of thousands of square feet of new retail, commercial and community facility spaces, and vibrant new public access areas along the waterfront to meet the needs of this remarkably diverse and growing neighborhood.

Location: Western portion of Downtown Flushing, adjacent to Flushing Creek

Neighborhoods: Downtown Flushing

Transit: 7 Line; LIRR

Size: 10 blocks, 32 acres

Last rezoned: 1998

Existing Zoning: C4-2, M1-1, M3-1

Proposed Zoning: C4-4 (and special district)

Timeline: Q1 2016 certification

Stakeholders:

- Borough President Melinda Katz
- City Council: Peter Koo (20)
- Community Board: 7
- Senate: Senator Tony Avella (11); Toby Ann Stavitsky (16);
- Assembly: Ron Kim (40)
- Community Organizations: Flushing Business Improvement District, Greater Flushing Chamber of Commerce, Asian-Americans for Equality, MinKwon Center for Community Action.

Background:

This study will build upon a draft land use, zoning and master planning effort initiated by the Flushing Willets Point Corona Local Development Corporation. This organization received a $1.5 million Brownfield Opportunity Area (BOA) grant in 2010 and selected a consultant team lead by AKRF, SHoP Architects and Mathews Nielsen Landscape Architects to study the area between downtown Flushing and the Flushing Creek. This BOA study is the basis for current planning work.

City Investment: TBD.

Flushing West Study Area (in yellow outline)

Jerome Avenue Corridor

The Jerome Avenue Corridor neighborhood study seeks to revitalize a two-mile stretch of Jerome Avenue, which is a major transit corridor that serves the adjacent neighborhoods of Highbridge, Mount Eden, Concourse, Mount Hope, University Heights, and Morris Heights. The study seeks to provide affordable housing, retail, local services and amenities, and to improve streetscapes and pedestrian safety to better connect adjacent residential neighborhoods. Preserving affordable housing and protecting tenants against harassment and displacement is also central concern.

Location: Jerome Ave (Mullaly Park to Fordham Rd)

Neighborhoods: Highbridge, Mount Eden, Concourse, Mount Hope, University Heights, and Morris Heights

Transit: 4 (Jerome Ave); B/D (Grand Concourse)

Size: 73 blocks, 2 miles

Last rezoned: 1961

Existing Zoning: C8-3, M1-2, R7-1, R8, C-4-4, commercial overlays

Proposed Zoning: mid-density contextual residential and commercial, MX (residential and light industrial/commercial)

Timeline: Q3 2016 certification

Stakeholders:

- Borough President: Ruben Diaz
- City Council: Fernando Cabrera (14); Vanessa Gibson (16)
- Community Board: 4 and 5
- Senate: Gustavo Rivera (33); José Serrano (29)
- Community Organizations: WHEDCO, New Settlement Apartments, Highbridge Community Development Corporation, Mount Hope Housing, Bronx-Lebanon Hospital, Bronx Works

Background:

Jerome Avenue is primarily home to low-scale commercial, community facilities, and auto-related uses, parking facilities, and a modest number of industrial uses, but it also includes more than 5,000 residential units mostly in older 6- to 8-story apartment buildings. A majority of the existing zoning, in place since 1961, allows heavy commercial and light industrial uses and does not permit residential development; portions of the study area are zoned for mid-density residential and local commercial. Recent new developments are already changing the trajectory of the area and include self-storage, office, auto-part sales, schools, a gym, and affordable housing.

City Investment: TBD. Estimate of $40 Million for streetscape improvements, parks, and infrastructure. Does not include $500 million needed to upgrade Harlem River Bridge crossings.

Jerome Ave. Study Area and Zip Codes

Long Island City

The Long Island City Core rezoning and neighborhood plan aims to increase affordable housing production, promote a balance between new residential and commercial development, and identify needed infrastructure investments to support existing and new residential and worker populations. The plan will build on the area's many strengths—strong real estate market, excellent mass transit access, and proximity to Midtown Manhattan and the planned Cornell Tech campus on Roosevelt Island—while ensuring that area's growth will provide opportunities for households across a range of incomes.

Location: Area along three key corridors, Queens Plaza (from East River to Jackson Ave / Northern Blvd intersections); Jackson Ave and Northern Boulevard

Neighborhoods: Long Island City, with adjacent planning activity in Sunnyside Yards

Transit: E, G, M, N, Q, R, 7 lines; future LIRR stop

Size: 100 blocks, 275 acres

Last rezoned: 2001, 2004, 2008

Existing Zoning: Medium to high-density mixed-use district (5-12 FARs)

Proposed Zoning: Higher density mixed-use districts (8-12 FARs and potential zoning incentives)

Timeline: Q2 2016 certification

Stakeholders:

- Borough President Melinda Katz
- City Council: Jimmy Van Bramer (26)
- Community Board: 1 and 2
- Senate: Michael Gianaris (12)
- Assembly: Catherine Nolan (37); Margaret Markey (30)
- Community Stakeholders: LIC Partnership, Dutch Kills Civic Association, Urban Upbound, Long Island City Cultural Alliance, and the Queensbridge Tenants Association.

Background:

A portion of this area was already rezoned as part of the 2001 LIC Special Mixed-Use District rezoning. The current LIC Core study is a much larger area than the 37-block LIC special district rezoning in 2001. Aside from its larger size, the LIC Core plan differs from prior rezonings in that it will proactively address how to leverage strong real estate market forces to create opportunities for requiring affordable housing, fostering compatible commercial and mixed-use development to support entrepreneurship, and identify critical investments in needed infrastructure and neighborhood services to support current demands and future growth. It also will be the first neighborhood planning study to examine how to provide economic opportunities to benefit the residents of Queensbridge Houses, the nation's largest public housing complex.

City Investment: TBD

Long Island City Core Study Area and Zip Codes

From: Blumm, Kate
To: John Del Cecato; Jon Fromowitz
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: sermon talkers
Date: Thursday, March 12, 2015 7:58:58 PM

That'll do it!

Writing up a few notes now -- decent use of subway time...

From: John Del Cecato
Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 7:42 PM
To: Jon Fromowitz
Cc: Blumm, Kate; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: sermon talkers

Just throw in a quote like "I'll tear down this building and rebuild it in three days."

On Mar 12, 2015, at 7:34 PM, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Sermon-ready!!

Heh, could use a little translation.

9 Am is fine. Why don't you call my cell: [REDACTED]

On Mar 12, 2015, at 7:26 PM, Blumm, Kate <kBlumm@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

See attached for high-level talkers on rezonings we're using and backgrounders on all rezoning areas (inc ENY which is all you need of course). Let's talk tomorrow about ENY in particular and drill down on anti-displacement (tenant protections from harassment strengthening rent laws mandatory inclusionary zoning-- I can translate all). Talk at 9am?

<TPs on Housing and Neighborhood Planning (Feb 27 2015).docx><Neighborhood Study Area One Pagers 2 27 15.pdf>

From: Blumm, Kate
To: "Jon Fromowitz"; "John Del Cecato"
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: sermon talkers
Date: Thursday, March 12, 2015 8:00:22 PM

See below for some notes. We can talk in am about these, rent laws, and additional context about all this. Will call your cell at 9.

Problem: Predatory landlords try to capitalize on rising real estate values by harassing tenants to the point where they are forced out, at which time the landlord can raise rents on the vacant apartment or convert it to luxury condos. These abuses can include dangerous construction that creates unlivable conditions; or extreme neglect; or denying heat in the winter, or otherwise interfering with critical utilities. (I can get you a list from HPD of the really fearsome stuff.)

What we're doing about it:

- collaborating with our partners at State Dept of housing and the Atty General's office on the new Tenant Harassment Protection Task Force-- leveraging collaboration to mine shared data to ID bad actor landlords, investigate them with joint cellar-to-roof inspections, coordinate enforcement actions, and support the AG in building criminal cases where appropriate.
- creating Tenant Protection Hotline (will share details)

Problem: 90% of landlords and 10% of tenants are represented in housing court

What we're doing: in areas slated for rezoning (13 zip codes), the city is providing free legal representation for tenants. Our rezoning will unlock additional value for property owners in these areas and should landlords try to evict their tenants, we will make sure they are able to defend themselves; or help them proactively find legal assistance if they are being harassed.

Problem: developers have historically been permitted to build whatever housing they want in rezoned neighborhoods-- if the market will support it, they will build it, leading to displacement for families unable to afford the housing stock

What we're doing: mandatory inclusionary zoning. In rezoned areas, it will no longer be an option to build affordable housing as part of whatever residential project you are building. It will be required.

From: Blumm, Kate
Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 7:26 PM
To: 'Jon Fromowitz'; 'John Del Cecato'
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Fw: sermon talkers

See attached for high-level talkers on rezonings we're using and backgrounders on all rezoning areas (inc ENY which is all you need of course). Let's talk tomorrow about ENY in particular and drill down on anti-displacement (tenant protections from harassment, strengthening rent laws, mandatory inclusionary zoning-- I can translate all). Talk at 9am?

From: Jon Fromowitz
To: Blumm, Kate
Subject: Re: Need to push to 9:30 Re: Housing sermon
Date: Friday, March 13, 2015 8:56:02 AM

Ok

> On Mar 13, 2015, at 8:53 AM, Blumm, Kate <KBlumm@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> Hope you can talk then!

>

> Original Message

> From: Jon Fromowitz

> Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 7:16 PM

> To: Blumm, Kate; Hagelgans, Andrea

> Cc: John Del Cecato

> Subject: Re: Housing sermon

>

>

> minus MPC

>

> Flagging that I need details on this to get started. Format is fine (I have recent outlines to work off of) but need to know more about what we want to say. By displacement, we mean people getting priced out?

>

>> On Mar 12, 2015, at 3:11 PM, Blumm, Kate <KBlumm@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>> Are we at St. Rita's for this?

>>

>> -----Original Message-----

>> From: Carey, Michael

>> Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 2:19 PM

>> To: Hagelgans, Andrea

>> Cc: jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com; Blumm, Kate; jfdc@akpdmedia.com

>> Subject: Re: Housing sermon

>>

>> Same as he does his remarks every day. Outline bullets.

>>

>>

>> Michael Paul Carey

>> City Hall

>> New York, New York

>>

>>> On Mar 12, 2015, at 2:02 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>>

>>> Yes, believe so. I have not actually ever seen him do a sermon

>>>

>>> Mpc - is there a sermon format?

>>>

>>> ----- Original Message -----

>>> From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]

>>> Sent: Thursday, March 12, 2015 01:45 PM

>>> To: Hagelgans, Andrea

>>> Cc: Blumm, Kate; John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

>>> Subject: Re: Housing sermon

>>>

>>> Yeah, can start on that tomorrow. Need a little more info first tho: What are the points we want to hit on those issues? Should this be more of an outline than we usually do for major speeches? Length?

>>>

>>>> On Mar 12, 2015, at 1:33 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>>>

>>>> Hi,

>>>> We need a stump housing sermon for east new york. JDC told me you could assist. It would talk about housing displacement /tenant issues, zoning.

>>>>

>>>> Could you work on a draft for sat?

>>>>

>>>> Thank you!

>

From: Bill de Blasio
To: Carey, Michael; John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell
Cc: Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Courtesy visits to mayors while in IA and NE. Pls discuss
Date: Friday, March 13, 2015 11:37:16 AM

Agreed!

-----Original Message-----

From: Michael Paul Carey
To: Bill de Blasio
To: John Del Cecato
To: Aaron Pickrell
Cc: Elana Leopold
Subject: RE: Courtesy visits to mayors while in IA and NE. Pls discuss
Sent: Mar 13, 2015 11:35 AM

And Wisconsin too.
Once confirmed you actually should call them first.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall

-----Original Message-----

From: Bill de Blasio [<mailto:>
Sent: Friday, March 13, 2015 11:35 AM
To: John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell
Cc: Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Courtesy visits to mayors while in IA and NE. Pls discuss

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato
To: B
Cc: Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Nvm: Deepak Bhargava
Date: Saturday, March 14, 2015 6:54:28 PM

Will do

> On Mar 14, 2015, at 6:41 PM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
>
> Left message. John, why don't you take from here -- just nail him down or drop him. All yours. He > doesn't need to hear my voice any more than he has already
>
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: Leopold, Elana
> Sent: Friday, March 13, 2015 08:28 PM
> To: B
> Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
> Subject: Nvm: Deepak Bhargava
>
> Deepak Bhargava
>
> Returning your call. Call me back at your convenience.

From: Wolfe, Emma
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Walzak, Phil; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Re: Schedule
Date: Sunday, March 15, 2015 6:30:42 PM

K

> On Mar 15, 2015, at 6:21 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> I have asked to get us in tomorrow to discuss this week's schedule. He wants to cut jamaica vision and he wants to keep htc health center groundbreaking. Also discuss al smith

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: John Del cecato; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Williams, Dominic; Ramirez Ursulina
Subject: Pls review - style guide
Date: Sunday, March 15, 2015 8:16:02 PM

Here's the current style guide that I've developed for our speechwriters, press team and anyone else who is writing for the boss. Would love any additions you might have. Rolling it out early this week.

STYLE GUIDE

Do's

- ✓ Narrative arc--- should show forward motion, not flip-flopping between past, present, future
- ✓ Use a framing sentence up front to summarize impact of the announcement (“this tool we are unveiling will keep our cops safe and build stronger communities”)
- ✓ Clear transition sentences between new arguments, new subjects
- ✓ Consistent verb tenses – don’t fluctuate within graphs
- ✓ Stories should support core message and reflect primary audience (ex. If an event is being held to help us reach Latino audiences, choose a story that reflects that story)
- ✓ Consider lists – #1, #2,#3, BUT make consistent/finish the list (NOT, #1, #2 and finally)
- ✓ “We” = City of New York as a whole; “ I”= when he has done something (ex. “I recently gave the State of the City and announced X”)
- ✓ Phonetic spelling for all names
- ✓ Spanish = phonetic spelling for all names, heavily accented and simple sentences (Flag in advance any new terminology)

Don'ts

- ✓ Avoid platitudes and phrases that don’t say much (ex. “strong public servant”) and cliches
- ✓ Avoid “would”, “could”, “should”
- ✓ Avoid “project” or “program” (good substitutes- “initiative”)
- ✓ Avoid passive sentence constructions

From: B
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; Howe, Amanda
Subject: Re: speechwriter
Date: Monday, March 16, 2015 4:38:40 PM

High priority! Definitely want to see her

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Monday, March 16, 2015 03:26 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; Howe, Amanda
Subject: speechwriter

Sir,

I just met with a potential speech writing candidate (thanks, JDC!). Her name is [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] I'd like to bring her in for a meeting with you and give her a test speech. Will set it up with Michael.

Thanks,
Andrea

From: peter_ragone
To: B
Cc: Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; [REDACTED] Fialkoff, Gabrielle; Howe, Amanda; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Wolfe, Emma; FLONYC
Subject: Re: California trip
Date: Monday, March 16, 2015 5:56:30 PM

if you give me some dates, i can use the parameters outlined here to do a draft sked and send it back around for consideration for the team. Also, last year i spoke to the California Foundation about having you out here to address their board and they would pay for your travel if they were to do that. It is a very prestigious outfit out here that does big statewide health initiatives. I bet the FLONYC mental health piece would be right up their alley...

Let me know.

On Mon, Mar 16, 2015 at 1:38 PM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

> I increasingly believe we should plan a trip to California for May. We have many people I need to meet out there, which several of you addressed here can prioritize. We have to work out how many days, and if just Northern Cali or if to add Southern as well. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] We can thing about any TPA options as well. Finally, I once told Kevin Johnson I'd visit Sacramento, but that we can play be ear. I'm sure Ragone would be willing to help us sort out some of this and maybe even join in the fun when we get out there. Thanks

>

From: John Del Cecato
To: [REDACTED] Chao, Raymond; Carey, Michael; de Alwis, Ronalie
Cc: Liz Hegarty
Subject: Re: MBDB: Call with JDC and Pickrell
Date: Monday, March 16, 2015 8:05:20 PM

No prob

From: Elana Leopold <[REDACTED]>
Date: Monday, March 16, 2015 at 7:54 PM
To: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]> "rchao@cityhall.nyc.gov" <rchao@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov" <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: MBDB: Call with JDC and Pickrell

We are running late....

Will let you know when to dial in

MBDB: Call with JDC and Pickrell

Scheduled: Monday, Mar 16, 2015 from 8:15 PM to 8:45 PM

Location: Dial-in Number: [REDACTED] Meeting ID: [REDACTED]

Invitees: Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED]), Chao, Raymond, Carey, Michael, 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' (jfdc@akpdmedia.com), de Alwis, Ronalie

Sent from my iPhone

From: Elana Leopold
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: [REDACTED] Chao, Raymond; Carey, Michael; de Alwis, Ronalie; Liz Hegarty
Subject: Re: MBDB: Call with JDC and Pickrell
Date: Monday, March 16, 2015 9:07:20 PM

ok friends- mayor is ready

please dial in

Dial-in Number: [REDACTED] Meeting ID: [REDACTED]

On Mon, Mar 16, 2015 at 8:05 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

No prob

From: Elana Leopold <[REDACTED]>
Date: Monday, March 16, 2015 at 7:54 PM
To: Aaron Pickrell Email <[REDACTED]> "rchao@cityhall.nyc.gov" <rchao@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov" <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: MBDB: Call with JDC and Pickrell

We are running late....

Will let you know when to dial in

MBDB: Call with JDC and Pickrell

Scheduled: Monday, Mar 16, 2015 from 8:15 PM to 8:45 PM

Location: Dial-in Number: [REDACTED] Meeting ID: [REDACTED]

Invitees: Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED]), Chao, Raymond, Carey, Michael, 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' (jfdc@akpdmedia.com), de Alwis, Ronalie

Sent from my iPhone

--

Elana Leopold
[REDACTED]

From: Stephanie Yazgi
To: John Del Cecato; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Fink, Avi
Subject: state of briefing
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 11:26:41 AM
Attachments: Progressive Taxation v3 briefing.docx

i need some help paring it down but this call will help

john- not sure what in this is best in describing carried interest loophole is it true that the three we chose w emma and neal are good fed, state and muni level taxes?
]talk more in 5

thanks

Progressive Taxation

OVERVIEW:

Mayor convenes group for 1 hour post dinner

ATTENDEES:

Murray
Adler
Hodges
Landrieu

- Hoping to lock Wharton today
- Reaching back out to Cownie

VISION:

Mayor facilitates conversation where he discusses the need to generate revenue, his propensity towards progressive taxation efforts to ensure that low and middle income folks do not bear even more tax burdens, describes a few examples regionally, asks for opinions and ideas that folks are comfortable working on locally, and how they can potentially work together on the national front.

STAFF:

A staffer is in the room but only to take notes (SY?) mayors chat among themselves. It's a low-key closed event with just an initial brainstorm to gauge interest and enthusiasm that maybe can have some key takeaways to move the conversation forward in a more formalized way and to build rapport with mayors in the room.

OUTCOMES:

- Possible outcomes are that they could agree to send comment to federal tax reform working groups jointly or individually
- Mayors could invite each other to come to visit/ tour innovative programs in each of their home cities
- They could commission memo on areas of interest to discuss in a more formal way or panel at an upcoming conference (San Francisco June 2015)

RESEARCH:

The following research contains a number of descriptions of progressive taxation initiatives, however we should focus mainly on

- Carried interest loophole (federal)
- Mansion Tax (state)
- Bad Business Fee (municipal)

Progressive Taxation – Municipal Level Reforms

- Policy: Progressive Local Income Taxes (including payroll taxes, local services taxes, and occupational privilege taxes).
- Description: Income taxation is the most progressive revenue raising tool that governments have in their toolbox. While most municipalities generate the bulk of their revenue through property taxes, sales taxes, and fees, these methods are inherently regressive (policy tools to limit the regressivity of property and sales taxes are explored in greater detail below). Wages and salaries make up 68% of total income generated in the United States.
- Details: Seventeen states and the District of Columbia currently allow cities, counties, and municipalities to levy their own separate individual income taxes in addition to state income taxes: Alabama, California, Colorado, Delaware, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, West Virginia. Currently 4,943 jurisdictions in these states, covering over 23 million Americans, have implemented some form of income taxation. Where income taxes are in place, they should be progressive with rates increasing for higher earners rather than a flat percentage or fee applied to all workers.

Resources: For complete tables of local income taxation, please see "Local Income Taxes: City- and County-Level Income and Wage Taxes Continue to Wane" by Joseph Henchman & Jason Sapia.

Policy: Bad Business Fee

Description: "When workers have a voice in the process to determine wages and conditions, our democracy thrives. Expanding workers' ability to negotiate – either directly with their employers or through a Bad Business Fee – gets us closer to wrestling some control back from the corporate 1% and on the path toward healing our ailing economy." Jobs with Justice, "[Low Wages are Bad Business"]

Details: "Allow a government to levy significant fines on a company that is paying excessively low wages and relying on taxpayers to foot the bill. Companies would be incentivized to work with and respond to their employees requests for fair wages and adequate benefits directly. Otherwise they would pay for parallel social services through a fee that workers and community members have input over. In other words, a bad actor in our economy is held accountable to either provide a good job or supply income or subsidies for existing and unemployed workers." Jobs with Justice, "[Low Wages are Bad Business"]

Resources: Jobs with Justice, "Low Wages are Bad Business". Liz Ryan Murray of National People's action is the expert on this issue: Liz@npa-us.org.

Policy: Pied-à-terre tax

Description: Non-NYC residents avoid paying personal income taxes and benefit from large property tax exemptions, yet they continue to utilize city services and infrastructure. Instituting a pied-à-terre tax on wealthy, non-residential owners of NYC properties would bring much needed balance and fairness to our city's tax system.

Details: Instituting a property tax surcharge on expensive apartments and homes (over $5 million) that are owned by non-city residents. The annual surcharge, ranging from .5% to 4% would raise $665 million a year in revenue. Crain's NY Business, "Manhattan Democrats to introduce pied-à-terre tax bill", [9/22/2014]

Resources: Fiscal Policy Institute, "FPI proposes a tax on the most expensive NYC pied-a terre residential units", 9/22/2014

Policy: Local Intangibles tax

Description: For the 1%, much of their untaxed wealth comes in the form of intangibles such as interest, and dividends.

Details: 30 Kansas counties, 105 Kansas cities, and 400 Kansas townships impose a local intangibles tax on interest, dividends, and securities transactions (but not wages). The tax rates are generally uniform: county tax is 0.75% and city and township taxes are 2.25%. No city or township has a rate higher than 2.25%, and 36 have a lower rate, as low as 0.25%. The taxes cumulatively raised approximately $2.4 million in 2008.

Resources: For complete tables of local income taxation, please see "Local Income Taxes: City- and County-Level Income and Wage Taxes Continue to Wane" by Joseph Henchman & Jason Sapia.

Policy: Luxury tax

Description: Tax or surcharge on luxury (or non-essential) goods such as boats, private planes, etc.

Details:

Resources: Economy Watch, "Luxury Tax in the United States of America \(U.S.A.\)"

State-Level Reforms

The most pressing structural problems of municipal revenue can be addressed through creative political strategies at the state level if municipalities organize with one another to advocate for progressive state level reforms

Policy: Mansion tax

Description: A 1% levy on all homes and apartment sales over $1 million.

Details: New York State's mansion tax was first instituted in 1989 by the NYS Legislature and Governor Mario Cuomo. The NYS Division of Budget estimated that the tax generated $259 million for the state in fiscal year 2012-2013.

Resources: WSJ, "City Eyes Mansion-Tax Boost to Assist Affordable Housing", 11/18/2014; NY Post, "Mansion Tax Produces Geyser of Revenue for New York", 3/20/2014]

Policy: Endowments tax

Description: Certain large-scale institutions have put their tax-free status into question by operating more like hedge funds than non-profit institutions. An endowments tax would ensure that interest is fairly taxed for the public good.

Details: Massachusetts legislation proposed a 2.5% annual tax on any amount of an endowment exceeding $1 billion. Senator Chuck Grassley (R-IA) has been supportive of requiring large endowment to make 5% annual payouts.

Resources: WSJ, "College Endowment Tax is Studies", 5/9/2008; NY Post, "Colleges getting away with huge tax-free endowments", 9/28/2014

Policy: Eliminate Net Operating Loss (NOL) Carryback

Details: NOL "allows companies to use current-year income losses to offset income from earlier years. While virtually every state allows companies to carry losses forward, in accordance with federal rules, many states have decoupled from the federal provision that allows companies to rewrite history by carrying their losses back two years. Seventeen states, however, have not done so, and face continued revenue losses from their inaction on this tax break."

Resources: Michael Mazerov, "Minority of States Still Granting Net Operating Loss 'Carryback' Deductions Should Eliminate Them Now," Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, May 11, 2009.

Policy: Substantial Minimum Tax

Details: "States can consider adopting some form of alternative minimum tax (AMT) to ensure that corporations pay some tax no matter how many loopholes they are able to take advantage of. . . . Flat-dollar minimum taxes are typically between $100 (as is the case in Utah) and $250 (Vermont)."

Resources: "90 Reasons We Need State Tax Reform" Citizens for Tax Justice and Institute on Taxation and Economic Policy.

Policy: Corporate Disclosure and Tax Expenditure Estimates

Details: "Sensible goals for corporate tax disclosure efforts include: Identifying all the substantial tax deductions, exemptions and credits claimed by each large corporation in a state. Evaluating the net impact of these tax breaks on the bottom-line income tax payments of each corporation. Assessing the effectiveness of these tax breaks in creating jobs and growing the state's economy ... The vast majority of states now require 'tax expenditure reports,' which provide a complete list of the corporate tax breaks allowed under state law along with an annual cost estimate for each tax provision. . . . But virtually none of the states provide comprehensive company-specific information on the wide array of corporate tax breaks allowed by the tax laws."

Resources: "90 Reasons We Need State Tax Reform" Citizens for Tax Justice and Institute on Taxation and Economic Policy.

Policy: Millionaire's tax

Description: Requiring those who have benefitted from our economic system – individuals making more than $1 million annually – to pay their fair share of taxes through a modest increase.

Details: Current millionaire's tax in New York State is scheduled to expire at the end of 2017.

Resources:

OTHER OPTIONS

Policy: Fair Share Taxation

Description: "Corporations and the wealthy are failing to pay their fair share of taxes...We can create a fairer tax system to ensure that corporations and the wealthy pay their fair share, and make it easier for families to regain the security they've lost." Americans for Tax Fairness, "[A Fair Tax System"]

Details: We can crack down on corporate tax dodging by restricting corporation inversions (registering Americans companies as foreign corporations and eliminating offshore loopholes and special tax breaks. To ensure the wealthy pays their fair share, we can start by strengthening the estate tax.

Resources: Americans for Tax Fairness; AFL-CIO Corporate Watch, "Avoiding Their Fair Share of Taxes" State Income Tax Rate/ Map of US
<http://watchdog.wpengine.netdna-cdn.com/wp-content/blogs.dir/1/files/2014/10/State-Income-Tax-Rates.jpg>

MORE RESEARCH:

https://cdn.americanprogress.org/wp-content/uploads/2014/01/COW_05RaiseNeededRevenue.pdf

<https://cdn.americanprogress.org/wp-content/uploads/2012/12/CAPTaxPlanReportFINAL-b.pdf>

FAIR-SHARE REVENUE OPTIONS WOULD ENSURE HEDGE FUNDS DON'T DODGE TAXES AND FULLY FUND OUR PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM

Fair-share taxes and fees targeting hedge funds, billionaires, high-income LLCs and tax-dodging big corporations can raise between $3.1 and $4.2 billion dollars per year — more than enough to pay for complete compliance with the Campaign for Fiscal Equitss ("CFE") decision, ensuring fair funding for all public schools.

Lawmakers should move forward with enough of the fair-share revenue options outlined in this report to ensure that this year's state budget includes $2.2 billion in new school aid to comply with CFE and pay down Gap Elimination Adjustment arrears.

CLOSE HEDGE FUND TAX LOOPHOLES

- Repatriate New York State Share of Tax Revenue Lost to Federal Carried Interest Loophole: $100 million
- Tax Nonresident Hedge Fund Management Fees: $50 million
- Eliminate the Carried Interest Exemption under New York City's Unincorporated Business Tax: $200 million

These initiatives close the "carried interest loophole" that lets hedge funds making billions in profits pay less in taxes than small businesses in our local communities, and assure that hedge fund managers working in New York but living elsewhere pay their fair share of taxes.

INSIST ON MINIMUM FAIR-SHARE TAXES FROM HEDGE FUNDS AND BIG CORPORATIONS

- Restore the Capital Base Alternative Tax ("Corporate Minimum Tax") to the Corporate Franchise Tax: $500-$700 million
- Update LLC filing fees (applies to LLCs & non-LLC partnerships): $500 million
- Repeal the Financial Services Investment Tax Credit: $30 million

These initiatives assure that high-income LLCs, Wall Street and big businesses pay their fair share, while protecting local small businesses in our communities.

ENSURE THE SUPER-RICH PAY THEIR FAIR SHARE

- New top brackets on Personal Income Tax (PIT) 11% at $10M: up to $1.7 billion
- Close the Pied-a-terre Tax Abatement Loophole: $250-$900 million
- Helicopter Commuter Tax: $10 million

These initiatives ensure that billionaires and multi-millionaires pay their fair share of taxes, and close property tax loopholes benefitting the absentee owners of luxury Manhattan condominiums.

HEDGE FUNDS AND HEDGE FUND MANAGERS AREN'T PAYING THEIR FAIR SHARE IN TAXES

Hedge funds and hedge fund managers use a number of specific loopholes in federal, state and local law to avoid taxes in New York.

Problem: Hedge funds use the "carried interest" loophole to avoid fair taxation.

By defining a large portion of their massive income as "carried interest," hedge fund managers avoid fair-share taxes at the federal, state and local level in New York

Federal legislation to close the "carried interest" loophole is estimated to generate $17 billion dollars over ten years, an average of $1.7 billion per year.^[6]

When a hedge fund manager invests capital provided by a limited partner, they typically take a share of the profits from that investment as a fee. That share is known as "carried interest." This income should be subject to taxation, the same as any other income – but it isn't.

Lost revenue under the loophole is largely the result of taxing personal income derived from carried interest at the difference between the federal capital gains rate and the top individual income tax rate — that difference is 19.6 percentage points. Essentially, this is performance compensation – just like tips for a waiter or waitresses are performance compensation. But while a waitress is obliged to pay full income tax on this money, a hedge fund manager isn't.

A new 19.6 percent surtax on carried interest, if adopted by all the states, would generate $1.7 billion per year. Each one percent of surtax would generate $89.5 million per annum nationwide. The Fiscal Policy Institute estimated in 2008 that 44% of the earnings of private equity occurred in New York City.^[7]

If we assume that holds true today, then a 2.5 percent surtax applied to hedge fund income that is not being taxed appropriately at the federal level would generate $100 million per year for New York, repatriating lost revenue for use to fund schools and essential public services here.

Problem: Non-resident hedge fund managers are dodging New York State income taxes on much of their income

The 2010 Executive Budget proposal proposed to “expand the nonresident personal income tax to include income received from hedge fund management fees.” Currently, only a small portion of such income is taxed as compensation, with the remainder deemed tax-free capital gains. This proposal would result in equal treatment of this income for residents and nonresidents, and raise at least $50 million per year.

Problem: The “carried interest” loophole allows hedge funds to avoid many New York City business taxes

The City taxes a portion of the fees received by managing partners in private equity and hedge funds under its business tax system but exempts a portion known as “carried interest” from taxation.

When a fund manager invests capital provided by a limited partner, they typically take a share of the profits from that investment. That share is known as “carried interest,” and avoids City taxes.

Eliminating this loophole would put the taxation of private equity and hedge funds on the same footing as that of thousands of smaller businesses.

The New York City Independent Budget Office has estimated that eliminating the carried interest exemption from the New York City Unincorporated Business Tax would yield $200 million a year.^[8]

Problem: Hedge funds and luxury real estate developers use “LLCs” (limited liability corporations) to solicit huge investments, shield investors and limit taxation.

Some LLCs have huge amounts of New York State gross income — but they don’t pay their fair share in taxes and fees, unlike the small-to-medium sized businesses that anchor most communities.

From 2003 to 2006, New York instituted a fair-share LLC fee structure, which was later replaced with a flat-fee structure that allows hedge funds and speculative investment pools to avoid their fair share of the cost of public goods.

Since some LLCs have massive gross income, it would be fitting to apply roughly the same minimum taxes for other corporations (i.e. the 9A corporate tax) to the LLC fee structure.

The current 9A structure includes a fixed-dollar minimum corporate tax for businesses with gross income of $500M-$1B at $100,000, and for those with gross income > $1 B, the fixed dollar minimum tax is $200,000.

For 2015, DOB projects that the current LLC fee structure will generate $88 million. According to analysis by the Fiscal Policy Institute, a fair-share fee structure is projected to generate approximately $600 million, or roughly $500 million more than the existing fee structure.

Problem: Cuomo eliminated the corporate minimum tax

The business tax “reform” package enacted by Governor Cuomo in 2014 will cost the state $440 million or more annually in reduced taxes when fully phased in.

Cuomo’s changes eliminated the capital base alternative tax (“corporate minimum tax”), which could result in some very large corporations paying a miniscule amount of tax relative to the volume of business they conduct in New York – possibly including hedge funds.

It should be restored and the cap increased to $25 million, to make sure big corporations doing business in New York pay at least some taxes.

Problem: Multi-millionaires and billionaires with huge yearly personal incomes are paying a smaller share of their income in state and local taxes than the middle class.

New York’s current “temporary” top income tax bracket is 8.82% for incomes of $2 million and over – and it is set to expire in 2017.

In 2010, there were about 3800 households filing taxes in New York with incomes at or over $10 million per year

A new 11% tax rate for this group would generate $1.7 billion per year in fair-share revenue for schools and services. Less than half (47%) of those affected are full-year New York State residents – many are hedge fund managers with homes all around the world

Instituting these new top rates would put the combined New York City and New York State top rate very close to the combined rate for California and San Francisco, leaving Silicon Valley wealth and hedge fund/Wall Street wealth comparably taxed.

Problem: Wall Street trading firms making billions in profit and getting taxpayer subsidies

Right now, investments in buildings and equipment used by broker/dealers are eligible for an investment tax credit. The credit is complex, subject to extensive recapture and concentrated among relatively few taxpayers, providing benefits to an extremely affluent and limited segment of the financial services industry.

For the last year for which data is available only 28 filers used this credit.^[9]

This reform was recommended by the Solomon/McCall Tax Reform and Fairness Commission and was also proposed by Governor Cuomo in January 2014.^[10]

Problem: Luxury Manhattan apartment owners from out of state or overseas that don’t live in their multi-million-dollar condos but still get special tax breaks

This reform gives pied-a-terre owners a choice: live full-time in your apartments and get tax breaks, or don’t live in them full-time and give up the breaks.

If each of the roughly 90,000 absentee-owner units in New York City were assigned a very modest average market value of $1.5 million each and a current tax assessment that – with 421a benefits, phase-in caps and improper assessments – equals about one-quarter of the real market value of the unit.^[11]

With these assumptions, a 1.1 per cent tax rate on true market value would produce more than $900 million in new city revenues annually.

The Fiscal Policy Institute, using a similar analysis, has recommended that New York City introduce a graduated 4 percent tax based on comparable sales for all absentee-owner units with a market value of more than $5 million; that proposal, which would concentrate the tax burden on units worth more than $25 million, would bring in an estimated $250 million in new revenue every year.^[12]

The state STAR program recently instituted a similar ban on tax breaks for second homes.

FAIR-SHARE REVENUE OPTIONS WOULD ENSURE HEDGE FUNDS DON'T DODGE TAXES AND FULLY FUND OUR PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM

Fair-share taxes and fees targeting hedge funds, billionaires, high-income LLCs and tax-dodging big corporations can raise between $3.1 and $4.2 billion dollars per year — more than enough to pay for complete compliance with the Campaign for Fiscal Equitss (“CFE”) decision, ensuring fair funding for all public schools.

Lawmakers should move forward with enough of the fair-share revenue options outlined in this report to ensure that this year’s state budget includes $2.2 billion in new school aid to comply with CFE and pay down Gap Elimination Adjustment arrears.

CLOSE HEDGE FUND TAX LOOPHOLES

- Repatriate New York State Share of Tax Revenue Lost to Federal Carried Interest Loophole: $100 million
- Tax Nonresident Hedge Fund Management Fees: $50 million
- Eliminate the Carried Interest Exemption under New York City’s Unincorporated Business Tax: $200 million

These initiatives close the “carried interest loophole” that lets hedge funds making billions in profits pay less in taxes than small businesses in our local communities, and assure that hedge fund managers working in New York but living elsewhere pay their fair share of taxes.

INSIST ON MINIMUM FAIR-SHARE TAXES FROM HEDGE FUNDS AND BIG CORPORATIONS

- Restore the Capital Base Alternative Tax (“Corporate Minimum Tax”) to the Corporate Franchise Tax: $500-$700 million
- Update LLC filing fees (applies to LLCs & non-LLC partnerships): $500 million
- Repeal the Financial Services Investment Tax Credit: $30 million

These initiatives assure that high-income LLCs, Wall Street and big businesses pay their fair share, while protecting local small businesses in our communities.

ENSURE THE SUPER-RICH PAY THEIR FAIR SHARE

- New top brackets on Personal Income Tax (PIT) 11% at $10M: up to $1.7 billion
- Close the Pied-a-terre Tax Abatement Loophole: $250-$900 million
- Helicopter Commuter Tax: $10 million

These initiatives ensure that billionaires and multi-millionaires pay their fair share of taxes, and close property tax loopholes benefitting the absentee owners of luxury Manhattan condominiums.

POSSIBLE ACTION: Submit Letter from MBdB (and other mayors) on ideas for working groups on tax reforms.

- Could we get press around this?

Hatch, Wyden Launch New Effort to Seek Input on Bipartisan Tax Reform

Stakeholders and the Public Asked to Submit Ideas to Working Groups

WASHINGTON – Finance Committee Chairman Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) and Ranking Member Ron Wyden (D-Ore.) today announced a bipartisan effort to begin soliciting ideas from interested members of the public and stakeholders on how best to overhaul the nation’s broken tax code to make it simpler, fairer, and more efficient. The goal of this effort is to provide additional input, data, and information to the Committee’s bipartisan tax working groups, which are currently analyzing existing tax law and examining policy trade-offs and available reform options within each group’s designated area.

“By opening up our bipartisan working groups to public input, we hope to gain a greater understanding of how tax policy affects individuals, businesses, and civic groups across our nation,” Hatch and Wyden said. “In doing so, we will also equip our working groups with valuable input, and we hope these suggestions will help guide the groups through the arduous task of putting forth substantive ideas to reform the tax code in each of their areas.”

Individuals, businesses, organizations, and advocacy groups interested in submitting comments should send an email to the below bipartisan group or groups that relates to their area of interest. Please send submissions to each group of jurisdiction if an interest area covers more than one group.

Individual Income Tax - Individual@finance.senate.gov

Business Income Tax - Business@finance.senate.gov

Savings & Investment - Savings@finance.senate.gov

International Tax - International@finance.senate.gov

Community Development & Infrastructure - CommunityDevelopment@finance.senate.gov

Additional Submission Requirements:

- All submissions must be submitted as a pdf attachment. The attachment should be saved using the name of the organization/individual submitting the recommendations.
- Parties should list the name of the tax working group they wish to contact in the subject line of the email.
- Please include contact name, organization (if the submission is being submitted on behalf of a group), phone number, and email address, in the body of the email.
- Submissions will be accepted through April 15, 2015, and made public at a later date.
- If the above directions are not followed, the Committee reserves the right to not include the submission.
- If technical problems are incurred, parties can contact the Committee at 202-224-4515.

Each of the five bipartisan working groups is currently working to produce findings on current tax policy and legislative recommendations within its area, with the goal of having recommendations from each of the five working groups completed by the end of May. Submissions from stakeholders will be reviewed by the working groups and ideas can be incorporated into the each working group's final recommendations. The five working group recommendations will be delivered to Chairman Hatch and Ranking Member Wyden, and will be considered in developing bipartisan tax reform legislation.

From: John Del Cecato
To: Stephanie Yazgi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Fink, Avi
Subject: Re: state of briefing
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 11:31:33 AM

Off top of my head, I think it's gonna be carried interest, millionaire's tax (state level) and one other non-city-level thing as our menu of options

From: Stephanie Yazgi <[REDACTED]>
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 at 11:25 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmmedia.com>, Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <gschnakemahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Fink, Avi" <AFink@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: state of briefing

i need some help paring it down but this call will help

john- not sure what in this is best in describing carried interest loophole is it true that the three we chose w emma and neal are good fed, state and muni level taxes?
]talk more in 5

thanks

From: John Del Cecato
To: Abeywardena, Penny; Graham, Matthew; Liz Hegarty
Subject: Re: Thank you!
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 12:33:03 PM

Adding Liz from my shop too

From: <Abeywardena>, "Abeywardena, Penny" <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 at 12:20 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Graham, Matthew" <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: Thank you!

Fantastic! Matt can help us find something for early next week. Thanks John!

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 12:15 PM
To: Abeywardena, Penny
Subject: Re: Thank you!

Yes, would love to do that! This week is rough - but let's set it up

From: <Abeywardena>, Penny <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 at 11:36 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Thank you!

Hey John,

Amanda mentioned that you are working on the Mayor's upcoming progressive agenda, which will result in an event at Grace in early April and also take him out on the road domestically. Do you have time to meet with me and my two deputies so that we can formulate a complementary international plan?

Thanks,
Penny

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Friday, March 06, 2015 6:48 PM
To: Abeywardena, Penny
Subject: Re: Thank you!

Same here, Penny! Talk soon

On Mar 6, 2015, at 6:11 PM, Abeywardena, Penny <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

John,

Great to meet you in person! and thank you for lunch!

Invite to Gracie reception on Monday night is coming your way today, let me know if you don't receive it. I'm really looking forward to working with you and appreciate your support as we build this global platform for what's working in New York City.

Cheers,
Penny

Penny Abeywardena | Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: \(212\) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: Leopold, Elana
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Aaron Pickrell
Subject: Re: Call with mayor Bill de Blasio
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 2:34:28 PM

Not yet
Mpc is helping me with congressman

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 17, 2015, at 2:31 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Ok thanks

Any luck on others?

From: <Leopold>, Elana <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 at 2:10 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Aaron PickrellEmail
<>
Subject: Fwd: Call with mayor Bill de Blasio

Fyi

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: "Kelly, Teresa [NEA]" <TKelly@nea.org>
Date: March 17, 2015 at 1:38:01 PM EDT
To: "'de Alwis, Ronalie'" <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "'Leopold, Elana'" <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: Call with mayor Bill de Blasio

Dear Ronalie,

This is to acknowledge receipt of your e-mail. President Eskelsen Garcia is in an all-day meeting today that she's chairing; therefore, she's not available for a phone call today, but can be available tomorrow afternoon anytime between 4:00 and 5:00 pm. Please let me know if this would work for the Mayor.

Best,

Teresa Kelly
Confidential Assistant to the President
National Education Association
Tel: 202-822-7192

From: de Alwis, Ronalie [<mailto:rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>]
Sent: Monday, March 16, 2015 12:07 PM
To: Kelly, Teresa [NEA]
Cc: Leopold, Elana
Subject: Call with mayor Bill de Blasio

Hi Teresa,

Hope all is well. The mayor is looking to reach out to Lilly at some point this afternoon. Do you have a direct number he could reach her at?

Thanks,
Ronalie

Only the individual sender is responsible for the content of the message, and the message does not necessarily reflect the position or policy of the National Education Association or its affiliates.

From: Stephanie Yazgi
To: Fink, Avi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; John Del Cecato
Subject: updated briefing
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 5:22:18 PM
Attachments: Progressive Taxation v4 briefing.docx

i still think we need someone real to do more background on the policy pieces here. also potentially need background on the mayors? can we use items from GG's Mayor's bullets doc?

otherwise pretty much everything is contained in the memo

Progressive Mayors Pull Aside

DESCRIPTION:

MBdB convenes group for 1-hour post dinner from 8 PM to 9 PM in conference room nearby to dinner location.

ATTENDEES:

Murray (Seattle)

Adler (Austin)

Hodges (Minneapolis)

Landrieu (New Orleans)

Tentative: Wharton (Memphis), Cownie (Des Moines) and Walsh generally reserves Sunday night for family night though may be convinced to stay

VISION:

Mayor facilitates conversation among mayors that focuses on efforts to tackle income inequality, describes a few examples, asks for opinions and ideas that folks are comfortable working on locally, and how they can potentially work together on the national front. This is a low-key closed event with just an initial brainstorm to gauge interest and enthusiasm that maybe can have some key takeaways to move the conversation forward in a more formalized way, to build rapport with mayors in the room, and to enlist participants as partners in championing real solutions to income inequality.

STAFF:

A staffer should be in the room but only to take notes for future action and planning.

DESIRED OUTCOMES:

- Participants walk away with sense that their power as mayors isn't limited to what they can do in municipality, but that they can impact and should be leading voice in states and nationally. Send message that we will not wait for Washington to act while our municipalities suffer, but that we will come up with ideas, enact them locally while working on parallel track to change national policy as well.
- Conversation and agreement that they would help push for progressive taxation and other agreed upon issues.
- Participants agree to be part of ongoing working group to share ideas and plan action
- Agree on exploring opportunities for joint appearances in media to speak out on issues of importance to us

GUIDING QUESTIONS:

What powers do you have locally to change policies that help combat income inequality?

What are you doing locally on:

- Paid sick leave?
- Universal Pre-k and after school programs?
- Family leave?

How can we learn to lure companies that respect right to organize?

How are we increasing minimum wage at every level (local, state, federal)?

Can we agree we will call on major employers in our cities to raise minimum wage above current fed or city minimum wage?

What other ideas do we have to lift the floor for working people?

What are the obstacles? What are the solutions to those obstacles?

How can we learn from each other?

ACTIONS:

- Possible outcomes are that they could agree to send comment to federal tax reform working groups jointly or individually
- Mayors could invite each other to come to visit/ tour innovative programs in each of their home cities
- They could commission memo on areas of interest to discuss in a more formal way or panel at an upcoming USCM conference or other gathering (San Francisco June 2015)
- A sign-on letter urging the President for executive action on an issue of joint interest (Examples: Raise minimum wage for federal contractors to $15; give preference to companies that recognize right to organize)
- MBdB to offer to be a liaison to potentially get invitations to other mayors to attend Democracy Alliance gatherings
- MBdB to offer staff to serve as liaison between innovative national think tanks (Campaign for America's Future, Economic Policy Institute, Center for America's Progress, et al) that are producing good policy in order to help us commission more municipally relevant reports on areas of interest

N.B.: We should not mention the gathering at Gracie Mansion to the mayors in the room since it is not open for attendance

RESEARCH:

The following research contains a number of descriptions of progressive taxation initiatives, however we should focus mainly on the following options:

- Carried interest loophole (federal- need more research on this)
- Mansion Tax (state)
- Pied-à-terre tax (state)
- Bad Business Fee (municipal)

TAKE EMMA'S TEMPERATURE WITH IF THIS IS OK?

Policy: Bad Business Fee

Description: "When workers have a voice in the process to determine wages and conditions, our democracy thrives. Expanding workers' ability to negotiate – either directly with their employers or through a Bad Business Fee – gets us closer to wresting some control back from the corporate 1% and on the path toward healing our ailing economy." Jobs with Justice, "[Low Wages are Bad Business"]

Details: "Allow a government to levy significant fines on a company that is paying excessively low wages and relying on taxpayers to foot the bill. Companies would be incentivized to work with and respond to their employees requests for fair wages and adequate benefits directly. Otherwise they would pay for parallel social services through a fee that workers and community members have input over. In other words, a bad actor in our economy is held accountable to either provide a good job or supply income or subsidies for existing and unemployed workers." Jobs with Justice, "[Low Wages are Bad Business"]

Resources: Jobs with Justice, "Low Wages are Bad Business". Liz Ryan Murray of National People's action is the expert on this issue: Liz@npa-us.org.

Policy: Mansion tax

Description: A 1% levy on all homes and apartment sales over $1 million.

Details: New York State's mansion tax was first instituted in 1989 by the NYS Legislature and Governor Mario Cuomo. The NYS Division of Budget estimated that the tax generated $259 million for the state in fiscal year 2012-2013.

Resources: WSJ, "City Eyes Mansion-Tax Boost to Assist Affordable Housing", 11/18/2014; NY Post, "Mansion Tax Produces Geyser of Revenue for New York", 3/20/2014]

Policy: Pied-à-terre tax

Description: Non-NYC residents avoid paying personal income taxes and benefit from large property tax exemptions, yet they continue to utilize city services and infrastructure. Instituting a pied-à-terre tax on wealthy, non-residential owners of NYC properties would bring much needed balance and fairness to our city's tax system.

Details: Instituting a property tax surcharge on expensive apartments and homes (over $5 million) that are owned by non-city residents. The annual surcharge, ranging from .5% to 4% would raise $665 million a year in revenue. Crain's NY Business, "Manhattan Democrats to introduce pied-à-terre tax bill", [9/22/2014]

Resources: Fiscal Policy Institute, "FPI proposes a tax on the most expensive NYC pied-a terre residential units", 9/22/2014

Policy: Close Federal Carried Interest Loophole

Description: Close the "carried interest loophole" that lets hedge funds making billions in profits pay less in taxes than small businesses in our local communities, and assure that hedge fund managers pay their fair share of taxes.

Details: Federal legislation to close the "carried interest" loophole is estimated to generate $17 billion dollars over ten years, an average of $1.7 billion per year.[\[6\]](#)

When a hedge fund manager invests capital provided by a limited partner, they typically take a share of the profits from that investment as a fee. That share is known as "carried interest." This income should be subject to taxation, the same as any other income – but it isn't.

Lost revenue under the loophole is largely the result of taxing personal income derived from carried interest at the difference between the federal capital gains rate and the top individual income tax rate — that difference is 19.6 percentage points.

Essentially, this is performance compensation – just like tips for a waiter or waitresses are performance compensation. But while a waitress is obliged to pay full income tax on this money, a hedge fund manager isn't.

A new 19.6 percent surtax on carried interest, if adopted by all the states, would generate $1.7 billion per year. Each one percent of surtax would generate $89.5 million per annum nationwide. The Fiscal Policy Institute estimated in 2008 that 44% of the earnings of private equity occurred in New York City.[\[7\]](#)

If we assume that holds true today, then a 2.5 percent surtax applied to hedge fund income that is not being taxed appropriately at the federal level would generate $100 million per year for New York, repatriating lost revenue for use to fund schools and essential public services here.

IN NYC: By defining a large portion of their massive income as "carried interest," hedge fund managers avoid fair-share taxes at the federal, state and local level in New York

Resources: [Dealbook, NYT: http://dealbook.nytimes.com/2014/05/14/why-hedge-funds-dont-worry-about-carried-interest-tax-rules/?_r=0]

From: Liz Hegarty
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Meeting with Penny and Deputy Commissioners
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 6:44:46 PM

Great, confirmed for the 24th at 1 PM at your offices. Thanks!

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 at 3:47 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Meeting with Penny and Deputy Commissioners

Thanks, Liz.

The 24th at 1PM is perfect. It would be great if John could meet here, but let me know if that won't work.

Thanks!

Matt

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 4:19 PM
To: Graham, Matthew
Subject: Re: Meeting with Penny and Deputy Commissioners

Hi Matt,

Thanks for following up.

Could we do 1 PM on 3/24? We could also do 10 AM on 3/25 if it makes things easier on your end.

Is it best for John to come by your office?

Thanks!

Liz

From: <Graham>, Matthew <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 at 2:43 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Meeting with Penny and Deputy Commissioners

Hi, Liz.

I'm just writing to see if we can find a time for John to meet with Penny and our two Deputy Commissioner, Mike and Hillary.

Tuesday the 24th looks good for us between 11 and 5:30.

Also available:

Wed, 3/25: 9:30-1:30, 4-5:30.

Would you let me know if there's a time that works best for John?

Thanks again!

Matt

Matt Graham | Special Assistant to the Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: (212) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 12:33 PM
To: Abeywardena, Penny; Graham, Matthew; Liz Hegarty
Subject: Re: Thank you!

Adding Liz from my shop too

From: <Abeywardena>, "Abeywardena, Penny" <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 at 12:20 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Graham, Matthew" <mgraham@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: Thank you!

Fantastic! Matt can help us find something for early next week. Thanks John!

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 12:15 PM
To: Abeywardena, Penny
Subject: Re: Thank you!

Yes, would love to do that! This week is rough - but let's set it up

From: <Abeywardena>, Penny <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, March 17, 2015 at 11:36 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Thank you!

Hey John,

Amanda mentioned that you are working on the Mayor's upcoming progressive agenda, which will result in an event at Grace in early April and also take him out on the road domestically. Do you have time to meet with me and my two deputies so that we can formulate a complementary international plan?

Thanks,
Penny

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Friday, March 06, 2015 6:48 PM
To: Abeywardena, Penny
Subject: Re: Thank you!

Same here, Penny! Talk soon

On Mar 6, 2015, at 6:11 PM, Abeywardena, Penny <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

John,

Great to meet you in person! and thank you for lunch!

Invite to Gracie reception on Monday night is coming your way today, let me know if you don't receive it. I'm really looking forward to working with you and appreciate your support as we build this global platform for what's working in New York City.

Cheers,
Penny

Penny Abeywardena | Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: \(212\) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Ko, Eunice; "nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com"; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\); Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Ragone, Peter; Katz, Rebecca; Shorris, Anthony; "Jonathan@berlinrosen.com"; Chao, Raymond; Thornton, Demetrius; Darlington, Mandy \(OMB\); Griffith, Chantell; Wiley, Maya; Hagelgans, Andrea; Williams, Dominic; Howe, Amanda; "lhegarty@akpdmedia.com"; John, Roxanne; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Wednesday, March 18, 2015 6:36:47 PM

This will start on time

From: Thornton, Demetrius
To: [REDACTED] "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: Fwd: TPA Monday Update
Date: Wednesday, March 18, 2015 11:52:21 PM

I'm on guys! Will make moves tomorrow and circle back w/ progress.

Thanks!

From: Roxanne John [mailto:[REDACTED]]
Sent: Wednesday, March 18, 2015 11:40 PM
To: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>; Thornton, Demetrius; John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Fwd: TPA Monday Update

Let's try this again.
+Demetrius

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Date: March 18, 2015 at 10:10:01 PM EDT
To: Roxanne John <[REDACTED]>
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Thanks Roxanne. Don't think Demetrius made it onto the chain — I can just reach out though if you send me his email.

On Mar 18, 2015, at 9:49 PM, Roxanne John <[REDACTED]> wrote:

Gents,

I am copying Demetrius Thornton who will work with IT and Fromo on the logistics.

Please keep us posted on other logistics needed.

Thanks

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 18, 2015, at 12:52 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Hey Roxanne. I don't know if I ever formally introduced you to my colleague Jon Fromowitz - aka, "Fromo." He's the tall guy with glasses who sometimes stakes out Michael Carey's office with me.

Anyway, I had a request for both of you - or for your designee, Roxanne. We have a couple of folks (Howard Dean, Van Jones) who REALLY want to participate in the Gracie Confab on 4/2, but just cannot make the travel sked work.

I told the boss that I would do everything I could to have a video conference capability - just in case.

Fromo - I know the AMG guys do video conferencing all the time. Can you check with them on how they do that on the Big Screen?

Roxanne - can you or someone you love find out if there's a big screen (or white wall) available in Gracie - or, even better, if you've done something like this from Gracie before?

Thanks so much - and let me know what I can do to help

From: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Reply-To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Date: Wednesday, March 18, 2015 at 12:39 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Van Jones will try to be there, but it's hard on his schedule. Asked if he could video conference in, which I told him I wasn't comfortable with. That being said, we should consider if there's any reason video conferencing would be worth it for him, Howard Dean, etc. I'm opposed, but worth discussing

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato
To: Jon Fromowitz; Thornton, Demetrius
Cc: [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update
Date: Thursday, March 19, 2015 8:07:28 AM

Thanks Demetrius!

One update - Van Jones reworked his stuff & WILL be there in person - so this would just POSSIBLY be for Howard Dean (although the boss may veto in the end)

From: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Thursday, March 19, 2015 at 7:30 AM
To: "Thornton, Demetrius" <DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Roxanne Johns <[REDACTED]> John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Thanks -- sounds good! Feel free to give me a buzz if you want to talk anything through: [REDACTED]

On Mar 18, 2015, at 11:52 PM, Thornton, Demetrius <DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I'm on guys! Will make moves tomorrow and circle back w/ progress.

Thanks!

From: Roxanne John [[mailto:\[REDACTED\]](mailto:[REDACTED])]
Sent: Wednesday, March 18, 2015 11:40 PM
To: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>; Thornton, Demetrius; John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Fwd: TPA Monday Update

Let's try this again.

+Demetrius

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Date: March 18, 2015 at 10:10:01 PM EDT
To: Roxanne John <[REDACTED]>
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Thanks Roxanne. Don't think Demetrius made it onto the chain — I can just reach out though if you send me his email.

On Mar 18, 2015, at 9:49 PM, Roxanne John <[REDACTED]> wrote:

Gents,

I am copying Demetrius Thornton who will work with IT and Fromo on the logistics.

Please keep us posted on other logistics needed.

Thanks

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 18, 2015, at 12:52 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Hey Roxanne. I don't know if I ever formally introduced you to my colleague Jon Fromowitz - aka, "Fromo." He's the tall guy with glasses who sometimes stakes out Michael Carey's office with me.

Anyway, I had a request for both of you - or for your designee, Roxanne. We have a couple of folks (Howard Dean, Van Jones) who REALLY want to participate in the Gracie Confab on 4/2, but just cannot make the travel sked work.

I told the boss that I would do everything I could to have a video conference capability - just in case.

Fromo - I know the AMG guys do video conferencing all the time. Can you check with them on how they do that on the Big Screen?

Roxanne - can you or someone you love find out if there's a big screen (or white wall) available in Gracie - or, even better, if you've done something like this from Gracie before?

Thanks so much - and let me know what I can do to help

From: Bill de Blasio

<[REDACTED]>

Reply-To: Bill de Blasio

<[REDACTED]>

Date: Wednesday, March 18, 2015 at 12:39 PM

To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Cc: Aaron PickrellEmail

<[REDACTED]>

Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Van Jones will try to be there, but it's hard on his schedule. Asked if he could video conference in, which I told him I wasn't comfortable with. That being said, we should consider if there's any reason video conferencing would be worth it for him, Howard Dean, etc. I'm opposed, but worth discussing

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: [REDACTED]
To: Anna Greenberg
Cc: Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Ko, Eunice; Howe, Amanda; de Alwis, Ronalie; Bray, Jackie; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; P RAGONE; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: MBDB: Conference Call on Focus Groups (FLONYC should join if she wants)
Date: Friday, March 20, 2015 6:13:31 PM

Ok-- we can move if need be to tomorrow

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 20, 2015, at 6:10 PM, Anna Greenberg <agreenberg@gqrr.com> wrote:

I'm at a conference. There is a section where I'm presenting. Hopefully it won't start before 7pm, but I can't really stay on for much longer than that.

From: [REDACTED] [[mailto:\[REDACTED\]](mailto:[REDACTED])]
Sent: Friday, March 20, 2015 6:09 PM
To: MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov; rchao@cityhall.nyc.gov; EKo@cityhall.nyc.gov; AHowe@cityhall.nyc.gov; rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov; JBray@cityhall.nyc.gov; Phil Walzak; Emma Wolfe; peter ragone; John Del Cecato; Anna Greenberg
Subject: Re: MBDB: Conference Call on Focus Groups (FLONYC should join if she wants)

+++++

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 20, 2015, at 5:56 PM, [REDACTED] wrote:

We are delayed. This call will happen closer to 6:30

MBDB: Conference Call on Focus Groups (FLONYC should join if she wants)

Scheduled: Friday, Mar 20, 2015 from 6:00 PM to 6:30 PM

Location: [REDACTED]

Invitees: Carey, Michael , Chao, Raymond , Ko, Eunice , Howe, Amanda , de Alwis, Ronalie , Bray, Jackie

Sent from my iPhone

From: [REDACTED]
To: Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Anna Greenberg; Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Ko, Eunice; Howe, Amanda; de Alwis, Ronalie; Bray, Jackie; Walzak, Phil; P RAGONE; John Del Cecato; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: MBDB: Conference Call on Focus Groups (FLONYC should join if she wants)
Date: Friday, March 20, 2015 6:18:18 PM

Ok- lets reschedule

Sorry team

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 20, 2015, at 6:10 PM, Wolfe, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Elana if we can't make happen in realistic way by 630 then lets resked for Anna

On Mar 20, 2015, at 6:09 PM, Anna Greenberg <agreenberg@gqrr.com> wrote:

I'm at a conference. There is a section where I'm presenting. Hopefully it won't start before 7pm, but I can't really stay on for much longer than that.

From: [REDACTED] [[mailto:\[REDACTED\]](mailto:[REDACTED])]
Sent: Friday, March 20, 2015 6:09 PM
To: MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov; rchao@cityhall.nyc.gov; Eko@cityhall.nyc.gov; AHowe@cityhall.nyc.gov; rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov; JBray@cityhall.nyc.gov; Phil Walzak; Emma Wolfe; peter ragone; John Del Cecato; Anna Greenberg
Subject: Re: MBDB: Conference Call on Focus Groups (FLONYC should join if she wants)

+++++

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 20, 2015, at 5:56 PM, [REDACTED] wrote:

We are delayed. This call will happen closer to 6:30

MBDB: Conference Call on Focus Groups (FLONYC should join if she wants)

Scheduled: Friday, Mar 20, 2015 from 6:00 PM to 6:30 PM

Location: [REDACTED]

Invitees: Carey, Michael , Chao, Raymond , Ko, Eunice

, Howe, Amanda , de Alwis, Ronalie , Bray, Jackie

Sent from my iPhone

From: Thornton, Demetrius
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update
Date: Monday, March 23, 2015 2:29:44 PM

No problem, and that was/is the call out on IT's end...how's secure is this? How much can we control? Cisco was a one time shot and is not available for this.

Keep me posted. Thanks!

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, March 23, 2015 02:22 PM
To: Thornton, Demetrius; Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Roxanne John <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

So far it's either 1...or zero... It would be for Howard Dean - but not sure if the mayor is going to want to do it for just one person or not (since it would be kind of disruptive to have only one person video-conferencing into a live room) - but I will check - and I appreciate you being ready just in case!

From: <Thornton>, Demetrius <DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, March 23, 2015 at 12:16 PM
To: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Roxanne Johns <[REDACTED]> John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: TPA Monday Update

Guys,
Good Day! Working with IT to get the ball rolling. Do we know total number for this video conference? Just wanted to be sure.
Let me know.

Thanks!

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, March 19, 2015 5:28 PM
To: Thornton, Demetrius
Cc: Roxanne John; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Sounds good -- thanks again.

On Mar 19, 2015, at 5:22 PM, Thornton, Demetrius <DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

This may be an option.
I will pose as option once I hear back from Commissioner.

Thanks!

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, March 19, 2015 5:22 PM
To: Thornton, Demetrius
Cc: Roxanne John; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Thanks so much for the legwork, Demetrius!

Not sure how you or IT folks feel about it, but our tech-y sister company has had luck just using Google Hangout or Skype through a good laptop and TV (or projector).

If you think that's a viable approach, that might simplify things some...

On Mar 19, 2015, at 5:13 PM, Thornton, Demetrius
<DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

All,

So far, no luck on a quality video conferencing for this meeting. I am working with a Commissioner to see about partnership with Cisco who did something like you guys are describing before at Gracie, but it was a one off.

Trying to get it back again.

Will let you know more progress as I learn.

Thanks!

Demetrius

From: Roxanne John [<mailto:> [REDACTED]]
Sent: Wednesday, March 18, 2015 9:50 PM
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Jon Fromowitz
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Gents,

I am copying Demetrius Thornton who will work with IT and Fromo on the logistics.

Please keep us posted on other logistics needed.

Thanks

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 18, 2015, at 12:52 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Hey Roxanne. I don't know if I ever formally introduced you to my colleague Jon Fromowitz - aka, "Fromo." He's the tall guy with glasses who sometimes stakes out Michael Carey's office with me.

Anyway, I had a request for both of you - or for your designee, Roxanne. We have a couple of folks (Howard Dean, Van Jones) who REALLY want to participate in the Gracie Confab on 4/2, but just cannot make the travel sked work.

I told the boss that I would do everything I could to have a video conference capability - just in case.

Fromo - I know the AMG guys do video conferencing all the time. Can you check with them on how they do that on the Big Screen?

Roxanne - can you or someone you love find out if there's a big screen (or white wall) available in Gracie - or, even better, if you've done something like this from Gracie before?

Thanks so much - and let me know what I can do to help

From: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Reply-To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Date: Wednesday, March 18, 2015 at 12:39 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Van Jones will try to be there, but it's hard on his schedule. Asked if he could video conference in, which I told him I wasn't comfortable with. That being said, we should consider if there's any reason video conferencing would be worth it for him, Howard Dean, etc. I'm opposed, but worth discussing

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato
To: Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; B
Cc: @EO
Subject: Re: Sen Harkin
Date: Wednesday, March 25, 2015 11:49:03 AM

Woot woot!

From: <Carey>, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, March 25, 2015 at 11:44 AM
To: "Leopold, Elana" <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>, BDB Official <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Sen Harkin

Sir,

I spoke to his office since he is in the Bahamas.

He was just calling to let you know that they are working out sponsorship.

There is no need for you to call him back.

They will lock down an actual location on campus by the end of this week.

Here we come Nebraska and Iowa!

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall
New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

From: Leopold, Elana
Sent: Wednesday, March 25, 2015 10:20 AM
To: B
Cc: @EO; John Del Cecato
Subject: Nvm: Sen Harkin

Sen. Tom Harkin

NOTE:

The message was completely broken up and I was unable to understand the content of the message. I will make sure we find time to call back later today.

Sent from my iPhone

From: Thornton, Demetrius
To: "John Del Cecato"; Jon Fromowitz
Cc: Roxanne John
Subject: RE: TPA Monday Update
Date: Wednesday, March 25, 2015 3:24:53 PM

Thanks! See you later.

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 25, 2015 3:24 PM
To: Thornton, Demetrius; Jon Fromowitz
Cc: Roxanne John
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Thanks anyway, Demetrius. Just checked with the boss last night, and we won't be needing it (sorry - should have told you as soon as I learned)!

From: <Thornton>, Demetrius <DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, March 25, 2015 at 3:22 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Roxanne Johns <[REDACTED]>
Subject: RE: TPA Monday Update

Team,

It appears the video conferencing is not going to work with MIS and City IT.
I am assuming there won't be a need w/ 1 or zero.

Can we confirm?

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Monday, March 23, 2015 2:22 PM
To: Thornton, Demetrius; Jon Fromowitz
Cc: Roxanne John
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

So far it's either 1...or zero... It would be for Howard Dean - but not sure if the mayor is going to want to do it for just one person or not (since it would be kind of disruptive to have only one person video-conferencing into a live room) - but I will check - and I appreciate you being ready just in case!

From: <Thornton>, Demetrius <DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, March 23, 2015 at 12:16 PM
To: Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Roxanne Johns <[REDACTED]> John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: TPA Monday Update

Guys,

Good Day! Working with IT to get the ball rolling. Do we know total number for this video conference? Just wanted to be sure.
Let me know.

Thanks!

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, March 19, 2015 5:28 PM
To: Thornton, Demetrius
Cc: Roxanne John; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Sounds good -- thanks again.

On Mar 19, 2015, at 5:22 PM, Thornton, Demetrius <DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

This may be an option.
I will pose as option once I hear back from Commissioner.

Thanks!

From: Jon Fromowitz [<mailto:jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, March 19, 2015 5:22 PM
To: Thornton, Demetrius
Cc: Roxanne John; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Thanks so much for the legwork, Demetrius!

Not sure how you or IT folks feel about it, but our tech-y sister company has had luck just using Google Hangout or Skype through a good laptop and TV (or projector).

If you think that's a viable approach, that might simplify things some...

On Mar 19, 2015, at 5:13 PM, Thornton, Demetrius
<DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

All,
So far, no luck on a quality video conferencing for this meeting. I am working with a Commissioner to see about partnership with Cisco who did something like you guys are describing before at Gracie, but it was a one off.

Trying to get it back again.

Will let you know more progress as I learn.

Thanks!
Demetrius

From: Roxanne John [mailto: [REDACTED]]
Sent: Wednesday, March 18, 2015 9:50 PM
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Jon Fromowitz
Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Gents,

I am copying Demetrius Thornton who will work with IT and Fromo on the logistics.

Please keep us posted on other logistics needed.

Thanks

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 18, 2015, at 12:52 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Hey Roxanne. I don't know if I ever formally introduced you to my colleague Jon Fromowitz - aka, "Fromo." He's the tall guy with glasses who sometimes stakes out Michael Carey's office with me.

Anyway, I had a request for both of you - or for your designee, Roxanne. We have a couple of folks (Howard Dean, Van Jones) who REALLY want to participate in the Gracie Confab on 4/2, but just cannot make the travel sked work.

I told the boss that I would do everything I could to have a video conference capability - just in case.

Fromo - I know the AMG guys do video conferencing all the time. Can you check with them on how they do that on the Big Screen?

Roxanne - can you or someone you love find out if there's a big screen (or white wall) available in Gracie - or, even better, if you've done something like this from Gracie before?

Thanks so much - and let me know what I can do to help

From: Bill de Blasio < [REDACTED] >
Reply-To: Bill de Blasio < [REDACTED] >
Date: Wednesday, March 18, 2015 at 12:39 PM

To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Cc: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]>

Subject: Re: TPA Monday Update

Van Jones will try to be there, but it's hard on his schedule. Asked if he could video conference in, which I told him I wasn't comfortable with. That being said, we should consider if there's any reason video conferencing would be worth it for him, Howard Dean, etc. I'm opposed, but worth discussing

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: Carey, Michael
To: Liz Hegarty
Subject: This am-- urgent
Date: Friday, March 27, 2015 6:57:21 AM

Hey there

Mayor needs your conf room to do calls this am from 9-11. Possible?! Please!!

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

From: Carey, Michael
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Leopold, Elana
Subject: RE: Santa Clara
Date: Friday, March 27, 2015 3:37:20 PM

Yes that is part of the dialogue as well per our earlier conversation.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall
New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

From: B
Sent: Friday, March 27, 2015 3:37 PM
To: Carey, Michael; FLONYC
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Santa Clara

Pls confirm if the only time to speak effectively is in the evening, or if daytime would work. And in either instance, what time range. That will help John and Ross a lot with their planning. Thanks

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Friday, March 27, 2015 03:30 PM
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Santa Clara

Sir,

I just wanted to make sure you knew that I had a great conversation with Molly McDonald today at Santa Clara to discuss you speaking to the students. They couldn't be more thrilled and honored.

Nothing too much to report, but the dates we are thinking in May seem to work so far.

Best,

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall

New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

From: Abeywardena, Penny
To: "John Del Cecato"
Subject: RE: NYTimes: Netanyahu Told to Mend Ties With Washington
Date: Friday, March 27, 2015 5:16:33 PM

Good luck! Sending you good vibes!

-----Original Message-----

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Friday, March 27, 2015 4:47 PM
To: Abeywardena, Penny
Subject: Re: NYTimes: Netanyahu Told to Mend Ties With Washington

Not yet! trying

On 3/27/15, 4:29 PM, "Abeywardena, Penny" <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>Thanks for sending. How's the planning for Thursday going? Did you get >an extra hour squeezed in :)

>

>-----Original Message-----

>From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
>Sent: Thursday, March 26, 2015 9:46 AM
>To: Abeywardena, Penny
>Subject: NYTimes: Netanyahu Told to Mend Ties With Washington

>

><http://www.nytimes.com/2015/03/26/world/middleeast/netanyahu-told-to-me> >nd-

>ties-with-washington.html?smprod=nytcore-iphone&smid=nytcore-iphone-sha >re

>

>

>Senior members of Mr. Netanyahu's Likud party and the heads of the >ultranationalist Jewish Home and Yisrael Beiteinu factions are all >vying for the Foreign and Defense Ministries. Mr. Netanyahu has >promised the finance position to Moshe Kahlon, a former Likud minister >who formed Kulanu, a faction that focused on economic issues.

>

>

>

>

From: Carey, Michael
To: B
Cc: Leopold, Elana; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: Need call on Sunday to review ConFab plan with JDC and Aaron pls
Date: Friday, March 27, 2015 8:49:38 PM

Will do

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

On Mar 27, 2015, at 8:49 PM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

This message has no content.

From: John Del Cecato
To: BdB
Cc: Aaron Pickrell; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: HRC
Date: Friday, March 27, 2015 10:07:25 PM

Yes - got it. She will be in town for event with FLONYC, so you might even be able to connect in person!

> On Mar 27, 2015, at 9:24 PM, Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]> wrote:
>
>
> Reminder that I should call her the day before the Confab to update her and to ask if she's ready to discuss the vision she will present (per her suggestion). If I don't reach her, should reach Robby Mook that day
>
>
> Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato
To: Thornton, Demetrius
Cc: [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details
Date: Saturday, March 28, 2015 11:24:22 AM

Awesome - thanks so much!

On Mar 28, 2015, at 11:22 AM, Thornton, Demetrius <DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

John,
Shawanda Moore will be on site Gracie attendant for Ms. Morrison. If you have additional needs, let me know and I will communicate them to Shawanda.

Shawanda Moore
[REDACTED]

Thanks!

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Saturday, March 28, 2015 08:07 AM
To: Roxanne John <[REDACTED]>
Cc: Thornton, Demetrius
Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details

Thanks Roxanne.

Demetrius - can you let me know the name and mobile number for the attendant for Toni Morrison?

On Mar 28, 2015, at 12:54 AM, Roxanne John <[REDACTED]> wrote:

John,

Demetrius is point at Gracie [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] He can let you know who the attendant will be.

Roxanne
On Mar 27, 2015, at 2:59 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

+ RJ

Roxanne - would you know this - or is there someone I should reach out to?

On Mar 27, 2015, at 2:45 PM, Aaron Pickrell <[REDACTED]> wrote:

do you guys know who this will be?
----- Forwarded message -----
From: Ruth R. Boatman
<boatman@princeton.edu>
Date: Fri, Mar 27, 2015 at 2:45 PM
Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details
To: Aaron Pickrell
<[REDACTED]>

Aaron,

Thank you for this.

When you have a moment please confirm [REDACTED] the attendant's name and mobile number. Will that person be our on-the-ground contact for the day?

Have a lovely weekend!
Rene

On 3/25/2015 1:12 PM, Aaron Pickrell wrote:

Hi Rene -

We wanted to send a few more details about the upcoming meeting in New York City being hosted by Mayor de Blasio.

PLEASE KEEP THIS MEMO
CONFIDENTIAL, AS IT IS ONLY IN DRAFT FORM.

Below we have outlined some of the logistical details, the confirmed list of attendees, and a discussion draft that lays out some policies and goals for the group to consider.

We'd love your feedback on the discussion draft this week, if at all possible. Let us know if there are any questions or concerns about the list of topics.

Logistical Details

Thursday, April 2nd from Noon to 2:30 PM

Gracie Mansion – 88th
Street and East End Avenue, NYC

GOAL

The event will be an opportunity to exchange ideas and work together to elevate progressive economic issues into the national conversation.

THE PROBLEM

Income inequality is the crisis of our time.

Since the Great Recession ended, the One Percent have seen their real income grow by 35%. The 99 Percent have seen theirs grow 0.8%. Put another way, the One Percent captured 91% of the real income gains since 2009.

Our middle class is crumbling. Millions of Americans are stuck in poverty, slipping into poverty, or just barely clinging onto their spot in the middle class.

That must change.

THE CALL TO ACTION

We demand that those who lead our nation – and those who seek to lead it in the future – take a stand. Declare your commitment to a set of policies that will:

Rebuild the middle class.

Lift people out of poverty and into the middle class.

Require those at the top to pay their fair share.

THE FRAMEWORK

Right now, our economy is working extremely well for big multi-national corporations, Wall Street banks, and super-wealthy individuals who can afford high-priced lobbyists to game the system.

We demand a new approach, using every available lever of government to achieve it.

We need economic policies that reward work, not just wealth.

5 WAYS TO TACKLE INCOME INEQUALITY RIGHT NOW

1. Lift the Floor for Working People

- Raise the minimum wage.
- Require government contractors to pay workers a living wage.
- Call on businesses to raise wages for all workers. (WAGE TRACKER)

2. Promote Economic Patriotism

- Block trade deals that undermine American workers.
- Assess a Bad Business Fee on companies that benefit from American workers making wages so low that they require public assistance to be made whole.
- Give special preference in awarding contracts to businesses that recognize the right to organize.

3. Support Working Parents

- Paid sick leave.

- Paid family leave.
- Expand Pre-K, after-school programs, and childcare.

4. Tackle the Affordability Crisis

- Require developers to build affordable housing as a condition of new development.
- Allow students to refinance student loan debt.
- Invest in transportation and infrastructure, to get people to and from work more quickly, more safely, and more affordably.
- Expand the Earned Income Tax Credit.

5. Tax Fairness

- Close the carried interest loophole, so wealthy money managers don't pay a lower rate than those who work in manufacturing or the service industry.
- Create a new top tax rate on income earned above $1 million, and another for income earned over $1 billion.
- Repeal the income tax break on capital gains so that millionaires and billionaires aren't paying lower overall tax rates than those who work 9 to 5.
- Eliminate the deferral on corporate profits earned offshore.

RUN OF SHOW

- Welcome to Gracie and high-level overview of goals for the day – Mayor de Blasio
- Introductions
- Discussion of Goals
 - Elevate progressive issues in the national dialogue
- Discussion of issues to focus on
- Avenues for advancing policy
- Strategies for advancing agenda
- Next Steps

ATTENDEES

- Deepak Bhargava – Executive Director at Center for Community Change
- U.S. Senator Sherrod Brown (Ohio)
- Abigail Disney – filmmaker and philanthropist
- Maria Elena Durazo - Vice President for Immigration, Civil Rights and Diversity at UNITE HERE
- Congressman Raul Grijalva (Arizona) – Co-Chair of the U.S. House of Representatives Progressive Caucus
- Van Jones – Co-Founder of Rebuild the Dream
- Governor Dannel Malloy (Connecticut)
- Heather McGhee – President of Demos
- Toni Morrison – Professor and Author
- Jonathan Soros – Senior Fellow at Roosevelt Institute

- Ted Strickland – former Ohio Governor and current candidate for U.S. Senate

- Richard Trumka – President of the AFL-CIO

- Katrina vanden Heuvel – editor and publisher of The Nation

###

--
Rene Boatman
Assistant to Toni Morrison
C-2 J-1 Firestone Library
Princeton University
Princeton, NJ 08544
609-258-1071

From: Carey, Michael
To: Leopold, Elana; de Alwis, Ronalie; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Aaron Pickrell
[\[REDACTED\]](#) Dinzey, Ashley; "Liz Hegarty"
Subject: Re: MBDB: Call to Discuss Thursday Event
Date: Sunday, March 29, 2015 6:45:06 PM

Peeps he is behind.
Keep you posted
Prob closer to 730

From: MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov
When: 7:00 PM - 7:30 PM March 29, 2015
Subject: MBDB: Call to Discuss Thursday Event
Location: Dial-in Number: ([\[REDACTED\]](#)) Meeting ID: [\[REDACTED\]](#)

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: My news
Date: Monday, March 30, 2015 9:38:25 AM

Hey there –

I am talking to the Times this AM and would very much appreciate if you could squeeze in a call with them later to say nice things.

I'm leaving City Hall/ going to Hilltop.

Plan to help show that you don't have to be in NYC to be a progressive, get elected as a progressive and govern effectively as a progressive.

With you guys from the beginning, worked my heart out, and will continue working on the outside to help move our mission along.

--

Rebecca Kirszner Katz
Office of the Mayor
(212) 788-3112
rkkatz@cityhall.nyc.gov
@RebeccaKKatz

From: Abeywardena, Penny
To: "John Del Cecato"; Walzak, Phil
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; Howe, Amanda; Wright, Jessica
Subject: RE: Mayor of Tehran - World Cities Summit
Date: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 2:42:04 PM

Yep, triple checking with State given the nuclear deal today but if no complaints, Tehran mayor will receive invite.

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Monday, March 30, 2015 9:05 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Abeywardena, Penny
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; Howe, Amanda; Wright, Jessica
Subject: Re: Mayor of Tehran - World Cities Summit

I don't know enough about this to know what the right call is - but seems to me if the State Dept doesn't have a problem, then the NYC Mayor shouldn't stand in the way

From: <Walzak>, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, March 30, 2015 at 8:06 PM
To: "Abeywardena, Penny" <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Howe, Amanda" <AHowe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wright, Jessica" <JWright@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: Mayor of Tehran - World Cities Summit

Anyone object?>

From: Abeywardena, Penny
Sent: Monday, March 30, 2015 7:51 PM
To: Walzak, Phil
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato; Howe, Amanda; Wright, Jessica
Subject: Re: Mayor of Tehran - World Cities Summit

I haven't received any objections, so I plan on letting Singapore extend the invite.

Penny Abeywardena
Commissioner
Mayor's Office for International Affairs

On Mar 30, 2015, at 7:27 PM, Walzak, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Where did this land

From: Abeywardena, Penny
Sent: Monday, March 23, 2015 1:25 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; 'John Del Cecato'
Cc: Howe, Amanda; Wright, Jessica

Subject: Mayor of Tehran - World Cities Summit

Team- the Mayor of Tehran has requested an invite to World Cities. He's not a war criminal but he's also not our ideal values buddy either (details below). That said, NYC is hosting the World Cities Summit and I want to make sure we're as inclusive as possible (declining invitations quickly becomes a slippery slope). The invite would come from Singapore and the Mayor would, obviously, not meet with him and we can avoid any one-on-one photos.

If you have any objections, pls share. If I don't hear from you by end of week, I'll give Singapore the go ahead to invite.

Thanks,
Penny

Penny Abeywardena | Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: \(212\) 319-9300319-9300) | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: Wright, Jessica
Sent: Thursday, March 19, 2015 10:57 AM
To: Abeywardena, Penny
Subject: Tehran

Hi Penny- below is some information about the Mayor of Tehran as requested. Quick recap of the situation- Mayor Ghalibaf would like to attend the World Cities Summit and has formally requested an invitation. Singapore would like to honor their request and are asking for our approval.

Mayor of Tehran: Mohammad Bagher Ghalibaf

Mayor since 2005, population approx. 8.5M

Bio:

- From middle class family in Kurdish Iran, not elite like most in Iranian government

Career:

- Commander in Iraq-Iran War, then General in Revolutionary Guard
- PhD in Political Geography
- Head of Iranian law enforcement agency

Political considerations:

Conservative:

- Islamic Society of Engineers, formerly Ahmadinejad's party

Positions:

- Pro-foreign investment and pro-dialogue
- Asserts Iran "doesn't need" nuclear weapons
- Lost to Ahmadinejad (4th place) in presidential elections
- Believed sanctions to be damaging, but not the cause of all of Iran's problems

Mayoral agenda: called "authoritarian modernizer"

- Ranked as 8th best mayor in the world in 2008 by World Mayor
- Increased public participation through citizen councils
- Public service reforms and budget transparency
- Greened the city through tree planting and creating 1,500 parks
- Improved infrastructure, bus system, waste collection system
- Closely monitors 40 other municipal governments (including NYC) to import successful policies

Human Rights record:

- Admitted to violently repressing protesters numerous times: 1999 (personally beating), 2003 (ordering shooting), and after 2009 presidential elections

On anti-Semitism:

- Denounced Ahmadinejad's Holocaust denial, saying it had become an "excuse for our biggest enemies, which are the Zionists, and affected the goals of the Palestinians." He added that "defending the goals of the Palestinians is part of the principles of our foreign policy. Denying the Holocaust is not part of our foreign policy."
- He says Iran not anti-Semitic as it is opposed to Zionism, not to Judaism.

On women's rights:

- Does not "allow his wife to shake hands with men," and enforces some sex segregation within city government.
- Integrated the police force, opening it up to women recruits when he was chief

On LGBT rights: no comments were found

From: John Del Cecato
To: Thornton, Demetrius; Aaron Pickrell; Jon Fromowitz; Hayley Prim
Cc: Roxanne Johns
Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details
Date: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 4:15:30 PM

Thanks Demetrius! Will check

From: <Thornton>, Demetrius <DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 at 3:48 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>, Hayley Prim <[REDACTED]>
Cc: Roxanne Johns <[REDACTED]>
Subject: RE: Gracie Confab details

John,
Shawanda Moore's Title is House Attendant, she will manage meet/greet and close/departure as well as other needs in between.

Space will be accommodated for Ms. Morrison. This is a lunch meeting. (Any food needs for Ms. Morrison?)

Thanks!

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 11:39 AM
To: Aaron Pickrell; Jon Fromowitz; Thornton, Demetrius; Hayley Prim
Cc: Roxanne Johns
Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details

Adding Hayley, too - who is helping us out with logistics.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 at 9:37 AM
To: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>, "Thornton, Demetrius" <dthornton@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Roxanne Johns <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details

++

Demetrius - can you answer these Qs?

From: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]>
Date: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 at 9:34 AM

To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Fwd: Gracie Confab details

You guys have any insight?

Begin forwarded message:

From: "Ruth R. Boatman" <boatman@princeton.edu>
Date: March 31, 2015 at 9:09:22 AM EDT
To: Aaron Pickrell <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details

Hi Aaron,

Just a final confirmation:

Shawanda Moore [REDACTED] will meet Ms. Morrison when she arrives at the 88th St. & East End Ave entrance to Gracie Mansion just before Noon. [What is Ms. Moore's position/title?] Ms. Moore will attend Ms. Morrison through out her time at the venue and make sure she is escorted back to her car when the meeting concludes or is there an attendant?

Please make sure Ms. Moore knows where Ms. Morrison is to be seated during the event and that there is enough room [REDACTED] Does this meeting have a formal name? Is this a lunch meeting?

I will forward the driver's name and mobile shortly.

Rene

From: Leopold, Elana
To: B
Cc: @EQ; John Del Cecato
Subject: NVM: Richard Trumka
Date: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 4:20:00 PM

Rich Trumka

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

It's Rich. I am just trying to get in touch with you. Call me when you can, please.

From: Aaron Pickrell
To: Thornton, Demetrius; "John Del Cecato"; Jon Fromowitz; Hayley Prim
Cc: Roxanne Johns
Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details
Date: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 4:26:09 PM

Thx Demetrius - Ms. Morrison [REDACTED]

From: "Thornton, Demetrius" <DThornton@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 at 3:48 PM
To: 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, AARON PICKRELL <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>, Hayley Prim <[REDACTED]>
Cc: Roxanne Johns <[REDACTED]>
Subject: RE: Gracie Confab details

John,
Shawanda Moore's Title is House Attendant, she will manage meet/greet and close/departure as well as other needs in between.

Space will be accommodated for Ms. Morrison. This is a lunch meeting. (Any food needs for Ms. Morrison?)

Thanks!

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 11:39 AM
To: Aaron Pickrell; Jon Fromowitz; Thornton, Demetrius; Hayley Prim
Cc: Roxanne Johns
Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details

Adding Hayley, too - who is helping us out with logistics.

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 at 9:37 AM
To: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]> Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>, "Thornton, Demetrius" <dthornton@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: Roxanne Johns <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details

++

Demetrius - can you answer these Qs?

From: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]>
Date: Tuesday, March 31, 2015 at 9:34 AM

To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, Jon Fromowitz <jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Fwd: Gracie Confab details

You guys have any insight?

Begin forwarded message:

From: "Ruth R. Boatman" <boatman@princeton.edu>

Date: March 31, 2015 at 9:09:22 AM EDT

To: Aaron Pickrell <[REDACTED]>

Subject: Re: Gracie Confab details

Hi Aaron,

Just a final confirmation:

Shawanda Moore [REDACTED] will meet Ms. Morrison when she arrives at the 88th St. & East End Ave entrance to Gracie Mansion just before Noon. [What is Ms. Moore's position/title?] Ms. Moore will attend Ms. Morrison through out her time at the venue and make sure she is escorted back to her car when the meeting concludes or is there an attendant?

Please make sure Ms. Moore knows where Ms. Morrison is to be seated during the event and that there is enough room [REDACTED] Does this meeting have a formal name? Is this a lunch meeting?

I will forward the driver's name and mobile shortly.

Rene

From: John Del Cecato
To: Leopold, Elana
Cc: Katz, Rebecca
Subject: Re: When is Balz interview happening???
Date: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 3:13:55 PM

1 min

> On Apr 1, 2015, at 3:10 PM, Leopold, Elana <ELEopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> Now- JDC prepping
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
>> On Apr 1, 2015, at 3:09 PM, Katz, Rebecca <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>
>>
>>
>> Sent from my iPhone

From: Norvell, Wiley
To: Grybauskas, Natalie; John Del Cecato; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy \(OMB\); Adams, Marti; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015
Date: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 5:25:04 PM

Ishanee blasting now. All good.

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 5:25 PM
To: John Del Cecato; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Norvell, Wiley; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

PW, good with you?

From: John Del Cecato [jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 5:22 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Grybauskas, Natalie
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Norvell, Wiley; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

dig it

From: <Schnake-Mahl>, Gabriel <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, April 1, 2015 at 5:19 PM
To: "Grybauskas, Natalie" <NGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Klein, Monica" <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ishanee Parikh" <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Spitalnick, Amy (OMB)" <SpitalnickA@omb.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAadams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Leopold, Elana" <LEopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Martinez Blanco, Frankie" <FMartinezBlanco@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "de Alwis, Ronalie" <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Grybauskas, Stefan" <SGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Cohen, Adam" <ASCohen@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Rebecca Katz <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

+JDC

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 1, 2015, at 5:18 PM, Grybauskas, Natalie <NGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

ok, changed to approx

guidance looks good to everyone?

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR
THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

On Thursday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with progressive leaders at Gracie Mansion. This meeting will be closed press. After, the Mayor will hold a media availability.

Public Schedule

Approximately 3:00 PM – Holds Media Availability

Gracie Mansion

88th Street and East End Avenue

New York, NY 10128

Footage will be provided by NYC TV and will be available shortly following the event on Encompass Port CTY- 4205. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayorsoffice shortly following the event.

###

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 5:16 PM
To: Grybauskas, Natalie; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Norvell, Wiley; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

Yes def to an approximately.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall
New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Wednesday, April 1, 2015 5:16 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Norvell, Wiley; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Subject: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

do we want to give any more details in guidance ("progressive leaders ...from around the country")?

EL, MPC -- is this timing realistic? Are we going to need an "approximately" here?

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR
THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

On Thursday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with progressive leaders at Gracie Mansion. This meeting will be closed press. After, the Mayor will hold a media availability.

Public Schedule

3:00 PM – Holds Media Availability

Gracie Mansion

88th Street and East End Avenue

New York, NY 10128

Footage will be provided by NYC TV and will be available shortly following the event on Encompass Port CTY- 4205. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayorsoffice shortly following the event.

###

From: Parikh, Ishanee
To: Grybauskas, Natalie; Norvell, Wiley; John Del Cecato; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Spitalnick, Amy \(OMB\); Adams, Marti; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015
Date: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 6:17:03 PM

Good to blast?

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 5:28 PM
To: Norvell, Wiley; John Del Cecato; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

got it.

PW – ok ?

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

On Thursday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with progressive leaders at Gracie Mansion. This meeting will be closed press. After, the Mayor will hold a media availability.

Public Schedule

3:00 PM – Holds Media Availability

Gracie Mansion

88th Street and East End Avenue

New York, NY 10128

Footage will be provided by NYC TV and will be available shortly following the event on Encompass Port CTY- 4205. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayorsoffice shortly following the event.

###

From: Norvell, Wiley
Sent: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 5:26 PM
To: Grybauskas, Natalie; John Del Cecato; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

Sorry—I meant transcript. Disregard.

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 5:25 PM
To: John Del Cecato; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Norvell, Wiley; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

PW, good with you?

From: John Del Cecato [jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 5:22 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Grybauskas, Natalie
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Norvell, Wiley; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

dig it

From: <Schnake-Mahl>, Gabriel <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, April 1, 2015 at 5:19 PM
To: "Grybauskas, Natalie" <NGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Klein, Monica" <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ishanee Parikh" <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Spitalnick, Amy (OMB)" <SpitalnickA@omb.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Leopold, Elana" <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Martinez Blanco, Frankie" <FMartinezBlanco@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "de Alwis, Ronalie" <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Grybauskas, Stefan" <SGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Cohen, Adam" <ASCohen@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Rebecca Katz <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

+JDC

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 1, 2015, at 5:18 PM, Grybauskas, Natalie <NGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

ok, changed to approx

guidance looks good to everyone?

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR
THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

On Thursday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with progressive leaders at Gracie Mansion. This meeting will be closed press. After, the Mayor will hold a media availability.

Public Schedule

Approximately 3:00 PM – Holds Media Availability

Gracie Mansion

88th Street and East End Avenue

New York, NY 10128

Footage will be provided by NYC TV and will be available shortly following the event on Encompass Port CTY- 4205. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayorsoffice shortly following the event.

###

From: Carey, Michael

Sent: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 5:16 PM

To: Grybauskas, Natalie; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Norvell, Wiley; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel

Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

Yes def to an approximately.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall
New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Wednesday, April 1, 2015 5:16 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Parikh, Ishanee; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Norvell, Wiley; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Subject: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

do we want to give any more details in guidance ("progressive leaders ...from around the country")?

EL, MPC -- is this timing realistic? Are we going to need an "approximately" here?

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR
THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

On Thursday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with progressive leaders at Gracie Mansion. This meeting will be closed press. After, the Mayor will hold a media availability.

Public Schedule

3:00 PM – Holds Media Availability

Gracie Mansion

88th Street and East End Avenue

New York, NY 10128

Footage will be provided by NYC TV and will be available shortly following the event on Encompass Port CTY- 4205. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayorsoffice shortly following the event.

###

From: Parikh, Ishanee
To: Grybauskas, Natalie; Norvell, Wiley; John Del Cecato; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Spitalnick, Amy \(OMB\); Adams, Marti; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015
Date: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 6:31:38 PM
Attachments: image001.png

MPC good. Blasting.

From: Parikh, Ishanee
Sent: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 6:22 PM
To: Grybauskas, Natalie; Norvell, Wiley; John Del Cecato; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Adams, Marti; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

Can we blast?

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

On Thursday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with progressive leaders at Gracie Mansion. This meeting will be closed press. After, the Mayor will hold a media availability.

Public Schedule

Approximately 3:00 PM – Holds Media Availability

Gracie Mansion
88th Street and East End Avenue
New York, NY 10128

Footage will be provided by NYC TV and will be available shortly following the event on Encompass Port CTY- 4205. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayorsoffice shortly following the event.

###

From: Parikh, Ishanee
To: Grybauskas, Natalie; Norvell, Wiley; John Del Cecato; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; Klein, Monica; Spitalnick, Amy \(OMB\); Adams, Marti; Leopold, Elana; Martinez Blanco, Frankie; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Cohen, Adam; Hagelgans, Andrea; Richardson, Jerika; Katz, Rebecca
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015
Date: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 6:43:30 PM
Attachments: image001.png

Tweaked to on topic Q and A.

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2015

On Thursday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with progressive leaders at Gracie Mansion. This meeting will be closed press. After, the Mayor will hold a media availability. There will be on topic Q-and-A.

Public Schedule

Approximately 3:00 PM – Holds Media Availability

Gracie Mansion
88th Street and East End Avenue
New York, NY 10128

Footage will be provided by NYC TV and will be available shortly following the event on Encompass Port CTY- 4205. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayorsoffice shortly following the event.

###

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
To: Carey, Michael
Cc: de Alwis, Ronalie; [REDACTED] Leopold, Elana; Dinzey, Ashley; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; [REDACTED] Neal Kwatra; Liz Hegarty; Pamela; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: MBDB: National Brand Consultant Meeting
Date: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 7:39:38 PM

+ + +

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 1, 2015, at 7:34 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

All we are going to reschedule this for a few weeks.

MBDB: National Brand Consultant Meeting

Scheduled: Thursday, Apr 2, 2015 from 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM

Location: Gracie Mansion, The Peach Room

Invitees: de Alwis, Ronalie , Aaron Pickrell ([REDACTED]), Leopold, Elana , Wolfe, Emma , Dinzey, Ashley , 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' , 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' , 'Stephanie Yazgi'

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B
Cc: FLONYC; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: Washington Post: N.Y.'s de Blasio gathers progressives to kick-start debate on income inequality
Date: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 9:08:58 PM

Teamwork!

Looks pretty lengthy. Trying to find out placement.

Quotes are on the money.

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 1, 2015, at 9:08 PM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Great job!

From: Katz, Rebecca
Sent: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 09:01 PM
To: FLONYC; B
Subject: Fwd: Washington Post: N.Y.'s de Blasio gathers progressives to kick-start debate on income inequality

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: "Gunaratna, Mahen" <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: April 1, 2015 at 8:57:22 PM EDT
To: "Gunaratna, Mahen" <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Washington Post: N.Y.'s de Blasio gathers progressives to kick-start debate on income inequality

http://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/nys-de-blasio-gathers-progressives-to-kick-start-debate-on-income-inequality/2015/04/01/15c992de-d8b4-11e4-8103-fa84725dbf9d_story.html

N.Y.'s de Blasio gathers progressives to kick-start debate on income inequality

New York Mayor Bill de Blasio plans to host a meeting of leading progressive elected officials and activists at Gracie Mansion on Thursday with the explicit goal of forcing the issue of income inequality to the forefront of the national political debate and the 2016 elections.

In a telephone interview Wednesday, de Blasio said his frustrations with the messaging by Democratic candidates during the 2014 midterms and the overall failure among elected officials to tackle income inequality head-on led him to conclude that progressives must be more aggressive in elevating the issue.

"As a Democrat, I am very disappointed that my party has not spoken with a clearer voice on this issue," de Blasio said.

The mayor said that influencing the dialogue in the 2016 presidential race is not the sole purpose of the effort he hopes to organize.

He would not directly address whether he thinks former secretary of state Hillary Rodham Clinton should outline bold proposals to reduce income inequality.

The mayor was Clinton's Senate campaign manager in 2000, and she attended his inauguration in 2013, along with her husband, former president Bill Clinton. De Blasio was elected mayor running on an unabashedly liberal platform, while both Clintons have been identified more with centrist Democratic ideas. Hillary Clinton is expected to launch her presidential campaign this month.

"On presidential candidates in general, my take is, I don't talk about anyone until they are a declared candidate," de Blasio said. "But I think many of us feel profound dissatisfaction at the state of the debate in general. I cannot identify any declared candidate who is presenting a holistic vision here. In 2014, many [Democrats] went out of their way to avoid the issue."

He praised President Obama for highlighting income inequality in this year's State of the Union address and noted that some Republicans and some business leaders have at least begun to make reference to the issue. But he said that beyond Obama's January speech, nothing since then "suggests a course correction" on the part of elected officials or prospective candidates.

Asked to assess why Democrats in particular have not been more aggressive on the issue, he said, "A lack of leadership and a lack of imagination underlying all of it."

He cited two other obstacles: timidity on the part of political strategists and party consultants to confront the issue more robustly; and the influence of money in politics. "Platform, vision and message have been replaced by decisions about resources," he said. "That's not a winning hand."

De Blasio said Thursday's gathering will include about 12 to 15 people from around the country. He said a list of names will be made available after the meeting. Among those expected to attend are Connecticut Gov. Dannel P. Malloy (D), Ohio Sen. Sherrod Brown (D) and Nobel Prize-winning author Toni Morrison.

One person who will not be there is Sen. Elizabeth Warren (D-Mass.), a leading advocate for a more robust set of politics to reduce the power of big banks and financial institutions, and address the needs of middle class families. De Blasio said a scheduling conflict will prevent Warren from attending.

The meeting marks the beginning of what the mayor hopes will become a larger and sustained effort. He will take his message about addressing income inequality to Iowa later this month, a trip first reported by Capital New York. The mayor also will speak at a Democratic Party dinner in Wisconsin at the end of April.

De Blasio was invited to speak at Drake University in Des Moines by former Iowa senator Tom Harkin. Harkin was one of nearly 200 Democrats in Iowa and New Hampshire who recently signed a petition calling on Clinton and other Democratic presidential candidates to campaign in 2016 on big, bold populist ideas of the kind often associated with Warren.

De Blasio said one major goal of Thursday's meeting and subsequent organizing efforts will be to advance specific policies that he and other progressives believe have not received enough attention or support from elected officials.

He highlighted the goal of a more progressive tax code as central in that agenda. "You cannot address this [income inequality] without addressing progressive taxation that clearly will ask more of the wealthy," he said.

The mayor said he is as concerned about jump-starting the discussion with current elected officials as he is about affecting the coming presidential debate. And he underscored the challenge of trying to create genuine political momentum behind policies that many elected officials long have resisted or opposed.

"I think this is going to take a lot of repetition and a lot of organizing," he said, adding, "We don't address this issue at our national peril. . . . Progressives have an obligation not to accept the status quo. . . . We're going to try to raise the bar here."

Dan Balz is Chief Correspondent at The Washington Post. He has served as the paper's National Editor, Political Editor, White House correspondent and Southwest correspondent.

Sent from my iPhone

From: John Del Cecato
To: Katz, Rebecca
Cc: Bray, Jackie; John, Roxanne
Subject: Re: Washington Post: N.Y.'s de Blasio gathers progressives to kick-start debate on income inequality
Date: Wednesday, April 01, 2015 10:49:21 PM

I don't think so

On Apr 1, 2015, at 9:07 PM, Katz, Rebecca <RKKatz@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Is Connie Schultz coming, JDC?

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 1, 2015, at 9:05 PM, Bray, Jackie <JBray@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Sherrod Brown! How have you two been sitting on the info that Sherrod would be at Gracie tomorrow without letting me in on that? Is Connie coming?!?!? Talk about an interesting political spouse model that expands the use of writing, social media etc...to make an impact.

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: "Gunaratna, Mahen" <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: April 1, 2015 at 8:57:22 PM EDT
To: "Gunaratna, Mahen" <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Washington Post: N.Y.'s de Blasio gathers progressives to kick-start debate on income inequality

http://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/nys-de-blasio-gathers-progressives-to-kick-start-debate-on-income-inequality/2015/04/01/15c992de-d8b4-11e4-8103-fa84725dbf9d_story.html

N.Y.'s de Blasio gathers progressives to kick-start debate on income inequality

New York Mayor Bill de Blasio plans to host a meeting of leading progressive elected officials and activists at Gracie Mansion on Thursday with the explicit goal of forcing the issue of income inequality to the forefront of the national political debate and the 2016 elections.

In a telephone interview Wednesday, de Blasio said his frustrations with the messaging by Democratic candidates during the 2014 midterms and the overall failure among elected officials to tackle income inequality head-on led him to conclude that progressives must be more aggressive in elevating the issue.

"As a Democrat, I am very disappointed that my party has not spoken with a clearer voice on this issue," de Blasio said.

The mayor said that influencing the dialogue in the 2016 presidential race is not the sole purpose of the effort he hopes to organize.

He would not directly address whether he thinks former secretary of state Hillary Rodham Clinton should outline bold proposals to reduce income inequality.

The mayor was Clinton's Senate campaign manager in 2000, and she attended his inauguration in 2013, along with her husband, former president Bill Clinton. De Blasio was elected mayor running on an unabashedly liberal platform, while both Clintons have been identified more with centrist Democratic ideas. Hillary Clinton is expected to launch her presidential campaign this month.

"On presidential candidates in general, my take is, I don't talk about anyone until they are a declared candidate," de Blasio said. "But I think many of us feel profound dissatisfaction at the state of the debate in general. I cannot identify any declared candidate who is presenting a holistic vision here. In 2014, many [Democrats] went out of their way to avoid the issue.”

He praised President Obama for highlighting income inequality in this year’s State of the Union address and noted that some Republicans and some business leaders have at least begun to make reference to the issue. But he said that beyond Obama’s January speech, nothing since then “suggests a course correction” on the part of elected officials or prospective candidates.

Asked to assess why Democrats in particular have not been more aggressive on the issue, he said, “A lack of leadership and a lack of imagination underlying all of it.”

He cited two other obstacles: timidity on the part of political strategists and party consultants to confront the issue more robustly; and the influence of money in politics. “Platform, vision and message have been replaced by decisions about resources,” he said. “That’s not a winning hand.”

De Blasio said Thursday’s gathering will include about 12 to 15 people from around the country. He said a list of names will be made available after the meeting. Among those expected to attend are Connecticut Gov. Dannel P. Malloy (D), Ohio Sen. Sherrod Brown (D) and Nobel Prize-winning author Toni Morrison.

One person who will not be there is Sen. Elizabeth Warren (D-Mass.), a leading advocate for a more robust set of politics to reduce the power of big banks and financial institutions, and address the needs of middle class families. De Blasio said a scheduling conflict will prevent Warren from attending.

The meeting marks the beginning of what the mayor hopes will become a larger and sustained effort. He will take his message about addressing income inequality to Iowa later this month, a trip first reported by Capital New York. The mayor also will speak at a Democratic Party dinner in Wisconsin at the end of April.

De Blasio was invited to speak at Drake University in Des Moines by former Iowa senator Tom Harkin. Harkin was one of nearly 200 Democrats in Iowa and New Hampshire who recently signed a petition calling on Clinton and other Democratic presidential candidates to campaign in 2016 on big, bold populist ideas of the kind often associated with Warren.

De Blasio said one major goal of Thursday's meeting and subsequent organizing efforts will be to advance specific policies that he and other progressives believe have not received enough attention or support from elected officials.

He highlighted the goal of a more progressive tax code as central in that agenda. "You cannot address this [income inequality] without addressing progressive taxation that clearly will ask more of the wealthy," he said.

The mayor said he is as concerned about jump-starting the discussion with current elected officials as he is about affecting the coming presidential debate. And he underscored the challenge of trying to create genuine political momentum behind policies that many elected officials long have resisted or opposed.

"I think this is going to take a lot of repetition and a lot of organizing," he said, adding, "We don't address this issue at our national peril. . . . Progressives have an obligation not to accept the status quo. . . . We're going to try to raise the bar here."

Dan Balz is Chief Correspondent at The Washington Post. He has served as the paper's National Editor, Political Editor, White House correspondent and Southwest correspondent.

Sent from my iPhone

From: John Del Cecato
To: Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; Hagelgans, Andrea; de Alwis, Ronalie
Subject: Re: Alterman holding in Peach Room
Date: Thursday, April 02, 2015 4:17:14 PM

Got it

From: <Carey>, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Thursday, April 2, 2015 at 4:16 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Leopold, Elana" <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "de Alwis, Ronalie" <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Alterman holding in Peach Room

From: Klein, Monica
To: "John Del Cecato"; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: RE: Elizabeth Warren
Date: Thursday, April 02, 2015 7:02:06 PM

K ty

Monica Klein | Deputy Press Secretary | Mayor's Press Office
o: (212) 788-2969 | c: (917) 324-3297 | twitter: @monicacklein

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 02, 2015 7:02 PM
To: Klein, Monica; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: Elizabeth Warren

Confirm that she was & that she had a scheduling conflict

From: <Klein>, Monica <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Thursday, April 2, 2015 at 6:41 PM
To: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Elizabeth Warren

Question from Matt Chayes Newsday: Was Elizabeth Warren invited?

Do either of you know, or know who knows? I assume she was invited frn line in WP saying she had scheduling conflict, but just want to confirm.

ty

From: Abeywardena, Penny
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: You survive?
Date: Thursday, April 02, 2015 9:01:39 PM

Can't wait to download.

Penny Abeywardena
Commissioner
Mayor's Office for International Affairs

> On Apr 2, 2015, at 8:15 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:
>
> It went great! Will fill you in later
>
> Ps - do you have a personal email?
>
>
>
>> On Apr 2, 2015, at 8:07 PM, Abeywardena, Penny <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>
>> Kidding! Hope it was amazing today.
>>
>>
>>
>> Penny Abeywardena
>> Commissioner
>> Mayor's Office for International Affairs

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Carey, Michael; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: John Del Cecato
Subject: Rolling Stone...almost there
Date: Friday, April 03, 2015 7:07:36 AM

Am pleased to say that after a dismal first interview, yesterday's one on one interview with the mayor and RS was fabulous.

One problem - just about every scene is at Gracie.

Are there any meetings next week where we could bring the reporter? Even just a staff meeting?

Thinking about what the mayor said on schools during last week's planning meeting. That would be great. Next week's mtg with the chancellor?

Just want something that gives access and shows commitment to the important work and willingness to be bold. Needs to be this week (or late this week since he is away).

This is for legacy building. Thx.

Sent from my iPhone

From: John Del Cecato
To: BdB
Cc: Ross Offinger; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re:
Date: Friday, April 03, 2015 9:38:50 AM

Yes indeed!

From: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Reply-To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Date: Friday, April 3, 2015 at 9:38 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Ross Offinger <[REDACTED]> "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Elana Leopold <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re:

We should meet with Warren and also with Suzie whenever each is next in nyc

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Fri, 3 Apr 2015 13:32:52 +0000
To: [REDACTED]
Subject: Re:

Unfortunately, no. We were going to meet with Susie, but she has tickets to a concert that night. Next time!

From: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Reply-To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Date: Friday, April 3, 2015 at 9:15 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re:

Am I seeing him when in NE?

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Fri, 3 Apr 2015 12:51:14 +0000
To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Subject: FW:

From: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]>
Date: Friday, April 3, 2015 at 8:42 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: <no subject>

Warren Buffett says US economy still improving but too many miss out on American dream

Published April 02, 2015 | Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. – Investor Warren Buffett says the economy continues to grow steadily, but too many people continue to miss out on the American dream.

Buffett told CNN Thursday that he doesn't see any real sign of weakness in the economy. Buffett looks at reports from the more than 80 businesses his Berkshire Hathaway conglomerate owns for insight.

But Buffett reiterated his concerns about income inequality in this country while the super-rich continue to thrive. He said that America should be able to do more to help people who are struggling do better.

Buffett is always looking for potential investments for his company. He says that these days he doesn't see many stocks he'd consider cheap, but he doesn't believe there is a bubble in stock prices either.

From: Bill de Blasio
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: Ross Offinger; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re:
Date: Friday, April 03, 2015 9:45:11 AM

To be clear, Warren Buffett and Suzie Buffett. Also Elizabeth Warren :)

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Fri, 3 Apr 2015 13:39:21 +0000
To: [REDACTED]
Cc: Ross Offinger <[REDACTED]> Michael Paul Carey <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>; Elana Leopold <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re:

Yes indeed!

From: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Reply-To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Date: Friday, April 3, 2015 at 9:38 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Ross Offinger <[REDACTED]> "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Elana Leopold <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re:

We should meet with Warren and also with Suzie whenever each is next in nyc

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Fri, 3 Apr 2015 13:32:52 +0000
To: [REDACTED]
Subject: Re:

Unfortunately, no. We were going to meet with Susie, but she has tickets to a concert that night. Next time!

From: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Reply-To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Date: Friday, April 3, 2015 at 9:15 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re:

Am I seeing him when in NE?

Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Fri, 3 Apr 2015 12:51:14 +0000
To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Subject: FW:

From: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]>
Date: Friday, April 3, 2015 at 8:42 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: <no subject>

Warren Buffett says US economy still improving but too many miss out on American dream

Published April 02, 2015 | Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. – Investor Warren Buffett says the economy continues to grow steadily, but too many people continue to miss out on the American dream.

Buffett told CNN Thursday that he doesn't see any real sign of weakness in the economy. Buffett looks at reports from the more than 80 businesses his Berkshire Hathaway conglomerate owns for insight.

But Buffett reiterated his concerns about income inequality in this country while the super-rich continue to thrive. He said that America should be able to do more to help people who are struggling do better.

Buffett is always looking for potential investments for his company. He says that these days he doesn't see many stocks he'd consider cheap, but he doesn't believe there is a bubble in stock prices either.

From: Carey, Michael
To: B
Cc: Leopold, Elana; jfdc@akpdmedia.com; [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: TPA conf call
Date: Saturday, April 04, 2015 6:42:59 PM

will do

> On 4 Apr 2015, at 4:13 pm, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
>
> I need to talk to John and Aaron during the drive back to san juan on tues. First part of the drive is prob when reception is best as opposed to the mountainous part in the middle. Pls sched

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Fw: MTP prep
Date: Sunday, April 05, 2015 4:36:56 PM

John, am out tomorrow but let me know if you have thoughts on shows. Am assuming you and RKK have been working on this strategy

One flag for back of our minds, based on my convo with grynbaum, I think we should anticipate fleg and he doing a piece on whether he can "govern" and go national at same time and how new yorkers react (the piece peter always worried about)

Similarly another story in works about whether we can do more than 1 issue at the same time (they are hooking into "housing") We should start mitigating attempt now. My ideas
1) major promotion of our nyc events and all that he is closely managing. 2) validators etc 3) pitched pieces on his management (he has been dying for this anyway)

I'm having kadushin start on the info gathering and strategy. He also talked to Grynbaum and got same sense

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Sunday, April 05, 2015 04:19 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: MTP prep

We have to keep the prep process clearer and simpler than the one we did for Stephanopoulos. Let's set aside time on friday and saturday. Really want to hit a home run here. And if MTP won't take me, then let's go on one of the other Sunday shows. We have special freedom now (pre-final progressive contract and pre-HRC launch). Let's use it. And happy to do any weekday AM shows during this window of opportunity if we think it adds anything. Thanks

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: B; Walzak, Phil; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: MTP prep
Date: Sunday, April 05, 2015 4:37:59 PM

Got it.

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Sunday, April 05, 2015 04:19 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: MTP prep

We have to keep the prep process clearer and simpler than the one we did for Stephanopoulos. Let's set aside time on Friday and Saturday. Really want to hit a home run here. And if MTP won't take me, then let's go on one of the other Sunday shows. We have special freedom now (pre-final progressive contract and pre-HRC launch). Let's use it. And happy to do any weekday AM shows during this window of opportunity if we think it adds anything. Thanks

From: John Del Cecato
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: MTP prep
Date: Sunday, April 05, 2015 4:55:29 PM

Roger

> On Apr 5, 2015, at 4:20 PM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

>

> We have to keep the prep process clearer and simpler than the one we did for Stephanopoulos. Let's set aside time on friday and saturday. Really want to hit a home run here. And if MTP won't take me, then let's go on one of the other Sunday shows. We have special freedom now (pre-final progressive contract and pre-HRC launch). Let's use it. And happy to do any weekday AM shows during this window of opportunity if we think it adds anything. Thanks

From: Stephanie Yazgi
To: John Del Cecato; Aaron Pickrell; Carey, Michael; Wolfe, Emma; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Mayor Cownie: mtg 4/16
Date: Monday, April 06, 2015 11:12:49 AM

When I met with the mayor, he noted that Mayor Cownie (D-Des Moines) had agreed to pull in R mayors from the surrounding area to meet with them on transportation advocacy.

I reached out to Amanda Romer, his staffer, and she said that Mayor Cownie was committed to doing this.

He has reached out to their local CVB (greater des moines partnership/ business association for metro area) to ask that the President meet with he and MBdB with 2-3 Republican mayors from metro area.

We currently have from 2-3 PM blocked off, but MICHAEL need to extend that to 2-4PM on 4/16 if at all possible.

Just so we are on same page, I'm in close touch with Amanda but here is her contact information should you need it. Thanks.

Amanda Romer	Liaison to Mayor		amromer@dmgov.org
--------------	------------------	---	--

From: Wolfe, Emma
To: [REDACTED] <"jfdc@akpdmedia.com">; [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]> Carey, Michael; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Mayor Cownie: mtg 4/16
Date: Monday, April 06, 2015 11:13:20 AM

This is great!

From: Stephanie Yazgi [mailto:[REDACTED]]
Sent: Monday, April 06, 2015 11:12 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Aaron Pickrell <[REDACTED]> Carey, Michael; Wolfe, Emma; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Mayor Cownie: mtg 4/16

When I met with the mayor, he noted that Mayor Cownie (D-Des Moines) had agreed to pull in R mayors from the surrounding area to meet with them on transportation advocacy.

I reached out to Amanda Romer, his staffer, and she said that Mayor Cownie was committed to doing this.

He has reached out to their local CVB (greater des moines partnership/ business association for metro area) to ask that the President meet with he and MBdB with 2-3 Republican mayors from metro area.

We currently have from 2-3 PM blocked off, but MICHAEL need to extend that to 2-4PM on 4/16 if at all possible.

Just so we are on same page, I'm in close touch with Amanda but here is her contact information should you need it. Thanks.

Amanda Romer	Liaison to Mayor	[REDACTED]	amromer@dmgov.org
--------------	------------------	------------	--

From: Stephanie Yazgi
To: Wolfe, Emma
Cc: jfdc@akpdmedia.com; [REDACTED] Carey, Michael; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: Mayor Cownie: mtg 4/16
Date: Monday, April 06, 2015 11:14:17 AM

I mean... I'm so happy!

On Mon, Apr 6, 2015 at 11:13 AM, Wolfe, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
This is great!

From: Stephanie Yazgi [mailto:[REDACTED]]
Sent: Monday, April 06, 2015 11:12 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Aaron Pickrell <[REDACTED]> Carey, Michael; Wolfe, Emma; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Mayor Cownie: mtg 4/16

When I met with the mayor, he noted that Mayor Cownie (D-Des Moines) had agreed to pull in R mayors from the surrounding area to meet with them on transportation advocacy.

I reached out to Amanda Romer, his staffer, and she said that Mayor Cownie was committed to doing this.

He has reached out to their local CVB (greater des moines partnership/ business association for metro area) to ask that the President meet with he and MBdB with 2-3 Republican mayors from metro area.

We currently have from 2-3 PM blocked off, but MICHAEL need to extend that to 2-4PM on 4/16 if at all possible.

Just so we are on same page, I'm in close touch with Amanda but here is her contact information should you need it. Thanks.

Amanda Romer	Liaison to Mayor	[REDACTED]	amromer@dmgov.org
--------------	------------------	------------	--

From: Perez, Roberto
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: MAYORS DE BLASIO AND GARCETTI ANNOUNCE LEGAL ACTION IN SUPPORT OF IMMIGRATION REFORMS
Date: Monday, April 06, 2015 2:46:05 PM

MAYORS DE BLASIO AND GARCETTI ANNOUNCE LEGAL ACTION IN SUPPORT OF IMMIGRATION REFORMS

More Than 70 Cities & Counties Sign Texas vs. United States Appeal Urging Immediate Implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action

NEW YORK—New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti announced today that 73 cities and counties had filed a new friend-of-the-court brief in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, urging immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration.

“Continuing to delay implementation of the President’s executive action on immigration hurts our economy and puts families at risk,” said Mayor Bill de Blasio. “Cities are where immigrants live, and cities are where the President’s executive action will be successfully implemented. Our cities are united, and we will fight for the immigration reform this nation needs and deserves – whether in the courtroom, in Congress, or in our communities. Make no mistake about it: our voices will be heard.”

“Our cities cannot afford delays to immigration reforms that will strengthen our economy and help families,” said Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti. “This isn’t a blue or red issue, but a human and economic one.”

The brief demonstrates robust support from the country’s largest cities – as well as suburbs and rural areas – for the President’s reforms, which will temporarily relieve from deportation thousands of immigrants who have longstanding ties to the U.S.

The cities and counties – representing 43 million people across the country – argue that the district court judge who temporarily blocked implementation of the programs failed to consider the significant harm to America’s local governments caused by this delay.

According to an analysis by the City, each month that the implementation of these programs is delayed, New York City and New York State will lose at least $1.5 million in additional state and local tax revenue that would be generated if 100,000 immigrants in New York City were able to access temporary work permits through executive action.

“New York’s immigrants are vital to our economy and we must do all we can to help them grow and thrive. Mayor de Blasio is correct – instead of putting up barriers, we should be looking at ways to help immigrants climb the ladder of economic opportunity and welcome them into our communities. The New York State Assembly Majority strongly supports President Obama’s executive action on immigration, and further delay by those who would derail this important initiative is unacceptable,” said New York State Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie.

“Each day we wait to implement President Obama’s bold immigration reforms, millions of hard-working families remain in legal limbo. Immigrant communities built New York City, and they are the heart and soul of urban centers across our country,” said Public Advocate Letitia James. “As Congress and federal courts stall meaningful progress on immigration, New York City will continue to lead the nation.”

As part of Cities United for Immigration Action, Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti led the effort to organize more than 70 cities and counties, the National League of Cities, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors in arguing that the national public interest is served clearly and overwhelmingly by implementing immigration relief by executive action without delay. Today’s brief more than doubles the number of local governments that had previously voiced opposition to the lawsuit brought by states seeking to block President Obama’s immigration reform efforts.

The brief also argues that the District Court judge’s decision to block executive action with a preliminary injunction is bad for the economy, hurts families, threatens law enforcement priorities, and will stall desperately needed changes to the federal government’s immigration policies.

The de Blasio Administration has a proven track record of spearheading initiatives that integrate immigrants into the civic and economic life of New York City. From the IDNYC municipal identification program to increasing access to federal immigration benefits, New York City is committed to championing pro-immigrant policies that promote equity and create opportunity for all residents.

This collective action to offer the Court the crucial perspective of American cities and counties is an outcome of the organizing efforts of the Cities United for Immigration Action coalition. By filing this brief, America’s mayors and county leaders are making a strong statement in support of the President’s plan to grant administrative relief to over four million undocumented children and adults.

Numerous cities and counties signed on to today’s brief are located in states that brought the lawsuit against the Obama administration or have otherwise indicated support for the lawsuit, including five cities in Texas, six localities in New Jersey, two counties in Arizona, and three municipalities in Wisconsin. Cities and counties signed on to the brief (in formation) include the following local governments:

Alexandria, VA
Allentown, PA
Atlanta, GA
Austin, TX
Baltimore, MD
Bell, CA
Boston, MA
Bridgeport, CT
Buffalo, NY
Cambridge, MA
Central Falls, RI
Chapel Hill, NC
Charleston, SC
Chicago, IL
Coconino County, AZ

Columbia, SC
Columbus, OH
Dallas County, TX
Dayton, OH
Denver, CO
Dolton, IL
El Paso County, TX
Everett, MA
Gary, IN Haledon, NJ
Hartford, CT
Highland Park, IL
Hoboken, NJ
Holyoke, MA
Houston, TX
Jersey City, NJ
Kansas City, MO
Little Rock, AR
Los Angeles, CA
Los Angeles County, CA
Lucas County, OH
Madison, WI
Milwaukee, WI
Minneapolis, MN
Montgomery County, MD
Newark, NJ
New York, NY
Niagara Falls, NY
North Miami, FL
Oakland, CA
Paterson, NJ
Philadelphia, PA
Pittsburgh, PA
Plainfield, NJ
Portland, OR
Providence, RI
Racine, WI
Ramsey County, MN
Rochester, NY
Salt Lake City, UT
San Francisco, CA
San Jose, CA
Santa Ana, CA
Santa Cruz County, AZ
Santa Fe, NM
Santa Monica, CA
Schenectady, NY
Seattle, WA
Skokie, IL
St. Louis, MO

State College, PA
Syracuse, NY
Tacoma, WA
Tampa, FL
Travis County, TX
Washington, D.C.
West Covina, CA
Yonkers, NY
National League of Cities
U.S. Conference of Mayors

“Brooklyn is what America looks like, with nearly 40 percent of our residents being foreign-born, and when it comes to embracing our immigrant population, it is what America ought to be. President Obama's executive order on immigration is the most significant and meaningful step our nation has taken toward addressing this long-standing crisis and the millions of families who have been stuck in the shadows of our society, including hundreds of thousands right here in New York City. Our diversity is our greatest strength, and I join my fellow urban leaders from coast to coast in making this call to support the President's reforms,” said Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams.

“Legally and morally, the president's executive action on immigration was both within his power and the right thing to do,” said Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer. “Blocking its implementation will do real harm to cities. That’s why joining with other cities and counties across the country urging its implementation is the right thing as well.”

“We stand with New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio’s and Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti’s decision to file a ‘friend-of-the-court’ brief in support of President Barack Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Bronx Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. “The President’s executive action currently being blocked in the courts hurts The Bronx and New York City, with the borough losing out on potential local tax revenues that would be generated by these hard-working immigrants who just want to come out the shadows and positively contribute to our country. We are the land of opportunity, built on the ideal that we are melting pot that promotes equality for all and we must continue to strive for those ideals that make our country great.”

“President Obama's executive actions were bold and decisive steps toward fixing America's broken immigration system. The Statue of Liberty stands tall in our City, reminding us that America was built by generations of immigrants who came to its shores in search of a better life and a chance to make our country greater,” said U.S. Representative Charles Rangel. “I am proud to see that Mayor de Blasio is committed to keeping that promise alive for years to come.”

“The delay in the implementation of DAPA and expanded DACA threatens millions of American families with deportation, as well as the many communities, such as New York City, of which immigrants are an integral part,” said U.S. Representative Yvette Clarke. “No serious doubt exists that President Obama had the authority to establish DAPA and DACA. I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and the many community leaders across this nation who have raised their voices on behalf of millions of families who want to pursue the American Dream.”

“In the absence of legislative action by House Republicans, President Obama took decisive action on immigration because he knows that there are real lives at stake in our current broken system,” said U.S. Representative Joe Crowley. “It is deeply troubling that a Texas judge known to be hostile to immigrants is delaying the President’s executive measures, especially given the legal precedents set by previous administrations. Halting action that will help keep American families together strikes at the heart of what our country ought to be about, and I thank Mayors de Blasio, Garcetti, and many others for taking a stand and showing the widespread support for the President’s action. I’m confident the Department of Justice will succeed in its appeal of this decision and that we will move forward with this much-needed action that will make such a difference in New York City and elsewhere.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio for working with cities across the nation to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration,” said U.S. Representative Carolyn Maloney. “With over 12 million undocumented immigrants living in our country, comprehensive immigration reform is long overdue. Unfortunately, Congress has failed to act. That is why I strongly support President Obama’s executive actions, which will help keep families together, boost our economy and generate new tax revenue. These are common sense steps that mimic similar actions by Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush, and it’s long past time that President Obama’s reforms are implemented.”

“We can’t continue to delay implementing President Obama’s executive action on immigration. With this friend-of-the-court brief, New York City is joined by more than 70 cities nationwide in voicing its strong support for moving ahead with providing administrative deportation relief to more than 4 million immigrants with strong ties to the U.S. As the brief argues, the District Court’s holdup only hurts our economy, harmless immigrant families, and the federal government’s ability to address our broken immigration system. I applaud Mayor de Blasio for once again putting New York City at the forefront of efforts to help the immigrant community, in New York City, and nationwide,” said U.S. Representative José Serrano, Sr.

“The President’s immigration reforms make badly needed changes to a broken system and will benefit thousands of our neighbors,” stated U.S. Representative Nydia Velázquez. “It is critical for New York City and our nation as a whole that these reforms be implemented without delay.”

“Every day we delay fixing our broken immigration system is a missed opportunity,” said U.S. Representative Kathleen Rice. “There’s no question that we need to keep fighting for comprehensive immigration reform at the federal level, but our local communities can’t afford to wait when there’s no sign that this Congress is willing to pass real legislative solutions. Thousands of hard-working Long Island families are ready to come out of the shadows, stop living in fear and start participating fully in our local economies, and there’s no reason to deny them that opportunity any longer. Last week I joined several fellow Members of Congress in signing an amicus brief affirming our support for the government’s appeal, and the brief filed today by Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti shows that local and federal leaders across the country are united in our commitment to implementing the President’s executive actions.”

“Immigrants move New York’s economy forward,” said State Senator Leroy Comrie. “I represent a district where over a third of its population is foreign-born, and where many more are the children and grandchildren of the rich immigrant legacy this city – and this nation – is so proud of. Immigrants are innovators, business owners and job creators: they augment this City's supply of capital and ideas to diversify its narrative and keep it nationally and globally competitive. Not only is it in our best interest to immediately implement the President's platform for immigration reform, but it is the socially and morally responsible thing to do.”

“Every day the President's executive actions on immigration are blocked, is another day hundreds of thousands of young adults and parents, trying to provide for their families, are unable to work. This is not good for anyone, and the leaders of our cities and counties across the country know this first hand. I thank them for standing with undocumented immigrants and working to bring them out of the shadows,” said State Senator Adriano Espallat, Chair of the State Senate Puerto Rican/Latino Caucus.

“This friend-of-the-court brief stands with immigrants in our communities against needless delay in the urgently needed Deferred Action programs. President Obama has charted a course for a more compassionate immigration system – a system that treats our friends and neighbors with the dignity they deserve. I commend this action by Mayor de Blasio and dozens of mayors across the United States in keeping with the vision President Obama outlined. I join these mayors and leaders across the country in reaffirming our commitment to America’s longstanding tradition of welcoming immigrants to our communities,” said State Senator Jesse Hamilton.

“It is time to stop intolerant views toward our immigrants. I am in full support of this brief, which is intended to safeguard and implement President Obama’s executive actions on immigration that are intended to keep families together,” said State Senator Jose Peralta. “We, as immigrants, live in all cities across our nation, and blocking the implementation of the President’s policies, hurts not just families fighting for the American Dream, but also our ongoing efforts to enrich and repair our economy.”

“I am very proud that New York City is leading the way on a collective amicus brief in the Texas vs. United States case which calls for swift and sweeping implementation of President Obama’s executive actions concerning rational immigration policy. The lives of millions of people hang in the balance, so many of them New Yorkers who share the same hopes, dreams and aspirations that each successive wave of immigrants harbored generations ago. Each of them found a true home here and it is time for our City and Country to open our arms and our hearts in the name of fundamental human rights,” said State Senator Bill Perkins.

“The implementation of President Obama's executive action on immigration is imperative to ensuring we support the countless immigrants that contribute to the social and economic life of our country,” said State Senator Gustavo Rivera. “We are a country of immigrants, and this executive action will help us strengthen and protect our diverse population, while honoring our values as Americans. I commend and thank Mayor de Blasio for having New York join cities and counties across our country in taking legal action to support an initial step towards immigration reform.”

“Here in a city and state where we pride ourselves on diversity, we can only benefit from the implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said State Senator James Sanders Jr. “It will allow for a reprieve from deportation while giving the undocumented a chance to work, providing a much needed boost to the economy. Just this past week, the state budget failed to include the DREAM Act, which would have given thousands of vibrant young people a chance at success by allowing them to continue their education and creating a pathway to citizenship. Let's not miss another opportunity to help build a stronger New York."

"Unjust deportations have continued to tear apart our families, our schools and our communities. We must act swiftly in implementing President Obama's immigration executive action in order to protect these important populations. Immigrants are the backbone of our communities, and I thank Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for creating a united front to demonstrate our support for the swift implementation of the President's measures," said State Senator José Serrano.

"The delay to President Obama's executive action on immigration is intolerable and comes with a real cost to real people," said Assembly Member Rodneyse Bichotte. "Every day, families of aspiring Americans are destroyed by a system badly in need of reform and the President's executive action offers needed help. I join with Mayor de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the Texas v. United States lawsuit to urge immediate implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration. As a daughter of Haitian immigrants, and as a proud citizen of the United States and elected official of New York, I have a duty to act on behalf of the social justice of our people—as well as a fiduciary responsibility to ensure our economies gain the benefits immigration brings."

"As a child of Jamaican immigrants, it is personal for me that we stand up for Immigration justice and demand immediate action. The implementation of President Obama's executive actions on immigration is a moral, social, and economic necessity. The delays are inexcusable, and we must move forward. In past years, immigrants in NYC have accounted for more than $200 billion in economic activity to help revitalize vibrant neighborhoods including the work of Latino, Caribbean and African entrepreneurs in the South Bronx. Through hard work and tireless dedication, Immigrants embody the entrepreneurial spirit that makes our country so beautiful, and the best country in the world," said Assembly Member Michael Blake. "Immigrants are our neighbors, our friends, and our family, and I proudly stand with Mayor Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in calling for our judicial system to do the right thing, the humane thing, the compassionate thing, and give our communities the life they deserve."

"I want to commend Mayor de Blasio and all the other mayors for supporting immigration reforms. Implementation of the President's Immigration Executive action will provide much needed relief to immigrant families suffering under our broken system and is a crucial first step on the road to treating our immigrants with the fairness and respect they deserve," said Assembly Member Guillermo Linares.

"Every month that goes by without President Obama's executive actions is another month that families can be ripped apart," said Assembly Member Francisco Moya. "For those of us who deal with the fallout from our nation's flawed immigration policies on a daily basis, we know how critical the President's executive actions truly are. Keeping families together is not only the right thing to do; it's also in our nation's best interest."

"Mayor de Blasio is taking the right step filing today's court brief," said Assembly Member Felix Ortiz. "Without action from the Congress and State Legislature, we must support President Obama's efforts to protect workers and their families from deportation. While we keep the fight alive in Albany for the Dream Act, driver licenses and state-issued identification cards for non-citizens and better wages for all workers, today's action by our Mayor and by so many others across the nation is a positive step to make life better for millions. We can't wait any longer.”

“We need comprehensive immigration reform immediately,” said Assembly Member Robert Rodriguez. “President Obama’s Executive action is a huge step towards creating fair policies that help our growing immigrant communities of New York City thrive, any hindrance to its enactment harms us irreparably.”

“It is clear that our immigration system is broken and comprehensive reform is needed to provide long-term relief for the families who have contributed to the growth and prosperity of our nation,” said Assembly Member Nily Rozic. “Filing this brief is reflective of New York City's commitment to advancing immigrants' rights and I commend the Mayor for his continued advocacy and leadership on this urgent issue.

“With an estimated 100,000 undocumented immigrants in New York City who would benefit greatly from President Obama’s executive action this brief sends a strong message on the importance of implementing these reforms,” said Assembly Member Luis Sepúlveda. “New York has long been at the forefront of immigration reform. Mayor de Blasio has proven his commitment to immigrants throughout his first year in office and continues to through actions like this. I commend the Mayor and the many other cities and counties for supporting these initiatives, as implementing each one of them will be for the national public interest.”

“Opportunity for families in America to obtain basic rights and a better quality of life should not be dictated by political games. The partisan stalling of President Obama's Immigration Executive Action is sophomoric, and the District Court's preliminary objection undoubtedly has a deleterious effect on our national economy. New York City is, and always has been a city of immigrants, and we have this community to thank for the strength we enjoy as a City and a Nation . I am proud of New York City's participation in the amicus brief filed in Texas vs. United States, and am hopeful that the demand from such a robust list of diverse urban areas will bring us closer to real reform which has been long overdue,” said Assembly Member Keith Wright.

“I commend Mayor de Blasio in joining the effort to defend the President’s Administrative Relief that offers potential relief to millions of immigrants with strong ties to our nation, and who already work hard and contribute to make this a better country. While the Court stalls, and Congress fails to enact meaningful immigration reform, New York City will continue to protect the rights of immigrants and ensure that their contributions to our City are recognized—and celebrated. Our City continues to offer affirming spaces for immigrant populations, and I am hopeful that this action from our Mayor—and from his colleagues from around the country—will provide some context about the urgent need for the implementation of the President’s programs,” said Council Member Carlos Menchaca, Chair of the Committee on Immigration.

“I support the new friend-of-the-court brief urging immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. Immigrants are in important part of the fabric of our society and economy and granting administrative relief to those immigrants in need is an act of social responsibility,” said Council Member Inez Barron.

“I applaud New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio for joining Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti in filing a friend-of-the-court brief calling for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration. As an elected official representing an area with a significant immigrant population, I join with others across the country in urging the courts to move forward on providing deportation relief. The President’s immigration policies provide a just, sensible solution for millions of immigrants who live in the U.S. and contribute to our nation’s society in myriad ways. From an economic perspective, there is no question that New York stands to benefit from implementation of these policies, as significant tax revenues would be generated by the granting of temporary work permits to our City’s population of 100,000 immigrants,” said Council Member Fernando Cabrera.

“President Obama’s executive action on immigration will have a profoundly positive impact on thousands of families in our city, and it must be implemented immediately,” said Council Member Margaret Chin. “I strongly support today’s legal action in support of the President’s reforms, and I thank Mayor de Blasio for his continued leadership on this fundamentally important issue.”

“New York City is, was, and always will be a leader in the immigrant rights movement. We stand united in support of President Obama’s Executive Order,” said Council Member Andrew Cohen.

“We have waited for federal immigration reform for too long,” said Council Member Costa Constantinides. “The current federal laws are broken and lead to families being broken up or to unwarranted detention. President Obama’s executive order will take significant steps to help ameliorate these concerns. We must ensure due process and respect for all. I stand with Mayor De Blasio, Mayor Garcetti, and with 70 other cities across the nation that support the President’s order.”

“The stand the District Court Judge has taken against immigration reform is harming the future of our country, our immigrants,” said Council Member Daniel Dromm. “I am glad Mayor de Blasio has signed on to an amicus brief to push back against the court’s anti-immigrant actions. In New York City we support our immigrants not hold them back by putting obstacles to citizenship in their way.”

“I applaud Mayor de Blasio and the Mayors of more than 70 cities across the country for making it clear that they are ready, willing, and able to implement the reforms proposed by President Obama’s executive action. As the son of immigrants, I know firsthand the difficulties faced by those who have come to the United States seeking a better life for themselves and their families. Our immigration system is broken and full implementation of President Obama’s executive action is necessary in order to ensure more families are not harmed by failed policies,” said Council Member Rafael Espinal.

“President Obama’s executive action would be a lifeline to many families in our City who only want to work hard and provide more than they had for their children,” said Council Member Julissa Ferreras. “The continued delay of immigration reform only hurts our cities by separating families as well as denying our local governments millions of dollars in tax revenue. I commend Mayor de Blasio, Mayor Garcetti and the chief executives of over 70 American cities for championing this issue in our courts and call on Congress to finally do the right thing and recognize that immigration reform makes sense for all.”

“For too long, cities have been trying to navigate a federal immigration policy that is in dire need of reform. The President's executive actions were an important first step toward making sense of those immigration policies. Delaying their implementation creates very real problems for the cities that are on the front lines of the immigration debate,” said Council Member Dan Garodnick.

“By delaying the implementation of immigration reform, the court is making a decision that hurts state and local economies and needlessly diverts law enforcement attention,” said Council Member Vanessa Gibson. “Spending tax dollars to prosecute otherwise law abiding residents who want to work here, raise families here, and spend money here is a policy that has never made sense and I urge the court to recognize the considerable good immigration reform will bring to our communities. I am proud to stand with legislators within New York and around the country in support of President Obama’s actions and I look forward to a favorable decision that will uphold the ordered relief of nearly 4 million undocumented adults and children.”

“Today, New York City stands with over 70 American municipalities in support of President Obama’s recent executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Corey Johnson. “If implemented, the plan would grant much needed administrative relief and protection from deportation to over 4 million undocumented individuals. Our country and New York City were built by immigrants and their families. Barring immigrants from fully participating in American civic and economic life is contrary to our values. It’s time to make a change.”

“We are a nation of immigrants, including my grandparents who came here to escape antisemitism, and the grandparents of so many. We must continue to accept all those 'yearning to breathe free',” said Council Member Ben Kallos. “The state invests resources in every person the second they set foot in our soil. By welcoming people with open arms, we guarantee a return on that investment. I applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for urging the immediate implementation of President Obama's immigration reforms.”

“President Obama has signed an Executive Order and it’s shameful and unheard of for the District Court judge to block the executive action,” said Council Member Andy King, Co-Chair of the Black, Latino & Asian Caucus. “New York is and has always been a city of immigrants and President Obama’s vision allows for immediate reform in our communities. I stand with the Mayor and the President and all Americans across the nation committed to justice and our voices will be heard.”

"I see every day the positive impact immigrants have on our communities, as a representative of one of the most diverse areas in the country," said Council Member Rory Lancman. "Immigrants start businesses, pay taxes and raise their children here. Unfortunately, current US immigration policies leave far too many of our neighbors afraid that they will be deported from the country that has been their home for years. Mayor de Blasio's brief, joined by so many other cities, sends a clear message to the Court that cities support the President's action and want our immigrants to be able to come out of the shadows."

“New York City can’t wait any longer for implementation of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Steve Levin. “Thank you to Mayor de Blasio and cities and counties around the United States who are taking a stand for smart and needed immigration reforms.”

“Undocumented immigrants and their families have waited far too long for substantive and comprehensive immigration reform. Not only do we need these reforms to be effectuated, we also need more policies that will help bring relief to millions of immigrants, help keep their families together, while strengthening our economy. I’m proud to stand with Mayor de Blasio, my colleagues in City Council, and the cities and counties across the country, who are fighting for the rights of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Annabel Palma.

“I’d like to thank Mayor de Blasio for taking leadership on this important issue. Implementation of President Obama’s executive order would have a major positive impact on the lives of our immigrant communities,” said Council Member Antonio Reynoso.

“I am proud to stand with Mayor De Blasio and 70 other municipalities throughout the nation in full support of President Obama’s executive action on immigration,” said Council Member Donovan Richards. “The history of the United States is a history of immigrants. Extending temporary relief from deportation for residents that contribute millions of dollars to our domestic economy is common sense.

“President Obama's actions will bring 5 million immigrants out of the shadows. For years these families have lived with the constant anxiety and fear of deportation. But no longer. Now undocumented immigrants can apply to receive services that they've long deserved. By receiving social security cards and work permits so many will be able to legally work towards the American Dream they came to pursue,” said Council Member Ydanis Rodriguez. “However, some among us want to push these families back into the shadows. Today we, the cities that drive our country's economy forward, stand united in support of the President’s actions.”

“The temporary work permits granted by President Barack Obama's executive action are essential to the daily functions of New York City and cities nationwide. We are a nation of immigrants, and delaying implementation of this program is, frankly, un-American. I stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti and the 72 cities and counties throughout the US (list in formation), in urging immediate implementation of this executive action,” said Council Member Helen Rosenthal.

“Immigrants make critical contributions our local economies and civic infrastructure, but cannot continue doing so if they are living in the shadows. The growing list of municipalities and counties signed onto the brief further underscores the importance and urgency of administrative relief for millions of undocumented children and adults. The Mayor has been a tireless champion of New York’s immigrant communities and I commend him for spearheading this effort,” said Council Member Richie Torres.

“I support the immediate implementation of President Obama’s executive order,” said Council Member Mark Weprin. “Immigrants have always played a vital role in shaping our nation’s economy and continue to contribute every day to the vitality of New York City.”

“Delaying President Obama’s executive orders to implement real immigration reform only puts New York City’s efforts to provide countless families economic opportunity they need on hold,” said New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. “Now is the time to act and our City is prepared to. I support Mayor de Blasio and numerous other cities throughout our nation’s efforts to begin implementing much-needed reforms for the millions of families who are looking to us for assistance to become included and engaged citizens of New York City and our great nation.”

“The time for a rational immigration policy has long been overdue. Where Congress has failed to act in the collective interest of the American people, President Obama has sought to step into the breach. The use of executive authority on this issue is with precedent, and this unfortunate maneuver by the State of Texas to stymie him ignores the greater economic, security, and familial needs of all our citizens. Mayor de Blasio recognizes these plain truths, and I support the amicus brief he and so many other municipalities, nationwide, have filed in support of the President’s action,” said Council Member Ruben Wills.

“In cities across the country, hard-working men and women are waiting for President Obama's Executive Action to go into effect so they can live and work without fear of deportation and separation from their families,” said Hector Figueroa, President of 32BJ SEIU. “In Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington DC and many more cities up and down the East Coast, 32BJ members have long been part of the fight for immigration reform and we will continue to take action in Congress and on the streets until these reforms are implemented. It is the humane and just thing to do for immigrants and the right path forward for our country.”

“Immigrants are essential to local economies and industries throughout our country, especially the hospitality industry. Today's actions show that local governments recognize that delaying the President's Executive Action not only harms millions of working families but also jeopardizes recovering local economies,” said Peter Ward, President of the Hotel Trades Council.

“Workers and their families desperately need the immediate implementation of President Obama’s Executive Action for immigration reform. We commend these cities and their elected officials for submitting an amicus brief in support of President Obama’s Executive Action, the most far reaching immigration reform initiative in decades. Cities make up the backbone of the U.S. economy, much of it based on the work of immigrants. Millions of hard working immigrant families stand to benefit from this action, and they deserve this administrative relief,” said Stuart Appelbaum, President of Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

“The AFL-CIO has made supporting real immigration reform one of our top priorities because we understand the importance of ensuring that all workers receive the wages and benefits to which they are entitled,” said Vincent Alvarez, President of the New York City Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO. “By allowing undocumented workers to come out of the shadows, we will be working to eradicate the tools that allow unscrupulous employers to drive down wages, and rob workers of fair pay, benefits, and workplace rights. The implementation of President Obama's immigration recommendations is already long overdue. Let's make this happen for New York City's workers.”

“Immigrants, including many who would be eligible for work permits under President Obama's Executive Action, contribute every day to the vibrancy and health of our cities. The Executive Action will keep families together, boost our economy and focus law enforcement resources. We applaud Mayor de Blasio's advocacy on behalf of these hard-working New Yorkers and join him in calling for immediate implementation of the action,” said Maria Castaneda, Secretary-Treasurer of 1199 SEIU.

"We applaud Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for leading the charge to demand immediate implementation of immigration relief to keep families together across the United States. As our communities demand action, scores of cities from coast to coast are stepping up and saying with one voice that the Court of Appeals must allow President Obama's administrative actions, which are grounded in strong legal precedent, to move forward," said Javier H. Valdés, co-Executive Director of Make the Road New York.

"Very much like every major city in America, New York City is a strong and vibrant city thanks to our immigrant population," said Jonathan Westin, Executive Director of New York Communities for Change. "Our cities are better when our immigrant brothers and sisters can thrive. Therefore, we urge the immediate implementation of the President's Immigration Executive Action. Our cities have too much to lose if action is not taken now."

"We are proud that our city's Mayor Bill de Blasio is setting a precedent by taking legal action and making it known that the delays to President Obama's executive actions are unacceptable," said Steven Choi, executive director of the New York Immigration Coalition. "The NYIC and our membership, along with our city and state partners including the Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs, continue our efforts to prepare the 100,000 plus New Yorkers who can benefit from these programs. We stand with Mayors Bill de Blasio and Eric Garcetti in the call for immediate implementation of immigration relief."

"At a time when anti-immigrant voices are using myths about immigrants and the effects of immigration to derail a constructive national policy debate, few actions are more important than local governments uniting to fight for immediate relief and implementation of President Obama's Immigration Executive Actions. In outlining the economic and fiscal benefits of deferred action policies, New York City is a key stakeholder. Mayor Bill de Blasio has underscored once again our city's courage in the fight for justice and we stand in solidarity to see administrative relief programs take full-effect immediately," said Lucia Gomez, Executive Director of La Fuente.

"The Asian American Federation fully supports Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti's appeal to implement President Obama's executive action without any further delay. Immigrants and their families, who have made valuable contributions to the U.S., deserve the temporary relief and protection that this immigration reform provides. We stand with our community to ensure that the President's executive action sees the light of day," said Jo-Ann Yoo, Executive Director of the Asian American Federation.

"Millions of lives are on hold as President Obama's legal Executive Action is being dragged through the courts. Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights commends Mayors de Blasio and Garcetti for supporting legal action urging immediate implementation of Executive Action," said Angela Fernandez, Executive Director of Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights.

"Immigration reform is vital for New York's African immigrant communities," said Amaha Kassa, Executive Director of African Communities Together. "All of our members have heard about President Obama's executive actions, many are qualified and ready to apply for relief, and none of them can understand why progress has been put on hold. This filing sends an important message that New York City has immigrants' backs, even if some states have chosen to send the opposite message."

“President Obama’s November, 2014 Deferred Action programs – both the DACA extension and DAPA – should be implemented now. With each passing day, families continue to be torn apart, leaving behind American children to fend for themselves. Hard-working immigrant parents live in fear and are preyed upon, and cannot become full members of our society. As the child of Mexican immigrant parents whose life dramatically changed after they received legal status via IRCA, the benefits of immigration relief to are society are clear to me. My parents became homeowners and were able to support three college graduates. I applaud Mayors De Blasio and Garcetti, along with the 70 cities and counties who have signed on, for their leadership and for lending their voice to challenge the Texas vs. United States lawsuit, said Aracelis Lucero, Executive Director of Masa, Inc.

“Chicago has always been a city of immigrants, and for us to stay true to our history and our values, we must ensure that immigrants can fully participate in all aspects of our economic and cultural life,” said Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel. “We are proud to join numerous cities in filing this amicus brief to support President Obama’s executive actions on immigration. They will help keep families together, increase safety in our communities, and maximize the contributions that immigrants make every day in every part of our city.”

“Cities are strongly affected by immigration. The old, dysfunctional immigration policies hurt our economies, our neighborhoods, our businesses and our residents. The President is attempting to interject common sense and humanity. We are grateful for his efforts and we stand with him,” said Portland Mayor Charlie Hales.

“I am signing onto this brief because as a nation of immigrants, I believe ensuring access to a fair and legal process for people to come to this country and pursue their dreams reflects our highest values,” said Chapel Hill Mayor Mark Kleinschmidt.

“We must do better to honor our country's proud immigration tradition. Too many immigrants live in fear, afraid to become members of our society, while Congress fails to take any meaningful action to fix a broken immigration system. Their inaction has real consequences for our communities, which is why I fully support President Obama's leadership and common sense executive actions. I thank Mayor de Blasio for initiating this brief and building this important coalition of leaders,” said Hoboken Mayor Dawn Zimmer.

###

From: Carey, Michael
To: B
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: JDC/AP call
Date: Monday, April 06, 2015 4:26:46 PM

Ok

On 4/6/15, 3:01 PM, "B" <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>

>Michael, although I just checked in with these gentlemen now, I still >want time with them tmrw. We will leave Cabo Rojo at 10:30am sharp >(remember, we're on Atlantic time). You decide when makes sense. Thanks

From: Carey, Michael
To: B
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; [REDACTED]
Subject: RE: JDC/AP call
Date: Monday, April 06, 2015 8:52:56 PM

Sir,

Since we are in day EDT it is actually the same time zone. I will move the call up to 11 AM and send you an updated schedule momentarily.

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

-----Original Message-----

From: B
Sent: Monday, April 06, 2015 4:02 PM
To: Carey, Michael
Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; [REDACTED]
Subject: JDC/AP call

Michael, although I just checked in with these gentlemen now, I still want time with them tmrw. We will leave Cabo Rojo at 10:30am sharp (remember, we're on Atlantic time). You decide when makes sense.
Thanks

From: John, Roxanne
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: B; Katz, Rebecca; FLONYC; Hagelqans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Jonathan@berlinrosen.com; Bray, Jackie
Subject: Re: NYT: A New Challenge for Mayor Bill de Blasio: Paying for 2 Children in College
Date: Tuesday, April 07, 2015 12:40:09 PM

+Jackie bray
Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 7, 2015, at 12:32 PM, "John Del Cecato" <jfdc@akpdmmedia.com> wrote:

"Every parent wants the best for their kids - and we wanted our two kids to go to the college that works best for them.

"Our family is blessed to have a better financial situation than most. But when college costs up to $65K a year, even better-off families are forced to either scramble for financial aid, or else watch their children get saddled with piles of debt upon graduation. It's a fact of life."

On Apr 7, 2015, at 12:05 PM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Ok, now let's watch out for the tabloid trap, starting today or at tmrw's avail: am I crying poverty? Am I just as bad as Hillary who said she was "dead broke" when they left the White House? What ever happened to the Tale of Two Cities? So let me help your thought process with some truth, from which we can then sort out the answers to the inevitable questions:

1. We have one child in college [REDACTED]
2. We have another child going into college at institutions that cost in total an average of $65,000 per year (yes that's $260,000 for 4 years).
[REDACTED]
3. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
4. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

5. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

6. We feel very fortunate to have the resources we have. And our first focus is providing for our children. But even with all the blessings we have, the cost of college is daunting.

That's enough to get your minds going. If anyone has a way to frame this properly, pls do before the day is out. Thanks

From: Katz, Rebecca
Sent: Tuesday, April 07, 2015 06:24 AM
To: FLONYC; B
Cc: John, Roxanne; Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil
Subject: NYT: A New Challenge for Mayor Bill de Blasio: Paying for 2 Children in College

A New Challenge for Mayor Bill de Blasio: Paying for 2 Children in College

By MATT FLEGENHEIMER
and MICHAEL M. GRYNBAUM
APRIL 7, 2015

He lives rent-free in an Upper East Side mansion, owns two homes in a prime Brooklyn neighborhood and earns a six-figure salary supervising hundreds of thousands of employees.

But Mayor Bill de Blasio is now facing a hurdle familiar to many of his constituents: paying for his children's college educations.

Mr. de Blasio's son, Dante, a senior at Brooklyn Technical High School, is currently mulling offers from a short list of exclusive schools, with Yale and Brown among the front-runners, according to people familiar with his options.

And with Mr. de Blasio's daughter, Chiara, still attending college in California, not even the mayor of New York is immune, it seems, to seeking relief from the high cost of higher education.

"There's going to be a big challenge in figuring out financial aid and visits and all sorts of stuff," Mr. de Blasio said, when asked about Dante's plans at the end of an unrelated interview in his office last week.

Mr. de Blasio said he did not expect his son to decide on a school until later this month. Aides to the mayor declined to elaborate further on Dante's intentions or the family's financial considerations, saying they were private matters.

The soaring cost of college is often seized upon by Mr. de Blasio's fellow liberals, who call it both a symptom and a cause of the nation's rising inequality.

But the college process has cast Mayor de Blasio as a curious test case: His family is now affluent by most standards. Mr. de Blasio is paid $225,000 as mayor and the family receives tens of thousands of dollars in rental income from two properties in Park Slope, Brooklyn.

And yet, the de Blasio family's argument for aid would not be unreasonable, according to financial aid experts — a striking testament to the increasingly extreme costs of higher education.

The mayor's daughter, Chiara, attends Santa Clara University, a private Jesuit institution where tuition, room and board is roughly \$55,000 a year. If Dante were to attend Yale, for example, tuition, room and board would come to about \$60,000 a year.

Particularly with two children in college, the six-figure income “is not going to disqualify him from demonstrating need,” said Kalman A. Chany, president of Campus Consultants, a firm based in Manhattan that advises families on financial aid.

And sky-high tuition has squeezed even upper middle-class families, said Mark Kantrowitz, the publisher of advisors.com, a financial aid website.

“When you have colleges that are charging 50, 60, $70,000 a year, everybody is going to struggle to pay for college,” he said.

But, Mr. Kantrowitz added of the mayor, “We’re still talking about someone whose income is pretty close to the top 1 percent.”

In 2013, the mayor and his wife, Chirlane McCray, earned $52,200 in rent from a modest duplex they own in Park Slope, a home once occupied by Mr. de Blasio’s mother. And the family rowhouse down the street, which the de Blasios left for Gracie Mansion in Manhattan, was rented last year at $4,975 a month. The combined value of the homes will reach an estimated $2.8 million in the upcoming tax year, according to the New York City Department of Finance.

That additional income, however, might be offset: On his tax return last year, for instance, Mr. de Blasio declared a $6,493 loss on one house after accounting for mortgage costs, depreciation and other expenses. Ms. McCray draws no salary as chairwoman of the city’s nonprofit arm.

Whatever his parents’ circumstances, Dante would appear an impressive applicant.

Dante, 17, a champion debater with a fondness for political philosophy, is by many accounts a dedicated student. During a family vacation in Rome last summer, he was spotted perusing a paperback by the contemporary Italian political theorist Giorgio Agamben.

If Dante decides on Brown, the mayor might find himself at visiting weekends with another notable New York politician.

Michaela Kennedy Cuomo, the 17-year-old daughter of Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo, plans to attend the Ivy League school this fall, joining her sister Mariah at the alma mater of their mother, Kerry Kennedy, and their cousin John F. Kennedy Jr.

The political progeny would join a long line of scions attracted to Brown's brand of campus life. William H. Mondale took time off from classes there to help his father, Walter F. Mondale, campaign for president in 1984. Amy Carter, daughter of former President Jimmy Carter, was asked to leave Brown in 1987 for academic reasons; she later graduated from the Memphis College of Art.

Malia Obama, President Obama's daughter, was seen visiting Brown last month, part of an extensive tour that has also included Columbia, Harvard and Wesleyan University.

It remains unclear whether Dante will join their ranks. His father joked last week that he wanted "smoke, all sorts of stuff" to accompany the announcement of his son's choice.

"Let's get the staging going," Mr. de Blasio said in his office, smiling at a nearby aide. "I want heavy production values on this thing."

He likened the impending moment to LeBron James' famed television special, "The Decision," to announce his move from the Cleveland Cavaliers to the Miami Heat in 2010.

"Dante de Blasio wants to take his talents to ..." the mayor said, paraphrasing Mr. James's punch line.

In fact, the mystery has resonated even in the upper ranks of the political world.

Hillary Rodham Clinton, after an event with Ms. McCray in Brooklyn last week, was preparing to say goodbye when she paused for a final query, according to a person who witnessed their exchange.

Where, Mrs. Clinton asked, is Dante going to college?

From: Stephanie Yazgi
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Aaron Pickrell; Neal Kwatra; Emma Wolfe; John Del Cecato
Subject: Weekly National Strategy Call
Date: Tuesday, April 07, 2015 1:04:37 PM

So Neal is out for the next couple of weeks, not sure he can make these calls until he is back but he is included here just in case he can join/ hit us back on it

Also wanted to ask group if it's ok if we include someone from City Hall press shop like Andrea or Amy (assigned to this work from CH end), since Phil never joined. Thoughts on this?

From: Katz, Rebecca
To: B
Cc: jfdc@akpdmedia.com; Katz, Rebecca; FLONYC; John, Roxanne; Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Jonathan@berlinrosen.com
Subject: Re: NYT: A New Challenge for Mayor Bill de Blasio: Paying for 2 Children in College
Date: Tuesday, April 07, 2015 1:30:28 PM

Also think news outlets are so obsessed with Dante updates that anything you say on that topic will make big news and may even overshadow the rest of this.

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 7, 2015, at 12:41 PM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

JDC, that's perfect! Much appreciated

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Tuesday, April 07, 2015 12:32 PM
To: B
Cc: Katz, Rebecca; FLONYC; John, Roxanne; Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Jonathan@berlinrosen.com <Jonathan@berlinrosen.com>
Subject: Re: NYT: A New Challenge for Mayor Bill de Blasio: Paying for 2 Children in College

"Every parent wants the best for their kids - and we wanted our two kids to go to the college that works best for them.

"Our family is blessed to have a better financial situation than most. But when college costs up to $65K a year, even better-off families are forced to either scramble for financial aid, or else watch their children get saddled with piles of debt upon graduation. It's a fact of life."

On Apr 7, 2015, at 12:05 PM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Ok, now let's watch out for the tabloid trap, starting today or at tmrw's avail: am I crying poverty? Am I just as bad as Hillary who said she was "dead broke" when they left the White House? What ever happened to the Tale of Two Cities? So let me help your thought process with some truth, from which we can then sort out the answers to the inevitable questions:

1. We have one child in college [REDACTED]

2. We have another child going into college at institutions that cost in total an average of $65,000 per year (yes that's $260,000 for 4 years).

[REDACTED]

3. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

4. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

5. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

6. We feel very fortunate to have the resources we have. And our first focus is providing for our children. But even with all the blessings we have, the cost of college is daunting.

That's enough to get your minds going. If anyone has a way to frame this properly, pls do before the day is out. Thanks

From: Katz, Rebecca
Sent: Tuesday, April 07, 2015 06:24 AM
To: FLONYC; B
Cc: John, Roxanne; Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil
Subject: NYT: A New Challenge for Mayor Bill de Blasio: Paying for 2 Children in College

A New Challenge for Mayor Bill de Blasio: Paying for 2 Children in College

By MATT FLEGENHEIMER
and MICHAEL M. GRYNBAUM
APRIL 7, 2015

He lives rent-free in an Upper East Side mansion, owns two homes in a prime Brooklyn neighborhood and earns a six-figure salary supervising hundreds of thousands of employees.

But Mayor Bill de Blasio is now facing a hurdle familiar to many of his constituents: paying for his children's college educations.

Mr. de Blasio's son, Dante, a senior at Brooklyn Technical High School, is currently mulling offers from a short list of exclusive schools, with Yale and Brown among the front-runners, according to people familiar with his options.

And with Mr. de Blasio's daughter, Chiara, still attending college in California, not even the mayor of New York is immune, it seems, to seeking relief from the high cost of higher education.

"There's going to be a big challenge in figuring out financial aid and visits and all sorts of stuff," Mr. de Blasio said, when asked about Dante's plans at the end of an unrelated interview in his office last week.

Mr. de Blasio said he did not expect his son to decide on a school until later this month. Aides to the mayor declined to elaborate further on Dante's intentions or the family's financial considerations, saying they were private matters.

The soaring cost of college is often seized upon by Mr. de Blasio's fellow liberals, who call it both a symptom and a cause of the nation's rising inequality.

But the college process has cast Mayor de Blasio as a curious test case: His family is now affluent by most standards. Mr. de Blasio is paid $225,000 as mayor and the family receives tens of thousands of dollars in rental income from two properties in Park Slope, Brooklyn.

And yet, the de Blasio family's argument for aid would not be unreasonable, according to financial aid experts — a striking testament to the increasingly extreme costs of higher education.

The mayor's daughter, Chiara, attends Santa Clara University, a private Jesuit institution where tuition, room and board is roughly \$55,000 a year. If Dante were to attend Yale, for example, tuition, room and board would come to about \$60,000 a year.

Particularly with two children in college, the six-figure income "is not going to disqualify him from demonstrating need," said Kalman A. Chany, president of Campus Consultants, a firm based in Manhattan that advises families on financial aid.

And sky-high tuition has squeezed even upper middle-class families, said Mark Kantrowitz, the publisher of edvisors.com, a financial aid website.

"When you have colleges that are charging 50, 60, $70,000 a year, everybody is going to struggle to pay for college," he said.

But, Mr. Kantrowitz added of the mayor, "We're still talking about someone whose income is pretty close to the top 1 percent."

In 2013, the mayor and his wife, Chirlane McCray, earned $52,200 in rent from a modest duplex they own in Park Slope, a home once occupied by Mr. de Blasio's mother. And the family rowhouse down the street, which the de Blasios left for Gracie Mansion in Manhattan, was rented last year at $4,975 a month. The combined value of the homes will reach an estimated $2.8 million in the upcoming tax year, according to the New York City Department of Finance.

That additional income, however, might be offset: On his tax return last year, for instance, Mr. de Blasio declared a $6,493 loss on one house after accounting for mortgage costs, depreciation and other expenses. Ms. McCray draws no salary as chairwoman of the city's nonprofit arm.

Whatever his parents' circumstances, Dante would appear an impressive applicant.

Dante, 17, a champion debater with a fondness for political philosophy, is by many accounts a dedicated student. During a family vacation in Rome last summer, he was spotted perusing a paperback by the contemporary Italian political theorist Giorgio Agamben.

If Dante decides on Brown, the mayor might find himself at visiting weekends with another notable New York politician.

Michaela Kennedy Cuomo, the 17-year-old daughter of Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo, plans to attend the Ivy League school this fall, joining her sister Mariah at the alma mater of their mother, Kerry Kennedy, and their cousin John F. Kennedy Jr.

The political progeny would join a long line of scions attracted to Brown's brand of campus life. William H. Mondale took time off from classes there to help his father, Walter F. Mondale, campaign for president in 1984. Amy Carter, daughter of former President Jimmy Carter, was asked to leave Brown in 1987 for academic reasons; she later graduated from the Memphis College of Art.

Malia Obama, President Obama's daughter, was seen visiting Brown last month, part of an extensive tour that has also included Columbia, Harvard and Wesleyan University.

It remains unclear whether Dante will join their ranks. His father joked last week that he wanted "smoke, all sorts of stuff" to accompany the announcement of his son's choice.

"Let's get the staging going," Mr. de Blasio said in his office, smiling at a nearby aide. "I want heavy production values on this thing."

He likened the impending moment to LeBron James' famed television special, "The Decision," to announce his move from the Cleveland Cavaliers to the Miami Heat in 2010.

"Dante de Blasio wants to take his talents to ..." the mayor said, paraphrasing Mr. James's punch line.

In fact, the mystery has resonated even in the upper ranks of the political world.

Hillary Rodham Clinton, after an event with Ms. McCray in Brooklyn last week, was preparing to say goodbye when she paused for a final query, according to a person who witnessed their exchange.

Where, Mrs. Clinton asked, is Dante going to college?

From: Carey, Michael
To: B
Cc: FLONYC; Leopold, Elana; Wolfe, Emma; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Re: MINI Schedule for Wednesday, April 8, 2015
Date: Tuesday, April 07, 2015 7:58:03 PM

will do.

On 7 Apr 2015, at 7:57 pm, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Pls add mtg with chirlane, emma and jdc at gracie after hispanic fed

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Tuesday, April 07, 2015 03:05 PM
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Leopold, Elana
Subject: MINI Schedule for Wednesday, April 8, 2015

SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO
CITY OF NEW YORK
Wednesday, April 8, 2015

WEATHER: High 45°, Low 39°, Cloudy, 60% chance of rain

ATTIRE: Business

NOTES: - Spring Break for NYC Schools

- Elana will meet you at the gym.

6:45 - 7:15 TRAVEL FROM GRACIE MANSION EN ROUTE 357 9TH STREET
Travel Time: 30 mins

7:15 - 8:15 WORKOUT
Location: 357 9th Street
Note: YOU should change at the gym. Ishanee is staffing.

8:45 - 9:15 TRAVEL FROM 357 9TH STREET EN ROUTE 811 7TH AVENUE AND THIRD STREET//OFF TOPIC PREP WITH AMY SPITALNICK
Travel Time: 30 mins.

9:20 - 10:15 REMARKS AT NAN RIBBON CUTTING CEREMONY TO KICK OFF

2015 NATIONAL CONVENTION

Street Location: Sheraton New York, 811 7th Avenue and Third

Press: Open

10:15 - 10:30 OFF TOPIC GAGGLE

Location: Empire East Room

10:30 - 10:45 TRAVEL FROM 347 7TH AVENUE EN ROUTE [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]/COMMUNICATIONS CALL

Travel Time: 15 Minutes

10:45 - 11:15 [REDACTED]

Location: [REDACTED]

11:15 - 11:35 TRAVEL FROM [REDACTED] EN ROUTE CITY

HALL//COMMUNICATIONS CALL CONTINUED

Travel Time: 20 Minutes

12:00 - 12:30 TOUCHBASE WITH DEPUTY MAYOR GLEN

Location: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

1:00 - 1:30 TOUCHBASE WITH FIRST DEPUTY MAYOR SHORRIS

Location: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

2:00 - 2:30 TOUCHBASE DEPUTY MAYOR BUERY

Location: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

3:00 - 4:00 BI WEEKLY UPK ENROLLMENT MEETING

Location: City Hall, The Blue Room

4:30 - 5:00 FOLLOW UP MEETING ON HOMELAND SECURITY

Location: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

5:00 - 6:00 WHITESPACE//VIDEO TIME

Location: City Hall, The Mayor's Office

6:15 - 6:45 TRAVEL FROM CITY HALL EN ROUTE 330 WEST 42ND STREET

Travel Time: 30 Minutes

6:45 - 7:15 FAREWELL PARTY FOR LAURA SANTUCCI

Location: 1199 SEIU Penthouse, 330 West 42nd Street, betw.
8th & 9th Avenues, New York, NY

Press: Closed

Note: YOU present Laura a Tiffany Apple.

7:15 - 7:30 TRAVEL FROM 330 WEST 42ND EN ROUTE 301 PARK AVENUE
Travel Time: 15 Minutes

7:30 - 8:00 REMARKS AT THE HISPANIC FEDERATION 25TH ANNIVERSARY
GALA

Location: Waldorf Astoria, 301 Park Avenue

8:00 - 8:20 TRAVEL FROM 301 PARK AVENUE EN ROUTE GRACIE MANSION
Travel Time: 20 Minutes

PRESS CONFERENCES

To be updated.

FLONYC SCHEDULE

11:00 – 12:00 CHILDREN’S CABINET MEETING

12:00 – 12:30 LUNCH

12:30 – 2:30 MEETING WITH MAYOR’S FUND

2:30 – 3:30 STAFF DEBRIEF

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall
New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

From: Abeywardena, Penny
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: Thur readout
Date: Tuesday, April 07, 2015 9:06:43 PM

[REDACTED]

Penny Abeywardena
Commissioner
Mayor's Office for International Affairs

On Apr 7, 2015, at 8:52 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Do you have a personal email?

From: <Abeywardena>, "Abeywardena, Penny" <PAbeywardena@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, April 7, 2015 at 4:34 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Thur readout

Hi John- do you have anything you can share from Thursday? I'd love to see the agenda as well.
Grazie!

Penny Abeywardena | Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office for International Affairs
2 United Nations Plaza, 27th Floor, New York, NY 10017
p: (212) 319-9300 | nyc.gov/internationalaffairs

Follow us on Twitter: @GlobalNYC

 Please consider the environment before printing this email.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the intended recipient you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

From: John Del Cecato
To: Carey, Michael; B; Leopold, Elana
Subject: Re: David Axerlrod book party
Date: Wednesday, April 08, 2015 8:53:40 AM

Woot woot. Now I'm definitely going

On 4/8/15, 8:39 AM, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>Sir,

>

>You can stop by this event on April 23rd.

>

>I have added it to your schedule.

>

>

>

>Michael Paul Carey

>Director of Scheduling and Advance

>City Hall

>New York, New York 10007

>212.341.5396

>

>

>-----Original Message-----

>From: B

>Sent: Tuesday, April 7, 2015 10:59 PM

>To: Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana

>Cc: 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'

>Subject: David Axerlrod book party

>

>

>April 23rd at home of Joel Benenson. Chirlane and I would like to stop by >if possible

From: Perez, Roberto
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Are you ready to do your part? Sign up for our day of action on April 18th.
Date: Wednesday, April 08, 2015 4:59:53 PM

Hi there,

New York City is about to take a historic step: This fall, the City will provide free, full-day, high-quality pre-K to all 4-year-olds in the five boroughs.

We need to make sure every family knows about this great opportunity.

Are you ready to do your part? Sign up for our day of action on April 18th.

Your commitment and passion led to our shared success in expanding pre-K last year.

We need that same dedication this year to make sure every parent of a four year-old in New York City knows about this incredible opportunity for kids and their families.

Sign up now to volunteer on April 18th -- there will be opportunities to get involved in all five boroughs:

on.nyc.gov/prek-action

Thanks,

Marco Carrión
Commissioner, Mayor's Community Affairs Unit

P.S. If you'd prefer to sign up by phone, you can call this number during business hours: (212) 637-8000

From: B
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: Meet the Press
Date: Wednesday, April 08, 2015 6:44:52 PM

What time do they need me at 30 Rock? And how big a difference is there in placement within the show or impact of the performance if I do this remotely vs in DC?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Wednesday, April 08, 2015 06:30 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: Meet the Press

Sorry, amend. They would want to tape at 30 Rock if we do it in NYC.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Wednesday, April 08, 2015 05:45 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Carey, Michael
Subject: Meet the Press

Sir,

I'm working with the Meet the Press producer and they are eager to lock for Sunday.

We, as a team, still recommend that you do the interview from the Blue Room given all the upcoming travel and prep needs rather than doing it from D.C.

Other guests – Rand Paul (taped interview). Lineup still in motion. We're jostling for good positioning.

Please let me know your thoughts. They are eager to begin promoting tomorrow evening

Best,
Andrea

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: B
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: Meet the Press
Date: Wednesday, April 08, 2015 6:54:45 PM

Lock it in and get them promoting!! Let's figure out our logistical choices in the AM

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Wednesday, April 08, 2015 06:30 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: Meet the Press

Sorry, amend. They would want to tape at 30 Rock if we do it in NYC.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Wednesday, April 08, 2015 05:45 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Carey, Michael
Subject: Meet the Press

Sir,

I'm working with the Meet the Press producer and they are eager to lock for Sunday.

We, as a team, still recommend that you do the interview from the Blue Room given all the upcoming travel and prep needs rather than doing it from D.C.

Other guests – Rand Paul (taped interview). Lineup still in motion. We're jostling for good positioning.

Please let me know your thoughts. They are eager to begin promoting tomorrow evening

Best,
Andrea

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: John Del Cecato
To: Leopold, Elana; Carey, Michael; de Alwis, Ronalie; Wolfe, Emma; Liz Hegarty; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Subject: Re: MBDB: Meeting with FLONYC, Emma, and JDC
Date: Wednesday, April 08, 2015 7:40:14 PM

I love the phrase "running on time!"

On 4/8/15, 7:38 PM, "Leopold, Elana" <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>We are running on time for this meeting!

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Carey, Michael; John Del cecato
Subject: MTP
Date: Wednesday, April 08, 2015 8:38:51 PM

Sir,

Follow up on MTP and your questions

Topics they've agreed to: Main thrust of interview will be progressive agenda in 2016 and role it will play. Income inequality will be a part of it. Will also ask questions on HRC, Walter Scott/NYPD/Police reforms (body cameras specifically). Off topic could change as we get closer to Sunday.

Guest lineup: You are currently slated to be the second guest. Rand Paul will be taped and currently leads the show. They are considering moving you up to first guest but won't know more till Friday they said and, as with all media, could change should there be breaking news. If I were a betting woman, I'd bet Rand is first given his spectacular implosion within 24 hours of announcing his candidacy. Folks like tuning in to watch a train wreck, which is thus far what he has provided in his interviews. But we will continue to push and, if desired, I can try to link you being in DC to if you are the primary guest and see if they will play ball.

In-Studio v. Satellite: They would love you in-studio. They've told us anecdotally that Chuck tends to take longer with in-studio guests but I don't believe we should assume it would be tied to our core questions. It could mean they pull a George Stephanopoulos and just add more questions on police reforms.

Time: Either in DC or NYC, we are looking at you arriving at NBC around 8:30 and taping at 9 am on Sunday. It is about a 7 min segment at this stage. I will re-confirm.

My recommendation remains to do this in NYC and focus on prep and making your discussion edgy, which means it will get eyeballs and they'll get over not having you in-studio this time.

I'll confirm we're a go and that they can start promoting it, but will hold on logistical details with them till we determine course of action.

I've got prep ready to go and am working with MPC on schedule.

Thanks,
Andrea

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Thursday, April 09, 2015 9:31 AM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Leopold, Elana; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: Politico; progressives and Rahm

Sir, wanted to make sure you saw this. Will be part of our MTP prep, which begins tomorrow afternoon

From: Andrea Hagelgans [mailto:████████████████████]
Sent: Thursday, April 09, 2015 09:28 AM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea

ELECTIONS

Rahm shows Hillary how to tame the left

Progressives may not have as much sway as they claim, strategists say.

By EDWARD-ISAAC DOVERE

4/9/15 7:43 AM EDT

67 Shares

- 17 Shares
 - LinkedIn
 - Email
 - Comment
 - Print A win by Jesús “Chuy” García in the Chicago mayor’s race this week would have sent a signal that the progressive wing of the Democratic Party would be a decisive force in 2016, and that Hillary Clinton better do what they want or get out of the way.
-

But Garcia lost. Big. And Rahm Emanuel, the combative former chief of staff to President Barack Obama who spent the race being hammered for caring more about big donors from Big Business than unions or working people, will be sworn in again next month for a second term as mayor.

Story Continued Below

To many Democrats, there are two possible lessons: First, that the professional left talks a much better game than it delivers even as it starts to make big promises about the presidential race. And second, that focusing voters on the progressive elements of a candidate's record, as Emanuel did during his runoff, can blunt a challenge from an ineffective opponent.

ALSO ON POLITICO

Michael Bloomberg's war on coal

ANDREW RESTUCCIA

“Rahm Emanuel is a progressive mayor, period,” said Paul Begala, a longtime Bill Clinton adviser and a friend of Emanuel who advises the pro-Hillary Clinton Priorities super PAC. “I don’t think people should say a right-wing Democrat won. I think you’ve got to actually look at what he did and what he ran on.”

“That’s the lesson for Hillary Clinton: You can run comfortably on a progressive agenda and win,” Begala said.

Ben LaBolt, a former spokesman for both Emanuel and Obama, said progressive groups tried to assert themselves but ignored Emanuel’s record on everything from raising the minimum wage to expanding community college access, efforts that have become a partial model for the White House.

“There was a roadshow of national progressive groups that came into Chicago and tried to use the race to send a message about the issues and messages they cared about, but in some ways, they misjudged the race,” LaBolt said. “For all the discussion there’s been about ideological warfare within the party, ultimately it’s more of the bread-and-butter issues that affect people’s lives that are going to determine their vote.”

The progressive groups that got involved in the race disagree about Emanuel’s record. But they insist they showed themselves and their agenda to be just as powerful losing to Emanuel as if they’d won.

“The headline would have been unmistakable and the clarity would have certainly been there,” said Jim Dean, chairman of Democracy for America, which weighed in heavily for García. But “if any of these campaigns had anybody on the ground in Chicago and seen the level of energy around Chuy’s campaign and around the aldermen who were running, they would understand this.”

ALSO ON POLITICO

Moroccan cash flows to Clinton Foundation

KENNETH P. VOGEL and JOSH GERSTEIN

Instead its “populist groundswell gave Chuy García a fighting chance,” as Reclaim Chicago of the National People’s Action Campaign put it Tuesday night.

García was, at best, an imperfect messenger for progressives: Unlike Bill de Blasio who became a national progressive hero by winning a much different New York City mayor’s race in 2013, García was often short on both policy detail and political skill. De Blasio took heat for pledging to raise taxes on the rich for his ideas. García repeatedly ducked questions of how he’d pay for his.

The Chicago runoff never got close enough for Obama to seriously consider a last-minute visit to push his former chief of staff over the top, according to a White House aide. Instead, Emanuel’s campaign spent millions on an image-softening push that closed with a final commercial of the mayor, sporting an open-collar shirt and with soft piano music playing in the background, touting his all-day kindergarten program and the new jobs he brought to all neighborhoods — and acknowledging he could try being a better person himself.

Although a presidential race will mean everyone's paying a lot more attention to every position Clinton takes and every element of her record, she's not expected to have a progressive primary opponent such as Elizabeth Warren to draw off votes. Unlike Emanuel, she'll also have a Republican opponent, one elected out of a field that's sure to produce a candidate progressives won't be able to stand and will rally against even if their hearts aren't with Clinton.

That's not the only difference.

"She doesn't have the problem that he does — the 'asshole' factor," said a Democratic strategist familiar with both the Emanuel and de Blasio campaigns. "If I were Hillary Clinton looking at Chicago, I would say Rahm found himself in trouble largely because of personality clashes, and he survived because he was laser-focused on making his campaign an expression of his progressive successes."

But it's clear that progressives are less than enthusiastic about Clinton, and unions and other lefty groups are likely to start popping off soon about how this really might be the year when they'll sit out, or vote for someone else.

"This is a new era. There is a much more progressive bench of this party, and the energy of this party is in the progressive party. That is going to be the key to voter turnout and voter engagement in 2016," Dean said.

But as one measure, Dean's brother, former Vermont Gov. Howard Dean, endorsed García but has already endorsed Clinton. De Blasio is taking pains to stay close to her.

García's 43 percent "even as he was dramatically outspent and despite the challenges he faced shows the power of the idea that government and the economy should work for everyone, not just those at the top," said Nick Berning, communications director of MoveOn.org. "The lesson elected officials should draw from Chicago is that they ignore this hunger at their peril."

Begala said he's not concerned. If anything, he thinks Democrats should come out of Chicago feeling good about the unity within the party that produced a low-impact challenger for Emanuel and a seemingly untouchable front-runner for president, unlike the giant ideological rifts that Republican 2016 candidates are trying to navigate.

ALSO ON POLITICO

"It's really hard for people to confront this reality," Begala said, "but Democrats are in array."

Read more: <http://www.politico.com/story/2015/04/lessons-rahm-emanuel-win-116800.html#ixzz3WonejvS9>

Sent from my iPhone

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Carey, Michael
Subject: MTP
Date: Friday, April 10, 2015 7:26:08 AM

Sir,
Chuck Todd announced you'll be on the show this AM so we'll start getting some buzz. Rumors really now flying about a Sunday HRC announcement so we'll practice landing our progressive agenda answers through HRC line of questioning. Prep is this afternoon and tomorrow. I have clips for you to watch 30 Rock is confirmed. Have to be there at 8:30am.

Thanks

From: Hagelgans Andrea
To: B
Cc: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\); Walzak Phil; Leopold Elana; Carey Michael; Williams Dominic; Wolfe Emma
Subject: Briefing Memo
Date: Friday, April 10, 2015 7:13:15 PM
Attachments: Mayor's Event Briefing- MTP - 040715.docx

Attached and key info below—to get our prep going. Working on more questions but my six minutes with Chuck Todd is below to help is start.

I have Mahen increasing his clips focused on presidential politics over next few days so you see in real-time.

Event/Meeting Briefing Information

Staff Contact/Planning Lead: Andrea Hagelgans
--

EVENT: LIVE interview with Chuck Todd for NBC's Meet the Press

RATIONALE: As presidential candidates start to announce for the White House, this is an opportunity to sit down and have a real conversation on inequality and the progressive agenda.

DAY/DATE: Sunday, April 12

EVENT TIME: 9 AM hour

MBDB TIME: 8:30 arrival
9:00 a m in chair

LOCATION: 30 Rockefeller; Global Media studio #3 on the 6th floor of 30 Rock...Rm. 644S

ATTACHMENTS: TPS, QS, VIDEO

EVENT PROGRAM:
MBDB INTRODUCED BY: CHUCK TODD

In this 6 minute interview (no commercial breaks), YOU will be asked about income inequality, the progressive agenda, the state of the Democratic Party, and the race for the White House

Other topics: NYPD/ Community Policing/ Walter Scott

Interview Goals:

- 1) Force a deeper discussion and debate about progressive issues/ income inequality – can't just be a buzz word, need to see candidate action to be successful
- 2) Pivot quickly from personality- type questions back to larger progressive agenda frame

Key Messages

- I. There's no two ways about it: we have an economic crisis in this country. We have a country that is losing its middle class. Working families struggling to put food on the table, pay their mortgage, raise their kids. The issue of income inequality is a profound threat to this country and its future – that we are experiencing growing divisions that must be addressed.

The country is headed in a very dangerous direction. We're becoming ever more divided. We have now worse income inequality than at the time of the stock market crash in 1929. If we don't address it, we will look up in a few years and wonder why we didn't see the warning signs.

II. If you're going to reduce the income gap, you need two things:

1) more investment in programs and policies that lift the floor for working people (paid sick leave, $15 min wage, child care) and

2) more revenue from those at the very top – millionaires, billionaires, and wealthy corporations (close carried interest loophole, put a 5% surcharge on income earned over a million bucks, etc).

We need sensible reforms like closing the carried interest loophole, which hedge fund titans use to pay a lower tax rate than someone who works 9 to 5. It's the moral thing to do – and we need the money to help pay for child care and Pre-K and the other things working parents need.

If you're serious about reducing the gap between millionaires and billionaires and everybody else in America, the math is the math. If we're going to rebuild the middle class, those at the top are going to have to pay a little more.

In government – particularly state and local government – you've gotta balance the budget. There are no secret pots of money. So if you don't wanna rob Peter to pay Paul, that means some folks will have to pony up.

There's no reason that a multi-millionaire sitting by the pool at their beach house should be paying a lower rate of taxes than the woman who cleans their home. It's about rewarding work, and not just wealth.

We need sensible reforms like closing the carried interest loophole, which hedge fund titans use to pay a lower tax rate than someone who works 9 to 5. It's the moral thing to do – and we need the money to help pay for child care and Pre-K and the other things working parents need.

III. This presidential election we need blunt talk and real solutions. The candidate who makes this election about income inequality, the real struggles in people's lives, and provides the solution will be the winner.

In the 2014 cycle, Democrats did not speak bluntly about it—and they paid the price. That is the lesson.

They did not honestly say to the people of this country, here's a crisis and we're going to do very specific things about it. We're going to be willing to take on those who are wealthy and ask them to do their fair share. We're going to be willing to take on corporations that are not being fair to their workers.

INEQUALITY STATISTICS

- We have now worse income inequality than at the time of the stock market crash in 1929.
- In America, the wealthiest 160,000 families own as much wealth as the poorest 145 million families

- According to OxFam, by next year, the top one percent in the world will possess more wealth than the bottom 99 percent.
- Between 2009 and 2012 overall income per family grew 6.9 percent. The gains weren't shared evenly, however. The top 1 percent saw their real income grow by 34.7 percent while the bottom 99 percent only saw a 0.8 percent gain, meaning that the top 1 percent captured 91 percent of all real income.

"Real Stories" of New Yorkers Who Have Struggled with the Effects of Rampant Income Inequality, but Who Have Been Helped by Bold, Progressive Policies in NYC

- Leonardo Hernandez -

- Car wash worker in Queens whom I met last year
- He told me that he was literally unable to take a day off if he or a family member fell ill because he simply couldn't afford to lose a single day's pay. So no matter how sick he's been, how cold it is, he literally didn't have the right to take a day off.
- But now, thanks to a paid sick leave policy that we've instituted here in New York City, Leonardo now enjoys these protections. And those are the kinds of changes that can make a dent in income inequality nationally if our political leaders have the will and vision to tackle this head-on.

Six minutes with Chuck Todd

Welcome to the show.

- 1) So, everyone is buzzing about Hilary announcing her candidacy. You were her campaign manager, what type of a candidate do you think she is and will she be this time around?

[NOTE—In 2000, you said, But her strategists say it's even more imperative for her to do meets-and-greets than for the average politician. Hand-to-hand campaigning, they said, humanizes her and gives her the opportunity to counter the portrayal of her as aloof and arrogant and feeling entitled to be senator." She likes to literally shake every hand in the room, if possible. It's her style," said campaign manager Bill de Blasio.]

- Immense respect. Often say my life has been influenced most deeply by 2 Wesley women- one I married and one I worked for
- No harder worker out there. Saw that in 2000, 2008 and certainly will see it if she runs
- But what I would say to her—and any candidate for that matter—is that this election will be won by the candidate that has an honest conversation with the American people about income inequality, the growing gap between the ultra-rich and the middle class and working people, and provides real solutions – paid sick leave, minimum wage, higher taxes for those that can afford it. We are losing our middle class in this country.
- If we don't address it now, we will look up in a few years and wonder why we didn't see the warning signs.

- 2) In 2000, you said your role was to, "bring more focus to the campaign, to provide it with a single point of coordination and leadership." Is that one of her challenges, lack of coordination? And do you think this team will be different than 2008 team? Can she reinvent herself? What do you think will be her biggest challenges?

- Look she hasn't announced her candidacy yet, so I don't want to get into the personalities.
- For any candidate it is about really listening to the American people and finding the solutions folks are yearning for. We have now worse income inequality than at the time of the stock market crash in 1929.
- In the 2014 cycle, Democrats did not speak bluntly about it—and they paid the price. They did not honestly say to the people of this country, here's a crisis and we're going to do very specific things about it.
- We know solutions exist and work – Paid Sick Leave in NYC, raising the minimum wage

- 3) Are you going to endorse Hilary? Do you think progressives will get behind her?

- I'm not going to talk about specific personalities. All I'm saying is that anyone hoping to lead the American people – up and down the ballot – must have a plan to combat income inequality that's based in progressive principles.
- 4) Has she discussed her campaign with you/ Have you talked with her? [Your wife was just with her, right?] If you haven't, why is that? Was she invited to your recent Confab?
- We have not discussed her campaign directly.
 - I've had several discussions with her over the last few months, and she knows where I stand on how best to tackle the economic challenges we face.
 - But my advice to her would be the same to any candidate --- we need a real conversation about income inequality and solutions to lift more people up.
 - That means, 1) more investment in programs and policies that lift the floor for working people (paid sick leave, $15 min wage, child care) and 2) more revenue from those at the very top – millionaires, billionaires, and wealthy corporations (close carried interest loophole, put a 5% surcharge on income earned over a million bucks, etc).
- 5) What does HRC need to say to you to convince you she is running a progressive campaign? What do you need to see/ hear to make sure that "income inequality" isn't just the campaign buzz phrase? [VARIATION - In your op-ed, you said, "This year, too many Democratic candidates lost sight of those core principles -- opting instead to clip their progressive wings in deference to a conventional wisdom that says bold ideas aren't politically practical." What would you advise presidential candidates from either party?]
- Lots of talk about "income inequality". Even seeing very conservative candidates use it. But, the income gap has favored the one percent over the 99 percent since 2009
 - The proof is in the pudding--- what policy prescriptions will they support.
 - We know solutions exist and work – Paid Sick Leave in NYC, raising the minimum wage, closing tax loopholes
 - Nationally, we need sensible reforms like closing the carried interest loophole, which hedge fund titans use to pay a lower tax rate than someone who works 9 to 5. It's the moral thing to do – and we need the money to help pay for child care and Pre-K and the other things working parents need.
- 6) When you say that the income gap has favored the One Percent over the 99 Percent since 2009 – isn't that a direct indictment of President Obama? Should he have done more to help the non-rich?
- President Obama has made great efforts to close the income gap.
 - Some have called ObamaCare one of the greatest social programs aimed at reducing income inequality since the New Deal. There was the stimulus, which greatly expanded the EITC. And there was his success in raising the top marginal tax rate to where it was when Bill Clinton left office.
 - What the income inequality statistics tell us is this: we need to be even more aggressive lifting the floor for working people, and that has to include a greater contribution by those at the very top.
- 7) You recently announced a Progressive Agenda contract --- will you make her sign it? Was it meant to send a message to Hillary?
- We're asking all candidates to commit to these principles because they are three things: 1) real solutions to income inequality; 2) feasible ideas; 3) resonant with millions of Americans who are desperate for leadership on these economic matters.
- 8) Are you disappointed Elizabeth Warren isn't running? Is there any candidate you can get behind right now?
- Look I don't discuss candidates until they run and I review their platform
 - What I'm looking for in a candidate is a real commitment to tackling the greatest challenge of our time – income gap that is leaving so many families behind.
- 9) Mayor Rahm Emanuel just beat a progressive candidate. Governor Cuomo is not known as a "progressive" yet is popular. What does that say to you about the electability of candidates running on a progressive platform?
- Every race is different, but it doesn't reflect on the broader progressive discussion that is happening at dinner tables around the country
 - What you hear is real discussion about issues--- minimum wage, immigration, higher taxes on the wealthy to support education, etc.

- Candidates didn't run on that in 2014 and paid the price. Need to heed that warning.

10) Noticed you will be in Iowa this week, are you thinking about a run in the future particularly if you don't hear the types of things you want to hear this election cycle? [VARIATION - The NYS GOP Chair said YOU would beat HRC in a primary.

- As much as I enjoy getting political advice from the GOP Chair – let me be clear: I'm not running for president. That's my Sherman-esque answer. We just want these policies to be implemented.
- I'm focused on being Mayor of the greatest City in the U.S.
- [If pushed – already stated my intentions to run for re-election. Like my current day job]

11) Turning to recent events in South Carolina—Mr. Mayor in the wake of the Eric Garner tragedy, you announced that NYPD would be piloting body cameras. In your opinion do body cameras make a difference in police/ community relations? Are they a deterrent? Are they good tool for seeing the full picture?

- Hopeful, but not conclusive. Important in terms of accountability, transparency, improved community/relations
- But need to be used in combination with training, which is equally important—learning to de-escalate conflict,

Other Q & A

Q. Is this a betrayal (that you haven't endorsed yet)?

A. Absolutely not. In fact, it would be phony & a betrayal of Bill de Blasio's principles if we endorsed a 2016 campaign - any campaign, at any level - without first hearing a REAL plan to address the central issue of our time - income inequality. And that real plan must include higher taxes on the rich.

Q. What about endorsing Cuomo in 2014? We didn't make him embrace higher taxes. Why are we being so tough on HRC.

A. 2014 is in the rear-view mirror now. We're not going to revisit. And/but the inspiration for the national movement of progressives towards addressing income inequality really came to a head after Nov 2014 - when Dems ran away from progressive positions/accomplishments & paid a stiff price at the polls as a result. We don't want to see a repeat of that. Backbone Politics is now not just an option; it's a requirement.

Q: Is Iowa, Nebraska meant to send a message to Hillary?

A: It's meant to send a message to elected officials and candidates for every office, up and down the ballot, in both parties: to tackle income inequality, we must implement progressive policies.

Q: Did you weigh in with Hillary about this?

A: I've had several discussions with her over the last few months, and she knows where I stand on how best to tackle the economic challenges we face. I won't get into specifics.

Q: Is Hillary Clinton too close to Wall Street? Too centrist? Or is she a "real progressive?"

A: Again, I'm not getting into specific personalities. This is about a set of issues. And what matters to this group is that those who seek to lead, up and down the ballot, embrace these principles.

Q: Could you see yourself supporting Martin O'Malley? He agrees with you on a lot of this stuff.

A: Policies. Not Personalities.

Q: What happens if a candidate or elected official doesn't endorse The Progressive Agenda? Will you all campaign against them?

A: We're asking them to commit to these principles because they are three things: 1) real solutions to income inequality; 2) feasible ideas; 3) resonant with millions of Americans who are desperate for leadership on these economic matters.

Q: Grover Norquist makes conservative candidates and elected officials sign a no-tax pledge – and he strongly backs those who do, while punishing those who do not. Is that what you're trying to replicate?

A: It's not about the backing or non-backing from folks up here. It's about the people we represent – progressive across the country. And to motivate those Americans – to get them on their feet, activated, and encouraged to support a candidate or elected official – they need to know that the candidate or elected official is with them on these core issues.

Q: Even if you continue to have a Democratic White House, you'll likely have a Republican Congress. How can any of this get done?

A: This isn't just about the White House and Congress. BUT, I will say this. There are those who see divided government & believe that nothing but the most watered-down measures can get support. I don't believe that. If you push hard enough, organize aggressively enough, and make it front-and-center in the national conversation, politicians who might ordinarily be afraid to be bold will suddenly see that it's not just "okay" to have a backbone. It's an existential requirement.

Q: Aren't you concerned that candidates or elected officials will look at all the taxes you're proposing here & say "Geez, I don't want an attack ad run by the Koch Brothers saying I support trillions in higher taxes."

A: Here's the hard truth. If you're going to reduce the income gap, you need two things: 1) more investment in programs and policies that lift the floor for working people; and 2) more revenue from those at the very top – millionaires, billionaires, and wealthy corporations. There's no secret pot of money. And if you're going to be serious about investing in programs that help the 99 Percent, then the One Percent has to be willing to help foot the bill.

Q: How does this help the people of New York City? Are you getting outside the realm of your Day Job?

A: The fact is, we are doing many of these things at the city level. We're trying to do some at the state level. Others only make sense at the federal level. We shouldn't silo government into city or state or federal. People don't look at their government like that. They know that the people they put into public office have to work together, at all levels of government, to achieve real change. And there's so much more that we can do to lift the lives of working people here in NYC if we have support from across the country and in Washington.

Andrea Hagelgans
Office of the Mayor
Direct – 212.341.5372
Cell – 718.679.8965
ahagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

Event/Meeting Briefing Information

Staff Contact/Planning Lead:

EVENT: LIVE interview with Chuck Todd for NBC's Meet the Press

RATIONALE: As presidential candidates start to announce for the White House, this is an opportunity to sit down and have a real conversation on inequality and the progressive agenda.

DAY/DATE: Sunday, April 12

EVENT TIME: 9 AM hour

MBDB TIME: 8:30 arrival
9:00 a m in chair

LOCATION: 30 Rockefeller; Global Media studio #3 on the 6th floor of 30 Rock...Rm. 644S

ATTACHMENTS: TPS, QS, VIDEO

EVENT PROGRAM:
MBDB INTRODUCED BY: CHUCK TODD

In this 6 minute interview (no commercial breaks), YOU will be asked about income inequality, the progressive agenda, the state of the Democratic Party, and the race for the White House

Other potential topics: NYPD/ Community Policing/ Walter Scott

Interview Goals:

- 1) Force a deeper discussion and debate about progressive issues/ income inequality – can't just be a buzz word, need to see candidate action to be successful
- 2) Pivot quickly from personality- type questions back to larger progressive agenda frame

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

Key Messages

- I. There's no two ways about it: we have an economic crisis in this country. We have a country that is losing its middle class. Working families struggling to put food on the table, pay their mortgage, raise their kids. The issue of income inequality is a profound threat to this country and its future – that we are experiencing growing divisions that must be addressed.

The country is headed in a very dangerous direction. We're becoming ever more divided. We have now worse income inequality than at the time of the stock market crash in 1929. If we don't address it, we will look up in a few years and wonder why we didn't see the warning signs.

- II. If you're going to reduce the income gap, you need two things:

1) more investment in programs and policies that lift the floor for working people (paid sick leave, $15 min wage, child care) and

2) more revenue from those at the very top – millionaires, billionaires, and wealthy corporations (close carried interest loophole, put a 5% surcharge on income earned over a million bucks, etc).

We need sensible reforms like closing the carried interest loophole, which hedge fund titans use to pay a lower tax rate than someone who works 9 to 5. It's the moral thing to do – and we need the money to help pay for child care and Pre-K and the other things working parents need.

If you're serious about reducing the gap between millionaires and billionaires and everybody else in America, the math is the math. If we're going to rebuild the middle class, those at the top are going to have to pay a little more.

In government – particularly state and local government – you've gotta balance the budget. There are no secret pots of money. So if you don't wanna rob Peter to pay Paul, that means some folks will have to pony up.

There's no reason that a multi-millionaire sitting by the pool at their beach house should be paying a lower rate of taxes than the woman who cleans their home. It's about rewarding work, and not just wealth.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

We need sensible reforms like closing the carried interest loophole, which hedge fund titans use to pay a lower tax rate than someone who works 9 to 5. It's the moral thing to do – and we need the money to help pay for child care and Pre-K and the other things working parents need.

III. This presidential election we need blunt talk and real solutions. The candidate who makes this election about income inequality, the real struggles in people's lives, and provides the solution will be the winner.

In the 2014 cycle, Democrats did not speak bluntly about it—and they paid the price. That is the lesson.

They did not honestly say to the people of this country, here's a crisis and we're going to do very specific things about it. We're going to be willing to take on those who are wealthy and ask them to do their fair share. We're going to be willing to take on corporations that are not being fair to their workers.

INEQUALITY STATISTICS

- We have now worse income inequality than at the time of the stock market crash in 1929.
- In America, the wealthiest 160,000 families own as much wealth as the poorest 145 million families
- According to OxFam, by next year, the top one percent in the world will possess more wealth than the bottom 99 percent.
- Between 2009 and 2012 overall income per family grew 6.9 percent. The gains weren't shared evenly, however. The top 1 percent saw their real income grow by 34.7 percent while the bottom 99 percent only saw a 0.8 percent gain, meaning that the 1 percent captured 91 percent of all real income.

"Real Stories" of New Yorkers Who Have Struggled with the Effects of Rampant Income Inequality, but Who Have Been Helped by Bold, Progressive Policies in NYC

Leonardo Hernandez –

- Car wash worker in Queens whom I met last year
- He told me that he was literally unable to take a day off if he or a family member fell ill because he simply couldn't afford to lose a single day's pay. So no matter how sick he's been, how cold it is, he literally didn't have the right to take a day off.
- But now, thanks to a paid sick leave policy that we've instituted here in New York City, Leonardo now enjoys these protections. And those are the kinds of changes

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

that can make a dent in income inequality nationally if our political leaders have the will and vision to tackle this head-on.

Delnaye [del-NYE] Cadogan—

- Caribbean American security guard and father of three from Brooklyn whom I met last summer
- His daughter, Odianne, was offered a seat in full-day pre-k at P.S. 203 (the Floyd Bennett School)
- For fathers all across the country like Delnaye struggling to make ends meet for their families, policies like full-day pre-k make a world of a difference and help ease the burdens that working parents are facing each and every day.

Six minutes with Chuck Todd

Welcome to the show.

- 1) So, everyone is buzzing about Hilary announcing her candidacy. You were her campaign manager, what type of a candidate do you think she is and will she be this time around?

[NOTE—In 2000, you said, But her strategists say it's even more imperative for her to do meets-and-greets than for the average politician. Hand-to-hand campaigning, they said, humanizes her and gives her the opportunity to counter the portrayal of her as aloof and arrogant and feeling entitled to be senator." She likes to literally shake every hand in the room, if possible. It's her style," said campaign manager Bill de Blasio.]

- Immense respect. Often say my life has been influenced most deeply by 2 Wesley women- one I married and one I worked for
- No harder worker out there. Saw that in 2000, 2008 and certainly will see it if she runs
- But what I would say to her—and any candidate for that matter—is that this election will be won by the candidate that has an honest conversation with the American people about income inequality, the growing gap between the ultra-rich and the middle class and working people, and provides real solutions – paid sick leave, minimum wage, higher taxes for those that can afford it. We are losing our middle class in this country.
- If we don't address it now, we will look up in a few years and wonder why we didn't see the warning signs.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

- 2) In 2000, you said your role was to, “bring more focus to the campaign, to provide it with a single point of coordination and leadership.” Is that one of her challenges, lack of coordination? And do you think this team will be different than 2008 team? Can she reinvent herself? What do you think will be her biggest challenges?
- Look she hasn’t announced her candidacy yet, so I don’t want to get into the personalities.
 - For any candidate it is about really listening to the American people and finding the solutions folks are yearning for. We have now worse income inequality than at the time of the stock market crash in 1929.
 - In the 2014 cycle, Democrats did not speak bluntly about it—and they paid the price. They did not honestly say to the people of this country, here’s a crisis and we’re going to do very specific things about it.
 - We know solutions exist and work – Paid Sick Leave in NYC, raising the minimum wage
- 3) Are you going to endorse Hillary? Do you think progressives will get behind her?
- I’m not going to talk about specific personalities. All I’m saying is that anyone hoping to lead the American people – up and down the ballot – must have a plan to combat income inequality that’s based in progressive principles.
- 4) Has she discussed her campaign with you/ Have you talked with her? [Your wife was just with her, right?] If you haven’t, why is that? Was she invited to your recent Confab?
- We have not discussed her campaign directly.
 - I’ve had several discussions with her over the last few months, and she knows where I stand on how best to tackle the economic challenges we face.
 - But my advice to her would be the same to any candidate --- we need a real conversation about income inequality and solutions to lift more people up.
 - That means, 1) more investment in programs and policies that lift the floor for working people (paid sick leave, $15 min wage, child care) and 2) more revenue from those at the very top – millionaires, billionaires, and wealthy corporations (close carried interest loophole, put a 5% surcharge on income earned over a million bucks, etc).
- 5) What does HRC need to say to you to convince you she is running a progressive campaign? What do you need to see/ hear to make sure that “income inequality” isn’t

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

just the campaign buzz phrase? [VARIATION - In your op-ed, you said, “This year, too many Democratic candidates lost sight of those core principles -- opting instead to clip their progressive wings in deference to a conventional wisdom that says bold ideas aren't politically practical.” What would you advise presidential candidates from either party?]

- Lots of talk about “income inequality”. Even seeing very conservative candidates use it. But, the income gap has favored the one percent over the 99 percent since 2009
- The proof is in the pudding--- what policy prescriptions will they support.
- We know solutions exist and work – Paid Sick Leave in NYC, raising the minimum wage, closing tax loopholes
- Nationally, we need sensible reforms like closing the carried interest loophole, which hedge fund titans use to pay a lower tax rate than someone who works 9 to 5. It's the moral thing to do – and we need the money to help pay for child care and Pre-K and the other things working parents need.

6) When you say that the income gap has favored the One Percent over the 99 Percent since 2009 – isn't that a direct indictment of President Obama? Should he have done more to help the non-rich?

- President Obama has made great efforts to close the income gap.
- Some have called ObamaCare one of the greatest social programs aimed at reducing income inequality since the New Deal. There was the stimulus, which greatly expanded the EITC. And there was his success in raising the top marginal tax rate to where it was when Bill Clinton left office.
- What the income inequality statistics tell us is this: we need to be even more aggressive lifting the floor for working people, and that has to include a greater contribution by those at the very top.

7) You recently announced a Progressive Agenda contract --- will you make her sign it? Was it meant to send a message to Hillary?

- We're asking all candidates to commit to these principles because they are three things: 1) real solutions to income inequality; 2) feasible ideas; 3) resonant with millions of Americans who are desperate for leadership on these economic matters.

8) Are you disappointed Elizabeth Warren isn't running? Is there any candidate you can get behind right now?

- Look I don't discuss candidates until they run and I review their platform

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

- What I'm looking for in a candidate is a real commitment to tackling the greatest challenge of our time – income gap that is leaving so many families behind.
- 9) Mayor Rahm Emanuel just beat a progressive candidate. Governor Cuomo is not known as a “progressive” yet is popular. What does that say to you about the electability of candidates running on a progressive platform?
- Every race is different, but it doesn't reflect on the broader progressive discussion that is happening at dinner tables around the country
 - What you hear is real discussion about issues--- minimum wage, immigration, higher taxes on the wealthy to support education, etc.
 - Candidates didn't run on that in 2014 and paid the price. Need to heed that warning.
- 10) Noticed you will be in Iowa this week, are you thinking about a run in the future particularly if you don't hear the types of things you want to hear this election cycle? [VARIATION - The NYS GOP Chair said YOU would beat HRC in a primary.
- As much as I enjoy getting political advice from the GOP Chair – let me be clear: I'm not running for president. That's my Sherman-esque answer. We just want these policies to be implemented.
 - I'm focused on being Mayor of the greatest City in the U.S.
 - [If pushed – already stated my intentions to run for re-election. Like my current day job]
- 11) Turning to recent events in South Carolina—Mr. Mayor in the wake of the Eric Garner tragedy, you announced that NYPD would be piloting body cameras. In your opinion do body cameras make a difference in police/ community relations? Are they a deterrent? Are they good tool for seeing the full picture?
- Hopeful, but not conclusive. Important in terms of accountability, transparency, improved community/relations
 - But need to be used in combination with training, which is equally important— learning to de-escalate conflict,

Other Q & A

Q. Is this a betrayal (that you haven't endorsed yet)?

- A. Absolutely not. In fact, it would be phony & a betrayal of Bill de Blasio's principles if we endorsed a 2016 campaign - any campaign, at any level - without first hearing a REAL plan to address the central issue of our time - income inequality. And that real plan must include higher taxes on the rich.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

Q. What about endorsing Cuomo in 2014? We didn't make him embrace higher taxes. Why are we being so tough on HRC.

A. 2014 is in the rear-view mirror now. We're not going to revisit. And/but the inspiration for the national movement of progressives towards addressing income inequality really came to a head after Nov 2014 - when Dems ran away from progressive positions/accomplishments & paid a stiff price at the polls as a result. We don't want to see a repeat of that. Backbone Politics is now not just an option; it's a requirement.

Q: Is Iowa, Nebraska meant to send a message to Hillary?

A: It's meant to send a message to elected officials and candidates for every office, up and down the ballot, in both parties: to tackle income inequality, we must implement progressive policies.

Q: Did you weigh in with Hillary about this?

A: I've had several discussions with her over the last few months, and she knows where I stand on how best to tackle the economic challenges we face. I won't get into specifics.

Q: Is Hillary Clinton too close to Wall Street? Too centrist? Or is she a "real progressive?"

A: Again, I'm not getting into specific personalities. This is about a set of issues. And what matters to this group is that those who seek to lead, up and down the ballot, embrace these principles.

Q: Could you see yourself supporting Martin O'Malley? He agrees with you on a lot of this stuff.

A: Policies. Not Personalities.

Q: What happens if a candidate or elected official doesn't endorse The Progressive Agenda? Will you all campaign against them?

A: We're asking them to commit to these principles because they are three things: 1) real solutions to income inequality; 2) feasible ideas; 3) resonant with millions of Americans who are desperate for leadership on these economic matters.

Q: Grover Norquist makes conservative candidates and elected officials sign a no-tax pledge – and he strongly backs those who do, while punishing those who do not. Is that what you're trying to replicate?

A: It's not about the backing or non-backing from folks up here. It's about the people we represent – progressive across the country. And to motivate those Americans – to get them on their feet, activated, and encouraged to support a candidate or elected official – they need to know that the candidate or elected official is with them on these core issues.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

Q: Even if you continue to have a Democratic White House, you'll likely have a Republican Congress. How can any of this get done?

A: This isn't just about the White House and Congress. BUT, I will say this. There are those who see divided government & believe that nothing but the most watered-down measures can get support. I don't believe that. If you push hard enough, organize aggressively enough, and make it front-and-center in the national conversation, politicians who might ordinarily be afraid to be bold will suddenly see that it's not just "okay" to have a backbone. It's an existential requirement.

Q: Aren't you concerned that candidates or elected officials will look at all the taxes you're proposing here & say "Geez, I don't want an attack ad run by the Koch Brothers saying I support trillions in higher taxes."

A: Here's the hard truth. If you're going to reduce the income gap, you need two things: 1) more investment in programs and policies that lift the floor for working people; and 2) more revenue from those at the very top – millionaires, billionaires, and wealthy corporations. There's no secret pot of money. And if you're going to be serious about investing in programs that help the 99 Percent, then the One Percent has to be willing to help foot the bill.

Q: How does this help the people of New York City? Are you getting outside the realm of your Day Job?

A: The fact is, we are doing many of these things at the city level. We're trying to do some at the state level. Others only make sense at the federal level. We shouldn't silo government into city or state or federal. People don't look at their government like that. They know that the people they put into public office have to work together, at all levels of government, to achieve real change. And there's so much more that we can do to lift the lives of working people here in NYC if we have support from across the country and in Washington.

MEET THE PRESS QUESTIONS FOR OTHER GUESTS

Questions for Bernie Sanders— September 14, 2014

"Are you about to switch parties? Are you going to become a member of the Democratic Party if you pursue this presidential campaign?"

"And you've – it sounds like you've ruled out running as an independent or you have not? You could end up doing it that way?"

"I want to read something that was paraphrased to you, it says, "It is essential,' Sanders said, 'to have someone in the 2016 presidential campaign who is willing to take on Wall Street, address the collapse of the middle class, tackle the spread of poverty, and fiercely oppose cuts to social security and MediCare.” Is it safe to say if you thought Hillary Clinton were doing that, you wouldn’t be considering this?”

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

“But you say you’re, you’re, separating out—are you separating out Hillary Clinton from this? If she were speaking more robustly on these issues, would you be thinking about running?”

“Uh, I hear you, it’s uh—rail against this, and I think: Boy, you must be unhappy with President Obama. So you believe he—you believe he’s been right on most of his ideas. You just don’t believe he has, uh, pushed them hard enough?”

“Let me ask you on that billionaire front: Is there such thing as a – If a billionaire agrees with you on issues are you okay with them participating in the process? Or do you think this entire process, whether it’s Tom Steyer or Michael Bloomberg or the Koch brothers?”

“Alright. You’re headed to Iowa. I guess I’m going to ask it this way about the Democratic Party today. Do you think the Democratic Party is open to a progressive like you? Do you think the Democratic Party is closer to where you are? Or closer to where the Clintons are?”

“Where’s the Democratic Party today? Closer to you or closer to Hillary?”

Questions for Various Mayors— December 7, 2014

“Confidence in the legal system after Ferguson, after Staten Island, has it increased or decreased? In this case, both whites and blacks say their confidence in the legal system has decreased. Whites 35% say it’s decreased, with blacks, 70%. Mayor Reed, the Atlanta Police Department, do you feel that they treat blacks and whites the same or differently in your city?”

“Mayor Nutter, I think there’s another debate here that was interesting. A conservative columnist John Podhoretz, openly wondered, “Is it time to move on from the broken-windows style of policing?” Right? And broken-windows style of policing was back there in the ‘90s, and this is what he wrote.

...The meaning is that maybe the way to police petty crimes should change. Do you believe that?”

“Quickly, Mr. Ramsey, how do you keep bias out of the Philadelphia police force?”

“Mayor Reed, you ready for Hillary?”

“What do you think of Jeb Bush’s authenticity there, Rick? He’s basically saying, “Look, I’m going to stay who I am. You may not agree with me,” in some ways. Basically he’s saying, “You don’t agree with me on immigration and common-core conservatives, but

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

I'm not going to placate you on those two issue.””

Questions for Mayor Michael Nutter– March 23, 2014

“Michael though, you're looking at this, no doubt, from the point of view of the President's domestic agenda. Going to the issues that you're dealing with as a mayor every day. You look at a foreign policy crisis taking more and more time and effort away. Do you worry about it impacting President Obama's leadership in other areas?”

“Mayor, are you proud of this [Affordable Care] law?”

Questions for Cory Booker— August 25, 2013

“You told this to the Huffington Post a couple of years ago. "I'm so frustrated," you say, "when I see how difficult it is to get people to take relatively simple steps, proven to make a difference. Not to take a freedom ride, not to march against club and gas-wielding state troopers, not to storm beaches in Normandy or Iwo Jima, but just to take small, increased steps of service that along with others, doing the same, could make a significant difference." A lack of activism and polarized politics. That's a wicked combination.”

“It is interesting. You talk about the income inequality as the lasting legacy of a dream unfulfilled. You're the Mayor of Newark. Unemployment there is over 13%. It's endemic in a lot of our cities, we have that kind of failure. And a lot of critics would say, a lot of democratic leadership there. These are really hard things. Why have you not been able to make more progress in this particular area?”

“So take it to Washington. If you're a senator, how would you forge compromise in modern-day Washington over the tension of spending restraint and necessary improvements to lessen inequality?”

“I've got just a couple seconds left. But I think it's a special part of our discussion this morning. We look at your parents, two of the early executives at IBM, first African American, black executives there. What does their journey tell you about the American dream?”

Questions for Rand Paul— January 26, 2014

“You have questioned the president's moral leadership at points along the way. Is there an area where you feel you can work in common cause with him this year?”

“The future of the Republican Party and, frankly, your place in it is a big story. Just this morning, the front page of The New York Times has this headline: "Rand Paul's Mixed Inheritance: Senator Looks to Move Libertarianism from the Fringe to the Mainstream.”

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

How big of a hurdle is this for you, if you're going to run for president?"

"But it's interesting, the role of government, you've often referred to the tyranny of the federal government. So, again, it comes down to mainstream versus extreme. Fellow Republican, and maybe he's one that will run against you for the Republican nomination, Ted Cruz has described your strident libertarianism of your father as an issue that will always be a shadow over anything you try to do."

Asked about Edward Snowden

"Let me ask you more about some of the debates within the Republican Party. ...My question, about whether you think it's appropriate for the party, key figures in the party, to be talking about women, women's health, women's bodies, and the role of the federal government related to those things?"

Final political question for you. Whoever the Republican nominee is, there's a good chance, as we look at it now, that one candidate on the Democratic side who'll have a lot of momentum, whether she gets the nomination or not we don't know, is Hillary Clinton. And an interesting profile in Vogue magazine, including this analysis. "While her husband jokes," meaning you, "that his gut feeling is that Hillary Clinton will not run for president is good a thing since all the polls show her trouncing any opponent, Kelley, the wife of Senator Rand Paul practically cuts him off to say that, 'Bill Clinton's relationship with Monica Lewinsky should complicate his return to the White House, even as first spouse. I would say his behavior was predatory, offensive to women,' she tells me." Are these issues something that you really think will be fair game and an appropriate part of a campaign, should she be the nominee?"

Questions for Paul Ryan— February 1, 2015

Asked about Mitt Romney not running for president
Asked if he would be Vice Prez

"In your book, you wrote this: "You've got to be willing to take criticism even from your friends and trust that the people will understand that governing requires tradeoffs." You sounded like somebody that wanted to make a deal with the president right up to the State of the Union, one of the few Republicans that didn't criticize his State of the Union. Does that mean you are ready to be a compromiser with the president when it comes to tax reform?"

Asked about tax code reform as method for change

"Let's get into some specifics. A couple of the tax cuts that the president's proposing for middle class families include expanding the earned income tax credit. This would be for working families actually that don't have kids. Childless adults, yes. And then expanding the childcare tax credit. What do you think of those?"

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

“You know the full budget comes later this week. When do you put out a tax plan? When should we expect one from you?”

“Now, got a little graphic here, December 12th, unemployment rate, 7.9%, stagnant GDP, Dow sitting at barely 13,000. Look where we are two years later. Unemployment at 5.6%. GDP, 2.6%. Not as much as some people would like. The Dow up 5,000 points. Is that the definition of an economic policy that hasn't been working?”

“Do you think the Netanyahu thing, do you think that this was sort of getting involved in foreign policy in a way that maybe the legislative branch shouldn't have done that to begin with?”

Questions for Eric Holder— January 11, 2015

“Would you say the United States is at war with radical Islam?”

“Now it seems that according to various sources we have here, that the United States warned France that these two brothers in particular had gotten training in Yemen nearly five years ago. Is this an intelligence breakdown that happened in France or a law enforcement resource issue? Because they can't follow everybody?”

Asked about al Qaeda, surveillance, David Petraeus

Questions for Marco Rubio— December 21, 2014

Asked about Cuba policy

“The president of the United States this week signed new sanctions against a, quote unquote, “Left-wing dictatorship,” of authoritarian regime in Venezuela. So, you know, isn't there a contradiction in your attack there? I mean he is sanctioning a, quote unquote, “Left-wing dictatorship” in Venezuela. Obviously, with Cuba, he's trying to change the policy.”

“I want to get you to react to a fellow Republican Senator of yours, Rand Paul of Kentucky. He sent you a series of tweets, I will roll them on the screen, about his support for lifting of the embargo versus your criticism of the lifting of the embargo. And he has various questions here, “If it doesn't hurt Cuba, why do you want to keep it?” And essentially calling you the isolationist. What do you say to Senator Paul?”

“Can you imagine running in the same Republican primary as Jeb Bush?”

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THE CITY OF NEW YORK

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Cc: Walzak, Phil
Subject: Fw: Pls read
Date: Saturday, April 11, 2015 12:11:12 PM

I was dealing with the terrorism media during that portion of the confab. Could you bullet out?

----- Original Message -----

From: Shorris, Anthony
Sent: Saturday, April 11, 2015 12:08 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Williams, Dominic; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; jfdc@akpdmedia.com <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Pls read

Why not road test (gently of course) some of the ideas for the "Contract"? That could be the revenue stuff as well as some programs.

Anthony E. Shorris
First Deputy Mayor
City of New York
City Hall
New York, NY 10007
212-788-3191

- > On Apr 11, 2015, at 11:34 AM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
- >
- > What are some of the specific policy prescriptions we want him to use on MTP and what should he avoid?
- >
- > To use- carried interest tax loophole? Capital gains (and what specifically)? What else?

From: Carey, Michael
To: Leopold, Elana; B
Cc: @EO; Klein, Monica; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: Nvm: Sen Harkin
Date: Saturday, April 11, 2015 12:40:04 PM

He also just emailed me this:

See if you can find out if Warren was her maiden or married name. If maiden, who did she marry to bear Bill's mother? If Warren is her married name, what was her maiden name ? Was she an immigrant? Was she raised on a farm?

From: <Leopold>, Elana Leopold <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Saturday, April 11, 2015 at 12:38 PM
To: Bill de Blasio <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Monica Klein <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Nvm: Sen Harkin

Sen. Harkin

Hi Bill, it's Tom Harkin. I spoke to Michael Carey but I need more information about your grandmother, Nina Warren, from Blanchard, IA.

Give me a call when you can so we can go over our events in Iowa. It's a good thing and going to be a good day.

Sent from my iPhone

From: Klein, Monica
To: B
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; "jfromowitz@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: Nina warren
Date: Saturday, April 11, 2015 2:32:37 PM

Will have the research team look into this as well!

On 4/11/15, 2:28 PM, "B" <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>
> [REDACTED]
> [REDACTED] Let's verify if true

>
>
>-----Original Message-----

>From: Zoë Wilhelm
>To: Vinnie Wilhelm
>Cc: John Wilhelm
>Cc: Sarah Wilhelm
>Cc: Bill de Blasio
>Cc: Jean Wilhelm
>Cc: Betsy Gilbertson
>Cc: Tom Wilhelm
>Cc: Jesse Hagopian
>Cc: Don Wilhelm
>Cc: Steve Wilhelm
>Cc: Chiara De Blasio
>Cc: Dante De Blasio
>Cc: Chirlane McCray
>Subject: Re: Nina warren
>Sent: Apr 11, 2015 1:55 PM

>
[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

From: Bill de Blasio
To: John Del Cecato
Cc: PhilWalzak; Andrea Hagelqans; Emma Wolfe; FLONYC
Subject: Re: NYT
Date: Saturday, April 11, 2015 4:48:49 PM

I agree entirely. Ultimately, it's only one story -- and not without some real balance. But it misses how unchanged my views are. And it suggests I somehow don't think Wall Street is part of the problem, as opposed to understanding my demand for change has to be balanced by the need to work with the largest hometown industry. I think we need to be sharper next time on this point, and I think we can't let these diplomatic events be subverted into a surrender. Let's discuss at next planning mtg
Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Date: Sat, 11 Apr 2015 16:55:18 +0000

To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>

Cc: Phillip Walzak <[REDACTED]> Andrea
Hagelqans <[REDACTED]> Emma Wolfe <[REDACTED]>

Subject: NYT

Story starts off giving me serious heartburn....then gets better/more accurate/more based on facts and not corporatist spin...then a little more heartburn via Tom Nides and Morgan Stanley.

New Tack for de Blasio: Wooing Business Leaders He Once Denounced

Gone are the self-conscious jokes, the dry references to business leaders as a tough crowd. His vocabulary is careful, smoothed free of buzzwords likely to offend. Mayor Bill de Blasio still talks about inequality, but for these audiences he emphasizes that the causes of New York City's economic divide are complex and global in nature.

More than a year after taking office, Mr. de Blasio is engaged in his first sustained courtship of the city's most powerful private sector executives. The mayor, who ran for office railing against "moneyed interests," is now making what corporate chieftains describe as a long delayed, sometimes awkward, attempt to meet them on their home turf.

He has wooed them in private phone calls and unannounced meetings at City Hall, and has staged several striking events: On a visit last month to Morgan Stanley, for example, he posed for selfies with employees and joked that moving into Gracie Mansion was like living in a museum. Mr. de Blasio, as part of his getting-to-know-you tour, also dined recently with about a dozen business and nonprofit leaders at the home of Ralph Schlosstein, chief executive of the investment firm Evercore Partners.

As a candidate, Mr. de Blasio defined himself in opposition to big business, vowing to increase taxes on the rich and to turn the page on the policies of his billionaire predecessor, Michael R. Bloomberg. Upon taking office, he quickly pressed for a new tax on wealthy New Yorkers to pay for universal prekindergarten. (Mr. de Blasio got a prekindergarten program, but state lawmakers blocked the tax.)

Mr. de Blasio has not abandoned his populist rhetoric: Meeting with finance leaders at City Hall in early March, he urged them to invest in companies that pay their workers well. Addressing the Association for a Better New York, a business-minded civic group, at the Pierre hotel, he called on companies to raise wages voluntarily.

The mayor also hosted a meeting for liberal activists at Gracie Mansion on April 2 and announced plans for a national agenda intended to address economic inequality.

Yet business leaders say they have also detected a softening of Mr. de Blasio's tone and posture, and perhaps new traces of ambivalence about wielding the executive set as a political foil.

The mayor has embraced opportunities to introduce himself more personally: When Mr. Schlosstein, who is married to Jane D. Hartley, the United States ambassador to France, suggested in a private meeting that he should better acquaint himself with the business world, Mr. de Blasio responded by asking the investment executive to host an event designed to help him do just that, according to associates familiar with the conversation, who asked to speak anonymously about the off-the-record event.

During the meeting at Morgan Stanley, Mr. de Blasio paid homage to Wall Street: "The financial services sector supports 310,000 New York City jobs and accounts for 22 percent of the city's economic output," he declared in the firm's cafeteria. "This industry is crucial to the city's future."

Indeed, as Mr. de Blasio has run up against the limitations of his own authority as mayor, he appears to have seen the value of enlisting business leaders as occasional allies.

Jonathan D. Gray, a senior executive at the private equity firm the Blackstone Group, said the mayor had offered a pragmatic pitch to industry leaders in their March meeting in the Blue Room at City Hall.

"I think it's a practical recognition on the part of the mayor that in order to achieve a lot of the things that he wants to do, it's going to take a robust partnership between the public and private sector," Mr. Gray said.

Mayoral advisers freely acknowledged the calculations involved in their outreach to the corporate community. Some elements of Mr. de Blasio's agenda, such as his pledge to create or preserve 200,000 units of affordable housing, plainly rest on the ability to collaborate with major investors. Others are simply more likely to succeed with private sector help. In that vein, the mayor's office announced an initiative in February geared toward training New Yorkers for technology jobs, with corporate backers including JPMorgan Chase and Goldman Sachs.

Mr. de Blasio recently appeared at a gathering of corporate executives hosted by the Macy's chief executive, Terry J. Lundgren, designed to promote a youth employment program backed by private institutions. (The mayor sought out Mr. Lundgren's involvement personally, visiting him at his offices at Macy's flagship New York location on West 34th Street, aides to Mr. de Blasio said.)

On a purely political level, there is a clear logic to Mr. de Blasio's attempt to reset his relationship with business leaders, and Wall Street executives in particular. He won the mayor's race with an atypical electoral coalition anchored by minority and liberal white voters — a base of support that has remained largely intact. But no mayor in the better part of a century has won re-election in the face of deep hostility from the business community.

Mr. de Blasio seemed at risk of testing that precedent, based on the message of his 2013 campaign and a few gestures he has made since taking office, including a push for the so-called millionaire's tax and his strong criticism of charter schools, a pet issue for many on Wall Street that continues to fester.

In an early appearance before the Partnership for New York City, a powerful business group, last May, Mr. de Blasio startled those on hand by referring to financial services as a "legacy industry," a relatively static sector inherited from an earlier time. After the mayor left the room, several financiers voiced umbrage at the remark, according to attendees who asked for anonymity to discuss what they said was a tense private meeting.

But Mr. de Blasio has continued to appear at events hosted by the partnership, insistently asking executives affiliated with the group to contact his office with any concerns. And he has won occasional help from business groups: Late last month, the partnership and the Association for a Better New York jointly backed Mr. de Blasio's quest to place city schools permanently under mayoral control.

Gabrielle Fialkoff, who leads the Mayor's Fund to Advance New York City, a government-aligned nonprofit organization, said the mayor believed he shared "a lot of common ground" with private-sector executives, including on his signature issue of economic inequality.

"He is not shy about asking for ways that they can join together to address the inequality crisis, because it affects all of us that take pride in the city," said Ms. Fialkoff, a senior adviser to Mr. de Blasio.

During the city's ultimately unsuccessful push to host the 2016 Democratic convention, Mr. de Blasio connected with a few business leaders in particular, according to aides who asked to speak anonymously about his personal relationships. After a long phone call last year with Ursula Burns, the chief executive of Xerox and a member of the convention host committee, Mr. de Blasio invited the Lower East Side native to a one-on-one meeting at City Hall in mid-March.

During the convention bidding process, the mayor's office also quietly persuaded Sean Parker, the billionaire co-founder of the music-sharing service Napster who sat on the host committee, to join the advisory board of the Mayor's Fund.

Mr. de Blasio has placed solicitous phone calls to other members of the committee, and hosted a thank-you reception for participants. Alan J. Patricof, head of the venture capital firm Greycroft Partners and a host committee member, said the mayor's outreach efforts represented "a reconciliation" with a class of New Yorkers who were anxious about his election.

"He made it very clear when he came into office that he wants to help poor people, that he wants to make this a five-borough city," said Mr. Patricof, an influential Democratic donor. He added, of the finance community: "They get nervous, because they don't know what the implications are. So far, I think everything he's done has been pretty constructive."

Kathryn S. Wylde, the president of the Partnership for New York City, said the mayor had struggled to soften his image as a "candidate for change, against the 12-year record of a man whom business people revere," referring to Mr. Bloomberg.

"It has been hard to get past that," Ms. Wylde said. "Mike Bloomberg is a global leader in business and philanthropy. Being mayor was not the source of his stature in the private sector."

For Mr. de Blasio, a career public official and strategist, matching Mr. Bloomberg's stature in the business world is not an option. But Thomas R. Nides, the Morgan Stanley vice chairman who conducted a public question-and-answer session with the mayor during his visit there, said that introducing himself more personally was still a welcome step.

"My only advice would be: He should do more of that," said Mr. Nides, who added that the mayor had spoken about inequality at Morgan Stanley in a way his audience could appreciate: "He did it in a very appropriate way. He did not suggest that it began and ended with Wall Street."

"In fact," Mr. Nides recalled, "he said he understands how important the industry is."

From: Wolfe, Emma
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelqans, Andrea; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: AP: Clinton to focus on economic security, opportunity
Date: Saturday, April 11, 2015 5:15:54 PM

4:57PM by Julie Pace

CHICAGO (AP) — Hillary Rodham Clinton's presidential campaign will center on boosting economic security for the middle class and expanding opportunities for working families, while casting the former senator and secretary of state as a "tenacious fighter" able to get results, two senior advisers said Saturday.

They provided the first preview of the message that Clinton planned to convey when she launches her long-anticipated campaign on Sunday with an online video. Until now, the former first lady has offered only hints of what would drive her if she were to run a second time for the White House.

The strategy described by Clinton's advisers has echoes of President Barack Obama's 2012 re-election campaign. He framed the choice for voters as between Democrats focused on the middle class and Republicans wanting to protect the wealthy and return to policies that led to the 2008 economic collapse.

The advisers said Clinton will argue that voters have a similar choice in 2016. Clinton also intends to sell herself as being able to work with Congress, businesses and world leaders.

That approach could be perceived as a critique of Obama, Clinton's rival for the nomination in 2008. He has largely been unable to fulfill his pledge to end Washington's intense partisanship and found much of his presidency stymied by gridlock with Congress.

The Clinton advisers spoke on condition of anonymity in order to discuss her plans ahead of Sunday's announcement. People familiar with the plans say Clinton will travel to Iowa and other early-voting states to hold small events with residents in the days after the video's release.

Clinton is not expected to roll out detailed policy positions in the first weeks of her campaign. Advisers said she planned to talk about ways families can increase take-home pay, the importance of expanding early childhood education and making higher education more affordable.

It's not yet clear whether that will include a noticeable break with Obama on economic policy. The GOP has hammered Obama's approach as anti-business and insufficient in the wake of the recession. The White House says the economy has improved significantly in recent years.

The unemployment rate fell to 5.5 percent in March, but manufacturing and new home construction slowed, cheaper gas has yet to ignite consumer spending and participation in the labor force remains sluggish.

Clinton will enter the race as the overwhelming favorite for her party's nomination. Still, her team has said her early strategy is designed to avoid appearing to take that nomination for granted.

The early events will include discussions at colleges, day care centers and private homes, and stops at coffee shops and diners. After about a month of such events, Clinton will give a broader speech outlining more specifics about her rationale for running.

In 2008, Clinton followed a video announcement with a large rally in Des Moines, Iowa.

Clinton's husband, Bill, and daughter, Chelsea, are unlikely to appear at her early events. Bill Clinton, the former two-term president, said recently that he wanted to play a role as a "backstage adviser" in his wife's campaign.

Advisers said Bill Clinton has been engaged with his wife in some of the policy discussions leading up to this weekend's rollout.

To prepare for the campaign, Clinton has spent months meeting with economic policy experts, including Heather Boushey, whose research focuses on inequality, and Teresa Ghilarducci, a labor economist and retirement policy expert. The policy development process has been overseen by aides Jake Sullivan and Dan Schwerin.

In the days before her announcement, Clinton has been holding lengthy meetings with her staff, sometimes joining them at her crowded personal offices in midtown Manhattan and other times participating by phone.

Clinton's growing team of staffers began working out of a new campaign headquarters in Brooklyn on Friday.

She is expected to reach out to donors in the coming weeks, but does not plan to headline many fundraising events over the next month.

From: B
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: Always subject to change but...
Date: Saturday, April 11, 2015 6:27:55 PM

Anything can change... And I have now been thoroughly briefed re: tmrw's announcement. Much better than I expected, which causes me to make a few adjustments in my wording for MTP -- but not too many :)

----- Original Message -----

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Saturday, April 11, 2015 05:11 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Carey, Michael; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; FLONYC Subject: Always subject to change but...

We have been moved up to first in the line up. Live hit time of 9:04 (remember, airs later in NYC than elsewhere in the country).

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; FLONYC
Subject: Fw: MSNBC: Clinton's 'go small' strategy carries risks and rewards
Date: Saturday, April 11, 2015 6:27:59 PM

This is bylined Chuck Todd.

From: Clips
Sent: Saturday, April 11, 2015 05:41 PM
Subject: MSNBC: Clinton's 'go small' strategy carries risks and rewards

Clinton's 'go small' strategy carries risks and rewards

MSNBC - Chuck Todd

<http://www.msnbc.com/msnbc/clintons-go-small-strategy-carries-risks-and-rewards>

The risks and rewards of Hillary Clinton's early "go small" strategy... Answering the process question but not the message question... Not taking anything for granted... Hillary by the numbers in our NBC/WSJ and NBC/Marist polling... O'Malley repeats his "I think the presidency is not a crown to be passed back and forth between two families"... Republican 2016ers gather in Nashville at the NRA's annual convention... Why Rand Paul is in Iowa – and not in Nashville... And Hillary steps on Rubio's rollout.

FIRST THOUGHTS

 The risks and rewards of Clinton's early "go small" strategy: Well, the longest tease in American politics is officially over. As NBC's Kristen Welker and Andrea Mitchell report, former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton will announce her presidential candidacy as soon as Sunday, according to two sources close to the Clinton campaign. Welker and Mitchell add that Clinton is expected to make this announcement on social media, and she'll make campaign stops next week in places like Iowa. Here's the other important point to make: The early events likely will be small — reminiscent of that "Listening Tour" as she began to run for that New York Senate seat in 2000. In other words, she is going to be going door-to-door, meeting with voters in Iowa, New Hampshire, etc. one-on-one. "The go-slow, go-small strategy, [Clinton's] advisers say, plays to her strengths, allowing her to meet voters in intimate settings where her humor, humility and policy expertise can show through," the Washington Post wrote yesterday. The lesson learned from 2008: Clinton isn't as comfortable going big — a la Barack Obama or even her husband. But there is a risk to this go-small strategy. It lacks a message.

 Answering the process question but not the message question: Indeed, Clinton's early rollout is answering the process question (how the announcement will go down, etc.), but it isn't answering the message question (what her campaign will be about). Now it's likely we will see a here's-why-I'm-running-for-president speech from Clinton next month; the April "Listening Tour" showers will bring May's bigger flowers. But given how a month seems like an eternity in our new media landscape, Clinton's challenge will be running without answering that message question.

 Not taking anything for granted: There's a final takeaway from everything we now know: Hillary wants to send the message that she's taking NOTHING for granted. Of course, this is maybe the central message she learned from 2008 – especially as her campaign paid just lip service to caucus contests, which counted just as much in delegates as the primary contests did. But then again, there is always the danger of trying to fight what was the last battle. Do you over-correct past mistakes? Do memories of the past concern you more than the present?

 Hillary by the numbers: With all of the Hillary news, here is a look at Hillary by the numbers through all of our polling:

- Her fav/unfav in the March NBC/WSJ poll is 44%-36% (among Democrats, it's 77%-7%);
- 86% of Democratic voters said they could see themselves supporting her, versus 13% who couldn't, per the March NBC/WSJ poll;
- 38% of Democratic voters want to see a challenge to Hillary, compared with 61% who don't see it as a concern;
- 51% of all voters believe she represents the policies of the past, versus 44% who think she'll provide new ideas for the future (Jeb Bush's score on this question was 60% past/27% future);
- And our February NBC/Marist poll showed Clinton leading Vice President Joe Biden in Iowa, 68%-12%, and in New Hampshire, 69%-13%.

All of Clinton's numbers among Democrats are MUCH stronger than they were at this point in 2007. That Democratic Party DID have some Clinton fatigue. While the professional progressive community and many in the media have Clinton fatigue this time around, the evidence isn't there that this "fatigue" has trickled down to the actual rank-and-file Democratic voters.

 O'Malley repeats his "I think the presidency is not a crown to be passed back and forth between two families": As far as another potential Democrat who might challenge Clinton, former Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley spoke with MSNBC's Ari Melber yesterday. Said O'Malley, repeating what he said a couple of weeks ago: "I think the presidency is not a crown to be passed back and forth between two families. It is a sacred trust to be earned and exercised on behalf of the people of our country. It's supposed to be a contest of ideas and— and opportunity for— for candidates to earn this awesome trust from the people— whose government it— it actually is."

 Republican 2016ers gather in Nashville at the NRA's annual convention: On the Republican side, most of the potential GOP 2016ers will speak in Nashville, TENN, at the NRA's annual convention. The speakers (in order): Bobby Jindal at 2:25 pm ET, Scott Walker at 2:40 pm ET, Rick Perry at 3:20 pm ET, Jeb Bush at 3:40 pm ET, Ben Carson at 3:50 pm ET, Marco Rubio at 4:05 pm ET, Mike Huckabee at 4:30 pm ET, Lindsey Graham at 4:45 pm ET, and Ted Cruz at 4:55 pm ET.

 Why Rand Paul is in Iowa — and not in Nashville: There is one person who WON'T be at the NRA confab — Rand Paul, who campaigns in Iowa after announcing his presidential bid on Tuesday. But there's another reason for his absence. "The National Rifle Association says the only reason Sen. Rand Paul didn't get an invitation to its annual convention in Nashville this weekend was its inability to accommodate all the 2016 GOP presidential hopefuls," Politico writes. "But Republican insiders know that Paul is persona non grata with the country's largest Second Amendment advocacy group because of his affiliation with another, more militant gun rights organization, its brash executive director, and his vast direct-mail network focused on hard-core conservative issues."

 Hillary steps on Rubio's rollout: Our final point this morning: Hillary Clinton's announcement — going on social media on Sunday, with campaign stops later in the week — is going to step on Marco Rubio's announcement in Florida, intentionally or not. Rubio's a bit snake-bitten on this front. Don't forget: Clint Eastwood's dialogue with a chair overshadowed Rubio's well-received 2012 convention speech. And there was that whole water episode in his State of the Union rebuttal to Obama.

OBAMA AGENDA: Obama and Castro will meet again

Obama is nearing a decision on whether to remove Cuba's designation as a state sponsor of terrorism. The New York Times has the latest.

"The last time President Barack Obama and Cuban President Raul Castro met face-to-face was in December 2013 — for a three-second handshake during Nelson Mandela's memorial service," writes NBC News. "The two now could now cross paths again at the two-day Summit of the Americas in Panama, an encounter rife with opportunity and symbolism given the thaw in U.S.-Cuba relations announced at the end of last year."

Chuck Schumer is getting pressure from both sides on Iran after he issued a statement supporting a bill that could hamper the nuclear deal.

OFF TO THE RACES: Ready for takeoff

CLINTON: The big news of the day: She's expected to announce her presidential bid as early as Sunday.

Bloomberg reports from the NRA conference and finds gun advocates eager to defeat her.

The Wall Street Journal looks at the liberals who think she's too far to the right.

Bill Clinton is not happy with an NYT story that paints him as frail.

BUSH: The New York Times does a deep dive into the relationship between Jeb Bush and Marco Rubio, writing that their presidential rivalry "is now consuming their hometown with talk of unchecked ambition and political backstabbing."

He's hoping to shore up support at the NRA conference, with an emphasis on his 2005 signing of Florida's Stand Your Ground law.

GRAHAM: Lindsey Graham is on a mission, and it's to take down Rand Paul.

PAUL: NBC's Andrew Rafferty writes that Rand Paul may be haunted by his father's words.

Rand Paul wasn't invited to the NRA conference. The Wall Street Journal explains why.

RUBIO: POLITICO takes a close look at his tax plan and how it puts him at odds with other conservatives.

WALKER: Bloomberg reports: "On the same day that President Barack Obama said that Governor Scott Walker should "bone up" on foreign policy, the soon-to-be Republican presidential candidate was in a full day of national security briefings, part of his intensive behind-the-scenes preparation to run for commander in chief."

The Des Moines Register wraps yesterday's Family Leader regional summit.

The Washington Post explains why Arthur Laffer is such an influencer of GOP candidates.

And around the country...

OHIO: “If Ted Strickland wins a seat in the U.S. Senate in 2016, he would, at age 75, be the oldest freshman ever elected to the chamber by popular vote. The Ohio Democrat would also arrive in Washington with something else unusual for a freshman senator: He’s already collecting a congressional pension,” National Journal writes. “The pension is a benefit accrued during two separate stints in the U.S. House of Representatives, from 1993 to 1995, and from 1997 to 2007. And Strickland began collecting pension payments in 2008 while serving as Ohio’s governor, according to financial documents filed during his governorship.”

From: B
To: Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Re: AP: Clinton to focus on economic security, opportunity
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 2:03:11 AM

Important I get a sense of what her economic advisers have written on inequality. Let's pull some of this over the next few days

----- Original Message -----

From: Wolfe, Emma
Sent: Saturday, April 11, 2015 05:15 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: AP: Clinton to focus on economic security, opportunity

4:57PM by Julie Pace

CHICAGO (AP) — Hillary Rodham Clinton's presidential campaign will center on boosting economic security for the middle class and expanding opportunities for working families, while casting the former senator and secretary of state as a "tenacious fighter" able to get results, two senior advisers said Saturday.

They provided the first preview of the message that Clinton planned to convey when she launches her long-anticipated campaign on Sunday with an online video. Until now, the former first lady has offered only hints of what would drive her if she were to run a second time for the White House.

The strategy described by Clinton's advisers has echoes of President Barack Obama's 2012 re-election campaign. He framed the choice for voters as between Democrats focused on the middle class and Republicans wanting to protect the wealthy and return to policies that led to the 2008 economic collapse.

The advisers said Clinton will argue that voters have a similar choice in 2016. Clinton also intends to sell herself as being able to work with Congress, businesses and world leaders.

That approach could be perceived as a critique of Obama, Clinton's rival for the nomination in 2008. He has largely been unable to fulfill his pledge to end Washington's intense partisanship and found much of his presidency stymied by gridlock with Congress.

The Clinton advisers spoke on condition of anonymity in order to discuss her plans ahead of Sunday's announcement. People familiar with the plans say Clinton will travel to Iowa and other early-voting states to hold small events with residents in the days after the video's release.

Clinton is not expected to roll out detailed policy positions in the first weeks of her campaign. Advisers said she planned to talk about ways families can increase take-home pay, the importance of expanding early childhood education and making higher education more affordable.

It's not yet clear whether that will include a noticeable break with Obama on economic policy. The GOP has hammered Obama's approach as anti-business and insufficient in the wake of the recession. The White House says the economy has improved significantly in recent years.

The unemployment rate fell to 5.5 percent in March, but manufacturing and new home construction slowed, cheaper gas has yet to ignite consumer spending and participation in the labor force remains sluggish.

Clinton will enter the race as the overwhelming favorite for her party's nomination. Still, her team has said her early strategy is designed to avoid appearing to take that nomination for granted.

The early events will include discussions at colleges, day care centers and private homes, and stops at coffee shops and diners. After about a month of such events, Clinton will give a broader speech outlining more specifics about her rationale for running.

In 2008, Clinton followed a video announcement with a large rally in Des Moines, Iowa.

Clinton's husband, Bill, and daughter, Chelsea, are unlikely to appear at her early events. Bill Clinton, the former two-term president, said recently that he wanted to play a role as a "backstage adviser" in his wife's campaign.

Advisers said Bill Clinton has been engaged with his wife in some of the policy discussions leading up to this weekend's rollout.

To prepare for the campaign, Clinton has spent months meeting with economic policy experts, including Heather Boushey, whose research focuses on inequality, and Teresa Ghilarducci, a labor economist and retirement policy expert. The policy development process has been overseen by aides Jake Sullivan and Dan Schwerin.

In the days before her announcement, Clinton has been holding lengthy meetings with her staff, sometimes joining them at her crowded personal offices in midtown Manhattan and other times participating by phone.

Clinton's growing team of staffers began working out of a new campaign headquarters in Brooklyn on Friday.

She is expected to reach out to donors in the coming weeks, but does not plan to headline many fundraising events over the next month.

From: B
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Wolfe, Emma; Walzak, Phil; FLONYC
Subject: Re: AP: Clinton to focus on economic security, opportunity
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 2:08:17 AM

One more attempt at clarity as I learn more from direct sources: we will hear very little in the way of specifics tmrw, much less than we should imho. But what they are proposing for the specifics, to be released in a month or so, is much stronger than I originally assumed. As Chirlane notes, they have a rich tradition of backsliding, so there are no guarantees. Which means our pushing really matters here. And it means the next steps of the TPA should be moved ASAP

----- Original Message -----

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Saturday, April 11, 2015 06:15 PM
To: Hagelgans, Andrea
Cc: Wolfe, Emma; B; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: AP: Clinton to focus on economic security, opportunity

Zzzz

> On Apr 11, 2015, at 6:16 PM, Hagelgans, Andrea <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
> From the piece:
> Clinton is not expected to roll out detailed policy positions in the first weeks of her campaign.
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: Wolfe, Emma
> Sent: Saturday, April 11, 2015 05:15 PM
> To: B
> Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
> Subject: AP: Clinton to focus on economic security, opportunity
>
> 4:57PM by Julie Pace
>
> CHICAGO (AP) — Hillary Rodham Clinton's presidential campaign will center on boosting economic security for the middle class and expanding opportunities for working families, while casting the former senator and secretary of state as a "tenacious fighter" able to get results, two senior advisers said Saturday.
> They provided the first preview of the message that Clinton planned to convey when she launches her long-anticipated campaign on Sunday with an online video. Until now, the former first lady has offered only hints of what would drive her if she were to run a second time for the White House.
> The strategy described by Clinton's advisers has echoes of President Barack Obama's 2012 re-election campaign. He framed the choice for voters as between Democrats focused on the middle class and Republicans wanting to protect the wealthy and return to policies that led to the 2008 economic collapse.
> The advisers said Clinton will argue that voters have a similar choice in 2016. Clinton also intends to sell herself as being able to work with Congress, businesses and world leaders.
> That approach could be perceived as a critique of Obama, Clinton's rival for the nomination in 2008. He has largely been unable to fulfill his pledge to end Washington's intense partisanship and found much of his presidency stymied by gridlock with Congress.
> The Clinton advisers spoke on condition of anonymity in order to discuss her plans ahead of Sunday's announcement. People familiar with the plans say Clinton will travel to Iowa and other early-voting states to hold small events with residents in the days after the video's release.

- > Clinton is not expected to roll out detailed policy positions in the first weeks of her campaign. Advisers said she planned to talk about ways families can increase take-home pay, the importance of expanding early childhood education and making higher education more affordable.
- > It's not yet clear whether that will include a noticeable break with Obama on economic policy. The GOP has hammered Obama's approach as anti-business and insufficient in the wake of the recession. The White House says the economy has improved significantly in recent years.
- > The unemployment rate fell to 5.5 percent in March, but manufacturing and new home construction slowed, cheaper gas has yet to ignite consumer spending and participation in the labor force remains sluggish.
- > Clinton will enter the race as the overwhelming favorite for her party's nomination. Still, her team has said her early strategy is designed to avoid appearing to take that nomination for granted.
- > The early events will include discussions at colleges, day care centers and private homes, and stops at coffee shops and diners. After about a month of such events, Clinton will give a broader speech outlining more specifics about her rationale for running.
- > In 2008, Clinton followed a video announcement with a large rally in Des Moines, Iowa.
- > Clinton's husband, Bill, and daughter, Chelsea, are unlikely to appear at her early events. Bill Clinton, the former two-term president, said recently that he wanted to play a role as a "backstage adviser" in his wife's campaign.
- > Advisers said Bill Clinton has been engaged with his wife in some of the policy discussions leading up to this weekend's rollout.
- > To prepare for the campaign, Clinton has spent months meeting with economic policy experts, including Heather Boushey, whose research focuses on inequality, and Teresa Ghilarducci, a labor economist and retirement policy expert. The policy development process has been overseen by aides Jake Sullivan and Dan Schwerin.
- > In the days before her announcement, Clinton has been holding lengthy meetings with her staff, sometimes joining them at her crowded personal offices in midtown Manhattan and other times participating by phone.
- > Clinton's growing team of staffers began working out of a new campaign headquarters in Brooklyn on Friday.
- > She is expected to reach out to donors in the coming weeks, but does not plan to headline many fundraising events over the next month.

From: Walzak, Phil
To: B; Hagelgans, Andrea; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: More sunday shows?/salon interview?/media access in Iowa?
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:18:26 AM

We will work out a plan - starting w media footprint for Neb/Iowa

----- Original Message -----

From: B
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:02 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: More sunday shows?/salon interview?/media access in Iowa?

Want to hear a unified proposal from you guys on how to maximize this moment of opportunity to get our message across. Thanks

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:55:43 AM

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 1m

.@FreeBeacon: @HillaryClinton's Former Campaign Manager Declines to Endorse Her Latest Presidential Run bit.ly/1CyjlUg

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:53 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Jessica Proud @jessicaproud 6s

For someone w/ his lack of practical experience I'd say he outright crossed it.
twitter.com/mikiebarb/stat

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:52 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Michael Barbaro @mikiebarb 42s

Risk for de Blasio in HRC skepticism (appearing deeply ungrateful) apparently outweighed by boosted status as progressive torch bearer.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:51 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Apparently Barbara deleted this within a minute of posting

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:50 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Michael Barbaro @mikiebarb 14s

de Blasio -- straddling reed thin line between political ingratitude and progressive stridency?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:48 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

RolandfromBrooklyn @rolandBKLYN 30s

Really proud of @BilldeBlasio & his remarks on @meetthepress today focusing on issues:

wages, worker protections, progressive taxation, etc.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:32 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Airing now in NYC media market

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:27 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Council Member Wills @CM_RubenWills 16s

Great interview with @BilldeBlasio @deBlasioNYC on @meetthepress to actually answer questions on that level definitely something new

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:11 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 1m

From @AmericaRising ... @HillaryClinton's Rough 'Announcement Day' Sunday Morning Shows americarisingpac.org/hillary-clinto ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:05 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 13s

From @AmericaRising ... @deBlasioNYC This Morning Won't Endorse @HillaryClinton For President americarisingpac.org/bill-deblasio- ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:00 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Annie Karni @anniekarni 12s

@BilldeBlasio really wants to make @HillaryClinton work for his support: m.youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

Zeke Miller @ZekeJMiller 37s37

.@AmericaRising clips @BilldeBlasio declining to immediately endorse Clinton
youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:57 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

America Rising PAC @AmericaRising 1m

VIDEO: Former @HillaryClinton Campaign Manager: @deBlasioNYC Won't Endorse Her
youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:53 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

And here goes Pounder and the American Rising staff...

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 13s

VIDEO: Former @HillaryClinton Campaign Manager @deBlasioNYC Won't Endorse Her Today
youtu.be/YZkFh5RA5pE

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:49 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

http://www.weeklystandard.com/blogs/de-blasio-not-ready-endorse-former-boss-hillary-clinton_917046.html

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:15 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 5s

While de Blasio doesn't endorse Hillary, worth noting nearly 60% of sitting Dem senators have already backed her cnn.com/2015/02/02/pol ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:13 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Shawna Thomas @ShawnaNBCNews 1m

Mayor @deBlasioNYC stopped short of endorsing @hillaryclinton on #MTP. Said she's been vetted but he needs to see a progressive vision.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:11 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 3s

De Blasio says he isn't endorsing Hillary -- yet: "I want to see a vision... It is time to see a clear, bold vision," he tells @chucktodd

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:10 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Ken Thomas @KThomasDC 1m

On #MTP, de Blasio tells @chucktodd Clinton "has a very progressive history" but says she needs to address income inequality.

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 2m

De Blasio - Hillary's '00 camp manager - tells @chucktodd that HRC has a "progressive" record. But she needs to address income inequality

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:50 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Chuck Todd @chucktodd 4m

And on @meetthepress we'll be talking with the man who ran the first @HillaryClinton campaign. Her 2000 campaign manager @BilldeBlasio

Chuck Todd @chucktodd 4m

NYC Mayor @billdeblasio has a message for Clinton & other Dems. Don't run away from progressive issues: huff.to/1O4m8zw More on #MTP

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:42 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Ed Demaria @Eddie_Dynamite 42m

Something for everyone on MTP: Ready for Hillary? Mayor Bill de Blasio. GOP race? Rand Paul Foreign Policy? John Kerry And SC shooting panel

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:41 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; jfdc@adpdmedia.com; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: MTP tweets

 Shawna Thomas @ShawnaNBCNews · 1h

Tdy on #MTP: Chuck will discuss the progressive agenda & Clinton's campaign announcement w/ @BilldeBlasio.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: RE: MTP tweets
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 11:01:02 AM

She is saying that Mayor, who she doesn't believe is qualified to lead, crossed the line of "political ingratitude" that Barbaro previously referred to. She is GOP spox btw.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:56 AM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: Re: MTP tweets

What does that even mean?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:53 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Jessica Proud @jessicaproud 6s

For someone w/ his lack of practical experience I'd say he outright crossed it.

twitter.com/mikiebarb/stat

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:52 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Michael Barbaro @mikiebarb 42s

Risk for de Blasio in HRC skepticism (appearing deeply ungrateful) apparently outweighed by boosted status as progressive torch bearer.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:51 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Apparently Barbara deleted this within a minute of posting

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:50 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Michael Barbaro @mikiebarb 14s

de Blasio -- straddling reed thin line between political ingratitude and progressive stridency?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:48 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com

Subject: RE: MTP tweets

RolandfromBrooklyn @rolandBKLYN 30s

Really proud of @BilldeBlasio & his remarks on @meetthepress today focusing on issues: wages, worker protections, progressive taxation, etc.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:32 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Airing now in NYC media market

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:27 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Council Member Wills @CM_RubenWills 16s

Great interview with @BilldeBlasio @deBlasioNYC on @meetthepress to actually answer questions on that level definitely something new

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:11 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 1m

From @AmericaRising ... @HillaryClinton's Rough 'Announcement Day' Sunday Morning Shows americarisingpac.org/hillary-clinto ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:05 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 13s

From @AmericaRising ... @deBlasioNYC This Morning Won't Endorse @HillaryClinton For President americarisingpac.org/bill-deblasio- ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:00 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Annie Karni @anniekarni 12s

.@BilldeBlasio really wants to make @HillaryClinton work for his support: m.youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

Zeke Miller @ZekeJMiller 37s

.@AmericaRising clips @BilldeBlasio declining to immediately endorse Clinton
youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:57 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

America Rising PAC @AmericaRising 1m

VIDEO: Former @HillaryClinton Campaign Manager: @deBlasioNYC Won't Endorse Her
youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:53 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

And here goes Pounder and the American Rising staff...

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 13s

VIDEO: Former @HillaryClinton Campaign Manager @deBlasioNYC Won't Endorse Her Today
youtu.be/YZkFh5RA5pE

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:49 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

http://www.weeklystandard.com/blogs/de-blasio-not-ready-endorse-former-boss-hillary-clinton_917046.html

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:15 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 5s

While de Blasio doesn't endorse Hillary, worth noting nearly 60% of sitting Dem senators have already backed her cnn.com/2015/02/02/pol ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:13 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Shawna Thomas @ShawnaNBCNews 1m

Mayor @deBlasioNYC stopped short of endorsing @hilliaryclinton on #MTP. Said she's been vetted but he needs to see a progressive vision.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:11 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 3s

De Blasio says he isn't endorsing Hillary -- yet: "I want to see a vision... It is time to see a clear, bold vision," he tells @chucktodd

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:10 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Ken Thomas @KThomasDC 1m

On #MTP, de Blasio tells @chucktodd Clinton "has a very progressive history" but says she needs to address income inequality.

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 2m

De Blasio - Hillary's '00 camp manager - tells @chucktodd that HRC has a "progressive" record. But she needs to address income inequality

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:50 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Chuck Todd @chucktodd 4m

And on @meetthepress we'll be talking with the man who ran the first @HillaryClinton campaign. Her 2000 campaign manager @BilldeBlasio

Chuck Todd @chucktodd 4m

NYC Mayor @billdeblasio has a message for Clinton & other Dems. Don't run away from progressive issues: huff.to/1O4m8zw More on #MTP

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:42 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Ed Demaria @Eddie_Dynamite 42m42

Something for everyone on MTP: Ready for Hillary? Mayor Bill de Blasio. GOP race? Rand Paul Foreign Policy? John Kerry And SC shooting panel

From: Gunaratna, Mahen

Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:41 AM

To: Walzak, Phil; jfdc@adpdmedia.com; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea

Subject: MTP tweets

 Shawna Thomas @ShawnaNBCNews · 1h

Tdy on #MTP: Chuck will discuss the progressive agenda & Clinton's campaign announcement w/ @Billde Blasio.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Re: MTP tweets
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 11:34:43 AM

I would assess the coverage of his MTP hit as follows: very little about income inequality, more about him declining to endorse his former boss and declaring that he wants to see a "vision". Nearly all the questions were about her, so it's natural for the analysis of his appearance to be about how he stopped short of endorsing, as much as we wanted to focus on income inequality and didn't want it to be about personalities.

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 12, 2015, at 11:16 AM, Wolfe, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

is the theme of us stomping on hrc news in an awkward/news-trumping way catching on with reporters at all, or not so much?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:56 AM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Re: MTP tweets

What does that even mean?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:53 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
<jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Jessica Proud @jessicaproud 6s

For someone w/ his lack of practical experience I'd say he outright crossed it.
twitter.com/mikiebarb/stat

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:52 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Michael Barbaro @mikiebarb 42s

Risk for de Blasio in HRC skepticism (appearing deeply ungrateful) apparently outweighed by boosted status as progressive torch bearer.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:51 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Apparently Barbara deleted this within a minute of posting

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:50 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Michael Barbaro @mikiebarb 14s

de Blasio -- straddling reed thin line between political ingratitude and progressive stridency?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:48 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

RolandfromBrooklyn @rolandBKLYN 30s

Really proud of @BilldeBlasio & his remarks on @meetthepress today focusing on issues: wages, worker protections, progressive taxation, etc.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:32 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Airing now in NYC media market

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:27 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Council Member Wills @CM_RubenWills 16s

Great interview with @BilldeBlasio @deBlasioNYC on @meetthepress to actually answer questions on that level definitely something new

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:11 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 1m

From @AmericaRising ... @HillaryClinton's Rough 'Announcement Day' Sunday Morning Shows americarisingpac.org/hillary-clinto ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:05 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 13s13

From @AmericaRising ... @deBlasioNYC This Morning Won't Endorse @HillaryClinton For President americarisingpac.org/bill-deblasio- ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:00 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Annie Karni @anniekarni 12s

.@BilldeBlasio really wants to make @HillaryClinton work for his support: m.youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

Zeke Miller @ZekeJMiller 37s

.@AmericaRising clips @BilldeBlasio declining to immediately endorse Clinton youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:57 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

America Rising PAC @AmericaRising 1m

VIDEO: Former @HillaryClinton Campaign Manager: @deBlasioNYC Won't Endorse Her youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:53 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

And here goes Pounder and the American Rising staff...

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 13s

VIDEO: Former @HillaryClinton Campaign Manager @deBlasioNYC Won't Endorse Her Today youtu.be/YZkFh5RA5pE

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:49 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

http://www.weeklystandard.com/blogs/de-blasio-not-ready-endorse-former-boss-hillary-clinton_917046.html

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:15 AM

To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 5s

While de Blasio doesn't endorse Hillary, worth noting nearly 60% of sitting Dem senators have already backed her cnn.com/2015/02/02/pol ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:13 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Shawna Thomas @ShawnaNBCNews 1m

Mayor @deBlasioNYC stopped short of endorsing @hilliaryclinton on #MTP. Said she's been vetted but he needs to see a progressive vision.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:11 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 3s

De Blasio says he isn't endorsing Hillary -- yet: "I want to see a vision... It is time to see a clear, bold vision," he tells @chucktodd

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:10 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Ken Thomas @KThomasDC 1m

On #MTP, de Blasio tells @chucktodd Clinton "has a very progressive history" but says she needs to address income inequality.

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 2m

De Blasio - Hillary's '00 camp manager - tells @chucktodd that HRC has a "progressive" record. But she needs to address income inequality

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:50 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Chuck Todd @chucktodd 4m

And on @meetthepress we'll be talking with the man who ran the first @HillaryClinton campaign. Her 2000 campaign manager @BilldeBlasio

Chuck Todd @chucktodd 4m

NYC Mayor @billdeblasio has a message for Clinton & other Dems. Don't run away from progressive issues: huff.to/1O4m8zw More on #MTP

From: Gunaratna, Mahen

Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:42 AM

To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com

Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Ed Demaria @Eddie_Dynamite 42m

Something for everyone on MTP: Ready for Hillary? Mayor Bill de Blasio. GOP race? Rand Paul Foreign Policy? John Kerry And SC shooting panel

From: Gunaratna, Mahen

Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:41 AM

To: Walzak, Phil; jfdc@adpdmedia.com; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea

Subject: MTP tweets

Shawna Thomas @ShawnaNBCNews · 1h

Tdy on #MTP: Chuck will discuss the progressive agenda & Clinton's campaign announcement w/ @BilldeBlasio.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Wolfe, Emma; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato
Cc: Clips
Subject: Fwd: On Hillary Clinton, de Blasio takes a wait-and-see approach
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 11:37:30 AM

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: Capital Pro <info@capitalnewyork.com>
Date: April 12, 2015 at 11:19:46 AM EDT
To: <mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: On Hillary Clinton, de Blasio takes a wait-and-see approach

On Hillary Clinton, de Blasio takes a wait-and-see approach

By Sally Goldenberg

11:19 a.m. | Apr. 12, 2015

Mayor Bill de Blasio, a staunch champion of liberal causes, declined to endorse the presidential candidacy of his former boss Hillary Clinton this morning on "Meet the Press."

De Blasio managed her 2000 U.S. Senate race and defended her amid a recent email scandal. Nevertheless, he said he is holding out his formal support until her campaign takes shape so he can determine whether he deems her sufficiently progressive, particularly on the issue of income inequality.

"I think like a lot of people in this country, I want to see a vision. And again that would be true of candidates on all levels," the mayor said when host Chuck Todd asked if he is "for her now, unequivocally."

De Blasio, who met privately with Clinton in December and has stayed in close touch with both Clintons throughout his mayoralty, called Hillary Clinton a "tremendous public servant," shortly before she is expected to officially announce her long-awaited bid for the White House.

"I think she's one of the most qualified people to ever run for this office and by the way thoroughly vetted. We can say that," he added. "But we need to see the substance."

A panel following de Blasio's 6-minute segment took note of his refusal to back her.

"I think you see the hesitancy right there. He was her campaign manager," noted Maria Hinojosa, executive producer of Latino USA on National Public Radio.

Longtime columnist David Brooks said he too was "surprised" by de Blasio's stance.

The mayor, who failed to persuade Governor Andrew Cuomo to enact a tax on the wealthiest New Yorkers last year, encouraged presidential candidates to push for similar measures.

He will embark on a brief Midwestern trip this week to speak about income inequality--first visiting Nebraska on Wednesday, before addressing an event in Iowa the following evening with former U.S. Sen. Tom Harkin.

You've received this Capital Pro content because your customized settings include: City Hall (all articles) or one of the following City Hall topics: Bill de Blasio.

To change your alert settings, please go to your Pro settings page.

This email alert has been sent for the exclusive use of Capital Pro subscriber mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov. Forwarding or reproducing the alert without the express, written permission of Capital Pro is a violation of federal law and the Capital Pro subscription agreement. Copyright © 2015 by CapNY LLC. To subscribe to Pro, please go to <http://www.capitalnewyork.com/page/why-pro>.

If you believe this has been sent to you in error, please safely unsubscribe.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Re: MTP tweets
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 11:38:21 AM

<http://dailycaller.com/2015/04/12/bill-de-blasio-unwilling-to-endorse-former-boss-hillary-clinton-video/>

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 12, 2015, at 11:36 AM, Gunaratna, Mahen <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

NBC headline: "Bill de Blasio Mot Ready to Endorse Hillary Clinton"

<http://www.nbcnews.com/meet-the-press/bill-de-blasio-not-ready-endorse-hillary-clinton-n340131>

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 12, 2015, at 11:34 AM, Gunaratna, Mahen <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I would assess the coverage of his MTP hit as follows: very little about income inequality, more about him declining to endorse his former boss and declaring that he wants to see a "vision". Nearly all the questions were about her, so it's natural for the analysis of his appearance to be about how he stopped short of endorsing, as much as we wanted to focus on income inequality and didn't want it to be about personalities.

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 12, 2015, at 11:16 AM, Wolfe, Emma <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

is the theme of us stomping on hrc news in an awkward/news-trumping way catching on with reporters at all, or not so much?

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:56 AM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Re: MTP tweets

What does that even mean?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen

Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:53 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Jessica Proud @jessicaproud 6s

For someone w/ his lack of practical experience I'd say he outright crossed it. twitter.com/mikiebarb/stat

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:52 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Michael Barbaro @mikiebarb 42s

Risk for de Blasio in HRC skepticism (appearing deeply ungrateful) apparently outweighed by boosted status as progressive torch bearer.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:51 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Apparently Barbara deleted this within a minute of posting

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:50 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Michael Barbaro @mikiebarb 14s

de Blasio -- straddling reed thin line between political ingratitude and progressive stridency?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:48 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

RolandfromBrooklyn @rolandBKLYN 30s

Really proud of @BilldeBlasio & his remarks on @meetthepress today focusing on issues: wages, worker protections, progressive taxation, etc.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen

Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:32 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Airing now in NYC media market

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:27 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Council Member Wills @CM_RubenWills 16s

Great interview with @BilldeBlasio @deBlasioNYC on @meetthepress to actually answer questions on that level definitely something new

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:11 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 1m

From @AmericaRising ... @HillaryClinton's Rough 'Announcement Day' Sunday Morning Shows americarisingpac.org/hillary-clinto ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:05 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 13s

From @AmericaRising ... @deBlasioNYC This Morning Won't Endorse @HillaryClinton For President americarisingpac.org/bill-deblasio- ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:00 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Annie Karni @anniekarni 12s

.@BilldeBlasio really wants to make @HillaryClinton work for his support: m.youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

Zeke Miller @ZekeJMiller 37s

.@AmericaRising clips @BilldeBlasio declining to immediately endorse Clinton youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:57 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

America Rising PAC @AmericaRising 1m

VIDEO: Former @HillaryClinton Campaign Manager: @deBlasioNYC Won't Endorse Her youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:53 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

And here goes Pounder and the American Rising staff...

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 13s

VIDEO: Former @HillaryClinton Campaign Manager @deBlasioNYC Won't Endorse Her Today youtu.be/YZkFh5RA5pE

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:49 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

http://www.weeklystandard.com/blogs/de-blasio-not-ready-endorse-former-boss-hillary-clinton_917046.html

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:15 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 5s

While de Blasio doesn't endorse Hillary, worth noting nearly 60% of sitting Dem senators have already backed her cnn.com/2015/02/02/pol ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:13 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Shawna Thomas @ShawnaNBCNews 1m

Mayor @deBlasioNYC stopped short of endorsing @hillaryclinton on #MTP. Said she's been vetted but he needs to see a progressive vision.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:11 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 3s

De Blasio says he isn't endorsing Hillary -- yet: "I want to see a vision... It is time to see a clear, bold vision," he tells @chucktodd

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:10 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Ken Thomas @KThomasDC 1m

On #MTP, de Blasio tells @chucktodd Clinton "has a very progressive history" but says she needs to address income inequality.

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 2m

De Blasio - Hillary's '00 camp manager - tells @chucktodd that HRC has a "progressive" record. But she needs to address income inequality

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:50 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Chuck Todd @chucktodd 4m

And on @meetthepress we'll be talking with the man who ran the first @HillaryClinton campaign. Her 2000 campaign manager @BilldeBlasio

Chuck Todd @chucktodd 4m

NYC Mayor @billdeblasio has a message for Clinton & other Dems. Don't run away from progressive issues: huff.to/1O4m8zw More on #MTP

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:42 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea;
jfdc@akpdmmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Ed Demaria @Eddie_Dynamite 42m

Something for everyone on MTP: Ready for Hillary? Mayor Bill de Blasio. GOP race? Rand Paul Foreign Policy? John Kerry And SC shooting panel

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:41 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; jfdc@adpdmmedia.com; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: MTP tweets

Shawna Thomas @ShawnaNBCNews · 1h

Tdy on #MTP: Chuck will discuss the progressive agenda & Clinton's campaign announcement w/ @BilldeBlasio.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: RE: MTP tweets
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 12:25:23 PM

http://www.mediaite.com/tv/de-blasio-declines-to-endorse-clinton%E2%80%94yet-i-want-to-see-a-vision/?utm_medium=facebook&utm_source=twitterfeed

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 12:10 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

The Hill @thehill 11m

De Blasio won't endorse Clinton without details on her 'vision' bit.ly/1FMYc1F

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 11:29 AM
To: Wolfe, Emma; Gunaratna, Mahen; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: Re: MTP tweets

Good tweet!

From: Wolfe, Emma
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 11:12 AM
To: Gunaratna, Mahen; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

roland is my dog and that is steph's ghost twitter account.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:48 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

RolandfromBrooklyn @rolandBKLYN 30s

Really proud of @BilldeBlasio & his remarks on @meetthepress today focusing on issues: wages, worker protections, progressive taxation, etc.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:32 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Airing now in NYC media market

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:27 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Council Member Wills @CM_RubenWills 16s

Great interview with @BilldeBlasio @deBlasioNYC on @meetthepress to actually answer questions on that level definitely something new

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:11 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 1m

From @AmericaRising ... @HillaryClinton's Rough 'Announcement Day' Sunday Morning Shows americarisingpac.org/hillary-clinto ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:05 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 13s

From @AmericaRising ... @deBlasioNYC This Morning Won't Endorse @HillaryClinton For President americarisingpac.org/bill-deblasio- ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 10:00 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Annie Karni @anniekarni 12s

.@BilldeBlasio really wants to make @HillaryClinton work for his support: m.youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

Zeke Miller @ZekeJMiller 37s

.@AmericaRising clips @BilldeBlasio declining to immediately endorse Clinton youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:57 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

America Rising PAC @AmericaRising 1m

VIDEO: Former @HillaryClinton Campaign Manager: @deBlasioNYC Won't Endorse Her youtube.com/watch?v=YZkFh5 ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen

Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:53 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

And here goes Pounder and the American Rising staff...

Joe Pounder @PounderFile 13s

VIDEO: Former @HillaryClinton Campaign Manager @deBlasioNYC Won't Endorse Her Today
youtu.be/YZkFh5RA5pE

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:49 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

http://www.weeklystandard.com/blogs/de-blasio-not-ready-endorse-former-boss-hillary-clinton_917046.html

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:15 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 5s

While de Blasio doesn't endorse Hillary, worth noting nearly 60% of sitting Dem senators have already backed her cnn.com/2015/02/02/pol ...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:13 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Shawna Thomas @ShawnaNBCNews 1m

Mayor @deBlasioNYC stopped short of endorsing @hilliaryclinton on #MTP. Said she's been vetted but he needs to see a progressive vision.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:11 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 3s

De Blasio says he isn't endorsing Hillary -- yet: "I want to see a vision... It is time to see a clear, bold vision," he tells @chucktodd

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:10 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Ken Thomas @KThomasDC 1m1

On #MTP, de Blasio tells @chucktodd Clinton "has a very progressive history" but says she needs to address income inequality.

Mark Murray @mmurraypolitics 2m

De Blasio - Hillary's '00 camp manager - tells @chucktodd that HRC has a "progressive" record. But she needs to address income inequality

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:50 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Chuck Todd @chucktodd 4m

And on @meetthepress we'll be talking with the man who ran the first @HillaryClinton campaign. Her 2000 campaign manager @BilldeBlasio

Chuck Todd @chucktodd 4m

NYC Mayor @billdeblasio has a message for Clinton & other Dems. Don't run away from progressive issues: huff.to/1O4m8zw More on #MTP

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:42 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: MTP tweets

Ed Demaria @Eddie_Dynamite 42m

Something for everyone on MTP: Ready for Hillary? Mayor Bill de Blasio. GOP race? Rand Paul Foreign Policy? John Kerry And SC shooting panel

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:41 AM
To: Walzak, Phil; jfdc@adpdmedia.com; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: MTP tweets

 Shawna Thomas @ShawnaNBCNews · 1h

Tdy on #MTP: Chuck will discuss the progressive agenda & Clinton's campaign announcement w/ @BilldeBlasio.

From: John Del Cecato
To: B
Cc: Wolfe, Emma; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: FYI
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 6:29:33 PM

Since he decided to endorse so vociferously today, some reporter should ask Cuomo if he agrees with HRC that "...the deck is still stacked in favor of those at the top."

> On Apr 12, 2015, at 6:01 PM, B <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>
>

> Very typical of some in Hillaryworld to overreact in this manner. Many of them really feel entitled and it killed them last time. But also perfectly likely that cuomo did the standard-issue moderate Dem thing and/or wanted to compete with me. All could be true at once

>
>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: Wolfe, Emma
> Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 03:54 PM
> To: 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil
> Cc: B; Hagelgans, Andrea
> Subject: RE: FYI

>

> I truly do not understand why hrc land would ask for or embrace this, so i really hope it was just gamc doing his normal thing.

>
>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
> Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 3:50 PM
> To: Walzak, Phil
> Cc: B; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea
> Subject: Re: FYI

>

> Saw this one coming a mile away!

>
>

>

>> On Apr 12, 2015, at 3:48 PM, Walzak, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>>

>>

>> For Immediate Release: April 12, 2015

>>

>>

>>

>> STATEMENT FROM GOVERNOR ANDREW M. CUOMO

>>

>>

>>

>> "Hillary Clinton has been a lifelong champion for middle-class families, an advocate for the underserved, and a fighter for civil rights. Her record reflects the steadfast belief that every American, no matter their race, gender or ethnicity, should have the right to achieve economic security and opportunity. She is a tested leader with the resilience and experience to be a great President. I was honored to work closely with her in the Clinton Administration, during a time of historic peace, prosperity and progress for our nation. Having known and worked with her for over 20 years, I wholeheartedly endorse Hillary Clinton's campaign for President."

>>
>>

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: B; Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; FLONYC
Cc: Carey, Michael
Subject: RE: Conf call
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 7:44:27 PM

This is what they pushed out for the campaign- fyi

Friends and Allies Talking Points - Hillary for America

THE CORE MESSAGE

Hillary Clinton is running because everyday Americans and their families need a champion. She can be that champion. From her start fighting for kids and families, she has done that all her life. She's arguing that the deck is still stacked for those at the top – and that while corporations are raking in record profits and CEO pay is through the roof, everyday Americans are not getting ahead. It is their time to get ahead and stay ahead.

Most Americans know that the economy has come back from the collapse but they don't feel like they are getting ahead with stagnant wages and rising costs of living. They see those at the top benefiting from the improving economy and they are ready for it to be their turn. This election will be about who they can count on going forward – who can help them get ahead and stay ahead.

Hillary's record shows she's a champion of everyday Americans and their families. Her mother's own childhood – in which she was abandoned by her parents, taught Hillary that every child deserves a champion. That's what motivated her to work on behalf of kids and families at the beginning of her career and continues to be her core motivation. Hillary's life has been about fighting for the causes she believes in. She fought special interest forces all her career. She's getting back into the fight because it's been her lifetime work.

After law school, Hillary chose not to go to a big New York or Washington law firm. Instead, she went door to door in New Bedford, Massachusetts for the Children's Defense Fund.

When the insurance companies and other special interests defeated her health care effort as First Lady, Hillary didn't give up. She worked with Republicans and Democrats to help create the Children's Health Insurance Program, which provided health coverage to more than 8 million children and cut the uninsured rate for American children in half.

After the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, Hillary pushed the Bush Administration for $20 billion for recovery and to address health care for first responders who were contaminated at Ground Zero. Having grown up in a middle class family, Hillary has never forgotten where she comes from and who she's fighting for. Hillary grew up in a middle class family in Park Ridge, a suburb of Chicago, Illinois. Her dad was a World War II veteran, he owned a small business, printing drapery, he operated the press himself, and Hillary and her two brothers helped out. Voters know the country has made progress since 2009 – they don't want to go back. This election will be about who they can count on going forward. Voters don't want a complete change in direction. They know the Obama Administration has worked hard to turn around the economy and pave the way for more Americans to get back to work. The private sector has created more than 11 million jobs during the Obama administration, including hundreds of thousands of American manufacturing jobs. President Obama gave her an opportunity to be Secretary of State and stand up for Americans around the globe. She proud of that record.

THE CAMPAIGN

Hillary has made clear this campaign isn't about her, it is about the American people, and that ethos will be reflected in every facet of the campaign. That's the start of the different kind of campaign that Hillary wants to run – one that is squarely focused on having a conversation with voters – answering their questions, asking them questions and sharing ideas.

Her first trip will be to Iowa and then she'll continue from there through other early primary and caucus states in the weeks ahead to ask questions, answer questions and share ideas.
We know she enjoys and thrives when she gets to interact directly with voters.
There will plenty of time for big rallies and high profile media interviews, but she wants to start her campaign by talking to voters one-by-one.
Hillary will work hard to earn every vote, run hard in early primary and caucus states and not take anything for granted – the primary will be competitive. There's no such thing as an "inevitable candidate" in Iowa and New Hampshire, and Hillary's plans are to run hard in each early state. She and campaign manager Robby Mook have set the tone that the campaign will always operate as if it is running from behind.
She is surrounding herself with scrappy, battle-tested operatives and advisers who work hard and run campaigns like they're 10 points behind, even if they aren't.
In Iowa, no Democratic candidate for president has ever received more than 50% of the caucus vote unless they were a sitting president, vice president, or Iowa Senator Tom Harkin.
In New Hampshire, no Democrat in a contested primary in the last 25 years has won by more than 27,000 votes or received more than 50% of the vote. Even running unopposed in 2012 as the incumbent president, President Obama received around 80% of the primary vote.
The campaign will have the resources needed to compete, but it will be built with a flat fundraising structure, a key grassroots donor base and a merit-based finance organization. Initially fundraising will be a challenge – with lower limits and a smaller list than Obama in 2011.

In 2011, the Obama campaign could raise $35,800 donations at start because of joint fundraising agreements with the DNC. This campaign will raise $2,700 contributions for the primary because we're focused on earning the nomination.

While Republicans are engaged in a civil war within the field of 10+ candidates who might enter their competition, every single one of them offers the same economic agenda that Americans know rob Americans of the stability they've worked so hard for with their topdown agenda that would stack the deck even more in favor of those at the top. They want to be the champions for those at the top.

THE RAMP UP

Hillary has announced and started her campaign. That begins our first phase – our "ramp up" period. It will be different than most campaigns. The campaign will focus on small events that let Hillary have a direct conversation with voters, asking questions, answering questions and sharing ideas.
This "ramp up" phase is the same organizationally as if she had an exploratory committee – time to build before getting into full swing - but without being coy about her intentions and pretending like she's still exploring.
Hillary started meeting with policy experts this fall to talk through solutions to the challenges we face. During this "ramp up" period, she'll discuss those ideas with voters and then unveil her policy prescriptions at a later date.
In May, she will outline more of her agenda and the ideas people have shared with her in a larger event that everyone can take part in.
Hillary's doing this so people across the country can be part of her kickoff speech and the campaign going forward. Her team will be building for that all month long.

From: B
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 6:10 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmmedia.com'; FLONYC
Cc: Carey, Michael
Subject: Conf call

Michael, I need a call of the group addressed above anytime 7:30pm or after tonite to address MTP and next steps over next days

From: Wolfe, Emma
To: Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Carey, Michael Subject: Shd we dial in?
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:00:40 PM

From: B
To: Carey, Michael
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: MBDB: Internal Call to Discuss Next Steps from MTP
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 8:07:12 PM

Be on shortly

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2015 08:06 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: MBDB: Internal Call to Discuss Next Steps from MTP

Sir,

Folks are ready when you are ready to dial in:

Dial-in Number XXXXXXXXXX Meeting ID: XXXXXXXXXX

From: emma maquire wolfe
To: B
Cc: John Del Cecato; PhilWalzak [REDACTED]; Hagelgans, Andrea; stephanie yazgi
Subject: Also
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:05:08 PM

Rawlings-Blake after mbdb's interview on MTP was good and backed him up/downplayed well....shd make sure reporters note and mayor you shd check in with her this week...

She said: we don't want a coronation...we appreciate hrc...let's not blow up bdb's comments....

#

this is a personal account - for official business please email at ewolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov

thanks

#

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: NY Times: On National Television, de Blasio Declines to Endorse Clinton for President
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 9:47:05 PM

On National Television, de Blasio Declines to Endorse Clinton for President

By MICHAEL M. GRYNBAUM

APRIL 12, 2015

She plucked him from obscurity to run her 2000 campaign for United States Senate, sat onstage at his swearing-in as mayor of New York City and, just this month, visited Brooklyn for a high-profile photo opportunity with his wife.

But when it came time for Bill de Blasio to return the favor on Sunday by endorsing Hillary Rodham Clinton for president, the mayor's answer was clear:

Not just yet.

In a televised moment rich with political intrigue, Mr. de Blasio repeatedly declined to offer Mrs. Clinton his blessing during an interview on NBC's "Meet the Press," saying he would hold off until learning more about his former boss's economic platform.

"Like a lot of people in this country, I want to see a vision," Mr. de Blasio told Chuck Todd, the show's host, who had asked the mayor if he would "unequivocally" endorse Mrs. Clinton or wait to see if she adopts more liberal positions akin to his own.

"I think she's one of the most qualified people to ever run for this office and, by the way, thoroughly vetted," Mr. de Blasio added. "But we need to see the substance."

The mayor's remarks — which prompted plaudits from liberal groups, and consternation among some of Mrs. Clinton's supporters — stood in stark contrast with other high-profile New York Democrats, including Senator Charles E. Schumer and Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo, who offered full-throated approval on Sunday of Mrs. Clinton's candidacy.

And Mr. de Blasio's comments came as he is seeking a louder voice in national Democratic politics. The mayor is flying to the early nominating state of Iowa this week, part of a two-day Midwest tour designed to raise awareness about income inequality, his signature issue.

His appearance on "Meet the Press" was booked days before it became clear Mrs. Clinton would enter the race on Sunday. But the timing of the comments, amid lingering questions on whether Mrs. Clinton can capture the allegiance of her party's left wing, drew immediate interest.

"This is her announcement day," said Hilary Rosen, a Democratic political strategist and longtime supporter of Mrs. Clinton. "It's one thing to say we're looking forward to listening to her policies, to examining it more and the like. It's another thing to kind of stomp on it. I just thought that his tone seemed to stomp on it.”

In a pair of Twitter posts on Sunday, Ms. Rosen described the mayor’s remarks as “self-aggrandizing” at Mrs. Clinton’s expense, drawing some unfriendly replies. She later wrote that she “didn’t mean to disrespect @BilldeBlasio.”

Other strategists viewed Mr. de Blasio’s remarks as a smart political play, both to shore up his credentials as a spokesman for the Democratic left and to elevate the value of his endorsement, should it eventually come.

“What you give away early has less value later,” said Hank Sheinkopf, a prominent Democratic consultant in New York City and a veteran of Bill Clinton’s second presidential campaign.

“He is setting himself up to be the national progressive kingmaker,” Mr. Sheinkopf said of the mayor, “the stamp of approval for the left.”

Despite a long association, Mrs. Clinton declined to endorse Mr. de Blasio during his mayoral bid until after he had captured the Democratic nomination, which virtually assured his victory. At the time, Mr. de Blasio warmly welcomed the nod, saying, “I am proud to come from the Clinton family.”

Representatives for Mr. de Blasio and Mrs. Clinton declined to comment on Sunday. Privately, the mayor’s advisers have rejected the notion that Mr. de Blasio’s national effort is about raising his profile, describing it instead as a grass-roots movement to promote the policy ideas, like higher wages and affordable housing, that he believes can narrow the nation’s wealth gap.

Still, the notion of Mrs. Clinton’s former campaign manager declining to endorse her on network television, hours before she declared her candidacy, was bound to attract attention to the mayor. Mr. de Blasio, a relative newcomer to the national political scene, found himself the subject of dozens of news reports on Sunday tying his comments to Mrs. Clinton’s relationship with the left.

“You see the hesitancy right there,” Maria Hinojosa, a radio host and another guest on “Meet the Press,” said after Mr. de Blasio finished his remarks. “He was her campaign manager. You would expect him to say, ‘I’m in!’”

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Msg guide
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 7:43:42 AM

Sir,

We're meeting with you and Mahen today to discuss stats. I'm going to take our prep answers (cut them down so less verbiage) and your comments from yesterday and create a message guide that can be our working document moving forward so you have on hand. Will incorporate Mahen's research on HRC economic positions. Will put in a binder for your trip.

We can discuss in our meeting if other items of use (manchester speech, opeds etc)

Thanks

From: Carey, Michael
To: B; Leopold, Elana; Howe, Amanda
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; [REDACTED] Wolfe, Emma
Subject: RE: Pls hold May 12
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 1:58:20 PM

Just flagging that The House is not in session until 630 PM that day.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall
New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

-----Original Message-----

From: B
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 1:56 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana; Howe, Amanda
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; [REDACTED] Wolfe, Emma Subject: Pls hold May 12

As tentative date for progressive contract event in DC

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmmedia.com\)
Subject: Free Beacon: John Heilemann: Clinton Team 'Furious' Over De Blasio Snub
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 2:31:31 PM

John Heilemann: Clinton Team 'Furious' Over De Blasio Snub

BY: Daniel Bassali

April 13, 2015 1:50 pm

Hillary Clinton is “furious” at a former staffer who undercut her highly anticipated presidential announcement.

Unlike previous leaks from Clinton staffers, the culprit of the Clinton snub did so on live television.

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio, who previously ran Clinton’s successful Senate campaign, bluntly said “no” when Chuck Todd asked whether he would endorse his former boss.

“Not until I see—and, again, I would say this about any candidate—until I see an actual vision of where they want to go,” de Blasio said on Meet the Press.

“I think, like a lot of people in this country, I want to see a vision. And, again, that would be true of candidates on all levels. It’s time to see a clear, bold vision for progressive economic change.”

The comments drew criticism from Clinton allies who reportedly were surprised and angered by de Blasio.

“He ran her campaign at one point. A lot of the Democrats immediately endorsing her—for him to take that posture, I think, not only I was surprised but apparently the Clinton people were furious,” Heilemann said.

“This is her announcement day,” Hilary Rosen, Democratic strategist, said. “It’s one thing to say we’re looking forward to listening to her policies, to examining it more and the like. It’s another thing to kind of stomp on it. I just thought that his tone seemed to stomp on it.”

De Blasio’s comments are troubling for the Democratic frontrunner. The mayor highlighted a popular critique of Clinton: She has not offered a rationale for running for president and her announcement gave no clarity on where she stands on important issues. Clinton has yet to build her platform.

“Substance and vision does it,” said de Blasio.

“It’s a much different time than 2008,” de Blasio said. “There are a lot of new issues and new material for Hillary to address.”

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis

Mayor's Press Office | City Hall

mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\); Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Drudge
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 3:01:13 PM

DRUDGE REPORT @DRUDGE_REPORT

De Blasio declines to endorse...
drudge.tw/1amXTzc

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis
Mayor's Press Office | City Hall
mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov
(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; "John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)"
Subject: RE: CNN: Clinton in 2013: Bill de Blasio "a partner who always had my back"
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 3:03:53 PM
Attachments: image001.png

CNN Politics @CNNPolitics 5m5 minutes ago

.@BilldeBlasio's refusal to endorse @HillaryClinton perplexes and infuriates her allies cnn.it/1I6R2p6

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 2:33 PM
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com)
Subject: CNN: Clinton in 2013: Bill de Blasio 'a partner who always had my back'

Clinton in 2013: Bill de Blasio 'a partner who always had my back'

By Peter Hamby, CNN National Political Reporter

Updated 2:07 PM ET, Mon April 13, 2015

Washington (CNN)

Hillary Clinton gushed over Bill de Blasio's "vision" and "leadership" in a closed-door fundraiser during his 2013 mayoral campaign, another reminder of why de Blasio's refusal to endorse Clinton on the day of her presidential announcement perplexed and infuriated her political allies.

Calling de Blasio "a fighter" in the mold of legendary New York Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, Clinton told a crowd of Democratic donors that she bonded with de Blasio when he managed her 2000 campaign for Senate in New York.

Audio from the October 2013 fundraiser in Manhattan, which has never been made public, was provided to CNN by a Democratic source.

"Hiring Bill was one of the best decisions I made," Clinton said during an 11-minute speech at the fundraiser. "What I found was a partner who always had my back, but always was willing to tell me whatever I needed to hear. That's the kind of mayor he will be. Somebody who will stand up and fight for the people of New York, but also tell them what they need to hear."

Their careers of Clinton and de Blasio have been intertwined going back to Clinton's 2000 campaign for the Senate, which de Blasio managed. Clinton endorsed his up-from-nowhere campaign in 2013 and raised money for him. And the Clintons appeared on stage next to the mayor on the frigid day of his swearing-in.

De Blasio, a self-styled progressive populist, declined to repay the favor on NBC's "Meet The Press" on Sunday, saying that he wanted to hear more about Clinton's "substance" and "vision" before signing up.

The comments privately rankled some Clinton supporters, who pointed to her support for de Blasio's campaign. They also pointed to New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo's swift endorsement of Clinton after she finally announced her long-awaited campaign on Sunday.

In the 2013 fundraiser, Clinton praised de Blasio's wife Chirlaine McCray and their children, fondly remembering a "sleepover at the White House" when the family visited Washington during Bill Clinton's time in the White House.

"It's important for me to be back in New York with all of you, because I wanted to have a chance to lend my voice to the growing chorus of people who know that the next mayor will be somebody that cares about them and is committed to moving this great city forward," Clinton said at the event.

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis

Mayor's Press Office | City Hall

mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Walzak_Phil
To: "John Del Cecato"; Schnake-Mahl_Gabriel; Grybauskas_Natalie; Carey_Michael; Norvell_Wiley; Adams_Marti; Blumm_Kate; Boeglin_Rosemary; Chao_Raymond; Coney_Javon; de_Alwis_Ronalie; Grybauskas_Stefan; Hagelgans_Andrea; Klein_Monica; Leopold_Elana; Ozernoy_Ilana; Parikh_Ishanee; Richardson_Jerika; Spitalnick_Amy (OMB)
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 6:28:59 PM
Attachments: image001.png

ok

From: John Del Cecato [mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com]
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 6:28 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Grybauskas, Natalie; Carey, Michael; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

Looks good to me

From: <Schnake-Mahl>, Gabriel <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 at 6:25 PM
To: "Grybauskas, Natalie" <NGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Norvell, Wiley" <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Adams, Marti" <MAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Blumm, Kate" <KBlumm@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Boeglin, Rosemary" <RBoeglin@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Chao, Raymond" <rchao@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Coney, Javon" <JConey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "de Alwis, Ronalie" <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Grybauskas, Stefan" <SGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Klein, Monica" <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Leopold, Elana" <LEopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ozernoy, Ilana" <iozernoy@moia.nyc.gov>, "Ishanee Parikh" <jparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Spitalnick, Amy (OMB)" <SpitalnickA@omb.nyc.gov>, "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

+JDC for Iowa/NE guidance

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 6:12 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Norvell, Wiley; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

Per MPC, killing the advisories on Iowa/Nebraska and only putting guidance.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

On Tuesday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with tenants at an affordable housing site in the Bronx. A media pool has been arranged for this visit Daily News (Print and Photo), Outlet (TV), WNYC (Radio).

After the visit, the Mayor will host a media availability.

Press Schedule

Approximately 2:45 PM – Holds Media Availability
2432 University Avenue
Bronx, NY 10468

A press van will depart the east gate of City Hall at 1 45 PM. Footage will be provided by NYC TV and will be available shortly following the event on Encompass Port CTY- 4205. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayorsoffice shortly following the event.

Guidance for Wednesday, April 15, and Thursday, April 16, 2015:

On Wednesday, Mayor de Blasio will depart New York City and travel to Omaha, Nebraska. In the evening, the Mayor will deliver remarks at the University of Nebraska Foundation's The Peter J. Hoagland Integrity in Public Service Lecture Series. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Paul Landow at plandow@unomaha.edu.

Later, the Mayor will depart Nebraska and travel to Des Moines, Iowa.

On Thursday, the Mayor will deliver remarks at Drake University, hosted by the Harkin Institute for Public Policy and Citizen Engagement at Drake University and Drake University's Law, Politics, and Society program. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco – email aaron.jaco@drake.edu or call 515-779-0526.

Later, the Mayor will deliver remarks at a gathering for Progress Iowa at Iowa State Education Association headquarters. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

###

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 6:10 PM
To: Norvell, Wiley; Grybauskas, Natalie; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

On Wednesday, Mayor de Blasio will depart New York City and travel to Omaha, Nebraska. In the evening, the Mayor will deliver remarks at the University of Nebraska Foundation's Peter J. Hoagland Integrity in Public Service Lecture Series. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Paul Landow at plandow@unomaha.edu.

Later, the Mayor will depart Nebraska and travel to Des Moines, Iowa.

On Thursday, the Mayor will deliver remarks at Drake University, hosted by the Harkin Institute for Public Policy and Citizen Engagement at Drake University and Drake University's Law, Politics, and Society program. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco at aaron.jaco@drake.edu or call 515-779-0526.

Later, the Mayor will deliver remarks at a gathering for Progress Iowa at Iowa State Education Association headquarters. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall
New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

From: Norvell, Wiley
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 5:36 PM
To: Grybauskas, Natalie; Carey, Michael; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

Clean up the pool language:

On Tuesday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with tenants at an affordable housing site in the Bronx. A media pool has been arranged for this visit Daily News (Print and Photo), Outlet (TV), WNYC (Radio).

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 5:33 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

Thanx MPC. Let me know if you're good on the rest of sked.

KB, is affordable housing language ok with you?

PW/AH, please review guidance/skeds for Iowa/Nebraska and let me know if any edits.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

On Tuesday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with tenants at an affordable housing site in the Bronx. A media pool has been arranged for this visit Daily News (Print), Outlet (Photo), Outlet (TV), WNYC (Radio).

After the visit, the Mayor will host a media availability.

Press Schedule

Approximately 2:45 PM – Holds Media Availability

2432 University Avenue
Bronx, NY 10468

A press van will depart the east gate of City Hall at 1 45 PM. Footage will be provided by NYC TV and will be available shortly following the event on Encompass Port CTY- 4205. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayorsoffice shortly following the event.

Guidance for Wednesday, April 15, and Thursday, April 16, 2015:

On Wednesday, Mayor de Blasio will depart New York City and travel to Omaha, Nebraska. In the evening, the Mayor will deliver remarks at the University of Nebraska Foundation's The Peter J. Hoagland Integrity in Public Service Lecture Series. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Paul Landow at plandow@unomaha.edu.

Later, the Mayor will depart Nebraska and travel to Des Moines, Iowa.

On Thursday, the Mayor will deliver remarks at Drake University, hosted by the Harkin Institute for Public Policy and Citizen Engagement at Drake University and Drake University's Law, Politics, and Society program. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco – email aaron.jaco@drake.edu or call 515-779-0526.

Later, the Mayor will deliver remarks at a gathering for Progress Iowa at Iowa State Education Association headquarters. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

Press Schedule for Wednesday, April 15, 2015

6:30 PM – Delivers Remarks at University of Nebraska

University of Nebraska – Mammell Hall
6708 Pine St
Omaha, NE 68106

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Paul Landow at plandow@unomaha.edu.

Press Schedule for Thursday, April 16, 2015

10:30 AM – Delivers Remarks at Drake University

Drake University – Cowles Library Reading Room
2725 University Ave
Des Moines, IA 50311

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco – email aaron.jaco@drake.edu or call 515-779-0526.

5:45 PM – Delivers Remarks at Progress Iowa Gathering

Iowa State Education Association Headquarters – Second Floor
777 3rd Street
Des Moines, IA 50309

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

###

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 5:30 PM
To: Grybauskas, Natalie; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

Take off official photo's avail for NE and IA

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall
New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 5:19 PM
To: Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil
Subject: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

Draft schedule below – still working on pool, but KB, is affordable housing language ok with you?

PW/AH, please review guidance/sked for Iowa/Nebraska and let me know if any edits.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 2015

On Tuesday, Mayor de Blasio will meet with tenants at an affordable housing site in the Bronx. A media pool has been arranged for this visit Outlet (Print), Outlet (Photo), Outlet (TV), Outlet (Radio).

After the visit, the Mayor will host a media availability.

Press Schedule

Approximately 2:45 PM – Holds Media Availability
2432 University Avenue
Bronx, NY 10468

A press van will depart the east gate of City Hall at 1 45 PM. Footage will be provided by NYC TV and will be available shortly following the event on Encompass Port CTY- 4205. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayorsoffice shortly following the event.

Guidance for Wednesday, April 15, and Thursday, April 16, 2015:

On Wednesday, Mayor de Blasio will depart New York City and travel to Omaha, Nebraska. In the evening, the Mayor will deliver remarks at the University of Nebraska Foundation's The Peter J. Hoagland Integrity in Public Service Lecture Series. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Paul Landow at plandow@unomaha.edu.

Later, the Mayor will depart Nebraska and travel to Des Moines, Iowa.

On Thursday, the Mayor will deliver remarks at Drake University, hosted by the Harkin Institute for Public Policy and Citizen

Engagement at Drake University and Drake University's Law, Politics, and Society program. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco – email aaron.jaco@drake.edu or call 515-779-0526.

Later, the Mayor will deliver remarks at a gathering for Progress Iowa at Iowa State Education Association headquarters. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

Press Schedule for Wednesday, April 15, 2015

6:30 PM – Delivers Remarks at University of Nebraska

University of Nebraska – Mammell Hall
6708 Pine St
Omaha, NE 68106

Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayoroffice shortly following the event.

Press Schedule for Thursday, April 16, 2015

10:30 AM – Delivers Remarks at Drake University

Drake University – Cowles Library Reading Room
2725 University Ave
Des Moines, IA 50311

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco – email aaron.jaco@drake.edu or call 515-779-0526. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayoroffice shortly following the event.

5:45 PM – Delivers Remarks at Progress Iowa Gathering

Iowa State Education Association Headquarters – Second Floor
777 3rd Street
Des Moines, IA 50309

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org. Official photos will be available at flickr.com/nycmayoroffice shortly following the event.

###

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato
Subject: New Yorker: Hillary Clinton and the Democrats' Inequality Agenda
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 7:49:47 PM

TODAY 4:30 PM

Hillary Clinton and the Democrats' Inequality Agenda

BY JOHN CASSIDY

Following his appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press" over the weekend, when he declined to offer a full endorsement of Hillary Clinton's Presidential campaign bid, Mayor Bill de Blasio found himself on the front of New York City's tabloids on Monday. "STABBED IN DE BACK," blared the Daily News. The Post ran with "HILL'S FURY" and the subhead "Blaz won't endorse as prez run official."

As a former newspaper headline writer, I could admire the "DE BACK" formulation, but I was also keen to read what de Blasio had actually said. He turned out to have described Clinton as "a tremendous public servant" and "one of the most qualified people ever to run for this office." But unlike New York's two Democratic senators, Charles Schumer and Kirsten Gillibrand, as well as Governor Andrew Cuomo, de Blasio declined the opportunity to issue a full public endorsement of Clinton's candidacy, saying, "We need to see the substance."

Coming from a politician who served in Bill Clinton's Administration and who helped to run Hillary's successful campaign for Senate in 2000, these comments were a bit surprising, especially since they were spoken a few hours before Hillary's official announcement. I am sure they irked some people in the Clinton camp. But before we extrapolate this story into a major breach between Hillary and the progressive wing of the Democratic Party, it's worth looking in a bit more detail at the economic issues that might divide the two sides.

"I think progressives all over the country, I think everyday Americans are demanding that their candidates—the President and every other level—really say that we have a plan that we can believe in for addressing income inequality," de Blasio said, in explaining his wait-and-see attitude. "It has to include increases in wages and benefits. It has to include the willingness to tax the wealthy so we can invest in infrastructure, so we can invest in education."

This statement was certainly more specific than what Clinton offered in the video she released to announce her candidacy, in which she says, "Americans have fought their way back from tough economic times. But the deck is still stacked in favor of those at the top. Everyday Americans need a champion." But in identifying the very rich as the beneficiaries of unfair circumstances rather than of individual enterprise and hard work, and in prioritizing the material circumstances of the middle class, Clinton was clearly pitching her tent on the same turf occupied by progressives like de Blasio and Massachusetts Senator Elizabeth Warren.

The question, of course, is whether Clinton's words were just talk. De Blasio was well within his rights to take a noncommittal attitude—indeed, his progressive supporters would have demanded no less. Traditionally, the Clinton wing of the Democratic Party has emphasized promoting "opportunity" over reducing inequality. As Lawrence Mishel, the president of the liberal Economic Policy Institute, pointed out in a blog post last week, that approach has sometimes enabled centrist Democrats to "avoid confronting the top 1 percent's capture of the lion's share of income growth. After all, addressing runaway executive pay and a runaway financial sector—the main causes of the top 1 percent's income gains—smacks of redistribution; and besides, those folks are their donor base." With Hillary and her staff about to hit up hedge-fund managers, investment bankers, tech moguls, and other rich folks for hefty campaign contributions, the suspicion lingers that, when it comes down to it, her campaign will punt, rather than directly confront, the entrenched problems of income and wealth inequality.

On the other hand, the political center of gravity has shifted in the Democratic Party, and there are reasons to hope that Clinton will embrace a more progressive, far-reaching agenda than anything that her husband and his fellow New Democrats would have endorsed in the nineteen-nineties. Since the financial crisis and the Great Recession, which were widely perceived to have been the work of Wall Street, inequality and wage stagnation have come to dominate the policy agenda in a way that they didn't a decade ago. Even in what used to be called the Rubinite wing of the Party, after former Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin, there is a widespread recognition that something more is necessary.

Earlier this year, for instance, the Center for American Progress, a Washington think tank created by John Podesta, Hillary's campaign manager, issued a lengthy report devoted to the subject of "inclusive prosperity." It was put together by a commission of economists and policy experts led by Larry Summers, the former Treasury Secretary, and Ed Balls, the senior economic spokesman for the British Labour Party. During the nineties, Summers and Balls were both supporters of a "third way" approach to economic policy, which emphasized deregulation and the power of markets. Today their primary concern is coming up with policies designed to raise wages and ameliorate rising inequality.

Some of the proposals in the C.A.P. report were familiar. The commission called for a rise in the minimum wage and an expansion of the Earned Income Tax Credit program, which provides cash subsidies to low-wage workers. These are both good ideas, and ones that the Obama Administration has also championed. But what was novel, and potentially costly, in the report was the idea of providing temporary wage subsidies to working households that earn as much as eighty or ninety thousand dollars a year. (The current phase-out threshold for the Earned Income Tax Credit is about twenty-three thousand dollars.) "Short-term middle-class tax relief would ideally be provided until income stagnation is overcome," the report said. "The tax relief could automatically expire in three years or automatically phase out based on Bureau of Labor Statistics data showing improvement in wage growth of a specified amount for the middle class."

In another part of the report that seemed to go beyond the New Democrat ethos, the C.A.P. commission endorsed various steps to strengthen the bargaining position of workers and labor unions. In addition to endorsing the more expeditious "card check" method of setting up unions, which is a long-time demand of the labor movement, the report called for automatic government arbitration in instances when employers refuse to bargain collectively with newly formed unions, as well as the mandatory establishment of works councils, before which workers' grievances could be heard. In an effort to insure that workers reap more of the benefits of corporate profits, which have been growing strongly, the report also recommended expanding tax incentives for employee-share-ownership schemes.

None of these policies represents a big threat to corporate America. But taken together they could help to tilt the balance of power back toward workers a bit and, over time, to give a boost to wages. After all, it's no accident that wages and incomes have stagnated in the past thirty years. Under the guise of encouraging economic dynamism and responding to international competition, governments on both sides of the Atlantic have spent three decades undermining the gains that workers made during and after the Second World War. To be sure, factors such as globalization and technological progress were partly responsible for the emergence of wage stagnation, but, with a big gap having opened up between productivity and wages, there is no doubt that policy also played a significant role.

Those at the top of the income distribution have benefitted greatly from the assault on workers' bargaining power, and from other policies, such as the emasculating of the inheritance tax—one of the few tools available to tackle glaring wealth inequality. Here, too, the C.A.P. report stopped short of endorsing truly radical measures, such as a new tax on wealth, like ones that Thomas Piketty and some other economists have recommended. But the report did call for eliminating a glaring loophole in the tax code, known as the "step-up in basis," that enables even the very richest families to pass down their fortunes while minimizing their tax liabilities. The report also advocated reforming the mortgage interest deduction and other quirks of the tax code that benefit the wealthy more than anybody else, noting, "Eliminating the tax rules that shelter high-income households and corporations would raise their effective tax rates, make the tax code more progressive, and avoid the waste created by strategies for tax avoidance."

To repeat, there is nothing particularly novel or ground-breaking here. Liberals have long advocated levelling the playing field for capital and labor. The Obama Administration has recently called for eliminating the "step-up in basis" and other tax dodges that benefit the ultra-wealthy. What is striking is the convergence in thinking between the center and center-left that has taken place in recent years, as the basic facts about rising inequality have become impossible to ignore. Now it's up to Clinton and her advisers to exploit this convergence. As long as they are willing to defy some of their more conservative and tax-phobic donors, there is plenty of common ground on which to construct an inequality agenda that will satisfy de Blasio and many other progressives.

Of course, whatever Clinton does, there will still be some left-leaning Democrats who regard certain of her choices as a sop to the one per cent, or who oppose her on other grounds. That is inevitable. But despite the flap over de Blasio's remarks, a lasting schism between Clinton and most progressives isn't inevitable.

Sent from my iPhone

From: John Del Cecato
To: Fink, Avi
Subject: Re: Tweet from @nytimesbusiness
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 10:11:29 PM

Good stuff - tx

On 4/13/15, 8:33 PM, "Fink, Avi" <AFink@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

>@nytimesbusiness: Most people helped by programs for the poor are members >of a family headed by a worker <http://nyti.ms/1IXifL0>
><http://pic.twitter.com/HhxtbB3X3K>
>

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: John Del Cecato; PhilWalzak [REDACTED] Emma Wolfe; Andrea Hagelgans
Subject: Saul story w/ Weiner kicker
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 10:41:45 PM

Saul ending his story with that Weiner quote defending HRC's progressive record when BdB was smoking pot at NYU gives misimpression that BdB questioned her progressive credentials during interview, which he certainly did not do. Transcript reflects that:

Mayor: Look, I think she has a very progressive history. We certainly saw that in her early work on behalf of children and families. We saw that when she took on the big insurance companies to try and achieve healthcare reform in the early 1990s. There's a lot there that progressives will appreciate.

Sent from my iPhone

From: Walzak, Phil
To: B
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Kadushin, Peter; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; de Alwis, Ronalie; Leopold, Elana; Klein, Monica; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: HRC-related qs - to get off-topic juices flowing
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 9:41:43 AM

Yep

From: B
Sent: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 09:08 AM
To: Walzak, Phil
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Kadushin, Peter; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; de Alwis, Ronalie; Leopold, Elana; Klein, Monica; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: HRC-related qs - to get off-topic juices flowing

Very helpful. But need time before I leave CH to work on the topper with you. MPC, pls add

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 08:30 PM
To: B
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Kadushin, Peter; 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; de Alwis, Ronalie; Leopold, Elana; Klein, Monica
Subject: HRC-related qs - to get off-topic juices flowing

Have you heard from Hillary's camp and, if so, what are they saying?

Did MBdB reach out to Hillary since his Meet the Press appearance? If so, did he offer any sort of explanation/apology?

Is MBdB planning to cross paths with Hillary in Iowa later this week?

Is MBdB concerned at all with the way his non-endorsement was perceived by some in the Democratic party?

Has she called you? Have you talked?

Can you see why people w HRC were upset at the timing of your comments – coming hours before HRC's announcement, on such a high-profile source like MTP?

Do you have higher office ambitions?

Do you feel that you betrayed her, given your long history w the Clintons?

Are you being disloyal?

Was this just about getting media for yourself/raising your national profile?

Isn't this outside your day job? Why should folks care who the mayor supports?

Did you see Hilary Rosen's quote? Any reaction

Does the mayor want to qualify the statement with an expectation that he will endorse her? Or that it's probable that he will endorse her?

Is there some reason why mayor feels she may not live up to his requirements for 2016's Democratic presidential candidate?

Did Mayor de Blasio tell Hillary or someone in her campaign that he intended to decline making any endorsement at this time?

Is mayor is making himself into a prominent progressive on the national stage, because he has more freedom to voice his views than he sometimes does at home? See Andrew Cuomo/Zephyr Teachout. See also: transportation funding.

What leverage do you have over the campaign in NYC, a city and state that HRC won twice by wide margins?

In light of Rahm Emmanuel's victory, do you really think HRC should rush to progressive messaging?

What is it that you don't already know about Hillary or that you need to hear?

Do you want to see other candidates enter the race? If so, who?

What is the "substance" you need to see?

From: John Del Cecato
To: B; Walzak, Phil
Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Kadushin, Peter; de Alwis, Ronalie; Leopold, Elana; Klein, Monica; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: HRC-related qs - to get off-topic juices flowing
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 10:49:52 AM

A couple of others:

Is this really about you just building a national name & "brand" for yourself?

Since she wasn't an announced candidate at the time of your MTP interview, didn't you violate your own rule about not commenting on candidates who are not yet candidates?

Is this all part of a plan to cover Hillary's left flank?

Is this all part of a plan to make your endorsement more meaningful/make you a "kingmaker?"

In 2013, HRC said you always had her back. Do you feel like that's changed now - that you only have her back when it's convenient for you?

Anthony Weiner said she was progressive when you were still smoking pot at NYU. How do you respond? (DON'T TAKE THE BAIT.)

Mark Green suggests that this is all about ego. True? (DON'T TAKE THE BAIT.)

Bruce Gyory (sp?) said that you tried to make yourself relevant in the debate & you failed miserably. What do you think?

Don't you feel like you insulted HRC - not only as her former campaign manager, but as the mayor of the city in which her campaign is headquartered? (STUPID QUESTION - BUT I ACTUALLY GOT THIS ONE YESTERDAY.)

Did you give HRC or her people a heads-up before the Sunday appearance that you were going to make a non-endorsement? Surely you knew the question would come up.

From: BDB Official <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 at 9:08 AM

To: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Cc: "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Kadushin, Peter" <pkadushin@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "de Alwis, Ronalie" <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Leopold, Elana" <LEopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Klein, Monica"

<MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: Re: HRC-related qs - to get off-topic juices flowing

Very helpful. But need time before I leave CH to work on the topper with you. MPC, pls add

From: Walzak, Phil

Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 08:30 PM

To: B

Cc: Hagelgans, Andrea; Kadushin, Peter; 'John Del Cecato' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; de Alwis, Ronalie; Leopold, Elana; Klein, Monica

Subject: HRC-related qs - to get off-topic juices flowing

Have you heard from Hillary's camp and, if so, what are they saying?

Did MBdB reach out to Hillary since his Meet the Press appearance? If so, did he offer any sort of explanation/apology?

Is MBdB planning to cross paths with Hillary in Iowa later this week?

Is MBdB concerned at all with the way his non-endorsement was perceived by some in the Democratic party?

Has she called you? Have you talked?

Can you see why people w HRC were upset at the timing of your comments – coming hours before HRC's announcement, on such a high-profile source like MTP?

Do you have higher office ambitions?

Do you feel that you betrayed her, given your long history w the Clintons?

Are you being disloyal?

Was this just about getting media for yourself/raising your national profile?

Isn't this outside your day job? Why should folks care who the mayor supports?

Did you see Hilary Rosen's quote? Any reaction

Does the mayor want to qualify the statement with an expectation that he will endorse her? Or that it's probable that he will endorse her?

Is there some reason why mayor feels she may not live up to his requirements for 2016's Democratic presidential candidate?

Did Mayor de Blasio tell Hillary or someone in her campaign that he intended to decline making any endorsement at this time?

Is mayor is making himself into a prominent progressive on the national stage, because he has more freedom to voice his views than he sometimes does at home? See Andrew Cuomo/Zephyr Teachout. See also: transportation funding.

What leverage do you have over the campaign in NYC, a city and state that HRC won twice by wide margins?

In light of Rahm Emmanuel's victory, do you really think HRC should rush to progressive messaging?

What is it that you don't already know about Hillary or that you need to hear?

Do you want to see other candidates enter the race? If so, who?

What is the "substance" you need to see?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmmedia.com\); Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Daily Beast: An Unabashedly Liberal Hillary Clinton
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 10:51:31 AM

An Unabashedly Liberal Hillary Clinton

THE ATLANTIC - Peter Beinart

Every presidential campaign is a bet on the American mood at a given moment in time. I watched Hillary Clinton's presidential announcement video alongside the one she issued in 2007, and the speech she gave declaring her senate candidacy in New York in 2000. The upshot: America, as seen by Hillary and the people advising her, is a lot further left than it was a decade or two ago.

Here are some of the phrases that appeared in Hillary's 2000 senate announcement: "voluntary uniform rating system for movies and films," "welfare," "more police on the streets," "teacher testing in the face of boycotts," "I don't believe government is the solution to all our problems" and "parents, all parents, must be responsible." The message was pure Clintonism, as developed when Bill ran the Democratic Leadership Council in the early 1990s: To deserve government help, people must be morally responsible. And it came naturally to a senate candidate who, although caricatured as a sixties radical, was better described, by a former White House aide, as "a very judgmental Methodist from the Midwest."

In 1993, Hillary had declared herself "not comfortable" with distributing condoms in schools. In 1994, she had endorsed "three strikes and you're out" laws that expanded prison sentences.

In 1996, she had backed Bill's decision to sign the anti-gay Defense of Marriage Act. And in the 2000 senate campaign, she supported parental notification laws for children seeking abortions, a position that placed her to the right of her initial Republican challenger, Rudy Giuliani.

All that cultural conservatism is gone in the video she issued last night. It's not just the image of a gay male couple holding hands while announcing their impending wedding, followed later by what appears to be a lesbian couple. It's not just the biracial couple. Or the brothers speaking Spanish. It's also the absence of culturally conservative imagery: no clergymen, no police, one barely noticeable church. Instead, the video starts with a woman who is moving so her daughter can attend a better school. A bit later it features a woman who after staying home with her kids is going back to work. In both cases, there's no father in sight. Whether or not Clinton and her advisors were trying to showcase single mothers, they certainly weren't afraid of being accused of showcasing them. In 2000, in the wake of a welfare reform debate in which single mothers were made symbols of the moral irresponsibility the Clintons campaigned against, these positive depictions would have been unimaginable.

The video Hillary released yesterday was also devoid of soldiers. And it contained no discussion of foreign policy. Compare that to Hillary's 2007 video, the first substantive words of which were: "let's talk about how to bring the right end to the war in Iraq and to restore respect for America around the world." Later in that video, she championed her work "protecting our soldiers."

In 2007, while backpedalling from her vote to invade Iraq, Hillary was still intensely focused on convincing Americans she was tough enough to be commander in chief. In 2003, she had called for expanding the military.

In 2004, she had been one of only six Senate Democrats to support the deployment of an untested missile defense system. In 2006 she told other senators, in explaining her opposition to setting a deadline for the withdrawal of US troops from Iraq, that “I face the base all the time.” And in the days before announcing her presidential candidacy, she had travelled to Afghanistan and Iraq.

Today, Republicans still see foreign policy as politically central. Jeb Bush dwelled on it in the video he released in response to Hillary’s. And, of course, Clinton will spend plenty of time talking foreign policy as the campaign wears on. But the message of yesterday’s announcement video, unlike the one in 2007, is that international affairs are secondary. The core of Hillary’s campaign will be economics. More specifically, it will be championing the “everyday Americans” who face a “deck still stacked in favor of those at the top.” That kind of swipe at the ultra-rich was absent from Hillary’s announcements in 2000 and 2007 too.

It’s striking that, absent serious primary competition that might have forced her left in the primaries, Hillary has gone left anyway: with culturally progressive imagery, a class-oriented economic message, and a purely domestic focus. If the aim was to produce something fresh, the Clinton campaign succeeded. One reason the announcement felt fresh was because since they entered national politics more than two decades ago, the Clintons have expended enormous energy protecting themselves from right-wing attack. The message of yesterday’s announcement video was that Hillary thinks that in the America of 2016, she no longer has to play that game.

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis

Mayor’s Press Office | City Hall

mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Carey, Michael
To: Liz Hegarty
Subject: Re: Flights
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 11:06:06 AM

On Friday we land
And he and I will be dropped at either Gracie or city hall

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

On Apr 14, 2015, at 10:05 AM, Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Okay, thanks.

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 at 12:27 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Flights

Yes
He is manifested for the whole trip.
Only issue will be return on Friday, but will let you know.

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall
New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 12:27 PM
To: Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: Flights

Sorry, do you mean he can plan to travel with the mayor for the trip? Full name is [REDACTED]

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Monday, April 13, 2015 at 12:23 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhegarty@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: Flights

Nope
He is manifested
He should also be at Gracie on Wednesday at 12 PM
Can you let me know what his name on his license is?

Michael Paul Carey
Director of Scheduling and Advance
City Hall
New York, New York 10007
212.341.5396

From: Liz Hegarty [<mailto:lhgart@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2015 12:22 PM
To: Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: Flights

Will JDC be able to ride with MBDB between locations? Or, should I plan to book a separate car for him?
Thanks!

From: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Friday, April 3, 2015 at 1:04 PM
To: Michael Carey <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Flights

JDC is on the same flights in and out. He'll also be staying at the same hotel in Des Moines. Thanks!

From: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Date: Thursday, April 2, 2015 at 1:12 PM
To: Michael Carey <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: Flights

Yes, thanks for sending.

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Thursday, April 2, 2015 at 1:10 PM
To: Liz Hegarty <lhgart@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Flights

Can you book these same flights for JDC:

AIR - Wednesday, April 15 2015

United Airlines Flight UA 4111 Economy Class

Depart: Newark Liberty Intl, Terminal A
Newark, New Jersey, United States
02:02 PM Wednesday, April 15 2015

Weather

Arrive: Eppley Airfield
Omaha, Nebraska, United States
04:21 PM Wednesday, April 15 2015

Weather

Duration: 3 hour(s) and 19 minute(s) Non-stop
Status: Confirmed - United Airlines Booking Reference: XXXXXXXXXX
Meal: Food and Beverages for Purchase
Equipment: EMBRAER RJ135 / RJ140 / RJ145
Operated By: EXPRESSJET AIRLINES DBA UNITED EXPRESS
Seat: 19A (Non smoking) Confirmed - DEBLASIO/BILL

AIR - Friday, April 17 2015

Delta Air Lines Flight DL 3739 Economy Class

Depart: Des Moines International Airport
Des Moines, Iowa, United States
06:50 AM Friday, April 17 2015

Weather

Arrive: La Guardia, Terminal D
New York, New York, United States
10:33 AM Friday, April 17 2015

Weather

Duration: 2 hour(s) and 43 minute(s) Non-stop

Status: Confirmed - Delta Air Lines Booking Reference: [REDACTED]

Meal: Refreshments for Purchase

Equipment: Canadair Regional Jet 900

Operated By: ENDEAVOR AIR DBA DELTA CONNECTION

Seat: 19B(Non smoking, Aisle) Confirmed - DEBLASIO/BILL

From: John Del Cecato
To: B; Gunaratna, Mahen; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Re: Daily Kos: DeBlasio's right, and Hillary should listen
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 11:19:44 AM

They wouldn't let me use J. Del Taxo

From: BDB Official <BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 at 11:16 AM
To: "Gunaratna, Mahen" <MGunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov>, FLONYC <FLONYC@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Cc: "Walzak, Phil" <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Hagelgans, Andrea" <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Wolfe, Emma" <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Daily Kos: DeBlasio's right, and Hillary should listen

I really thought JDC would come up with a more interesting pseudonym...

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 11:03 AM
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com) <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Daily Kos: DeBlasio's right, and Hillary should listen

MON APR 13, 2015 AT 09:43 AM PDT

DeBlasio's right, and Hillary should listen

By Rob Dapore

NYC Mayor Bill DeBlasio made quite the stir over the weekend when he wouldn't endorse Hillary Clinton's presidential bid. He makes a very strong point, and if she was smart, Hillary should seriously listen to what he's saying if she hopes to win in 2016.

Speaking on meet the press, when asked if the mayor would endorse Hillary, Bill DeBlasio made this statement (which really shouldn't have been that much of a shock):

"I think like a lot of people in this country I want to see a vision. And, again, that would be true of candidates on all levels. It's time to see a clear, bold vision for progressive economic change".

and when asked if that means he wouldn't endorse her, he said

"No, not until I see -- and, again, I would say this about any candidate -- until I see an actual vision of where they want to go".

Much ado has been made about how the mayor, who reportedly is a good friend of the Clintons, would not instinctively come out automatically supporting her. Pundits say that the mayor is sticking to his progressive stance that just won't play in the rest of the country. But this isn't a case of being leftist or liberal or progressive. There's a huge segment of the country that wants certain policies which are just plain populist. Will she come out for a cleaner environment? Equal rights for women including women's health care? A plan for upgrading our infrastructure? A path for immigrants? How can she improve the Affordable Healthcare Act? And maybe most importantly, will she stand up for Frank - Dodd and Glass-Steagel and stand up to the banks?

She needs to come out swinging and clearly make her stance on these issues. Nothing will turn off voters than hearing it's the same ol same ol. She needs to excite the base and not take populists for granted. Kudos to the mayor for doing the right thing.

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis

Mayor's Press Office | City Hall

mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Wolfe, Emma; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmmedia.com\)
Subject: WAMC Northeast Public Radio: Maloney: de Blasio "Should Have Head Examined" After Withholding Clinton Endorsement
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 12:30:17 PM

Maloney: de Blasio "Should Have Head Examined" After Withholding Clinton Endorsement

BY ALAN CHARTOCK

Several important New York politicians lined up behind Hillary Clinton's presidential campaign in the minutes after she entered the race Sunday. Speaking with WAMC's Alan Chartock on Tuesday, Hudson Valley Congressman Sean Patrick Maloney officially endorsed the former New York U.S. Senator and Secretary of State. He also criticized the man who helmed Clinton's successful 2000 Senate race — now-New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio.

"We need an economy that's generating wealth again, or people who are working hard, and that's what Hilary Clinton is talking about this week and I'm very proud to see it," Maloney says.

Have you formally endorsed her?

"Well, you can consider this a formal endorsement right now, Alan—a world-wide exclusive on your show."

We made the news. OK, that's great.

"In the category of: not surprising. For people who may not understand, I started working for the Clintons 20 years ago. I worked on the campaign in 1992. I worked on the White House senior staff. So, I am very much a fan of the America that they built in the 1990s that was inclusive, where we had a growing economy, we were paying down our debt, we balanced the budget the right way, where we were at peace and engaged with the world. We need to have policies to grow this economy again for middle class families, for people who are working hard, and who are trying to figure out how to pay for college, trying to plan a retirement that they can actually enjoy, trying to pay their property taxes, and make ends meet. That's the bottom line. And I think that there was a good model we had in the 90s and we can bring that into the future."

Ok so, this of course is, we always have a good time, right Sean? When we talk to each other?

"Yes we do."

But however, now it gets a little tougher. You just said, and quite rightly, that, you know, you worked for them, you have a loyalty to them, and “you can consider this an endorsement.” However, dark music, Bill de Blasio, who also fit those very categories, did not endorse them, what do you make of that?

"Well, I think Bill de Blasio should have his head examined. I don't understand why my friend Bill de Blasio would have any reservations about a person he worked for, about a champion for New York, about someone who is going to do more for hard working families in the Hudson Valley than anybody else who is running. I just couldn't disagree with him more. I think this is a person who has her headquarters in New York, who is always going to have New York front of mind when she's in the Oval Office. I think we ought to get behind her, and I think we can have all the conversations we want about what she ought to emphasize. There's going to be positions that, you know, I want her to push up and others I want her to push down and all that kind of stuff, that's fine, that's normal. But let's be clear what the alternative is. The alternative is the team that wants to go after Medicare, and go after Social Security, that wants to give huge tax cuts to multimillionaires through some trickle-down theory that has never worked. We need to grow the economy and bring everybody along. That's what I want to do.

So should you pick up the phone and call him and say, “Hey, Bill, get on the team?”

"I think he heard it from pretty much everybody, and their brother, that maybe he ought to clarify his comments a little bit."

Ok, now that brings us to the next person who you might see as an offender, and that is the president himself, who has sent somebody out front to say, you know, he's not making a formal endorsement because there are other people who may want to declare. What do you think of that?

"Oh look, you know, I don't make too much of that. I think it wouldn't be unusual for a president to try to stay out of the political day-to-day. I think it's pretty clear what he said — that he has enormous respect for Secretary Clinton, that they work closely together, they are friends. And there are going to be differences. God knows I have my differences with this president and I think you're going to see differences in the Clinton approach than in the Obama approach. I'm looking forward to that, frankly. I prefer the Clinton approach, to be very candid with you. I think we need to grow this economy more rapidly, we need to bring everybody along, and we need to stop this gridlock and this fighting in Washington and get to work."

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis

Mayor's Press Office | City Hall

mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Carey, Michael
To: Chao, Raymond
Cc: John Del Cecato
Subject: NE
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 12:44:20 PM

Ray – cc'ing JDC fr his awareness. Can you update tomorrow sked:

Arrive into Hold – Room 1100M

Proceed to Reception – About 125 folks. Closed Press. Mix and Mingle - Foyer

Proceed back to hold- Room 1100 M

Go Into Lecuture Hall — same program as already listed.

Post Lecture proceed to Room 1100K and 1100L to overflow rooms

Then off to dinner

Crowd is about 300

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmmedia.com\); Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Bloomberg: Hillary Clinton Comes Out Swinging at CEOs and Hedge Fund Managers
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 5:10:38 PM

Hillary Clinton Comes Out Swinging at CEOs and Hedge Fund Managers

Apr 14, 2015 4:55 PM EDT

In her first swing through Iowa as a presidential candidate, she threw some populist punches on Wall Street but offered few details.

Jennifer Epstein @jeneps

MONTICELLO, Iowa—Hillary Clinton launched her presidential campaign here Tuesday with aggressive attacks on the financial system as she offered broad strokes of her case for running at her first formal event.

"I think it's fair to say that if you look across the country, the deck is stacked in favor of those already at the top," she said at a roundtable in an auto tech lab at Kirkwood Community College. "There's something wrong when CEOs make 300 times more than the American worker ... There's something wrong when American workers keep getting more productive ... but that productivity is not matched in their paychecks."

And, the former secretary of state continued, "there's something wrong when hedge fund managers pay less in taxes than nurses or the truckers I saw on I-80" while driving from New York to Iowa over the past two days. The visit here was her second semi-public stop of the day, after a morning run for chai and conversation at a coffee shop in Le Claire, just north of the Quad Cities. There, she joked about "drink[ing] my way across Iowa," but even more important than those drinks are the conversations she plans to have with intentionally small groups of voters.

Around a U-shaped table, Clinton spent an hour with a handful of high school and college students, a teacher, and the college's president. She listened to their views about education and the economy, asking pointed questions along the way.

But she made more than a few nods to the dozens of members of the media who gathered to see her. "I'm running for president because I think Americans and their families need a champion and I want to be that champion," she said, echoing her comments in Sunday's announcement video.

Clinton said she's anxious to hear from Americans about what's important for them and what policies they see working in their own communities, but also that she decided to start with a baseline of "four big fights" she wants to wage:

—To "build the economy of tomorrow not yesterday."

—To "strengthen families and communities."

—To "fix our dysfunctional political system and get unaccountable money out of it once and for all – even if that means a constitutional amendment."

—And to protect the country "from the threats that we see and the ones that are on the horizon."

She didn't have many details on what she meant by wanting to get "unaccountable money" out of politics, nor did she offer a point-by-point economic plan. Instead, she spent much of the roundtable encouraging the six others at the table to share their ideas for how to make education work. But she did stress that education would be a key part of her economic message, endorsing President Barack Obama's push to make community college free and suggesting that she supports tougher regulation of for-profit colleges.

One way to help give kids opportunities, she said, is with some level of standardization in education, like the Common Core, so that "there wouldn't be two tiers of education."

Instead, it's become a flashpoint, especially among Republicans—Jeb Bush supports the model while many of the other members of the GOP running for president oppose it as excessive government overreach—and Clinton is disappointed by that. "When I think about the really unfortunate argument that's been going on around Common Core, it's really painful," she said.

Ultimately, she closed with a reference to her young granddaughter, Charlotte, whose birth helped motivate her to run.

"I don't know how many babies were born on Sept. 26 last year but I want every one of them to feel like they have the same opportunities that we're going to do everything we can to make sure that Charlotte has," she said.

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis
Mayor's Press Office | City Hall
mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov
(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael; Ko, Eunice; Thornton, Demetrius; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Howe, Amanda; Wolfe, Emma; Darlington, Mandy \(OMB\); Wiley, Maya; "Jonathan@berlinrosen.com"; Hagelgans, Andrea; "lhegarty@akpdmedia.com"; Griffith, Chantell; Chao, Raymond; John, Roxanne; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\); "nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com"; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Walzak, Phil
Subject: MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 6:53:55 PM

Team- we are delayed

This meeting will start at 8:15

From: Leopold, Elana
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 7:05:49 PM

Ya but I'll only get there when the mayor does so maybe you want to ask Demetrius

Sent from my iPhone

> On Apr 14, 2015, at 6:56 PM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:
>
> Would you be able to print copies of the speech for me?
>
>
>
>> On Apr 14, 2015, at 6:53 PM, Leopold, Elana <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>>
>> Team- we are delayed
>>
>> This meeting will start at 8:15

From: Leopold, Elana
To: Carey, Michael
Cc: Ko, Eunice; Thornton, Demetrius; Shorris, Anthony; Williams, Dominic; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Howe, Amanda; Wolfe, Emma; Darlington, Mandy \(OMB\); Wiley, Maya; "Jonathan@berlinrosen.com" (Jonathan@berlinrosen.com); Hagelgans, Andrea; Liz Hegarty; Griffith, Chantell; Chao, Raymond; John, Roxanne; Fuleihan, Dean \(OMB\); "nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com" (nbaldick@hilltoppublicsolutions.com); "jfdc@akpdmedia.com" (jfdc@akpdmedia.com); Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: MBDB: Weekly Planning Meeting
Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 7:40:27 PM

All- this meeting is cancelled this evening

JDC- please stand by

The mayor wants to prep with you instead

Sent from my iPhone

> On Apr 13, 2015, at 12:06 PM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:
>
>
>
> <meeting.ics>

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Tuesday, April 14, 2015 9:59 PM
To: de Alwis, Ronalie
Cc: Chao, Raymond; Dinzey, Ashley
Subject: To Print
Attachments: MINI SCHEDULES FOR BDB.docx; 04.15.15 Mayor's Event Briefing- Hoagland LectureMPC.doc; 04.16.15 Mayor's Event Briefing- Drake UniversityMPC.doc; MBDBCalls-4.14.15.docx; 04.16.15 Mayor's Event Briefing- ProgressIowaMPC (1).doc; 04.16.15 Mayor's Event Briefing- Century Club Event with Special Guest NYC Mayor Bill de Blasio.doc

R- to print in this order

Ashley/Ray- Ronalie is going to print at Gracie for the Mayor and John.

For MBDB/JDC

Mini Schedules – All in One Doc

Briefing – Hoagland Lecture- Updated See Attached

Briefing- Drake Attached

Briefing - Cownie Briefing – To Come

Briefing- Call Sheets - Attached

Briefing – Progress Iowa – Attached

Briefing – IA Party – Attached

Ray Ray- Note the Mini Schedules I edited.

SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO
CITY OF NEW YORK
Wednesday, April 15, 2015

WEATHER - Omaha: Hi of 63. Low of 47. Cloudy
ATTIRE: Business
NOTES: - [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- YOU have 30 minutes to change at Gracie
- Upon arrival in Omaha, -1 hour

7:00 - 7:30 TRAVEL FROM GRACIE MANSION EN ROUTE 357 9TH STREET
Travel Time: 30 mins.

7:30 - 8:30 WORKOUT
Location: 357 9th Street

8:30 - 9:00 TRAVEL FROM 357 9TH STREET EN ROUTE GRACIE MANSION
Travel Time: 30 mins.

8:30 - 9:00 DAILY COMMUNICATIONS CALL

9:30 - 11:30 BUDGET PREP
Location: Gracie Mansion, The Dining Room

11:30 - 12:15 PACKING TIME
Location: Gracie Mansion

12:15 - 1:00 TRAVEL FROM GRACIE MANSION EN ROUTE NEWARK INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT WITH JDC
Travel Time: 45 mins.

2:00 - 4:20 UNITED AIRLINES FLIGHT UNITED 4111 FROM NEWARK EN ROUTE OMAHA, NEBRASKA
Notes: Travel Time 3 Hours and 19 Minutes (-1 Hour)

4:30 - 4:50 TRAVEL FROM OMAHA AIRPORT EN ROUTE MAMMEL HALL
Travel Time: 20 mins.

5:00 - 5:45 GREET WITH JIM CROUNSE // PREP
Location: Mammel Hall - 1100M

5:45 - 6:20 PRIVATE RECEPTION FOR HOAGLAND LECTURE SERIES
Location: Mammel Hall - Foyer
Attendees: 125 attendees
Press: Closed

6:20 - 6:30 HOLD
Location: Mammel Hall - 1100M

6:30 - 7:30 REMARKS AT THE HOAGLAND LECUTURE AT UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA
Location: Mammel Hall - Lecture Hall
Setup: Lecture Style; About 300 Attendees
Press: Open

7:30 - 7:45 MOVE TO OVERFLOW ROOMS WITH STUDENTS
Location: Mammel Hall - Room 1100K and 1100L

7:45 - 8:00 TRAVEL FROM MAMMELL UNIVERSITY EN ROUTE 5013
UNDERWOOD AVE, OMAHA, NE 68132
Travel Time: 15 mins.

8:00 - 9:30 DINNER WITH JIM CROUNSE AND JDC
Location: 5013 Underwood Ave, Omaha, NE 68132
Note: YOU should pay for dinner with the campaign credit card.

9:30 - 11:45 TRAVEL FROM UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA EN ROUTE
RESIDENCE INN DES MOINES DOWNTOWN, 100 SW WATER STREET, DES MOINES, IA
Travel Time: 2 Hours and 15 Minutes

PRESS CONFERENCES

To be updated.

FLONYC SCHEDULE

10:00 - 11:00 PRIVATE APPOINTMENT
12:30 - 1:30 PREP FOR UNIVISION
1:30 - 2:00 INTERVIEW WITH UNIVISION RE: TALK TO YOUR BABY
CAMPAIGN
5:45 - 6:15 DELIVER REMARKS AT LANDMARKS LAW 50TH ANNIVERSARY
6:30 - 7:25 DINNER WITH ROXANNE JOHN
7:30 - 8:45 DELIVER REMARKS AT BROOKLYN MUSEUM ANNUAL BALL

SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO
CITY OF NEW YORK
Thursday, April 16, 2015

WEATHER – DES MOINES, IA: Hi of 73. Low of 49. AM Rain
ATTIRE: Business
NOTES:

9:45 - 10:00 TRAVEL FROM 100 SW WATER STREET, DES MOINES EN ROUTE DRAKE UNIVERSITY
Travel Time: 10 Minutes

9:45-10:00 DAILY COMMUNICATIONS CALL

10:00 - 10:30 MEET WITH SENATOR HARKING // PREP
Location: Calier Heritage Room, Drake University

10:30 - 12:15 REMARKS AT DRAKE UNIVERSITY
Location: Cowles Library - Reading Room, Drake Univ
Press: Open
Notes: YOU greet with 10 students after Q&A.

12:15 - 12:30 TRAVEL FROM 2507 UNIVERSITY AVENUE EN ROUTE 1801
GRAND AVE
Travel Time: 15 mins.

12:30 - 1:00 IN PERSON INTERVIEW WITH DAVE PRICE FROM WHO-HD
Location: 1801 Grand Ave, Des Moines, Iowa 50265
Notes: This is a 1:1 Interview that is aired
On Sundays before Meet the Press

1:00 - 1:30 TRAVEL FROM 1801 GRAND AVE, DES MOINES, IOWA EN
ROUTE 400 ROBERT D. RAY DRIVE // PICK UP LUNCH
Travel Time: 30 mins.

1:30 - 1:45 IN PERSON INTERVIEW WITH KAY HENDERSON, IOWA RADIO
Location: City Hall, Des Moines, Iowa

2:00 - 3:00 MEETING WITH AREA MAYORS HOSTED BY MAYOR COWNIE
Location: City Hall- Kofu Conference Room, Des Moines, IA
Press: Closed

3:00 - 3:15 TRAVEL FROM 400 ROBERT D. RAY DR, DES MOINES, IA
50309 EN ROUTE 100 SW WATER STREET, DES MOINES, IA
Travel Time: 15 mins.

- 3:30 - 5:30 TPA FOLLOW UP CALL TIME
Location: 100 SW Water Street
- 5:30 - 5:45 TRAVEL FROM 100 SW WATER STREET EN ROUTE 777 3RD STREET
Travel Time: 15 mins.
- 5:45 - 6:45 REMARKS AT PROGRESSIVE IOWA GATHERING
Location: ISEA - Second Floor, 777 3rd St
Attendees: About 75-80
Setup: Reception Style
Notes: YOU are introduced by Matt Sinovic, Executive Director of Progress Iowa
- 7:00 - 7:45 TRAVEL FROM ISEA EN ROUTE DES MOINES MARRIOTT DOWNTOWN//DINNER
Travel Time: 15 mins.
- 7:45 - 8:30 REMARKS AT CENTURY CLUB EVENT
Location: Des Moines Marriott Downtown - Waterloo Room
Attendees: 20-25 folks
Press: Closed
- 8:30 - 8:45 TRAVEL FROM 700 GRAND STREET EN ROUTE 100 SW WATER STREET ON FOOT
Travel Time: 15 mins.

PRESS CONFERENCES

To be updated.

FLONYC SCHEDULE

- 11:00 - 11:45 MEETING WITH SENATOR JESSE HAMILTON
11:45 - 12:45 MEETING WITH DC HERMAN AND DEPUTY MAYOR BUERY
1:00 - 3:00 MEETING WITH MAYOR'S FUND
3:00 - 4:00 WEEK AHEAD BRIEF
4:00 - 5:00 STAFF DEBRIEF
6:45 - 7:00 VAISAKHI FESTIVAL CELEBRATION

SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO
CITY OF NEW YORK
Friday, April 17, 2015

WEATHER: Hi of 66. Low of 54. AM Light Rain
ATTIRE: Business
NOTES:

- 6:00-6:15 TRAVEL FROM 100 WATER STREET EN ROUTE DES MOINES INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT
Travel Time: 15 mins.
- 6:50 - 10:33 DELTA AIRLINES FLIGHT 3739 FROM DES MOINES EN ROUTE LAGUARDIA
Travel Time: 3 Hours and 45 Minutes (+1 Hour)
- 10:50 - 11:20 TRAVEL FROM LAGUARDIA AIRPORT EN ROUTE 50 BEACON COURT, BROOKLYN // OFF-TOPIC PREP
Travel Time: 30 mins.
- 11:30 - 1:30 BUILD IT BACK ANNIVERSARY EVENT
Location: 50 Beacon Court, Brooklyn NY 11229
Event Lead: Amy Spitalnik
- 1:45 - 2:30 TRAVEL FROM 50 BEACON COURT EN ROUTE 257 PARK AVENUE // LUNCH//COMMUNICATIONS CALL
Travel Time: 45 mins.
- 3:00 - 4:00 MEETING WITH DR. HENRY JARECKI
Location: 257 Park Avenue South, 7th Fl.
Notes: Ross will staff you for this meeting.
- 4:00 - 4:15 TRAVEL FROM 257 PARK AVENUE SOUTH EN ROUTE CITY HALL
Travel Time: 15 mins.
- 4:30 - 5:30 MEETING WITH NASSAU COUNTY EXECUTIVE EDWARD P. MANGANO TO DISCUSS PLANYC
Location: City Hall, The Mayor's Office
- 5:30 - 6:30 INTERNAL MIZ MEETING
Location: City Hall, The Mayor's Office
- 6:30 - 7:00 DEPART CITY HALL EN ROUTE GRACIE MANSION
Travel Time: 30 mins.

7:00 - 7:45 DRINK WITH RON MOELIS
Location: Gracie Mansion, The Peach Room

PRESS CONFERENCES
To be updated.

FLONYC SCHEDULE
No public schedule.

Event/Meeting Briefing Information

Staff Contact/Planning Lead: Michael P. Carey

EVENT: Remarks at Hoagland Lecture at University of Nebraska

RATIONALE: YOU were invited to attend on behalf of Jim Crouse.

DAY/DATE: Wednesday, April 15, 2015

EVENT TIME: 6:30 PM –7:30 PM

MBDB TIME: 6:30 PM –7:30 PM

LOCATION: University of Nebraska, Mammel Hall

LOCAL/ONSITE CONTACT: Paul Landow, Ph.D.
Phone: [REDACTED]

# PEOPLE ATTENDING: ELECTED/COMMUNITY
OFFICIALS ATTENDING: About 300Attendees

STAFF ATTENDING: Michael Carey

STAFF ASSIGNED TO MBDB: Michael Carey

PRESS: Open

EVENT PROGRAM:

- YOU proceed backstage
- Brian Hastins, President and CEO of the University of Nebraska Foundation, gives opening remarks and introduces David Boocker
- David Boocker, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, gives remarks and introduces Jim Crouse
- Jim Grouse gives remarks and introduces YOU
- YOU give remarks
- At conclusion of remarks, Dean Bocker proceeds back onto stage to moderate Question and Answers
- YOU conclude and depart stage
- YOU proceed to two overflow rooms to greet students.
- YOU depart.

MBDB INTRODUCED BY: Jim Crouse

MBDB TALKING POINTS:

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

- ABOUT HOAGLAND LECTURE:

This lecture series honors Peter Hoagland's legacy and seeks to inspire young people to dedicate themselves to public service. Peter Hoagland was a veteran, Nebraska legislature, and U.S. Congressman who wrote many of the political accountability and open meeting laws.

- ABOUT UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA, OMAHA:

- Started as a private, coeducational college in 1908 became a public university in 1968. Home of the mavericks
- 15, 227 students enrolled; 3,301 faculty & staff
- 87% of students come from Nebraska
- 52.% female; 47.5% male
- 70% White; 8.5% Latino; 6% African American; 00.3% American Indian; 2.9% Asian; .06% Native Hawaiian Pacific Islander; 3.5% Two Or More Races; 2.7% Race/Ethnicity Unknown; 5.8% Non-Resident Alien

BIO INFORMATION ON PARTICIPANTS:

- Brian Hastings

- President and CEO of University of Nebraska Foundation
- Brian has been with the foundation since 2012. With more than 20 years of experience in higher education fundraising, he has broad experience and success ranging from annual giving to principal gifts, including many senior leadership roles.

- David Boocker

- Dean of College of Arts and Sciences
- Dean Boocker's teaching specializations include Renaissance and Early Modern Literature; Milton and his Influence; and English literature.

- Dean Boocker is an active member of the Council of Colleges of Arts and Sciences (CCAS). He recently co-authored an article, “Making the Case for Arts and Sciences,” for the CCAS publication Deans and Development: Making the Case for Supporting the Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Hoagland Lecture Reception		BB308 72
RSVP's as of 3:30 pm 4-14-15
Name	Guest Of	Notes
Randall E. Adkins		head of UNO College of Arts & Sciences Department of Political Science
Amber J. Antholz		University of Nebraska Foundation Staff
Ellen M. Archer
Helen M. Bartee	Robert D. Bartee
Robert D. Bartee
John R. Bartle		UNO Dean of the College of Public Affairs & Community Service
Jonathan C. Benjamin-Alvarado
Mary T. Bernier		University of Nebraska Foundation Staff
Christopher J. Beutler		Mayor of Lincoln
Judith A. Beutler	Christopher J. Beutler
Glen Billesbach
Michael Bird		University of Nebraska Foundation Staff
Kent Blansett
Kathy Blecha	Kirk S. Blecha
Kirk S. Blecha
J. David Boocker		UNO Dean of the College of Arts & Sciences
Kate Borchman	Charles H. Hassebrook
Mike Boyle
David R. Buntain
Laura Buntain	David R. Buntain
H. C. Camp
Liz Campbell	Ellen M. Archer
Patricia M. Carlson
Jo Ann Carrigan
Anne D. Carroll
Clarence L. Castner
Edward A. Castro	Jody L. Neathery-Castro
Kara A. Cavel	Rosemary L. Edzie
Elizabeth Chalecki
Lorraine Chang
Timothy F. Clare		Regent - University of Nebraska
Tanya D. Cook		State Senator
David E. Corbin
Jim F. Crouse
Patsy Crouse	Jim F. Crouse
Bill de Blasio
Jean Demars	Dale A. Stover
Lee Denker		Head of the UNO Alumni Association
Robert L. Dodendorf
Kathleen Dodge
N. P. Dodge	Kathleen Dodge
Nate P. Dodge
Mark Donovan
Alan Dugger
Rosemary L. Edzie		University of Nebraska Foundation Staff
Joseph Feeney	Robert P. Houston
Joye M. Fehringer		University of Nebraska Foundation Staff
Anne Fenner	Mike Fenner
Mike Fenner
Catherine A. Ferguson	Terrence J. Ferguson
Terrence J. Ferguson
Peter F. Festersen		Elected official - Omaha City Council
Marian Fey		OPS School Board
Pete Fey	Marian Fey
E. Terence Foster
Mary L. Foster	E. Terence Foster
Joseph S. Francisco		UNL College of Arts & Sciences Dean
Priya Francisco	Joseph S. Francisco
Carol Z. Gendler
Elisabeth M. Gershovich	Moshe Gershovich
Moshe Gershovich		Page 1

Sharon G. Griffin	William T. Griffin	BB308 72
William T. Griffin
Bruce Grogan	Renee D. Wessels
John Grove
Michael Grynbaum
Renee Handleman	Gail A. Lobin
Jeff Hardy	Laura A. Schoenrock
Frank R. Hartranft
Shirley J. Hartranft	Frank R. Hartranft
Charles H. Hassebrook
Brian F. Hastings		President & CEO of the University of Nebraska Foundation
Chris Hicks
David Hicks
Barbara Hoagland		wife of the late Peter J. Hoagland
Chris D. Hoagland	Barbara Hoagland	Son of Peter J. Hoagland
David Hoagland	Barbara Hoagland	Son of Peter J. Hoagland
Elizabeth Hoagland		Daughter of Peter J. Hoagland
Laurance R. Hoagland		Brother of Peter J. Hoagland
Jim Houston	Robert P. Houston
Robert P. Houston
Steve Houston	Robert P. Houston
Tom Houston	Robert P. Houston
Breta S. Jeter	John A. Jeter
John A. Jeter
Rebecca L. Keating-Lefler
Christopher B. Kelly	Rosemary L. Edzie
Ramazan Kilinc
Douglas Kindig
Kate King Wu
Amy E. Kloefkorn		University of Nebraska Foundation Staff
Joan Kraft	Marc Kraft
Marc Kraft		Douglas County Commissioner
Mary Ann Lamanna	Samuel Walker
Paul M. Landow		University of Nebraska Omaha - Political Science Department
Meg L. Lauritzen Dodge	Nate P. Dodge
Don Lee	Jannette Taylor
Steven J. Lefler	Rebecca L. Keating-Lefler
Laura Luther	Michael S. Luther
Michael S. Luther
Gayle M. Malmquist
Trevor Matulka
Deborah L. McCollister	John S. McCollister
John S. McCollister
Michael F. McDonnell
Patrick T. McNamara
Samuel J. Meisels
Heath M. Mello		State Senator
Lacey J. Merica
Guest Monaghan	Thomas J. Monaghan
Thomas J. Monaghan
Terry L. Moore		head of the Omaha Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO
Adam Morfeld	Elaine L. Norton
Anthony Naprstek
Jody L. Neathery-Castro
Elaine Marie Nelson
Diane Nickerson-Ray
Dieudonne Nomenyo
Jeremiah J. Nordquist		State Senator
Elaine L. Norton
Eric Pearson
Gregory Petrow
Karen Pollack
Alan E. Potash
Linda R. Pratt
Richard Ray	Diane Nickerson-Ray	Page 2

Jeanne Reames-Zimmerman		BB308 72
Ashton Reason
Kathi A. Rotella
Louis Rotella
Rick R. Sanders
Rita Sanders	Rick R. Sanders
Susan Sarver
Matthew Sawickis
Barbara W. Schaefer	Ronald W. Schaefer
Dave R. Schinzel
Laura A. Schoenrock
Hannah Schwalb	Natan Schwalb
Natan Schwalb
Joe Selig		University of Nebraska Foundation staff
Alex Simonson
Karen R. Stacey
Alan G. Stoler
Kimberly J. Stoler	Alan G. Stoler
Dale A. Stover
Christine E. Swanson	Jo Ann Carrigan
Jannette Taylor
Susan Thomas	Carol Z. Gendler
Rodney Trince	Jannette Taylor
Dara L. Trounhar		Chief of Staff - University of Nebraska President's Office
Noah Verboon
Samuel Walker
Del D. Weber		Chancellor Emeritus - University of Nebraska at Omaha
Renee D. Wesse/s
Amy West	Patricia M. Carlson
Peter J. Whitted
Anna Wishart	Elaine L. Norton
Horace C. Wu	Kate King Wu

Event/Meeting Briefing Information

Staff Contact/Planning Lead: Michael P. Carey

EVENT: Remarks at Drake University

RATIONALE: YOU were asked to visit the Harkin Institute from Senator Harkin

DAY/DATE: Thursday, April 16, 2015

EVENT TIME: 10:30 AM –12:00 PM

MBDB TIME: 10:30 AM –12:00 PM

LOCATION: Drake University, Cowles Library, 2507 University Avenue, Des Moines- Reading Room

LOCAL/ONSITE CONTACT: Rachel Paine Caufield, Ph.D. rachel.caufield@drake.edu
[REDACTED]

PEOPLE ATTENDING: 100 Students, Faculty, Community

ELECTED/COMMUNITY OFFICIALS ATTENDING: Senator Tom Harkin

STAFF ATTENDING: Michael Carey

STAFF ASSIGNED TO MBDB: Michael Carey

PRESS: OPEN

MBDB ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS:

- Domenic Lamberti (LAM-BERTEE)
- Hosts/Sponsors:
- Harkin Institute for Public Policy and Citizen Engagement at Drake University and Drake University's Law, Politics, and Society program

EVENT PROGRAM:

- Senator Harkin for introduction and invitation
- YOU arrive and proceed into hold.
- YOU greet with Senator Harkin and Domenic Lamberti.
- YOU, Senator Harkin, and Domenic Lamberti Proceed to Reading Room
- Domenic Lamberti opens and introduces Senator Harkin
- Senator Harkin gives remarks and introduces YOU.
- YOU give remarks.

- YOU conclude and Senator Harkin comes back up to podium to moderate questions.
- YOU take questions from attendees.
- YOU conclude.
- YOU, Senator Harkin, and Domenic Lamberti proceed back to Hold.
- YOU greet with 10 students.
- YOU depart.

MBDB INTRODUCED BY: Senator Tom Harkin

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ON THE EVENT:

- ABOUT DRAKE UNIVERSITY:

- Founded in 1181 and named for Civil War Union General and Iowan Governor Francis Maron Drake; home of the bulldogs
- 5,062 students; 289 faculty
- 41.2% Male: 58.8% Female
- 81.2% White; 4% Asian; 5.5% Non-Resident; 3.2% Hispanic; 3.1% Black; 1.5% Two or More Races; 1.1% Race/Ethnicity Unknown; .02% American Indian; .02% Hawaiian/Pacific Islander;

BIO INFORMATION ON PARTICIPANTS:

- Domenic Lamberti (LAM-BERTEE)
 - Senior at Drake University studying Law, Politics, & Society with a double major in Sociology
 - Originally from Ankeny, a suburb of Des Moines,
 - Member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and served as President, Vice-President, and Philanthropy Chair over the past few years
 - Junior year started a men’s discussion group designed to get young men talking about the topics of gender equality and sexual violence prevention, and I planned and conducted a speaker series in the spring of 2014.
 - After Drake ends will teaching English in China through a program called CIEE before attending graduate school.
- Senator Tom Harkin
 - United States Senator from Iowa from 1985 to 2015. A member of the Democratic Party, he previously served in the United States House of Representatives from 1975 to 1985.
 - Born in Cumming, Iowa, Harkin graduated from Iowa State University and The Catholic University of America's Columbus School of Law. He served in the United States Navy as an active-duty jet pilot (1962–67). After serving as a Congressional aide for several years, he made two runs for the U.S. House of Representatives, losing in 1972 but winning in 1974. He went on to serve five terms in the House.

- Harkin won a race for U.S. Senate in 1984 by a wide margin. He was an early frontrunner for his party's presidential nomination in 1992, but he dropped out in support of eventual winner Bill Clinton. He served five senate terms and at the end of his time in the senate served as chairman of the Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions. When he left the senate in 2015 he was the most senior junior senator after serving for 30 years and the sixth most senior senator over all.
- On January 26, 2013, he announced his intention to retire from the Senate after completing his fifth term in 201

PRESS RELEASE FROM DRAKE

April 10, 2015

Media Contact: Aaron W. Jaco, aaron.jaco@drake.edu, 515-779-0526

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio Will Deliver Remarks at Drake University

DES MOINES, IA -- On Thursday, April 16, New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio will deliver remarks at Drake University on the issue of income inequality.

Mayor de Blasio's remarks are open to the public and OPEN PRESS. The event will begin at 10:30 a.m. in the Cowles Library Reading Room, located on the top floor of the library, 2725 University Ave. No tickets are required, but seating may be limited.

The Mayor's visit is by invitation of former U.S. Senator Tom Harkin and sponsored by the Harkin Institute for Public Policy and Citizen Engagement at Drake University and Drake University's Law, Politics, and Society program.

Also on April 16, Sen. Harkin will speak at Drake University on the topic of human rights. That lecture, titled "Making Human Rights a Part of Your Everyday," will mark the Senator's first public speaking engagement since his retirement from a 40-year Congressional career early this year. That event will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 16, in Parents Hall, upper Olmsted Center, on the Drake University campus. A limited number of tickets are available; details are online at www.drake.edu/harkininstitute/; a separate news release will follow with additional information.

Drake University is committed to an open and productive exchange of ideas, allowing free and informed discussion of political affairs. As a tax-exempt educational institution, Drake University does not endorse or oppose any political party or candidate for public office.

A bio of Mayor de Blasio can be found on his website at <http://www1.nyc.gov/office-of-the-mayor/index.page>.

Sherrod Brown
U.S. Senator from Ohio

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes: Senator from OH since 2006, after serving 14 years in the House. Brown is the senior Senator from OH and a staunch advocate for banking reform. As a follow up to the confab, Sen. Brown's staff sent the below info re: overtime regulations

The White House is having very high level meetings on the overtime regulations.

it is critical it is that the salary threshold be at least $55,000.

Any salary threshold lower than that will continue to exempt too many workers from overtime regulations.

Dannel Malloy

Governor of Connecticut

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant:

Notes:

At the confab he focused on:

- Tax system where everyone should pay their fair share. Middle class shouldn't have to pay a higher tax rate than the very wealthy.
- EITC – lots of people don't understand it.
- STUDENT LOANS – why should anyone pay over 2.5% on a student loan. CAP it.
- Treat childcare like a profession.

Raul Grijalva (Gra-hall-va)

Congressman– Co-Chair of U.S. House Progressive
Caucus

Main Phone: [REDACTED] (scheduler would prefer to have us call her and she will schedule call

Assistant

Amy Emerick – Chief of Staff - [REDACTED]

Notes: Confab Notes:

- Leaders need to speak to the agony that people are suffering

Katrina vanden Heuval

The Nation Magazine

Cell: [REDACTED]
Secondary Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]
Email: kat@thenation.com

Assistant: Kelsea Norris – asst – [REDACTED]

Notes: Confab Notes:

- How do you restore faith in people that government can do something for their lives
- From below, there are people in motion, it's coming from the grassroots
- Inequality of our political system – campaign finance system/public financing system

Ted Strickland

Former Governor of Ohio and current candidate for U.S. Senate

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Notes: Confab Notes

- Haven't conveyed an overall economic message – no matter what your background is, you should be able to get on board...
- Who's going to appoint the next few justices on the Supreme Court
- Right wing doesn't believe in the New Deal, don't believe in the social safety net
- We have to convey that we know what life is like for everyday people

Maria Elana Durazo

Former President, LA County Federation of Labor

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant: Lisa Ndecky

Executive Assistant to María Elena Durazo

Office: [REDACTED]

Notes: Confab Notes:

- Collective bargaining
- Wages, workplace issues, family issues – turned over to the public policy arena? No, take it to your employers directly.
- We are now looking for public policy to replace what collective bargaining.
- You didn't have to be in a unionized workplace to benefit from what collective bargaining did.

Deepak Bhargava

Executive Director of Campaign Community for Change

Personal Line: [REDACTED]

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Email: bhargava@communitychange.org

Assistant: Julia Palik - jpaik@communitychange.org

Notes: He is hosting his Good Jobs for All rally on 4/29 with Sen. Warren, Sen. Brown and others. We are talking with him about how to use this to build momentum towards our event.

Confab Notes:

- Massive investment in infrastructure
- Parents who can't afford child care – eliminate the affordability gap
- Workers right to bargain
- Massive reinvestment in the poorest communities
- Progressive taxation

Abigail Disney

Progressive Scholar and Filmmaker

Cell Phone:

Notes: Confab Notes

- In the 80s, they thought that more money for the wealthy made things better for everybody.
- Every wealthy generation had to do better than the next.
Steady march of class warfare.

Jonathan Soros

Senior Fellow at The Roosevelt Institute

Cell Phone:

Main Phone:

Notes: Confab Notes

- People equate promoting business interests with good markets – when they're at odds...
- Think about fundamental structure – distinguish between economics and finance – finance is just about money

Toni Morrison

Nobel Laureate, Author

Personal Phone [REDACTED]

Assistant: Rene R. Boatman boatman@princeton.edu

Notes: Confab Notes

- Let's not forget poor people.
- They're never a part of these meetings, never a part of this discussion.
- Don't choke on the word poverty
- Poor people are the most creative people in the world because they have to be

Van Jones

Environmental Activist, Civil Rights Champion

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant: Somer Huntley
Chief of Staff | Van Jones
somer@dreamcorps.us
Dream Corps Unlimited

Notes: Confab Notes

- Criminal justice reform.
- Bipartisan support for redoing the criminal justice system.
- Yes We Code. – train them as coders as economic issue and as a democracy issue.
- Close prison doors. Open doors to 21st Century Jobs.

Heather McGhee

Executive Director - DEMOS

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Notes: Confab Notes

- People think of the economy like the weather – uncontrollable, just trying to protect ourselves from it.
- It's really a game – which team you start out on, what rules are set, and some rewrite the rules.

Richard Trumka
President of AFL-CIO

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]
Assistant: Elizabeth Park
[REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Notes: He wanted to attend, but had a medical procedure the morning of the confab and couldn't attend
He sent a tweet talking about the need to address income inequality after your MTP interview

Mary Kay Henry
President of SEIU

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone:

Assistant: Sarah Quickel
Office of the President
Service Employees International Union

[REDACTED]

Notes: She was very interested in attending, but couldn't make schedule work.

Keith Ellison

Congressman– Co-Chair of U.S. House Progressive
Caucus

Personal Line: [REDACTED] Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant: Dustin J. Brandenburg
Director of Operations
Office of Congressman Keith Ellison
Telephone: [REDACTED]

Notes: He had a meeting in his district on 4/2 that he was unable to change

Robert Reich

Chancellor's Professor of Public Policy at the University of California at Berkeley and Senior Fellow at the Blum Center for Developing Economies

Personal Line:

Secondary Phone:

Assistant: phone and email for his assistant rebecca boles

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Email: rboles@berkeley.edu

Notes: He really wanted to attend, but had to teach a class of 800 undergraduates.

Al Gore
Former Vice President

Personal Line:
Assistant:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Notes:

Congressman John Lewis
US Congressman from Georgia

Cell Phone:

Main Phone:

Assistant: David Bowman
Scheduler

Office of Congressman John Lewis

Notes: Was unable to attend the confab because of in district scheduling conflict

Senator Tammy Baldwin
US Senator from Wisconsin

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant: Carolyn Walser
Scheduler

[REDACTED]

Notes: Was very enthusiastic about attending, but had in state scheduling conflict

Janet Murguia

President of the National Council of La Raza

Cell: [REDACTED]

Personal (assistant) Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant: Octavio Espinal

Notes: Was unable to attend because she had to travel for Easter

Nick Hanauer
Entrepreneur and Philanthropist

Cell Phone:

Main Phone:

Notes: we didn't call him for the Confab, but his political guy attended the 4/2 Roosevelt Institute meeting. Could be a good check in and update

Kamala Harris

Attorney General of California and candidate for U.S. Senate

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Notes: Was enthusiastic after your call, but was unable to travel to NYC

Howard Dean

Former Governor of VT, Former DNC Chair, Co-founder
Democracy for America

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]
Assistant: Amanda McKay

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Notes: Had a scheduling conflict in DC on the day of the Confab

Joseph Stiglitz

Professor at Columbus Business School, Roosevelt
Institute Fellow, Nobel Prize Winner

Cell Phone:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Assistant: Hannah Assidi

Phone: [REDACTED]

Email: hla2101@columbia.edu

Notes: Hosted a high level discussion with economists on April 2 in DC during the Confab. He is working on an economic frame to address income inequality

Randi Weingarten
President of AFT

Cell Phone: [REDACTED]
Assistant:

Main Phone: [REDACTED]

Notes:

Al Sharpton

TV Host, President of NAN

Cell Phone:
Assistant:

Main Phone:

Notes:

Event/Meeting Briefing Information

Staff Contact/Planning Lead: Michael P. Carey

EVENT: Remarks at Progress Iowa Reception

RATIONALE: YOU were asked to attend a fundraising reception for Progress Iowa

DAY/DATE: Thursday, April 16, 2015

EVENT TIME: 5:30 to 7:00 PM

MBDB TIME: 5:30 PM –7:00 PM

LOCATION: Iowa State Education Association

LOCAL/ONSITE CONTACT: Matt Sinovic
[REDACTED]

PEOPLE ATTENDING: 75 to 100 Progress Iowa donors

ELECTED/COMMUNITY OFFICIALS ATTENDING Tammy Wawro, President, Iowa State Education Association (will intro the Mayor)
Matt Sinovic, Executive Director of Progress Iowa
Ken Sagar, President, Iowa Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO
State Representative Marti Anderson, Des Moines
State Senator Joe Bolkcom, Iowa City
State Representative Abby Finkenauer, Dubuque
State Senator Rob Hogg, Cedar Rapids
State Representative Dan Kelley, Newton
State Representative Helen Miller, Fort Dodge

STAFF ATTENDING: Michael Carey

STAFF ASSIGNED TO MBDB: Michael Carey

PRESS: OPEN

MBDB ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS:

- Tammy Wawro, President, Iowa State Education Association (will intro the Mayor)
- Matt Sinovic, Executive Director of Progress Iowa
- Ken Sagar, President, Iowa Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO
- State Representative Marti Anderson, Des Moines

EVENT PROGRAM:

- State Senator Joe Bolkcom, Iowa City
- State Representative Abby Finkenauer, Dubuque
- State Senator Rob Hogg, Cedar Rapids
- State Representative Dan Kelley, Newton
- State Representative Helen Miller, Fort Dodge
- YOU arrive and proceed into hold.
- YOU greet with Matt Sinovic and Tammy Wawro
- Matt Sinovic opens and introduces Tammy Wawro
- Tammy Wawro gives remarks and introduces YOU.
- YOU give remarks.
- YOU conclude and mix and mingle
- YOU depart.

MBDB INTRODUCED BY: Tammy Wawro – Iowa State Education Association
President

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ON THE EVENT:

• ABOUT PROGRESS IOWA:

- PI started with a small group of 24 email subscribers, and has grown into an active community of more than 60,000.
- They have worked to expand Medicaid, raise the minimum wage, and fight for equality for all Iowans.
- Progress Iowa is an effective messenger for the progressive community in Iowa, but we also work behind the scenes to help our partners get their message out.
- Since they were founded, they have generated almost one story every day on progressive issues. The bottom line is that we try to create more good news for good ideas and more bad news for bad ideas!

BIO INFORMATION ON PARTICIPANTS:

- Tammy Wawro
 - President of Iowa State Education Association – elected in 2012
 - Educator serving as the resolution Team Facilitator in the Cedar Rapids School District and as the Cedar Rapids Education Association president prior to election as ISEA President
- Matt Sinovic
 - Executive Director of Progress Iowa since 2012
 - Previously served as Deputy Director of the Kansas Democratic Party
 - Graduated from Washburn University

Event/Meeting Briefing Information

Staff Contact/Planning Lead: Michael P. Carey

EVENT: Century Club Event with Special Guest NYC Mayor Bill de Blasio

RATIONALE: YOU were invited to speak to this event put together for YOUR visit

DAY/DATE: Thursday, April 16, 2015

EVENT TIME: 7:30-8:30 PM

MBDB TIME: 7:45 PM – 8:30 PM

LOCATION: Des Moines Marriott Downtown, 700 Grand Ave
Des Moines, IA

LOCAL/ONSITE CONTACT: Aaron Fielding
[REDACTED]

# PEOPLE ATTENDING:
ELECTED/COMMUNITY OFFICIALS ATTENDING 30-40 Supporters

STAFF ATTENDING: Michael Carey

STAFF ASSIGNED TO MBDB: Michael Carey

PRESS: Closed

MBDB ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS: • Dr. Andy McGuire, Chair of the Iowa Democratic Party

EVENT PROGRAM:

- YOU arrive and greeted by Dr. McGuire.
- YOU mix and mingle with guests.
- Dr. McGuire introduces YOU
- YOU give remarks.
- YOU conclude and continue to mix and mingle.
- YOU depart.

MBDB INTRODUCED BY: Dr. McGuire

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ON PARTY:

- Background on Party
 - The Iowa Democratic Party is dedicated to promoting Democratic principles across the state of Iowa and electing qualified and dedicated candidates at all levels of government.
 - Iowa Democrats have a proud tradition of fighting for an economy built from the middle out, equal rights and the idea that our strength draws from the connections we share. I'm honored and excited to help lead the next chapter in that effort alongside our great Democratic elected officials, partners and supporters across the state.
 - 2015-2016 brings a real opportunity to build on Democrats' gains in Des Moines and Washington, D.C. not just to say we won an election, but to expand educational and job opportunities for all Iowans.
- Jobs and Economy
 - Iowa's unemployment rate remains well below the national average and Democrats want to keep it that way by maintaining resources that help businesses find employees and help individuals find the right job for them.
 - Rather than only protecting the large businesses and corporations as the Republicans were trying to do, Democrats want to give Iowa's small businesses a break through a tax credit that would lower taxes for most small business property to the residential rate. This would help grow Iowa's local economic structure and actually keep profits in Iowa instead of sending them out of state which is seen with big business.
- Education
 - Years of research show that there are long-term benefits to attending preschool, including academic and financial success. According to a 2005 MIT study:
 - High-quality early childhood education helps prepare young children to succeed in school and become better citizens; they earn more, pay more taxes, and commit fewer crimes.
 - Every dollar invested in quality early care and education saves taxpayers up to $13.00 in future costs.
 - The early care and education industry is economically important—often much larger in terms of employees and revenues than other industries that receive considerable government attention and investment.
 - Failing to invest sufficiently in quality early care and education shortchanges taxpayers because the return on investment is greater than many other economic development options.
 - Access to available and affordable choices of early childhood learning programs helps working parents fulfill their responsibilities.
 - Quality early education is as essential for a productive 21st century workforce as roads or the internet; investing in it grows the economy.
- Healthcare
 - On March 23, 2010, President Barack Obama, with the help of Iowa's Democratic Congressmen, signed the Patient Protection and Affordable Care

- Act – one of the most significant laws to be passed in decades. The GOP immediately cried “Armageddon!” (no, really) and has vowed to repeal it.
- If the Affordable Care Act were to be repealed, Iowans could expect to see:
 - 57,216 small businesses get a tax increase.
 - 713,155 children excluded from coverage based on a pre-existing condition.
 - 43,100 senior citizens suffer an increase in prescription drug costs as the Medicare “donut hole” is opened back up.
 - 247,000 young adults be dropped from their parent’s health care coverage.
 - 788,000 families getting their taxes increased.
 - Marriage Equality
 - Iowa Democrats stand with Iowa’s LGBT community and unequivocally supports marriage equality. The Varnum v Brien decision by Iowa’s Supreme Court crossed ideological lines and stated clearly that denying Iowa’s LGBT citizens the right to marry whomever they wish violated Iowa’s Constitution. Any amendment to Iowa’s Constitution that would discriminate against our LGBT friends should be opposed.
 - During this legislative season, Democrats protected the rights of the LGBT community by blocking bills pushed by Governor Branstad and the Republicans such as their discrimination bill which would’ve allowed business owners to refuse any services to people whose marriage they didn’t agree with. This would have allowed direct discrimination against same-sex couples if Democrats had not immediately blocked the proposal.

From: Wolfe, Emma
To: Gunaratna, Mahen; B; FLONYC
Cc: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: Huffington Post: De Blasio Helps Hillary. Really.
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 9:18:42 AM

Nice!

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 09:12 AM
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: jfdc@akpdmedia.com <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma Subject: Huffington Post: De Blasio Helps Hillary. Really.

By Richard Brodsky, Senior Fellow, Demos

De Blasio Helps Hillary. Really.

Posted: 04/15/2015 7:50 am EDT Updated: 37 minutes ago

Hillary Clinton remains the best known and most enigmatic politician of our times. What is unknown includes what she really wants to do for the country, and more interestingly, her persona or soul or deeper motivations.

She's attracted to power and understands its usages. She's committed to elevating the status of women, and others. She has terrific political skills, and often a political tin ear. And she's the frontrunner.

Her campaign launch was smart and effective. The fundamental message was that "This campaign is about you, not me." That confronts the criticism of her aristocratic ascendancy, and the concern that it's all about power. A good beginning, but hurdles remain.

Comes now Bill de Blasio, New York's lefty mayor. He's an old Clinton hand, and the beneficiary of much Clinton largess over the years. While the rest of Clintonica was rushing and gushing, Mayor Bill held up his hand. No endorsement yet. We don't know enough about Hillary he sayeth.

"This is a different country we're living in right now, and I think we need to hear a vision that relates to this time, not eight years ago."

Woof.

Sounds like a slap at her as old, out of touch and unfocused. But it isn't. It's a shrewd, necessary and helpful thing to say.

It's shrewd because it focuses on a real weakness, at the beginning of the campaign not in the middle. It's necessary because sooner or later she has to address it, voters will be asking the same sort of question. And it's helpful, but only if she's able to use it to move forward.

Note that Mayor Bill called her and told her what he was doing before he did it. I'm not suggesting this was scripted, but all things are possible. Note also that this was a smart thing for de Blasio to do for his own reputation and influence. He's become the avatar of income inequality as a defining issue in the election. He was on Meet the Press. He's going to Iowa.

There was a rush to condemn him by a variety of Clinton pipsqueaks and the New York Daily News ("Stabbed In The Back!!"). Relax fellas. Hillary has a set of real problems with voters and the best thing she can do is address them now, calmly and repeatedly. And Mayor Bill set the scene: "We're still beginning to hear what she stands for. It's normal to want to hear more. And I look forward to that."

I could be wrong but watch for Hillary to roll out ideas, and make political gestures that respond to the de Blasio invitation. And watch for the press to run to de Blasio each time and ask "How's she doing?" And watch for de Blasio to be highly impressed and encouraging. And watch for the eventual and inevitable endorsement benediction.

Politics has a theatrical component, and this is an example. Looking back from the 2017 coronation (I'm sorry, I meant inauguration) festivities, this kerfuffle will look more like the work of a smart friend and a smart campaign than disloyalty. The ways of the Clintons are mysterious, but no one is better at getting where they want to go.

From: de Alwis, Ronalie
To: Carey, Michael; @EO; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Re: SOP 04-15-2015 NE
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 12:36:37 PM

Just left Gracie.

Ronalie de Alwis
Office of the Mayor
City of New York
Cell:347-952-9525

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 11:31 AM
To: @EO; John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: SOP 04-15-2015 NE

Hi All,

As of now UAL 4111 is on time for a 2 PM ET departure from EWR.

RDA – can you just let us know when departs Gracie.

Thanks and Happy Tax Day

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\); Walzak, Phil; Wolfe, Emma; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Katrina vanden Heuvel in The Washington Post: A populist challenge to Hillary Clinton
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 1:16:56 PM

A populist challenge to Hillary Clinton

By Katrina vanden Heuvel

Special To The Washington Post

Hillary Clinton's decision to "go small" by formally announcing her presidential campaign in a video, before heading off for "intimate" meetings in Iowa, touched off saturation national press coverage that other contenders can only envy. The former first lady, former senator, former presidential contender, former secretary of state has been in the public eye for nearly a quarter of a century. She's the prohibitive favorite to get the Democratic Party nomination this time, and odds-on to win the presidency.

Yet hurdles remain. Clinton's biggest challenge probably isn't in capturing the middle from the Republican nominee. Republicans have already virtually ceded that. Her challenge is to inspire the Obama majority coalition to vote in large numbers, not only to guarantee her election but also to help Democrats take back the Senate, gain seats in the House and capture a clear mandate.

This won't be easy. Historically, after eight years of one party in the White House, voters are ready for change. The Republican base will be roused by venom toward Clinton that is almost as poisonous as that directed at President Barack Obama. In contrast, many Democrats are discouraged by the disappointments of the Obama years. Key parts of Obama's base — African-Americans, Latinos, millennials — haven't exactly thrived during his presidency. The election of 2014 took place in a low-turnout, by-election year, but it showed how destructive a lack of enthusiasm could be on the Democratic side.

Some pundits suggest 2016 will be a foreign policy election. Some Democrats are tempted to turn it into a culture clash, since Republicans are now on the wrong side of a growing range of concerns — gays, women, immigrants, voting rights and global warming. But as Clinton's campaign acknowledges, the central question is still about the economy: how to make this economy work for working people once more, to rebuild a broad middle class, increase wages and reduce income inequality. Here, although Clinton has been in the public eye for decades, her views are largely unknown, if not unformed.

And on these questions, a populist temper is building in the party — symbolized by the split between the "Warren" and Wall Street wings of the party, and by the spread of the movement to draft Sen. Elizabeth Warren, D-Mass., to run for the presidency. And Clinton will find that this movement will force her to decide where she stands early and often.

This week, a new resolution to give the president "fast track" trade authority will be introduced into the Senate. The measure — designed to shorten debate and ease passage of Trans-Pacific Partnership trade accord still under negotiations — will set off a furious debate.

Obama, joined by the Republican leadership and much of the Fortune 500, is pushing for fast track and the treaty. The vast majority of House Democrats are opposed, as are senators Warren, Sherrod Brown, D-Ohio, Jeff Merkley, D-Ore., and other progressives in the chamber, as well as a broad array of unions and citizen groups, from environmentalists to students.

Two potential rivals for the Democratic nomination — Sen. Bernie Sanders, I-Vt., and former Maryland governor Martin O'Malley — oppose the treaty, while former Virginia senator Jim Webb is skeptical of such agreements. Does Clinton stand for a continuation of the trade policies that her husband championed, that have racked up over $6 trillion in trade deficits since 2000, savaging domestic manufacturing and costing good jobs? Or does she agree that this is part of how the rules are rigged, and call for reconsideration?

On April 15, tens of thousands low-wage workers across the country — from Wal-Mart, McDonald's and retail stores, as well as adjunct professors at universities and others — will walk off the job out in some 200 cities, demanding a $15-an-hour minimum wage and unionization. Clinton favors raising the minimum wage, but will she join the workers' fight or try to duck it? Will she speak forcefully about empowering workers to organize and bargain collectively or decline?

With baby boomers retiring without pensions or adequate savings, progressives — led by Warren — have proposed that Social Security benefits be expanded, not cut, with lifting the current lid on the payroll tax as the first step of covering the cost. Obama, in contrast, proposed cuts in benefits as part of a "grand bargain" with Republicans on deficit reduction, a position greatly appreciated on Wall Street. Clinton, like all candidates, will promise to protect Social Security, but she'll find herself pressed to support expanding it.

At the same time, progressives are organizing a range of efforts to drive the debate on a populist economic agenda.

New York Mayor Bill de Blasio, after convening a group of progressive leaders, proposed collecting thousands of endorsements on an Economic Contract with America, and hosting a bipartisan presidential debate on inequality.

Warren has joined with Rep. Elijah Cummings, D-Md., to launch the Middle Class Prosperity Project, planning to convene hearings across the country on economic policies threatening the middle class, including, most recently, the need to relieve the burden of student debt. Progressives are gearing up a major campaign for four years of free public college.

Next week, the Campaign for America's Future will announce an alliance with three major national grassroots organizations — National People's Action, USAction and the Alliance for a Just Society — to drive a populist platform into the political debate. Moveon.org, the Progressive Congressional Campaign Committee and Progressive Democrats of America are all mobilizing online support for the demand that candidates address "bold ideas" for economic reform. Warren is joining the Center for Community Change Action as it launches a campaign for jobs. The AFL-CIO will hold convocations in each of the early primary states focused on the issue of raising wages.

Clinton's potential rivals for the nomination all clearly see an opening for a populist challenge. Webb has been a compelling critic of our trade policies; O'Malley has gone after Wall Street, calling for reviving the Glass-Steagall regulations that were repealed under Bill Clinton. Sanders has released a bold "Economic Agenda for America" and challenges the corruption of big-money politics, a clear contrast with what is likely to be unrelenting revelations about money and the Bill, Hillary and Chelsea Clinton Foundation, even as Clinton sets off to raise a staggering $2.5 billion for her campaign and associated super PACs.

Clinton has already shown she is aware of the populist temper of the time. In the video announcing her candidacy, Clinton echoes Warren, arguing that while Americans have fought back from the Great Recession, "the deck is still stacked in favor of those at the top." She vows to be the champion of "everyday Americans." Given the populist energy that is driving the debate inside the Democratic Party, she'll have every opportunity to prove it.

Washington Post

Katrina vanden Heuvel is the editor, publisher, and part-owner of the magazine The Nation.

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis

Mayor's Press Office | City Hall

mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Carey, Michael
To: Carey, Michael; @EO; John Del Cecato
Cc: Shorris, Anthony; Griffith, Chantell
Subject: Re: SOP 04-15-2015 NE
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 4:57:55 PM

Mayor is wheels down Omaha

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 at 1:15 PM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Anthony Shorris <AShorris@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Griffith, Chantell" <CGriffith@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: Re: SOP 04-15-2015 NE

Mayor is Wheels Up at 2:14 PM ET.

Mr. Shorris you are again Acting Mayor. Behave!

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 at 10:31 AM
To: "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: SOP 04-15-2015 NE

Hi All,

As of now UAL 4111 is on time for a 2 PM ET departure from EWR.

RDA – can you just let us know when departs Gracie.

Thanks and Happy Tax Day

From: B
To: Carey, Michael; Leopold, Elana
Cc: "ifdc@akpdmedia.com"; [REDACTED] "crouse@amhcmail.com"
Subject: Warren Buffett/Suzie Buffett (father/daughter)
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 4:58:14 PM

I want to meet with each when I can, ideally in nyc or dc. Jim crouse can help make it happen

From: Bill de Blasio
To: Rebecca Katz
Cc: John Del Cecato; Andrea Hagelqans; PhilWalzak [REDACTED] Emma Wolfe; FLONYC
Subject: Re: Rolling Stone
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 4:58:16 PM

Cool. Thanks
Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: Rebecca Katz <[REDACTED]>
Date: Wed, 15 Apr 2015 11:25:19 -0400
To: Bill de Blasio <[REDACTED]>
Cc: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>; Andrea Hagelqans <[REDACTED]> Phillip Walzak <[REDACTED]> Emma Mw <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Rolling Stone

Rolling Stone reporter Mark Binelli is finishing up his story this week, fact checking next week, and his story will likely hit newsstands on Tuesday, May 5.

We spoke a bit off record about how you laid out your vision at the confab and then how surprised the press corps was when you repeated same points on Meet the Press.

He feels like he's capturing a real moment: the birth of the new progressive movement.

He's still writing now, so I don't yet have deets on how much he will use from his site visits, interviews with commissioners, etc. He did say he will use some bites from your first interview where you talked about NYC under Republican leadership and how it didn't have to be this way.

From: Bill de Blasio
To: John Del Cecato; Aron Pickrell
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Gunaratna, Mahen
Subject: Fw: Quick Stats on Income Inequality
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 4:58:38 PM

We need to talk about which of these stats we like and which we want to clarify/say better so we have an arsenal of choices going forward

-----Original Message-----

From: Mahen Gunaratna
To: Bill de Blasio
Cc: Andrea Hagelgans
Subject: Quick Stats on Income Inequality
Sent: Apr 14, 2015 4:17 PM

As requested, please see below. AH is putting into your trip binder, which she will give you later tonight. Thanks, Mahen

--

Quick Stats on Income Inequality

1. The average CEO makes about 300 times what the average worker makes.[1]
2. The wealthiest 1% captured 91% of all income gains during the first three years of the recovery from the Great Recession (2009 to 2012).[2]
3. A typical American family, in real income terms, is making less today than they were a quarter century ago.[3]
4. Half of all New Yorkers are living at or near the poverty level.[4]
5. Income inequality is the highest it's been since the Great Depression.[5]
6. Two-thirds of American employees are estimated to live paycheck-to-paycheck, saying they would find it somewhat or very difficult to meet their financial obligations if there was a delay in their paychecks.[6]
7. In NYC, over 50% of New Yorkers are rent-burdened, meaning they spend more than 30% of their household income on rent, while in Manhattan, a single apartment recently sold for a jaw-dropping $100 million and another apartment was rented for $500,000 – per MONTH.[7]
8. We live in a country where the wealthiest 160 THOUSAND families own as much wealth as the poorest 145 MILLION families.[8]
9. The middle class share of national income continues to stagnate near record lows – falling sharply over nearly the past half century.[9]
10. The top ten percent in our country take in half of our national income.[10]
11. The top 1% of earners take home over 20% of America's income.[11]
12. The wealth gap between the richest Americans and the average family has more than doubled over the past half century. The wealthiest 1% of American households had a net worth 288 TIMES as large as the average family.[12]

13. A child born in the top 20% has about a 2 in 3 chance of staying at or near the top. A child born into the bottom 20% has a less than 1 in 20 shot at making it to the top. He or she is ten times likelier to be stuck in place.[13]

14. Since 1979, worker productivity has risen eight times faster than
Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
To: Carey, Michael
Cc: jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 6:56:04 PM
Attachments: image001.png

Great ty

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 6:52 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Cc: jfdc@akpdmedia.com
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

I already told them we putting out

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall

New York, New York

On Apr 15, 2015, at 5:51 PM, Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I tried cownie folks to give heads up, but haven't heard back. MPC / JDC you have good contact?

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 5:59 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Carey, Michael; Grybauskas, Natalie; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Fink, Avi; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Defer to JDC, but should make sure Cownie's folks know we are advising mtg

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 5:59 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Grybauskas, Natalie; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Fink, Avi; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Im good when JDC, IGA and MPC are

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 5:54 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Grybauskas, Natalie; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil; Fink, Avi; 'jfdc@akpdmmedia.com'
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Ok here

From: <Schnake-Mahl>, Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 at 4:53 PM
To: Natalie Grybauskas <NGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Marti Adams <MAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Kate Blumm <KBlumm@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Rosemary Boeglin <RBoeglin@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Chao, Raymond" <rchao@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Coney, Javon" <JConey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Ronalie de Alwis <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Stefan Grybauskas <SGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Monica Klein <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Elana Leopold <LEopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Wiley Norvell <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ozernoy, Ilana" <iozernoy@moia.nyc.gov>, "Parikh, Ishanee" <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Amy Spitalnick <SpitalnickA@omb.nyc.gov>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Aviy Fink <AFink@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmmedia.com>
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

+ JDC

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 5:48 PM
To: Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil; Fink, Avi
Subject: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Most of this language was previously approved.

Please note the addition of closed-press mayors meeting.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR
THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

On Thursday, the Mayor will deliver remarks at Drake University, hosted by the Harkin Institute for Public Policy and Citizen Engagement at Drake University and Drake University's Law, Politics, and Society program. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco at aaron.jaco@drake.edu or 515-779-0526.

Later, the Mayor will meet with Des Moines Mayor Frank Cownie, other area mayors and business leaders at Des Moines City Hall to discuss ongoing national bipartisan organizing efforts by mayors around the country. This meeting will be closed press.

In the evening, the Mayor will deliver remarks at a gathering for Progress Iowa at Iowa State Education Association headquarters. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

Press Schedule

10:30 AM – Delivers Remarks at Drake University

Drake University – Cowles Library Reading Room

2725 University Ave

Des Moines, IA 50311

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco – email aaron.jaco@drake.edu or call 515-779-0526.

5:45 PM – Delivers Remarks at Progress Iowa Gathering

Iowa State Education Association Headquarters – Second Floor

777 3rd Street

Des Moines, IA 50309

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

###

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; "John Del Cecato"; Walzak, Phil
Cc: Carey, Michael; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy \(OMB\); Fink, Avi
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 6:59:03 PM
Attachments: image001.png

Thanks! Blasting this now, as we have approval from IGA, MPC, and JDC

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 6:58 PM
To: Grybauskas, Natalie; 'John Del Cecato'; Walzak, Phil
Cc: Carey, Michael; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Fink, Avi
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Greenlight

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 6:03 PM
To: 'John Del Cecato'; Walzak, Phil
Cc: Carey, Michael; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Fink, Avi
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Thanks, will send when GSM gives greenlight on notifying Cownie's ppl

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmmedia.com>]
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 6:01 PM
To: Walzak, Phil
Cc: Carey, Michael; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Grybauskas, Natalie; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Fink, Avi
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

I'm fine

On Apr 15, 2015, at 4:58 PM, Walzak, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Im good when JDC, IGA and MPC are

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 5:54 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Grybauskas, Natalie; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil; Fink, Avi; 'jfdc@akpdmmedia.com'
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Ok here

From: <Schnake-Mahl>, Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 at 4:53 PM
To: Natalie Grybauskas <NGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Marti Adams <MAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Kate Blumm <KBlumm@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Rosemary Boeglin <RBoeglin@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Chao, Raymond" <rchao@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Coney, Javon" <JConey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Ronalie de Alwis <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Stefan Grybauskas <SGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Monica Klein <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Elana Leopold <LEopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Wiley Norvell <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ozernoy, Ilana" <iozernoy@moia.nyc.gov>, "Parikh, Ishanee" <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Amy Spitalnick <SpitalnickA@omb.nyc.gov>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Aviy Fink <AFink@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmmedia.com>
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

+ JDC

From: Grybauskas, Natalie
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 5:48 PM
To: Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil; Fink, Avi
Subject: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Most of this language was previously approved.

Please note the addition of closed-press mayors meeting.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR
THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

On Thursday, the Mayor will deliver remarks at Drake University, hosted by the Harkin Institute for Public Policy and Citizen Engagement at Drake University and Drake University's Law, Politics, and Society program. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco at aaron.jaco@drake.edu or 515-779-0526.

Later, the Mayor will meet with Des Moines Mayor Frank Cownie, other area mayors and business leaders at Des Moines City Hall to discuss ongoing national bipartisan organizing efforts by mayors around the country. This meeting will be closed press.

In the evening, the Mayor will deliver remarks at a gathering for Progress Iowa at Iowa State Education Association headquarters. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

Press Schedule

10:30 AM – Delivers Remarks at Drake University

Drake University – Cowles Library Reading Room

2725 University Ave

Des Moines, IA 50311

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco – email aaron.jaco@drake.edu or call 515-779-0526.

5:45 PM – Delivers Remarks at Progress Iowa Gathering

Iowa State Education Association Headquarters – Second Floor

777 3rd Street

Des Moines, IA 50309

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

###

From: John Del Cecato
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Carey, Michael
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 7:05:02 PM
Attachments: image001.png

i don't but stephanie probably does

From: <Schnake-Mahl>, Gabriel <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 at 5:51 PM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>, "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

I tried cownie folks to give heads up, but haven't heard back. MPC / JDC you have good contact?

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 5:59 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Carey, Michael; Grybauskas, Natalie; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Fink, Avi; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Defer to JDC, but should make sure Cownie's folks know we are advising mtg

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 5:59 PM
To: Carey, Michael; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Grybauskas, Natalie; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Fink, Avi; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Im good when JDC, IGA and MPC are

From: Carey, Michael
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 5:54 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Grybauskas, Natalie; Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil; Fink, Avi; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: Re: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Ok here

From: <Schnake-Mahl>, Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <GSchnakeMahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 at 4:53 PM

To: Natalie Grybauskas <NGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Marti Adams <MAdams@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Kate Blumm <KBlumm@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Rosemary Boeglin <RBoeglin@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Chao, Raymond" <rchao@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Coney, Javon" <JConey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Ronalie de Alwis <rdealwis@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Stefan Grybauskas <SGrybauskas@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Monica Klein <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Elana Leopold <ELeopold@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Wiley Norvell <WNorvell@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Ozernoy, Ilana" <iozernoy@moia.nyc.gov>, "Parikh, Ishanee" <iparikh@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Richardson, Jerika" <JLRichardson@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Amy Spitalnick <SpitalnickA@omb.nyc.gov>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Aviy Fink <AFink@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: RE: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

+ JDC

From: Grybauskas, Natalie

Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 5:48 PM

To: Adams, Marti; Blumm, Kate; Boeglin, Rosemary; Carey, Michael; Chao, Raymond; Coney, Javon; de Alwis, Ronalie; Grybauskas, Stefan; Hagelgans, Andrea; Klein, Monica; Leopold, Elana; Norvell, Wiley; Ozernoy, Ilana; Parikh, Ishanee; Richardson, Jerika; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); Walzak, Phil; Fink, Avi

Subject: [draft] PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

Most of this language was previously approved.

Please note the addition of closed-press mayors meeting.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, NY 10007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT: pressoffice@cityhall.nyc.gov, (212) 788-2958

PUBLIC SCHEDULE FOR MAYOR BILL DE BLASIO FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 2015

On Thursday, the Mayor will deliver remarks at Drake University, hosted by the Harkin Institute for Public Policy and Citizen Engagement at Drake University and Drake University's Law, Politics, and Society program. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco at aaron.jaco@drake.edu or 515-779-0526.

Later, the Mayor will meet with Des Moines Mayor Frank Cownie, other area mayors and business leaders at Des Moines City Hall to discuss ongoing national bipartisan organizing efforts by mayors around the country. This meeting will be closed press.

In the evening, the Mayor will deliver remarks at a gathering for Progress Iowa at Iowa State Education Association headquarters. Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

Press Schedule

10:30 AM – Delivers Remarks at Drake University

Drake University – Cowles Library Reading Room

2725 University Ave

Des Moines, IA 50311

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Aaron W. Jaco – email aaron.jaco@drake.edu or call 515-779-0526.

5:45 PM – Delivers Remarks at Progress Iowa Gathering

Iowa State Education Association Headquarters – Second Floor

777 3rd Street

Des Moines, IA 50309

Members of the media interested in covering this event must RSVP by contacting Matt Sinovic at matt@progressiowa.org.

###

1. Hoagland, amy
2. Jim Claxton
3. elec. of office a.s
4. Female elec. of office a.s

From: Carey, Michael
To: John Del Cecato
Subject: FW: Today
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 8:32:48 AM

Are you okay with this?

On 4/16/15, 7:31 AM, "Kay Henderson" <khenderson@radioiowa.com> wrote:

>Yes

>

>And I'm bringing a colleague from the statehouse. James Lynch is the >chief political reporter for The Cedar Rapids Gazette. OK? He hadn't >gotten a reach out about the visit so I'm willing to double up

>

>Sent from my iPhone

>

>> On Apr 16, 2015, at 7:28 AM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
>>wrote:

>>

>> Hi there!

>>

>> Just confirming you are still good for 130 PM today?

>>

>> I will be on site at City Hall in Des Moines around 115 PM. Want to >>meet in the lobby?

>>

>> We have a private conference room for the interview.

>>

>> Thanks.

From: Klein, Monica
To: Jim Crouse; BdB
Cc: John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: WOWT: New York City Mayor Speaks at UNO
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 9:31:19 AM

In Omaha speech, New York Mayor de Blasio says he wants leaders to take stand on income inequality
OMAHA WORLD HERALD - Robynn Tysver
http://www.omaha.com/news/metro/in-omaha-speech-new-york-mayor-de-blasio-says-he/article_71b31033-906e-5dad-91e1-6e17019a4116.html

New York Mayor Bill de Blasio came to Omaha on Wednesday to talk about income inequality and, in the process, took a jab at both Democrats and Republicans.

The Democrat said that neither of the nation's two major political parties want to talk about the growing gap between the rich and the poor, a gap that de Blasio said has become a national crisis.

³Lord knows, fewer and fewer of our leaders are willing to say the word $\text{\textcircled{E}}$ poor,^{1 2} said de Blasio, who was the keynote speaker at a lecture series sponsored by the University of Nebraska at Omaha and held in honor of the late U.S. Rep. Peter Hoagland of Omaha.

De Blasio, who rankled some Democrats earlier this week by refusing to endorse his longtime political ally Hillary Clinton in her presidential campaign, is believed to be trying to raise his national profile and his national ³progressive² agenda.

Today he is scheduled to speak twice in Iowa: at Drake University and at a fundraiser in Des Moines. Iowa, of course, is home to the nation's first presidential caucuses.

In Omaha, de Blasio argued that the growing gap between rich and poor not only hurts lower-income Americans but eventually will hurt the wealthy. If people don't have enough money to purchase goods and services, the economy will suffer, cutting into everyone's bottom line, he said.

He said that one reason for the growing gap is the decline in the power and membership of the nation's labor unions.

He also argued that the wealthy bounced back from the Great Recession while many in the middle class are still struggling.

³The middle class, as we know it, is starting to disappear,² he said.

During his speech, de Blasio said the income tax rate needed to be raised on wealthier Americans and said public pressure needed to be brought to bear to persuade executives to raise their workers¹ salaries.

He also praised Omaha investor Warren Buffett for raising the issue of income equality in 2012. At the time, Buffett supported a bill to raise the income tax rate for those making more than $1 million by arguing that his secretary was paying a higher income tax rate than her boss.

³That took decency and honesty to say that out loud to the world,² de Blasio said.

On 4/16/15, 9:30 AM, "Jim Crouse" <crouse@amhcmail.com> wrote:

>World herald did cover it. Average story

>

>Sent from my iPhone with apologies for any spelling errors

>

>On Apr 16, 2015, at 8:10 AM, Bill de Blasio <>

>wrote:

>

>

>I see what you mean about your local media, Jim. Hardly a storyteller, >this guy... Monica, pls send the clip from the omaha newspaper -- if they >bothered to cover the event

>

>

>-----Original Message-----

>From: Clips

>Subject: WOWT: New York City Mayor Speaks at UNO

>Sent: Apr 16, 2015 6:22 AM

>

>New York City Mayor Speaks at UNO

>WOWT - Alex Hassel

><http://www.wowt.com/home/headlines/New-York-City-Mayor-Speaks-at-UNO-300005431.html>

>

>The leader of the largest city in America spoke in Omaha Wednesday night.

>

>UNO offered a warm welcome for New York City Mayor, Bill de Blasio, that >evening.

>

>Income inequality was one of the major themes of de Blasio's lecture at >the university.

>

>"Something happening in this country that defies our values as Americans, >and undermines our security, and our stability, and our future: growing >income inequality that undermines the very notion of the American dream, >in a sense of this being a country for all," de Blasio said.

>

>After speaking, de Blasio took questions from the audience.

>

>He also shared that he has family roots from Nebraska.

>

>Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: Jim Crouse
To: BdB
Cc: John Del Cecato; Klein, Monica
Subject: Re: WOWT: New York City Mayor Speaks at UNO
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 10:19:25 AM

The Omaha World Herald story looks better in print than online - great headline -

NYC's de Blasio Wants Leaders to Take a Stand on Income Inequality

I type e-mails quickly, sorry if there are any typos

> On Apr 16, 2015, at 8:10 AM, Bill de Blasio < wrote:
>
>
> I see what you mean about your local media, Jim. Hardly a storyteller, this guy... Monica, pls send the clip from the omaha newspaper -- if they bothered to cover the event
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Clips
> Subject: WOWT: New York City Mayor Speaks at UNO
> Sent: Apr 16, 2015 6:22 AM
>
> New York City Mayor Speaks at UNO
> WOWT - Alex Hassel
> <http://www.wowt.com/home/headlines/New-York-City-Mayor-Speaks-at-UNO-300005431.html>
>
> The leader of the largest city in America spoke in Omaha Wednesday night.
>
> UNO offered a warm welcome for New York City Mayor, Bill de Blasio, that evening.
>
> Income inequality was one of the major themes of de Blasio's lecture at the university.
>
> "Something happening in this country that defies our values as Americans, and undermines our security, and our stability, and our future: growing income inequality that undermines the very notion of the American dream, in a sense of this being a country for all," de Blasio said.
>
> After speaking, de Blasio took questions from the audience.
>
> He also shared that he has family roots from Nebraska.
>
> Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: John Del Cecato
To: Carey, Michael
Cc: @EO; Klein, Monica; Hagelgans, Andrea; Walzak, Phil
Subject: Re: SOP Thursday April 16
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 11:06:12 AM

#Abandoned

On Apr 16, 2015, at 10:02 AM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Mayor is at Drake on time.
We left JDC at hotel, but he is here soon.
Harking coming over.
Our good friends in the press are here — incl ny1

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 at 8:23 AM

To: "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Monica Klein <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: SOP Thursday April 16

Good Morning from Des Moines!

Local time 8:22 AM.

Mayor is at RON. And Awake!

MK - he is going for a walk soon so may call you for news if has not already.

From: Carey, Michael
To: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; @EO; Klein, Monica; Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: SOP Thursday April 16
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 1:15:37 PM

We departed drake
Sending over gaggle

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

On Apr 16, 2015, at 11:31 AM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Mayor on q and a from audience

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

On Apr 16, 2015, at 11:27 AM, Carey, Michael
<MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Mayor has concluded remarks as of 11:27 am ct

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

On Apr 16, 2015, at 10:46 AM, Carey, Michael
<MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Mayor has begun remarks at 1046 am ct

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

On Apr 16, 2015, at 10:38 AM, Carey, Michael
<MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Harkin is giving remarks as of 1038 AM
CT

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey

<mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 at 10:02 AM

To: Michael Carey

<mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO"

<EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Monica Klein

<MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans

<AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Phil Walzak

<PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato

<jfdc@akpdmedia.com>

Subject: Re: SOP Thursday April 16

Mayor is at Drake on time.

We left JDC at hotel, but he is here soon.

Harking coming over.

Our good friends in the press are here — incl ny1

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey

<mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 at 8:23 AM

To: "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Monica

Klein <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea

Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Phil

Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: SOP Thursday April 16

Good Morning from Des Moines!

Local time 8:22 AM.

Mayor is at RON. And Awake!

MK - he is going for a walk soon so may call you for news if has not already.

From: Hagelgans, Andrea
To: B; Walzak, Phil; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Wolfe, Emma; Williams, Dominic
Subject: RE: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 2:16:08 PM

We'll work on it.

From: B
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 1:57 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Fw: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

I strongly think we should attack here and say this will be a mistake for working people, for the nation and for the party. And we don't have enough info in the public debate to even know the consequences. This should be stopped and slowed. Dom and I just spoke and he can help with our statement

From: Clips
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 12:46 PM
Subject: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

NY TIMES - Jonathan Weisman

<http://www.nytimes.com/2015/04/17/business/obama-trade-legislation-fast-track-authority-trans-pacific-partnership.html?smid=tw-share>

The leaders of Congress's tax-writing committees neared agreement Thursday on legislation to give President Obama "fast-track" authority to negotiate an ambitious trade accord with 11 other Pacific nations, beginning what is sure to be one of the toughest legislative battles of his last 19 months in office.

The "trade promotion authority" bill — likely to be unveiled Thursday afternoon — would give Congress the power to vote on the Trans-Pacific Partnership once it is completed, but would deny lawmakers the chance to amend what would be the largest trade deal since the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Senator Orrin Hatch, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Representative Paul D. Ryan of Wisconsin, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, had to agree to stringent requirements for the trade deal to win over Senator Ron Wyden of Oregon, the ranking Democrat on the finance panel. Those requirements included a human rights negotiating objective that has never existed on trade agreements, according to lawmakers involved in the talks.

The legislation would also make any final trade agreement public for 60 days before the president signs it, and up to four months before Congress votes. If the agreement, negotiated by the United States Trade Representative, fails to meet the objectives laid out by Congress — on labor, environmental and human rights standards — a 60-vote majority in the Senate could shut off “fast-track” trade rules and open the deal to amendments.

“We got assurances that U.S.T.R. and the president will be negotiating within the parameters defined by Congress,” said Representative Dave Reichert, Republican of Washington and a senior member of the Ways and Means Committee. Referring to the trade promotion authority, he added: “And if those parameters are somehow or in some way violated during the negotiations, if we get a product that’s not adhering to the T.P.A. agreement, than we have switches where we can cut it off.”

Mr. Reichert said the Ways and Means Committee will formally draft the legislation next week.

Even with those concessions, the fight to get the trade promotion bill to the president’s desk will be difficult and emotional, badly dividing the Democratic Party’s labor base and putting Hillary Clinton in a quandary. Many prominent Democrats have come out against one of the biggest priorities of their president. Representative Sander Levin of Michigan, the ranking Democrat on the House Ways and Means Committee, who was notably absent from trade negotiations.

The A.F.L.-C.I.O. and virtually every major union have vowed a fierce fight, including a six-figure advertising campaign to pressure 16 selected senators and 36 House members to oppose trade promotion authority, the A.F.L.-C.I.O. announced Thursday.

“We can’t afford to pass fast track, which would lead to more lost jobs and lower wages. We want Congress to keep its leverage over trade negotiations — not rubber stamp a deal that delivers profits for global corporations, but not good jobs for working people,” said Richard Trumka, A.F.L.-C.I.O. president.

From: Stephanie Yazgi
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Wolfe, Emma; Agarwal, Nisha; James Freedland; Aaron Pickrell; John Del Cecato; Neal Kwatra
Subject: Re: Immigration Stakeholder Strategy Meeting w/ MBdB
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 4:23:44 PM
Attachments: APRIL 18 vision + agenda doc v2.docx

+NK

On Thu, Apr 16, 2015 at 4:17 PM, Stephanie Yazgi <[REDACTED]> wrote:

Folks:

I have attached the vision document and suggested talk points for MBdB, tick tock and agenda for the immigration stakeholder strategy meeting we are holding this Saturday at Brooklyn Public Library from 230PM to 4PM.

It is an intimate gathering of stakeholders in immigrant rights movement, but many are from unions or community organizations who also lead the fight on worker protections, raising wages, and other issues of income inequality.

While the focus is on immigration, we believe (and it was EW suggestion) that it is a great time to discuss some of the larger scale organizing efforts. We are collaborating with trusted allies to finalize this document but wanted to send to this group for more input.

Please review and let us know if you have suggestions for any piece- ESP MBdB role, remarks, questions.

Thank you,
Stephanie

IMMIGRATION RIGHTS MOVEMENT ROUNDTABLE

AREAS TO EXPLORE:

- Taking local action together; amplifying with allies across the country
- Making implementation meaningful for future organizing
- Using this moment to examine how immigration fits into larger struggles we are all working on (income equality, workers rights, etc.)

GOAL:

- Create a much needed space to have high level, political strategic conversations about state of play and trajectory of immigrant rights movement (consider meeting periodically going forward)
- Discuss strategies and tactics on executive action implementation that can serve our communities and position us for next phase of the fight
 - o Obtain general consensus about 1-2 actions we can take together?
 - o Be clear about what NYC's plan is to implement and prepare and how it will roll out (as much as can be shared) – to align the advocates around it to be supportive and get bounce
- Encourage members to think beyond the current moment towards a longer term strategy for winning on immigration reform and pathway to citizenship for all 11 million

TACTICS:

HONOR THE TIMELINE TACTIC

Implementation was supposed to start May 19/20, perhaps do something locally + nationally on this date as part of CUIA + community allies

OTHER POSSIBLE TACTICS + WAYS TO WORK TOGETHER OVER NEXT 6 MONTHS

TICK TOCK:

200 PM SY/CNA/ BM/ MHR/GSM Meet to set up room
GSM bringing water, table card tags
SY bringing hard candy, handouts

215PM PARICIPANTS BEGIN TO ARRIVE/ STAFF IN PLACE TO GREET AND GUIDE

230 PM WELCOME/ STATEMENT OF PURPOSE (CNA)

235 PM INTRODUCTIONS (ALL)

245 PM QUICK LOOK BACK (LG)

250 PM SOP w COURT CASE/ TIMELINES (PETER)

255 PM FRAMING/ POSE QUESTIONS (JV)

300PM MBdB ARRIVE/ REMARKS

- I have been focused on building a national, multi-dimensional, multi-issue progressive movement focused on closing the income inequality gap in this country.
- This is the conversation we should be having and you are the people who should be leading it because of your work, not just on immigration, on multiple issues with your various constituencies on the ground, so I'm glad we are gathered today and doing this work.
- More talk points on NATIONAL WORK.
- CHALLENGE THE GROUP TO WORK TO ANSWER FOLLOWING QUESTIONS:
What is the game plan on organizing around this issue? (not just implementation)
How does this issue fit into the bigger picture, multi-issue movement building?

315PM MBdB LEAVES

315PM CONTINUE CONVERSATION (JV/SY/CNA)

345PM RECAP/AGREEMENTS/ NEXT STEPS (SY)

4 PM ADJOURN MEETING/ PARTICIPANTS LEAVE
SY +IP SHARE AND COMPILE NOTES FOR PRESS READOUT

430PM PRESS READOUT RELEASED

10 GUIDING QUESTIONS

We will hold a candid and thought-provoking discussion on the future of the immigrant rights movement with a small group of strategists on Saturday. Please consider these questions in preparation for the immigration stakeholder roundtable discussion.

We look forward to your participation!

- 1) What actions can we take locally to move the national conversation on comprehensive immigration reform (CIR) forward?
- 2) What is our theory of change in engaging in the next phase of immigration reform?
- 3) Can we arrive on, and what is, a singular message as New York City activists and strategists that we can elevate as we find ourselves in rooms where we are discussing national strategy next steps on CIR?
- 4) How can we use allies in other cities, coupled with the Mayor's national organizing efforts, to get us to place that positions us well to influence Congress?
- 5) Can we benefit from mapping the overlap between Mayors who are in this with us, national groups' capacity, and states who are on the lawsuit against DAPA?
- 6) How do we work together to win the public conversation and create an environment that assumes that we will have a victory on executive action in court?
- 7) How do we turn our implementation work into a statement, which both protects the program, and positions us for future victories on CIR?
- 8) How do we define our next win?
- 9) What does the next phase of the national immigration rights organizing movement look like?
- 10) What is the timeline over the next 6-9 months on this and what are potential dates and moments that we can organize ourselves around?

From: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel
To: "Stephanie Yazgi"; Wolfe, Emma; Agarwal, Nisha; James Freedland; Aaron Pickrell; John Del Cecato
Subject: RE: Immigration Stakeholder Strategy Meeting w/ MBdB
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 4:36:00 PM

In addition to what Steph just sent around, our speechwriting team is finalizing a draft of Mayor's remarks. Will circulate for this team's input once I have.

From: Stephanie Yazgi [mailto:████████████████████]
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 4:18 PM
To: Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Wolfe, Emma; Agarwal, Nisha; James Freedland; Aaron Pickrell; John Del Cecato
Subject: Immigration Stakeholder Strategy Meeting w/ MBdB

Folks:

I have attached the vision document and suggested talk points for MBdB, tick tock and agenda for the immigration stakeholder strategy meeting we are holding this Saturday at Brooklyn Public Library from 230PM to 4PM.

It is an intimate gathering of stakeholders in immigrant rights movement, but many are from unions or community organizations who also lead the fight on worker protections, raising wages, and other issues of income inequality.

While the focus is on immigration, we believe (and it was EW suggestion) that it is a great time to discuss some of the larger scale organizing efforts. We are collaborating with trusted allies to finalize this document but wanted to send to this group for more input.

Please review and let us know if you have suggestions for any piece- ESP MBdB role, remarks, questions.

Thank you,
Stephanie

From: Leopold, Elana
To: "BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov" (BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov)
Cc: Carey, Michael; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: Valerie Jarrett is trying to reach you by phone
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 4:55:37 PM

She is in her office for the next several min. Best number is [REDACTED] Her assistant says you have been emailing and are familiar with the topic.

From: Carey, Michael
To: Carey, Michael; Walzak, Phil; @EO; Klein, Monica; Hagelgans, Andrea; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: SOP Thursday April 16
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 4:59:08 PM

We are back at hotel doing some TPA Calls.

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 at 11:27 AM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Monica Klein <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: SOP Thursday April 16

Mayor has concluded remarks as of 11:27 am ct

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

On Apr 16, 2015, at 10:46 AM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Mayor has begun remarks at 1046 am ct

Michael Paul Carey
City Hall
New York, New York

On Apr 16, 2015, at 10:38 AM, Carey, Michael <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

Harkin is giving remarks as of 1038 AM CT

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 at 10:02 AM
To: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Monica Klein <MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans <AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: SOP Thursday April 16

Mayor is at Drake on time.
We left JDC at hotel, but he is here soon.

Harking coming over.

Our good friends in the press are here — incl ny1

From: <Carey>, Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 at 8:23 AM

To: "@EO" <EO@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Monica Klein

<MKlein@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Andrea Hagelgans

<AHagelgans@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Phil Walzak <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov>

Subject: SOP Thursday April 16

Good Morning from Des Moines!

Local time 8:22 AM.

Mayor is at RON. And Awake!

MK - he is going for a walk soon so may call you for news if has not already.

From: Walzak, Phil
To: B; Hagelgans, Andrea; Kadushin, Peter; "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"
Subject: RE: SIA: Opinion: Where have you gone, Bill de Blasio?
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 5:53:24 PM

Yep workin on it

From: B
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 5:48 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Kadushin, Peter; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: Fw: SIA: Opinion: Where have you gone, Bill de Blasio?

I respect wrobleski a lot but boy does he miss the point. We need to change national policies to help our city, which means changing the national debate. Guys, could we pls get come validators out there to say this

From: Clips
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 04:20 PM
Subject: SIA: Opinion: Where have you gone, Bill de Blasio?

Opinion: Where have you gone, Bill de Blasio?

SI ADVANCE – Tom Wrobleski

http://www.silive.com/opinion/columns/index.ssf/2015/04/where_have_you_gone_bill_de_bl.html

Maybe Bill de Blasio wanted to give Hillary Clinton a chance to yell at him in person.

Why else would the mayor jet off to Iowa when there's plenty to keep him busy right here in New York City?

He does have a day job, after all.

De Blasio is on a two-day trip to Nebraska and Iowa, looking to make a name for himself as a national liberal, to push his progressive tax-the-rich agenda, and shove his own Democratic Party ever leftward.

Whatever happened to fixing the potholes, keeping mass transit running on time and making sure the trash gets picked up? Isn't that how the mayor of New York City is supposed to spend their time?

Iowa, of course, is home to the first-in-the-nation presidential caucuses. But if de Blasio has fever dreams of being presidential timber himself, he's in for a rude awakening. He can't even sell his agenda in true-blue New York without getting roadblocks thrown up. How is he going to make Middle America buy in?

The trip comes at an interesting time for de Blasio, seeing as he just showed the back of his hand to Mrs. Clinton and all her Democratic supporters by refusing to knee-jerk endorse Hillary's bid for the presidency.

Not that we should weep for Hillary just because somebody wouldn't genuflect to the inevitability of her coronation. But it was the Clintons who brung de Blasio to the party in the first place. He had a job in President Bill Clinton's administration, and ran Hillary's 2000 U.S. Senate campaign here in New York.

Even in politics there is supposed to be a speck of honor among all the backbiting. You don't show such open disloyalty.

But de Blasio is beholden to the Working Families Party, and the WFP is among those pushing U.S. Sen. Elizabeth Warren of Massachusetts to challenge Hillary in the primaries. So the mayor chooses one over the other. Maybe de Blasio is hoping for a veep spot on Ms. Warren's voyage if she ever does take the plunge.

And Hillary has been in Iowa in recent days. A shame they didn't meet up at a Chipotle somewhere on the road. They could have settled their differences over a couple of chicken bowls. De Blasio could have made nice by offering to pay.

But heaven help him if Hillary and Bill win through and start moving furniture back into the White House. De Blasio can expect to have his name near the top of the enemies list. He'll have to buy a ticket to get in the door.

Being mayor of the City of New York is a fulltime, 24/7 job.

This week alone we've had the City Council present its budget plan. We had an anti-police demonstration that shut down the Brooklyn Bridge; two cops were assaulted. We have a lunar landscape of potholes that need filling on the Island. Our crumbling roads need to be resurfaced.

On her Facebook page, State Sen. Diane Savino (D-North Shore/Brooklyn) also took a shot at de Blasio for being outta town.

They don't call it "the city that never sleeps" for nothing. It's not a springboard to be used to further your own political agenda. If you're looking to have enough free time to jet around the country and raise your own profile, it may not be the gig for you.

Bill de Blasio, you're needed at home.

From: B
To: "jfdc@akpdmedia.com"; Walzak, Phil
Cc: Williams, Dominic; Wolfe, Emma; Carey, Michael; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 7:58:08 PM

Then hold off and let's assess in the AM

From: John Del Cecato [<mailto:jfdc@akpdmedia.com>]
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 05:37 PM
To: Walzak, Phil
Cc: Williams, Dominic; B; Wolfe, Emma; Carey, Michael; Hagelgans, Andrea
Subject: Re: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

Agreed

On Apr 16, 2015, at 5:24 PM, Walzak, Phil <PWalzak@cityhall.nyc.gov> wrote:

I like waiting on this to provide some separation from the TPA stuff we are doing now

From: Williams, Dominic
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 6:24 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; B; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Carey, Michael; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: Re: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

There is time to gather more information - we will have space to hit as the bill moves.

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 06:10 PM
To: B; Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Carey, Michael; Williams, Dominic; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com' <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: RE: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

Looks like Congress still needs to vote on it – could be a window there to hit this

The “trade promotion authority” bill — likely to be unveiled Thursday afternoon — would give Congress the power to vote on the Trans-Pacific Partnership once it is completed, but would deny lawmakers the chance to amend what would be the largest trade deal since the North American Free Trade Agreement.

From: B
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 6:09 PM
To: Wolfe, Emma
Cc: Carey, Michael; Williams, Dominic; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'
Subject: Re: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

If there's time to hold off comment, I'm happy to hold off. Dom/JDC, what say you?

From: Wolfe, Emma
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 04:52 PM
To: B
Cc: Carey, Michael
Subject: RE: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

Fwiw, I am a dissenter on doing this today.

From: Walzak, Phil
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 5:38 PM
To: Spitalnick, Amy (OMB); B
Cc: Williams, Dominic; Shorris, Anthony; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; Carey, Michael Subject: RE: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

+MPC

From: Spitalnick, Amy (OMB) [<mailto:SpitalnickA@omb.nyc.gov>]
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 5:17 PM
To: B
Cc: Walzak, Phil; Williams, Dominic; Shorris, Anthony; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: RE: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

Sir – see below for a draft statement on TPA:

The Trade Promotion Authority introduced today lacks the vital oversight and public debate that's necessary to protect working families and our economy. I'm deeply concerned about this deal's impact on jobs, wages, and basic safety and environmental standards – and ramming it through Congress would be a mistake for working people and for our country. With so much at stake, I urge Congress to slow this down.

From: B

Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 1:57 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; 'jfdc@akpdmedia.com'; Wolfe, Emma; Williams, Dominic
Subject: Fw: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

I strongly think we should attack here and say this will be a mistake for working people, for the nation and for the party. And we don't have enough info in the public debate to even know the consequences. This should be stopped and slowed. Dom and I just spoke and he can help with our statement

From: Clips
Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 12:46 PM
Subject: NYT: Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

Lawmakers Near Deal to Give Obama Fast-Track Authority on Trade Pact

NY TIMES - Jonathan Weisman

<http://www.nytimes.com/2015/04/17/business/obama-trade-legislation-fast-track-authority-trans-pacific-partnership.html?smid=tw-share>

The leaders of Congress's tax-writing committees neared agreement Thursday on legislation to give President Obama "fast-track" authority to negotiate an ambitious trade accord with 11 other Pacific nations, beginning what is sure to be one of the toughest legislative battles of his last 19 months in office.

The "trade promotion authority" bill — likely to be unveiled Thursday afternoon — would give Congress the power to vote on the Trans-Pacific Partnership once it is completed, but would deny lawmakers the chance to amend what would be the largest trade deal since the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Senator Orrin Hatch, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Representative Paul D. Ryan of Wisconsin, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, had to agree to stringent requirements for the trade deal to win over Senator Ron Wyden of Oregon, the ranking Democrat on the finance panel. Those requirements included a human rights negotiating objective that has never existed on trade agreements, according to lawmakers involved in the talks.

The legislation would also make any final trade agreement public for 60 days before the president signs it, and up to four months before Congress votes. If the agreement, negotiated by the United States Trade Representative, fails to meet the objectives laid out by Congress — on labor, environmental and human rights standards — a 60-vote majority in the Senate could shut off "fast-track" trade rules and open the deal to amendments.

"We got assurances that U.S.T.R. and the president will be negotiating within the parameters defined by Congress,” said Representative Dave Reichert, Republican of Washington and a senior member of the Ways and Means Committee. Referring to the trade promotion authority, he added: “And if those parameters are somehow or in some way violated during the negotiations, if we get a product that’s not adhering to the T.P.A. agreement, than we have switches where we can cut it off.”

Mr. Reichert said the Ways and Means Committee will formally draft the legislation next week.

Even with those concessions, the fight to get the trade promotion bill to the president’s desk will be difficult and emotional, badly dividing the Democratic Party’s labor base and putting Hillary Clinton in a quandary. Many prominent Democrats have come out against one of the biggest priorities of their president. Representative Sander Levin of Michigan, the ranking Democrat on the House Ways and Means Committee, who was notably absent from trade negotiations.

The A.F.L.-C.I.O. and virtually every major union have vowed a fierce fight, including a six-figure advertising campaign to pressure 16 selected senators and 36 House members to oppose trade promotion authority, the A.F.L.-C.I.O. announced Thursday.

“We can’t afford to pass fast track, which would lead to more lost jobs and lower wages. We want Congress to keep its leverage over trade negotiations — not rubber stamp a deal that delivers profits for global corporations, but not good jobs for working people,” said Richard Trumka, A.F.L.-C.I.O. president.

From: Carey, Michael
To: Stephanie Yazgi; John Del Cecato
Cc: Aaron Pickrell
Subject: Re: FYI
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 8:43:34 AM

13th is a go for your email to USCOM

From: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]>
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 at 10:25 AM
To: John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Cc: Michael Carey <mpcarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Aaron Pickrell <[REDACTED]>
Subject: Re: FYI

Backstory:

we are trying to get a) critical mass of mayors and b) uscm buy in and needs met

i think we have settled on 13th... will confirm with you later but we will need some time on evening of may 12th (likely) if that is possible talking to pick at 430PM more

thanks all

On Thu, Apr 16, 2015 at 10:46 AM, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com> wrote:

Adding pick

From: Stephanie Yazgi <[REDACTED]>
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 at 8:46 AM
To: "Carey, Michael" <MPCarey@cityhall.nyc.gov>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: FYI

FYI

we are NOT 100% settled on the plan for DC as of yet- having a slight prob so keep you posted but may have to do 12th instead trying to find best date for critical mass of mayors

On Thu, Apr 16, 2015 at 9:45 AM, Stephanie Yazgi <[REDACTED]> wrote:

we are NOT 100% settled on the plan for DC as of yet- having a slight prob so keep you posted

From: Agarwal, Nisha
To: Aaron Pickrell; Stephanie Yazgi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Wolfe, Emma; James Freedland; John Del Cecato
Subject: RE: Immigration Stakeholder Strategy Meeting w/ MBdB
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 9:28:00 AM

This is great. Steph – do you have the pen to incorporate into remarks draft? Should I?

Nisha Agarwal | Commissioner
NYC Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs
p: (212) 788-7654 | nyc.gov/immigrants

For scheduling requests, please cc Marie-Fatima Hyacinthe: mhyacinthe@cityhall.nyc.gov

From: Aaron Pickrell [mailto:████████████████████]
Sent: Friday, April 17, 2015 8:28 AM
To: Stephanie Yazgi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Wolfe, Emma; Agarwal, Nisha; James Freedland; John Del Cecato
Subject: Re: Immigration Stakeholder Strategy Meeting w/ MBdB

JDC can chime in here if I am missing anything, but if it is possible to mark with the NYC folks that MBdB is doing some national work to elevate attention around income inequality and we want to make sure their national colleagues are aware/involved, that would be great

Few points:

- Income inequality and the efforts to address the root causes are tied into everything we do as progressives – including working on immigration reform
- In order to address these issues, we can't tweak around the edges – we need to demand big, bold change
- MBdB will be helping organize an event in DC in early May to lay out a set of progressive principles that we think leaders and potential leaders need to address
- As this event gets more solidified, we want to work with the attendees national organizations to make sure they know about it and drive people to attend. We want Mary Kay Henry to attend, Janet Murguia with NCLR, etc

Is this helpful?

From: Stephanie Yazgi <████████████████████>
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 at 4:17 PM
To: Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <gschnakemahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Emma Mw <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Agarwal, Nisha" <NAgarwal@cityhall.nyc.gov>, James Freedland <████████████████████>, AARON PICKRELL <████████████████████>, John Del Cecato <jfdc@akpdmmedia.com>
Subject: Immigration Stakeholder Strategy Meeting w/ MBdB

Folks:

I have attached the vision document and suggested talk points for MBdB, tick tock and agenda for the immigration stakeholder strategy meeting we are holding this Saturday at Brooklyn Public Library from 230PM to 4PM.

It is an intimate gathering of stakeholders in immigrant rights movement, but many are from unions or community organizations who also lead the fight on worker protections, raising wages, and other issues of income inequality.

While the focus is on immigration, we believe (and it was EW suggestion) that it is a great time to discuss some of the larger scale organizing efforts. We are collaborating with trusted allies to finalize this document but wanted to send to this group for more input.

Please review and let us know if you have suggestions for any piece- ESP MBdB role, remarks, questions.

Thank you,
Stephanie

From: John Del Cecato
To: Aaron Pickrell; Stephanie Yazgi; Schnake-Mahl, Gabriel; Wolfe, Emma; Agarwal, Nisha; James Freedland
Subject: Re: Immigration Stakeholder Strategy Meeting w/ MBdB
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 9:34:40 AM

Yes indeed... Need lots of mayors to sign onto our Progressive Contract

From: Aaron PickrellEmail <[REDACTED]>
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 at 7:28 AM
To: Stephanie Yazgi <[REDACTED]> Gabriel Schnake-Mahl
<gschnakemahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Emma Mw <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Agarwal, Nisha"
<NAgarwal@cityhall.nyc.gov>, James Freedland <[REDACTED]> John Del Cecato
<jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Re: Immigration Stakeholder Strategy Meeting w/ MBdB

JDC can chime in here if I am missing anything, but if it is possible to mark with the NYC folks that MBDB is doing some national work to elevate attention around income inequality and we want to make sure their national colleagues are aware/involved, that would be great

Few points:

- Income inequality and the efforts to address the root causes are tied into everything we do as progressives – including working on immigration reform
- In order to address these issues, we can't tweak around the edges – we need to demand big, bold change
- MBDB will be helping organize an event in DC in early May to lay out a set of progressive principles that we think leaders and potential leaders need to address
- As this event gets more solidified, we want to work with the attendees national organizations to make sure they know about it and drive people to attend. We want Mary Kay Henry to attend, Janet Murguia with NCLR, etc

Is this helpful?

From: Stephanie Yazgi <[REDACTED]>
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2015 at 4:17 PM
To: Gabriel Schnake-Mahl <gschnakemahl@cityhall.nyc.gov>, Emma Mw <EWolfe@cityhall.nyc.gov>, "Agarwal, Nisha" <NAgarwal@cityhall.nyc.gov>, James Freedland
<[REDACTED]> AARON PICKRELL <[REDACTED]> John Del Cecato
<jfdc@akpdmedia.com>
Subject: Immigration Stakeholder Strategy Meeting w/ MBdB

Folks:

I have attached the vision document and suggested talk points for MBdB, tick tock and agenda for the immigration stakeholder strategy meeting we are holding this Saturday at Brooklyn Public Library from 230PM to 4PM.

It is an intimate gathering of stakeholders in immigrant rights movement, but many are from unions or community organizations who also lead the fight on worker protections, raising wages, and other issues of income inequality.

While the focus is on immigration, we believe (and it was EW suggestion) that it is a great time to discuss some of the larger scale organizing efforts. We are collaborating with trusted allies to finalize this document but wanted to send to this group for more input.

Please review and let us know if you have suggestions for any piece- ESP MBdB role, remarks, questions.

Thank you,
Stephanie

From: Klein, Monica
To: B
Cc: John Del Cecato
Subject: HRC on CEOs
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 9:52:00 AM

HRC's inequality quote and a snapshot of the coverage:

"I think it's fair to say that if you look across the country, the deck is stacked in favor of those already at the top," she said at a roundtable in an auto tech lab at Kirkwood Community College. "There's something wrong when CEOs make 300 times more than the American worker ... There's something wrong when American workers keep getting more productive ... but that productivity is not matched in their paychecks."

Hillary Clinton Comes Out Swinging at CEOs and Hedge Fund Managers

BLOOMBERG – Jennifer Epstein – April 14, 2015

Hillary Clinton launched her presidential campaign here Tuesday with aggressive attacks on the financial system as she offered broad strokes of her case for running at her first formal event. "I think it's fair to say that if you look across the country, the deck is stacked in favor of those already at the top," she said at a roundtable in an auto tech lab at Kirkwood Community College. "There's something wrong when CEOs make 300 times more than the American worker ... There's something wrong when American workers keep getting more productive ... but that productivity is not matched in their paychecks." And, the former secretary of state continued, "there's something wrong when hedge fund managers pay less in taxes than nurses or the truckers I saw on I-80" while driving from New York to Iowa over the past two days.

Hillary Clinton surprises with early attack on CEO pay

REUTERS – Staff – April 13, 2015

Hillary Clinton, under pressure from the left wing of her Democratic Party to aggressively campaign against income inequality, voiced concern about the hefty paychecks of some corporate executives in an email to supporters. Striking a populist note, Clinton, who announced on Sunday she was running for president in 2016, said American families were still facing financial hardship at a time "when the average CEO makes about 300 times what the average worker makes."

Hillary Clinton's Wall Street backers: We get it

POLITICO – Gabriel Debenedetti, Kenneth Vogel, Ben White – April 14, 2015

Hillary Clinton sounded like a woman on a mission after her long drive into the heartland: "There's something wrong," she told Iowans on Tuesday, when "hedge fund managers pay lower taxes than nurses or the truckers I saw on I-80 when I was driving here over the last two days." But back in Manhattan, the hedge fund managers who've long been part of her political and fundraising networks aren't sweating the putdown and aren't worrying about their take-home pay just yet.

Hillary Clinton Backs Worker Protests For Higher Minimum Wage

HUFFINGTON POST – Sam Levine – April 15, 2015

Former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton tweeted her support of low-wage workers who demonstrated across the country and demanded a $15 minimum wage on Wednesday. Clinton, who has highlighted income inequality as an issue she wants to focus on since launching her presidential campaign on Sunday, said that workers shouldn't have to march in the streets for living wages. The widespread demonstrations on Wednesday for higher wages were part of an effort to turn the campaign for higher wages into a larger social justice movement. Tens of thousands of people in more than 200 cities around the country took to the streets to call for a boost in wages, many walking out of their jobs. On Tuesday, The New York Times noted while Clinton has endorsed raising the minimum wage, she has been vague on how quickly she wants to raise it and exactly how high it should be.

Opinion: Can Hillary Clinton manage those rowdy populists?

CHICAGO TRIBUNE – Katrina vanden Heuvel – April 14, 2015

Hillary Clinton's decision to "go small" by formally announcing her presidential campaign in a video, before heading off for "intimate" meetings in Iowa, touched off saturation national press coverage that other contenders can only envy. The former first lady, former senator, former presidential contender, former secretary of state has been in the public eye for nearly a quarter of a century. She's the prohibitive favorite to get the Democratic Party nomination this time, and odds-on to win the presidency.

... Some pundits suggest 2016 will be a foreign policy election. Some Democrats are tempted to turn it into a culture clash, since Republicans are now on the wrong side of a growing range of concerns — gays, women, immigrants, voting rights and global warming. But as Clinton's campaign acknowledges, the central question is still about the economy: how to make this economy work for working people once more, to rebuild a broad middle class, increase wages and reduce income inequality. Here, although Clinton has been in the public eye for decades, her views are largely unknown, if not unformed.

In Iowa, Clinton Vows to Tackle Campaign Finance Reform, Income Inequality

NBC – Carrie Dann

In her opening campaign event of the 2016 presidential race, Hillary Clinton on Tuesday laid out four primary "fights" she's focused on during her presidential run, including eliminating "unaccountable money" from America's political system, even if it requires a constitutional amendment.

... "I think it's fair to say that as you look across the country, the deck is still stacked in favor of those already at the top," she said. "And there's something wrong with that. There's something wrong when CEOs make 300 times more than the typical worker."

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\); [REDACTED]
Subject: FW: WSJ: Q & A: Bill de Blasio on Hillary Clinton and the 2016 Presidential Campaign
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 10:44:20 AM

From: Clips
Sent: Friday, April 17, 2015 10:41 AM
Subject: WSJ: Q & A: Bill de Blasio on Hillary Clinton and the 2016 Presidential Campaign

Q & A: Bill de Blasio on Hillary Clinton and the 2016 Presidential Campaign

WSJ - Michael Saul - 9:16 am

<http://blogs.wsj.com/metropolis/2015/04/17/q-a-bill-de-blasio-on-hillary-clinton-and-the-2016-presidential-campaign/>

Mayor Bill de Blasio plans Friday to return to New York City after visiting two Midwest cities this week in hopes of placing the issue of income inequality at the forefront of the national political debate and the 2016 elections.

Mr. de Blasio, a liberal Democrat, sparked criticism earlier in the week when he declined to endorse immediately Democratic presidential hopeful Hillary Clinton, the mayor's former boss and mentor. In Iowa on Thursday, he criticized members of both parties, including President Barack Obama, a fellow Democrat, for failing, in his view, to address the crisis of income inequality.

The mayor insisted he harbors no ambition of running for national office, saying repeatedly that his only political goal is to win re-election in New York in 2017. In the meantime, though, Mr. de Blasio aspires to be the face of the progressive movement nationwide. He plans to visit Wisconsin later this month and Washington in May.

Before leaving Iowa, home of the first-in-the-nation presidential nominating contest, Mr. de Blasio agreed to a brief interview with The Wall Street Journal. An aide disallowed any questions unrelated to the mayor's Midwest trip.

A lightly edited transcript of the conversation follows:

WSJ: Do you plan to endorse a presidential candidate before Iowa launches the nominating contest early next year?

Mayor: You know how I feel about hypothetical questions.

WSJ: It's not a hypothetical question.

Mayor: It is a hypothetical question.

WSJ: It isn't. The people of Iowa may want to know.

Mayor: I think the people of Iowa, to the extent they're interested, just want to hear about the issues. And, so, this is about the process. Look, this is the very beginning. Obviously, we're just now having candidates declare. There's time on the clock to have a real conversation. But we have to have the real conversation. So, I don't have a set timeline. I want to hear a vision, and that's when I'll respond. It's as simple as that.

WSJ: You said earlier that you have been "beating the drum for quite a while" with Mrs. Clinton and her team on progressive issues. So, what response are you getting from Mrs. Clinton? Are they not okay with the tax plan you're proposing?

Mayor: I think the best way to gauge their response is what they say as she unfolds her campaign. I'm not going to speak for them. I'm not going to paraphrase private conversations. I presented my view in a lot of different ways. Obviously, I've also presented my view in terms of the things I'm talking about more broadly. And you can judge a campaign, you can judge a candidate about what they decide to put forward. She's started out now, just days. Let's see what she decides is her platform. That's what we'll judge by.

WSJ: Can you talk about any sort of back-and-forth you've had with Mrs. Clinton and her team over any of these policy proposals?

Mayor: No, I can't — private conversations. I want to respect that.

WSJ: But you are, obviously, calling on these candidates to adopt the policy prescriptions you outlined in Omaha and Iowa?

Mayor: Yes, I am.

WSJ: Who, other than Mrs. Clinton, do you think is interesting as a potential Democratic presidential nominee?

Mayor: I'm not interested in the horse-race dynamic because right now I think, you know, people have to decide if they want to be a candidate. If they want to be a candidate, then they have to put forward a vision. So, from my point of view, there's a group of people out there, there's a fairly small number of people, they have to make their decisions. Then, we can weigh them. But, look, obviously, the relationship that I have, by far, is the closest with Hillary Clinton. And I look forward to continuing the dialogue.

WSJ: But there are no potential candidates you can point to as somebody who you think has done a good job?

Mayor: Respectfully, I'm not interested in the comparative dynamic around people who might be candidates. People have to decide if they want to be candidates. If they want to be candidates, we'll have a discussion of comparative merits once they put their visions forward.

WSJ: You talked about the hyper-concentration of wealth and said it's un-American. Your predecessor as mayor, Michael Bloomberg, is very wealthy. Does he fit into that column?

Mayor: I think the reality of our society is we veered away from our values. He certainly was a beneficiary of that dynamic. But, look, I think we have to separate the individuals, where everyone knows I have my agreements and disagreements with Michael Bloomberg. Some things he did I could not be more positive about as mayor — public health and environment, some of the work he's done philanthropically and certainly what he's done on climate change. But that's a different matter than whether our system is right and whether our overall dynamics as a country are right. I think, at this moment, there's a lot of very, very wealthy people, and they should be as concerned as I am that we're going in the wrong direction. They should be doing more to address it, too. That's part of why when I spoke at the (Association for a Better New York), I said I'm calling on business leaders to step forward and raise the wages and benefits in their companies. I'm calling upon folks in the finance industry to use their influence and their power to convince firms that they invest in to start raising wages and benefits. As I said, it's like there's an iceberg up ahead and it's plainly visible. And it's amazing how few people are willing to act on it, and that's at our peril. So, Michael Bloomberg and a lot of other people could certainly have a big impact here.

WSJ: Some Democrats are shaking their heads around the wait-and-see approach surrounding Mrs. Clinton and the rhetoric surrounding your income-inequality push. They point to your failure to turn the state Senate to Democratic control, and your poll ratings showing fewer than 50% of voters think you're doing a good job. Are you concerned that some Democrats feel you're being disloyal?

Mayor: No. You named some interest facts but they're all, in my view, singular. I'm very proud of what we did last year in terms of the state Senate. What happened as a result was a change of a few seats I wish had gone the other way. But it was a very small defeat in the scheme of things, and the progressive movement will be back in 2016. I feel very good about my standing with the people of New York City, and I think we're moving the agenda, and people know it. And I think it's important to address these issues head on. I think it's absolutely consistent. By the way, I think it's necessary for the future of New York City that these federal policies change. The fact that we have such a broken system and the fact that we have not addressed these issues nationally is hurting the people of New York City....I think there's a working majority in this country that believes in making these changes, but they have to be activated and energized. I think that's what leaders are supposed to do.

From: Klein, Monica
To: B
Cc: John Del Cecato; Kadushin, Peter; Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Williams, Dominic
Subject: SQF - current data
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 10:45:51 AM

There are currently two positive results of a SQF that we have empirical data on— a summons and an arrest. There may be a third positive result that PD does not yet have empirical data on. We are working with PD on this.

In 2014, 3% (1,221) of the stops resulted in a summons and 15% (6,963) resulted in an arrest

In 2013, 4% (6,896) of the stops resulted in a summons and 8% (15,410) resulted in an arrest.

If you look at arrest + summons, it's 18% vs 12% 2014 vs 2013.

The percentage of SQF that resulted in arrests increased by about 50% (from 8% in 2013 to 15% in 2014)

The percentage of SQF that resulted in summons decreased by about a quarter percent (from 4% in 2013 to 3% in 2014).

Our rec response is below:

Stops now are yielding more arrests and summonses than they did in 2013 and in 2011 – the peak of S/F. This suggests better stops being made by police. We still have a ways to go, but with our retraining and our reforms, I'm confident these numbers will continue to move in the right direction, and we can minimize the toxic impact S/F has had in police – community relations. We have dramatically reduced the number of total stops, and by increasing the quality of stops, we can better keep communities safe AND bring police and community closer together.

From: Klein, Monica
To: B
Cc: John Del Cecato
Subject: HRC Iowa coverage
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 11:01:00 AM

Hillary Clinton Re-emerges, by Design (but Also by Surprise)

NY TIMES - Patrick Healy, Maggie Hagerman – April 16, 2015

<http://www.nytimes.com/2015/04/17/us/politics/the-hillary-clinton-reboot-both-off-the-cuff-and-meticulously-planned.html>

Did you hear the one about the presidential candidate who walks into a Chipotle restaurant in Ohio? She orders a burrito bowl and makes headlines worldwide.

If you did not get the joke, you might not be a student of Hillary Rodham Clinton, perhaps one of the most overly cautious and controlled politicians of the modern era.

The punch line: After 25 years in the public eye, Mrs. Clinton has suddenly developed the capacity to surprise.

Cable television has not been able to get enough of Mrs. Clinton this week, treating her pit stops and political events in the Midwest like breaking news that requires hours of after-action analysis. Everyday-American Hillary has felt like a cultural phenomenon at times — not so much as hope-and-change Barack Obama became in 2007 and 2008, but far more than she ever was during their fight for the Democratic nomination.

One factor is that Mrs. Clinton has hired some of the best brains from Mr. Obama's operation for her own and appears to be blending their creativity with her ideas on travel logistics and campaign events that are geared more toward voters than the news media circus.

Among the Obama aides who have joined her team are Teddy Goff, who worked for Mr. Obama in the 2008 campaign and was his digital director for the 2012 election. Mr. Goff, a 29-year-old who has earned praise for his instincts about what online material will go viral, was one of several architects of the video Mrs. Clinton released on Sunday, which has received high marks from many Democrats and some Republicans for its focus on everyday Americans getting ready for changes.

Mr. Goff's squad of digital experts shot the video, and he worked on it closely with Mrs. Clinton's media adviser, Jim Margolis, and her senior strategist, Joel Benenson, who are also veterans of the Obama operation, as well as with Mrs. Clinton's longtime media consultant Mandy Grunwald.

In other words, Mrs. Clinton turned over the video — her all-important first attempt at reintroducing herself as a political figure — to a team including three people with whom she had never worked before. It was a display of trust and a desire for new thinking, including giving herself the room to roam conceptually, that she has not shown in a meaningful way since her first campaign for the Senate, in 2000.

“Her loss in the 2008 campaign really liberated her in the end: to be less guarded, to try new things, to just put herself out there more for people to see, for better or for worse,” said Geoff Garin, Mrs. Clinton's political strategist in the final months of her first presidential race. “She's starting now with that same kind of liberation, and she has a team who knows how to work with it.”

(The rollout was not without a hitch: Mrs. Clinton, who was criticized in the 2008 campaign for claiming, inaccurately, that she had dodged sniper fire in Bosnia, said on the second day of her Iowa visit that all of her grandparents were immigrants. According to a BuzzFeed report, only one of them was — her grandfather Hugh Rodham Sr.)

While some aspects of Mrs. Clinton's campaign reboot have seemed more spontaneous than might be expected of a politician with Secret Service protection, others are the product of prodigious planning.

Roughly three weeks ago, Robby Mook, Mrs. Clinton's campaign manager — who was an operative in her 2008 campaign but is not a longtime Clinton hand — started holding a nightly meeting of aides to figure out the mechanics of the rollout of her candidacy.

Mrs. Clinton had chosen to visit Iowa first, according to numerous people working with the campaign, as a way to conquer whatever demons remained from her loss there to Mr. Obama.

But at a meeting to discuss the dates and times, Mrs. Clinton surprised her aides by announcing, "I want to drive there," her longtime aide Huma Abedin recalled Monday afternoon on a conference call with top donors.

"Seriously?" Ms. Abedin recalled saying in disbelief.

"Seriously," Mrs. Clinton replied, Ms. Abedin told the donors.

She explained that driving would allow her to stop and meet people, and to arrive in Iowa in low-key fashion, according to two people briefed on the discussions. The alternative — descending from a plane, like a visiting dignitary — could play into Republican suggestions that Democrats were holding more of a coronation than a nominating contest.

Stopping at Chipotle, however, was not chewed over in advance, a senior campaign aide said.

The Iowa campaign events held fewer surprises, and were closer to Mrs. Clinton's comfort zone: talking about policy (education on Tuesday, business and economic issues on Wednesday) with small groups of people whose concerns matched up with hers.

Yet because the gatherings were intended to be small, some Iowa Democrats were disappointed to miss meeting her.

"I expected her to at least greet a crowd of people or find a way to welcome a big group of well-wishers, but the campaign told us that they didn't want anything looking like a rally," said Arlie Willems, the Democratic Party chairwoman in Jones County, where Mrs. Clinton held Tuesday's event at a community college.

Whether Mrs. Clinton can continue to surprise when the events become larger and the klieg lights grow hotter is an open question. "The style of campaigning and message will be tested over time, but the tone and humility of the launch has been very much what she needed to do," said David Axelrod, a longtime adviser to Mr. Obama and an architect of his presidential campaigns.

It also remains to be seen, given Mrs. Clinton's influences and coterie of advisers, whom she will take after more: Mr. Obama, or another phenom of modern-day political history.

David Winston, a Republican pollster, said Mrs. Clinton this week called to mind the Bill Clinton of 1991 and 1992, when one of his presidential campaign slogans was "Putting People First."

“Her 2008 campaign was so much about her — ‘Let’s start a conversation. Don’t you want to talk about me?’ — and now it’s ‘Let’s talk about you,’ ” Mr. Winston said. “That may surprise people, but the challenge will be how close she wants to be identified with President Obama. She has a lot of Obama people on her team. She was in his administration. But she can create distance from him? That would be very hard, and surprising.”

Hillary Clinton and the Democrats’ Inequality Agenda

NEW YORKER - John Cassidy – April 13, 2015

<http://www.newyorker.com/news/john-cassidy/hillary-clinton-and-the-democrats-inequality-agenda>

Following his appearance on NBC’s “Meet the Press” over the weekend, when he declined to offer a full endorsement of Hillary Clinton’s Presidential campaign bid, Mayor Bill de Blasio found himself on the front of New York City’s tabloids on Monday. “STABBED IN DE BACK,” blared the Daily News. The Post ran with “HILL’S FURY” and the subhead “Blaz won’t endorse as prez run official.”

As a former newspaper headline writer, I could admire the “DE BACK” formulation, but I was also keen to read what de Blasio had actually said. He turned out to have described Clinton as “a tremendous public servant” and “one of the most qualified people ever to run for this office.” But unlike New York’s two Democratic senators, Charles Schumer and Kirsten Gillibrand, as well as Governor Andrew Cuomo, de Blasio declined the opportunity to issue a full public endorsement of Clinton’s candidacy, saying, “We need to see the substance.”

Coming from a politician who served in Bill Clinton’s Administration and who helped to run Hillary’s successful campaign for Senate in 2000, these comments were a bit surprising, especially since they were spoken a few hours before Hillary’s official announcement. I am sure they irked some people in the Clinton camp. But before we extrapolate this story into a major breach between Hillary and the progressive wing of the Democratic Party, it’s worth looking in a bit more detail at the economic issues that might divide the two sides.

“I think progressives all over the country, I think everyday Americans are demanding that their candidates—the President and every other level—really say that we have a plan that we can believe in for addressing income inequality,” de Blasio said, in explaining his wait-and-see attitude. “It has to include increases in wages and benefits. It has to include the willingness to tax the wealthy so we can invest in infrastructure, so we can invest in education.”

This statement was certainly more specific than what Clinton offered in the video she released to announce her candidacy, in which she says, “Americans have fought their way back from tough economic times. But the deck is still stacked in favor of those at the top. Everyday Americans need a champion.” But in identifying the very rich as the beneficiaries of unfair circumstances rather than of individual enterprise and hard work, and in prioritizing the material circumstances of the middle class, Clinton was clearly pitching her tent on the same turf occupied by progressives like de Blasio and Massachusetts Senator Elizabeth Warren.

The question, of course, is whether Clinton’s words were just talk. De Blasio was well within his rights to take a noncommittal attitude—indeed, his progressive supporters would have demanded no less. Traditionally, the Clinton wing of the Democratic Party has emphasized promoting “opportunity” over reducing inequality. As Lawrence Mishel, the president of the liberal Economic Policy Institute, pointed out in a blog post last week, that approach has sometimes enabled centrist Democrats to “avoid confronting the top 1 percent’s capture of the lion’s share of income growth. After all, addressing runaway executive pay and a runaway financial sector—the main causes of the top 1 percent’s income gains—smacks of redistribution; and besides, those folks are their donor base.” With Hillary and her staff about to hit up hedge-fund managers, investment bankers, tech moguls, and other rich folks for hefty campaign contributions, the suspicion lingers that, when it comes down to it, her campaign will punt, rather than directly confront, the entrenched problems of income and wealth inequality.

On the other hand, the political center of gravity has shifted in the Democratic Party, and there are reasons to hope that Clinton will embrace a more progressive, far-reaching agenda than anything that her husband and his fellow New Democrats would have endorsed in the nineteen-nineties. Since the financial crisis and the Great Recession, which were widely perceived to have been the work of Wall Street, inequality and wage stagnation have come to dominate the policy agenda in a way that they didn’t a decade ago. Even in what used to be called the Rubinite wing of the Party, after former Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin, there is a widespread recognition that something more is necessary.

Earlier this year, for instance, the Center for American Progress, a Washington think tank created by John Podesta, Hillary’s campaign manager, issued a lengthy report devoted to the subject of “inclusive prosperity.” It was put together by a commission of economists and policy experts led by Larry Summers, the former Treasury Secretary, and Ed Balls, the senior economic spokesman for the British Labour Party. During the nineties, Summers and Balls were both supporters of a “third way” approach to economic policy, which emphasized deregulation and the power of markets. Today their primary concern is coming up with policies designed to raise wages and ameliorate rising inequality.

Some of the proposals in the C.A.P. report were familiar. The commission called for a rise in the minimum wage and an expansion of the Earned Income Tax Credit program, which provides cash subsidies to low-wage workers. These are both good ideas, and ones that the Obama Administration has also championed. But what was novel, and potentially costly, in the report was the idea of providing temporary wage subsidies to working households that earn as much as eighty or ninety thousand dollars a year. (The current phase-out threshold for the Earned Income Tax Credit is about twenty-three thousand dollars.) “Short-term middle-class tax relief would ideally be provided until income stagnation is overcome,” the report said. “The tax relief could automatically expire in three years or automatically phase out based on Bureau of Labor Statistics data showing improvement in wage growth of a specified amount for the middle class.”

In another part of the report that seemed to go beyond the New Democrat ethos, the C.A.P. commission endorsed various steps to strengthen the bargaining position of workers and labor unions. In addition to endorsing the more expeditious “card check” method of setting up unions, which is a long-time demand of the labor movement, the report called for automatic government arbitration in instances when employers refuse to bargain collectively with newly formed unions, as well as the mandatory establishment of works councils, before which workers’ grievances could be heard. In an effort to insure that workers reap more of the benefits of corporate profits, which have been growing strongly, the report also recommended expanding tax incentives for employee-share-ownership schemes.

None of these policies represents a big threat to corporate America. But taken together they could help to tilt the balance of power back toward workers a bit and, over time, to give a boost to wages. After all, it’s no accident that wages and incomes have stagnated in the past thirty years. Under the guise of encouraging economic dynamism and responding to international competition, governments on both sides of the Atlantic have spent three decades undermining the gains that workers made during and after the Second World War. To be sure, factors such as globalization and technological progress were partly responsible for the emergence of wage stagnation, but, with a big gap having opened up between productivity and wages, there is no doubt that policy also played a significant role.

Those at the top of the income distribution have benefitted greatly from the assault on workers' bargaining power, and from other policies, such as the emasculation of the inheritance tax—one of the few tools available to tackle glaring wealth inequality. Here, too, the C.A.P. report stopped short of endorsing truly radical measures, such as a new tax on wealth, like ones that Thomas Piketty and some other economists have recommended. But the report did call for eliminating a glaring loophole in the tax code, known as the “step-up in basis,” that enables even the very richest families to pass down their fortunes while minimizing their tax liabilities. The report also advocated reforming the mortgage interest deduction and other quirks of the tax code that benefit the wealthy more than anybody else, noting, “Eliminating the tax rules that shelter high-income households and corporations would raise their effective tax rates, make the tax code more progressive, and avoid the waste created by strategies for tax avoidance.”

To repeat, there is nothing particularly novel or ground-breaking here. Liberals have long advocated levelling the playing field for capital and labor. The Obama Administration has recently called for eliminating the “step-up in basis” and other tax dodges that benefit the ultra-wealthy. What is striking is the convergence in thinking between the center and center-left that has taken place in recent years, as the basic facts about rising inequality have become impossible to ignore. Now it's up to Clinton and her advisers to exploit this convergence. As long as they are willing to defy some of their more conservative and tax-phobic donors, there is plenty of common ground on which to construct an inequality agenda that will satisfy de Blasio and many other progressives.

Of course, whatever Clinton does, there will still be some left-leaning Democrats who regard certain of her choices as a sop to the one per cent, or who oppose her on other grounds. That is inevitable. But despite the flap over de Blasio's remarks, a lasting schism between Clinton and most progressives isn't inevitable.

10 takeaways from Hillary Clinton's Iowa visit

USA TODAY - Jennifer Jacobs - April 16, 2015

<http://onpolitics.usatoday.com/2015/04/16/hillary-clinton-iowa-takeaways/>

Hillary Clinton's maiden journey to Iowa in the 2016 cycle generated a lot of media attention and some criticism, too.

Here are 10 takeaways from supporters, opponents and political strategists:

1. SHE CAME TO IOWA.

That in itself was a landmark — because it's a rare event. Much has been made about the seven-year gap she allowed to pass after her “excruciating” caucus night loss in 2008 (her word, from her latest book). But Clinton made a beeline here after announcing her candidacy Sunday, telegraphing that she's serious about winning the caucuses. She told reporters she had “a great time.” One of her staffers, Iowa Democratic operative Brenda Kole, vouched for that, saying Clinton genuinely enjoyed being back on the trail here. “She really had fun,” Kole told the Register.

2. SHE CREATED BUZZ.

No candidate trip in the 2016 presidential cycle to date has drawn as much attention in the traditional media or on social media, where people were tracking her journey and guessing where she was going next. Her team kept a leak-free grip on her schedule, although Iowa Democrats tipped off the press about where she was headed in a couple of cases.

3. SHE DIDN'T PROVIDE MUCH CLARITY ON ISSUE STANCES.

This trip didn't clue in the Iowa public on where she stands on Wall Street reform, Social Security reform, construction of the Keystone pipeline or other hot topics. In events where press coverage was allowed, she made it clear government aid for college costs and economic fairness are among her priorities.

4. SHE MADE NO BIG GAFFES.

GOP and Democratic strategists alike agreed there were no major hiccups.

5. SHE DOWNSIZED.

Clinton pulled off a go-small strategy, traveling to small towns that aren't the usual candidate targets. "She achieved authenticity by being in small settings talking with everyday folks," said Clinton backer Jerry Crawford, a Des Moines lawyer and Democratic money guy. She approached this campaign like she knows she has something to prove to voters, but at the same time proved she's the biggest game on the Democratic side, strategists said.

6. SHE WOODED HARD-CORE ACTIVISTS.

Clinton worked to move caucus votes, sidling up to the Democratic activists who do the nitty-gritty organizing for the first-in-the-nation vote. She met with Iowans who supported Barack Obama and Joe Biden — and not her — last time. She told them she's serious about helping to rebuild the Iowa Democratic Party. She made time to say hello to state legislators at the Iowa Capitol. And she appealed to those who want to carry on Obama's presidential agenda by embracing the Affordable Care Act, the equal-pay bill he signed into law, and his plan for free college tuition.

7. SHE HIT A MIX OF DEMOCRATIC AND GOP ZONES.

Her itinerary kept her in the eastern half of Iowa, the safer side of the state for Democrats, but she didn't just lie low in places like Des Moines' left-friendly Beaverdale neighborhood. She ventured into swing counties where GOP voters are influential, such as Warren County and rural Jones County, reinforcing the idea that she's ready for a fight, activists said.

8. SHE SOUNDED A POPULIST NOTE AND APPEALED TO FISCAL VOTERS.

Clinton railed against CEOs whose salaries are 300 times that of their employees, and repeatedly made comments like "the deck is still stacked in favor of those at the top — and we need to reshuffle the cards," the kind of language often heard from U.S. Sen. Elizabeth Warren of Massachusetts, whom some Democrats are trying to lure into the race. She also sent a message to business-minded Iowans, lashing out against "red tape and unnecessary regulations" that hinder business growth.

9. SHE DREW PLENTY OF GOP CRITICISM.

Republicans jumped on her for refusing to give better access to the press, arguing she was hiding from tough questions about her email scandal, Benghazi and other matters. "No matter how hard Clinton's advisers try to make her seem relatable, Iowans can see right through her hypocrisy and rhetoric," said Fred Brown, a spokesman for the Republican National Committee.

10. SHE DEALT WITH THE PRESS HOUNDING.

Clinton and her team seemed to shrug off media craziness around her trip, even as reporters responded to the limited access to her events and her secret schedule by hunting down grainy security footage of her burrito purchase at a Chipotle on her drive here and literally chasing after her while shouldering video cameras.

Hillary Clinton Backs Worker Protests For Higher Minimum Wage

HUFFINGTON POST - Sam Levine - April 15, 2015

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2015/04/15/hillary-clinton-minimum-wage_n_7075258.html

Former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton tweeted her support of low-wage workers who demonstrated across the country and demanded a $15 minimum wage on Wednesday.

Clinton, who has highlighted income inequality as an issue she wants to focus on since launching her presidential campaign on Sunday, said that workers shouldn't have to march in the streets for living wages.

The widespread demonstrations on Wednesday for higher wages were part of an effort to turn the campaign for higher wages into a larger social justice movement. Tens of thousands of people in more than 200 cities around the country took to the streets to call for a boost in wages, many walking out of their jobs.

On Tuesday, The New York Times noted while Clinton has endorsed raising the minimum wage, she has been vague on how quickly she wants to raise it and exactly how high it should be.

Hillary Clinton Backs Worker Protests For Higher Minimum Wage

HUFFINGTON POST – Same Levine – April 15, 2015

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2015/04/15/hillary-clinton-minimum-wage_n_7075258.html

Former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton tweeted her support of low-wage workers who demonstrated across the country and demanded a $15 minimum wage on Wednesday.

Clinton, who has highlighted income inequality as an issue she wants to focus on since launching her presidential campaign on Sunday, said that workers shouldn't have to march in the streets for living wages.

The widespread demonstrations on Wednesday for higher wages were part of an effort to turn the campaign for higher wages into a larger social justice movement. Tens of thousands of people in more than 200 cities around the country took to the streets to call for a boost in wages, many walking out of their jobs.

On Tuesday, The New York Times noted while Clinton has endorsed raising the minimum wage, she has been vague on how quickly she wants to raise it and exactly how high it should be.

Hillary Clinton's Iowa campaign opens: Populist theme, convivial in tone

LA TIMES - Seema Mehta, Cathleen Decker - April 14, 2015

<http://www.latimes.com/nation/politics/politicsnow/la-pn-hillary-clinton-iowa-populist-20150414-story.html#page=1>

llary Rodham Clinton on Tuesday began to sketch out a presidential campaign focused on persistent economic difficulties facing Americans, making her case with a tacit acknowledgment of the limited success on that front under the Obama administration.

Her first campaign day since her Sunday announcement was equal parts traveling circus and listening tour, taking place in the state that started her slide toward defeat in the 2008 contest.

Clinton adopted a populist air at her first public event, which was held in an auto shop at Kirkwood Community College's Jones County Regional Center. She toured the facility and then sat at a table with teachers and students, under two vertical car lifts.

"I think we all know that Americans have come back from some pretty tough economic times, and our economy and our country are much better off because American families have basically done whatever it took to make it work," she said in introductory remarks. "But I think it's fair to say as you look across the country, the deck is still stacked in favor of those already at the top. And there's something wrong with that.

"There's something wrong when CEOs make 300 times more than the typical worker. There's something wrong when American workers keep getting more productive ... but that productivity is not matched in their paychecks. There's something wrong when hedge fund managers pay lower tax rates than nurses or the truckers I saw on I-80 as I was driving here over the last two days.

"So we've got to figure out in our country how to get back on the right track," said Clinton, who had received strong support from big business in past campaigns.

Clinton's first appeal was deeply focused on Iowa — besides the interstate reference, she touted the college debt levels of the state at one point. But she also used the visit to remind voters of the biography of one of the world's best-known women.

She recounted her mother's abandonment as a child, her father's work as a small-business man, her church's teachings about helping others, her lawyer work for the Children's Defense Fund, her efforts to pass a healthcare initiative — which failed — a successful program for children's coverage as first lady, her work as a New York senator after the Sept. 11 attacks and her tenure as secretary of State.

She said the country faced "four big fights": building "the economy of tomorrow, not yesterday," strengthening families, protecting the nation's security, and getting "unaccountable money" out of a dysfunctional political system. She raised the prospect of a constitutional amendment to block the sorts of campaign donations that have been used by all sides--Clinton herself is expected to benefit in 2016--but have particularly helped Republicans.

During an education roundtable, Clinton said she supported President Obama's proposal to make community college free. She also backed the controversial national standards known as Common Core that have drawn opposition among both social conservatives and liberals.

"Common Core started off as a bipartisan effort — it was actually nonpartisan, it wasn't politicized," Clinton said. "It was to try to come up with a core of learning that we might expect students to achieve across our country, no matter what kind of school district they were in, no matter how poor their family was. That there wouldn't be two tiers of education."

Clinton spent much of the hourlong discussion asking questions of the students and educators, leaning in with her chin resting on her hand, nodding and murmuring "mmm-hmm" in agreement.

The panelists included a single mother of three who had returned to school and relied upon work study and a Pell grant, an instructor who lamented divisive debates over education policy, and a high school student who earned nearly two years of college credits through a partnership between her school and Kirkwood.

Jason McLaughlin, the principal of Central City High School, noted that students not only earned credits that allowed them to spend less on college tuition, but also experienced how a college operates, preparing them for their own time on campus.

Clinton chimed in about her experience: "I was so scared," she said. "Really! I called home and said I wanted to go home. Called collect in those days."

Instructor Diane Temple and McLaughlin also noted that two decades ago, students could graduate high school and earn a decent living in Iowa. But today, they said, students need more education.

"You go back 20 years, you're looking at jobs with benefits. The economy was great," McLaughlin said.

Clinton, smiling broadly, responded, "I remember." (Her husband was president at the time.)

Clinton's intent this time has been to break from her 2008 image in Iowa as an imperial candidate; past supporters in the state still wince at the memory of her using a helicopter for travel.

This time: no helicopter. Clinton didn't use any sort of aircraft, traveling from her New York home to Iowa in a van, accompanied by aides.

"I had a great drive across the country. One of the highlights was seeing spring finally," Clinton told reporters after the roundtable, noting that she saw tulips, daffodils and flowering trees.

Clinton pledged to roll out specific policy proposals in the coming weeks and months. "More to come, everybody."

The campaign's public relations effort was evident first thing Tuesday, as the candidate sought to do normal activities while trailed by reporters and watched by potential supporters.

She stopped at a coffee shop in Le Claire, in eastern Iowa, where she thanked the staff "for having us and all of these people. I love it."

"Hi, Jen. Hi, Paul," she said, talking to the people behind the counter as she ordered tea, a latte and water.

She sat down with three customers for a conversation that presumably had a good chance of being about politics or her 2016 plan. But reporters in the coffee shop couldn't hear what she was saying, other than a brief mention of her trip from New York.

On a later walk with the mayor of Le Claire, Bob Scannell, Clinton was greeted by Karla Higgins, who said she had voted for Barack Obama in the 2008 primary.

"Well, I hope I can convince you to work for me," Clinton said.

Higgins said later that she backs Clinton this time.

"I want to continue with the change," she said. "I think she can do it."

What Hillary Clinton's week on the trail reveals about her policy agenda

WASHINGTON POST – Philip Rucker – April 17, 2015

http://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/what-hillary-clintons-week-on-the-trail-reveals-about-her-policy-agenda/2015/04/16/1ff1edba-e458-11e4-b510-962fcfab310_story.html

One big question looming over Hillary Rodham Clinton's presidential candidacy has been what policy ideas she will propose to cast herself as a change agent without running against the sitting president she served.

Clinton began to provide an answer this week over two days of campaigning in Iowa.

Even without offering policy specifics, the Democratic front-runner sketched out a broad vision and ventured into new territory, particularly when she advocated adopting campaign finance reform to fix a “dysfunctional political system” and getting rid of regulations that inhibit the growth of small businesses.

Clinton defended two pillars of Obama's domestic agenda, the call for comprehensive immigration reform and the health-care law. But on the Affordable Care Act, her embrace was more flexible than dogmatic. Clinton said that she wanted to “keep what works” but that she was open to changes, including the Republican idea of allowing insurance companies to compete across state lines.

Clinton's opening act is a listening tour through the early primary and caucus states, and aides said she does not plan to start rolling out a detailed policy agenda until late spring or summer, but her Iowa swing offered a preview of what is to come.

Rhetorically, Clinton is offering herself as a champion of everyday Americans at a time of economic renewal. But with deep anxiety coursing through the nation, she also is trying to channel voters' desire for change.

“We've got to figure out in our country how to get back on the right track,” Clinton told a group of students and educators Tuesday in rural Monticello.

After chatting in a Le Claire coffee shop with a college student who is spiralling into debt, Clinton lamented, “People are struggling.”

And the next day in Norwalk, Clinton told small-business owners that although the economy had bounced back, “We need to do more than just get by. We need to get ahead and stay ahead.”

So far, Clinton has not pointed fingers at Obama. In fact, during a private meeting with local Democratic leaders in Mount Vernon, she likened the Obama recovery to the booming economy during husband Bill Clinton's presidency to draw a favorable contrast to what she considered the poor economic records of the past few Republican presidents, according to one attendee.

However, Clinton did say she wanted to change the tenor in Washington, making a subtle contrast with Obama's leadership style.

“I want to get things done,” Clinton said. “I'm willing to work with people who have good ideas, who are on any side of the political divide, but we have to start breaking down the divisions that have paralyzed our politics.”

To that end, she advocated getting rid of “unaccountable money” in political campaigns, even if it requires a constitutional amendment.

Obama's unpopularity as well as history — only once in the past half century has a two-term president been succeeded by a candidate from the same party, President George H.W. Bush in 1989 — might persuade Clinton to break with the president. But she and her campaign advisers have decided to stand by Obama — in part out of necessity, considering she served as his first-term secretary of state.

Clinton's loyalty will be tested once she reveals a robust menu of specific ideas that inevitably will draw some distinctions with the president's policies.

“Even if politicians try very hard to imitate others, they're going to fail because they have their own outlook and their own approaches, and I'm quite sure that she does,” said William A. Galston, a former Clinton White House policy adviser and senior fellow at the Brookings Institution.

Clinton signaled that health care could be one such area of differentiation. She defended the Affordable Care Act, but left an opening to prescribe her own changes to the law. “Part of what I'll be doing during the campaign is looking for ways that we keep what works. . . [but] figure out how we fill all these gaps,” she said Wednesday in Norwalk.

Clinton said she was considering a proposal that would allow insurance companies to compete across state lines. “If we're going to have a free-market system, then we need a free market where we've got people competing on costs and quality,” she said.

Hearing that, Galston said, “I nearly fell out of my seat. I was surprised, because that has been an important plank of the Republican approach from the very beginning.” He said this was “a very prudent course,” because it signals to congressional Republicans that she is open to their ideas.

Andy Stern, a former Service Employees International Union president, said Clinton has come out with “a seemingly strong declaration that she's for Main Street.” He singled out her support for free community college for qualified students, an Obama priority.

“The thematics are impressive and pretty clean. The policies and the people will tell the next chapters of the story,” Stern said. He said he wants to see whether Clinton is open to fresh, progressive thinking or whether the centrist economists from her husband's administration will have her ear.

Clinton is likely to flesh out some foreign policy differences with Obama. She has said that in 2012 she advocated arming rebels in Syria during the civil war there and that Obama decided not to heed her advice. The president eventually took that action, but not until after Clinton had left office and the war had escalated.

On Iran, the nuclear negotiations that are a pillar of Obama's foreign policy record were set in motion on Clinton's watch. She publicly supported the negotiations but also voiced strong skepticism that Iran could either make or honor an acceptable deal.

Clinton is in what aides call a “ramp-up phase,” road-testing only broad policy themes, which gives her campaign policy team, led by Maya Harris, Ann O'Leary and Jake Sullivan, time to craft detailed proposals.

A proud policy wonk throughout her life, Clinton spent considerable time pondering an agenda before deciding to run. Last fall, Sullivan led a thorough review of big challenges and potential policy solutions. The result was a 500-page briefing book, which Clinton took with her on Christmas vacation in the Dominican Republic.

But Clinton is sensitive to being accused of pronouncing policy from on high, so she is first absorbing input from citizens she encounters on the campaign trail, according to people familiar with the campaign.

For instance, one of these people said, Clinton was struck after several discussions during her first day in Iowa that nobody asked her about income inequality, the economic issue du jour among political elites and a core theme of her nascent campaign.

In her campaign announcement video, Clinton says, "The deck is still stacked in favor of those at the top." It's a line she repeated across Iowa.

"There's something wrong when CEOs make 300 times more than the typical worker," Clinton said in Monticello. Referencing her road trip to Iowa, Clinton added, "There's something wrong when hedge fund managers pay lower tax rates than nurses or the truckers that I saw on I-80 as I was driving here over the last two days."

David Axelrod, a former Obama strategist, said this is the tension that will shape the 2016 election.

"Plainly, the economic issue of our day is how the 21st century could regenerate a strong, thriving, secure middle class; how we create more economic mobility so that if you work hard you could actually get ahead; how do we do things that reduce the huge polarity in our economy?" he said. "That requires a real plan. That requires ideas. How she approaches that is absolutely essential."

Hillary Clinton: Elizabeth Warren is 'a special kind of leader'

WASHINGTON POST – Jose DelReal – April 16, 2015

<http://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/post-politics/wp/2015/04/16/hillary-clinton-elizabeth-warren-is-a-special-kind-of-leader/>

Newly-minted presidential candidate Hillary Clinton sings Sen. Elizabeth Warren's praises in the latest issue of Time Magazine, where the Massachusetts senator is featured as one of the 100 most influential people in the world.

Clinton writes of "progressive champion" Warren:

"It was always going to take a special kind of leader to pick up Ted Kennedy's mantle as senior Senator from Massachusetts—champion of working families and scourge of special interests. Elizabeth Warren never lets us forget that the work of taming Wall Street's irresponsible risk taking and reforming our financial system is far from finished. And she never hesitates to hold powerful people's feet to the fire: bankers, lobbyists, senior government officials and, yes, even presidential aspirants.

Elizabeth Warren's journey from janitor's daughter to Harvard professor to public watchdog to U.S. Senator has been driven by an unflagging determination to level the playing field for hardworking American families like the one she grew up with in Oklahoma. She fights so hard for others to share in the American Dream because she lived it herself."

Warren has been repeatedly asked if she is considering a presidential bid herself, which would put her up against the former secretary of state -- who some Democrats feel is too cozy with Wall Street. Warren has repeatedly, and increasingly forcefully, said she will not run but has nonetheless indicated she will be a vocal voice in the 2016 election.

"I think everyone who is running for president should be talking about what they will do to strengthen and rebuild America's middle class," Warren said last week when asked about Clinton's yet-unannounced candidacy. "This has been my lifetime's work. I have watched year by year by year where America's middle class just has to take one punch after another. We've reached a point where this just isn't going to work anymore."

Clinton is herself featured as one of the 100 most influential people, as are Former Florida governor Jeb Bush (who will likely run for the GOP presidential nomination) and President Obama.

The Irony Is Rich

SLATE – Josh Voorhees – April 15, 2015

http://www.slate.com/articles/news_and_politics/politics/2015/04/hillary_clinton_and_campaign_finance_reform_with_all_her_super_pac_money.html

Speaking to a small group of Iowans—and in front of a big crowd of reporters—here on Tuesday, Hillary Clinton laid out what she said would be the four main tenets of her presidential campaign. Three of them—to build the “economy of tomorrow,” “strengthen families and communities,” and “protect our country”—were so vague and anodyne that she could have saved everyone some time by simply waving an American flag. The fourth, though, while not exactly concrete, was harder to dismiss: campaign finance reform by (almost) any means necessary.

“We need to fix our dysfunctional political system and get unaccountable money out of it once and for all, even if that takes a constitutional amendment,” Clinton said, throwing a populist hook to go along with the jabs she took at Wall Street during the same event. The former secretary of state didn’t elaborate on the specifics of her reform plan, but it’s widely assumed that she was lamenting Citizens United, the 2010 Supreme Court ruling that serves as a type of shorthand for the campaign laws that have allowed a deluge of outside spending to flood recent federal elections. Last summer, Clinton suggested she would “consider” supporting an amendment that overturned the ruling, an idea President Obama has also backed. It appeared on Tuesday that Clinton finally made up her mind.

Clinton is an unlikely champion of the cause: At best, it is ironic that she would take on the mantle of campaign-finance-reform crusader; at worst, it is hypocritical. Just last year, as my colleague Beth Ethier noted, the Center for Public Integrity dubbed her the “Citizens United candidate,” explaining that she would become the “beneficiary-in-chief” of the ruling that paved the way for today’s super PAC–dominated elections. That prediction has already proved prophetic, with super PAC Ready for Hillary helping to effectively clear the Democratic field even before she officially jumped into the race this week. And, as conservatives have been quick to point out, at roughly the same time Clinton was in Iowa decrying the role of big money in federal elections, her allies and other deep-pocketed liberal donors were meeting in San Francisco to figure out how to spend tens of millions on state ones. Clinton may believe the system needs fixing, but in the meantime she’s made it clear she won’t shy away from exploiting every advantage it offers her and her party.

But the gap between the future Clinton is calling for and the present she is operating in comes with its own advantages. Many progressives are understandably uncomfortable with Clinton’s close ties to Wall Street and other moneyed interests that are best positioned to exploit those same election-law holes she wants to fix, but if reform-minded advocates want those laws changed, they will be hard pressed to find someone with more resources to effect the change they want. Ironic, yes. But true.

The reality of our political system is that the most realistic way to fight big money is with big money of your own—and Clinton’s campaign coffers are in no danger of running dry. Last week, the New York Times estimated that her team and its outside allies are likely to collect in the neighborhood of $2.5 billion between now and Election Day 2016. Reform advocates will cringe at the thought of how much of that will be raised and spent by outside groups, but they'll be better served in the long run by an imperfect candidate who could be president than by a perfect one who has no chance of sitting in the Oval Office. Better to wager that Clinton keeps her promises if elected than to bet that a less problematic candidate comes out of nowhere to pull off a miracle.

Still, Election Day 2016 is still 19 months away. It remains to be seen if Clinton is serious about keeping reform at the center of her campaign, and she's so far (in week one) painted with only the broadest of brush strokes. We don't know yet whether she will take aim only at Citizens United, or if she will call for more sweeping reforms along the lines of what Senate Democrats offered in 2010. The specifics of Clinton's plan—and how she sells them from the stump—will go a long way toward deciding whether she can match her lofty campaign rhetoric.

Working in Clinton's favor is the fact that she appears to have found a populist message that crosses partisan lines. A poll conducted in tandem by Democratic and Republican polling firms last year found that voters backed a constitutional amendment to counteract Citizens by a 2-to-1 margin. Even self-identified Republicans said they were on board, 54 percent to 36 percent, when presented with arguments for and against overturning the ruling. More generally speaking, polls have routinely showed that Americans are both concerned about the role of money in politics, and would vote to limit the amount of cash candidates could spend and raise if they could. That all bodes well for Clinton as she tries to find a signature issue that wins over skeptical progressives while not alienating moderates.

Working against her, though, is just how difficult the task at hand is likely to be—something her brief comments in Iowa alluded to. The reason that reform-minded advocates dream of a constitutional amendment—the longest of long shots—is because Congress appears unlikely to act on its own. Still, even that difficulty can be spun into a rallying cry. If Congress won't act, and a constitutional amendment is all but impossible, then the best and perhaps only chance at meaningful campaign finance reform during the next decade is likely to come from the Supreme Court. That can't happen unless we have a reform-minded president in office the next time a conservative justice retires. And the road to the White House is paved with super PAC money.

Hillary Clinton Calls Education A 'Non-Family Enterprise,' Praises Common Core

THE FEDERALIST – Sean Davis – April 16, 2015

<http://thefederalist.com/2015/04/16/hillary-clinton-praises-common-core-says-education-is-a-non-family-enterprise/>

During her first official campaign event in Iowa earlier this week, former Secretary of State and 2016 Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton praised Common Core and referred to children's education as a "non-family enterprise." Clinton's controversial statements about education, which were captured by C-SPAN, came in response to a question from a participant about how to offer a quality education throughout the U.S.

Clinton initially responded to the question about how to fix the U.S. educational system by praising Common Core. She then said that families today are too "negative" about the current system, a system Clinton described as "the most important non-family enterprise" in the country. After noting what she described as "unfortunate" opposition to Common Core, Hillary Clinton also blithely dismissed the concerns of Common Core opponents by saying they just "do not understand the value" of the controversial top-down curriculum:

Although Clinton said there shouldn't be "two tiers of education" in the U.S., she opposes school choice, which would help parents in failing school districts send their children to better schools.

Her comment that children’s education is a “non-family enterprise” is also likely to enrage families who believe that parents should be key players in the education of their own children.

Here’s a transcript of Clinton’s remarks from the video:

Hillary Clinton: You know, what I think about the really unfortunate argument that has been going on around Common Core, it’s very painful because the Common Core started off as a bipartisan effort. It was actually nonpartisan. It wasn’t politicized. It was to try to come up with a core of learning that we might expect students to achieve across our country, no matter what kind of school district they were in, no matter how poor their family was, that there wouldn’t be two tiers of education. Everybody would be looking at what would be learned doing their best to achieve that I think part of the reason Iowa may be more understanding of this is you have had the Iowa core for years. The U.S. had a system plus the Iowa Assessment Test. I think I’m right in saying that I took those when I was in elementary school. The Iowa tests. So that Iowa has had a testing system based on a core curriculum for a really long time. You see the value of it. You understand why that helps you organize your whole education system.

And a lot of states, unfortunately, haven’t had that. They do not understand the value of a core in the sense, a Common Core, yes, of course, you can figure out the best way in your community to try to reach — but your question is a larger one. How do we end up at a point where we are so negative about the most important non-family enterprise in the raising of the next generation which is how our kids are educated?

At Iowa college, Clinton begins laying out campaign message

BOSTON GLOBE - Ken Thomas, Lisa Lerer – April 17, 2015

<https://www.bostonglobe.com/news/nation/2015/04/14/clintoniowa/ujEYUxeYwJc275PdFQ5pWI/story.html>

Hillary Rodham Clinton began laying out her Democratic presidential campaign message in Iowa on Tuesday, casting herself as a “champion” for struggling Americans and calling for a purging of “unaccountable money” from the campaign finance system.

“I think it’s fair to say that as you look across the country the deck is still stacked in favor of those already at the top,” she said in a meeting with students and teachers at a community college in rural Monticello. “There’s something wrong with that.”

Clinton is facing pressure from the liberal wing of her party to make tackling economic inequality a central theme of her new candidacy. In Iowa, she outlined four tenets of her early campaign: improving the economy, strengthening families, fixing “dysfunctional government,” and protecting national security.

“We’ve got to figure out in our country how to get back on the right track,” she said.

Clinton said the Supreme Court decision removing campaign-finance obstacles for big-money interests must be addressed even if it takes a constitutional amendment to do so.

Clinton is opening her campaign, announced Sunday, with small events such as the community college meeting and leaving big rallies for later.

Fresh from a two-day road trip from New York, Clinton visited a coffee ship in the Mississippi River town of LeClaire in the morning in the first event in her return to presidential politics.

Her 2012 debut is reminiscent of the “listening tour” that opened her campaign for a New York Senate seat in 2000, when she ventured into small upstate towns to convene meetings with voters and local leaders.

In Iowa, Clinton aims to overcome her disappointing third-place finish in the 2008 caucuses.

Her events Tuesday and Wednesday focus heavily on pocketbook economic issues in small-town Iowa, and Clinton was expected to connect with local officials, community leaders and Democratic activists.

Can Hillary Clinton manage those rowdy populists?

CHICAGO TRIBUNE – Katrina vanden Heuvel – April 15, 2015

<http://www.chicagotribune.com/news/opinion/commentary/chi-hillary-clinton-elizabeth-warren-martin-omalley-20150415-story.html#page=1>

Hillary Clinton’s decision to “go small” by formally announcing her presidential campaign in a video, before heading off for “intimate” meetings in Iowa, touched off saturation national press coverage that other contenders can only envy. The former first lady, former senator, former presidential contender, former secretary of state has been in the public eye for nearly a quarter of a century. She’s the prohibitive favorite to get the Democratic Party nomination this time, and odds-on to win the presidency.

Yet hurdles remain. Clinton’s biggest challenge probably isn’t in capturing the middle from the Republican nominee. Republicans have already virtually ceded that. Her challenge is to inspire the Obama majority coalition to vote in large numbers, not only to guarantee her election but also to help Democrats take back the Senate, gain seats in the House and capture a clear mandate.

This won’t be easy. Historically, after eight years of one party in the White House, voters are ready for change. The Republican base will be roused by venom toward Clinton that is almost as poisonous as that directed at President Barack Obama. In contrast, many Democrats are discouraged by the disappointments of the Obama years. Key parts of Obama’s base — African-Americans, Latinos, millennials — haven’t exactly thrived during his presidency. The election of 2014 took place in a low-turnout, by-election year, but it showed how destructive a lack of enthusiasm could be on the Democratic side.

It’s still about the economy

Some pundits suggest 2016 will be a foreign policy election. Some Democrats are tempted to turn it into a culture clash, since Republicans are now on the wrong side of a growing range of concerns — gays, women, immigrants, voting rights and global warming. But as Clinton’s campaign acknowledges, the central question is still about the economy: how to make this economy work for working people once more, to rebuild a broad middle class, increase wages and reduce income inequality. Here, although Clinton has been in the public eye for decades, her views are largely unknown, if not unformed.

And on these questions, a populist temper is building in the party — symbolized by the split between the “Warren” and Wall Street wings of the party, and by the spread of the movement to draft Sen. Elizabeth Warren, D-Mass., to run for the presidency. And Clinton will find that this movement will force her to decide where she stands early and often.

A new resolution to give the president “fast track” trade authority will soon be introduced into the Senate. The measure — designed to shorten debate and ease passage of the Trans-Pacific Partnership trade accord still under negotiations — will set off a furious debate.

Obama, joined by the Republican leadership and much of the Fortune 500, is pushing for fast track and the treaty. The vast majority of House Democrats are opposed, as are Sens. Warren, Sherrod Brown, D-Ohio, Jeff Merkley, D-Ore., and other progressives in the chamber, as well as a broad array of unions and citizen groups, from environmentalists to students.

Two potential rivals for the Democratic nomination — Sen. Bernie Sanders, I-Vt., and former Maryland governor Martin O'Malley — oppose the treaty, while former Virginia senator Jim Webb is skeptical of such agreements. Does Clinton stand for a continuation of the trade policies that her husband championed, that have racked up more than $6 trillion in trade deficits since 2000, savaging domestic manufacturing and costing good jobs? Or does she agree that this is part of how the rules are rigged, and call for reconsideration?

Front and center?

On April 15, tens of thousands of low-wage workers across the country — from Wal-Mart, McDonald's and retail stores, as well as adjunct professors at universities and others — walked off the job across America, demanding a $15-an-hour minimum wage and unionization. Clinton favors raising the minimum wage, but will she join the workers' fight or try to duck it? Will she speak forcefully about empowering workers to organize and bargain collectively or decline?

With baby boomers retiring without pensions or adequate savings, progressives —led by Warren — have proposed that Social Security benefits be expanded, not cut, with lifting the current lid on the payroll tax as the first step of covering the cost. Obama, in contrast, proposed cuts in benefits as part of a “grand bargain” with Republicans on deficit reduction, a position greatly appreciated on Wall Street. Clinton, like all candidates, will promise to protect Social Security, but she'll find herself pressed to support expanding it.

At the same time, progressives are organizing a range of efforts to drive the debate on a populist economic agenda.

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio, after convening a group of progressive leaders, proposed collecting thousands of endorsements on an Economic Contract with America, and hosting a bipartisan presidential debate on inequality.

Gearing up

Warren has joined with Rep. Elijah Cummings, D-Md., to launch the Middle Class Prosperity Project, planning to convene hearings across the country on economic policies threatening the middle class, including, most recently, the need to relieve the burden of student debt. Progressives are gearing up a major campaign for four years of free public college.

Next week, the Campaign for America's Future will announce an alliance with three major national grassroots organizations — National People's Action, USAction and the Alliance for a Just Society — to drive a populist platform into the political debate. Moveon.org, the Progressive Congressional Campaign Committee and Progressive Democrats of America are all mobilizing online support for the demand that candidates address “bold ideas” for economic reform. Warren is joining the Center for Community Change Action as it launches a campaign for jobs. The AFL-CIO will hold convocations in each of the early primary states focused on the issue of raising wages.

Clinton's potential rivals for the nomination all clearly see an opening for a populist challenge. Webb has been a compelling critic of our trade policies; O'Malley has gone after Wall Street, calling for reviving the Glass-Steagall regulations that were repealed under Bill Clinton. Sanders has released a bold "Economic Agenda for America" and challenges the corruption of big-money politics, a clear contrast with what is likely to be unrelenting revelations about money and the Bill, Hillary and Chelsea Clinton Foundation, even as Clinton sets off to raise a staggering $2.5 billion for her campaign and associated super PACs.

Clinton has already shown she is aware of the populist temper of the time. In the video announcing her candidacy, Clinton echoes Warren, arguing that while Americans have fought back from the Great Recession, "the deck is still stacked in favor of those at the top. She vows to be the champion of "everyday Americans." Given the populist energy that is driving the debate inside the Democratic Party, she'll have every opportunity to prove it.

Hillary Clinton has a new position on same-sex marriage

CNN – Dan Merica – April 16, 2015

<http://www.cnn.com/2015/04/15/politics/hillary-clinton-same-sex-marriage/>

As recently as a year ago, Hillary Clinton was sparring with a public radio host about her position on same-sex marriage, defending her past reticence to discuss the issue and falling well short of full-throated support. Now, in a markedly new position, Clinton is offering just that, calling gay marriage a right afforded by the Constitution.

"Hillary Clinton supports marriage equality and hopes the Supreme Court will come down on the side of same-sex couples being guaranteed that constitutional right," said Adrienne Elrod, a Clinton spokeswoman, in a statement.

This is an entirely new position for Clinton.

As a candidate in 2008, Clinton opposed same-sex marriage, supporting the idea of civil unions instead. She did not proclaim her personal support for same-sex marriage until 2013, after she left her diplomatic position as secretary of state.

During a 2014 interview with NPR, Clinton and host Terry Gross sparred over the topic in a conversation that, at times, grew testy. Clinton told Gross that she always viewed marriage as "a matter left to the states and in many of the conversations I and my colleagues and supporters had, I fully endorse the efforts by activists to work state-by-state."

After a handful of questions on the topic, Gross said she was just trying to "clarify" whether Clinton had changed her opinion on the matter or whether the political winds on the issue had shifted, allowing Democrats' 2016 presidential frontrunner to come out in favor of same-sex marriage.

Clinton pushed back on the question, telling Gross, "No, I don't think you are trying to clarify. I think you are trying to say that I used to be opposed and now I am in favor and I did it for political reason and that is just flat wrong."

Clinton's argued that for the four years she served as secretary of state, she was "out of domestic politics" and not in a position to back same-sex marriage. She moved on the issue later than many Democrats, though, including President Barack Obama and Vice President Joe Biden.

"And then leaving that position," Clinton said of her time at State, "I was able to very quickly announce that I was fully in support of gay marriage and that it is now continuing to proceed state-by-state."

Wednesday's statement, however, takes Clinton a step further, aligning the presidential candidate with many Democrats who hope that the Supreme Court will rule in favor of same-sex marriage as a constitutional right after they hear the case later this month.

Her campaign did not respond to questions about how the change came about for Clinton.

Despite announcing her support after other Democrats, Clinton's support in the gay community is strong. The largest statewide LGBT advocacy group -- Equality California - endorsed Clinton in March and the super PAC she was urging Clinton to run for much of 2013 and 2014 held a number of events at gay bars.

Potential Democratic rival, former Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley sought to highlight his longstanding support for same-sex marriage in a tweet that included a video with a veiled swipe at Clinton's change of heart.

"The dignity of every person tells us that the right to marry is not a state right, it is a human right," O'Malley tweeted.

Hillary Clinton puts her love of Elizabeth Warren in writing for Time 100 list

CNN – Dan Merica – April 16, 2015

<http://www.cnn.com/2015/04/16/politics/hillary-clinton-elizabeth-warren-time-100/>

Hillary Clinton used Times Magazine's 100 Most Influential People list to pay tribute to Elizabeth Warren, a lawmaker some liberals hope will challenge the former secretary of state for the 2016 Democratic nomination.

In the short piece, Clinton touts Warren as a champion for the middle class and nods to the duo's interesting relationship when she writes that Warren "never hesitates to hold powerful people's feet to the fire: bankers, lobbyists, senior government officials and, yes, even presidential aspirants."

"Elizabeth Warren's journey from janitor's daughter to Harvard professor to public watchdog to U.S. Senator has been driven by an unflinching determination to level the playing field for hardworking American families like the one she grew up with in Oklahoma," Clinton writes. "She fights so hard for others to share in the American Dream because she lived it herself."

Some liberal activists have protested Clinton's presidential candidacy by looking to to urge the Massachusetts senator to run. Warren has repeatedly denied that she is running or will run and she even disavowed one of the draft campaigns.

But Warren has not been overwhelmingly supportive of Clinton's run, either. When asked about the former first lady's candidacy, Warren usually punts the question.

"I think we need to give her a chance... to lay out what she wants to run on. I think that is her opportunity to" champion issues the senator feels are important, Warren said on NBC's "Today" when asked if Clinton was the right messenger for the Democratic Party.

Despite the outside pressure to pin them against each other, Warren and Clinton do have a friendly relationship, according to aides.

Clinton has sought advice from the Massachusetts senator "several times" in the last year, a source with knowledge of Clinton's plans told CNN in February, a sign of how important Warren's wing of the Democratic party is to the foundation of a would-be presidential bid for the former secretary of state.

Clinton also made Time's 100 list. Her entry was written by Laurene Powell Jobs, the founder of Emerson Collective.

"She is one of America's greatest modern creations," Powell Jobs writes. "Her decades in our public life must not blind us to the fact that she represents new realities and possibilities."

Kentucky Sen. Rand Paul also gave tribute to a political force that's certain to influence his presidential run — Charles and David Koch, the billionaire brothers behind a network of outside spending groups that are expected to spend nearly $1 billion in the upcoming election.

But Paul, in his Time 100 blurb on the brothers, downplays their campaign spending and instead highlights "their passion for freedom and their commitment to ideas," which he says is "underappreciated."

"Unlike many crony capitalists who troll the halls of Congress looking for favors, the Kochs have consistently lobbied against special-interest politics," Paul writes. "For decades they have funded institutes that promote ideas, not politics, such as Cato and the Mercatus Center."

He also touts their support for criminal-justice reform, a pet project of his.

While Paul closes by proclaiming that their investments in "freedom-loving think tanks will carry on for generations," their reported plans to spend $889 million during the 2016 election cycle will certainly have a long-lasting impact on the country as well.

A number of others high profile political figures made Time's list, including former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, President Barack Obama and Tennessee Sen. Bob Corker.

In Iowa, Clinton Vows to Tackle Campaign Finance Reform, Income Inequality

NBC – Carrie Dann – April 14, 2015

<http://www.nbcnews.com/meet-the-press/hillary-clinton-tries-keep-low-profile-iowa-n341356>

In her opening campaign event of the 2016 presidential race, Hillary Clinton on Tuesday laid out four primary "fights" she's focused on during her presidential run, including eliminating "unaccountable money" from America's political system, even if it requires a constitutional amendment.

"We need to build the economy of tomorrow, not yesterday," she said in remarks at a community college in Iowa, which holds the first nominating contest of the presidential cycle. "We need to strengthen families and communities, because that's where it all starts. We need to fix our dysfunctional political system and get unaccountable money out of it once and for all, even if that takes a constitutional amendment. And we need to protect our country from the threats that we see and the ones that are on the horizon."

She also highlighted, as she did in her announcement video Sunday, her pledge to fight income inequality.

"I think it's fair to say that as you look across the country, the deck is still stacked in favor of those already at the top," she said. "And there's something wrong with that. There's something wrong when CEOs make 300 times more than the typical worker."

She also said that she "fully supports" a proposal by President Barack Obama for free community college tuition.

Clinton said that she'll fight hard for the support of caucus-goers in Iowa and acknowledged that it will be a long contest.

"I just felt like I couldn't walk away from what I see as the challenges we face, and I want to build on what we've done to get out of the terrible recession and get back on our feet," she said. "But we have to run the race."

Clinton has tried to keep a relatively low profile on her opening trip to Iowa, limiting access to the press and holding small events.

She kept mum when NBC's Kristen Welker caught up with the campaign in the eastern part of the state to ask the candidate how she's changed her strategy since her third-place finish in the state in 2008.

"I am having a great time, can't look forward to any more than I am," she said. "Thank you."

Earlier Tuesday, she visited the Jones St. Java House in La Claire, where she ordered a Masala Chai and a concoction called a "caramellow latte," per a pool reporter. After ordering, she sat down (out of earshot of the press) for coffee with the town's mayor and his wife as well as the husband of one of the cafe's owners.

Clinton aides have stressed that, at this early stage, they want to avoid the flashy events and big crowds that accompanied her first run for the White House, which they said hampered her ability to connect with Iowa voters on a one-to-one level.

That means that press coverage of the former secretary of state, who entered the race on Sunday, is not dissimilar from the media apparatus that travels with a sitting president; a tiny group of reporters traveling with her are authorized by the campaign to distribute information about small events, like the stop at the Java House, to other media outlets. At larger events, like the one in Monticello, more reporters are allowed, although major news outlets are limited to sharing camera footage.

In Iowa, Hillary Clinton stays studiously on-message

MSNBC - Joy-Ann Reid - April 14, 2015

<http://www.msnbc.com/msnbc/hillary-clinton-campaign-rolls-iowa>

Hillary Clinton's campaign rolled into Monticello, Iowa, on Tuesday, in its candidate-dubbed "Scooby van," kicking off a charm offensive with caucus voters that took the former secretary of state to a rural community college not far from Cedar Rapids. But more than anything else, Hillary was studiously on message – a sharp contrast to the sometimes chaotic messaging exhibited by the same candidate in 2008.

Clinton, casually dressed in a dark blue jacket over bright lime green, articulated four pillars of her still-to-come campaign platform; four "big fights" she foresees on the horizon: building "the economy of tomorrow, not yesterday," strengthening families and communities, fixing "our dysfunctional political system and get[ting] unaccountable money out of it once and for all, even if that takes a constitutional amendment," and protect[ing] our country from the threats that we see, and the ones that are on the horizon."

Before and after chatting with would-be voters, candidate Clinton explained why she is running for president, reprising the now familiar lines from her kick-off campaign video, saying she wanted to be a champion for those against whom the economic deck remains “stacked” in favor of “those already at the top.” She touched on her work with the Children’s Defense Fund after Yale Law School, and made several allusions to her biography, growing up in the Illinois suburbs.

“A lot of people in the last few days have asked me, ‘Well, you know, why do you want do this? What motivates you?’” Clinton said. “And I’ve thought a lot about it and I guess the short answer is, I’ve been fighting for children and families my entire adult life, probably because of my mother’s example. She had a really difficult childhood – was mistreated, neglected, but she never gave up. She had to basically be on her own at the time she was 14 and she just kept going. And my father who was a small businessman and just believed that you had to work hard to make your way and do whatever you had to do to be successful and provided a good living for our family.”

Clinton added allusions to her religious upbringing, saying, “And then I was thinking too about, you know, the lessons I learned from my church. You know, you’re supposed to give back. You’re supposed to do what you can to help others and that’s what I’ve tried to do and we’ll have more time to talk about that as we go forward.”

Clinton gave her full support to the president’s push to make community college free for all American students, and added that any such program should also address the ancillary costs of schooling, like books and supplies.

After the chat, reporters shouted out questions to Clinton asking for more details on her campaign finance ideas. The newly minted candidate, ever gracious but scrupulously on message, smiled, reiterated her lines about being a champion for those left behind by the economy, and was ushered out of the classroom.

Hillary Clinton criticized for portrayal of family's immigrant history

FOX – Staff – April 16, 2015

<http://latino.foxnews.com/latino/politics/2015/04/16/hillary-clinton-criticized-for-portrayal-family-immigrant-history/>

Just days into her presidential campaign, former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton is being criticized for her portrayal of her family’s immigrant history.

According to a report by BuzzFeed News, during her campaigning in Norwalk, Iowa on Wednesday Clinton said that “all of her grandparents” immigrated to the U.S., but Census records show that only one of Clinton’s grandparents was born outside of the U.S..

“All my grandparents, you know, came over here and you know my grandfather went to work in a lace mill in Scranton, Pennsylvania, and worked there until he retired at 65. He started there when he was a teenager and just kept going,” Clinton said.

Census records show only her father’s father, Hugh Rodham Sr., immigrated from England to Pennsylvania.

In the past, Clinton has said her grandmother, the wife of Hugh Rodham Sr., also immigrated to Scranton, Penn. even though Census records show she was born in Pennsylvania in 1882.

In a statement to BuzzFeed News, a Clinton spokesman said of the candidate's wording on Wednesday, “her grandparents always spoke about the immigrant experience and, as a result, she has always thought of them as immigrants.”

The campaign also pointed out that her grandmother was born shortly after her parents arrived in the early 1880s.

Republicans pounced on Clinton's portrayal of her immigrant past.

"The Clinton campaign's excuse for the candidate's repeated misrepresentation of her family history and false claim her grandparents are immigrants? '[S]he has always thought of them as immigrants.' You're not telling tall tales if you think they're true?" said Ruth Guerra, Director of Hispanic Media for the Republican National Committee.

"It's this type of callous attitude toward the truth that has led voters in key states to already view Clinton as dishonest and untrustworthy. If she's willing to make up a story in an attempt to connect with immigrants, how can voters trust what she says on all the other issues?"

This is not the first time a current presidential candidate's immigrant history has been questioned. Senator Marco Rubio (R-FL), who announced his presidential bid on Monday, came under scrutiny in 2011. Rubio, the son of Cuban immigrants, was criticized for misrepresenting his own family's immigrant history.

The Washington Post exposed that Rubio's parents immigrated to the U.S. more than two and a half years before Fidel Castro took power in 1959. This was contrary to the narrative Rubio had delivered in speeches, describing a scenario where his parents fled Fidel Castro's dictatorship.

Rubio has acknowledged he got the dates wrong and said in a Fox News interview in 2011, "I don't need to embellish my narrative. My narrative is very simple — I am the son of exiles and of immigrants, and that has framed my political thought."

5 Things Hillary Clinton Accomplished In Iowa (And 5 Questions That Still Remain)

ABC – Liz Kreutz, Cecilia Vega – April 16, 2015

<http://abcnews.go.com/Politics/things-hillary-clinton-accomplished-iowa-questions-remain/story?id=30375540>

Chipotle. Gas Stations. Commercial Flights.

Yes, Hillary Clinton's presidential campaign announcement had moments of apparent spontaneity, but behind the veneer there was no doubt a clear plan.

With a newly outfitted image, Clinton traveled back to the Hawkeye State to make her first official appearance as a presidential candidate, all with the hopes of learning from her past mistakes and ingratiating herself with the state she so painfully lost back in 2008.

Now, as she flies home, Clinton is likely breathing a sigh of relief. There were no hiccups and no gaffes.

Overall, Clinton got generally good reviews, but her performance also raised some questions. Here are five things Clinton accomplished during her two-and-a-half-day Iowa swing, as well as the unknown elements of her campaign that are still left to be determined.

Clinton wanted to show Iowans that this time things would be different, and she did just that, at least at the outset. Instead of traveling around in the "Hill-o-copter," as she did in 2008, this time Clinton came via a road trip in her van, dubbed Scooby. She held small, intimate meetings with what she calls "everyday Iowans," instead of large rallies. And she listened to their concerns (often over coffee, or chai in her case), which she says will help shape her policy plans. Many of these events were clearly choreographed and staged, but even so, Clinton made the effort to make a fresh start.

Did She Convince Them? Clinton may have pressed a reset button in Iowa, but it's unclear that will be enough to shake off pre-conceived notions. While many Iowans expressed appreciation for the effort Clinton was making, not all left completely convinced she had their vote. For many Iowa Democrats, like State Rep. Scott Ourth of Ackworth, it's still a wait-and-see kind of game. "The field has yet to evolve," Ourth told reporters, when asked whether he'd caucus for Clinton. "I'm eager to see how this pans out."

What She Accomplished: She Relayed Her Message.

On the most basic of levels, Clinton made her campaign message known. During her first official event Tuesday, Clinton spelled out four central themes for her campaign: building the "economy of tomorrow, not yesterday," strengthening families, fixing the dysfunctional political system, and protecting the country from threats at home and abroad. "I want to be the champion who goes to bat for Americans" in those areas, Clinton explained.

Where's the Beef? Clinton gave big picture ideas, but said little to none in the way of details. Even Clinton's website still does not have a section explaining her key policy issues, let alone details of specific policy plans. Clinton did hint that the nuts and bolts of her plans would be coming, but just not yet. "Before I roll out my policies," she explained Wednesday, "I want to hear from people on the frontlines."

What She Accomplished: She Dodged the Tough Questions.

Even as another New York Times story broke regarding Clinton's use of personal email as secretary of state, she managed to steer clear of any of the controversies that have surrounded her over the past few months. Clinton avoided all questions on the subject of her emails, as well as other questions on topical issues, telling reporters, "We'll have plenty of time to talk later."

But How Much Longer Can That Last? As a presidential candidate, Clinton will eventually have to respond to the hard questions. Although she said she would chat with reporters at some point, it's unclear when that will be and how long she'll be able to keep this up.

What She Accomplished: She Heard From 'Everyday' People.

Clinton wanted to talk to "everyday Iowans," and that she did. Instead of a big rally in a large venue, Clinton visited local shops and diners, and held roundtables and coffee chats, often in very small spaces, to learn about the day-to-day concerns of local business owners and students.

But Can She Keep It Up? When it comes to the Clintons, there's no such thing as small. Even Hillary Clinton's roundtables of just a few people in Iowa had swarms of press watching. Logistically speaking, it's a challenge either way. But the lingering question is how long can a candidate call for intimacy when hundreds of media are following her every move?

What She Accomplished: She Managed to Surprise Us...

Have to hand it to her. In a day and age of constant Twitter and Facebook postings, Clinton managed to keep us guessing. Sure, it's hard to believe the road trip was as "spur of the moment" as her team insists – but regardless Clinton did inject a little spontaneity and buzziness into her campaign launch.

But Did It Make a Difference? Not all were enamored by Clinton's impromptu shticks. Yes it showed she was trying, but for some it was just too much.

"It was...contrived or overthought," said Josh Skipworth, an Iowa Democrat who supported Obama in 2008. Even so, he added, she's done a "good job."

From: Leopold, Elana
To: "BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov" (BCCD@cityhall.nyc.gov)
Cc: @EO; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com)
Subject: NVM: Elizabeth Warren
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 12:45:29 PM

Elizabeth Warren

Hi Bill, It's Elizabeth Warren. Give me a call when you can, it's not urgent. I just came up to draw some breath been so busy the past five days, as have you. So, give me a call when you can and we can talk.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: B; FLONYC
Cc: John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\); [REDACTED] Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma
Subject: Washington Post: What Hillary Clinton's week on the trail reveals about her policy agenda
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 1:54:02 PM

Noteworthy line:

"For instance, one of these people said, Clinton was struck after several discussions during her first day in Iowa that nobody asked her about income inequality, the economic issue du jour among political elites and a core theme of her nascent campaign."

--

What Hillary Clinton's week on the trail reveals about her policy agenda

By Philip Rucker

April 17 at 3:30 AM

NORWALK, Iowa — One big question looming over Hillary Rodham Clinton's presidential candidacy has been what policy ideas she will propose to cast herself as a change agent without running against the sitting president she served.

Clinton began to provide an answer this week over two days of campaigning in Iowa.

Even without offering policy specifics, the Democratic front-runner sketched out a broad vision and ventured into new territory, particularly when she advocated adopting campaign finance reform to fix a "dysfunctional political system" and getting rid of regulations that inhibit the growth of small businesses.

Clinton defended two pillars of Obama's domestic agenda, the call for comprehensive immigration reform and the health-care law. But on the Affordable Care Act, her embrace was more flexible than dogmatic. Clinton said that she wanted to "keep what works" but that she was open to changes, including the Republican idea of allowing insurance companies to compete across state lines.

Clinton's opening act is a listening tour through the early primary and caucus states, and aides said she does not plan to start rolling out a detailed policy agenda until late spring or summer, but her Iowa swing offered a preview of what is to come.

Rhetorically, Clinton is offering herself as a champion of everyday Americans at a time of economic renewal. But with deep anxiety coursing through the nation, she also is trying to channel voters' desire for change.

"We've got to figure out in our country how to get back on the right track," Clinton told a group of students and educators Tuesday in rural Monticello.

After chatting in a Le Claire coffee shop with a college student who is spiralling into debt, Clinton lamented, "People are struggling."

And the next day in Norwalk, Clinton told small-business owners that although the economy had bounced back, "We need to do more than just get by. We need to get ahead and stay ahead."

So far, Clinton has not pointed fingers at Obama. In fact, during a private meeting with local Democratic leaders in Mount Vernon, she likened the Obama recovery to the booming economy during husband Bill Clinton's presidency to draw a favorable contrast to what she considered the poor economic records of the past few Republican presidents, according to one attendee.

However, Clinton did say she wanted to change the tenor in Washington, making a subtle contrast with Obama's leadership style.

"I want to get things done," Clinton said. "I'm willing to work with people who have good ideas, who are on any side of the political divide, but we have to start breaking down the divisions that have paralyzed our politics."

To that end, she advocated getting rid of "unaccountable money" in political campaigns, even if it requires a constitutional amendment.

Obama's unpopularity as well as history — only once in the past half century has a two-term president been succeeded by a candidate from the same party, President George H.W. Bush in 1989 — might persuade Clinton to break with the president. But she and her campaign advisers have decided to stand by Obama — in part out of necessity, considering she served as his first-term secretary of state.

Clinton's loyalty will be tested once she reveals a robust menu of specific ideas that inevitably will draw some distinctions with the president's policies.

"Even if politicians try very hard to imitate others, they're going to fail because they have their own outlook and their own approaches, and I'm quite sure that she does," said William A. Galston, a former Clinton White House policy adviser and senior fellow at the Brookings Institution.

Clinton signaled that health care could be one such area of differentiation. She defended the Affordable Care Act, but left an opening to prescribe her own changes to the law. "Part of what I'll be doing during the campaign is looking for ways that we keep what works. . . [but] figure out how we fill all these gaps," she said Wednesday in Norwalk.

Clinton said she was considering a proposal that would allow insurance companies to compete across state lines. “If we’re going to have a free-market system, then we need a free market where we’ve got people competing on costs and quality,” she said.

Hearing that, Galston said, “I nearly fell out of my seat. I was surprised, because that has been an important plank of the Republican approach from the very beginning.” He said this was “a very prudent course,” because it signals to congressional Republicans that she is open to their ideas.

Andy Stern, a former Service Employees International Union president, said Clinton has come out with “a seemingly strong declaration that she’s for Main Street.” He singled out her support for free community college for qualified students, an Obama priority.

“The thematics are impressive and pretty clean. The policies and the people will tell the next chapters of the story,” Stern said. He said he wants to see whether Clinton is open to fresh, progressive thinking or whether the centrist economists from her husband’s administration will have her ear.

Clinton is likely to flesh out some foreign policy differences with Obama. She has said that in 2012 she advocated arming rebels in Syria during the civil war there and that Obama decided not to heed her advice. The president eventually took that action, but not until after Clinton had left office and the war had escalated.

On Iran, the nuclear negotiations that are a pillar of Obama’s foreign policy record were set in motion on Clinton’s watch. She publicly supported the negotiations but also voiced strong skepticism that Iran could either make or honor an acceptable deal.

Clinton is in what aides call a “ramp-up phase,” road-testing only broad policy themes, which gives her campaign policy team, led by Maya Harris,

Ann O’Leary and Jake Sullivan, time to craft detailed proposals.

A proud policy wonk throughout her life, Clinton spent considerable time pondering an agenda before deciding to run. Last fall, Sullivan led a thorough review of big challenges and potential policy solutions. The result was a 500-page briefing book, which Clinton took with her on Christmas vacation in the Dominican Republic.

But Clinton is sensitive to being accused of pronouncing policy from on high, so she is first absorbing input from citizens she encounters on the campaign trail, according to people familiar with the campaign.

For instance, one of these people said, Clinton was struck after several discussions during her first day in Iowa that nobody asked her about income inequality, the economic issue du jour among political elites and a core theme of her nascent campaign.

In her campaign announcement video, Clinton says, “The deck is still stacked in favor of those at the top.” It’s a line she repeated across Iowa.

“There’s something wrong when CEOs make 300 times more than the typical worker,” Clinton said in Monticello. Referencing her road trip to Iowa, Clinton added, “There’s something wrong when hedge fund managers pay lower tax rates than nurses or the truckers that I saw on I-80 as I was driving here over the last two days.”

David Axelrod, a former Obama strategist, said this is the tension that will shape the 2016 election.

“Plainly, the economic issue of our day is how the 21st century could regenerate a strong, thriving, secure middle class; how we create more economic mobility so that if you work hard you could actually get ahead;

how do we do things that reduce the huge polarity in our economy?” he said. “That requires a real plan. That requires ideas. How she approaches that is absolutely essential.”

Dan Balz and Anne Gearan contributed to this report.

Philip Rucker is a national political correspondent for The Washington Post, where he has reported since 2005.

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis

Mayor’s Press Office | City Hall

mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)
Subject: FYI
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 3:40:55 PM
Attachments: image001.png

Reporters taking it as trolling over HRC's recent comments on her grandmother:

Andrew Kaczynski Verified account @BuzzFeedAndrew

Andrew Kaczynski retweeted Bill de Blasio
What is going on with Bill de Blasio?
Andrew Kaczynski added,

Bill de Blasio @BilldeBlasio

Proud of my grandmother and the many immigrants who've made our city thrive. Happy #ImmigrantHeritageWeek.

3:38 PM - 17 Apr 2015

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis

Mayor's Press Office | City Hall

mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; "John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)"
Subject: RE: FYI
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 3:42:37 PM
Attachments: image001.png

<http://www.people.com/article/hillary-clinton-grandparents-immigration-story-wrong>

Hillary Clinton Got Her Grandparents' Immigration Story Wrong

BY TARA FOWLER

@waterfowlerta

04/16/2015 AT 07:40 AM EDT

No one said running for president was going to be easy.

While speaking in Iowa on Wednesday, Hillary Clinton shared that all of her grandparents had immigrated to the United States.

"All my grandparents, you know, came over here and you know my grandfather went to work in lace mill in Scranton, Pennsylvania, and worked there until he retired at 65," she said.

But, as Buzzfeed first noted, that story conflicts with census records, which state that Clinton's paternal grandmother, Hanna Jones Rodham, was born in Pennsylvania in 1882.

What's more is that Clinton's maternal grandmother, Della Howell (née Murray), was born in Illinois in 1902, according to records. She married Edwin Howell, also born in Illinois.

But a Clinton campaign spokesperson says it was an honest mistake. "Her grandparents always spoke about the immigrant experience and, as a result she has always thought of them as immigrants," the spokesperson tells PEOPLE.

"As has been correctly pointed out, while her grandfather was an immigrant, it appears that Hillary's grandmother was born shortly after her parents and siblings arrived in the U.S. in the early 1880s."

On Wednesday, Clinton was also called out for not leaving a tip in the tip jar at a Chipotle she visited during her road trip to Iowa on Sunday, Bloombergreports.

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Friday, April 17, 2015 3:41 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmmedia.com)
Subject: FYI

Reporters taking it as trolling over HRC's recent comments on her grandmother:

Andrew Kaczynski Verified account @BuzzFeedAndrew

Andrew Kaczynski retweeted Bill de Blasio
What is going on with Bill de Blasio?
Andrew Kaczynski added,

Bill de Blasio @BilldeBlasio

Proud of my grandmother and the many immigrants who've made our city thrive. Happy #ImmigrantHeritageWeek.

3:38 PM - 17 Apr 2015

--

Mahen Gunaratna

Director of Research and Media Analysis
Mayor's Press Office | City Hall

mgunaratna@cityhall.nyc.gov

(212) 676-3154 (o) | (347)-268-4295 (c)

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; "John Del Cecato \(jfdc@akpdmedia.com\)"
Subject: RE: FYI
Date: Friday, April 17, 2015 3:44:54 PM
Attachments: image006.png

Josh Greenman @joshgreenman 2m2 minutes ago

@BKcolin No. It's immigrant heritage week. Is the political press capable of having any perspective?

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Friday, April 17, 2015 3:44 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; 'John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com)'
Subject: RE: FYI

Colin Campbell @BKcolin 2m2 minutes ago

Colin Campbell retweeted Bill de Blasio

Did Bill de Blasio just drop a huge subtweet on @HillaryClinton??

Colin Campbell added,

No. _____

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

54
JRS

PETITION FOR NATURALIZATION

FILED UNDER PROVISIONS OF ACT OF SEPTEMBER 22, 1922

To the Honorable the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York:

The petition of ANNA BRIGANTI DE BLASIO hereby filed, respectfully sheweth:

First, My place of residence is 7 W 35 New York City, N. Y.

Second, My occupation is wife

Third, I was born on the 13 day of Feb, anno Domini 1882, at Cremona, Italy

Fourth, I emigrated to the United States from Italy on or about the 30 day of May anno Domini 1901, and arrived in the United States, at the port of NY on the 10 day of June anno Domini 1901, in the vessel Saracen Lloyd

Fifth, I declare my intention to become a citizen of the United States on the X day of _____ anno Domini 1924 at _____ in the County of _____ State of _____ Sixth, I am married. My husband's name is Giovanni who was born on the 29 day of June anno Domini 1884 at Italy and now resides at 7 W 36

I have 3 children, and the name, date, and place of birth, and place of residence of each of said children is as follows:

Dorotea born Aug. 22, 1911 NY
Maria * May 14, 1917 NY live with me
Yale * Jan. 15, 1920 NY

Married June 25, 1910 Birth date NY June 2, 1924

Seventh, I am not a disbeliever in or opposed to organized government or a member of or affiliated with any organization or body of persons teaching disbelief in or opposed to organized government. I am not a polygamist nor a believer in the practice of polygamy. I am attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and it is my intention to become a citizen of the United States and to renounce absolutely and forever all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty, and particularly to VICTOR EMANUEL III KING OF ITALY, of whom at this time I am a subject, and it is my intention to reside permanently in the United States.

Eighth, I am able to speak the English language.

Ninth, I have resided continuously in the United States of America for the term of five years at least immediately preceding the date of this petition, to wit, since the 10 day of June anno Domini 1901, and in the State of New York, continuously and preceding the date of this petition, since the 10 day of June anno Domini 1901, being a residence within this State of at least one year next preceding the date of this petition.

Tenth, I have not heretofore made petition for citizenship in any court. I make petition for citizenship in the _____ Court of _____ on the _____ day of _____ anno Domini 1924, and the said petition was denied by the said Court for the following reason and cause, to wit: _____ and the cause of such denial has since been removed.

Attached hereto and made a part of this petition are my declarations of intention to become a citizen of the United States and the certificate from the Bureau of Labor, together with my affidavit and the affidavits of the two certifying witnesses thereto, required by law. Wherefore your petitioner prays that he may be admitted a citizen of the United States of America.

Anna Briganti de Blasio

I, the undersigned of Section No. X with jurisdiction of said Federal Department of Labor find this X day of _____ 1924
 Made at _____ of _____ if petition entered in the United States on the several days in, and under the words reading "and Department of Labor Department of Labor."

AFFIDAVITS OF PETITIONER AND WITNESSES

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Southern District of New York.

The above-named petitioner being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is the petitioner in the above-entitled proceedings; that he has read the foregoing petition and knows the contents thereof; that the said petition is signed with his full, true name; that the same is true of his own knowledge, except as to matters therein stated to be alleged upon information and belief; and that as to those matters he believes it to be true.

Anna Briganti de Blasio

Aurora Aquaro _____ wife _____ residing at 61 W 87 and Mary A. Poloso _____ wife _____ residing at 2023 - 83 St, Bklyn each being severally, duly, and respectively sworn, depose and say that he is a citizen of the United States of America; that he has personally known ANNA BRIGANTI DE BLASIO the petitioner above-mentioned, to have resided in the United States continuously immediately preceding the date of filing his petition, since the 1 day of Jan anno Domini 1915, and in the State in which the above-entitled petition is made continuously since the 1 day of _____ anno Domini 1915; and that he has personal knowledge that the said petitioner is a person of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and that the petitioner is in every way qualified, in his opinion, to be admitted a citizen of the United States.

Aurora Aquaro
Mary A. Poloso

Subscribed and sworn to before me by the above-named petitioner and witnesses in the office of the Clerk of said Court at New York, N. Y., this 10 day of NOV anno Domini 1924

J. H. Staher
 U. S. Naturalization Examiner (Designated)

Bill de Blasio @BilldeBlasio
 Proud of my grandmother and the many immigrants who've made our city thrive. Happy #ImmigrantHeritageWeek.
 1 retweet 0 favorites
 Reply

Retweet 1
Favorite
More

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Friday, April 17, 2015 3:43 PM
To: Walzak, Phil; Hagelgans, Andrea; Wolfe, Emma; 'John Del Cecato (jfdc@akpdmedia.com)'
Subject: RE: FYI

Josh Barro @jbarro 1m1 minute ago

@christhayes @BuzzFeedAndrew I think Andrew is suggesting this is a dig at Hillary

From: Gunaratna, Mahen
Sent: Friday, April 17, 2015 3:43 PM
